God sets it high up in Bible crystallography. He cuts it with a divine chisel, shapes it with a precise geometry, and kindles its fires into an almost supernatural flame of beauty. Its laws of symmetry, its law of zone, its law of parallelism, is something to excite the amazement of the scientist, chime the cantos of the poet and arouse the adoration of the Christian. No one but the infinite God could fashion a carbuncle as large as your thumb nail, and as if to make all ages appreciate this precious stone He ordered it set in the first row of the high priest's breast plate in olden time and higher up than the onyx and the emerald and the diamond, and in Ezekiel's prophecies concerning the splendors of the Tyrian court, the carbuncle is mentioned, the brilliancies of the walls and of the tessellated floors suggested by the Bible sentence, "Thou hast walked up and down in the midst of the stones of fire!" But in my text it is not a solitary specimen that I hand you, as the keeper of a museum might take down from the shelf a precious stone and allow you to examine it. Nor is it the panel of a door that you might stand and study for its unique carvings or bronzed traceries, but there is a whole gate of it lifted before our admiring and astonished vision, aye! two gates of it, aye! many gates of it: "I will make thy gates of carbuncles." What gates? Gates of the church. Gates of anything worth possessing. Gates of successful enterprise. Gates of salvation. Gates of national achievement. Isaiah, who wrote this text, wrote also all that about Christ "as the Lamb to the slaughter," and spoke of Christ as saying, "I have trod the winepress alone," and wrote, "Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah?" And do you think that Isaiah in my text merely happened to represent the gates as red gates, as carmine gates, as gates of carbuncle? No. He means that it is through atonement, through blood-red struggle, through agonies we get into anything worth getting into. Heaven's gates may as well be made of pearl, a bright, pellucid, cheerful crystallization, because all the struggles are over, and there is beyond those gates nothing but raptures and cantata and triumphal procession and everlasting holiday and kiss of reunion, and so the 12 gates are 12 pearls, and could be nothing else than pearls. But Christ hoisted the gates of pardon in His own blood, and the marks of eight fingers and two thumbs are on each gate, and as He lifted the gate it leaned against His forehead and took from it a crimson impress, and all those gates are deeply dyed, and Isaiah was right when he spoke of those gates as gates of carbuncle.

What an odd thing it is, think some, this idea of vicarious suffering or suffering for others! Not at all. The world has seen vicarious suffering millions of times before Christ came and demonstrated it on a scale that eclipsed all that went before and all that shall come after. Rachel lived only long enough after the birth of her son to give him a name. In faint whisper she said: "Call him Ben-oni," which means "son of my pain," and all modern travelers on the road from Jerusalem to Bethel uncover their heads and stand reverently at the tomb of Rachel who died for her boy. But in all ages how many mothers die for their children, who by recreancy stab clear through the mother's heart! Suffering for others? Why, the world is full of it. "Jump!" said the engineer to the fireman on the locomotive. "One of us is enough to die. Jump!" And so the engineer died at his post, trying to save the train. When this summer the two trains crashed into each other near Atlantic City, among the 47 who lost their lives the engineer was found dead with one hand on the throttle of the locomotive and the other on the brake. Aye! there are hundreds here to-day suffering for others. You know and God knows that it is vicarious sacrifice. But on one limestone hill about twice the height of this church, five minutes' walk from the gates of Jerusalem, was the sublimest case of suffering for others that the world ever saw or ever will see. Christ, the victim, human and satanic malevolence the executioner, the whole human race having an overwhelming interest in the spectacle. To open a way for us sinful men and sinful women into glorious pardon and high hope and eternal exultation, Christ, with hand dripping with the rush of opened arteries, swung back the gate, and behold! it is a red gate, a gate of deepest hue, a gate of carbuncle.

What is true in spirituals is true in temporals. There are young men and older men who hope, through the right [illegible] controversy between silver and gold, or the bimetallic quarrel, that it will become easy to make a living. That time will never come. It never has been easy to make a living. The men who have it very easy now went through hardships and self-denials to which most young men would never consent. Unless they got it by inheritance, you can not mention 20 men who have come to honorable fortune that did not fight their way inch by inch, and against fearful odds that again and again almost destroyed them. For some good reason God has arranged it for all the centuries that the only way for most people to get a livelihood for themselves and their families is with both hands and all the allied forces of body, mind and soul to push back and push open the red gate, the gate of carbuncle. For the benefit of all young men; if I had the time, I would call the roll of those who overcame the obstacle. How many of the mighty men who went one way on Pennsylvania avenue and reached the United States senate, or walked the other way on Pennsylvania avenue and reached the white house, did not have to climb over political obloquy? Not one. How much scorn and scoff and brutal attack did Horace Mann endure between the time when he first began to fight for a better common school system in Massachusetts, and the day when a statue in honor of him was placed on the steps of the state house overlooking "The Commons."

Read the biography of Robert Hall, the Baptist preacher, who, though he had been pronounced a dunce at school, lived to thrill the world with his Christian eloquence; and of George Peabody, who never owned a carriage and denied himself all luxuries that he might while living and after death, through his last will and testament, devote his uncounted millions to the education of the poor people in England and America; and of Bishop James, who, in boyhood, worked his passage from Ireland to America, and became the joy of Methodism and a blessing to the race. Go to the biographical alcove in city, state or national library, and find at least every other book an illustration of overcome obstacle and of carmine gate that had to be forced open.

What is true of individuals is true of nations. Was it a mild spring morning when the Pilgrim Fathers landed on Plymouth Rock, and did they come in a gilded yacht, gay streamers flying? No. It was in cold December, and from a ship in which one would not want to cross the Hudson or Potomac river. Scalping knives already to receive them, they landed, their only welcome the Indian war whoop. Red men on the beach. Red men in the forest. Red men on the mountains. Red men in the valleys. Living gates of red men. Gates of carbuncle!

Aboriginal hostility pushed back, surely now our forefathers will have nothing to do but to take easy possession of the fairest continent under the sun. The skies so genial, the soil so fertile, the rivers so populous with finny life, the acreage so immense, there will be nothing to do but eat, drink and be merry. No. The most powerful nation, by army and navy, sounded its protest across 3,000 miles of water. Then came Lexington and Bunker Hill, and Monmouth and Long Island battles, and Valley Forge and Yorktown, and starvation and widowhood and orphanage, and the thirteen colonies went through sufferings which the historian has attempted to put upon paper and the artist to put upon canvas, but all in vain. Engraver's knife, and reporter's skill, and telegraphic wire, and daily press, which have made us acquainted with the horrors of modern battle-field, had not yet begun their vigilance, and the story of the American revolution has never been told, and never will be told. It did not take much ink to sign the Declaration of Independence, but it took a terrific amount of blood to maintain it. It was an awful gate of opposition that the men and women—and the women as much as the men—pushed back. It was a gate of self-sacrifice. It was a gate of blood. It was a gate of carbuncle.

We are not indebted to history for our knowledge of the greatest of national crisis. Many of us remember it, and fathers and mothers now living had better keep telling that story to their children, so that instead of their being dependent upon cold type and obliged to say, "On such a page of such a book you can read that," will they rather be able to say, "My father told me so!" "My mother told me so!" Men and women who vividly remember 1861, and 1862, and 1863, and 1864, be yourselves the historians telling it, not with pen, but with living tongue and voice and gesture. That is the great use of Memorial Decoration day, for the calla lilies on the grave tops soon become breathless of perfume, and in a week turn to dust like unto that which lies beneath them. But the story of courage and self-sacrifice and patriotism told on platforms and in households and by the roadside and in churches and in cemeteries, by that annual recital will be kept fresh in memory of generations as long as our American institutions are worthy of preservation. Long after you are dead your children will be able to say, with the psalmist, "We have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us, what work thou didst in their days, in the time of old." But what a time it was! Four years of homesickness! Four years of brotherly and sisterly estrangement! Four years of martyrdom! Four years of massacre! Put them in a long line, the conflagration of cities, and see them light up a whole continent! Put them in long rows, the hospitals, making a vast metropolis of pain and paroxysm! Gather them in one vast assemblage, the millions of bereft from the St. Lawrence to the gulf, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific beaches! Put the tears into lakes and the blood into rivers, and the shrieks into whirl winds. During the four years many good and wise men at the north, and the south saw nothing ahead but annihilation. With such a national debt we could never meet our obligations! With such mortal antipathies northern and southern men could never come into amity! Representatives of Louisiana and Georgia and the Carolinas could never again sit sides by side with the representatives of Maine, Massachusetts and New York at the national capital. Lord John Russell had declared that we were "a bubble-bursting nationality," and it had come true. The nations of Europe had gathered with very resigned spirits at the funeral of our American republic. They had tolled the bells on parliaments and reichstags and lowered their flags at half-mast, and even the lion on the other side of the sea had whined for the dead eagle on this side. The deep grave had been dug, and beside Babylon, and Thebes, and Tyre, and other dead nations of the past our dead republic was to be buried. The epitaph was already: "Here lies the American republic. Born at Philadelphia, 4th of July, 1776. Killed at Bull Run July 21, 1861. Aged 85 years and 17 days. Peace to its ashes." But before the obsequies had quite closed there was an interruption of the ceremonies, and our dead nation rose from its mortuary surroundings. God had made for it a special Ressurrection Day, and cried: "Come forth, thou Republic of Washington, and John Adams, and Thomas Jefferson, and Patrick Henry, and John Hancock, and Daniel Webster, and S. S. Prentiss and Henry Clay. Come forth!" and she came forth, to be stronger than she had ever been. Her mightiest prosperities have come since that time. Who would want to push back this country to what it was in 1860 or 1850? But, oh! what a high gate, what a strong gate, she had to push back before she could make one step in advance! Gate of flame. See Norfolk navy yard, and Columbia, and Chambersburg, and Charleston, on fire! Gate of bayonets! See glittering rifles and carbines flash from the Susquehanna, and the James, to the Mississippi, and the Arkansas! Gate of heavy artillery, making the mountains of Tennessee and Kentucky and Virginia tremble as though the earth itself were struggling in its last agony. The gate was so fiery and so red that I can think of nothing more appropriate than to take the suggestion of Isaiah in the text and call it a gate of carbuncles.

This country has been for the most part of its history pressing through crises, and after each crisis was better off than before it entered it, and now we are at another crisis. We are told on one hand that if gold is kept as a standard, and silver is not elevated, confidence will be restored and this nation will rise triumphant from all the financial misfortunes that have been afflicting us. On the other hand, we are told that if the free coinage of silver is allowed, all the wheels of business will revolve, the poor man will have a better chance, and all our industries will begin to hum and roar. During the last six presidential elections I have been urged to enter the political arena, but I never have and never will turn the pulpit in which I preach into a political stump. Every minister must do as he feels called to do, and I will not criticise him for doing what he considers his duty; but all the political harangues from pulpits from now until the 3d of November will not in all the United States change one vote, but will leave many ears stopped against anything that such clergymen may utter the rest of their lives. As a general rule the laymen of churches understand politics better than the clergy, because they (the laymen) study politics more than the clergy and have better opportunity of being intelligent on those subjects. But good morals, honesty, loyalty, Christian patriotism and the Ten Commandments—these we must preach. God says distinctly in the Bible, "The silver and the gold are mine," and he will settle the controversy between those two metals. If ever this country needed the Divine rescue, it needs it now. Never within my memory have so many people literally starved to death as in the past few months. Have you noticed in the newspapers how many men and women here and there have been found dead, the post-mortem examination stating that the cause of death was hunger? There is not a day that we do not hear the crash of some great commercial establishment, and as a consequence many people are thrown out of employment. Among what we considered comfortable homes have come privation and close calculation and economy that kills. Millions of people who say nothing about it are at this moment at their wits' end. There are millions of people who do not want charity, but want work. The cry has gone up to the ears of the "Lord of Sabbaoth," and the prayer will be heard and relief will come. If we have anything better to depend on than American politics, relief will never come. Whoever is elected to the presidency the wheels of government turn so slowly, and a caucus in yonder white building on the hill may tie the hands of any president. Now, though we who live in the District of Columbia can not vote, we can pray, and my prayer day and night shall be, "O, God, hear the cry of the souls from under the altar. Thou who hast brought the wheat and corn of this season to such magnitude of supply, give food to man and beast. Thou who hast not where to lay Thy head, pity the shelterless. Thou who has brought to perfection the cotton of the south and the flax of the north, clothe the naked. Thou who hast filled the mine with coal, give fuel to the shivering. Bring bread to the body, intelligence to the mind and salvation to the soul of all the people. God save the nation!"

But we must admit it is a hard gate to push back. Millions of thin hands have pushed at it without making it swing on its hard hinges. It is a gate made out of empty flour barrels, and cold grates: and worn-out apparel, and cheerless homes, and unmedicated sickness, and ghastliness, and horror. It is a gate of struggle. A gate of penury. A gate of want

---

BRYAN'S DOVER SPEECH.

He Shows How McKinley Contradicts His Former Statements.

Bismarck's Letter to Gen. Culberson—What the Great German Statesman Thinks About Our Ability to Force Bimetallism.

DOVER, Del., Sept. 22.—Candidate Bryan began his speech-making in Delaware yesterday afternoon by addressing a large audience which had assembled at the fair grounds at that place to hear him. Excursion trains brought many people from the lower part of Delaware and the eastern shore of Maryland.

Mr. Bryan said in part: If things are good then there is no reason why we should make any change in legislation. If our present condition is satisfactory then we ought to leave it alone and not make a change. No one can advocate any kind of remedial legislation except on the theory that there is something that needs remedying. Our opponents confess the condition and when I tell you that you cannot remedy the present condition except by financial legislation our opponents tell us that the trouble is in the tariff question and that if we could just have more tariff then times would get good again. I want to read you an extract from a speech made on last Saturday by the republican candidate for president at Canton. He said: "Under the republican protective policy we enjoyed for more than 30 years the most marvelous prosperity that has ever been given to any nation. We not only had individual prosperity, but we had national prosperity."

Now there is a statement made within a week by the presidential candidate on the republican ticket pointing back for 30 years, from 1860 to 1890, and telling the people that during the period we enjoyed the most marvelous prosperity of any nation in the world, and that we had both individual prosperity and national prosperity. I want to show you how distance lends enchantment to the view. I want to show you by this witness' very testimony, given six years ago, that after 30 years of his kind of policy the farmers of this country were not prosperous. If you will take the report filed with the McKinley bill on the 16th of April, 1890, you will find the words which I wish to quote:

"That there is widespread depression in this country to-day cannot be doubted," speaking of agriculture. That is what the presidential candidate said when he deliberately wrote the report and filed it with his proposed legislation. "That there is widespread depression in this country to-day cannot be doubted." Again, in that same report, he said: "One of the chief complaints now prevalent among our farmers is that they can get no price for their crops at all commensurate with the labor and capital invested in their production."

That is what he said after 30 years of the kind of policy which the candidate of the republican party says will bring you prosperity. Let me read again: "We have not believed that our people, already suffering from low prices, can or will be satisfied with legislation which will result in lower prices. No country ever suffered when prices were fairly remunerative in every field of labor."

After thirty years of that kind of policy he tells you that the people are suffering from low prices, and that no country ever suffered when prices were fairly remunerative in every field of labor. Now, let me read you again what he says in this same report:

"This great industry," speaking of agriculture, "is foremost in magnitude and importance in our country. Its success and prosperity are vital to the nation. No prosperity is possible to other industries if agriculture languish." That is what he said in 1890, that there was depression in agriculture after 30 years of his tariff policy, and that without prosperity in agriculture there could be no prosperity among the other industries of the country. Let me read you just one more extract: "The depression in agriculture is not confined to the United States. The reports of the agricultural department indicate that this distress is general; that Great Britain, France and Germany are suffering in a larger degree than the farmers of the United States." There he is telling us that there is a depression in agriculture, and giving the name of three prominent agricultural nations of the old world, and telling us that agricultural depression is even more marked over there than it is here. I want you to remember that when you read in the paper that he said that for 30 years we had such marvelous prosperity.

Now, my friends, I have quoted you that he said that there was depression in agriculture in Germany. I want to read you what Prince Bismarck says about the condition of affairs in Germany. Our opponents are in the habit of telling us that all the civilized nations are in favor of the gold standard. The Germans who live in this country point with a just pride to the greatness of this illustrious German, Prince Bismarck. Let me read you what he said within a few weeks in regard to bimetallism, and then see whether he testifies that the gold standard has been a good thing for Germany. In a letter written to Gov. Culberson, of Texas, and dated on the 24th day of August, 1896, Prince Bismarck says: "Your esteemed favor of July 1 has been duly received. I have always had a predilection of bimetallism, but I would not, while in office, claim my views of the matter to be infallibly true when advanced against the views of experts. I hold, to this very hour that it would be advisable to bring about between the nations chiefly engaged in the world's commerce mutual agreement in favor of the establishment of bimetallism."

If the gold standard has been a blessing to Germany, why would not he say that it was better to keep the gold standard instead of getting rid of the gold standard and substituting the double standard by international agreement?

"Considered from a commercial and industrial standpoint, the United States are freer by far in their movements than any nation in Europe, and hence, if the people of the United States should find it compatible with their interests to take independent action in the direction of bimetallism, I cannot but believe that such action would exert a most salutary influence upon the consummation of international agreement, and the coming into this league of every European nation."

We have those among our people who have said that some other nation must take the lead. Prince Bismarck says that the people of the United States are freer by far in their movements than the nations of Europe. Can it be that this great German statesman has a higher conception of the abilities of the people of the United States than the tories who are not willing to do anything until they ask the consent of other nations? Not only does Prince Bismarck say that we are freer to take action than other nations, but he says if we accept it will "exert a most salutary influence upon the consummation of international agreement and the coming into this league of every European nation."

Prince Bismarck testifies, first, the gold standard is the policy in Germany and he wants bimetallism restored. He testifies, second, that the United States is in the best position to take the lead. He testifies, third, that if this nation takes the lead it will have a salutary influence not in preventing bimetallism, but bringing other nations of Europe into an international agreement. I desire that you shall remember this testimony, coming from so distinguished an authority in Germany.

Our opponents tell us that we are arraying one class against another. Let me show you what Prince Bismarck said in regard to classes on the questions which concern a great depression. Little more than a year ago he was quoted as saying to a farmer audience in Germany that the farmers must stand together and protect themselves from the drones of society who produce nothing but laws. Remember the significance of those words, that the farmers should stand together and protect themselves from the drones of society who produce nothing but laws.

My friends, divide society into two classes; on the one side put the producers and on the other put the nonproducers of wealth and you will find that in this country the majority of the laws are made by the non-producers instead of producers of wealth, and just as long as the non-producers make the laws, just so long it will be more profitable to be a non-producer of wealth. Bismarck tried to arouse the farmers of Germany to throw out these drones and take charge of the legislation themselves. I suppose they will call Bismarck an agitator. I suppose they will say that he ought not to array one class of society against another. Of course I don't know how drones feel in a bee hive, but if drones could talk and make speeches I will bet that you could not tell one of their speeches from the speech of a gold standard advocate. I will venture to say that if the drones could make speeches you could not distinguish their speeches from the speeches made by the heads of those great trusts who call all anarchists who do not believe with them. I will venture that if a drone could talk and write and express his ideas in language, that there is not a member of a syndicate that has been beating this government but who could take the drone's speech and use it as his own and without being accused of plagiarism.

My friends, that is the only class issue that we raise, and if to say that the people who fight the nation's battles in time of war have a right to do the legislating in time of peace is raising class against class, then I am willing to be called an agitator, my friends. If to tell the people who produce wealth that they have a right to make the laws so as to secure to themselves a just portion of the wealth they produce, instead of allowing the drones to make the laws and eat the honey, is raising class against class, then I plead guilty to the charge of stirring up discontent. I will bet you that if the drone was in politics party lines would not weigh very much with him if he had a business interest on the other side. You show me the head of a syndicate or trust and I will show you a man who, whenever his business interests become involved, grows suddenly patriotic and tells you that he loves his country too much to let anybody make more money out of legislation than he does.

You read in the gold standard papers how they parade in great big headlines every time a democrat leaves the democratic party, but there is not a one of them telling the real reason why they leave. They say they are afraid the laws will not be enforced. They are afraid that they will be enforced and the reason why these men are willing to contribute enormously to the campaign fund is because they know that if the Chicago ticket succeeds the laws will be enforced against them as well as anybody else.

I will venture the assertion that not half the men who are in favor of a gold standard can tell what 16 to 1 means. They do not understand even the terms which are used in the discussion of the money question. I would be willing to place the average farmer against the average banker and turn them loose to discuss monetary science and financial history, and the banker could not hold his own with the farmer. Why? Because the financier thinks he knows so much that it is not necessary to study, while the farmer realizes that he has got to study in order to know about the question. The financier has been getting along so well that he thinks that it is not necessary for him to worry, but the farmer has been suffering so much that he is trying to find out what is the matter with the farmer. The farmer knows that by making money scarce he makes money dear and property cheap.

My friends, we have had our financial legislation run by those people who have made more in an hour or two a day gambling in stocks and bonds and gambling in what the farmers produce than all the farmers of the Union could make producing their crops. You take, for instance, where they can send a large amount of gold abroad and make stocks drop, and bring a large amount in and make stocks rise again. The people who are able to corner this money there are able to get along fairly well, no matter how other people may suffer.

Artificial Silk.

The process for the manufacture of artificial silk is based upon that employed by nature. The first thing used is wood—for mulberry leaves are in reality the equivalent of a mulberry wood. The wood is worked into a paste, after being dipped in nitric and sulphuric acids, is dried and placed in a bath of ether and alcohol. A transformation takes place and a kind of glue or collodion is the result.

Bath Money.

Among the Turks bath money forms an item in every marriage contract, the husband engaging to allow his wife a certain sum for bathing purposes. Should it be withheld she has only to go before the cadi and turn her slipper upside down, and if the complaint be not redressed then it is a ground for a divorce.

JOHN R. GENTRY

Breaks the World's Pacing Record at Portland, Me.

The First Quarter Was Made in 29 1-4 Seconds; Half Mile Finished in 59 1-2; Time at Three-Quarters 1:30 1-4; The Mile Finished in 2:00 1-2.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 25.—It was threatening all the morning but the skies partly cleared in the afternoon so that the racing at Rigby came off according to programme. There was a fair attendance considering the weather and the races were up to the mark. It was an eventful day for Rigby because the world's record was broken by John R. Gentry, the magnificent horse pacing the fastest mile ever made in harness and placing the world's record at only half a second over two minutes, or 2:00½. Gentry was roundly applauded when he appeared on the track for his great trial of speed. He had been out on the track several times before and had been the center of all eyes. When W. S. Andrews drove him on the track for the effort to break his record, the air was chilly and a light northwesterly breeze blew up the home stretch. His record before starting was 2:01½ which he made September 8 at Glen Falls, N. Y., in the second heat of a race with Star Pointer. Andrews had given Gentry two warming-up miles and it was nearly sunset when he was ready to start for the eventful mile. Andrews rode his sulky easily with an air of confidence, but among the spectators there were very few who believed that the record would be lowered so near the two-minute mark. A runner appeared with Gentry to pace him. After scoring twice Andrews came down to the wire to begin the fastest mile ever accomplished by a horse in harness. The crowd cheered as he approached the starting point.

"Go," shouted Starter Culbertson, and hundreds of watches caught the pacer at the start. The runner's nose was within two feet of Gentry's nose as they made the first turn. In the stretch Gentry was going gracefully and steadily, getting over the ground in great shape and the runner had to work hard to keep up. The first quarter was given by the judges as made in 29¼ seconds. People began to wonder when the half mile was finished in 59½ seconds and to look for a two minute pace. At this point the runner's driver was using the whip and making a great effort and succeeded in keeping at the wheel of Gentry's sulky. The third quarter reeled in 30¾, making the time at the three-quarter post 1:30¼. As the horses turned into the home stretch and caught the wind in their teeth, the crowd began to shout and hurrah, and Andrews shouted encouragingly to his horse. The runner's driver also urged his horse and used the whip sparingly. All this nerved the pacer to a supreme effort, and it can be seen how noble an effort he made, for with the wind in his face he made the last quarter quicker than the third quarter, doing it in 30¼, and thus covering his mile in two minutes and one-half second. This was a whole second less than his former record, which had never been surpassed by any horse, and only equalled by Robert J (2:01½) in 1895 at Terre Haute.

A REAPPROACHMENT

Between Russia and Great Britain on the Armenian Question Urged by a St. Petersburg Paper.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 25.—In a restrained and dignified article on the Armenian question, the Russia Gazette urges in the interests of European peace and upon principles of humanity a reapproachment between Russia and Great Britain.

It declines to indorse the suggestion that Great Britain arranged the massacres in her own interests, and declases that it believes that the sympathy of the powers is on her side. It is in favor of a decisive pressure being brought to bear on the porte, to whose faulty government is largely the dark side of recent events. The Gazette adds: "Strict watchfullness of the interests of Russia in the east can not be considered by Russian diplomacy as an absolute impediment to the establishment in the near future of such an entente with Great Britain and the other powers as will afford a solution of the complicated question, which unceasingly alarms Europe."

TORPEDO BOATS.

Contracts for Three of Them Will Be Let Soon.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The experts who have been industriously absorbed in the torpedo-boat plans, have reached no conclusion regarding the superiority of the different proposed boats.

Main interest attaches to the contracts which will be let for the 30-knot boats. The bids made by Herreshoff, of Bristol, R. I.; the Bath iron works, of Bath, Me.; the Union iron works, of San Francisco, and Dialogue & Son, of Camden, N. J., appear to be the most inviting.

There is some talk of the contract for the three boats being made to the Union iron works, the Bath people and Herreshoff respectively. The aggregate of such a distribution of the contracts would be $639,000. The department has $800,000 for this purpose.

A Failure and a Suicide.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—The firm of Darlington, Queck & Boyden, commission men at the stock yards, failed Thursday morning, and almost simultaneous with the news of the failure came the information from Lincoln, Ill., that Frederick Boyden, a member of the firm, had committed suicide at that place Thursday morning by shooting himself through the head. Mr. Boyden had been paying a visit to his brother in Lincoln, and leaving to catch an early train for Chicago when he shot himself. The firm is one of the oldest and best known among the business houses at the yards.

CARLISLE'S COURSE.

Becomes the Mouthpiece of the Money Power.

It is fortunate for the people of this country that the money power, speaking through Mr. Carlisle, has announced the step that it proposes to take as soon as McKinley is elected. This announcement, as our readers know, is to the effect that if McKinley is elected, the money power will demand the redemption of the silver dollar and the silver certificates in gold, and that it will be able to enforce its demand.

It is fortunate that the announcement has been made at this time, for now the people of the country will be able to know precisely what they are voting for and what they are voting against. There is not a voter in the land so ignorant that he can fail to understand the nature of Mr. Carlisle's announcement.

Heretofore, the demand of the money power has been modestly confined to the redemption of the greenbacks and treasury notes in gold. It now declares, through Mr. Carlisle, that all forms of our circulating medium except gold are redeemable in gold.

In the even of McKinley's election, therefore, we confidently look forward to some very interesting experiences. Our people may imagine that they have had some very interesting experiences since 1893, when the country was placed at the mercy of the money power; but the experiences they have had during the past three years will not be remembered by the side of those they will pass through when the money power begins to contract the currency by presenting silver dollars and silver certificates for redemption in gold.

If Bryan is elected, Carlisle would not dare to carry out the policy of the gold owners, as outlined in his letter, for it would promptly lead to his impeachment. On the other hand, should McKinley be elected, the people may as well prepare for the tremendous squeeze which will depreciate the silver dollars so that, like the greenbacks and treasury notes, they can be presented to the treasury for enforced redemption in gold.

This would mean that all the silver money and all the paper currency of the country would rest on the slender basis of our available stock of gold. The inevitable result would be to double the demand for gold, and thus make that metal twice as valuable as it is now—giving us a 400 instead of the 200-cent dollar we now have.

The most conservative of New York bankers admit that our available stock of gold, for redemption purposes, is not more than $350,000,000 at the outside. On this slender basis would have to rest our whole supply of silver dollars, silver certificates, greenbacks, treasury notes, amounting to something like $1,400,000,000. One of the first results of McKinley's election would be the "depreciation" of silver dollars and silver certificates. That is to say, the associated banks of that city would decline to receive them in exchange for greenbacks and treasury notes at their face value. Following this, the silver dollars and silver cetificates would be presented at the subtreasury for redemption in gold. The sequel would be the issue of more bonds until the total available supply of currency had been brought down to the point represented by the small fund of redemption money.

Such a tremendous contraction of the currency as this, with the constantly increasing value of money, would produce such ruin and disaster as have never been experienced in a civilized country in time of peace. That is what Carlisle's announcement means, and as the policy outlined by him can only be carried out in the event of McKinley's election, the people of the country have an opportunity of choosing Bryan and prosperity, or McKinley and ruin.—Atlanta Constitution.

——If the axel grease and the Hanna fertilizer do not accomplish the desired results, it will not be because they have not been supplied in abundance by the McKinley magnates.—St. Louis Republic.

BRYAN PROGRESSING.

Success of the Representative of the Working People.

William Jennings Bryan is making splendid progress in his leadership of the forces of democracy to the victory that awaits them at the end of this campaign. He is convincing by force of clear, logical argument, and is winning votes by plain, simple statement of the truth. His speech delivered on Labor day to an enormous audience of voters was a striking indication of the temper of the time. No man is better fitted to speak to the laboring man on the subjects closest to his heart than this plain man of the people. Mr. Bryan is the friend of labor; and the men who make the strength of the great labor organizations of to-day recognize his friendship and respond to his efforts in their behalf.

The success of Bryan means the success of labor. His interests are the interests of the great working masses of the country. Their votes will elect the next president, and their votes are won for Bryan wherever he has opportunity to face and speak to them.

His efforts are meeting everywhere with success. He is educating the people. He clears away from the discussion of the financial question all the misunderstanding so cunningly created by the plutocrats. He tells the truth about silver so clearly and plainly that any man of common sense can understand it.

This is clearly a campaign of money against manhood, of plutocracy against the people. In spite of all the efforts of the millionaires, in spite of all the money so lavishly scattered by the Hanna syndicate, the party of the people is marching steadily on to success. Never in the history of this republic have the people had so splendid a leader as William Jennings Bryan.—Tammany Times.

GOLD STANDARD FRUITS.

High Time for the People to Assert Themselves.

Real estate mortgage debt of the United States, as shown by the census of 1890, $6,019,679,985. Annual interest on same, $397,442,792. Increase in debt from 1880 to 1890, 146.53 per cent! This annual interest charge equals the home market value of all the wheat and oats produced in the United States in 1895.

Pennsylvania's share of this monstrous mortgage debt is $613,105,802. Interest thereon annually, $34,105,663. To pay this interest charge for a single year, at present home market prices, basing product on census report of 1890, would consume all the corn, wheat, barley, oats, rye and buckwheat produced in the state in 1896, and then there would still remain a balance unpaid of about $8,800,000.

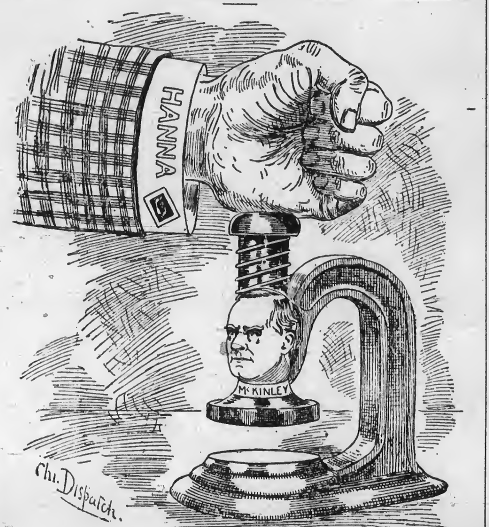
We submit that in the face of these facts it is high time for the cry of "demagogue, fanatic, rattle-brained fool and anarchist" to cease, and for the people to lay aside their partisan prejudice and as voters having the best interests of the whole country at heart to carefully study these figures and see if they cannot discover some of the reasons for the general depression in business that exists to-day.—Philadelphia Item.

——To the popular recognition of this attitude of the leaders of democracy is doubtless due the great increase in democratic sentiment in this state. From present indications, this year will be one of democratic triumph in the Empire state. The progress of Bryan through New York is proof of this. Everywhere received with enthusiasm, everywhere assured of popular support, he was cheered because he was recognized by the great mass of the people as their friend.—Tammany Times.

——Every trust which has contributed to the money that Hanna is said to have pledged for the Belshazzar fund is a violator of the laws of the United States. Is McKinley willing to have those laws inforced regardless of the Belshazzar fund?—N. Y. World.

——The best evidence that Mr. Bryan is a democrat, and a good and true one, is to be found in the study of his record in congress.—Los Angeles Herald.

HIS "MARK."



Given under my hand and seal.—Mark Hanna.

[McKinley, the first syndicate candidate ever introduced to the American voter, will as certainly belong to the crowd that holds his commercial paper, if he is elected, as Thurston belongs to the Union Pacific or Caffery to the sugar-planting interests of Louisiana. There is a volume of argument in the above picture. Study it.—Chicago Dispatch.]

SCHOOL TO TRAIN SERVANTS.

One Writer Thinks This the Only Remedy for the Present Situation.

Such a school should be well organized and equipped for the thorough training of servants in all branches of household work. In the first place it should have facilities for teaching pupils how to bathe properly, to care for their own bodies and their own clothes. It should have different departments of training, one for laundresses, another for chambermaids, another for waitresses, another for cooks and another for general housework servants, the last, of course, requiring a special condensed course. On entrance young women or girls should be classified as far as possible, according to their general intelligence and ability as well as the employment for which they wish to be fitted. The first work given should be the washing of the kitchen-ware, the sweeping of the kitchen, and the scrubbing of the floor and tables—in short, every pupil should be taught the work of a kitchen maid. After that, even though she intends to fit herself for a special department, she should be taught to sweep and dust carpeted rooms, and next to do plain washing and ironing, these being among the things which every domestic should know how to do well.

An ordinary dwelling-house might be utilized for the school. The basement, which should be well lighted, could be fitted up as a laundry, capable of accommodating a large number of women, to be classified as they advance in skill in the department. There must be a head laundress to look after those under her, and inspectors to decide when a woman is capable of promotion.

In a city of 5,000 inhabitants such a laundry might easily be made self-supporting.

The first floor of the training school should be devoted to the cooking department. It should have several kitchens where women in different stages of advancement could work, under an expert leader. The different departments in cookery could be made self-supporting by having lunch counters where men could go in with their dinner-pails and have served to them from the kitchens of the less skilled pupils hot soup, tea, coffee and other plain food, while a restaurant of a better class might be sustained from the work of those who were more thoroughly trained. Another source of income might be secured by filling orders for special dishes, or for whole meals. Setting a table, washing fine china, and glass, and polishing silver could be taught in connection with the restaurant.

The upper floors should consist of a parlor and various apartments, where servants could be trained in cleaning, dusting, window-washing, care of lamps and all kinds of second work. From this department servants could be sent out by the hour or day to sweep, dust or act as housemaids.

With the training given in this way a thoroughly competent laundress, if she were a fairly industrious and intelligent worker, should be graduated in perhaps six months. After the first month she might be paid a small sum for her services. The cooks might also begin to have small wages after the first month. At least two years would probably be required for a cook to be thoroughly trained in every branch of her work, from caring for her range to doing fine cookery. Those who show special capacity should be trained to take the whole responsibility of planning and cooking elaborate luncheons and dinners, as well as in the mastery of economical and healthful cookery for everyday life. Wages should increase with gain in skill. The cook would find compensation for the longer course in the high wages which her certificate would enable her to demand. The time required for training in any department would depend upon intelligence and adaptability.

The certificates given by the training school should be proof of skill, competence and integrity; they should state exactly what the servant is fitted to do, and they should be so conscientiously given that a housekeeper might rest assured that she knew exactly the capabilities of the servant. Throughout the course earnest effort should be made to impress upon the pupils the idea of moral obligation. Servants should be made to realize the dignity of their work, and the important part its faithful performance plays in the happiness and health of the home, and so of the nation. They should be taught that their work is as essential to the moral and physical well-being of humanity as that of the teacher, the doctor or the minister, and that it demands just as much unselfishness and conscientiousness. In this connection it might be well to establish a training school for mistresses and other members of the family, that the idea of moral obligation might not be all on one side.—Carrie Niles Whitcomb, in Century.

Her Dog as Baggage.

A young lady with a pug dog tied up in a shawl strap attracted considerable attention on a Metropolitan car from Georgetown the other day. The pug was wrapped in a small rug to protect him from the straps, and seemed quite contented to be carried in this new fashion, which left his head and legs free. The conductor glanced inquiringly at the bundle of dog as the young lady tendered her fare with this explanation:

"You see, I'm going away on the train, and I want to take Punch with me. They would put him away off in the baggage car if he were free, so I carry him in my shawl strap. He's baggage this way, and they can't object to him in the passenger car. Why, I have a friend who carried her pet pug all over Europe that way."—Washington Post.

Obliging.

"John," said Mrs. Wilbur, "why don't you brush that fly off the top of your head. He's been there three minutes."

"Oh, let him stay," said John. "I'm not using the top of my head just now."

THE NIGHT TOILET.

A Good Grooming Before Retiring Is Very Beneficial.

Few women seem to appreciate the necessity as well as the value of a night toilet. They reserve all their grooming methods for daylight trial and are content to slip into bed with only a hasty attack on their teeth with the toothbrush and a few rapid strokes of the hairbrush upon their locks.

Now the ultra-fastidious sister would as soon think of slighting her toilet details before she goes to dreamland as she would venture into the breakfast-room with uncombed locks.

She realizes that night is the time to repair whatever ravages the day has made in her looks.

In the first place, just before going to bed is the best time to take a warm bath, for the bather then has the entire night to rest if there is any fatigue attendant upon the hot tubbing.

Night is the proper time to take a facial steam bath. This pore-cleansing plan is apt to make the skin look blotchy and red for a time, and it is an advantage to be able to apply a creamy unguent and let the "parboiled" effect wear off before morning.

When there is need of a facial bath of soap and water (and there are times when the skin calls for this practical cleansing), it is better to take it just before retiring. The use of a little cold cream will remedy the drawn, stretched feeling the skin is likely to assume, but no woman can start out on her day's duties with a cream-daubed countenance. Hence the value of the night toilet. Those much-talked-about "fifty strokes of the hairbrush" should be doubled at night when the dust that has accumulated in madame's tresses needs to be removed. It is an untidy habit, this slighting the head as well as any other part of the body. Nothing betrays lack of attention so plainly as one's hair.

No one can expect to secure a lustrous, satiny head of hair if too lazy to bring the brush into vigorous play.

Dentists' bills would be less heavy if women would appreciate the value of thorough mouth grooming before retiring. The tooth brush should be deftly carried into every crevice of the teeth and the mouth well rinsed out with a little water and myrrh or listerine.

One young girl whose hands are the admiration of all her friends confides that she does her most careful manicuring before she goes to bed, incasing her hands, after the digits have been artfully tended, in cerate gloves. In the morning she has only to wash her hands in a lather of castile soap and warm water or use a little almond meal and they are perfection from wrist to finger tip.

Going to bed with half-soiled hands is sure to rub the dirt in, so to speak, and the skin soon loses its fineness of texture.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Those Grapes Were Sour.

Only the formalities in connection with the recognition by Great Britain of the sovereignty of Brazil over the Trinidad archipelago require to be completed; the question has been practically settled in favor of Brazil. The matter was not submitted to arbitration. The island of Trinidad came into prominence upon the proposal to make it a cable station between Europe and Brazil, but owing to its volcanic condition it has been found unsuitable for the purpose, and it has consequently again become of very small importance so far as Great Britain is concerned. The island is so closely surrounded by rocks that it is even difficult to effect a landing. The Brazilian government is considering the advisability of building a lighthouse on an island of the group.—London Times.

Some Oddly-Shaped Spiders.

The most peculiar spiders in the world, as well as the largest ones, inhabit the island of Sumatra. They are of all conceivable forms and colors and some of them spin threads almost as large and strong as a grocer's twine. Some queerly-shaped spiders have square bodies, poised on long, red legs, and others have crooked green and yellow legs which support heart-shaped bodies. One of the very oddest of the lot has a body that looks like that of a young turtle, the "shell" having round knobs and pear-shaped projections all over it.—Chicago News.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI. Sept. 28.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, commons	2 00	@ 2 75
Select butchers	3 60	@ 4 10
CALVES—Fair to good light	5 25	@ 6 00
HOGS—Common	2 65	@ 3 20
Mixed packers	3 05	@ 3 40
Light shippers	3 25	@ 3 45
SHEEP—Choice	2 50	@ 3 00
LAMBS—Good to choice	4 15	@ 4 30
FLOUR—Winter family	2 50	@ 2 90
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 70
No. 3 red		@ 65
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 23
Oats—No. 2		@ 18
Rye—No. 2		@ 35
HAY—Prime to choice	10 75	@ 11 00
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@ 8 75
Lard—Prime steam		@ 3 65
BUTTER—Choice dairy		@ 8
Prime to choice creamery		@ 17
APPLES—Per bbl	1 50	@ 1 75
POTATOES—New, per bbl	90	@ 1 00
NEW YORK
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 35	@ 3 60
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@ 71¾
No. 2 red		@ 73
CORN—No. 2 mixed	57¼	@ 58
OATS—Mixed		@ 21
PORK—New mess	7 75	@ 8 25
LARD—Western		@ 4 10
CHICAGO
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 25	@ 3 40
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	67⅞	@ 68¼
No. 2 Chicago spring		@ 65⅜
CORN—No. 2	21¼	@ 21⅜
OATS—No. 2		@ 18⅛
PORK—Mess	6 05	@ 6 10
LARD—Steam	3 75	@ 3 77½
BALTIMORE
FLOUR—Family	3 30	@ 3 45
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2	69¼	@ 69½
Corn—Mixed	27¼	@ 27½
Oats—Mixed	24	@ 25
LARD—Refined		@ 11 00
PORK—Mess		@ 10 85
CATTLE—First quality	3 90	@ 4 00
HOGS—Western	3 90	@ 4 00
INDIANAPOLIS
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@ 59
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 20½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 15½
LOUISVILLE
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 68
Corn—Mixed		@ 22½
Oats—Mixed		@ 17
PORK—Mess		@ 6 75
LARD—Steam		@ 3 25

A WORK OF ART.

"The Texarkana Gateway to Texas and the Southwest"

Is the name of a handsome publication recently issued by the Iron Mountain Route, consisting of 224 pages of descriptive matter, interspersed with 600 beautiful half tone illustrations. It is the most comprehensive and, typographically, the handsomest work of its kind ever issued on the state of Texas, and is really a commercial and industrial history of the state. Anyone reading this will have an excellent idea of the vast resources of and great possibilities of the Lone Star State. The book was gotten up by the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway and its connections in the State of Texas, for distribution in the North and East, with the view of attracting immigration, investors, tourists and seekers after health. It is in every way a valuable contribution to the current literature of the day, and is calculated to be of great service to the State of Texas. A copy of this publication will be mailed free on application to any passenger representative of the Missouri Pacific Railway, Iron Mountain Route, or may be had by addressing

H. C. Townsend.
General Passenger Agent, St. Louis.

"You will be married at high noon, I suppose?" said Tenspot to his free silver friend. "I shall be married at 16 minutes to 1," replied the white metal man.—Detroit Free Press.

Peace on Earth.

This is once more enjoyed by the rheumatic wise enough to counteract their progressive malady with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. No testimony is stronger than that which indicates it as a source of relief in this complaint. It is also eminently effective as a treatment for kidney trouble, dyspepsia, debility, liver complaint and constipation. Use it with persistence for the above.

"The gre't thrubble that Oi notice about the bicycle," said Mr. Dolan after his first lesson, "is that yez kape fallin' off before yez git an."—Washington Star.

A Household Necessity.

Cascarets Candy Cathartic, the most wonderful medical discovery of the age, pleasant and refreshing to the taste, acts gently and positively on kidneys, liver and bowels, cleansing the entire system, dispels colds, cures headache, fever, habitual constipation and biliousness. Please buy and try a box of C. C. C. to-day; 10, 25, 50 cents. Sold and guaranteed to cure by all druggists.

First Chicago Man—"What are your plans for the future?" Second Chicago Man—"I think I will stop getting married and settle down."—Truth.

Hunting and Fishing Guide Free.

A guide to the best hunting and fishing grounds of the West and Northwest, containing an excellent map of the lake regions of Northern Wisconsin and Michigan, will be sent free on application to W. B. Kniskern, 22 Fifth avenue, Chicago, Ill.

She—"When a man proposes to a girl, it doesn't always mean that he wants to marry her." He—"No; it may be a matter of necessity."—Life.

Very few horses eat corned beef, but we saw one standing the other day with a bit in his mouth.

When bilious or costive, eat a Cascaret, candy cathartic, cure guaranteed, 10c, 25c.

"No Maude, a middle-of-the-road candidate is not a bicyclist."—Norristown Herald.

Warner's Safe Cure

IN LARGE OR SMALL BOTTLES.

Owing to the many requests from its patrons, Warner's Safe Cure Co. have put on the market a smaller size bottle of Safe Cure which can now be obtained at all druggists at half the price of the large bottle.

Warner's Safe Cure is not only a scientific vegetable preparation and does all that is claimed for it, but it is the only Kidney and Liver medicine used by the best people of four continents. A medicine that bears the stamp of the world's approval, and maintains its position for a fifth of a century, must necessarily possess peculiar merit.

DON'T KICK! TAKE Cascarets CANDY CATHARTIC. ALL DRUGGISTS.

This button with a ten cent box of CASCARETS, CANDY CATHARTIC the ideal laxative and guaranteed constipation cure, sent FREE on receipt of five 2-cent stamps. Address STERLING REMEDY COMPANY, Chicago; Montreal, Can.; New York.

AGENTS WANTED.

Fancy Campaign Chart, 6 bright colors. 22 x 28. Nothing like it. Sample 10 cts. 100 for $6.00. Sell for 25 cents. Box 847, Cincinnati, Ohio.

STEADY WORK WE PAY CASH WEEKLY and want men everywhere to SELL STARK TREES millions tested, proven "absolutely best." Superb outfits, new system. STARK BROTHERS, LOUISIANA, MO., ROCKPORT, ILL.

WANTED--AGENTS

For the Pearl Bryan Tragedy; is sensational and good selling book; sample and terms to agents. 25 cents; ORDER QUICK. BARCLAY & CO., 210 E. Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

HAVE YOU TRIED YUCATAN?

OPIUM and WHISKY habits cured. Book sent FREE. Dr. B. M. Woolley, Atlanta, Ga.

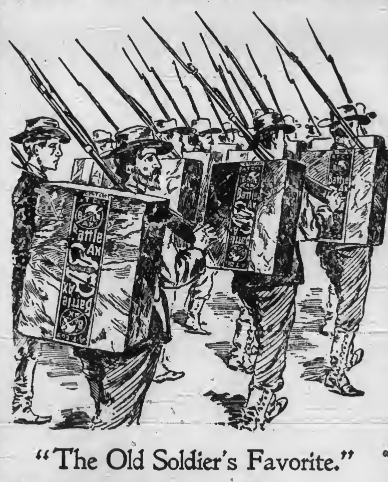
A. N. K.—E. 1624

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Prof. Babcock, the well-known Chemist, says:—

"I find that Walter Baker & Co.'s Breakfast Cocoa is absolutely pure. It contains no trace of any substance foreign to the pure roasted cocoa-bean. The color is that of pure cocoa; the flavor is natural, and not artificial; and the product is in every particular such as must have been produced from the pure cocoa-bean without the addition of any chemical, alkali, acid, or artificial flavoring substance, which are to be detected in cocoas prepared by the so-called 'Dutch process.'"

Walter Baker & Co., Ltd., Dorchester, Mass.



"The Old Soldier's Favorite."

Battle Ax PLUG

A GREAT BIG PIECE FOR 10 CENTS

A little bit of pension goes a long way if you chew "Battle Ax." The biggest piece of really high-grade tobacco ever sold for 5 cents; almost twice as large as the other fellow's inferior brand.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

Wednesday, Sept 30, 1896.

Rates of Subscription:

One year.............. .... $1 50.
Six months........................... 75.
Three months...................... ... 40.
☞Payable invariably in advance.

THE RECORDER
SOLICITS YOUR
Job Work,
NOTE HEADS,
LETTER HEADS,
ENVELOPES,
CARDS,
BILL HEADS,
STATEMENTS,
SALE BILLS,
AND HORSE BILLS,
Printed at the Lowest Prices consistent with neat work.
Send your order by mail and it will be attended promptly.

STATE NEWS.

No rain of consequence in Breathitt county since July.

Some apple trees in Nicholas county are bearing a second crop.

The Sheriff of Fayette county sold 454 pieces of property for back taxes.

A society of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be organized at Maysville.

Many of the fruit trees throughout the State are in bloom the second time this year.

The Bardstown Record tells of a cat that gave birth to two rabbits and three kittens.

In some localities in Bath county drinking and stock water has to be hauled considerable distance.

Reports from throughout the State show an increased attendance at the schools due to the Hiles Bill.

Milton Young, of Lexington, sold to Oats & McChesney, for $3,000, the brown yearling colt by Strathmore, dam Annette.

All the tollgates in Washington county have been destroyed and toll is not now being collected no any of the several turnpikes.

A little boy, aged 6 years, while returning home from school near Grayson, was chased by an enraged bull, run down and gored to death.

Gov. Worthington had control of the pardon mill again last week in the absence of Gov. Bradley, and quite a number of pardons were ground out.

It is estimated, nearly the entire wheat crop of Christian county will be seeded within two weeks, and the prospects are that a large acreage will be sown.

A prominent farmer of Clark county offers to bet his entire drove of hogs—over 200 in number—against $200 that Bryan will be the next President.

James S. Deweese says there is on the Deweese farm this year the largest and best tobacco crop ever grown on it—more than 100,000 pounds. There are fourteen tenants, most of whom are excellent tobacco growers.—Carrollton Democrat.

Great excitement prevails at Grenwood, over what is thought to be silver ore, found while men were working a country road. A lot of the supposed ore will be tested, and until the report is made known, the place where it was found will be strongly guarded.

A letter was received in Covington last Thursday from Shelby, O., stating that J. V. Schiffer, the missing editor of the Kentucky Democrat, is lying at that place with a fractured leg. Schiffer was in the big railroad wreck between Chicago and Denver, and it was there that he was injured.

At a tent revival at Pilot Knob Baptist church, Madison county, there was a disgraceful episode that came near costing the minister Rev. McMurtry, his life. Some men who had a fancied grievance against the preacher for his denunciation of drunkenness, laid for him at the door, and assaulted him when the congregation was dismissed, but friends saved him.

Treasurer Long says: "When the extra session of the Legislature shall meet it will find a State deficit of $1,428,000. This must be provided for, but $165,000 of this amount can be covered by extending the bonds heretofore held by the A. and M. College. The Legislature will likely issue bonds for half a million dollars and the balance will be gradually liquidated by an increase in the rate of taxation." The present rate of 42½ cents on the $100 will be increased to 50 cents, it is said.

The State gained a victory in its suit for $48,000 against S. A, Norman and other old contractors, who bid for the out-put of the penitentiary, in which Norman's Chair Company filed an answer, pleading as a counter claim damages for $90,000, for the annulling of the contract by the Commissioners. Judge Cantrell sustained the demurrer of the State, throwing the chair company out of court. The Commonwealth alleged as its ground for annulling the Norman contract that the chair company attempted to pay in State warrants instead of cash. The chair company will go to the Court of Appeals.

Jacob Haley, of Big Hill, Madison county, accompanied a nice looking man, who had been boarding with him for some days, to Cincinnati to see how Uncle Sam's money is made, as the fellow had represented that he had a partner in Cincinnati "who used to make money for the President," and had smuggled a printing press and dies, and was now making money secretly in the Queen City. Upon arrival in the city the confidence man proposed to exchange $3,000 of his money for $300 of Uncle Sam's good money, whereupon Mr. Haley turned over the amount. He waited until 10 o'clock at night, and his friend not putting in an appearance, he informed the police, who soon took in the situation and told him he ran across a real greengoods man.

CROP AND STOCK.

Hogs are in demand in Washington county at 3¾ cents.

In Madison county new corn is being offered at 50 cents a barrel.

About 1500 cattle at Richmond on court day, with prices ranging from 3 to 3¾ cents. A few mules sold at $50 to $75.

The prices realized for the high class thoroughbred yearlings of Messrs. Galway and Viley shipped from this place last week and sold at public auction at the Sheephead Bay race track Monday was anything but satisfactory. The consignment of these two gentlemen consisted of 22 head. The attendance on the sale was small, and as a result the bidding was tame and spiritless, some of the offerings being withdrawn without a single bid being made.—Blue Grass Clipper.

WALTON, KY., September 28.

R. P. Ernst, Republican candidate for Congress, spoke here Saturday evening. He lead off by telling what 16 to 1 is. He held out a silver dollar and said you can buy what silver there is in it for 50 cents, and take it to the mint and have it coined, free, into $1, and you would make 50 cents in the transaction. If this were true there would not be a gold bug in the United States. They would buy silver with their money for coinage, thereby making 100 per cent. instead of 12 to 18 by loaning.

He gave as a reason for the scarcity of money, that every town has a deposit bank, where the farmers deposit their money, and when paying debts they give checks, which are again placed to the credit of the one to whom paid, no money being put in circulation. Were this the real cause of the scarcity of money the farmer would not sell his wheat at 50 cents a bushel and his corn at 25. If he could pay his debt with a check he would do so. He would not pay building associations and trust companies 12 per cent. interest and mortgage his farm to them as two-thirds of the farms are today. He told us that a Mexican dollar contains 6 grains more silver than an American dollar, and yet you can take an American dollar to Mexico, buy a plug of tobacco, get a Mexican dollar and get 75 cets in change. If this is so why should the capitalists be for gold, when they could buy 50 cents worth of silver, have it coined into an American dollar, go to Mexico, exchange it for a Mexican dollar and get 75 cents and a plug of tobacco to boot? If this were true Mr. Ernst would be for free silver, because he could take his Mexican dollar and the 75 cents and have them coined into two American dollars, making his plug of tobacco and $1 50 clear profit.

IN electing J. Frank Grant, of Petersburg, its secretary, the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd-Fellows selected a devoted Odd-Fellow, and one who is eminently qualified for the responsible duties of the office. Besides being an Odd-Fellow in truth and spirit, he is one of the finest gentlemen in this part of the country. No mistake was made in honoring Mr. Grant, and his friends and they are everybody, congratulate him on his elevation to the exalted position to which his brethren have called him. His Lodge, Morning Star, at Petersburg, will tender him a banquet next Saturday evening.

THE Verona Democratic Club will be addressed to-night by S. W. Tolin. The Democrats up there are working hard to get out every vote in that precinct.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

GRANT COUNTY
[Courier]

Rev. T. W. Barker, who has been the pastor in charge of the Methodist church at this place for the past year has been sent by the district conference to Milton, Ky.

The Grant County Fair and Racing Association was incorporated at Williamstown in Grant county on last Saturday. The principal promoters of the enterprise is W. T. Clark, J. G. Elliott, Vet Gouge, E. B. Clark and Charley Clark. It is the intention of the Association to begin in a small way.

One of the prettiest weddings that has transpired in Williamstown for many moons was that of Calvert Owen Hulett and Mary Anaise Clark at the home of the brides' parents on last Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Hulett, a young man of sterling ability and integrity, is one of our most prosperous grocers, and Miss Clark is the beautiful and charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Clark. The marriage was the denouncement of a love affair that has continued in all its delightful details from childhood. Promptly at 3:30 Miss Nettie Webb began the wedding march and the happy twain preceded by S. M. Billiter and Miss Bettie Sparks, marched to the center of the large family room where Rev. Hill, in a brief and impressive ceremony pronounced them man and wife. After congratulations from the immense assemblage of friends and relatives they boarded the 4 o'clock train for Cincinnati, where they took a river steamer and proceeded to Louisville. May they live long and prosper, is the devout wish of all who know them. They were the recipients of many beautiful and expensive presents.

—§§—

CARROLL COUNTY
[News]

Bass fishing is not good yet.

After lying in a semi-conscious condition for about ten days, John Quincy Tandy, one of Ghent's most highly esteemed and leading merchants, died at his home at that place last Thursday.

By special request Judge J. W. Greene delivered a speech on the money question at the court house Monday afternoon, and it was a fine effort. The Judge is an ardent silver man, and impresses his hearers deeply with his earnestness and logic.

A Republican told us yesterday that they were going to make an effort to carry Carroll county this fall, which shows that they have an idea that their bar'l of money will go a long ways. Carroll will increase her Democratic majority this fall, and you can paste this in your hat.

A large audience, which packed the court room, greeted Hon. M. D. Gray Monday night, and showed their appreciation of his fine effort by frequent applause. He made a most scholarly and eloquent address in favor of bimetallism and did the cause of the gallant standard bearer of Democracy, Wm. J. Bryan, much good.

On last Saturday, just before the burial of J. Q. Tandy at Ghent, Augustus Hall, an old gentleman, went over to the cemetery to witness the ceremonies. He was laughing and talking, seemingly in the best of health, but like a lightning stroke from a clear sky the hand of Death was laid upon him and he was carried over to his home a corpse. He lived in the Taylor McCann property, just across from the cemetery.

THE Big Bone Democratic club had a splendid meetting last Saturday afternoon. A Mr. Carter, of Indiana, made a speech that created great enthusiasm among the boys. The Democrats at Big Bone are well organized, and have arranged to have good speakers address the club every Saturday from now until the election.

THE Beaver Democrats had an enthusiastic meeting last Saturday night, at which a Democratic club was organized with a large membership. J. C. Hughes was elected president; F. L. Gordon, vice-president; G. W. Sleet, secretary; Ad Riddell and John Haley, marshals. Beaver is getting in excellent shape and will send up a good report on the morning of November 4th.

INSTEAD of a barbecue, the Democratic campaign Committee has decided to have a basket meeting at Walton on Satuday, October 17th. All the details for the meeting will be arraigned by the campaign compaign committee at its meeting.

SEVERAL heretofore prominent Democrats in this part of the State have dug their political graves, by mounting the stump to assail the platform adopted by the Chicago convention. They have tied themselves to a mill stone.

THE New York democracy was never in a worse demoralized condition than at present.

150 people listened to Breckinridge at Owenton, Monday.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

Geo. W. Terrill's Ex'rs, &c., Plffs.
vs } Equity
Geo. W. Terrill's widow and others Defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the August term thereof, 1896, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court House door in Burlington, Boone county, Ky., to the highest bidder, at public sale on Monday, the 5th day of October, 1896, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout, being County Court day, upon a credit of three months, the following described property, to wit:

The following promissory notes belonging to the estate of Geo. W. Terrill, dec'd., and now held by A. G. Winston as collateral security, all of said notes are secured by land.

1. Note of Geo. W. Terrill, jr., dated November 26th, 1888, due one year after date with 6 per cent. interest from date, for $500. Credits:—Interest paid to Nov. 26, 1891; October 23, 1893, $125; April 16, 1896, $139 43.

2. Note of Geo. W. Terrill, jr., for $1,060, dated Feb'y 1, 1892, due on or before Dec. 14, 1892, with 6 per cent, interest from date until paid. Credits—Dec. 29, 1893, $100; Jan. 4, 1895, $19.60; Jan. 29, 1895, $100; May 27, 1895, $24.50; Dec. 21, 1895, $306.60; Aug. 22, 1896, $28.

3. Note of Adam Bauer for $1,000, dated Oct. 17, 1892, due Jan. 1, 1896, with 6 per cent. interest from Jan. 1, 1893, until paid, interest to be paid annually. Credits:—Interest paid to January 1, 1896; March 2, 1896, $202; April 1, 1896, $406.

4. Note of Adam Bauer for $977.50, dated Oct. 17, 1892, due Jan'y. 1, 1897, with 6 per cent. interest from January 1, 1893, until paid, interest payable annually. Credit:—Interest paid to January 1, 1896.

The title to said notes will not be vested in the purchaser until the sale shall have been confirmed by the court, and in case the sale of any of said notes shall not be confirmed by the court, the bond given by the purchaser therefor shall be canceled.

For the purchase price the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bonds, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

H. C. Lassing, Plff.
vs
Jas. W. Barnett and
Mary A. Barnett Defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of Sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the August Term thereof, 1896, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court House door in Burlington, Boone County, Ky., to the highest bidder, at Public Sale on Monday the 5th day of Oct., 1896, at one o'clock p. m. or there about, being County Court day, on a credit of 6 and 12 months, the following described property to wit:

A tract of land lying and being in Boone county, Ky., on the waters of Woolper creek, and described as follows: Beginning at an Oak stump in the Petersburg and Bellevue road; thence with the road n 7¼ w 24 82 poles n 37 w 9.32 poles; thence through the fence on the right of the road n 25¼ w 22 poles; thence n 52¾ w 8 poles; thence down the road n 57¼ w 10 poles, n 86½ w 14 poles, n 61¼ w 7:40 poles to the center of Woolper creek; thence up said creek n 55¾ e 44 poles; thence n 60 e 44 poles, n 37¼ e 46 poles, n 57¾ e 14.36 to the center of said creek, connecting with the line run by Rice; thence s 35 e 18 poles, s 57 w 11¾ poles to a stake near the top of a high bank; thence s 1 w 130¾ poles; thence n 68¼ w 1 pole s 89¾ w 30 2-5 poles to the beginning, containing 60 acres and poles 8 of land.

Or sufficient there of to produce the sums of money so ordered to be made. For the purchase price of said land the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Amount to be raised by sale, $637.18.
J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C, B. C.

NOTICE.

All persons holding claims against J. R. Clutterbuck must present them to me at my office in Burlington, Ky., proven as by law required and persons indebted to the said Clutterbuck must settle with me at once.

S. W. TOLIN, Assignee.
Sept. 10th, 1896.

Queen & Crescent Reduced Rates. Philadelphia, Pa.—National Druggist Association, October 5th to 0th.

THE QUEEN &
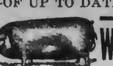
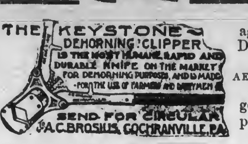
CRESCENT
ROUTE
Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain.
The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.
Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.
Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.
Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
—OF UP TO DATE—
CHESTER WHITE HOGS.





THE KEYSTONE DEHORNING CLIPPER IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
TO A.C. BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.

Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.
Write for circulars.

AEROMETER
EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.
COME AND SEE IT.

T. J. HUCHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

1896.

Your County Paper
Is the One to
Subscribe for,

It Gives all the
Neighborhood News,
Court News and
General News.

The Campaign is Now On and will be of unusual interest, and
The Recorder
Will Keep you
Posted on the Campaign.

15c Will Pay for it until
DEC. 1, 1896.

Or $1.50 will Pay for it for Twelve
Long Months.

Give It a Trial and Help
Along Home EnterPrise.

E. H. RIGGS,
—Dealer in—
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
—CEMENT, ETC.—
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

Wm. F. GOETZE

Scientific
Optician.
Headquarters at Ho[illegible]er's
Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.
Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

Livery Stable.
I am now fully equipped for taking of care Horses and Buggies, and keep GOOD RIGS FOR HIRE
at reasonable rates.
W. A. CRIGLER,
Bromley, Ky.

Scientific American
Agency for PATENTS
CAVEATS,
TRADE MARKS,
DESIGN PATENTS,
COPYRIGHTS, etc.
For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the
Scientific American
Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

COME TO THIS OFFICE for
JOB WORK

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1896. NO. 50.

ONCE MORE.

Congressman Berry Renominated By Acclamation.

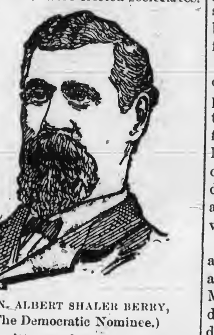
He Accepts In a Ringing Speech For Free Silver.

Plans To Oppose or Delay His Nomination Came To Utter Failure.

THE BATTLE IS ON.

The Democratic Congressional convention was held in Williamstown, last Wednesday.

The convention was called to order by Hon. John Ellis, of Carroll county. Hon. William Goebel, of Covington, was elected permanent chairman, and E. A. Gullion, of Carrollton, J. C. Draddy, of Newport, and J. H. Westover, of Williamstown, were elected secretaries.



HON. ALBERT SHALER BERRY, (The Democratic Nominee.)

Committees, other than that on resolutions were dispensed with. The chair appointed the following committee on resolutions:

F. P. Wright, Trimble.
E. A. Gullion, Carroll.
R. B. Brown, Gallatin.
Charles Schramm, Boone.
John McClure, Grant.
B. B. Hensley, Pendleton.
John T. Hodge, Campbell—First District.
George Klein, Campbell—Second District.
John M. Bagby, Kenton—First District.
Jos. L. Elliston, Second District.
Ed F. McGrath, Third District.

The convention adjourned fifteen minutes, to give the committee on resolutions time in which to report, and during the adjournment Hon. M. D. Gray and C. C. Cram, made excellent Democratic speeches.

The committee on resolutions reported as follows, and the report was adopted amid great enthusiasm:

"The Democracy of the Sixth Congressional District, in convention assembled at Williamstown, Ky., September 30, 1896, reaffirm their allegiance to the Democratic party.

"We indorse the Chicago platform and nominees, and declare it to be the sense of this convention that we favor the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, without the consent or approval of any other nation on earth.

"We denounce the single gold standard and condemn it as being in favor of the classes as against the masses, and declare that it is un-Democratic and un-American; that its tendency day by day is to make the rich richer and the poor poorer.

"That we indorse and approve the course of Hon. A. S. Berry, our representative in Congress, for the zeal and ability with which he has performed his duties as a member of the Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth Congresses from the Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky.

Col. Berry was then put in nomination for Congress by J. M. Lassing in a brief but strong speech. Chas. Schever, of Covington, nominated Judge Tarvin, but he refused to allow his name considered in that connection. W. H. Baker then moved that Col. Berry's nomination be made by acclamation, which was done with a whoop.

The Chair then appointed a committee to notify Col. Berry of his nomination and in a few minutes he appeared and was cheered enthusiastically. He took the stand and spoke as follows:

"MY FRIENDS: I scarcely know how to express my gratitude for this complimentary and unanimous nomination. Four years ago the Democracy was successful in all the United States. I regret that the same union does not exist to-day, but whatever disagreements may exist will not affect the result, especially in the Sixth District. During the Administration of Cleveland Democrats followed the lead of the men who were at the head of the party. The time came when the ways parted. The platform of the Democratic Convention at Chicago established almost a new issue. We have declared unequivocally for the unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. And I wish to say now that I accept, in its fullest sense every principle laid down in that platform. [Applause.] I wish to say that my vote at all times will be for the principles of that platform.

"I know that my friendship for certain people of distinction in the party has given rise to a question as to my sincerity in my stand on the financial question. I am as earnestly and devotedly loyal to the cause of free silver as any man in this district, and I hope that I shall be able to help this cause in my canvas.

"We have a Republican platform and a candidate on it who has been a free silver man since 1877—Wm. McKinley. A few months ago under the direction of Mr. Hanna he decided that he was in favor of the single gold standard.

"You have a candidate of nerve and honesty and principle in William Jennings Bryan. [Applause.] He is a man who goes among the people and wins the people to him. He is a marked contrast to the little golden god at Canton.

M'KINLEY'S VISITORS.

"The Republican delegations which are visiting Canton will not elect a President. They remind me of the system under which Kentucky used to buy fox scalps at $1 a head. They used to pass them in at one window, out at another and back in again at the first one. I know a man who got $100 upon 12 heads, and they were still circulating when the account was footed up. McKinley's visitors pass in in one direction and out at another to magnify the anxiety of the people to perpetuate the single gold standard.

"Six months ago the Republicans were confident of success. To-day the Little Napoleon is trembling in his boots.

"Mr. Bryan was not a fixed-up candidate. He went to Chicago as a simple reporter, a poor man. He was selected by nearly as unanimous a voice as that which spoke here to-day.

"The Republican party insists that we wait for the consent of some foreign nation before we adopt bimetallism. The Democrats maintain that this nation of 71,800,000 people is able to lay down the principles of its own monetary policy without the assistance of the money power of Wall St., or Lombard St.

"We ask the restoration of that which has been tried. We do not want to try an experiment. Is any man going to bring his silver from abroad, have it coined into dollars here and take it home and sell it as bullion? If the restoration of silver will bring back the things which we have lost since 1873 let us try it.

"The demonetization of gold would have had the same effect upon gold as the demonetization of silver has had upon silver. If you take away the money value of gold and leave it only for use in the arts it is bound to depreciate in value. If this had been done we would now have been the gold party seeking the restoration of the 4,000,000,000 of gold to bring back prosperity.

DEMONETIZATION OF SILVER.

"The demonetization of silver was a fraud. Certainly whenever it was done it was without the knowledge of the lawmakers of the United States, James G. Blaine, the Republican leader, declared he didn't know the purpose of that act when he voted upon it. General Grant, the President of the United States when the act of February 12, 1873, was passed, said he did not know what it was meant to accomplish or it would not have received his approval.

"In the Bland-Allison bill amendments prevented it from helping silver.

"In the purchase act of 1890 the effect was not to benefit silver coinage at all. We claim that it should be admitted just as gold is, and that no citizen shall discriminate between two classes of the money of the nation.

"The Cincinnati Commercial attempts to defend McKinley's free silver utterances by explaining that McKinley was a young man when he was in favor of free silver. He was only 35 years old. I want to say to you that if McKinley didn't have any sense when he was 35 he never will have any. Then they say Bryan is too young to know anything. In the days when the Constitution was framed the statesmen who made our nation held that a man of 35 was competent to be President, and Bryan will be almost 37 when he goes into the White House. [Tumultuous applause.] When Bryan made his celebrated tariff speech during his first term in Congress Henry Watterson, who sat in the press gallery, representing the Courier-Journal, wrote these words: 'There is a young man who can be President of the United States some day.' That prediction is about to come true, the Courier-Journal to the contrary notwithstanding. [Applause and wild cheers.] Yet Mr. Watterson is now writing the life of Abraham Lincoln, while the Democracy is struggling in the greatest battle of its existence.

ENOUGH OF BRADLEY.

"The contest is in the states along the Ohio River. I believe that Ohio is in a condition to frighten McKinley. [Applause.] A friend of mine in Indiana says that his state is safe, but that he is a little afraid of Kentucky. [Laughter.] My friends, we know better than this. Kentucky has had pretty nearly enough of Billy Bradley. [Applause]

"I say to the Democratic party that on the third day of November, under the leadership of William Jennings Bryan, we shall reclaim the state from Republicanism. You have only to put your shoulders to the wheel and success is sure to follow your efforts.

"The Australian ballot is our friend. Whatever any railroad or factory employe may say, when he once enters the voting booth he can record his vote as he thinks best for the welfare of the country.

"We all know the depression of this country. It is the result of wrongs. It is the duty of every Democrat to wipe out these wrongs with the great power of the ballot.

"It has cost this people $10,000 an hour, $240,000 a day, to sustain the gold dollar. Could a fifty-three-cent dollar be worse? I maintain, however, that it is not a fifty-three-cent silver dollar, but a two-hundred-cent gold dollar that has caused all this misery and trouble. If you had to issue bonds and could pay for them in silver $75,000,000 would pay for them. There's a difference between that and $240,000,000. [Applause.] They say that we are all Anarchists and destructionists.

THE INCOME TAX.

"Why, there's nothing in the Democratic platform to support this statement. When, in 1856, the Dread-Scott decision was rendered, there was no hesitation to pronounce the Supreme Court corrupt.

"When the Supreme Court pronounced the greenback unconstitutional who but the Republican party reorganized that court?"

Col. Berry then took up the question of the income tax. He said it was to lift the burden of taxes off the poor and place it upon the accumulated wealth of the land. He said that Judge Shivers, of Pennsylvania, had changed his mind about the constitutionality of the law between the rising and setting of the sun. He changed his mind when he found out that Judge Jackson, of Tennessee, had expressed an opinion that the law was constitutional, thus making a majority of the court.

"When that court is reorganized, I hope and believe that the income tax will be declared constitutional, and that the men who have money will be obliged to pay their fair dues to the nation.

"We are making this fight against many adverse circumstaces. But one great paper is on the side of the silver question. That is the Cincinnati Enquirer. [Applause.]. John McLean is not making this fight because he is a poor man, but because he is an honest man. John McLean has millions. Wall street could not put up money enough to buy him. If he sought the selfish advantage to accrue to him through the continuation of the gold standard the Cincinnati Enquirer would not be boldly and ably championing the cause of free silver. [Cheers]

"I heard Bryan follow Bourke Cockran in a celebrated debate on the floor of Congress. He made a better speech in every particular than the great orator of the Empire State. He is a man of eminent ability. If the Republicans would pit McKinley against him in debate the stuffed prophet of protection would be a pitiable spectacle.

"If France could sustain free silver at 15 to 1, if the Latin Union from 1803 to 1870 could sustain it without difficulty, why not the great and powerful United States now?

"Just as soon as a few of the nations, led by the United States, establish bimetallism there will be no cornering of the primary money, as we have now.

The Rothschilds recently generously agreed to maintain the credit of the United States provided they were given the first opportunity to buy the additional bonds, which they well know we would be forced to issue. The Republicans talk about national dishonor. What is it when two London banking house are bolstering up our credit to make money out of us? [Applause.]

"Gentlemen our victory is surer each day. Triumph awaits us. [Loud and prolonged applause.]

At the conclusion of Colonel Berry's speech the convention adjourned.

THE opposition to Col. Berry in Newport and Covington could not crystallize, and he went into the district convention backed by a solid delegation from Campbell and Kenton counties. His unceasing labor in the interest of his constituents has won for him, twice, the Congressional nomination by acclamation, and each time the woods were full of men who would have made a canvass againtt him had they believed there was any prospect for success.

COL. BRECKINRIDGE has worked his rabbit foot on the Republicans in the Seventh District until they have concluded that they want him as their candidate for Congress, and if they hold a district convention it will be to nominate Judge Denny, who wants to be their candidate, to stay at home.

TIMES are hard—all agree to that. Now, what remedy are the gold standard advocates offering? They adhere to the policy that has increased the indebtedness of this country $262,000,000, in the last two years. Getting deeper, and deeper in debt will not make times any better.

Take your County Paper.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson.
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup'nt of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, Sam S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M. Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W. Lester.
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill. Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George; Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; I. F. Dempsey, H. S. Irwin. Secretary—Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday; Add Ridoell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896
AT WALTON, KY.

Three Courses of Study to choose from: English, Scientific or Classical,
Tuition per month for Higher Branches.......... $3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches.......... 2.50

We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2 00 for five days.

Teachers { Mrs. S. H. MYERS.
CHAS. F. PRIOR.
Rev. S. H. MYERS.

Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.

J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky. | OSCAR GAINES Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. COWEN, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administrator's Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of Abel Beemon, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

S. W. ADAMS, Adm'r.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
—o—
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON.
...... DENTIST, ...
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
MAIN OFFICE—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

W. E. VEST. B. L. RICE.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL,.......................... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 17,000
—)o(—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN.................. $50,000
SURPLUS,.......................... $ 2.600
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE
STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:50 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 2:50 pm; [illegible] pm.
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 8:30 am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm. Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5:[illegible] pm.
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:[illegible]; [illegible]:00 am; 12:40 pm; 3:00 pm; 4:[illegible] pm.
ELIHU ALD[illegible], Master.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : : KY.

OCTOBER—1896.

Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
....	....	....	....	1	2	3
4	5	6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15	16	17
18	19	20	21	22	23	24
25	26	27	28	29	30	31

CURRENT TOPICS.

JAPAN has issued a new set of postage stamps.

COLORED barbers in Nashville have formed a union.

JOSEPH D. JONES, who is 99 years of age, is said to be the oldest voter in Boston.

LOUISIANA has a law providing for a ten-hour work day for street railway employes.

PART of the Boulevard de Vaugirard in Paris has been rechristened Boulevard Pasteur.

TEXTILE workers in Bohemia get 80 cents a week. The wages of agricultural laborers range from 7 to 20 cents a day.

JAPANESE workmen wear on their backs an inscription stating their business and the name of their employer.

WAGES at Wallace, Idaho, are reported to range from $2.50 a day for laborers up to $5.50 and $6.00 for skilled workmen.

A LABOR exchange, which will operate a laundry, tannery, soap factory and cannery, has been organized at Coquille, Ore.

THE largest sheep ranch in America is said to be situated in Dimmit and Webb counties in Texas. It contains close to 400,000 acres.

GOVERNMENT employes throughout the country are making preparations to form an organization to be known as the United States Civil Service association.

THE French admiralty office is making inquiries as to the time that would be occupied in fitting out three ironclads, in view of the menacing situation in Turkey.

THE healthiest place in the world appears to be a little hamlet in France named Aumone. There are only 40 inhabitants, 23 of whom are 80 years of age, and one is over 100.

THE astonnding assertion is made that there is more gold in the sacred vessels, medals, chains, etc., preserved at the vatican than in the circulation of the whole of Europe.

A GOOD blacking for tan boots is orange juice. Take a slice of orange and rub it on the shoe or boot; then, when dry, brush with a soft brush until the shoes shines like a mirror.

AN English motor car manufacturer is building a two-story steel house to run on wheels, propelled by a motor nnder it. The top story is collapsible, so as to enable the house to pass under bridges.

THE liquidators of the Bank of Commerce of New Orleans have made a report that it has been mismanaged and that grave irregularities have been committed. The over drafts exceed $300,000.

Two jealous women in Hungary recently fought a bloody duel with pistols. One hit a small boy in the top of a tree some distance away, and the other killed a calf in an adjoining meadow.

THE will of the late Charles E. Warburton, proprietor of the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph, bequeaths all his property to his son and daughter. The value of his estate is estimated at $2,000,000.

WITH the assistance of the latest machines a piece of leather can be transformed into a pair of boots in 34 minutes, in which time it passes through the hands of 63 people and through 15 machines.

THE confirmation of Queen Wilhelmina, of the Netherlands, has been definitely fixed for October 24, and it is understood that the announcement of her betrothal will take place immediately afterward.

THE New York university has been reorganized and C. D. Ashley was made dean in the place of the late Dr. Austin Abbott. Dean Ashley was born in Boston July 4, 1851. He was graduated at Phillips Andover academy and later at Yale university, in the class of 1873.

IT is said that the festivities upon the occasion of the marriage of the prince of Naples and Princess Helene of Montenegro will be upon a scale unprecedented in Italy. Judged by the scale of his preparations, King Humbert will spend out of his privy purse over $50,000.

THE National Society of the Daughters of the Revolution has recently presented Mrs. Kate Robinson, of Carthage, N. Y., a handsome gold spoon. Mrs. Robinson, who is 87 years old, is one of the 300 women now living whose fathers fought in the revolutionary war.

A BLOCK of granite has recently been placed on the southern shore of the beautiful lake of Sills, in the Engadine, bearing the following inscription: "In memory of the illustrious English writer and naturalist, Thomas Henry Huxley, who spent many summers at the Kursaal hotel, Maloja."

SCOTLAND claims the credit of having the smallest burial ground in the world. It is situated in the town of Galashiels between Bridge street and High street. It measures only 22½ feet by 14½ feet, and is surrounded by a rickety wall about seven feet high. [illegible] a burial ground

THREE ROBBERS

Hold Up a Train on the Atlantic and Pacific Road—One Bandit Killed.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 3.—Atlantic and Pacific officials in this city have been advised that the westbound passenger train, No. 2, due here at 8:45 p. m., has been held up by five outlaws near Rio Puerco bridge. U. S. Marshal Loomis, who was a passenger on board, is reported to have shot and killed Cole Young, one of the robbers, directly after the train was stopped. Young's companions thereupon began shooting indiscriminately. After terrifying the passengers and train hands into submission the robbers cut the express car and engine from the train and ran them up the track a few hundred yards. An explosion followed and it is supposed that the express car safe was blown open. A special train has been dispatched from this city to the scene of the hold up. No further information is to be had at this hour.

The held-up passenger train from the west just came in at midnight. Conductor Sam Heady states that when the train reached the Rio Puerco tank Engineer Ross said that a pin in the engine was out of gear, but he thought he could go up the divide. The conductor thought not, and just as the engineer was about to fix the pin three masked men jumped on the engine when the shooting commenced.

A lantern was shot out of the hands of the brakeman, after which the engineer was told to uncouple the engine and express car from the train.

Deputy United States Marshal Loomis, who has been down in Arizona on the trail of Southern New Mexico bandits, was on his return to this city, and he left the smoking car when the first shot was fired. He took deliberate aim at one of the robbers, shooting him through the head. The man ran 100 yards and dropped dead. The other robbers retreated to the Malpais, where their voices calling for their comrades could be heard.

Conductor Heady states that Loomis remained at Rio Puerco, expecting the robbers to return for their dead companion, while Selvy met the posse of officers at Atlantic and Pacific Junction, and returned with the party to Rio Puerco.

The hold-up was a failure financially, the robbers securing no money.

Loomis thinks that the hold-ups are the same gang that robbed the Separ post office a few weeks ago and have been terrorizing the southern part of New Mexico, and that Young was the leader.

THE DARDANELLES,

The Formation of a Flotilla of Ten Torpedo Boats Ordered to Defend It.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 3.—An irade has been issued by the Porte ordering the formation of a flotilla of ten torpedo boats to defend the Dardanelles. This movement is in conformity with the advice of the Russian general, Tschikatcheff, commander of the district of Odessa, who some time in July last inspected the defense of the Dardanelles.

Letters received here from Kharput give terrible details of the massacre which recently occurred at Eugin, in the Kharput district, in which the letters alleges 2,000 persons were killed. The scenes, according to the letters, were similar to those of the former massacres in Anatolia.

A drunken Turkish officer swaggered through the streets of Galata on September 30, brandishing his sword and showering foul abuse upon Armenians, everyone of whom, he declared, ought to be killed. He was finally disarmed by the military and taken to his barracks.

DEMOCRATIC CLUBS.

Delegates to the Second Quadrennial Convention Gathering at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—All the hotels were filled Friday with delegates to the second quadrennial convention of the national association of democratic clubs and the gathering Saturday promises to exceed the expectations of the local committee of entertainment. Vice President Stevenson was an early arrival and is quartered at the Southern hotel. He will be temporary chairman of the convention which assembles at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. President Black had not arrived at 11 p. m. Congressman McMillan, of Tennessee, who will deliver an address to the convention, arrived here Saturday morning, on an earlier train than that of Candidate Bryan. Secretary McKean has established headquarters at the Southern, where all the delegates report. He states that of the 10,000 democratic league clubs in the country, 3,000 were represented Saturday by from one to five delegates.

Gen. Finley for Vice President.

COLUMBUS, O, Oct. 3.—A plan is on foot here to have Gen. E. B. Finley, of Bucyrus, O., put on the national ticket for vice president in case both Sewall and Watson retire, as it is said they are likely to do. Finley has always been a free silver advocate and was one of the delegates at large to the late Chicago convention. He has been a member of congress, and under Gov. Hoadly was adjutant general of the state.

To Meet the Czar and Czarina.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The presidents of the senate and the chamber of deputies respectively, M. M. Challemol-Lacour and Brisson, will go to Cherbourg to meet the czar and czarina with their suites, who are expected to arrive there on Monday, October 5, and proceed to Paris, arriving here Tuesday morning, October 6.

The Gold Reserve.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The treasury gold reserve at the close of business Friday stood at $123,585,561. The withdrawals of Thursday and Friday at New York were $238,554. There were received $680,000 in gold in exchange for currency.

Arrival of Archbishop Martinelli.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The Cunard steamship Campania, having on board Archbishop Martinelli, the successor of Cardinal Satolli as papal delegate to this country, arrived in quarantine Friday night, where she dropped an [illegible]

A STATEMENT

Issued by Controller of the Currency Eckels.

Cash in 5,723 Institutions Reporting, $413,124,849—Number of Depositors in National Banks Reporting on July 1 Were 2,315,333.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Controller of the Currency Eckels has issued a statement of an investigation made by him of the amount of money held by the banks of the country.

The number of banking houses and trust companies inquired of were 12,962 and 77 clearing houses, covering all in the country. Replies were received from 5,327 banks and trust companies and 66 clearing house associations. The information however, is of such a character as to enable a fair and correct result from all to be approximated. Of the 5,723 reports received, 3,548 were of national banks; 1,494 state banks: 457 savings banks; 230 of private banks and 84 of loan and trust companies. Divided by geographical divisions; the number representing, and the number not reporting, were as follows:

New England states, viz.: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, reporting, 829; not reporting, 397.

Eastern states, viz.: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and District of Columbia, reporting, 1,275; not reporting, 862.

Southern States viz: Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee, reporting 676; not reporting 2,377.

Western States viz: Missouri, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas and Nebraska, reporting 2,434; not reporting 3,382.

Pacific states and territories, viz: Nevada, Oregon, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Washington, Arizona, Oklahoma and Indian territory, reporting, 509; not reporting, 771.

Total reporting, 5,723; not reporting, 7,239.

The total amount of cash in 5,723 institutions reporting was $413,124,849. It is divided as follows: Gold coin, $134,077,003; gold certificates, $55,281,338; silver dollars, $8,254,612; fractional silver, $7,399,073; silver certificates, $39,663,596; treasury notes, 1890, $13,126,018; United States notes, $110,469,375; currency certificates, $20,858,000; national bank notes, $23,795,834; of this total cash the 3,458 national banks reporting held $335,174,616 and the 2,265 states, etc., $77,950,233. The amount of gold coin and gold certificates held by these national banks was $155,073,604; by the state, etc., $34,484,737. In this connection it may be stated that the total number of national banks, viz, 3,689, held on July 14, the date of the last official call, $361,658,485 cash, of which amount there was in gold coin and gold certificates $161,853,560.

The total cash and the part thereof of gold certificates held by reporting banks in each geographical division is as follows:

States	Total cash.	Amount of Gold and Gold Certificates.
New England States...	$ 35,689,272	$15,403,768
Eastern States.	213,129,560	78,580,133
Southern States......	29,086,619	9,508,183
Western States.......	109,584,645	56,4:0,427
Pacific States and Territories..........	25,634,762	19,605,830
Total................	$414,124,819	$189,558,341

The returns from the 66 of the 78 clearing house associations of the country show that on July 1 the total clearings amonnted to $227,935,464. The balances of these total clearings settled in cash or cash exchanges was but $19,152,834, or but little more than 8 per cent. of the whole. These balances were as follows:

Gold, $1,325,015; gold clearing house certificates, $265,000; silver and silver certificates, $175,950; United States notes, $3,451,761; currency, $1,017,101; currency certificates, $5,785,000; national bank notes, $31,746; exchanges, $3,088,299; managers' certificates, $3,904,904; collections by credit or from debtor bank, $85,930; not stated, $22,129. Total, $19,152,834.

The total number of depositors in national banks reporting on July 1 were 2,315,333, with individual deposits aggregating $1,586,085,193. On July 14 the total individual deposits of all the national banks were $1,668,413,508 and the estimated number of depositors 2,435,625. The total number of depositors in reporting banks, other than national banks were 3,614,630, with deposits aggregating $1,668,352,673. In 1894, an investigation showed the number of bank depositors to be about 9,000,000. A conservative estimate, in view of the fact that the number of depositors in national banks shows an increase of about half a million, would make the total number now at between ten and eleven millions, with total deposits aggregating over five billions of dollars.

Plug Tobacco Men at War.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—The war on prices of plug tobacco has been renewed after a cessation of hostilities for several months. The renewal of the combat is due to a cut of plug tobacco made by the tobacco trust, information of which reached here. The local firms decline to say what action they will take but stock brokers believe that the cut will be met and predict a long drawn out battle.

Tynan Still in Prison.

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER, Oct. 5.—A report cabled here from New York that P. J. P. Tynan had been released from prison here, which was conveyed to New York in a private telegram, is denied by the prison officials. They state that Tynan is still in prison and that the local authorities have received no orders to release him.

Reward for Him.

SERGENT, Ky., Oct. 5.—A reward of $[illegible]00 has been offered by [illegible] authorities for the arrest of "Anlies" Newsome, who killed [illegible] cousin [illegible]

IN FLORIDA.

Further Intelligence of the Great Hurricane Tuesday—The Property Damaged in the State Will Foot Up a Million Dollars—Fully One Hundred Lives Lost.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 3.—The West India hurricane struck Florida Tuesday and though it lasted but three hours at each point visited, was the most disastrous storm experienced in Florida. The damage to property in the state alone will foot up a million dollars. Fully a hundred lives were lost and perhaps 10,000 people were rendered homeless. The course of the storm was from Cedar Keys on the gulf coast, north by northeast to and through the thriving town of Lake City. Through a path fifty miles wide, few houses were left standing, the wind at times blowing at the rate of one hundred miles an hour, averaging 80. In this city, distant from storm center fully fifty miles, the wind for a minute blew one hundred miles an hour and for five minutes seventy miles an hour. In Jacksonville scores of buildings were unroofed and trees blown down. The storm had the characteristics of a tornado. It skipped some places in its path, bounding over to others where ruin was wrought. Cedar Keys was exposed to the full force of its fury. There a score of fishermen on the sponge banks were drowned and their vessels were wrecked. A tidal wave visited the town and inundated it. During the tidal wave a fire broke out and an unusual spectacle was witnessed of firemen fighting flames almost shoulder deep in water. Four miles of trestling of the Florida Central and Peninsular railroad, entering the town was wrecked. Lake City had almost every tree in town blown down, and for two days the streets were impassable. Two people were killed—a prominent lady, Mrs. Frazier, and a Negro boy. Here many houses were razed, while roofs of others went whirling through the air. Lake City is in Columbia county, which has great lumber interests. Half the yellow pine timber was blown down and lumber and turpentine men lost thousands of dollars, as the lumber is badly splintered and will soon be attacked by worms.

In Baker county, which adjoins Columbia, not a score of houses out of a thousand were left standing. Grain stored in barns was blown away or destroyed by rain, crops in the fields, including cotton, were destroyed and thousands of cattle were killed. The immense lumber mill of Eppinger & Russell, at Olustee, was destroyed, including stores and residences, and many people were hurt, though none were killed, the reason being that they sough refuge in a deep ditch traversing the town.

At MacClenay, in the same county, the same tale might be told.

Sanderson, a few miles distant, was almost wiped out. All of the men employed in the turpentine farms and lumber mills are not only homeless but without food and a famine there is impending.

The prominent citizens of each of these towns have organized relief committees, and have issued appeals to the public for aid.

Hilliards, in Duval county, was also devastated and people killed and wounded by falling of houses upon them. Each of these has issued an appeal for aid.

The storm did not touch the orange belt of Florida, but confined itself to the middle section, where the chief industries are lumber, turpentine, cotton raising and general farming. Coming as the storm did, just after harvesting the people rendered homeless and without food will be a charge upon charity for fully six months.

DREARY STORY

Of Devastation by the Storm in the Suwanee River Country.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 3.—A letter from Gainesville, Fla., dated October 1, says:

B. F. Hampton and Maginnis, who have just returned from the Suwanee river country tell a dreary story of the devastation there. Fully 90 per cent. of the timber is down and 50 per cent. of the residences and farm buildings have been destroyed. The damage does not stop there. In Lafayette county the valnable cedar forests are lost. Stock has been killed by hundreds. All crops have been destroyed. Hundreds of people are in distress, no home and nothing to eat.

Coinage for September.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The monthly statement of the director of the mint shows the total coinage at the U. S. mints during the month of September, 1896, to have been $5,915,363.50, which is divided as follows: Gold, $3,104,922.50; silver, $2,754,165; minor coins, $20,226. Of the silver coined, $2,700,100 was in standard dollars.

The President's Regrets.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Oct. 3.—The president received a detailed statement from Washington of the damage inflicted by the hurricane upon the white house and surrounding grounds. Both the president and Mrs. Cleveland express their regret that the historic building should have felt the force of the storm so severely.

Baltimore Wins the First Game.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 3.—The first of the Temple Cup series of 1896 was played at Union park Friday afternoon, and fter a remarkable brilliant exhibition, placed to the credit of the champions by a score of 7 to 1.

Coal Coming Down the River.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 3.—One hundred and sixty-one barges and coal boats left here Thursday, taking at least 2,500,000 bushels of coal about equally divided as to destination between Cincinnati and Louisville. A run fully as large left here Friday.

Carlisle Declines to Divide Time With Blackburn.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Secretary Carlisle has formally declined the invitation to divide time with Senator Blackburn in any speech he may deliver in [illegible] during the pending campaign.

THE REVOLUTIONISTS

In Armenia Will Wait a Month for the Powers to Take Action.

They Profess to Have No Knowledge of the Lines of the Next Upheaval, But Say It Will Be Terrible—Constantinople May Be Burned.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Daily News Monday publishes an interview had by its correspondent in Geneva with Garo and Hatch, two of the leaders of the Armenian refugees. They give a graphic description of the recent outbreak in Constantinople and declare that the revolutionary committee in Constantinople would wait for perhaps a month to see whether the powers would act; if they did not the committee would again write to the embassy asking whether they would keep their promises. They professed to have no knowledge of the precise lines of the next upheaval, if such action was necessary, but said it would be terrible. They repudiated any animosity against the Turkish nation, saying that they warred only against the government. When it was proposed last August to set fire to Constantinople, they had rejected the proposal because it would have been cruel. They had supported the plan to attack the Imperial Ottoman bank in preference to doing anything that would cause suffering to the residents of Constantinople. They added that they would not hesitate to kill soldiers and policemen, but they would not injure peaceable people. The government, they significantly said, might reflect on the scheme for the burning of Constantinople that it might have been more easily effected than the capture of the Ottoman bank. The city was built of wood and could be quickly destroyed.

GEN. WEYLER'S OPERATIONS

In the West of Cuba Proves a Failure—His Forces Meet With Three Defeats.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—A special dispatch to the Herald from Havana, Cuba, October 3, via Key West, Fla., says:

Capt. Gen. Weyler's initial operations inaugurating the campaign in the extreme west intended to trap Maceo, or defeat and drive him east have proved a failure.

Gen. Melguizo, who as military governor of Pinar del Rio, was delegated by the captain-general to start the ball, has been defeated in three successive engagements with Maceo in the mountains of Pinar del Rio, where the combined columns of Cols. Francis and Hernandez attacked the rebel positions. Those columns suffered tremendously and were compelled to retreat to the coast.

The news fell like a bomb shell in the palace. The captain-general will not even permit the Havana representatives of the Madrid paper to wire the facts, and he gave strict orders to the press censor and post office officials to use every effort to prevent the news of the failure of his plans from getting out.

The editor of El Diario del Ejereito, the army organ, whose paper is seldom, if ever, censured, daring to print a few details, was called to the palace by the captain-general and severely reprimanded.

ATROCIOUS MURDER

And Outrage of a Lone Woman Near St. Joseph, Mo.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 4.—News reached this city at an early hour Saturday morning of an awful tragedy Friday evening near Arkie, Mo., nearly five miles north of St. Joe, on the Hopkins branch of the Burlington road. Some unknown man, presumably a tramp, entered the house of John Bomley while he was away and murdered his wife, who was alone at home. After a hard fight and the breaking of considerable furniture the man finally overcame Mrs. Bomley, who was a strong woman, and beat her brains out. All the rooms in which the struggle took place are covered with blood. No cause can be assigned for the terrible crime other than that the tramp found Mrs. Bomley alone and attempted to assault her. Posses are scouring the country and if the man is caught he will be lynched.

BRITISH POLICE

Levying and Collecting Tributes Upon American Citizens in the Yukon Country.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—G. A. Carpenter, a well known journalist and writer, returned from the Yukon district on the steamer Alkali. He states that British mounted police, under direction of Superintendent Constantine, are levying flagrant tributes upon American citizens and aggressively encroaching upon United States territory on the Yukon river. According to Carpenter's story the British boundary line has been extended 15 miles southward upon United States soil, and her majesty's bluecoats are collecting a head tax or license fee of $15 per annum from all foreigners within this territory. High duties are levied upon all American imports to the Yukon country and dissatisfaction prevails.

Miners Go Back to Work.

MASSILLON, O., Oct. 5.—The Woodland miners have resumed work. They struck because posters were issued declaring they would be paid after October 1 according to the rate established to compete with the Pittsburgh rate. Matters were amicably adjusted.

Ottoman Bank Shipping Securities.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Chronicle telegraphs that the Ottoman bank and the representative of the Credit Lyonnaise are sending away large quantities of securities. It is stated that the latter forwarded a million francs' worth of securities to Paris a few days ago.

Trustee Missing.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 5.—N. H. Harrison, trustee of Monroe county, is missing, and an examination of his books shows a shortage of $7,000 to $10,000. A warrant for his arrest has been issued.

PRIMITIVE WOMAN WAS NEW.

Indian Relics Prove That the First Potter Was a Woman.

The discovery near Maurice river, in the neighboring state of New Jersey, of large numbers of stone implements used by Indian or other tribes in the long-gone centuries brings into notice the primitive woman, says the New York Tribune.

In New Jersey, as everywhere else in the world, she appears to have been industrious and energetic and ingenious. Among the implements discovered which she employed in prehistoric New Jersey were flint knives, with which she cut meat and probably vegetables; flint scrapers, with which she cleaned the skins of deer and bear, wildcat and other animals, preliminary to drying and smoking them for use as wearing apparel; clay pots and pans, pipkins and dishes, which she made in primeval potteries, at first the sun drying them and thereafter burning them in hot wood fires. The pottery shows here and there artistic yearnings on the part of the unknown makers, more uncouth and rudimentary than those of the ancient cliff-dwellers, but nevertheless they disclose the artistic sentiments and confirm the long list of examples collected by Prof. Mason, of Washington, showing that the first potter, the first modeler, the first sculptor and carver and the first artist was a woman.

No Time Should Be Lost

By those troubled with constipation in seeking relief from Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The disease is easily-relieved in its earlier stage, and as it is utterly subversive of the general health, postponement of the remedy is unwise. The same holds good of delay in cases of fever and ague, kidney complaints, nervousness, debility and rheumatism, ailments to which the Bitters is particularly adapted.

"DON'T you think there should be music in every home?" "By all means; what I object to is music next door." Chicago Record.

A Household Necessity.

Cascarets Candy Cathartic, the most wonderful medical discovery of the age, pleasant and refreshing to the taste, acts gently and positively on kidneys, liver and bowels, cleansing the entire system, dispels colds, cures headache, fever, habitual constipation and biliousness. Please buy and try a box of C. C. C. to-day; 10, 25, 50 cents. Sold and guaranteed to cure by all druggists.

NO ONE can make rheumatism or biliousness interesting. Therefore if you are sick, do not tell about it.

A Child Enjoys

The pleasant flavor, gentle action, and soothing effect of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative, and if the father or mother be costive or bilious, the most gratifying results follow its use; so that it is the best family remedy known and every family should have a bottle.

A MAN'S idea of a good woman is one who thinks her husband doesn't need praying for.—Atchison Globe.

FORTIFY Feeble Lungs Against Winter with Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar. Pike's Toothache Drops Cure in one minute.

You don't hear of a policeman being run over—they are never in the way.

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe.

IT is more pleasant to kiss a miss than to miss a kiss.—Philadelphia Record.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is a Constitutional Cure. Price 75c.

IT is the telescope that distance lens enchantment to the view.—Texas Sifter.

JUST try a 10c box of Cascarets, the finest liver and bowel regulator ever made.

THE favorite string instrument of a Bostonian—string beans.—Texas Sifter.

Now

Is the time when you should look out for the condition of your health. Avoid sickness by purifying and enriching your blood with

Hood's Sarsaparilla

The Best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills do not cause pain or gripe. All druggists. 25c.

Send your name for a Souvenir of the Works of Eugene Field,

FIELD FLOWERS

The Eugene Field Monument Souvenir

The most beautiful Art Production of the century. "A small bunch of the most fragrant of blossoms gathered from the broad acres of Eugene Field's Farm of Love." Contains a selection of the most beautiful of the poems of Eugene Field. Handsomely illustrated by thirty-five of the world's greatest artists as their contribution to the Monument Fund. But for the noble contributions of the great artists this book could not have been manufactured for $7.00. For sale at book stores, or sent prepaid on receipt of $1.10. The love offering to the Child's Poet Laureate, published by the Committee to create a fund to build the Monument and to care for the family of the beloved poet.

Eugene Field Monument Souvenir Fund,
180 Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

MANAGER AN ACTIVE MAN in every part of the UNION, $250.00 cash or first-class bond required, will guarantee $100.00 per month to right party, office work only, identification and care in accident or death, with insurance of $500 00 for $1.00 annually. Address METROPOLITAN IDENTIFICATION & REGISTRATION CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

There's MONEY in it!

No business pays as well on amount invested as DRILLING WELLS with our modern machinery! "IT SUCCEEDS! THAT'S the Reason!" LOOMIS & NYMAN, TIFFIN, OHIO.

AGENTS WANTED.

Fancy Campaign Chart, 6 bright colors, 22 x 28. Nothing like it. Sample 10 cts. 100 for $6.00. Sell for 25 cents. Box 847, Cincinnati, Ohio.

STEADY WORK WE PAY CASH WEEKLY and want men everywhere to SELL STARK TREES millions tested, proven "absolutely best." Superb outfits, new system. STARK BROTHERS, LOUISIANA, Mo., ROCKPORT, Ill.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION
25 CTS.

A TIDAL WAVE

Almost Wipes Cedar Keys, Fla., From the Face of the Earth.

The Loss of Life and Property is Enormous—Many Sponging Vessels, With Their Crews, Go to the Bottom—The Storm in Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 1.—A special from Jacksonville, Fla., to the Constitution says:

The West Indian hurricane which entered Florida at Cedar Keys Tuesday morning and swept through the southern part in a northeasterly direction left death and destruction in its path.

Owing to the prostration of telegraph wires and the delay of trains, due to washouts, only meager reports have been received, and yet, meager as those reports are, they show that over 20 towns and villages have been wrecked and that 40 or 50 persons have been killed, while probably thrice as many more received wounds more or less serious.

About 4 o'clock in the morning the hurricane, which had been churning the gulf, left the water and swooped down upon Cedar Keys, a town of 1,500 inhabitants, about one hundred miles southeast of Jacksonville.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 2.—Cedar Keys is a place of desolation and death. Tuesday it was a thriving town of 1,500 inhabitants. Thursday many of the people are corpses, scores of others are injured and there are but few houses left standing. Twenty corpses have been recovered and it is known that many others are dead. Of those recovered but few have been identified, so mutilated were they by falling timbers.

Many of the corpses were dug out of the mud in which they were buried by the mighty tidal wave that swept over the town Tuesday morning.

The storm struck this place about 3:30 o'clock Tuesday morning and continued for several hours. Though warning had been given, nothing indicated a blow of unusual severity.

At 7 o'clock an immense tidal wave came in from the south, carrying destruction with it. Boats, wharves and small houses were hurled upon the shore, and, breaking into fragments, covered the street with wreckage and rendered them almost impassable, while the torrents of water rushing through every open space would take the strongest man off his feet.

It was this tidal wave that caused the principal loss of life, many houses being swept from their foundations and inmates drowned. Of the 20 bodies recovered 12 are white and 8 colored.

The Mary Eliza, a sponging schooner, reached Cedar Keys at ten o'clock Thursday morning, jury rigged, having had to cut both masts away to prevent capsizing. She reports that at dark Monday night nearly 100 vessels were anchored on the sponge bar just below Cedar Keys and that nearly every one of them was sunk by the hurricane.

Beyond the bar the tops of scores of masts are visible just above the water, and each top indicates the burial place of a sponging schooner and its crew. As these vessels carried from four to ten men, the loss of life is horrible to contemplate.

When the tidal wave came and overwhelmed the houses many of the inmates floated in the water, clinging to pieces of timber. Others clung to tree tops for hours until the water receded. They were buffeted by wind and wave, and many women fainted, clinging, though, even while unconscious, with a death grip to the succoring limbs. They all show the effects in their tattered clothing and bruised bodies, but were glad to escape with their lives. Many others are still unaccounted for, and families and friends are filled with anxiety, hoping for the best, but fearing the worst.

Reliable news of the storm from the western part of Levy and Alachna counties has just reached Jacksonville. Not less than 200 families are left destitute. All their houses, fencing and crops are totally destroyed. What they had gathered was blown away with the buildings.

The town of Needmore was demolished. The post office building at that place was completely demolished, and the postmaster can find no part of the mail or post office fixtures Every house at Yular, Judson and Chiefland was destroyed with one or two exceptions, killing people at both the former places.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 2.—Telegraphic communication between Savannah and Florida has not been re-established since the hurricane of Tuesday snapped the wires as it came up northward from the gulf. From advices which have reached here of the storm's work in Florida cover the state pretty fully, but have come by mail.

The blow came ashore from the gulf on the coast line extending from Tampa to Cedar Keys, Tampa getting only the southern edge of the blow. Its path across the state was a narrow one, although a large area seems to have been affected, in greater or less degree, by what might be called the edges of the storm. The registry of the velocity of the wind at the government weather bureau at Jacksonville showed the remarkable and unprecedented record of nearly 100 miles an hour. This terrific gale fortunately lasted only about a minute, but for five minutes of which it was a part, the velocity was shown to be rather more than seventy miles an hour. The path of greatest severity of the storm seems to have been about forty miles wide. After passing over a strip of territory lying within the northern part of the state, the storm, according to the weather authorities, passed on to the Atlantic coast which it followed north. The storm passed around Tampa and there was but very little damage resulting from the wind, but the high tides played havoc and several thousand dollars' damage was done to property along the bay. Shipping along the river front suffered considerably.

The tide overflowed Port Tampa City and the lower floors of many houses were under water.

At Jacksonville the damage was confined to the demolition of trees, electric wires and signs.

At Newberry the damage consisted of the destruction of nearly one-half of the property. The wholesale and retail store of Williams Bros., containing a stock of goods valued at $15,000, was blown down and most of the goods ruined. A phosphate plant was demolished and all horses were killed.

At Gracy, the saw mill plant of Gracy and McDonald, the largest in this part of the state, is a complete wreck and thousands of acres of timber lands are destroyed.

The heaviest losers are the turpentine manufacturers. Those heard from report a total loss and say that they will be compelled to go out of the business. All of the trees are down and it is impossible in many places to ride through the woods even on horseback.

The loss to timber in this will reach $500,000. The Cummer Wood and Timber Co. will be the heaviest losers. It will cost the company several hundred dollars to clear the roads of trees.

Callahan reports that barns, sheds, a number of dwellings and two churches are entirely torn to pieces. Two Savannah, Florida & Western railway buildings were unroofed. Two box cars were blown from the side track and got on the main line and went two or three miles before stopping. As near as can be estimated, the loss will amount to $2,500.

At Macclenny the Baptist church and one of the largest stores were blown flat upon the ground, the principal boarding house was unroofed, the county jail suffered the same fate, and a number of small dwelling houses were razed. Others were blown from their foundations, not a fence was left standing.

At Gainesville a building erected by D. F. Cooper for a saw mill, but which was full of furniture, was totally destroyed, and a warehouse were demolished. A Negro church was turned over on its side and four Negro huts were blown down.

In Branford the Presbyterian and Methodist churches were blown to the ground. The Dre Lumber company's mill is a wreck. The roof was blown off Gilbert's mill and about one-third of the tin roofing was blown from the Plant system depot. Many outhouses and Negro dwellings were unroofed or blown down. The store of W. Williams, general merchandise, was badly wrecked. At Lake Butler, 17 miles west of Stark, Odam Bros. and Thoas & Son's stores were wrecked and goods badly damaged. The Baptist church and the old courthouse were blown down. McKinney's gin house was blown down and the cotton scattered.

Fort White caught the full force of the blow. Nearly every store and dwelling in town was more or less damaged. The Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian churches were demolished. They were valued at $1,250, $200 and $500 respectively. The public school building shared the same fate. The Plant system depot was unroofed. The losses to the merchants on their stocks and buildings range from $200 to $1,200 each.

High Springs claims the air monster scorched through the town at a rate of 100 miles an hour. Trees and houses went down like cardboards, and only half a dozen houses are left to point out to the investigators the once prosperous town. Women had children blown out of their arms, and men were knocked down like nine pins. The freight depot, used as a refuge by many, was partly demolished and refuge was sought in box cars on the track.

Among the casualties were the loss of the Higden hotel, one of the largest buildings in the town. Levy's store, the Auditorium, Vinzent, Futch & Co., furniture factory; the High Springs Oil Co.'s factory, Werner's store and about 25 residences.

The new passenger shed of the Plant system was totally demolished. The building had just been completed, and the new building for the general offices had all windows blown in and was flooded.

About 20 smaller stores were partly wrecked. Part of the new Plant system hospital was unroofed. How much damage was done at Cedar Keys has not been learned at Savannah yet. It is not probable, however, that the storm proved more destructive there than at other points in the state.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 2.—The bodies of two more victims of the hurricane were found Thursday. They are Capt. Lewis S. Hill and his brother, Frank Hill, of the coasting schooner Island Flower, a little vessel of which Capt. Hill and his brother and a 17-year-old boy, Ulysses Steele, are officers and crew, which went ashore on the north side of the Savannah river, near Venus Point. The United States steamer Tybee brought up the body of Capt. Hill Thursday afternoon, and Thursday night the schooner Pearl arrived with the body of his brother. The body of the boy Steele is still missing. Hill and his brother lived on Wilmington island, about fifteen miles from Savannah. They were on their way to Claghorn plantation, S. C., when they were overtaken by the storm. The little vessel was driven ashore on a government training wall, where she was found Thursday. The bodies of Hill and his brother were wedged in the wall. The body of J. C. McClure and the colored deck hand of the tug Robert Turner, have not yet been found.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 2.—The hurricane which swept over Savannah, Tuesday, cost nearly a dozen lives and entailed a financial loss of nearly $1,000,000.

The other people thus far reported dead are: J. Wallace Johnson, Capt. C. E. Murray, of the tug Robert Turner, and the following, all colored: Mary Waring, Eliza Beatty, Faunie McFall, Ruby Williams, Julia Jackson, two deckhands on the Robert Turner, an unknown man and an infant.

A score or more others were injured, some fatally.

Among prominent buildings damaged are: City exchange, Duffy Street Baptist church, St. Philip's African Methodist church, Central railway warehouses, St. Patrick's school, Georgia Hussar's armory, Henry hall, city market, electric railway powerhouse, Vale Royal Mills, Comer, Hull & Co.'s guano factory, Commercial Guano Co.'s factory, Jones Marine railway, Fawcett Bros'. wholesale grocery building, Henry Solomon & Son's wholesale grocery, M. J. Doyle's retail grocery.

Hundreds of residences are injured and the most beautiful trees in the city are down. The loss to shipping will amount to over $100,000.

The most serious casualty was the capsizing in midstream in the Savannah river of the Norwegian bark Rosenius, grounding of the Morgan bark Cab, drifting of Norwegian bark R. D. Metcalf and the total loss of the tugboat Turner. The Steamer Gov. Safford, of Beach and Miller line, is aground in Cooper river and small craft have suffered much.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 30.—The bridge over the Susquehanna river at the Columbia which was nearly a mile in length was almost completely wrecked by the heavy wind storm early Wednesday morning. The bridge was used by the Frederick division of the Pennsylvania railroad and was also used as a public wagon road. The bridge connected Columbia with Wrightsville, Pa. Only two iron spans of the bridge remain. The bridge was rebuilt in 1869 at a cost of $150,000. The piers are not injured.

It is believed several men were on the bridge when it was swept away. Reports received from all sections of the country show that the damage done will reach in the aggregate nearly $1,000,000. Hundreds of farmers have lost their entire tobacco crop which was ready for the market.

In addition to frame buildings numerous brick structures were razed to the ground. The largest was that of H. Burd Cassell, ex-chairman of the republican county committee. His brick planing mill collapsed involving a loss of $10,000. The roof of Deputy Auditor General Friday's barn was blown off and the upper part of the building wrecked.

Senator Quay had just completed the erection of a large tobacco shed on his farm and the roof of it was blown away.

A number of trees were blown across the tracks of the Little Schuylkill branch of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad between Port Clinton and Tamaqna, and the Buffalo express, due at Reading at 5:00 a. m., was three hours late.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—One of the most severe wind storms known for years raged over the lake region Tuesday night and part of Wednesday. It seems to have expended most of its force over the upper half of Lake Michigan. The loss of life so far reported is small—four men having been drowned by the sinking of the steam barge Sumatra at Milwaukee. Much damage was done to shipping in Milwauke, Grand Haven, Chicago and other harbors, and masters of such steamers as were out in the lakes during the night report one of the roughest passages they have ever experienced. Owing to the lateness of the season and threatening conditions which prevailed for 24 hours before the storm broke, most of the sailing fleet was tied up in different ports—Chicago harbor especially being crowded.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The West Indies tornado which struck Washington between 11 p. m. and midnight Tuesday night, respected neither official nor diplomatic proprietors. It ripped off some of the coping of the white house and laid low most of the historic trees in the white house grounds, including the elm tree which Lincoln planted.

It carried away part of the roof of the state department where the official documents are stored but fortunately left them uninjured. The costly roof of the patent office, constructed after the fire there some years ago, was rolled up and distributed all around the neighborhood and skylights half an inch thick were remorselessly beaten in. The naval observatory and in fact pretty well every other public building was more or less damaged.

Diplomatic residences were not spared. That of the French minister was left roofless, and even the substantially built embassy of Great Britain suffered the loss of the portico. Churches and theaters suffered alike, several of the former being badly damaged. Twenty persons were seriously injured, but so far no loss of life is known.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—In Alexandria, the Virginian suburb of Washington, just across the Potomac river, the damage done by the storm is estimated at not less than $100,000, and at least four lives are known to have been lost. The killed are Mrs. Louisa Holt and Wm. D. Stewart, crushed to death by falling walls. Nearly 200 houses were badly damaged by the tornado in its course.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 1.—The most violent wind storm ever known in this section, burst upon the city Tuesday night about 9 o'clock, and raged for some two hours. The wind was accompanied by rain and the blow was from the southwest. Trees were uprooted, fences blown down, windows blown in and houses unroofed on every side.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 1.—A report comes from Texas, a small town in Baltimore county that one man was killed and six injured in Tuesday night's storm. Captains arriving Wednesday report terrific weather outside. Conservative estimates of loss by the storm in the city vary from $150,000 to $200,000.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Advices from points on the Potomac river report an extensive rise in the river at all points above Washington. At Harper's Ferry a rise of 31 feet above low water mark was noted early Thursday afternoon and a continual rise seems to have followed. Flood river signals are displayed along the river front and at an early hour Thursday night a rise in this city was reported, though thus far not to an alarming extent. The continued rains about Pittsburgh contribute considerably to this flood condition and unless there is an early cessation of the rise considerable damage to property at this city and all up points on the Potomac river is probable.

DISASTROUS WRECK.

Freight Trains on the B. & O. Road Collide—Train Crew Injured and a Tramp Killed—Cars Smashed Into Kindling Wood.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 1.—A special dispatch from Connellsville says:

At 11:30 o'clock Wednesday night, second section of B. & O. railway freight train No. 74, engine No. 761, with a heavy train of 34 loaded cars, ran away from Sand Patch tunnel, all efforts of the engineer to stop the train failing. At terrific speed the runaway train crashed into fast freight train, No. 95, with 18 cars, near Philson station. Engineer W. J. Zane, Conductor S. J. Ringler, Firemen Spault and Owens, and Brakeman Cornell were more or less seriously hurt by jumping. One tramp, name unknown, was ground to pieces. Both trains and engines were demolished. The tracks were cleared Thursday night. The Chicago and New York express was sent via Fairmount. All freight traffic was abandoned, and passengers were transferred.

SAN PEDRO VALLEY

Flooded as the Result of a Cloudburst—Much Loss of Life and Property.

TUSCON, Ariz., Oct. 2.—There was a terrific rain and wind storm east and west of this place Thursday and three miles of railroad track nine miles west of here was washed out.

Advices from Benson say a cloudburst in the Whitestone mountains is causing a torrential flood many miles wide down in the San Pedro valley, taking in the west end of the town, demolishing several buildings. Wm. Zeck, a barber, his wife and two children and Oscar Ashburn, a stockman, were drowned. A number of others are missing. It is feared that there will be not less that twelve victims here. It is thought there has been much loss of life and property down the San Pedro valley as no such flood was ever known in that vicinity before.

PURE FOOD CASES.

Right of a 'Squire to Allow Defendants Part of the Samples to Analyze Considered by the Supreme Court.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2.—O. J. Renner, an attorney from Cincinnati filed in the supreme court Thursday a motion for leave to file exceptions to the ruling of 'Squire Winkler, of Cincinnati, in the pure food prosecution of Druggist Delong. In the trial the justice of the peace ordered the state to give the defendant a part of its sample for analysis.

State Food Commissioner McNeal refused, saying he would give a part to the court to be analyzed by a chemist of the court's choice, but not to a chemist of the defendant's choice. The law gives justices of the peace final jurisdiction in pure-food cases, and there is a question as to whether the case can be brought up on this ruling.

INTEGRITY OF TURKEY

To Be Maintained by France and Russia—Austria Concurs in this Line of Policy.

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—A Constantinople dispatch to the Tageblatt says that Ihadma, a journal of Turkish government publishes an inspired statement that France and Russia are resolved to maintain the integrity of Turkey and the status quo in the east. It declares that Austria concurs in this line of policy.

The statement refers to an article published in the semi-official North German Gazette to the effect that Germany supported the Sultan and to the fact that Baron Von Saurma-Jeltsch, the German Ambassador to Turkey, presented a photograph of Emperor William to the sultan a few days ago, as proof of Germany's friendship for Turkey.

AUSTRIA'S EXPENDITURES

Exceeds the Annual Estimates More Than 22,000,000 Florins.

VIENNA, Oct. 2.—The reichsrath resumed its sittings Thursday. Dr. Von Belinski, minister of finance, in presenting the budget, astonished the house by declaring that all the estimates of former years had been unreal and were calculated to deceive parliament. Making an average for the last five years the expenditures annually exceeded the estimates more than 22,000,000 florins. The budget was illusory in other respects. Dr. Von Belinski stated that he proposed to establish a separate investment budget to be covered by special rentes. He estimated the expenditures of 1897 at 692,000,000 florins, an increase of 42,000,000 florins.

Want a Place on the Ballot.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 2.—The national democratic state convention made application to the secretary of state Thursday for the placing of Palmer and Buckner electors on the official ballot. Petitions bearing nearly 7,000 names accompanied the application. To avoid confusion the heading will be "National Sound Money Ticket."

Wreck on the Richmond & Danville.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Reports reached here Thursday night of a serious wreck Thursday evening on the Richmond & Danville road near Danville, Va., but no particulars are as yet forthcoming. A wrecking train has been sent out from Alexandria. The telegraph wires south of Alexandria are prostrated.

England May Act Alone.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Evening News publishes a news agency dispatch asserting that Great Britain has notified the powers that unless immediate and energetic action is taken by them to effect a settlement of the Turkish situation, England will act alone. No confirmation of this information is obtainable.

HALF A CENTURY.

Semi-Centennial Celebration at Burlington—Grand Stand Accident in Which a Number of Prominent Persons Were Injured.

BURLINGTON, Ia., Oct. 2.—The semi-centennial celebration of Iowa's statehood opened Thursday in a blaze of glory. After three weeks of rain the sun shone forth Wednesday, and all night long street sweepers and gangs of men and wagons scoured the streets. Electric lights were strung at intervals of ten feet on all the main streets, and a sea of banners and bunting is strung across the streets and on the buildings even out into the residence districts. Wednesday night at the Coliseum 1,000 persons attended the grand opening concert and ball. The music was furnished by the Iowa State band, of World's fair fame. At an early hour Wednesday morning cannons boomed from the bluffs, bells rang and whistles blew, and again at noon for ten minutes the noise was repeated. The uproar was deafening. The parade was the grandest ever seen here. It started at 11 a. m., and was witnessed by 25,000 people. Gov. Drake and Vice President Stevenson rode near the head of the column followed by the governor's staff, mounted and gold laced. A full batallion of the Iowa national guard headed the column. Brass bands from all over the states were in line. Floats representing the progress of Iowa from 1846 to 1896 were also in line. A band of forty full-blooded Tama Indians followed the troops. Two cowboys dashed after the Indians and ran for 15 minutes through the dense crowd before they were captured.

After the grand parade had formed for the opening of the semi-centennial festivities Thursday morning and had covered about half of the line of march, Gov. Francis Drake and staff, Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson and all of the state and local officials were conducted to a reviewing stand. Scarcely were they seated when the stand gave way with a crash and the entire structure went to the ground, a mass of broken timbers. Women fainted and great confusion at once reigned.

Gov. Drake and Vice President Stevenson were on the front tier of the seats and were thrown backward upon the others, and thus escaped fatal injury, but, nevertheless, badly shaken up and considerably bruised. Ex-Gov. Sherman, of Iowa, was in the rear of the stand and fell at the very bottom of the mass. He was found with a heavy timber across his legs and a plank resting on his neck and back. He is badly hurt. Maj. Wyman, of Ottumwa, Ia., is injured in the spine, and is paralyzed. How badly he is hurt will not be known for some time. It was expected, but afterward denied, that his back was broken. E. S. Burrus, treasurer of Des Moines, Ia., may die, both of his legs being broken. Lafayette Roung, editor of the Iowa Capital, was badly cut and bruised about the head. City Clerk Fred L. Poor was bruised and cut. Miss Mary Lord Drake, the governor's daughter, was slightly bruised. All of the staff officers suffered more or less and their swords and regalia were badly broken and torn.

State Commissioner Seymour Jones' leg was injured. The sufferers were conveyed to hospitals and hotels and their injuries promptly attended to.

Tom Watson Displeased.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 2.—Thos. E. Watson, who was here Thursday night, declined to discuss the report that he contemplated retiring from the national populist ticket. He seems to be sore on the action of the national campaign committee for allowing him to be traded off in the fusion between populists and democrats in the several states. He has practically nothing in the states where there has been fusion, the populists have taken the local nominations and given the democrats the electoral ticket, or a majority of the electors.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The treasury gold reserve at the close of business Thursday stood at $123,951,642. The Wednesday's withdrawal of gold at New York was $82,908. The interruption of telegraphic connections with New York prevented any telegram being received from there Thursday giving Thursday's gold withdrawals.

The Cup Stays in Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 2.—Thursday's game concluded the Detroit Free Press cup series and finally closed the season of the Western league. The cup will stay in Minneapolis, the series having been won by the champion millers. The score was: Minneapolis 13, Indianapolis 11.

Texas Town Partially Burned.

PARIS, Tex., Oct. 2.—Half of the business portion of Ladonia, 30 miles southwest of this city, was destroyed by fire, which originated in a hotel Thursday night. The landlady and two others perished in the flames. No names or other particulars are obtainable.

Public Debt Statement.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The public debt statement, issued Thursday afternoon, shows a net increase in public debt, less cash in the treasury, during September of $1,806,034. Total cash in the treasury, $849,642,772.

Roger Wolcott Nominated for Governor.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—At the republican state convention Hon. Roger Wolcott was nominated for governor by acclamation. Secretary of State Olin was nominated by acclamation.

An Attorney Disbarred.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Secretary Francis has issued an order disbarring Wm. M. Osborne, an attorney at Lansing, Mich., from practicing before the interior department and all its branches. He is charged with receiving illegal fees in pension cases.

Torpedo Boats Launched.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2.—The first of the three torpedo boats which have for several months been under construction at the Columbian iron works for the United States navy, was launched Friday afternoon in the presence of a large crowd.

NEWS ITEMS.

The United States cruiser Minneapolis sailed from Genoa Friday for Constantinople.

The boiler of Mills' saw mill at Novesta, a small town nine miles southeast of Cass City, Mich., exploded Friday morning, completely wrecking the mill, and killing two men and seriously injuring two others.

The democratic executive committee met at Jackson Thursday night and declared Maj. Pat Henry the nominee for congress in the Seventh Mississippi district. His majority over Col. Chas. E. Hooker was 1,113. Total vote cast, 5,987.

The Franklin sugar refinery, Philadelphia, will close down in a few days for an indefinite period. The shutdown is due to the recent heavy importations from Germany of granulated sugar and the heavy stock of sugar on hand.

Up to September 29, 30 wealthy Armenians, including one Armenian notability, had been arrested on suspicion of have taken part in the recent revolutionary movements. The general opinion is that these persons are wholly innocent.

A. R. Brosseau, one of the largest carpet dealers of New Orleans, has assigned. Assets, $90,000; liabilities, $286,000. Mr. Brosseau is a half brother of Justice White, who was summoned here to look into the affairs of the firm before its failure.

A dispatch received in Madrid Friday from Havana states that Gen. Mulguizo, commanding a strong Spanish force has captured the positions occupied by Macco, the rebel leader, in the province of Panar del Rio, killing 80 of the insurgents.

George E. Sheldon, of Houghton, Mich., who was shot Thursday evening by Felix Dumontier, a discharged coachman, died at two o'clock Friday evening from the effects of his wounds. Dumontier's body has not yet been recovered. The lake is being dragged.

The London Chronicle Friday publishes a dispatch from Berlin saying that the Russian Black sea fleet is cruising 45 miles northeast of the Bosporus and that it is in constant communication with the light house at Kila, 30 miles east of the Bosporus.

The socialistic delegates to the Cigar Makers' International union at Detroit, who attempted to have politics interjected into the preamble of the organization, were defeated Friday, the convention deciding by a vote of 107 to 72 to retain the present preamble.

A dispatch from Bombay says the drought continues in northern and central India, where there has been no rain for many weeks. The crops in those sections have utterly failed, and grain riots have occurred in many places as the result of the scarcity of cereals.

Gov. McLaurin has just returned from a tour of inspection of convict farms in the Delta, where Mississippi has 8,000 acres in cotton, and he reports that crops are much better than he expected. He says that in some places the state will make one bale to the acre.

The officers of the steamer St. Joseph report a small tug, name unknown, sunk Tuesday night near Dents Landing, Miss., and all on board were drowned. The water is 70 feet deep where the tug sank, and it can not be raised. None of the bodies of the crew have yet been recovered.

The trip through the northwest, now being arranged for Gens. Palmer and Buckner, will begin the last of next week. The present intention is to have them meet in Chicago on October 8 and start on a special train through Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and Iowa. Gen. Buckner left for Chicago Friday.

At Cairo, Ill., four days ago, Mrs. Minnie Hendricks rode to church on a bicycle with Alexander S. Fraser, to whom she was married. Thursday morning she committed suicide by shooting herself through the heart. She had discovered that Fraser was unable to support her and became despondent.

Minister Strobel, at Santiago, Chili, reports to Secretary Olney that William C. Hodge, an American citizen, native of Kentucky, 65 years of age, committed suicide there on August 19 by shooting himself. He was a civil engineer and became despondent through failure of his efforts to secure employment.

A strike of the bituminous coal miners of the United States similar to that ordered three years ago is thought by a number of Pittsburgh coal producers as imminent. The operators would welcome such a condition believing it would result in restoration of peace, orderly production and a standard rate of wages.

The latest advices from the Orient by the China report that further severe storms have occured in the southern and western districts of Japan. In Hioga and Gifu prefectures, especially enormous damage has been done to property, and a large number of lives lost by the floods which followed up the heavy rain storms.

The Galveston bagging and twine factory, Galveston, Tex., will close down Saturday, throwing about two hundred hands, mostly boys and girls, out of employment. A notice posted in the mill gives as the reason the short crop of cotton and the general depression, and says if business conditions warrant it, the mill will start again in January.

News has been received at Port Townsend, Wash., of the wreck of the bark James A. Borland, which occurred at Tugidak, Alaska, on September 1. The vessel and cargo are a total loss, but all of the crew escaped, being picked up by a sealing schooner.

During Tuesday night's hurricane at Raleigh, N. C., a tree was blown upon a house instantly killing Mrs. Trice. Her husband and two children escaped. The storm was more severe at Durham than at any other point yet heard from. W. T. Carrington's tobacco house, in which are 450,000 pounds of tobacco, was entirely wrecked. He estimates his loss at over [illegible]

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Oct. 7, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time $1.00
Each additional time .... .25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50
☞Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered........$5.00.

W. L. RIDDELL. - - Publisher.

Neighborhood News.

Gasburg.

Very heavy fogs have hung over the river several mornings lately, entirely stopping boats from running.

D. E. Castleman and Sam Ackmyer will address the voters of this place at the schoolhouse next Saturday at 2 pm.

Miss Lizzie Romine, who was reported very sick in your last issue, has not improved any and is in a critical condition.

Beaver.

F. D Grubbs has just finished a beautiful house for W. M. Underhill that is a credit to the neighborhood and the man that built it.

Our little town is on the boom—four lots were sold last week, the parties purchasing with a view of building this fall.

The Beaver Free Silver Club is now thoroughly organized with a membership of 75. Just as the club was called to order Saturday evening, Hon. John S. Gaunt came along enroute to Big Bone to fill an appointment there; so we just stopped the gentleman and had him to tear us off one which he did in a style that was very pleasing to the club.

Richwood.

Miss May Smith is attending school at Walton.

Mr. Samuel Tinsley, of Frankfort, was visiting his aunt, Mrs. Judith Rice, one day last week.

Mrs. Hill, of Ghent, joined her husband, Prof. Henry Hill, who is teaching at Frogtown. We would be pleased to have them locate permanently in our neighborhood.

Geo. Murphy intends to move to Erlanger in the near future.

Uncle Abe Stansifer and daughter, Miss Rose, spent last Sunday, with Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hicks.

Uncle Cum Wilson has just returned from Big Bone where he has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Chas. Allen.

Erlanger.

Good Faith Lodge No. 35 will meet Saturday evening at 7:45. All invited to attend.

The K. P.'s have challenged the Masons for a game of base ball next Saturday on the Elsmer grounds at 2 p. m.

The Ladies of St. Henry's church gave an entertainment and hop at the K. P. hall Saturday evening. The performance excellent and the large hall was packed to the doors. The ladies deserve credit for their work.

The Republicans have organized a McKinley and Hobart club and elected the following officers: President, F. Flemming; Vice-President, T. Arrison; Secretary, T. J. Finnell; Treasurer, D. Riggs. Regular meetings will be held every Tuesday evening at Konnerding's hall.

Hathaway.

Mrs. William Neal, of Bellevue, is visiting relatives here.

Wood Stephens took a trip to Delhi and Coal City, last Sunday week, and said he had a delightful time in spite of the rain.

Some one in last week's issue spoke of a large Irish potato, and asked if any one could beat it. Yes indeed, Robert Adams has one that weiged 2½ pounds.

Mrs. B. D. Adams returned home last Tuesday from Crittenden, where she had been visiting her mother for the past two weeks.

Ed Ryle and son and daughter, of Kenton are visiting relatives here.

Rev. John Presser left for Louisville, last Wednesday, where he will attend school this winter.

Verona.

Two distinguished speakers of Warsaw, will address the Bryan & Sewall club here Wednesday night.

Rev. Coleman, of Georgetown,, is assisting Rev. Lafe Johnson in a revival meeting at New Bethel.

W. E. Vest made us a brief call last Saturday. Will is a hustling real estate agent.

A grand speaking and Democratic Rally will be held in Mrs. Arnold's grove at Walton, October 17th, in which all clubs in the county are expected to attend in their uniforms.

Several from here went to hear Bryan at Covington, last Friday night.

Mrs. Nancy Roberts and Mrs. Mattie Ransom returned Saturday from a pleasant visit to relatives at Hebron.

Miss Anna Wolfe is teaching school at the Craven school house.

Jno. E. Roberts is attending the graded school at Walton.

Elmer Showers will attend a Cincinnati Pharmacy School this fall.

Union.

Mrs. John Garrison, Mrs. Wallace Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hicks, Mr. Hal Blanton and Miss Annie Rice spent Sunday at Keomesoo Springs.

Mrs. Lizzie Huey is visiting relatives in the Bullittsville neighborhood.

Mr. Dave Castleman and family were the guests of Mr. J. A. Huey, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Lute Rice and family, Mr. Burl Conner and family, Miss Lizzie and Annie Aylor spent Saturday with John Stephens.

The Campaign Committee will meet here Friday.

Gene Riley is quite sick.

Several from here heard Bryan speak in Covington, Friday night. They were very much delighted with him.

The meeting of the Bryan & Sewall club Saturday evening was largely attended. Quite a crowd of enthusiastic Democrats greeted D. E. Castleman who made the speech of the evening, and the boys enjoyed it. After speaking the club enrolled a number of new members. They now have a membership of 108, with promise of many more. The club meets every Saturday from now until the election. They expect to have one or more good speakers at every meeting. The hour of meeting has been changed from 8 to 7 o'clock. All are invited.

Gunpowder.

Born to Joel Stevenson Robins and wife, a fine baby boy.

Mr. W. H. Black and wife, of Ohio, are visiting relatives in this vicinity this week.

B. A. Rouse and S. J. Orem, were visiting in Grant county, Saturday and Sunday.

E. H. Snyder and family were visiting J. D. Snyder, last Sunday.

Lou Thompson and family were visiting R. O. Beemon last Sunday.

Protracted meeting commences at the Hopeful church, Oct. 10.

At Mr. Alonzo Vaughn's corn sale last Friday, corn sold for from 40 to 50 cents per shock.

Petersburg.

Our old friend Prof. O. Snyder, whose good services as school teacher for a long term of years are acknowledged by all will not teach this year.

Woodford Sullivan has moved back to his farm and Morgan Tolin is occupying the house he left. Merrit Sullivan, who cultivated Wood's farm this season, moved into Dony Cook's house on Woolper. Ezra Aylor will leave uncle Billy Grant's place and go to the widow Terrill's farm.

Quite a number of our Bryan Club attended a political demonstration at Aurora, one night last week, but that was a tame affair in comparison to the ovation given to Mr. Bryan on Saturday morning at Aurora and Lawrenceburg. The crowd at Lawrenceburg was estimated at 3,500, at Aurora 5,000. The people were more than glad to get a glimpse at the next President, and great satisfaction is expressed on all sides by what was seen and heard.

That long, gentle, welcome rain last week, caused a bright smile on the farmer's faces, as the ground had become too dry to prepare for seeding. It was just the right thing at the right time.

Among the visitors, last Sunday, on the Island Queen, from the city, were John Randall and wife, Miss Carrie Sebree and a Mr. Peat.

J. Frank Grant, the newly elected Secretary of the Sovereign Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. received the congratulations of a large number of friends at a great banquet held in his honor at Gordon's Hall, last Saturday night.

Little Harry, son of T. B. Mathews, is at Sanders, Ky., with diphtheria, but is reported improving.

Whenever a public official whose it duty is to be polite, pleasant and attentive to business become careless in these particulars, the position ought to be taken away from such a one and given to some person worthy of the place. A word to the wise is enough.

Uncle Fielding Crisler got to talk to the next President who invited him to ride with him to the next station.

A large crowd attended a meeting of the Gasburg Silver Club, Saturday night and heard some fine oratory from a Mr. Kerr. of Ind., and from our own Major Stott, who can't refrain from taking a hand in the great struggle.

Limaburg.

Dr. Rouse has located at New Liberty, Owen county, where he will engage in his profession. Success to him.

Miss Lallie Loring, of Rising Sun is teaching our school.

Miss Ida Aylor, who has been very ill is better.

Mrs. Noah Craven was knocked down by a bicycle on the pike Sunday, and injured slightly.

The rains have damaged a great deal of corn and fodder.

The following is the programme rendered at the banquet tendered J. Frank Grant, by Morning Star Lodge, last Saturday night, in honor of his election as secretary of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd-Fellows:

Prayer by Elder Curry; Opening Ode, by the Lodges present; Opening Address, by Dr. J. M. Grant; Address on behalf of Union Lodge, of Lawrenceburg, by E. Barret; Address on behalf of Viola Lodge, of Burlington, by D. M. Hewitt; Song, by Miss G. G. Grant. At this point the Lawrenceburg band arrived and gave an impromptu serenade, after which the band was seated on the stage, where they discoursed excellent music. Address on behalf of Allemania Lodge, of Aurora, by Bro. Beinkamd; Address on behalf of Fortune Lodge, of Lawrenceburg, by Bro. Koch; Song, by Mrs. S. Smith and Miss Grace Grant; Address on behalf of Venus Lodge, of Florence, by Judge Stephens; Address on behalf of Chosen Friends Lodge, of Aurora, by Bro. Schwartz and Bro. Randall. The latter brother is the oldest Odd-Fellow in this county, having been one for 53 years. Song, by Mrs. E. J. Curry; Address on behalf of Morning Star Lodge, by Bro. T. B. Mathews, responded to by Bro. J. Frank Grant. Closing Ode, by the German brothers.

There was a large attendance, and everybody enjoyed the occasion, and praise the hospitality of Morning Star Lodge.

Trotting Horse Breeders Association. Lexington, Ky., Oct. 6th to 16th, 1896. Round trip tickets via Queen & Crescent Route for one fare good until Oct. 17th to return. No extra charge on vestibuled trains. Ask agents for particulars.

W. C. RINEARSON,
Gen. Pas. Agt. Cincinnati, O.

We do not need rain just now.

Only four weeks until the election.

Announcements for public speakings will be found in another column.

Miss Grace Myers, of Coal City, O., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Barker.

Frank Helm, president of the First National Bank, of Covington, was in town Monday.

The Enquirer's report of Monday's Democratic parade was too liberal in its estimates.

The grass was never known to be growing nicer at this season of the year than it is at present.

Col. A. S. Berry was not wanting in courtesy to his Boone county friends who attended the Bryan meering at Covington, last Friday night, Judge M. L. Roberts, also, gave the Boone boys whom he met, most excellent treatment.

Dr. E. P. Dameron, dentist, will be in Burlington, on the first Monday in each month. Teeth will be extracted positively without pain by the use of "Odontunder." References:—Mrs. E. H. Blankenbecker and Mrs. Virginia A. Corey, of Florence; Mrs. R. S. Crisler, of Burlington.

A Democratic club with 98 members was organized at Rabbit Hash, last Saturday night. The officers are as follows: C. G. Riddell, president; L. C. Cowen. vice-president; R. M. Wilson, secretary A. D. Williamson, Marshall. D. H. Keeney and R. L. Davis, of Rising Sun, aderessed the club on the money question.

The reports regarding the new tobacco crop are very satisfactory. There is some little stripping going on, and new tobacco is expected on the market very early. It is the general impression among the growers that the first shipments will do much better than afterwards. There is no doubt that the new tobacco will be purchased quite freely by the manufacturers as they will discard the old tobacco as soon as possible, on account of its inferiority. Shippers will make no mistake in disposing of the old as fast as it can be done, in order to not allow it to come in competition with the new.

Base Ball.

The Burlington team was defeated by the Hebron boys at the latter's park, last Saturday, by a score as shown below:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	—
Burlington	0	0	2	2	0	0	2	0	2	8
Hebron	1	4	2	2	0	2	0	0	*	11

Hits—Hawes, 2, Brady, Hughes, Arnold, 2, Tanner, Robinson, 2, Cloud. Two base hits—Bahn, Houston, Tanner, 2. Tripple—Quick. Struck out—by Brady, 8, by Tanner, 5.

The Burlington and Petersburg ball teams played an intensely exciting game here Monday afternoon. It was a regular slugging match, the visitors making 21 save connecrions with Brady's delivery; while the home boys lined out 19 safe ones off of Alloway. The score was as follows, when the game was called on account of darkness:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Burlington	0	2	0	5	1	0	3	10
Petersburg	0	2	6	1	0	1	0	10

These clubs play at Petersburg next Saturday.

The farmers want dry weather.

Only four weeks until the election.

A horseback rider ran into Uncle John Beall's buggy as he was going home from Burlington, Monday evening and broke the spindle off. Fortunately Uncle John was not hurt.

Queen & Crescent Low Rates.

New York, N. Y., Jubilee Afr., M. E. Zion Church Oct. 1st to 12th.

Boston, Mass., American Missionary Ass'n. Oct. 20th to 22nd.

St. Louis, Mo., American Street Ry. Ass'n. Oct. 20th to 23rd.

NOTICE.

All persons holding claims against J. R. Clutterbuck must present them to me at my office in Burlington, Ky., proven as by law required and persons indebted to the said Clutterbuck must settle with me at once.

S. W. TOLIN, Assignee.
Sept. 10th, 1896.

Executor's Notice.

Those indebted to the estate of Jas. H. Wilson, dec'd., must come forward and settle at once, and those having claims against said estate must present the same at once proven according to law.

MONTGOMERY ANDERSON,
Executor.

Scientific American Agency for

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Subscribe for the RECORDER

Fallen Asleep.

Samuel Hind, sr., died at his home at Walton, Ky., Thursday am., Sept. 3d, 1896, after years of intense but patient suffering. He was born in 1819 in Hart, county, Ky, and came with his parents to Boone county, in 1820, where he has since lived as a representative and honored citizen.

He was elected magistrate before he was old enough to legally qualify for the office—was high sheriff of the county in 1848 and held the position of deputy county clerk for 16 years consecutively he was an extraordinary business man, energetic and successful in life and was administrator and guardian for more families than any other man in the county.

He was one of the organizers, and until a few years before his death, director of The Farmers' and Traders' National Bank of Covington. In latter years he was frequently solicited to run for office but steadily refused. We all know how useful and influential he was in his neighborhood and county, how far his word and solid opinion went in everything, yet it is in the home and family circle he will be most missed. There never was a kinder or more indulgent husband and father, at the same time governing his household well and highly honored and beloved by all. He never united with any church, but was of the Old Baptist presuasion. He attended church regularly and helped liberally in the support of many churches and charities, and at all times welcomed ministers th his home and very frequently had public worship of God, his Father, at his home, when he was confined to his room and unable to go to church.

Among his neighbors and friends he was often called peacemaker because of having settled so many differences for them. We all rejoice that he found that "Peace which passeth all understanding," and from our knowldege of his implicit faith in the sovereign power of God, and his perfect confidence in the cleansing power of the precious blood of Christ, we have sure hope of his happinness in the other world, and have reason to know he is at Rest in Heaven.

Many nights when he was suffering and could not sleep, he would ask for the Bible to be brought to his bed and would calmly listen to the wonderful words of life. The last song he ever sang was the grand old, familiar hymn "Oh, Who Would Live Always Away From His God?"

His last days on earth were hours of intense agony of suffering. He prayed constantly that he might be free from "the body of this death," and go home to his God.

His last words before passing into unconsciousness were spoken to his devoted wife. When she asked him what she might do for him, and what he wanted, he said, "my dear, you can do nothing for me I only want to go to my home."

He leaves a widow and four children. Mrs. Margaret Hudson and Samuel Hind, of Walton, Ky,. Mrs. Sarah Boulton, of Falmouth, Ky., Will N. Hind, of Cincinnati, who mourn his loss. A brother and sister also survive him. Mrs. Margarets Robert and Nathaniel Hind, of Verona, Ky.

The funeral services were well conducted by his loved and honored pastor, Elder Wm Bupard. A vast crowd of earnest, sympathizing friends from far and near attended the remains to their last resting place in the cemetery at Walton. Let us all humbly bow our heads and whisper, "Thy will be done," and earnestly strive to live for Heaven, where we may all meet this dear, good father again.

Livery Stable.

I am now fully equipped for taking of care Horses and Buggies, and keep GOOD RIGS FOR HIRE at reasonable rates.

W. A. CRIGLER,
Bromley, Ky.

THE QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain. The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN. Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.

Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.

Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

What Others Say

Or do does not matter. Here is where the real money-saving Bargains are found.

It wouldn't do, you know, to carry our light-colored Suits over till next season, so we have determined to force the sale on them by cutting the price. We are not offering goods

At "HALF PRICE."

We do even better than that—we sell them at "HALF THEIR VALUE."

Remember, "Your Money Back if you want it" Guarantees Perfect Satisfaction.

ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS

S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

STEPHENS & SCALES,

—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN—

Hardware, Cutlery, and Agrcultural Implements,

Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Steel Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,

BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE
AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.

No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.

Try the PETERSBURG FLOUR MILL.

FLOUR exchanged for WHEAT at all times and guaranteed. Call and get my prices on wheat. Also have on hand at all times

Mill Feed OF ALL KINDS,
AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

GOOD COAL IN THE YARD AT ALL TIMES,
☞Price, 10 cents per Bushel.☜

sept-24 BEN BELDEN, Petersburg, Ky.

BEST GOODS! LIVING PRICES!

Hardware,
Farm Machinery,
Fine Vehicles,
Harness.

HARRIS FITCH, Corner HIGH AND SHORT STREETS,
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

J. J. GEISEN,

Best and cheapest HAT STORE in the city.

Agency for WHITE STAR LAUNDRY.

615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.

METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVERY COMPANY.

62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,

E. H. BAKER, Proprietor

—(o)—

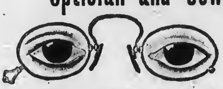
Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.

Telephone 580.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.

Prices Reasonable.

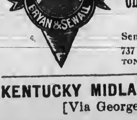
F. PIEPER,
Optician and Jeweler,



Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to

We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.

616 Madison Ave., - - COVINGTON, KY.



FALL'S "FREE SILVER on TOP BADGE"

Is the Latest Out.

Send 12c to P. T. FALL 737 Greenup St, COVINGTON, KY., and get one.

KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.
[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A.M.			A.M.	P. M
d 4:50	z9:13	Ar Walton	Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8.52	Ar Williamstown	Lv	8:32
3:48	8.28	Ar Corinth	Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar Sadieville	Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar Georgetown	Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv Frankfort	Ar	11:30	7:25

z Daily. d Except Sunday.

C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.

Taken up—A red heifer, 2 years old. Owner must pay for this notice and prove property.

J. L. FRAZIER, Union, Ky.

For sale—First-class Thinrind Boar, 12 months old. W. F. GRANT.

Take Your COUNTY PAPER.

Administrators Notice.

All persons having claims against the estate of Josiah Walton, deceased, are requested to present to us properly proven at the law office of D. E. Castleman, Burlington, Ky.

R. L. HUEY,
ERNEST WALTON, Admr's.

August 17th, 1896.

NOTICE—My graded Shorthorn Bull is making the season at James Delph's on the Florence pike, at $1.

W. H, ROUSE.

Local News.

Some of the new crop of tobacco has been stripped.

The National election is now only a few weeks in the future.

The sorghum makers of the country are having there inning now.

J. W. Kirkpatrick has been quite sick for ten days or two weeks.

The remains of Mrs. Laflin were interred from the vault here, last Friday.

Wheat is growing nicely, but the farmers fear the work of chinch bugs.

Kirb Sullivan's son caught a four pound bass in Gunpowder a few days ago.

Pumpkins and potatoes will maintain a place on the bill of fare all winter.

The equinoctial storm was late getting in, but it was a stayer when it came.

The fodder in the shock is very black and some predict it will be of very poor quality.

The recent rains raised the river so that the larger steamboats were brought out again.

For sale, or trade for a good work horse, a good road wagon. Apply to Jeff Eddins, Burlington, Ky.

There is considerable complaint of corn rotting in the shock, and some are husking it as fast as possible.

The corn that was not cut up is in a very badly tangled condition, the result of the winds last week.

The Florence Democratic Club, with Judge Stephens as president, is now doing a good work over there.

At the recent election in Owenton, Owen county, whisky carried the day by nearly 2 to 1. The local option people say they will contest.

The residence of Mr. Peno, just above Dry Creek, on the river pike, was destroyed by fire Monday morning. A defective flue was the cause.

Both the political parties have reached that point in the campaign at which they are claiming everything neither leaving hardly a crumb for the other.

A poll tax of sixty cents has been levied in this school district for school purposes, and the same is now due and payable. The trustees need the money, and are desirous that it be paid at once.

Quite a number went from here to the city, last Friday night, to hear William Jennings Bryan speak. They all secured good positions to hear and were delighted with the boy orator of the Platte.

In another column Dr. E. W. Duncan offers a reward of $50 for the apprehension and conviction of the party who entered his residence at Walton September 23d, and stole a lot of clothing. Read the advertisement for description of the clothing.

A very large and fine crop of tobacco has been housed in this county this fall. All the conditions were favorable to the growing crop this year, and should the price prove as favorable to the growers, they will have money to throw at the birds next spring.

Glen Crisler and Miss Jennie Blyth joined the Baptist church Sunday night, and Jacob Tewall and Mrs. Glen Crisler were taken under the watchcare of the church. Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Noah Noble who joined last week were baptized last Saturday. The meeting has closed.

The Democratic congressional convention in the Seventh District adjourned last Friday after 28 ballots had been taken, and a primary election will be held on the 17th inst, to nominate a candidate. The Republicans are now sanguine that they will now be able to elect Col. Breckinridge to Congress on account of the ill feeling engendered by the convention.

County Clerk Adams never has a joke on himself that is too good to tell, and his last one in stock was the result of a recent visit to the Big Bone Democratic Club, on which occasion a gentleman from Indiana was to address the club but had not put in his appearance when Bluford arrived, and was called upon to make a speech. It was a very pleasant afternoon and all the conditions were decidedly favorable for an open air oration. Bluford took the stand and soon warmed up and for about an hour he arraigned the Republican party in a masterly manner, and was applauded to the echo at frequent intervals. His eloquent peroration set his audience wild with enthusiasm, and he descended from the platform thinking he had made the hit of the campaign, when Mr. Green, president of the club arose and said: "Fellow-Democrats, I hope none of you will get impatient and leave for we will have a good speaker here in a few minutes." This statement, on the part of the president, almost paralyzed Bluford, and he says no speaker is a competent judge of his own efforts on the stump.

PERSONAL MENTION.

S. K. Dempsey, of farmers' rest is in town.

Henry Banister, of Union, was in town yesterday.

J. B. Rouse has about recovered from an attack of typhoid fever.

Mrs. Jane Dempsey is visiting her daughter, Mrs. G. G. Hughes.

Mr. Maloy, owner of the E. H. Baker farm near town, has moved out.

W. E. Vest was in the Verona neighborhood, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. A. G. Winston, of Hebron, was among the visitors to town Thursday.

J. M. Lassing and Harry Blyth made a business trip to Petersburg, Thursday.

W. C. Brown, who has had a seige of several weeks with fever is getting about again.

The Covington Humane Society will take a hand in enforcing the Compulsory Educational law.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ossman were guests of county clerk Adams and wife, last Sunday and Monday.

Rev. Haygood who was assisting Rev. Hoover in the protracted meeting here, returned home last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Voshell, of Dearborn county, Indiana, were guests of Sidney Gaines and wife last Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. J. W. Moore and son, Richard L. Johnson, of Trimble county, were visiting friends in this county several days last week.

Mrs. Virginia Huey and daughter, Miss Katie, returned home last Thursday, after a visit of three weeks to Mrs. Geo. Piper, in Louisville.

County Clerk Adams, Sheriff Roberts, Atty. Lassing and A. B. Rouse attended the Congressional Convention at Williamstown, last Wednesday.

Attys. Tolin and Castleman cancelled their appointment to speak at Verona, last Wednesday night on account of the bad weather. They will speak there in the near future.

L. E. Clore, of whose misfortune an account was given last week, is somewhat improved. For nine days he lay before any preceptible change for the better was apparent.

The last issue of the Boone County Banner, contained pictures of Mr. Noah Surface and his father, Rev. John Surface. Mr. Noah Surface's picture was splendid. Of his father's we can not say, neverhaving seen him.

Rankin Revill is home from Washington, D. C. He is carrying no surplus flesh, but says he never felt better. The train on which he came was delayed nineteen hours in the mountains of Virginia by the storm that did so much damage along the Atlantic coast.

DEMOCRATIC Rally!

—AT—

WALTON, KY.

(BOONE COUNTY.

Saturday, Oct. 17, 1896.

At which the following speakers will address the crowd:

ROBT. J. BRECKINRIDGE,
Of Danville.
JOHN C. CARTER, of Vevay, Ind.
A. S. BERRY, of Newport.
J. C. S. BLACKBURN, of Versailles.

Everybody is invited to attend and bring Baskets of Provisions to assist in feeding the great throng of people.

COMMITTEES:

Arrangements—B. L. Rice, O. Percival, Benj. Stephens, T. F. Curley, A. C. Roberts, B. S. O'Neal, H. C. Diers, Geo. Roberts, John Bagby, J. C. Byland, Joseph Cobb, Jas. T. Holder.

This committee will meet at Walton at 9 a. m. October 9th.

On Music—John Stephens and John Conner.

Finance—F. A. Utz, Reuben Conner, David Haley, John Conner, Sam Ackmyere, A. C. Roberts, John Cloud, Ome Rogers, Harry Adams, Geo. W. Sleet, Geo. Berkshire, John P. Ryle.

On Reception—Dr. Crouch, Sidney Gaines, W. L. Riddell, D. E. Castleman, Reuben Conner, T. F. Curley, S. C. Johnson, Frank Gordon, Ed E. Fry, Joseph Palmer, Jeff Childress, Dr. J. A. Loomis, A. Carter, C. C. Cram, George Steet, John Stephens. W. W. Grimsley, Chas. Schramm.

EVERYBODY RALLIED.

Democrats Turned Out In Full Force and Marched And Then Listened

TO TWO GOOD SPEECHES

With Which All Good Democrats Were Well Pleased.

OLD BOONE IS ALRIGHT.

The most ardent Democrat in the county did not desire more favorable weather for a demonstration than that with which last Monday was ushered in, and by the time old Sol raised his head above the eastern horizon the work of erecting a speakers' stage in the court house yard was begun and it was soon ready for the orators.

The crowd commenced coming in at an early hour, and Democratic badges, hats and canes grew numerous on the streets.

The first Democratic organization to arrive was the Big Bone club, lead by W. W. Grimsley. The members turned out in force and made a fine show. The procession was headed by 16 white horses followed by one dun horse. The crowd caught on to this 16 to 1 display and cheered lively.

It was nearly noon when the Petersburg club, headed by a brass band and banners flying, arrived. This club created great enthusiasm and was given an ovation. The streets were now thronged with enthusiastic Democrats.

It was one o'clock when the Democratic clubs were requested to meet at the base ball park for the purpose of forming a procession, and while the procession was being organized the Hebron and Florence Democratic clubs showed up in full force, the former headed by a brass band, followed by 16 white horses and 1 mule.

The procession was now ready to move and under the command of Marshall John Cloud, of the Burlington Democratic club, it was lead over the principal streets of the town, and was given a perfect ovation.

After the procession the crowd was addressed by Col. A. S. Berry and Hon. John S. Gaunt. Col. Berry spoke for about an hour and a half, and the crowd emphasized its appreciation of his exposition of Democratic doctrine by its frequent, hearty applause. The Colonel fully sustained his well earned reputation as a strong speaker, and did the cause of Democracy much good.

Hon. John S. Gaunt followed Col. Berry, in a ringing Democratic speech of about an hour a half. He caught the crowd at the start, and it was with him unto the finish, manifesting its appreciation of the doctrine he enunciated by frequent storms of applause. Mr. Gaunt was in good fettle and made many happy hits in the caurse of his remarks. To the charge that the Chicago platform is undemocratic, he replied that there is not an undemocratic sentence in it from the beginning to the end.

There were between 1,000 and 1,200 people in town Monday, 400 of whom were in the procession.

Little Miss Pattie Revill and Master Warren Lassing were the leaders of the Burlington club.

Monday was truly a Democratic day in Burlington.

It was a larger turnout than was expected.

The green hickory cane was the only one used in the procession.

Everything went off quietly—no disturbances of any kind.

It seems that the Democrats in this county are considerably enthused.

Every neighborhood in the county was well represented last Monday.

A great many Republicans witnessed the Democratic proceedings.

Some say it was the largest crowd ever in Burlington.

There were quite a number of appropriate banners carried in the procession.

A great many ladies came in from the country to see the procession, and hear the speeches. They were very attentive listeners.

Chelse Aylor, colored, marched with the Burlington club, and carried the rooster banner.

Hebron's 72 men on horseback made a big show.

The Florence club made up in appearance for what it lacked in numbers.

There was an unfortunate end to an old feud which grew out of money matters, Saturday night after the Mound Hill speaking. Lewis Breeden shot to death a man by the name of Richmond, both of them being young men, Breeden about 20 and Richmond a few years older. It seems they quarreled early in the evening, but friends interfered and got them started home. Richmond, however, and his crowd of adherents, waylaid Breeden and his brothers, and after some cursing and some hard words between them, both sides opened fire, each side firing five shots, when Richmond fell shot through the heart, dying instantly. Prentis Breeden, who was with his brother Lewis came to town and surrendered, and was placed in jail. Lewis disappeared and has not been heard of. Prentis was brought before Squire R. L. Vallandingham yesterday for an examining trial, but the case was continued until next Monday on account of the absence of the Commonwealth's witnesses. E. C. Smith, Esq., appeared for the prosecution, and Gaunt & Downs for the defense. It is not thought that any case can be made against Prentis, and it is evident that Lewis could make a strong showing by way of justification.—Carrollton Democrat.

Lost—A fine thin rind sow—been gone about six weeks. Any information as to her will [illegible] section 3435 is equally a fraud, wherein it is stated that no foreign coin shall be a legal tender in payment of debts. There may be such a law: I will not be positive so far as the foreign coin in question is concerned. * As far as foreign coin is concerned, I may be wrong, though I think I am not; but as to the silver question the provision in the revised code is there without authority of law: and, in point of fact, Congress has never at any time passed any law demonetizing silver in this country.

(The Crime of '73.)

Mr. Logan—Except in the Revised Statutes.

Mr. Bogy—Except this provision in the revised code, which passed under peculiar circumstances.

* * * * * *

Mr. Sherman—The act of 1873 did not affect it in the slightest degree, and therefore the comments made by the Senator from Nevada rest on an error in that particular. The essential qualities of the act of 1873 are precisely like the act of 1853. It provided for subsidiary coins. The substance of the act of 1853 was to provide for a subsidiary coinage of silver. But there is another thing to be remembered. The right to coin the silver dollar, which is now proposed to be authorized again, has always existed in this country, has never been taken away. * * * * *

The act of 1873 is before me. As I said, it is one of the most carefully prepared statutes that ever were passed in any country in the world. It underwent the scrutiny of persons here and abroad; and for four sessions of Congress it was here and discussed. That act simply leaves the old dollar where the law of 1853 left it. It says nothing about it. * * * * *

Mr. Logan—The point I was intending to get at was this: Inasmuch as the country and the people have been deprived of the right to pay in silver coin by an act denying the right to coin the silver dollar, it being a legal tender at that time for all amounts, the country will expect that when you restore that silver dollar you let it be a legal tender for all amounts just as it was up to 1873; and it is just and proper that it should. When you restore the silver dollar in this country and give it a place and say its place shall only be for $20 or $10 or $5, you deprive the people of this country of a right which they enjoyed from 1792 to 1873 and a right of which they have been deprived in a manner they know not how. If the silver dollar was a good legal tender in 1873, it ought to be a good legal tender to-day for all amounts in my judgment. This bill as reported limits the legal tender quality to $20. So far as I am concerned—and I speak for myself alone—I will vote to strike out the twenty-dollar limit and let the dollar stand as a legal tender, as it did up to 1873, for all amounts—[See vol. 4, part 3 Congressional Record, Forty-fourth Congress, first session, pages 2734, and 2736, April 25, 1876.

[Besides Bogy and Logan the fact remains that Thurman, Conkling, Allison, Vorhees, Blaine, Beck, Herford, Garfield, Holman, Joe Cannon, Kelley and General Grant are all on record that they were ignorant of what the effect of the passage of the bill would be on the silver dollar]

The following were appointed officers of election for this year:

Petersburg—James W. Loder and Elihu Alden, judges; Elijah Parker, clerk; Wm. Casey, sheriff.

Carlton—J. J. Stephens and Z. T. Kelley, judges; G. H. Wilson, clerk; O. P. Craig, sheriff.

Bullittsville—Frank Hossman and Owen Gaines, judges; Owen Watts, clerk; Ross Shinkle, sheriff.

Florence—W. E. Clutterbuck and J. W. Nead, judges; Butler Carpenter, clerk; John Olsner, sheriff.

Bellevue—D. M. Snyder and John M. Moody, judges; Cyrus Kelly, clerk; B. F. Rogers, sheriff.

Constance—Henry McNeal and F. H. Russell, judges; W. B. Grubbs, clerk; J. W. Riggs, sheriff.

Verona—J. N. Dickerson and Ben Oneal, judges; J. R. Johnson, clerk; W. H. Adams, sheriff.

Burlington—Geo. Blyth and Sidney Gaines, judges; Tim Westbay, clerk; W. T. German, sheriff.

Hamilton—M. E. Hance and W. H. Moore, judges; G. M. Allen, clerk; Jas. B. Allen, sheriff.

Union—J. L. Riley and J. R. Dunbar, judges; J. L. Frazier, clerk; E. L. Riley, sheriff.

Beaver—G. M. Moore and John Turner, judges; Chas. Sleet, clerk; Thos. Finneil, sheriff.

Walton—David Haley and S. L. Edwards, judges; A. R. Johnson, clerk; Sam Taylor, sheriff.

Wm. F. GOETZE
Scientific
Optician.
Headquarters at Hornberger's
Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.

Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? [illegible] may bring you wealth. [illegible]

16 to 1.

You will always find that we give you 16 ounces to every 1 pound you buy of us.

We Have Cut Down Profits to Suit the Hard Times.

The large amount of Goods we are Selling every day is sufficient proof of the above statement.

Give us a call,
W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,
DEALERS IN
PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,
63 and 65 Pike Street,
Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.
ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.
CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.
27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.
Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDERTAKER EMBALMER,
Corner Pike & Russell Streets,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,
Undertakers AND Embalmers,
OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,
COVINGTON, KY.
CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.
Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL,
WHOLESALE AND
RETAIL GROCER,
GRASS SEED.
Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.
Tom Wilson, Salesman.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.
☞We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office
And FEED STORE from
708 Madison Avenue
To the Large and more Commodious Quarters
15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.
Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with
GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED
At the Lowest Market Values.
Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,
W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANTS,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.
A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.
UNDERTAKING.
is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. HANKINS.
Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

A PACE THAT TELLS.

Mr. Bryan Apparently Exhausted from His Arduous Labors.

Shows Signs of Collapsing at New York—He Addresses an Immense Audience in the Historical Tammany Hall.

New York, Sept. 30.—Seldom in the history of the city has there been a larger crowd in Union square than was congregated Tuesday night about the two stands at which Candidate Bryan was scheduled to speak, and great was the disappointment among the people who stood so patiently in the drenching rain that they did not hear him, for he temporarily collapsed as he stepped from his carriage at the speakers' stand. As he himself said after his recovery, it was the first time during the arduous campaign that he had felt exhausted.

His carriage arrived at the labor meeting at 9:40 o'clock, when the rain was coming down in sheets. As he stepped to the sidewalk Mr. Bryan told Mr. Sewall and his other companions that he felt tired out. He was assisted by the police to the pavilion used as a shelter for the park police immediately in the rear of the speakers' stand. There he rested for ten minutes. He said there was nothing serious the matter with him, and that he felt strong enough to mount the speakers' stand and bow his acknowledgments to the crowd.

He was almost carried to the stand. As he reached it he looked as if he would drop. He trembled and his face was deathly pale. He tried to smile kindly to the crowd which was yelling, but his attempt was a vain one. He turned quickly from the crowd, as if fearful of his strength, and the police, who had reserved a passageway, assisted him to his carriage. He was driven at once to the Bryan and Sewall club headquarters in Fourth avenue, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, where he drank some milk. A little later he took the platform from which Mr. Sewall had been speaking and addressed the members of the club briefly. Mr. Bryan was then driven to the Hotel Bartholdi, where, with Mr. Sewall and the Tammany committee, he enjoyed a beefsteak and a bath to put him in condition. Mr. Bryan took the train at Jersey City at midnight for Harper's Ferry.

At Tammany Hall.

As early as seven o'clock Tammany hall was crowded and the police were wrestling with the thousands outside, who were demanding admission, which, when they did not get it, drove them to the various stands erected at vantage points within the space of six blocks of Tammany. The small army of policemen fought and struggled with the crowd to keep the streets open for traffic, but they soon gave it up and allowed them to stand massed in front of the stands. The police who escorted Mr. Bryan through the lines had to fight like tigers, the people refusing to move even when the horses almost trampled upon them. At 7:45 o'clock John W. Keller was presented as the presiding officer of the Tammany hall meeting, and he accepted the place with a brief speech on the alleged evils of the gold standard. When Mr. Keller had concluded a set of resolutions was read and adopted with a whoop.

Candidates Cheered.

At 8:03 Mr. Bryan appeared on the stage. On either side of him were Arthur Sewall, the vice-presidential candidate, and George F. Williams, just nominated by three conventions for the governorship of Massachusetts. The ensuing scene has rarely been equaled in old Tammany. The crowd fell into a frenzy and the tremendous volume of sound which began then continued seven minutes, and the air was kaleidoscopic with waving hats and flags. During the demonstration Mr. Bryan stood erect, gazing directly before him. There was a gratified smile on his lips and a gleam of joy in his eyes. Eventually he raised his hand and secured silence.

Mr. Bryan began his speech with a handsome compliment to Tammany hall and concluded it thus:

Constitutional Government Not Safe.

My friends, I call your attention to the fact that ex-President Harrison asserts that our platform raises a question, and that constitutional government is in danger. If that was true, we might well turn from the discussion of any other question to consider anything which menaces the continuation of constitutional government. But there is nothing in the Chicago platform that menaces the constitutional government. I challenge you to read that platform and find in that platform a single sentence that justifies the language used by the ex-president. Our criticism of the supreme court is not as severe as the criticism of the supreme court in the platform upon which Abraham Lincoln was elected in 1860. The words I have used in regard to the supreme court have not been as severe as the language used by Abraham Lincoln both before his election and after his election. There is nothing in our platform concerning the invasion of the states by federal troops that approaches in force and emphasis the platform of 1860 upon which Mr. Lincoln was elected. There is nothing that has been said in the platform or by the candidate that justifies the charge that the democratic party is against the constitutional government or would interfere with the preservation of law and order. If Mr. Harrison wants to raise the question of the survival of our government I am willing to meet him on that proposition. If Mr. Harrison wants to raise the question of the survival of our institutions I will tell him that the great trusts of this country, which are supporting the republican ticket, are a greater menace to our government than any declaration of the democratic party.

Trusts Under Fire.

The coal trust sends its representatives to sit by every fireside and exacts tribute from those who need warmth. The oil trust sends its representatives to collect tribute from those who use light. The various trusts of this country, through their representatives, are collecting tribute from the people, and when we protest against it they call us disturbers of the peace and anarchists. I am opposed to the trusts. As executive I shall use what power I have to drive every trust out of existence. If the present laws are not sufficient to meet this requirement I will recommend such laws as will be sufficient. If the constitution of the United States is so constructed as to prevent any interference with the operation of the trusts I shall recommend such an amendment to the constitution as will permit the punishment of these trusts. My friends, there is a great contest in this country which must be settled, and that is whether a few of the people standing together are more powerful than all the people. While I do not array class against class, I am willing to array all the people who suffer from the operation of these trusts against the few people who operate the trusts.

If our opponents are afraid to discuss the money question and risk a verdict on that alone, we will defy them and let the people decide whether those who are advocating the free coinage of silver and are standing by the Chicago platform are better to be trusted than the syndicates, stock exchanges, money grabbers and the trusts' representatives, who want to run this country to suit themselves.

I understand that a distinguished citizen of this state—Chauncey M. Depew—I understand that he also thinks that my election would be dangerous to the country. There is one advantage in having Mr. Depew against me, and that is, if I am elected he will not come down to Washington and tell me that as he helped to elect me he wants me to keep off the plank in our platform in favor of the arbitration of disputes between railroads and employes.

There is another advantage which I shall derive from his opposition. If I am elected he will not come down to Washington, and, on the ground that he helped me, ask me to use the executive influence against that bill that passed the senate and which attempts to protect the people from government by injunction.

For Independent Free Coinage.

"When I defend an independent financial policy I am not appealing to any prejudice which any citizen of the United States may have against any foreign nation. I am simply doing in this country what every Englishman does in England, what every German does in Germany, what every Frenchman does in France. I am asserting, and I shall defend, the right of this people to attend to their own business. If the gold standard is a good thing, then we ought to keep it, whether other nations want us to keep it or not. If it is a bad thing, we ought to get rid of it because they want us to keep it. The republican platform, after declaring bimetallism desirable, asserts we must delay its advantages until those advantages are brought to us by other nations. It proposes to surrender the right of legislation over the subject and transfer legislative power from Washington to the seat of one or more of the foreign nations, who wish to govern us in this respect. My friends, no foreign nation has ever adopted such a policy as the republican party asks us to adopt. No foreign party has ever gone before its country with such a proposition as the republican party now presents to the United States. So far as I know, no statesman in a foreign land has advocated a policy that would make the people of that nation dependent upon the people of another nation for legislative relief of any kind. It has been left for free America to set the example of a national party proposing to surrender the right of self-government and bind its people to the will of foreign powers.

Attack on McKinley.

I want to say to you that not only has no national party ever advocated the gold standard in a platform, I want to say to you that the leading representatives of the republican party have expressly denounced the gold standard and the results that follow it. I want to call your attention to the language used by the present republican candidate for the presidency in a speech made at Toledo, February 1, 1891. I have quoted this language before. It has been published in newspapers, and, never having been answered, I think we may safely assume that the newspaper report at the time correctly recorded what Mr. McKinley said. Let me read it to you:

" 'During all of Grover Cleveland's years at the head of the government he was dishonoring one of the precious metals, one of our great products; discrediting silver and enhancing the price of gold. He endeavored, even before his inauguration, to offer to stop the coinage of silver dollars, and to the end of his administration he has persistently used his power to that end. He was determined to contract the circulating medium and demonetize one class of coins, limiting the volume of money among the people and making money scarce, and therefore dear. He would have increased the value of money and diminished the value of everything else. He wanted to make money the master and everything else its servant.'

"Mr. McKinley said in 1891 that the president of the United States wanted to make money scarce, and therefore, dear. And now he stands upon a platform which indorses the process and promises to carry it out and make money scarce and, therefore, dear. He said in 1891 that the present president wanted to make money the master and everything else the servant, and yet he stands upon a platform that carries out the present policy and makes money the master and everything else the servant."

Mr Bryan continued with a lengthy and most severe denunciation of the gold standard and the republican party, and then said:

Contempt for "Bolting" Democrats.

"I have respect for the man who has convictions, who states those convictions and stands by those convictions. I respect the republicans who stand openly and above board for the republican ticket, but, my friends, I shall not attempt to disguise the feelings I entertain toward those who, having failed to control the democratic party, seek still to claim the democratic name, who, having failed to control the democratic organization, start out with a new organization which they call a truer democratic organization.' "

Sewall Speaks Also.

When Mr. Bryan had finished he showed signs of exhaustion. Mr. Sewall, the candidate for vice president, was introduced, and while many of the audience were leaving made a few remarks of thanks for the reception. Many people crowded upon the stands to shake hands with the candidates.

After a brief rest Inspector Brooks, with some difficulty, cleared a passageway for the candidate and led him out on the east stand in front of the hall. As soon as the crowd caught sight of Mr. Bryan a mighty shout went up, umbrellas were frantically waved and cheer after cheer was given the candidate. Mr. Bryan, however, had made up his mind to make no remarks, but a simple acknowledgment of the greeting by taking off his hat to the cheering crowd, after which he crossed the hall to the west stand and repeated the bowing and was given another ovation. After this Mr. Bryan and Mr. Sewall were led to their carriages and driven to the Union square stands. Here also Mr. Bryan merely bowed his thanks for the greeting received.

Bryan's West Virginia Trip.

Washington, Sept. 30.—Candidate William J. Bryan will return to Washington Wednesday. The following schedule of Mr. Bryan's speeches for his West Virginia trip has been arranged: Martinsburg, September 30, at 10:30 a. m; Keyser, September 30, at 3 p. m.; Grafton, September 30, at night; Clarksburg, October 1, at 10 a. m; Parkersburg, October 1, at 2 p. m.; Wheeling, October 1, at night; Charleston, October 2, at 10:30 a. m.; Huntington, October 2, at 1 p. m. He will not speak at Washington unless the crowd at the station should be large and enthusiastic enough to demand an oration. Another party of democratic speakers will go through Virginia and West Virginia concurrently with the Bryan party, traveling over the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad.

HANNA AS A JOURNALIST.

A Great Money Collector But an Editorial Failure.

As the financial manager of a political canvass Mr. Mark Hanna is an imposing success, but as a managing editor he has not as yet exhibited the smallest ability. The gold-standard press of the east is being conducted with a stupidity that amazes, and necessity must soon compel a change in the plan of campaign if the fight is not to be given up. Bawling cannot be sustained at concert pitch with good results for months at a stretch, and so far Mr. Hanna's newspapers have given their strength to bawling. Unmistakable hoarseness has ensued, as a matter of course. Everybody who can read has been long aware that the single-standard press wishes to be understood that any man who offers an argument in favor of bimetallism is a fool, a lunatic, a repudiator, a rogue and a loathly foe of the national honor, of which Mr. Hanna and the contributing trusts and syndicates are, for this occasion only, the special guardians. If the gold-standard press has anything else to say on the subject of finance, the time has certainly arrived when it should utter itself with some effort at coherency.

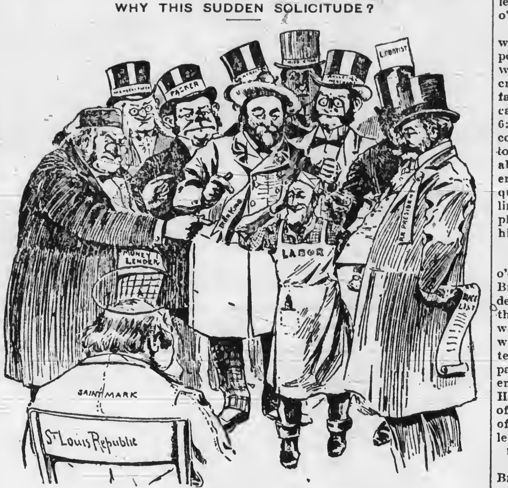
The readers of Mr. Hanna's newspapers this side of the Alleghanies know a good deal more about the money question than they did a few months ago. They have learned that there is plenty of sanity behind the silver cause. For one thing, they have been listening to and perusing Mr. Bryan's addresses, and such of these readers as desire to remain gold men not unreasonably yearn for something better in reply than dull jeers and cheap abuse. The humblest man who has read Mr. Bryan's Brooklyn speeches is fully competent to answer everything that he has heard from the gold advocates, and to supply them with great stores of needed information besides. In those speeches Mr. Bryan exposed the dangers, the folly, the criminality of our existing system of finance, gave sound reasons why we should reopen the mints to silver, and in his comprehensive, masterly way met and overthrew the objections, sincere and pretended, of his more rational adversaries. The average man can understand these clear presentations of fact and these strong arguments quite as well as any of the literary gentlemen who serve Mr. Hanna, and whose only response is mere yelling of the tiresome cries that insult the intelligence of the American voter.

That "ugly trail" which Mr. Bryan left behind him on his previous tour of this region, and that so alarmed the "sound money" men, is being broadened and made uglier each day. His appeal is to the good sense of his hearers, to their patriotism and the self-interest that is to be served by the general prosperity of the country. He leaves it to his opponents to make appeals to the prijudice and non-social self-interest of the rich and selfish. Votes against the gold standard, against the further manipulation of the currency, against more bond issues, against continued vassalage to Europe, against hard times, are being secured by the thousand every 24 hours by these speeches. Mr. Hanna cannot but be aware of this, yet such is his incapacity as a managing editor that he permits his press to pursue a course that enormously emphasizes the effect of the addresses. As a collector of money, Mr. Hanna is a Napoleon, but in journalism he is away down at the crossroads level, and should McKinley be beaten and he himself, by the loss of his fortune, find it needful to go to work, we fear that it would task all his journalistic powers to fill an editorial position.—N. Y. Journal.

——The republicans are just learning that every business man does not belong to their party. Business men happen to remember that they make their money of their customers—not the manufacturers who sell them goods or the banker who loans them money.—Illinois State Register.

——Every workingman who is turned out of a job by the closing of a factory should remember that that is just the gentle method that is being used to persuade the working men to vote for "McKinley and prosperity."—Springfield (O.) New Era.

WHY THIS SUDDEN SOLICITUDE?



Chorus of Capitalists and Employers (Quoting from Sound Money Pamphlet, "Facts for Working People," Form No. 6)—" 'The workingman who votes for free silver deliberately agrees to pay twice as much for everything he buys and to accept HALF PAY for all he sells, namely, HIS LABOR.' "

The Workingman—"That looks like a mighty good thing for you gentlemen who pay his wages! Why not let it stand?"

SECRET FRIENDS OF M'KINLEY.

Shallowness of the Gold Democrat Pretense.

What a hollow mockery is this third ticket movement, to be sure. Will any one assert seriously that the men calling themselves democrats and shouting against Bryan will try to elect the third ticket? Such a thing is preposterous. They are McKinley men, every one, and advocacy of third candidates is the means by which they hope to retain the name of democrats, so as to participate in party affairs hereafter, should they, instead of the people, be in a position of party control.

If they were disinterested, if they believed in what they preached, if they were patriots, as they say they are, why should they refrain from doing openly and honestly what they are doing by stealth and deceit? In the name of democracy they are seeking to vitiate the will and defeat the purpose of a vast majority of the party as represented in both the state and national conventions.

They say they are democrats, that supporters of Bryan are not democrats. Who is the judge of that which constitutes democracy? Does the possession of enormous wealth impart a superior intelligence? Is the man worth a million more a patriot than he who receives $1.50 a day? Is Russell Sage, the miser, a better man than an honest, charitable farmer?

If, as the third ticket men say, they are the real democrats, why didn't they elect delegates to the regular democratic state convention? They did not elect a single delegate to the convention, although they attempted to do so. Why didn't they? Because they are a small minority. They don't represent popular feeling. They are a class. They form a coterie of dissatisfied and disgruntled democrats whose personal interests would be affected by expansion of the present close-fisted currency medium. They sacrifice the substance of democracy by repudiating its principles, but they worship the shadow of democracy by falsely retaining its name.

They should do openly what they are doing secretly. They should declare for McKinley and not try further to hoodwink the people.—Buffalo (N. Y.) Times.

THE ACME OF ASININITY.

Only Answer of Goldites to Bryan's Arguments.

The goldbugs have reached the acme of asininity. The renegade press gave much space the other day to an account of a meeting held by a republican club where a certain Mr. Wise, of West Virginia, took occasion to express himself. It is evident that his name is a misnomer, for this peculiar gentleman said that the only way to answer Mr. Bryan's argument was to throw back one's head and shout: "You're a liar! you're a liar! you're a liar!"

Precisely. That is the only way Mr. Bryan's arguments can be answered by the friends and supporters of plutocracy, and it is notoriously the only way in which they have attempted to answer them. We have had occasion so frequently to remind these gentlemen that abuse is not argument, and vituperation is always unconvincing, that it seems superfluous to do so now. But that is the truth of the matter, and it would be well for them to heed it.

Since they cannot advance any sane argument in support of their position, they should take refuge in silence. Their only sensible attitude is that of the Hanna automaton. To McKinley silence is golden, indeed.—Tammany Times.

——The goldbug press reminds one of the Satyr of Esop, who blew hot and cold with the same breath. At one moment they claim that the only effect of free silver would be to double the enormous wealth of the silver mine owners, by doubling the value of their product, and the next moment whine piteously that the country would be flooded with 53-cent dollars.—Nashville Sun.

——One of the charges which Mr Bryan is compelled to face is that he is not solemn enough for a presidential candidate. For that matter, Mr. McKinley is manifesting enough solemnity for all the presidential tickets in the field.—N. Y. Journal.

HE FORGIVES THEM.

Mr. Bryan Has No Harsh Words for the Yale Students.

New York, Sept. 29.—Candidate Bryan's journey from New London to New York was interesting chiefly by his reception at New Haven and his public comment while there on the trouble Yale students gave him the other day. As if to show Mr. Bryan how many people in the old college town disapproved of the annoyances which he suffered at the hands of the students, New Haven people gathered in force at the railroad station to see the presidential candidate. Several thousand were present as the train came to a standstill. The cheering was very hearty as he appeared, and the few remarks he made were roundly applauded. Mr. Bryan said:

"I entered New England when I entered Connecticut, and I will leave New England when I leave Connecticut to-day. My visit has been a very pleasant one, and I shall carry away with me only agreeable recollections."

"There are no Yale students here to-day, Mr. Bryan," called out somebody in the crowd.

"Do not criticise the boys so harshly," said Mr. Bryan. "I am not inclined to criticise them so severely as some others have. I have been a college boy myself, and I am inclined to attribute their interruption more to youthful exuberance than to any deliberate intention to interfere with free speech. I shall always be glad to return to New Haven when circumstances will permit, and I am sure that whatever may be my subject, I will be able to find persons here who are willing to listen even if they do not agree. I am glad to notice the growth of the silver sentiment in New England."

The train remained at New Haven five minutes only, and as it drew out from the station an enthusiastic yell went up from the assemblage. It was 3:20 o'clock when Mr. Bryan reached Bridgeport, 20 minutes later. A good-sized crowd was there, and Mr. Bryan was cheered. More cheers came at Stamford, where quite a throng had gathered.

Off for New Jersey.

Mr. Bryan arrived at the Hotel Bartholdi, in this city, at five o'clock p. m. Mr. Bryan remained at the Bartholdi less than an hour. Shortly before six o'clock he started for New Jersey.

Paterson, N. J., Sept. 29.—Mr. Bryan was received by a crowd of over 20,000 people in this city Monday night. It was one of the noisiest and hardest crowds to control that Mr. Bryan has faced thus far in the campaign. The candidate arrived from New York at 6:55 and was met at the the depot by a committee and escorted in a carriage to the speaker's stand on Coates hill, about which an immense throng gathered. He spoke to them on the financial question, following practically the same line of argument as heretofore employed by him. At the conclusion of his address he left for Newark.

Speaks at Newark.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 29.—It was 8:15 o'clock when the train bearing Mr. Bryan and his party drew into the Erie depot in this city. Crowds surged about the place and cheered the candidate when he alighted. Carriages were in waiting, which the party at once entered. They were driven to Caledonia park, which is situated at the western end of the city, three miles distant. Here Mr. Bryan addressed an audience of 10,000 persons, and at the conclusion of his remarks returned to the train and left at once for New York.

Bryan's Speech at New London, Conn.

New London, Conn., Sept. 29.—Mr. Bryan, accompanied by Mr. Sewall, reached Lynn, Mass., at 5:30 a. m. Monday. At 7:30 a. m. he spoke for half an hour to a great crowd on Highland square.

At the conclusion of his speech the party left for Boston, which city was reached at 8:38 a. m. The party immediately took the train for Providence, being joined by Hon. George Fred Williams, democratic candidate for governor. Providence was reached at 10:01. A crowd of 15,000 persons cheered the candidate on leaving the car. Mr. Bryan addressed a big audience at the soldiers' and sailors' monument.

When Mr. Bryan had concluded he again took the train for this city. Arriving here he addressed a big crowd, saying among other things:

Effect of the Gold Standard.

"What does the gold standard do for the merchant? It has driven down the value of the goods upon his shelves, while it left his debts as big as they ever were. It has destroyed the ability of people to buy goods, although the merchant's goods have been bought and are awaiting the coming of the customer. The gold standard has multiplied the number of failures and the gold standard is putting the merchant under the complete domination of the man who holds his note and he can close his store at any moment if he desires to exercise his right as an American free man to vote as he wishes on the money question. I want to lay down this proposition that when you borrow money of a bank the banker has no business interfering with your political rights, and the banker that does it ought not to be permitted to engage in the banking business. Is there a banker who will dispute that? If there is, then he must be a man who believes that the right to vote goes not with the citizen, but with the money lender and the man who asserts that this is not a democracy, not a republic, but a plutocracy in which money and not brains or heart rule this country."

Questioner Answered.

A Voice—Where will we be when we get free silver?

Mr. Bryan—Are you in favor of a gold standard?

The Voice—I am.

"Tell me why."

The Voice—Because I believe it is best for the country. Every nation will accept a gold dollar for a dollar.

Mr. Bryan—Why? I will tell you. Because of its value. The reason why our gold dollar and gold bullion are worth the same is because the law says that you can convert bullion into a dollar at the mint.

The Voice—Well, how about silver?

Mr. Bryan—When the laws are so under the free coinage of silver, that the holder of silver bullion can convert his silver bullion into dollars at the mint, that will fix a mint price for silver then, as we have a mint price for gold now, and silver dollars will be worth as much abroad as our gold dollars.

"Now, my friends, I do not object to have questions asked, because if I am wrong on this question there is nobody more anxious to find it out than I am. But if I am right and my friend is wrong, I hope he will be as anxious to get right as I am. Questions do not hurt, my friends. We are glad to answer questions because there is not a question that can be asked by an advocate of the gold standard that cannot be answered by advocates of free coinage."

A Voice—People here have the impression that when the free coinage of silver is brought into effect they can take their silver pots and coin them into money."

Mr. Bryan—The gentlemen says the people have the impression here that under free coinage the people can take silver tea pots and their silverware and have it converted into money. It is true, that under free coinage that any man can melt up a dollar and a half's worth of spoons and have the silver coined into $1.29, if you have a man who is fool enough to do it.

"Now, why will people refuse to melt up their silverware? Because it will be worth more as silver plate than it will be worth as silver dollars under free coinage. And, my friends, you can depend upon it that people will not do things which are going to hurt them if they know it. That is one of the things that you can base your reasoning upon, and in that connection I frequently have people ask me: 'Wouldn't it be possible for a man to buy silver for 53 cents and have it coined into a dollar and make the difference?' The gentleman asks the question which shows he understands it. He says who would sell it? Now, when you cannot coin silver you can buy for 53 cents the silver that is in a dollar, but when you have that silver coined for a dollar then you cannot find anybody who will sell you that silver for 53 cents.

Needs the Farmer's Aid.

"Now, my friends, I want the business men to get into their heads this one proposition, and without knowing that proposition, without understanding it, they cannot expect to reach a correct conclusion of the money question. I assert that the business man depends for success upon the farmers and the laboring men. If you want business men to prosper, you cannot make them prosperous by making the money loaner prosperous, because business men do not make their money out of those from whom they borrow. They make their money out of those to whom they sell goods. And if the people do not buy goods, the merchant cannot sell goods, and people cannot buy goods until they have money to buy goods with. And the way people get money to buy goods is by selling something which they themselves produce. If the farmer cannot get money for what he produces, how is he going to have the money to buy what other people have to sell?

Appealing to Class Interests.

"While the republicans are accusing us of arraying class against class, they are doing more this campaign to appeal to class distinctions and class interests than was ever done by any party in the history of the United States. Out in my state the republican committee tried to array the school teachers against the people who pay the taxes. You will see every day letters sent out trying to array the wage-earner against the farmer. They tell the man who is drawing a salary that the free coinage of silver will hurt him, and therefore he must look out for his salary. They have not appealed to the people in this country and asked them to consider the interests of the country. Look at the applications which are furnished to railroad men. They are earnestly requested to observe their own interests by joining a club, and in the application you will find a statement like this: 'I am opposed to free coinage because it would injure me as a wage-earner.' They want those who join 'sound money' clubs to assert that they have an individual, personal reason for opposing free silver, and yet the great advocates of the gold standard want you to believe that they have no personal interest for favoring a gold standard. Do the members of the syndicate which has been bleeding the country assert that they have a pecuniary interest in bleeding the government and therefore they don't want that right taken away from them? Do the heads of the railroads say that they have any interest in this campaign in trying to prevent arbitration? No. Do they assert that they are in this campaign for blood because they want to continue government by injunction? Not at all. They want you to believe that they are patriotic people who lie awake at night wondering how they can do something for toiling humanity.

Quotes Bismarck Again.

A Voice—Would it not be as hard to change the standard of money in the world as it would be to change the standard of weights and measures in the world?

Mr. Bryan—I will answer your question by saying that in the first place the world has no standard of weights and measures, and we have been unable to bring the nations of the world to agree to a standard of weights and measures. In the second place, why did you not give that advice in 1873 you are giving now? They changed our standard of money then and for 20 years they have tried to keep us from undoing what they did then. Those who deny the right of the people to use the law to restore silver to its rightful place are the very ones who helped to pass a law 20 years ago to destroy the free coinage of silver and substitute a new standard after the nations of the world had tried bimetallism, and after this nation had tried it from the beginning of the nation down to that time. They cannot decide what other nations shall do, but I insist that we shall decide what this nation shall do. Did Austria ask our consent when she resumed specie payments on a gold basis? Do the other nations of the world ask our consent when they change their standards? No. Then, sir, what man, who wants to be an American, wants to go down on his knees and ask other nations' consent when we want to do what we please?

"I have given you, my friends, what might be a sufficient answer. My friend wants to know how that can change the standard of the world. I tell him that Prince Bismarck has stated recently that if the United States acts alone it will be salutary in bringing other nations to accept our bimetallic policy. If my timid friend doubts the ability of this nation, I beg him to sit at the feet of a foreigner and learn confidence in American institutions."

FIXED THEIR TICKET.

Judge Porter Made Democratic Nominee for Governor of New York.

New York, Sept. 29.—The regular democratic ticket of the state of New York, revised by the state committee Monday evening, is: For governor, Wilbur F. Porter, of Watertown; for lieutenant governor, Fred. C. Schraub, of Lowville; for associate justice of the court of appeals, Robert C. Titus, of Buffalo. It was supposed to be settled that Elliott Danforth, chairman of the state committee, would be placed at the head of the ticket to fill the vacancy caused by the declination of John Boyd Thacher. At the eleventh hour Mr. Danforth, who had been in telephonic communication with Senator Hill, decided that he would not permit his name to be used. He told the committee so, and the managers of the democratic campaign got together and decided to push Judge Porter up from second place to first and to make Fred C. Schraub lieutenant governor. No change was made in the third place on the ticket. Before the vote for governor was taken Mr. Purroy inquired where Mr. Porter stood in regard to the platform. Mr. Danforth stated that Mr. Porter would stand squarely upon the platform of the committee and fully indorse the Chicago platform. The vote was unanimous.

German Count Coming to Washington

Washington, Sept. 29.—Count Von Goetzen, first lieutenant of Uhlans of the imperial guards, and well known as an African explorer, will, on December 15, succeed the German military attache at the embassy here.

DIVINE CHIROGRAPHY.

Rejoice Because Your Names Are Written in Heaven.

The Archives Will Come to Light Some Day, and Each Will See His Deeds Stand Forth—Beautiful Sermon by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D.

Dr. Talmage's subject Sunday was, "Divine Chirography," the text being Luke x., 20: "Rejoice because your names are written in Heaven."

Chirography, or the art of handwriting, like the science of acoustics, is in a very unsatisfactory state. While constructing a church, and told by some architects that the voice would not be heard in a building shaped like that proposed, I came, in much anxiety, to this city and consulted with Prof. Joseph Henry, of the Smithsonian institution, about the law of acoustics. He said: "Go ahead and build your church in the shape proposed, and I think it will be all right. I have studied the laws of sound perhaps more than any man of my time, and I have come so far as this: Two auditoriums may seem to be exactly alike, and in one the acoustics may be good and in the other bad." In the same unsatisfactory stage is chirography, although many declare they have reduced it to a science. There are those who say they can read character by handwriting. It is said that the way one writes the letter "I" decides his egotism or modesty, and the way one writes the letter "O" decides the height and depth of his emotions. It is declared a cramped hand means a cramped nature, and an easy and flowing hand a facile and liberal spirit, but if there be anything in the science, there must be some rules not yet announced, for some of the boldest and most aggressive men have a delicate and small penmanship, while some of the most timid sign their names with the hight and width and scope of the name of John Hancock on the immortal document. Some of the cleanest in person and thought present their blotted and spattered page, and some of the roughest put before us an immaculate chirography. Not our character, but the copy-plate set before us in our schoolboy days, decides the general style of our handwriting. So also there is a fashion in penmanship, and for one decade the letters are exaggerated, and in the next minified; now erect and now aslant, now heavy and now fine. An autograph album is always a surprise, and you find the penmanship contradicts the character of the writers. But while the chirography of the earth is uncertain, our blessed Lord in out text presents the chirography celestial. When addressing the 70 disciples, standing before Him, He said: "Rejoice because your names are written in Heaven."

Of course the Bible, for the most part, when speaking of the heavenly world, speaks figuratively while talking about book and about trumpets and about wings and about gates and about golden pavements and about orchards with twelve crops of fruit—one crop each month—and about the white horses of Heaven's cavalry; but we do well to follow out these inspired metaphors and reap from them courage and sublime expectation and consolation and victory. We are told that in the heavenly library there is a Book of Life. Perhaps there are many volumes in it. When we say a book, we mean all written by the author on that subject. I can not tell how large those heavenly volumes are, nor the splendor of their bindings, nor the number of their pages, nor whether they are pictorialized with some exciting scenes of this world. I only know that the words have not been impressed by type, but written out by some hand, and that all those who, like the 70 disciples to whom the text was spoken, repent and trust the Lord for their eternal salvation, surely have their names written in Heaven. It may not be the same name that we carried on earth. We may, through the inconsiderateness of parents, have a name that is uncouth, or that was afterward dishonored by one after whom we were called. I do not know that the seventy entrances of the names of the seventy disciples correspond with the record in the genealogical table. It may not be the name by which we were called on earth, but it will be the name by which Heaven will know us, and we will have it announced to us as we pass in, and we will know it so certainly that we will not have to be called twice by it, as in the Bible times the Lord called some people twice by name. "Saul! Saul!" "Samuel! Samuel!" "Martha! Martha!"

When you come up and look for your name in the mighty tomes of eternity and you are so happy as to find it there, you will notice that the penmanship is Christ's, and that the letters were written with a trembling hand. Not trembling with old age, for He had only passed three decades when He expired. It was soon after the 30th anniversary of his birthday. Look over all the business accounts you kept of the letters you wrote at 30 years of age, and if you were ordinarily strong and well, then there was no tremor in the chirography. Why the tremor in the hand that wrote your name in Heaven? Oh, it was a compression of more troubles than ever smote anyone else, and all of them troubles assumed for others. Christ was prematurely old. He had been exposed to all the weathers of Palestine. He had slept out of doors, now in the night dew and now in the tempest. He had been soaked in the surf of Lake Galilee. Pillows for others, but He had not where to lay His head. Hungry, He could not even get a fig on which to breakfast; or have you missed the pathos of that verse, "In the morning, as He returned into the city, He hungered, and when He saw a fig tree in the way, He came to it and found nothing thereon." Oh. He was a hungry Christ, and nothing makes the hand tremble worse than hunger, for it pulls upon the stomach, and the stomach pulls upon the brain, and the brain pulls upon the nerves, and the agitated nerves make the hand quake. On the top of all this exasperation came abuse. What sober man ever wanted to be called a drunkard? but Christ was called one. What respecter of the Lord's day wants to be called a Sabbath breaker? but He was called one. What man, careful of the company he keeps, wants to be called the associate of profligates? but He was so called. What loyal man wants to be charged with treason? but He was charged with it. What man of devout speech wants to be called a blasphemer? but He was so termed. What man of self-respect wants to be struck in the mouth? but that is where they struck Him. Or to be the victim of vilest expectoration? but under that He stooped. Oh, He was a worn-out Christ. That is the reason He died so soon upon the cross. Many victims of crucifixion lived day after day upon the cross; but Christ was in the courtroom at 12 o'clock of noon and He had expired at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day. Subtracting from the three hours between 12 and 3 o'clock the time taken to travel from the courtroom to the place of execution and the time that must have been taken in getting ready for the tragedy, there could not have been much more than two hours left. Why did Christ live only two hours upon the cross, when others had lived forty-eight hours? Ah! he was worn out before he got there, and you wonder, oh, child of God, that, looking into the volumes of Heaven for your name, you find it was written with a trembling penmanship—trembling with every letter of your name, if it be your earthly name, or trembling with every letter of your heavenly name, if that be different and more euphonous. That will not be the first time that you saw the mark of a quivering pen, for did you not, oh, man, years ago see your name so written on the back of a letter, and you opened it, saying: "Why, here is a letter from mother," or "Here is a letter from father," and after you open it you found all the words because of old age were traced irregulary and uncertain, so that you could hardly read it at all. But after much study you made it out—a letter from home, telling you how much they missed you, and how much they prayed for you, and how much they wanted to see you, and if it might not be on earth that it might be in the world where there are no partings. Yes, your name is written in Heaven, if written at all, with trembling chirography.

Again, in examination of your name in the Heavenly archives, if you find it there at all, you will find it written with a bold hand. You have seen many a signature that because of sickness or old age had a tremor in it, yet it was as bold as the man who wrote it. Many an order written on the battlefield and amid the thunder of the cannonade has had evidence of excitement in every word and every letter and in the speed with which it was folded and handed to the officer as he put his foot in the swift stirrups, and yet that commander, notwithstanding his trembling hand, gives a boldness of order that shows itself in every word written. You do not need to be told that a trembling hand does not always mean a cowardly hand. It was with a very trembling had Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, signed his name to the Declaration of American Independence, but no signer had more courage, and when some one said, "There are many Charles Carrolls, and it will not be known which one it is," he resumed his pen and wrote Charles Carroll, of Carrollton. Trembling hand is no sign of timidity. The daring and defiance seen in the way your name is written in Heaven is a challenge to all earth and hell to come on if they can to defeat your ransomed soul. The way your name is written there is as much to say, "I have redeemed him; I died for him; I am going to crown and enthrone him. Nothing shall ever happen, down in that world where he now lives, to defeat my determination to keep him, to shelter him, to save him. By my Almighty grace I am going to fetch him here. He may slip and slide, but he has got to come here. By my omnipotent sword, by the combined strength of all Heaven's principalities and powers and dominions, by the 20,000 chariots of the Lord Almighty, I am going to see him through." Bold handwriting! It is the boldest thing ever written to write my name there and your name there. He knows our weakness and bad propensities better than we know them ourselves. He knows all the apollyonic hosts that are sworn to down us if they can. He knows all the temptations that will assail us between now and the moment of our last pulsation of the heart, and yet he dares to write our name there. Boldness! Nothing at Saragossa, or Chalons, or Marathon, or Thermopylae, to equal it! Nothing in the sack of gunpowder which one English soldier carried under the blazing artillery of the Mohammedans and blew up the gate of Delhi! Can you not see the boldness in the penmanship that has already written our names there? Apostle Peter, what do you think of it? And he answers: "Kept by the power of God through faith unto complete salvation." Oh, blessed Christ, what dost Thou mean by it? And he answers: "They shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." "Your names are written in Heaven."

Again, if according to the promise of the text you are permitted to look into the volumes of eternity and shall see your name there, you will find it written in lines, in words, in letters unmistakable. Some people have come to consider indistinct and almost unreadable penmanship a mark of genius and so they affect it. Because every paragraph that Thomas Chalmers and Dean Stanley, and Lord Byron, and Rufus Choate, and other noted men, wrote was a puzzle, imitators make their penmanship a puzzle.

Alexander Dumas says that plain penmanship is the brevet of incapacity. Then there are some who, through too much demand upon their earnings and through lack of time, lose the capacity of making the pen intelligible, and much of the writing of the world is indecipherable. We have seen piles of inexplicable chirography, and we ourselves have helped augment the magnitude. We have not been sure of the name signed, or the sentiment expressed, or whether the reply was affirmative or negative. Through indistinct penmanship last wills and testaments have been defeated, widows and orphans robbed of their inheritance, railroad trains brought into collision through the dim words of a telegram put into the hands of a conductor, and regiments, in this wise, mistaking their instructions, have been sacrificed in battle. I asked Bishop Cowie, in Auckland, New Zealand; the bishop having been in many of the wars, what Tennyson, in his immortal poem, "The Charge of the Light Brigade," meant by the words "Some one had blundered," and the bishop said that the awful carnage at Balaklava was the result of an indistinctly written and wrongly read military order. "Some one had blundered." But your name once written in the "Lamb's Book of Life," will be so unmistakable that all Heaven can read it at the first glance. It will not be taken for the name of some other, so that in regard to it there shall come to be disputation. Not one of the millions and billions and quadrillions of the finally saved will doubt that it means you and only you. Oh, the glorious, the rapturous certitude of that entrance on the Heavenly roll. Not saved in a promiscuous way. Not put into a glorified mob. No, no! Though you came up, the worst sinner that was ever saved, and somebody, who knew you in this world at one time as absolutely abandoned and dissolute, should say, "I never heard of your conversion and I do not believe you have a right to be here," you could just laugh a laugh of triumph, and turning over the leaves containing the names of the redeemed, say, "Read it for yourself. That is my name written out in full, and do you not recognize the handwriting? No young scribe of Heaven ever entered that. No anonymous writer put it there. Do you not see the tremor in the lines? Do you not also see the boldness of the letters? Is it not as plain as yonder throne, as plain as yonder gate? Is not the name unmistakable? The crucified Lord wrote it there the day I repented and turned. Hear it! Hear it! My name is written there! There!"

I have sometimes been tempted to think that there will be so many of us in Heaven that we will be lost in the crowd. No. Each one of us will be distinctly picked out and recognized as was Abel when he entered from earth, the very first sinner saved, and at the head of that long procession of sinners saved in all the centuries. My dear hearers, if we once get there, I do not want it left uncertain as to whether we are to stay there. After you and I get fairly settled there, in our Heavenly home, we do not want our title proved defective. We do not want to be ejected from the Heavenly premises. We do not want some one to say, "This is not your room in the house of many mansions, and you have on an attire that you ought not to have taken from the Heavenly wardrobe, and that is not really your name on the books. If you had more carefully examined the writing in the register at the gate you would have found that the name was not yours at all, but mine. Now move out, while I move in." Oh, what wretchedness, after once worshipping in heavenly temples, to be compelled to turn your back on the music, and after having joined the society of the blessed, to be forced to quit it forever, and after having clasped our long-lost kindred in heavenly embrace, to have another separation! What agony there would be in such a good-by to Heaven! Glory be to God on High that our names will be so plainly written in those volumes that neither saint, nor cherub, nor seraph, nor archangel shall doubt it for one moment, for 500 eternities, if there were room for so many. The oldest inhabitant of Heaven can not read it, and the child that left its mother's lap last night for Heaven can read it. You will not just look at your name and close the book, but you will stand, and soliloquize, and say, "Is it not wonderful that my name is there at all? How much it cost my Lord to get it there? Unworthy am I to have it in the same book with the sons and daughters of martyrdom and with the choice spirits of all time! But there it is, and so plain the word and so plain all the letters!" And you will turn forward and backward the leaves and see other names there, perhaps your father's name, and your mother's name, and your brother's name, and your sister's name, and your wife's name, and apostolic names, and say: "I am not surprised that those names are here recorded. They were better than I ever was. But astonishment overwhelming that my name is in this book!" And turning back to the page on which is inscribed your name, you will stand and look at it, until seeing the others are waiting to examine the records with reference to their own names, you will step back into the ranks of the redeemed, with them to talk over the wonderment.

Lewis Sells, one of the proprietors of Forepaugh & Sells Brothers' Circus, owns 500 acres in Merced, and the firm is trying to obtain 500 acres more to add to them. Instead of raising fruit they will raise animals. They have come to the conclusion that the climate of California is advantageous for that purpose, and in view of that fact are endeavoring to get animals properly mated here. The firm has a man in England, George O. Starr, engaged in securing animals. Tropical birds will be another feature. A large amphitheater will be erected, covered with glass, in which the birds will be kept.

At a recent meeting of the convocation of the law society of upper Canada, held in Toronto, the legal committee was directed to frame rules providing for the calling of women to the bar.

CHRONIC CATARRH.

Sometimes Accompanied by Chilliness, Choking Sensation and Weariness of Limbs.

Mr. James Conner Tells of His Experience and After a Long Siege Succeeds in Finding a Cure.

From the Herald, Owenton, Ky.

A member of the Herald staff took a day off last week, which was pleasantly spent among the good people of the southeastern end of the county. The eight-mile drive between Monterey and Tackett's Mill is full of interest and the country abounds in picturesqueness. This section is noted chiefly for its running streams, bad roads, numerous tollgates and pretty girls, with here and there a church or school-house, the great civilizers and christianizers of the ages.

One of the most sturdy, honest and upright citizens of this community is James Conner, a former Justice of the Peace in the Monterey district and at present a School Trustee. Mr. Conner, with his wife and three children, lives about a mile and a half from Tackett's Mill, Ky., and it was the newspaper man's good fortune to enjoy their generous hospitality. Hearing that Mr. Conner was a believer in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, he was asked concerning the matter. He said he was forty-six years of age and from early manhood had been somewhat of an invalid. He explained minutely how he had for twenty-five years suffered with what he at first supposed was consumption, but later decided was chronic catarrh, soreness of chest, weariness of limbs and a touch of rheumatism. He was treated by several physicians and took some medicines on his own account, but all to no purpose. It was for the rheumatism especially that he first began the use of Pink Pills. He argued that if he could get the blood right the rheumatism would disappear and the whole system would in time become renewed. His short experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills was most gratifying, and it seems like a positive pity that he was deprived of their continued use by the force of unfortunate circumstances. It is earnestly to be hoped that he will soon be enabled to test them more fully and that his brightest hopes may be realized.

Mr. Conner's statement is given below in the form of affidavit in a plain, straightforward manner, in his own words, a great deal better than it could be made by writing a column about it. Here it is:

"I have been troubled with chronic catarrh for twenty-five years. During that time I have been treated by numerous physicians and have taken several kinds of patent medicines, but received no permanent relief. In the first stage of my trouble I feared consumption and my physician treated me for that disease. Later, however, another physician pronounced it bronchitis and catarrh. I had frequent spells, accompanied by chilliness, choking sensations and weariness of limbs. Finally a pamphlet in regard to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People came into my hands, which I read carefully with great interest. As they were recommended for rheumatism and kindred complaints, I thought possibly they might be of benefit to me, so I procured a box.

"For about three weeks previous to this time I was unable to do anything and was confined to my room. Before half the pills in the box were taken I experienced a decided relief and was able to do some work. By the time the full box was taken I was able to do as much work as I had for fifteen years. I procured a second box, after taking which I felt still more improved. This was about one year ago. Owing to my financial condition I was unable to continue the treatment, which I sincerely regret, because I am satisfied that had I taken a dozen boxes, or two dozen at the most, I would have been permanently cured. I should have said that I had been suffering with a pain in my left side and back, which was also relieved to a great extent by the pills taken. I have the utmost confidence that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will do all that is claimed for them, and it is my purpose to procure more of them as soon as I feel able to do so and resume the treatment.

(Signed) "JAMES CONNER."

Subscribed and sworn to before me by James Conner, this 21st day of May, 1896.

J. W. HILL, Justice of the Peace.

After procuring Mr. Conner's statement, a call was made on the Tackett's Mill dealers, A. Blythe & Son, from whom the Pink Pills were obtained. In answer to a question the junior member of the firm replied: "Yes, we have sold some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and have heard them highly spoken of. Mr. James Conner, who is one of the most reliable men in our community, is very enthusiastic in their praise. It is a new medicine with us, but seems to be quite popular. We haven't any on hand just now, but it is our purpose to order more right soon."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

When you have another man's money in your pocket, it is so hard to remember that it is not your own.

Noah was an expert with the gloves. He boxed everything in the ark.—Texas Sifter.

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	2 00	@	2 70
Select butchers	3 60	@	4 10
CALVES—Fair to good light	5 25	@	6 25
HOGS—Common	2 50	@	3 00
Mixed packers	3 15	@	3 25
Light shippers	3 25	@	3 40
SHEEP—Choice	2 35	@	2 85
LAMBS—Good to choice	3 60	@	4 00
FLOUR—Winter family	2 80	@	3 10
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	74
No. 3 red		@	70
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	26
Oats—No. 2		@	17½
Rye—No. 2		@	40
HAY—Prime to choice	10 75	@	11 40
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@	9 00
Lard—Prime steam		@	3 80
BUTTER—Choice dairy		@	8
Prime to choice creamery		@	17½
APPLES—Per bbl	1 00	@	1 25
POTATOES—New, per bbl	80	@	1 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@	4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@	76
No. 2 red	73¼	@	74⅛
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@	28¼
OATS—Mixed		@	21½
PORK—New mess	7 75	@	8 25
LARD—Western		@	4 40
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 50	@	3 80
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	70⅝
No. 2 Chicago spring		@	63⅞
CORN—No. 2		@	23⅞
OATS—No. 2		@	17½
PORK—Mess	6 30	@	6 35
LARD—Steam	3 92½	@	3 95
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 40	@	3 65
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2	70⅝	@	70⅞
Corn—Mixed	28	@	28¼
Oats—Mixed		@	25
LARD—Refined		@	11 00
PORK—Mess		@	16 85
CATTLE—First quality	3 80	@	4 00
HOGS—Western	3 90	@	4 00
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@	64
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	21½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@	16
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@	4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	65
Corn—Mixed		@	23¾
Oats—Mixed		@	17
PORK—Mess	[illegible]	@	7 00
LARD—Steam		@	4 50

A PREHISTORIC HORSE.

Fossil Remains That Are Found in the Rockies.

Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, of the American Museum of Natural History, in the Century describes the remarkable fossil remains that are found near Bridger Lake, in the Rockies. He says:

If we leave the lake shore, and pass into the drier upland, we discover the clever little four-toed horse, swift, alert, intelligent. He is, to use the modern measure, only four hands, or 16 inches, high, so he would not reach the knee of the Uintathere, and could be devoured at one sitting by the Patriofelis. His limbs are as slender as pencils. His large eyes are much farther forward than in the horse. He could readily hide among the taller stalks, and it is possible that he had the beginning of protective stripes imitating reed shadows upon his neck and name. In his hair and coloring, however, we pass into pure conjecture. His well-worn chisel-shaped front teeth indicate that he was already a cropper or browser, and the evident secret of his triumphant persistence over his ponderous contemporaries is that he learned to browse just about the time that grasses began to appear. He was the animal of the times.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

Mrs. Jabber (to Mr. Jabber)—"Are you aware that you talk in your sleep?" Young Jabber (who has just been silenced)—"What other chance does he get?"—Tit-Bits.

I can recommend Piso's Cure for Consumption to sufferers from Asthma.—E. D. Townsend, Ft. Howard, Wis., May 4, '94.

If we knew what our enemies have suffered, our enmity would often die a sudden death.—Ram's Horn.

There is too much said about love in this world, and not enough about the necessity of a marriage license.—Atchison Globe.

When bilious or costive, eat a Cascaret, candy cathartic, cure guaranteed, 10c, 25c.

Many a man who wore shoulder straps during the war has been strapped ever since.

DANGER

YOU HAVE BACKACHE

Get Rid of It!

It is a sign that you have Kidney Disease; Kidney Disease, if not checked, leads to Bright's Disease, and Bright's Disease Kills!

Because the Kidneys break down and pass away with the urine.

Heed the Danger Signal and begin to cure your Kidneys to-day by taking

Warner's Safe Cure

Large bottle or new style smaller one at your druggist's.

DON'T KICK! TAKE Cascarets CANDY CATHARTIC

ALL DRUGGISTS.

This button with a ten cent box of CASCARETS, CANDY CATHARTIC the ideal laxative and guaranteed constipation cure, sent FREE on receipt of five 2-cent stamps. Address STERLING REMEDY COMPANY, Chicago; Montreal, Can.; New York.

WANTED--AGENTS

For the Pearl Bryan Tragedy; is sensational and good selling book; sample and terms to agents 25 cents; ORDER QUICK. BARCLAY & CO., 210 E. Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

DYSPEPSIA: YUCATAN KILLS IT.

OPIUM and WHISKY habits cured. Book sent FREE. Dr. B. M. Woolley, Atlanta, Ga.

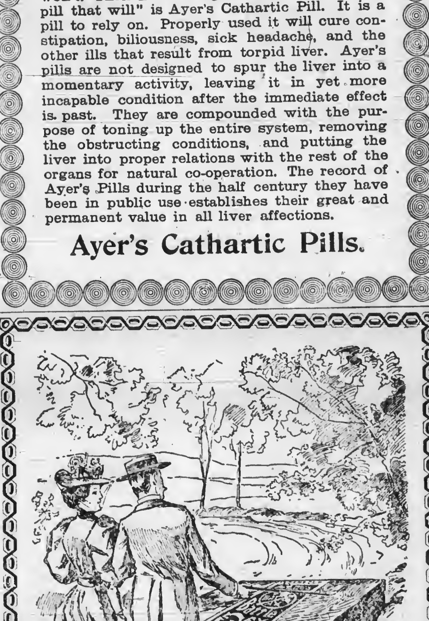
A. N. K.—E. 1625

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

The Pill that Will.

"The pill that will," implies the pills that won't. Their name is legion. The name of "the pill that will" is Ayer's Cathartic Pill. It is a pill to rely on. Properly used it will cure constipation, biliousness, sick headache, and the other ills that result from torpid liver. Ayer's pills are not designed to spur the liver into a momentary activity, leaving it in yet more incapable condition after the immediate effect is past. They are compounded with the purpose of toning up the entire system, removing the obstructing conditions, and putting the liver into proper relations with the rest of the organs for natural co-operation. The record of Ayer's Pills during the half century they have been in public use establishes their great and permanent value in all liver affections.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills.



"It Bridges You Over."

Battle Ax A GREAT BIG PIECE FOR 10 CENTS

PLUG

"Battle Ax" bridges a man over many a tight place when his pocket-book is lean. A 5-cent piece of "Battle Ax" will last about as long as a 10-cent piece of other good tobaccos. This thing of getting double value for your money is a great help. Try it and save money.

BOONE : COUNTY : RECORDER.

Wednesday, Oct. 7, 1896.

Rates of Subscription:
One year.............. .... $1 50.
Six months................................ 75.
Three months.............................. 40.
☞ Payable invariably in advance.

THE RECORDER
SOLICITS YOUR
Job Work,
NOTE HEADS,
LETTER HEADS,
ENVELOPES,
CARDS,
BILL HEADS,
STATEMENTS,
SALE BILLS,
AND HORSE BILLS,
Printed at the Lowest Prices consistent with neat work.
Send your order by mail and it will be attended promptly.

COL. BRECKINRIDGE claimed to be too good a Democrat to support Bryan and Sewall, and for the same reason he could not support Mckinley but he expects to be returned to Congress by votes furnished by the McKinley people.

IT has not been very many months since Benjamin Butterworth, a leading Ohio Republican, wrote a very strong letter in favor of the free coinage of silver. and it is now doing good service for the Democratic nominees.

THE man who can read both the Republican and the Democratic papers and arrive at any conclusion as to the final result of the election, is one who can look through a confused mass of obstructions that would be annoying to the all-seeing eye.

THE Democrats of this county should make an unusual effort to poll every Bryan vote in the county. In the last State election Boone proved to be the banner Democratic county, and she should try to increase her Democratic vote next month.

STATE NEWS.

Rufe Taylor, of Mercer, has a quantity of long green tobacco on hand that was cut the day of the battle of Perryville, which was October 8, 1862.

Ben Pettit, of Fayette county, died last week from a wound in the chest, iflnicted by a horse. One brother fell from a load of hay and the prongs of pitchfork ran through him. Another was drowned in the Ohio river. A sister was killed in a runaway. Another brother died of scarlet fever last summer.

The Nicholasville Democrat says that a club is now being organized in that city by the marriageable men and will be known as the "Has Beens." In regard to its membership it is said to be very particular and will admit no one unless they can produce evidence to show they have once in their life been rejected by a young lady.

CROP AND STOCK.

A Fleming county farmer sold his crop of tobacco at 65 cents per hundred. Cost him 80 cents to have it prized. However, he got sound money, that is, he paid the 15 cents in sound money.

William Williams, of Hardin county, O., has a horse 7 years old, weighs 2,800 pounds and 24 hands high. The largest horseshoe made is No 6. and he requires one 4 times as large. It takes 63 feet of material to blanket him.

The suggestion recently made to tobacco raisers, by Mr. George Lippert through these colume. to enter- into agreement not to raise tobacco the coming year, is taking a business like turn in Mason county, a meeting was held in Maysville attended by a number of farmers who adopted a resolution not to raise any next year, and appointed a committee to wait upon other growers of the country and secure pledges. They also decided to invite other counties to unite with them. This movement will meet with much sympathy in Bracken, for the farmers that made money last year is the exception.—Bracken Chronicle.

THE CRIME OF 1873.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

We hear a great deal about the crime of 1873 from the Populist and the free silver Democrats. They charge Congress with having committed this crime in the passage of a law, on Feburary 12, 1873, that demonetized the standard silver dollar. They also charge Congress with having steathily passed the bill without letting the country know any thing about it.

I propose to defend Congress by affirming that this bill neither demonetized the silver dollar, nor was there any stealth practiced in its being made a law.

The act was introduced into Congress for the purpose of recoining the fractional silver coin. On June 28, 1834 Congress changed the ratio between gold and silver from 1 to 15 to 1 to 16. On January 18, 1837 Congress established the finness in all coins of both gold and silver to be nine-tenths pure. The silver half dollar in this act was made to contain 185:625 grains of pure silver.

On Febuary 21, 1853, an act was passed reducing the amount of pure silver in the half dollar to 172.8 grains of pure silver (it made similar reduction in all the fractional currency.) This reduction was made because the bullion in it was worth about 51¼ cents. Hence a profit of 1¼ cents could be made on each coin by selling it as bullion. Thus depriving the country of its use as a medium of exchange.

The reduction in this act made the bullion value about 48½ cents. Owing to the decline in silver, in its relation to gold, the bullion in these half dollars had fallen to about 47 cents in 1873.

On Febuary 12, 1863, Congress committed the great crime of passing a law providing for the recoinage of the fractional silver coin provided for in that act of 1853, and failing to mention in the act the silver dollar. It committed another crime in this act by confirming by law a thing that had actually existed since March 3, 1849. This crime consisted in making the gold dollar the lawful standard of all values.

At the time this bill was being considered by Congress our monetary system was existing upon a greenback basis. Specie payments had been suspended and Congress was preparing to resume the payment of its debts in coin. While the gold dollar of 25.8 grains of standard gold had virtually been the standard of value since March 3, 1849, it was necessary to make it legally so before the resumption of specie payments by the government. Hence, in 1879, when the government resumed the payment of its debts in coin, it had a legal standard for the measurement of all values.

Our government never had a double standard of measurement for all values. The standard silver dollar was the standard from April 2, 1792, to March 3, 1849. Since then the standard gold dollar has been the standard unit of value.

This act of 1873 discontinued the coinage of the half dime and three cent piece. It demonetized therefore the five and three cent silver pieces, but did not mention the silver dollar.

If the silver dollar was demonetized at all, it was done under the revision of the statutes in 1874, when its legal tender character was limited to the amount of five dollars.

If it was demonetized in 1873 as some claim by omission, then it was demonetized in 1853 by a Democratic Congress, from the same cause.

The reason why no mention was made of the silver dollar in the recoinage acts of 1853 and 1873 was because the government had been at great expense in coining silver dollars and none were in circulation. The bullion in them being worth more than their legal value they were shipped to foreign countries and sold as bullions.

This had been going on since 1834, when the great crime of the demonetization of silver coins was actually committed. The changing the ratio to 16 to 1 in 1834 virtually demonetized all silver coins. At that time the commercial ratio was 15.73, hence sixteen ounces of silver was worth more than one ounce of gold. The gold coins being the cheaper money, was universally used and silver coins went out of circulation.

The subsiderary coins, being of exact proportions of the dollar, disappeared also. In 1853, Congress remonetized the sudsidiary coins by reducing their bullion value below their stamp value, and closing the mints against their free coinage. The silver dollar was not remonetized until February 12, 1878, and none have been coined free since. Hence to day we are enjoying the only real bimetallism that has ever existed in our government. Prior to 1878 we had bimetallism on the statutes and monometallism in practice—since then we have had bimetallism in law, bimetallism in practice, bimetallism in our pockets, in our bonds, in our greenbacks and in our treasury notes.

If some one would be kind enough to communicate this historic fact to the great orators of 1896, who are advocating the free coinage and remonetization of silver, and the restoration of bimetallism, their speeches would be stripped of their verbiage and nothing would be left in them but wind—our financial system would cease to be disturbed; our industrial enterprises would be revived; the fires in our manufactories would be rekindled; our wheels of industry would begin to revolve; our bankers would unlock their treasury vault;sour capitalists would invest their capital; labor would be employed and the prosperity of the United States would be the envy of the whole civilized world; our ships bearing the star spangled banner would be seen on every sea and in every port; the laborer would be friendly with the employer, and the employer would become interested in the health, happiness and prosperity of the employed.

In defense of the second charge against Congress, by the Populists and Silver Democrats, that Congress stealthily passed the bill in Congress without letting the country know anything about it. I will simply submit as evidence the Congressional Record. This record gives the indisputable testimony that the bill was submitted to the Senate in June 1870, appeared before the Senate eleven times and before the House of Representatives ten times and became a law Feb'y 12, 1873.

The Democratic party has always been the champion of the gold standard, and the advocate of the use of silver as fractional currency in the smaller business transactions. As early as 1806, Mr. Jefferson, the first Democratic President, closed the mints to the coinage of silver dollars, and for 30 years, while the government was in control of the Democratic party, not a silver dollar was coined. In 1834 a Democratic Congress demonetized the silver coins by making them worth more as bullion than as coins. In 1853, a Democratic Congress remonetized the minor coins but ignored the dollars. The same offence was committed against the dollar in 1873 by the leading Democrats then in Congress, assisting the leading Republicans. In 1803 a Democratic Congress gave the silver dollar another kick by relieving the government of the obligation of buying silver bullion to be coined into silver dollars.

G. C. GRADDY.

A Little of the Other Side.

Mr. Bogy—As I have said already, no law has ever passed demonetizing silver. The Revised Statutes contain a law which, I contend, is a fraud, which has no business there because the act authorizing the revision of laws provided that none should be revised but those in force on the 1st of December, 1876; yet here is a law in the Revised Statutes for which there is no foundation whatever. There was no law existing at that time saying that silver should not be a legal tender. There was a law saying that trade-dollars and subsidary coin of less value should be a legal tender not to exceed $5; but the old coinage was not at all affected by the law then existing. Yet the revised code says in section 3586:

"The silver coins of the United States shall be a legal tender at their nominal value for any amount not exceeding $5 in any one payment."

That is a fraud. There was no law of that character existing at that day in this country; and to that extent the revision is wrong. There was no right to put it there. I think furthermore that

(Continued on Fifth page.)

POLITICAL.

In the order of their adoption the Presidential tickets placed in the field are as follows this year:

Prohibitionist—Nominated at Pittsburg, May 27. For President, Joshua Levering, of Maryland; for Vice President, Hale Johnson, of Illinois.

National Party—Free silver, woman suffrage off-shoot of the regular Prohibitionists, nominated at Pittsburg about 2 p. m., May 28. For President Charles E. Bentley, of Nebraska; for Vice President, James Haywood Southgate, of North Carolina.

Republicans—Nominated at St. Louis, June 18. For President, William McKinley, of Ohio; for Vice President, Garret Augustus Hobart, of New Jersey.

Socialist Labor—Nominated at New York, July 4. For President, Charles H. Matchett, of New York; for Vice President, Mathew Maguire, of New Jersey.

Democratic Party—Nominated at Chicago July 10 and 11. For President, William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska; for Vice President, Arthur Sewall, of Maine.

Silverites—Nominated at St. Louis, July 24. For President. William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska; for Vice President, Arthur Sewall, of Maine.

People's Party—Nominated at St. Louis, July 24 and 25. For President, William Jenning Bryan, of Nebraska; for Vice President, Thos. E. Watson, of Georgia.

National Democratic Party—Nominated at Indianapolis, Sept. 3. For President, John McAuley Palmer, of Illinois; for Vice President, Simon Bolivar Buckner, of Kentucky.

Lieut. Governor Worthington expresses the opinion that the question of the election of a United States Senator can be taken up at the extra session of the Legislature, which will be called after the November election.

There are 27 candidates for jailer in Logan county.

Never before were the tobacco buyers in the field so early. Near Russellsville three farmers have sold their crops at 12, 14 and 15 cents.

Public Speaking.

Hon. A. S. Berry will speak at Florence at 7 p. m., Wednesday, October 14th.

D. E. Castleman will address the Democrats at the following places this week: Woolper school house Friday night at 7 o'clock; Gasburg, Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m. and at Rabbit Hash, Saturday night at 7 o'clock.

Hon. A. S. Berry, Judge C. C. Cram, and Hon. S. W. Tolin, will address the Democracy at the Walton Opera House, Thursday evening, Oct. 8th, at 7 o'clock p. m. Everybody invited.

Queen & Crescent Reduced Rates. Philadelphia, Pa.—National Druggist Association, October 5th to 0th.

Are You Afraid ?

TO READ BOTH SIDES OF THE QUESTION?

The New York Journal is the only Metropolitan paper indorsing

Bryan and Sewall

and it daily publishes articles by the leading financiers of the country on both sides of the question,

"Silver versus Gold."

It is progressive, liberal and always espouses the cause of the masses. Every broad minded man should read it, whether Republican or Democrat.

THE NEW YORK JOURNAL.

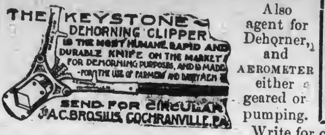
Daily - - - - - 1 Cent everywhere.
Subscription for One Month, including Sunday - - - - 40 cents
Two Months and a Half - - $1.00

Send subscription to
The New York Journal,
Circulation Department, NEW YORK.

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.

La : Belle : Herd
—OF UP TO DATE—

CHESTER WHITE HOGS.



THE KEYSTONE DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
TO A.C.BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.

Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.

Write for circulars.

AEROMETER

EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.

Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.

COME AND SEE IT.

T. J. HUGHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

$50 REWARD!

Some time between TUESDAY, SEPT., 23d, 1896, and the Friday following, the house of Dr. E. W. Duncan, Walton, Ky, was broken into and CLOTHING STOLEN. Among other things taken was a light weight, brownish gray, Short Sack Overcoat, the style of the present fall season. On the inside of the collar was the name Jos. Bailer, Covington, Ky. On the underside of the piece of cloth containing this name was my own name written in ink. Just below the outside pocket on the right side of the coat was a square patch, 2½ to 3 inches square. On the left side of the front where the goods is folded back to form the facing is another patch of the exact size and shape of the one just described. The material was cut from this place to form the patch outside. This patch on the facing was made up of two pieces of equal size. These two small pieces were cut from surplus cloth near one of the seams in the back of the coat. There was also taken a SHORT SACK COAT of Black Cheviot that had been but little worn. This coat had the name inside the collar of C. & G. EMS, London, England. It may have in addition the two words—Cheapside and England. Instead of the buttons being simply sewed to the outside of the sleeves at the cuffs they were arranged to button and unbutton and were the only means of closing the lower 6 inches of the above sleeves. On the inside of this coat on the left side, low down, was a very large pocket, 9 inches long and 8 inches deep, closed by a button in the center. There were some PANTS taken, but there was no distinguishing feature except that none of them contained the ordinary watch pocket.

A REWARD OF $50

Will be given for the apprehension and conviction of the guilty party or parties. Address any information to the undersigned,

E. W. DUNCAN, Walton, Ky.

1896.

Your County Paper
Is the One to
Subscribe for,

It Gives all the
Neighborhood News,
Court News and
General News.

The Campaign is Now On and will be of unusual interest, and

The Recorder

Will Keep you
Posted on the Campaign.

15c Will Pay for it until
DEC. 1, 1896.

Or $1.50 will Pay for it for Twelve
Long Months.

Give It a Trial and Help
Along Home EnterPrise.

E. H. RIGGS.
—Dealer in—
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
—CEMENT, ETC.—
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1896. NO. 51.

From now on the money will flow into the doubtful States.

Mr. Carlisle declined to engage in a joint discussion with Senator Blackburn.

The crowd that greeted Bryan at Indianapolis, last week, is estimated at 75,000.

A great deal of political oratory will be listened to in this county this week. Both sides will be heard.

If next Saturday is a favorable day there will be a tremendous crowd attend the political meeting at Walton.

The Florence Democratic Club will listen to several good speeches to night. All who can are invited to attend the meeting.

An unsual amount of political work is being done in Kentucky this fall. Kentucky's electoral vote is very much wanted by both parties.

Many a Republican in the Ashland district will grit his teeth when it comes to recording his vote for W. C. P. Breckinridge, who has been their bitterest foe so long that they do not remember when he was not making war on them.

Logan Carlisle's recently published a card, in which he attempts to insult Senator Blackburn, was never submitted to his distinguished father. Had it been the public never would have seen it, unless the spoiled child had disobeyed his parents.

Bryan made politics very lively in Indiana, last week. He made a trip across the State, and was cheered by thousands all along the route traveled. The crowd that assembled at Indianapolis was estimated at 75,000, being much the largest assemblage that ever congregated there to welcome a public man.

President Harrison and private citizen Harrison do not agree on the silver question; neither do Congressman McKinley and private citizen McKinley. President Harrison and Congressman McKinley were advocating legislation favorable to silver; private citizen McKinley and private citizen Harrison are opposed to it.

The treatment that Judge Denny has received at the hands of his party is very unsatisfactory to him. He does not understand why it is that those gold bug Democrats who are desirous of having McKinley elected President can not manifest the samo interest in him and come over to his party with as much consistency as the Republicans can fall in with them.

The people are, apparently, taking more interest in this campaign than in any one in which the county has engaged since the war, and there has been such a tearing up of parties that the final outcome is a puzzle to the most astute politicians on both sides. The result, no matter what it may be ought not be a surprise to anybody.

Mr. Bynum, of Indiana, made a visit to New York, last week, and was unablo to give the opposition to Bryan any encouragement as to Indiana and Illinois. He said he believed gold would win in these States, but other statements he made in the same interview showed that his faith is very weak. Organized labor, other than that of railroads, he says seems to be opposed to McKinley.

England has both free trade and the gold standard. In 1892 the Republicans proclaimed that free trade had reduced laborers in England to paupers. The same men are now claiming that this country will be prosperous under a gold standard only, and point to England as proof of their claims. How can a laborer be prosperous because of a gold standard and at the same time be a pauper because of free trade?

POLITICAL.

There are 447 votes in the electoral college. Necessary to a choice, 224.

Col. R. G. Ingersoll will give Major McKinley the benefit of four speeches in Illinois.

The Palmer and Buckner petition received 7,000 signatures. Only 1,000 were necessary to secure them a place on the ballot.

The Republican executive committee in the Lexington district declared it inexpedient to nominate a candidate for Congress.

John D. While, the Republican who is making an independent race for Congress in the eleventh district is giving Colson, the regular nominee a great deal of trouble.

The McKinley electors came very near being shut out in this State. Those whose duty it was to certify them to the Secretary of State neglected to do so until called upon at the last moment by the assistant secretary for the certificate.

J. Frank Dye, of Newport, registered as an Anarchist. He says: "I have carefully studied the Chicago platform, and if that means anarchy so does the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, and any man who declares himself in favor of the constitution and independence, must vote for the sentiment expressed in the Chicago platform or repudiate his own declaration."

The second nomination of Hon. A. S. Berry by acclamation for Congress in the Sixth District is a deserving tribute to one of the best and most laborious representatives Kentucky has in Congress. He will defeat Mr. Ernst without any trouble and by an increased majority. A Congressman has to be a good man in these days in politics to secure a third term, and the old Sixth did itself proud when it endorsed the hero of the Licking as it did yesterday at Williamstown.—Frankfort Argus.

It is said that Breckinridge's name will go under the log cabin. It makes little difference to Owen county just so it is on the ticket, as she wants the opportunity to see how deep she can bury it under a shower of Democratic ballots and once and forever refute the insinuation that there are Democrats in Owen, who for personal reasons would vote for a man who is aiding to defeat a Democratic National ticket. Thirty-five hundred Democrats will fall on the Colonel that sad day.—Owen News.

The manner in which Judge Denny was frozen out in the Seventh district is not only a political blunder, but a contradiction of all the precepts and precedents of the Republican party. Whether the action of the Republican Committee is excusable or not, by the peculiar political conditions prevailing in tho district, the fact remains that a staunch, consistent and persistent Republican partisan has been ruthlessly set aside and needlessly insulted to make way for a man whose life has been devoted to defying and denying everything that Republicans have loved and cherished. Is not the sacrifice greater than the honor to be achieved?—Commonwealth.

In 1891 Major McKinley was very much opposed to the financial policy which he is now advocating, and at Toledo, Ohio, on the 12th day of February of that year, he went after President Cleveland without gloves because he was a gold standard man. He said:

"During all of Grover Cleveland's years at the head of the government he was dishonoring one of our own great products, discrediting silver and enhancing the price of gold. He endeavored, even before his inauguration to office to stop the coinage of silver dollars, and afterward and to the end of his administration, persistently used his power to that end. He was determined to contract the circulating medium and demonetize one of the coins of commerce, limit the volume of money among the people, make money scarce and, therefore, dear. He would have increased the value of money and diminished the value of everything else—money the master, everything else the servant."

Judge George Denny is out in a card announcing that he will not make the race for Congress and scoring the Republican Committee for its failure to agree with him upon the advisibility of putting a candidate in the race. He says:

"The Republican District Committee met at Frankfort, Ky., upon the 30th day of September, 1896, and contrary to party law, and without precedent, and influenced partially by about 4,000 National Democrats stifled the voice of about 13,000 Republican voters in the district and tyranically decided that 13,000 Republicans voters had no rights they were bound to respect, and that the committeo did not think the interests of the Republican party required a convention, and consequently there would be none.

"So, fellow Republicans, we are debarred the privilege of having a Republican to vote for. Mark you! It was not asked that I should be a candidate, but that there should be a Republican candidate for Congress in this district. This has been denied you by the arbitrary action of the District Committee, and means the loss of at least 1,000 votes to McKinley in the district."

He concluded as follows:

"I am firmly convinced that the Republican party of the Seventh Congressional district should with unanimity enthusiastically support only McKinley and Hobart and other Republicans on the ticket, and leave the warring factions of Democracy to fight their own battles and win their own victories."

He was Knocked Out.

A ministerial looking man was having his way on a street corner to a group of eager listeners, and he was making an argument in support of the gold standard.

"We must wait for free coinage of gold and silver until we can have an international agreement," he said. Then the fat man asked permission to offer a few questions.

"I understand you are a member of the church, a preacher of the gospel, am I right?" he inquired.

"Yes, sir, you are right. I am a preacher of the gospel, and I did come out on the Lord's side at the age of 16 years. Well, what then?"

"You thought you did right in so coming out, didn't you, and do you yet think so?" persisted the fat man.

"Why, certainly, what are you driving at?" replied the ministerial looking man with asperity.

"Oh, nothing except I wonder why you did not put off this thing of coming out on the Lord's side till by international agreement all the heathen in the world would do the same thing."

The crowd laughed and the gold bug fled.

Some Kentuckians are shouting loud and vigorously about the "crime of 1873." There is another crime to remedy which is closer to us. We speak of the crime of 1895 by which the State was turned over to the Republicans. Let us redeem Kentucky in 1896.—Mt. Sterling Sentinel.

You tell us the great cities are in favor of the gold standard. I tell you that these great cities rest upon the broad and fertile prairies. Burn your cities and save our farms, and your cities will spring up again as if by magic. But destroy our farms and the grass will grow in the streets of every city in this country.—Bryan's Chicago speech.

A Misfit Metaphor.

"Talk 'bout yoh bein hongry," said the old colored man; "some er dese folks dat hab de mos' remarks ter make 'bout privations don't fully re'lize how bad de nongriness kin git."

"Have you ever been obliged to go without food?" inquired the man for whom he works.

Has I? I'ze been whah a chunk er cohn braid ud er tas'ed like er hull ice cream an strawberry festible."

"Coudn't you get any work?"

"Dah warn't no wuhk ter git. Me an mer young massa was snowed up out wes', an de snow kep' a-holdin on an a-holdin on, an de pervisions kep' a-gibbin out an a-gibbin out tell dar warn't nuffin 'tall ter eat. Massa had er hull bunch er money in 'is belt dat he'd er been mighty willin at one time ter trade oft foh er few pounds er pohk chops. Ef de rescue pahty hadn't come jes' when it did, I reckon you'd hab somebody else a-doin yoh errands hyah."

"That shows how little money will sometimes do. Even with an abundance of it you had difficulty in keeping the wolf from the door."

"No, suh. We warn't habbin trouble keepin no wolf away. Ef we could er gone out an coaxed er wolf ter show hisself roun dat doah when we wus so hongry, I'd er laid foh 'im wif an ax an we'd er had fresh meat foh sure. I was jes' wishin foh er wolf."—Detroit Free Press.

[Williamstown Courier.]

Hon. Rankin Blackburn, of Calusa, California, brother of the late Robert J. Blackburn, of this county is visiting his many relatives and friends in this part of the world. Mr. Blackburn has always been a Republican in politics; this time, however, he is for Bryan and Sewall: He says that there is no question that California will give Bryan 30,000 majority, and possibly as much as 50,000. He says that he is more honest than the gold bug voters who claim that they are the only honest and "Simon pure Democrats." Be says that he is a bolter from the Republican party and that it is a badge of honor in his part of the world to be a Republican bolter. Mr. Blackburn will remain in Kentucky for several weeks, returning home in time only to vote.

The Palmer and Buckner people are under many obligations to Major McKinley's friends in Ohio for their valuable assistance in getting their electors' names on the ballots. Investigation has developed that in some counties ninety-five per cent of the names signed to the petition asking that the Palmer and Buckner electors be put on the ballots, are Republicans. In some instances the names of an entire Republican county committee were found on the petition. No doubt but what the same facts would be discovered in Kentucky were an investigation made. The action of the Republicans in Ohio, which has been the same in each of the other States, shows what tools Palmer and Buckner are suffering themselves made in order to assist in the election of McKinley. It has been asserted that Mark Hanna is putting up the money necessary to conduct the pretended campaign for the aid society, and why shouldn't he?

Col. Berry is entitled to the vote of every Democrat in this Cogressional District. He has done more for the people of the District than any man they ever sent to Congress. When the Democratic party took its position on the money question, he took his position squarely on the Chicago platform, and has been in the front of the battle ever since.

At Springfield, Ill., 98 head of Poland China hogs at public sale, brought an average of $33 64, highest price $400; next day 76 head averaged $45, highest price $807.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson.
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup'nt of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, Sam S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W Lester.
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill. Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George; Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; I. F. Dempsey, H. S. Irwin. Secretary-Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday; Add Riddell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN.
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896
At Walton, Ky.
Three Courses of Study to choose from:
English, Scientific or Classical,
Tuition per month for Higher Branches........ $3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches........ 2.50
We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected,—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2 00 for five days.
Teachers { Mrs. S. H. Myers. Chas. F. Prior. Rev. S. H. Myers.
Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky.
OSCAR GAINES Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
Executive Board—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. Cowen, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. Rogers, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administrator's Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of Abel Beemon, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

S. W. Adams, Adm'r.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given to Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON.
DENTIST,
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
Main Office—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

W. E. Vest. B. L. Rice.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. Vest, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
Capital,........ $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 17,000
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
Capital paid in........ $50,000
Surplus,........ $ 2,600
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE
STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:30 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 1:30 pm; 4:30pm.
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 6:3[illegible] am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5 [illegible].
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:30 [illegible] 00 am; 12:40 pm; 3:00 pm; [illegible]
ELIHU ALD[illegible]

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : : KY.

OCTOBER—1896.

Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
....	....	....	....	1	2	3
4	5	6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15	16	17
18	19	20	21	22	23	24
25	26	27	28	29	30	31

CURRENT TOPICS.

THERE are 6,000 miners in Utah, mostly unorganized.

LONDON bakers are endeavoring to do away with Sunday labor.

FORTY-FIVE mills are now running on full time at Fall River, Mass.

ILLINOIS has 30,000 miners, of whom only a small portion is organized.

THE National Union of French Railway Employes has 75,000 members.

LONDON shop assistants have asked parliament to pass an early closing law.

THE ship joiners at Mare Island, Cal., navy yard have received an advance of wages.

SIXTY co-operative shops were opened in New York by the striking tailors.

ISHPEMING (Mich.) miners have been cut to an average of $1.75 per day; laborers $1.25.

THE Adelaide, South Australia, city corporation has increased its laborers' wages to $1.66 per day, and gaugers to $2.12.

MISS CLEMENTIA DEL VALESCO, a New York society belle and one of the wealthiest of South American heiresses, has taken the veil in the Dominican order.

THE Mississippi river around Vicksburg is full of sharks. Some of them are eight and ten feet long. They come from the gulf and feed off refuse and small catfish.

IT has been reported that the duke and duchess of Marlborough had purchased Bath house from the executors of Baron Hirsch, but the London World emphatically denies the rumor.

AN English paper was recently guilty of the following beautiful bull: "Looking back along the trackless pathways of the future, he descried the footsteps of an invisible hand."

As a result of the establishment of creameries in Ireland one railway alone has carried to Cork and Dublin for export nearly a thousand tons more butter during the past six months.

IT is reported that Dr. Nansen temporarily divorced his wife before starting for the pole, so that she might not be inconvenienced by the difficulty of proving his death if he should not return.

THE Japanese have supplanted the Chinese as grape pickers in the vineyards of Fresno county, California. They have done it by accomplishing better and quicker work for lower wages.

DURING the last two years the boilermakers expended less than $5,000 for strike benefits and in ten of the principal strikes secured advances in wages aggregating $50,000 per annum to their members.

ALL of the collieries of the Lehigh Valley Coal Co. have been ordered to work six days a week until further notice. This is the first time in years that the miners have had a chance to work full time.

PROF. LANG, of Vienna, declares that sponges, owing to the impossibility of destroying germs in them, have long since been banished from the surgeon's table, and should also be excluded from the bathroom and washstand.

PAUL LAWRENCE DUNBAR, the young Negro poet, who recently read selections from his works at the Lyceum theater, New York, has been for several years the elevator boy in a public building in Dayton, O., and still retains that place.

MRS. ANNIE BARCKLEY, of Pittsburgh, sued for $20,000 for her husband's affections, alienated by Mrs. Weigold, and the jury awarded her $750. On the same day an Illinois girl sued for $15,000 for a stolen kiss and the jurors gave her $250.

WHAT is looked upon as a most important discovery is a solder for glass. This is composed of 95 parts of tin and five parts of zinc. It has a beautiful metallic luster, is not subject to change, adheres firmly to the glass and melts at 200 degrees.

THE British Medical Journal says that the paper used in many brands of cigarettes made in England contains arsenic. When arsenic is inhaled in small quantities it causes a chronic cough and other symptoms usually associated with consumption.

MRS. ALEXANDER, the popular novelist, is known in private life as Mrs. Alexander Hector. Although ambitious to become a novelist in early girlhood, she abandoned her literary work on marrying Mr. Hector, nor did she resume her pen until after his death.

A DOCTOR in the highlands of Scotland, whose patients are scattered over a wide district, takes carrier pigeons with him on his rounds, and sends his prescriptions by them to the apothecary. He leaves pigeons, too, with distant families, to be let loose when his services were needed.

JUSTICE as it is dispensed, officially and otherwise, in Arizona had an illustration the other day at Phoenix, when a man who had thrashed a peeping Tom went to Justice Johnstone and wanted to plead guilty, but was told by the justice to go back home and drub the offender again upon any provocation.

WANT HIS LIFE.

Two Attempts Made to Assassinate Gen. Weyler.

Dynamite Placed in His Mattress—While Disrobing the General's Foot Touched the Wire—A Bomb Placed in a Cup of Chocolate Did Not Explode.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Private communications from Havana, Cuba, announce that two attempts were made to assassinate Capt.-Gen. Weyler less than two weeks ago. That both attempts failed was due to accident.

The first attempt was made on the evening of September 20, when the captain-general ordered a cup of chocolate. A girl named Mercedes brought him one containing a quantity of dynamite put up in the shape of an egg.

The chocolate merely covered the top of the bomb.

The programme provided for the girl to dash the cup on the floor at his feet, in which case it was calculated an explosion would follow, sufficiently not only to blow both Weyler and the girl into a thousand fragments but also to wreck the palace.

The girl, however, allowed the cup to fall from her hands, instead of dashing it down with force, and there was not sufficient concussion to cause an explosion.

The girl was an innocent party to the transaction, having been led to believe that the cup contained poison, and by dropping it she would save the captain general's life.

The second attempt was made two nights later, when a dynamite bomb was placed in the mattress on which the captain general slept.

Attached to it were two threadlike wires which communicated with a battery.

In disrobing Weyler's foot became entangled in the wires, and this led to the discovery of the plot.

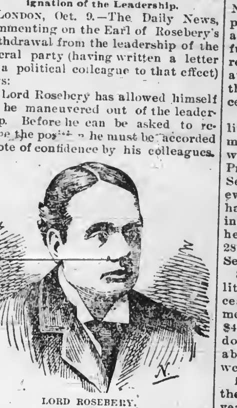
The news of the attempts was suppressed, as a strict censorship is maintained over the telegraph and mail.

LORD ROSEBERY.

The London News Comments on His Resignation of the Leadership.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The Daily News, commenting on the Earl of Rosebery's withdrawal from the leadership of the liberal party (having written a letter to a political colleague to that effect) says:

"Lord Rosebery has allowed himself to be maneuvered out of the leadership. Before he can be asked to resume the post he must be accorded a vote of confidence by his colleagues.



LORD ROSEBERY.

The step taken by his lordship is a very grave and lamentable one. It is Mr. Gladstone's return to the field that has been the immediate and perhaps the inevitable cause. Mr. Gladstone's enunciated policy in favor of Great Britain's single-handed act in the east conflicts with the principles to which Lord Rosebery has adhered."

Walling's Papers in Frankfort.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 9.—The papers in the Walling case were signed by Judge Helm Wednesday night and were immediately forwarded to Frankfort. The package weighed 17 pounds. It arrived at the court of appeals Thursday morning. It is understood that the decision in the Scott Jackson case will be withheld until the proceedings in the Walling trial are gone through with, and that the two decisions will both be handed down at one and the same time.

Agreement Between Glass Manufacturers and Their Employes.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 9.—After a two days' discussion an agreement was effected Thursday night between the manufacturers of green glass and their employes. The basis of agreement is the scale as it was last year, with a discount of five per cent., with no changes in the apprentice of working rules. The settlement affects the operation of 31 factories, and the wages of about 3,000 workers.

The Behring Sea Claims Commission.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 9.—The Behring sea claims commission will meet at Victoria, B. C., early in November and the taking of evidence will begin about November 10, by which time the sealing schooners will have returned from their season's work. Justice King will represent Canada, with Premier Peters, of Prince Edwards island, as chief counsel, and Mr. Beique assistant counsel.

Watterson Returns to Politics.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 9.—The Courier Journal Thursday morning publishes an editorial letter from Mr. Henry Watterson dated Geneva, in which the veteran journalist says that the action of the Chicago convention has caused him to return to politics which he gave up two years ago, as he thought, for good.

An Entente Between Powers.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—It is announced here that France, Russia and Great Britain have arrived at an entente in regard to Turkey, and it is expected that those powers will immediately dispatch to the porte a vigorous note demanding the adoption of reforms which will secure the safety of the Armenians in the Turkish empire.

Lord Rosebery's Successor.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Sir Wm. Harcourt, who will probably succeed Lord Rosebery as the leader of the liberal party, is suffering from an attack of catarrhal cold.

TRADE REVIEW.

Distinctly Better Conditions Have Appeared of Late—Somewhat Larger Employment of Labor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—R. G. Dun & Co. says Saturday in their weekly review of trade:

Distinctly better conditions have appeared of late and are reflected in somewhat larger employment of labor, in large transactions and in continued buying of materials for manufacture. A great part of the change is due to those resistless laws of supply and demand, which take wheat where it is wanted and gold where it is wanted. India is waiting for cargoes of wheat on the way from Pacific states, just as Australia and South Africa were not long ago. The surplus usually available from India disappears and the surplus from Russia and European countries is reduced, according to late estimates, 75,000,000 bushels. Happily this country has a supply which official accounts have not correctly measured, if actual movements do not greatly mislead.

A feature of large importance, too, is the unusually heavy foreign demand for corn, which is a never failing sign of deficient crops abroad, where other grains are used instead of wheat when the latter becomes scarce and dear.

It is another good sign that railroad earnings, amounting to $38,745,318 in the United States for September show a smaller decrease than in August—⅜ per cent. against 5-7 per cent compared with last year.

Iron furnaces in blast October 1 had a capacity of 112,782 tons weekly, against 129,500 September 1 and 217,306 November 1 last year, while unsold stocks decreasd 35,852 tons; but if those of steel making concerns were included, it would probably show an increase. Buying of materials continues, but Bessemer is a shade weaker, $11.40 at Pittsburgh. The demand for products is so light, and so much business is held back pending the election that decreasing output is not an unhealthy sign. Minor metals change little. The upward rush of hides has advanced prices at Chicago six per cent. for the week to the highest average since last November. Prices of leather rose 2½ per cent. with small dealings. Shoes are selling very little, as consumers refuse to pay higher prices and dealers remember buying at high and selling at low prices last winter. Orders for the next season are few and many concerns may close for a time.

Textile manufacturers are gaining a little and the buying of wool by large mills covers 7,662,800 pounds for the week, against 11,249,200 last year. Prices advanced about one per cent. in September and have since advanced even more, though a few of the mills have orders for a long time. Buying of cotton has been checked by heavy receipts from plantations, 1,222,287 bales having come into sight in September against 542,394 last year.

Speculation in stocks has yielded a little, about 1.13 for railroads and 55 cents for trusts. The outward movement of money to the interior has been $4,000,000 for the week, and little is doing in commercial loans, with rates about one-half per cent. higher than a week ago.

Failures for the week were 296 in the United States against 268 last year, and 46 in Canada, against 53 last year.

THE MAJORITY

Of the Democratic State Ticket in Georgia May Reach 50,000.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 10.—The full extent of the democratic victory in Georgia is shown as the official returns come in and it becomes evident that the majority of the democratic state ticket will run close to 50,000.

Official returns from two-thirds of the counties in the state and semi-official reports from the others give Atkinson's gross majority 44,234. Wright's gross majority 6,063; Atkinson's net majority 38,171. It is possible that the democratic candidate for secretary of state may have 50,000 majority over his opponent. Democrats claim this shows best the relative strength of the tickets.

Gov. Atkinson is running a few thousand behind the other state house officers, but that is due to the special fights which have been made upon him on local issues.

The hard fight made by the republicans against Atkinson undoubtedly made a difference of 20,000 votes. Col. Buck, chairman of the republican committee acknowledges that the democratic majority would have reached 60,000 or more, but for the active efforts of the republicans.

FATHER SHERMAN

Turns all His Interest in the Estate of His Father, the Late Wm. T. Sherman, to His Sister.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Rev. Thomas Ewing Sherman Friday transferred all his interest in the estate of his father, the late Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, United States army, to his unmarried sister, Miss Elizabeth Sherman.

Father Sherman is a Jesuit priest. The vows of poverty he has taken prevents him from holding property in his own right. Jointly with his sisters, Miss Elizabeth Sherman and Mrs. Rachel Thorndyke, and his brother, Phillip Tecumseh Sherman, he was the owner of the old Sherman mansion, 912 North Garrison avenue, a ten-room house, on the south side of Lucas, near Ewing, and a three-story dwelling on Clinton, near Ninth street.

The Temple Cup Proceeds.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 10.—The Temple cup series net proceeds amounted to $4,200, of which Cleveland got $1,700 and Baltimore $2,500, over and above expenses. Each Spider gets $117 and each Oriole $200. Last year the Cleveland men made $580 each. The winning team gets 60 per cent. and the loser 40 per cent.

Iowa Town Nearly Totally Burned.

CRESTON, Ia., Oct. 10.—A report has reached this city that Corning, Ia., has been almost totally destroyed by fire. An unknown man was burned to death. The loss is $300,

OCEAN PERILS.

A Gale Does Much Damage in England and Ireland.

The Sea Walls at Swansea and Whitehaven Partially Destroyed—Much Damage to Shipping—Numerous Isolated Cases of Drowning Reported.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—An abnormally high tide greatly damaged the Cambrian railway between Aberswith and Machyenmeth and Towyn and Barmouth. For the distance of a mile between the latter place the line was entirely destroyed. It will take fully a week to get the line in running order. The railway was also flooded between Barmouth and Dolgelly and Barmouth and Port Madoc.

The sea wall at Swansea was partially destroyed by the heavy sea pounding against it. A number of small houses at Thenclawd dock were demolished and the furniture in them carried away. The tide rose 21 feet at Aberyswith, making a breach in the sea wall. Many cottages at Borth were ruined. A large unknown ship was lost off Skemer island and all on board of her perished.

The River Severn rose seven feet above its normal height at Newham and the lower portion of the town was flooded. Many animals were drowned.

The sea wall and the railway at Whitehaven were badly damaged and many houses were badly flooded. The deluge of rain was accompanied by thunder.

Reports from Ireland show that much damage was done along the coast of County Clare. The city was inundated for miles and thousands of tons of hay and great quantities of harvested corn have been washed away.

The gale lasted for 60 hours. It was abating Thursday night. The life boat which left Tenby, Wales, Thursday morning to go to the rescue of the crew of a vessel in distress in Carmarthen bay, returned Thursday evening, having rescued the crews of four coasting vessels.

Reports from other places give graphic details of the rescues made by the lifeboats. It is thought that the total loss of life by drowning will be large. Numerous isolated cases of drowning have been reported.

The White Star line steamer Germanic, from New York, arrived at Liverpool Thursday. She reports that her boatswain was lost overboard.

GOLD.

The Imports and Withdrawals of the Yellow Metal From the Sub-Treasuries.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The gain in gold by the United States treasury since the first arrivals August 28 in the present import movement has been $32,000,000. The withdrawals from the treasury in Washington and from all sub-treasuries in the same time, covering 42 business days, has been $7,861,000, so that the net gain by the treasury has been about $24,000,000. The withdrawals for use in the arts have averaged $25,000 a day or $1,050,000 altogether. Other withdrawals "in ordinary courses" have averaged $60,000 a day, making a total of $2,520,000. Adding to this last named sum the gold withdrawn for use in the arts, the aggregate is $3,570,000. The chief withdrawals otherwise have been for the San Francisco treasury by Pacific coast banks. A good deal of gold has also been withdrawn from the New York sub-treasury for shipment to Canada. There have recently, however, been some receipts from Canada to offset the earlier shipments to that country.

AMERICAN BEEF.

The German Government Making an Investigation of the Health of American Cattle.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 8.—From inquiries made here Thursday it developed that the German government is making, on its own account, an investigation of the health of American cattle, possibly with a view of again placing an embargo upon American beef. The state board of health received a letter from the German consul at Cincinnati asking for a detailed statement of how much if any, tuberculosis existed among the cattle in Indiana. The letter also wanted to know what measures were being taken to weed out or to prevent the disease and stated that the German government had last year expendeded over $400,000 in stamping out tuberculosis among German cattle.

Further Returns From the Florida Election.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 9.—Complete returns from 34 counties give Bloxham (dem.) a majority over all of 13,428. The same counties in 1892, there being no republican ticket in the field, gave democratic majorities of 22,305. The remaining 11 counties gave democratic majorities aggregating 1,450 in 1892. The indications are that the democratic ticket is elected by a majority of 15,000, or a plurality over the republicans of 17,500. In 1892 the majority for Mitchell (dem.) over Baskin (pop.) was 23,398.

British Trade Figures.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The board of trade returns for the three quarters ending with September show that the imports have increased £12,432,757 over the same period of 1895. The same returns for the same periods compared show that the exports have increased £13,815,716.

Gov. Atkinson's Majority.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 9.—Telegrams received by the Constitution from many counties Thursday afternoon confirm reports that Atkinson's majority will be not less than 35,000 over Wright (pop.) for governor, while the majority on the remainder of the democratic ticket will approximate 50,000. The official figures will not be known until Thursday night.

North Carolina Cotton Crop.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 9.—The state crop report gives the yield of cotton as 65 per cent. of average crop, a gain of two points on the September estimate.

TOPCOATS PAWNED IN SUMMER

Thrifty and Thriftless Alike Find the Scheme Satisfactory.

"Twenty thousand overcoats have been taken out of pawn during the past week," said a pawnbroker to a Chicago Times-Herald reporter. "The cooler weather has forced us to unlock our cedar chests and undo the bundles which have been packed away in camphor. During the next month, unless the weather becomes warmer, as many more overcoats will be taken from the pawnshops.

"No, it is not because they are poverty-stricken that so many men have overcoats in pawn during the summer. Of course, if a man wants to pawn anything, there is nothing that he should be more likely to 'soak' during the summer months than his unnecessary overcoat. At the same time many of the overcoats are left with us merely that they may be protected against the moths, who thrive during the summer, and to prevent them from accumulating dust as they would while lying in closets. A man can pawn his overcoat for two dollars, and have it with us until he needs it in the fall, and it costs him but 50 cents.

"Of course it is a good deal of trouble for us, but we are able to make it pay us well, and the temptation to a man who is improvident is to borrow more than a nominal sum on his coat, and, of course, he has to pay more interest.

"A great many dress suits are also pawned each summer to preserve them until needed in October. They are worn very little in the summer, and the same reason that leads to the pawning of overcoats operates in their case."

QUAKER OF THE ORIENT.

The Herculean Turkish Porter Whose Place of Business Is on the Street.

The Turkish porter is one of the most interesting objects seen in a tour of the orient. Of Herculean strength and power of endurance, he is usually prompt and obliging, also honest so far as in him lies. He cannot speak the truth, and would not respect himself if he could, for that is a virtue of the Frank.

His place of business, says the Chicago Times-Herald, is on the streets of his native town, where he can be found at all hours of the day, clad in a loose soiled jacket, usually gray, with gray gaiters, Turkish shoes or sandals, the inevitable fez and a neckerchief that makes him look as if he were strangling.

All the burden of conveying large or small articles falls upon him and he will for a gratuity carry a piano as easily as a trunk. He is the most contented of the working fraternity one meets abroad, whether he is found in the streets of Constantinople or in those of Stamboul, and the tourists make much of him because he is interesting, his occasional smoke under the shade of a mulberry tree, or his lazy sips of sherbet, being treats that renew his strength for the hard work by which he must live—if he is not able to sell merchandise. Being sturdy and industrious, the traits of the Turkish porter commend him to the public, hence a picturesque description of him by one traveler who named him the "Quaker of the Orient."

PONY FOR FORTY CENTS.

New Swindle Practiced Upon the Gullible New Yorker.

Here is a brand-new swindle. The man who invented it or heard of it in some out-of-the-way part of the world had some money, says the New York Recorder. He rented a house in one of the oldest parts of New York. It is a quarter in which swell Knickerbockers lived, and some of their descendants live there to this day. He made himself a familiar figure in a liquor store in the neighborhood, where he sampled various brands and vintages and proved himself a connoisseur.

One day he told the proprietor that he had taken down a brick wall in the rear of the cellar of his house, intending to replace it with stone, as it had grown moldy. Behind it he found three casks of remarkable brandy that had been lying recondite for many years, undoubtedly the property of some long dead and forgotten householder, who knew a good thing when he saw it, and was saving it.

The saloon man bought it at $16 a gallon, having previously tasted an alleged sample that for bouquet has never been surpassed upon this continent or any other. The goods were delivered and the tenant disappeared with two months' rent in arrears. It was really good brandy worth about six dollars a gallon, at which price it had been bought from a Broadway street wine merchant.

However, the wineroom man did not lose anything. His customers are drinking brandy (at 40 cents a "pony") which they are assured has lain in a New York cellar for 100 years.

MOTHER (to her boy sliding down the banisters)—"Fritz, what are you doing there?" Fritz—"Making trousers for orphan boys."—Fliegende Blaetter.

DE pussons what sets on de aigs ob borrered trouble will at las' succeed in hatchin' de generwine chickens.—Texas Sifter.

Pure

Blood is essential at this season in order to keep up the health tone and resist the sudden changes in temperature and exposure to disease germs.

Hood's

Sarsaparilla

Is the Best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, carefully prepared. 25c.

SHE—"Do you believe in long engagements?" He—"Well, I think an engagement should be long enough to test a man's constancy and to give the girl time to learn to cook."—Brooklyn Life.

"WHAT was the happiest moment of your life?" "It was the moment when the jeweler took her engagement ring back and allowed me half price for it."—Cleveland Leader.

WHAT is the difference between the man who cuts off the end of his nose and a boy who has just finished his task? One lessens his nose, and the other knows his lesson.

Reforms Need More Than a Day

To bring them about, and are always more complete and lasting when they proceed with steady regularity to a consummation. Few of the observant among us can have failed to notice that permanently healthful changes in the human system are not wrought by abrupt and violent means, and that those are the most salutary medicines which are progressive. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the chief of these. Dyspepsin, a disease of obstinate character, is obliterated by it.

TO CURE a woman of stammering ask her what she thinks of the girl her husband came near getting engaged to a couple of years before she married him.—Texas Sifter.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

SOME men become bald quite early in life, while others die and have their wills offered for probate before their heirs fall out.—Texas Sifter.

JUST try a 10c box of Cascarets, the finest liver and bowel regulator ever made.

IT is quite the thing lately for an old girl to marry a young fellow, and bring him up the way she wants him.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

Send your name for a Souvenir of the Works of Eugene Field,

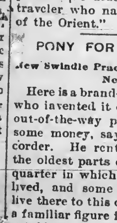
FIELD FLOWERS

The Eugene Field Monument Souvenir

The most beautiful Art Production of the century. "A small bunch of the most fragrant of blossoms gathered from the broad acres of Eugene Field's Farm of Love." Contains a selection of the most beautiful of the poems of Eugene Field. Handsomely illustrated by thirty-five of the world's greatest artists as their contribution to the Monument Fund. But for the noble contributions of the great artists this book could not have been manufactured for $7.00. For sale at book stores, or sent prepaid on receipt of $1.10. The love offering to the Child's Poet Laureate, published by the Committee to create a fund to build the Monument and to care for the family of the beloved poet.

Eugene Field Monument Souvenir Fund,
180 Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

FREE To introduce, One Nursing Bottle Nipple and Teething Pad. Best ever invented. Send address and 2c. stamp for postage to MILLER MFG. CO., Akron, O.



Everything connected with Butter

—churns, patters, tubs, firkins—ought to be washed with Pearline. That gets at the soaked-in grease as nothing else in the world can. Things may seem to be clean when you've washed them in the usual way; but use Pearline, and they really are clean. It might make all the difference, sometimes, between good butter and bad. Wherever you want thorough cleanliness, or want to save your labor, the best thing to do is to use Pearline.

SEWALL'S LETTER.

He Pens His Acceptance of the Nomination for Vice President.

Lays Down His Political Principles—He Declares That Free Coinage Is the Sole Remedy for National Ills.

Bath, Me., Oct. 7.—Arthur Sewall, democratic candidate for vice president of the United States, on Tuesday made public his letter of acceptance. It is as follows:

"Hon. Stephen B. White, Chairman, and Members of the Notification Committee—Gentlemen: I have the honor to accept in writing, as I have already verbally done, the nomination tendered by you on behalf of the democratic party as its candidate for vice president of the United States. And in so doing I am glad, first, to express my satisfaction that the platform of our party, which has commanded my life-long allegiance, is honestly and fully declaratory of all the principles, and especially of the absorbing financial issue upon which, as you say, I took my stand when the hours of triumph seemed remote, and when arrogant money-changers throughout the world boasted that the conquest of the American masses was completed. These principles have been of late in abeyance, but only because those whom we trusted to maintain them have failed to do so. These principles can never die. We have rescued our party from those who, under the influence of the money power, have controlled and debased it. Our mission now is to rescue from this same power and its foreign allies our own beloved country. This is the first and highest duty imposed by our party's platform; upon the performance of this duty all other reforms must wait.

Country Facing a Crisis.

"The test of party principles is the government they assure, the proof of good government is a contented and happy people, and the supreme test of both is the ability to guide the country through crises as well as to administer the government in ordinary times. Our people now face a crisis, a crisis more serious than any since the war. To what party shall they [illegible] in their dire emergency? It is true that the present crisis may not involve all equally, that there are those who do not suffer now, and may not suffer should the crisis threatened by the gold standard come on in all its fury. Human selfishness makes these deaf to all appeals, but to these fortunately the democratic party has never needed to appeal to win its battles, nor does it now, save as there are some among them who can rise superior to self in the sacrifice which such a crisis demands of every patriot. We are told that the country has prospered under the present monetary standard, that its wealth has enormously increased. Granted so, but in whose hands? In the hands of the toilers, the producers, the farmers, the miners, the fabricators in the factories, the framers of the nation's wealth in peace, its defenders in war? Have they the prosperity which was theirs so late as even 20 years ago? I deny it. They deny it. None affirm it save those whose interest it is to do so, whose profit would diminish as prosperity returns to those on whose distress they thrive.

"The Best Money in the World."

"All is indeed right between capital and labor. The 'best money in the world' is none too good for those who have got it, but how is it with the 90 per cent of our people who have 'got it to get?' How is it with those who must buy this 'best money in the world' with the products of their own labor? These are the people for whom the democratic party would legislate. What is the best money for these is the question for all to ask who really love this land. How else can you increase labor's purchasing power but by increasing the price of labor's product? Is it a fair measure of value that in our great producing section ten bushels of potatoes must be paid for a dollar, ten bushels of oats for a dollar, six bushels of corn for a dollar, three bushels of wheat and all other products of the soil and mines and the labor of all wage-earners at the same ratio? Does any fair mind say this is honest money that forces such an exchange, and if it is not a fair exchange is it honest, is it less than robbery?

"This is the condition to which the single standard has brought us. Under it the appreciation of the 'best money in the world' has increased the wealth of the rich and for the same reason has increased the debt of the debtor. So it has been; so under the present standard it must continue to be. With these object lessons about us little need have we for history and statistics and the studies of scholars. Little satisfaction it is to us that they have warned us long since of the deadly evil of the gold standard. It has brought us at last to the parting of the ways. Whither shall the people go—in the way that has led to their enslavement or into that which offers them their only chance to regain individual liberty, lasting prosperity and happiness?

"Let not our opponents charge us with creating class distinctions. Alas for the republic, they are already here, created by the republican policy of the last 30 years, created by the very system we would now overthrow and destroy. Nor do we raise a sectional issue. The nomination you tender repels the charge. None knew better than I that this nomination is meant as no personal tribute, but as an assurance that our party is a nonsectional party. Not by our policy, but only by the continuance of the gold standard can sectionalism be revived.

Must Not Be Diverted.

"Neither shall our opponets be permitted to terrify the people by predictions that temporary disturbance or panic will come from the policy we propose. The American people will be loyal to the nation's money, will stand behind and maintain it at whatever value they themselves may put upon it. Once before in the present generation have our people been called upon to face a momentous crisis. What then said Mr. Lincoln, the chosen leader of the plain people of the land? Was he awed by threats or weakened by the wily persuasions of the false friends, who, as today, pleaded for compromise with wrong? His answer was: 'If our sense of duty forbids this, then let us stand by our duty fearlessly and effectively. Let us be diverted by none of those sophistical contrivances wherewith we are so industriously plied and belabored, contrivances such as groping for some middle ground between right and wrong, reversing the Divine rule and calling not the sinners, but the righteous to repentance, such as the invocation to Washington, imploring men to unsay what Washington said and undo what Washington did. Neither let us be slandered from our duty by false accusations against us. Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it.'

Gravity of the Situation.

"We know well the nature of the struggle in which we are engaged, we are anxious only that the people of the land shall understand it, and then our battle is won. Behind the strong entrenchment of the gold standard are gathered all those favored classes it has fostered, the only dangerous classes of the land. 'Avarice and unholy greed are there, every trust and combination is there. Every monopoly is there, led by the greatest monopoly of all, the monopoly of the power of gold. With us in our assault upon these intrenchments are all these unselfish men, who, not now suffering themselves, cannot rest content with conditions so full of suffering for others, and that vaster number of our people who have been sacrificed to the small and selfish class who now resist their attempts to regain their ancient rights and liberties These are the patriots of 1896; the foes of a 'dishonest dollar,' which enriches ten per cent. of our people to rob the rest, the defenders of the homes of the land, the public morals and the public faith, both of which alike forbid the payment of government obligations in a coin costlier to those who have to pay it than that the contract calls for, the defenders of the honor of the nation, whose most sacred charge is to care for the welfare of all its citizens.

The Sole Remedy.

"The free and unlimited coinage of silver is the sole remedy with which to check the wrongs of to-day, to undo the ruin of the past, and for our inspiration we have the justice of our cause and those cherished principles of Jefferson and Jackson, which shall be our guide on our return to power. 'Equal and exact justice to all men, absolute acquiescence in decisions of the majority, the vital principles of republics, the honest payment of our debts and sacred preservation of the public faith.' Profoundly sensible of the high honor of the nomination you tender, I am, truly yours,

"ARTHUR SEWALL."

BRYAN IN INDIANA.

Extracts from Speeches Made by the Democratic Nominee.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 7.—Mr. Bryan and party arrived in Louisville from Nashville at six a. m. Tuesday. After breakfast at the Louisville hotel, the party boarded the train for the tour through Indiana. Mr. Bryan's first speech was made at Jeffersonville.

When Mr. Bryan finished the special train proceeded to New Albany, five miles away. Here another brief speech was made. All along the route to Indianapolis the demonstrations were repeated. At Seymour 4,000 or 5,000 people heard Mr. Bryan; a throng between 8,000 and 10,000 were at Columbus; Edinburg turned out 3,000, and Franklin nearly if not quite 5,000.

Mr. Bryan, accompanied by Gov. Matthews and other prominent Indianians, reached Indianapolis at 1:15 o'clock p. m. He was escorted through the streets to the Grand hotel by free silver clubs and other political organizations. Great crowds witnessed his progress to the hotel and he was cheered frequently. At the Grand hotel there was a big crowd, and the throng cheered the nominee enthusiastically.

After luncheon Mr. Bryan went to the state house, where he delivered an address, beginning at three o'clock.

Estimates of the size of the crowd before which Mr. Bryan appeared at the state house go as high as 60,000. A very conservative estimate is 35,000. The people were packed in a solid mass, tightly wedged together, and movement was absolutely impossible. From the temporary stand erected in the state house yard Gov. Matthews introduced Mr. Bryan. A bedlam of enthusiasm broke forth from the gathering, and it was some time before Mr. Bryan could proceed. His speech was frequently interrupted by wild cheering. He said:

"This city enjoys the unique distinction in being the birthplace and the deathbed of a so-called party. My friends, I know that I am not obeying the Bible injunction: 'Let the dead bury their dead' when I speak of this so-called democratic party. I speak of it as I would not speak of any bonafide organization of men. But this party occupies a peculiar place in history. It calls itself the national democratic party when it doesn't expect to carry a single county in the whole nation. It called itself a democratic party when it was organized for the express purpose of electing a republican candidate for president. If it was big enough to justify the name, I would call it a stupendous fraud, but it is too small to be called stupendous. I will call it a transparent fraud. It was the first political convention ever held in this country where the members of the convention nominated a ticket that they did not expect to vote for, and the first place where men have received a nomination and don't want to be voted for. The minority plank in the Chicago platform opposed free coinage on the ground that it would interfere with international bimetallism, toward which, according to that minority plank, the efforts of this government should be steadily directed, and then when they failed to secure the adoption of that plank, they assembled in convention here and forgot all about international bimetallism. There could be no clearer evidence of intended deception than is found in the fact that the minority at Chicago, when they had things all their own way, repudiated the planks they stood on there and came out in favor of a gold standard instead of international bimetallism. My friends, I am willing to meet an open enemy in an open field and concede to that enemy all the rights and privileges of open warfare, but when our opponents call themselves advocates of 'sound money' and want to fasten upon us an unsound financial system, when they call themselves the advocates of 'honest money' and then deal dishonestly with the American people, when they say that they are members of a party and yet employ speakers who openly say they are going to vote the republican ticket, that party does not deserve to be treated like an open enemy in this campaign. My friends, I have no criticism to make of any man who believes that the election of the Chicago ticket would destroy this country, and who, in that belief, votes the republican ticket, but my friends, to find a man who wants to elect the republican ticket and then has not the courage to bear the odium of advocating it, is an entirely different matter."

Mr. Bryan then, referring to Mr. Bynum, said: "If you want to know what he said about the gold standard let me read from his speech in favor of silver in 1886. 'Again, the advocates of gold approach us with open hands and smiling countenances, but I fear with a dagger concealed beneath their coats.' Ah, my friends, he understood the nature of the animal before he began to associate with it. He is right in his description. The gold standard never fought an open fight. It carries the knife of the assassin and does its work behind the mask of a burglar. It is not an open enemy, never was and never will be. Now, see how well he understood them. He said; 'Oh,' they say, 'we want silver; we are bimetallists but we want an 'honest dollar.' Suspend coinage and we will drive England, Germany and other nations to bimetallism and then the price of silver bullion will appreciate and our dollars will be worth a hundred cents.' That is what was said in 1886. My friends, instead of saying now that we will adopt bimetallism and drive other nations to it, he says that we will stand by the gold standard and allow other nations to drive us away from it."

The rest of the speech was devoted to a discussion of the silver question on lines familiar to readers of his previous addresses. He maintained that those who favored a gold standard were actuated by selfish motives.

——Our republican friends would have us believe that all is well with them in Ohio and that there is no use in the democrats claiming anything whatever. It is unnecessary to claim anything at this time. The feeling in the agricultural district of Maj. McKinley's own state is such as to give the greatest hope that when the votes are counted there will be a result which will surprise those who imagine that the Hanna combination is winning everything in sight.—Buffalo (N. Y.) Times.

BANK ROBBERS

Overtaken and a Fight Ensues—One Desperado and a Marshal Killed.

WELLS, Minn., Oct. 10.—John D. Sair, who no doubt engineered the robbery at Sherburne Wednesday afternoon, is dead, as is also Marshal Gallien, of Bancroft, Ia. It is a bloody sequel to the Martin tragedy a few days ago. At 9 o'clock Friday morning a bloody battle took place on the road near Elmore, Minn. A posse of 100 men, in command of Deputy Sheriff Ward, of Martin county, got on the trail of Sair shortly after daylight and tracked him to a farm house. Deputy Ward knocked at the door and was answered by a woman, but before she had spoken three words Sair rushed up behind her and began firing over her shoulder at the officer. He fired seven times in quick succession, one of the bullets striking Marshal Gallien in the forehead and killing him instantly. The desperado then quickly ran out of the house by way of the back door, mounted his bicycle and dashed off toward the west. The posse caught sight of him and followed close behind. This chase was kept up for four miles, when Sair broke a pedal on his wheel and took to the fields on foot. As he ran across a cornfield toward a clump of trees Deputy Sheriff Ward dashed up, dismounted, and, resting his gun upon a tree fired, the shot from his Winchester taking effect in the robber's shoulder. The latter fell, it was supposed from the shot from Ward's gun, but when the posse gathered around him it was found he had shot himself in the head, the shoulder wound only being a slight one. Upon examining the body the officers found a portion of the money stolen at Sherburne in an inside pocket of his shirt, the amount being about $600. Fastened to a belt around his body were two revolvers and a wicked looking dirk knife. The body was taken to Sherburne. The body of the dead marshal was taken to Bancroft, Ia., Friday night.

Bicyclists are being held for identification at Preston, Blooming Prairie and Estherville, Ia.

INSANE MAN

Kills His Wife and Two Children—Then Cuts His Throat With a Razor.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Oct. 10.—Evidences of a horrible tragedy were discovered Friday morning at the home of Albert Bray, a farmer, living three miles from this city. The bodies of Bray, his wife and their two children, aged two and nine, upon the floor of a bedroom, told the story.

Bray was still alive, but the others were dead. The father expired shortly after the discovery without gaining consciousness.

A bloody ax and razor were lying at his side, and he committed the butchery with these.

Bray was aged 36, a member of the Friends' church. He had always borne a good reputation.

Bray had not been in good health for some time. He had often complained of a pain in his head.

Mrs. Dora Way was the domestic in the household, and she was the only one who escaped. She was sleeping in a side room with the youngest child, Edna, aged 2.

Bray struck his wife, Emma, aged 29, in the head with an ax. He then cut her throat with a razor. Carl, aged nine, was killed in the same way.

The insane murderer then proceeded to Mrs. Way's room and silently drew his sleeping child from under the covers, taking her into an adjoining room, where he put her to death. After that he slashed the razor across his own throat, cutting it from ear to ear.

Mrs. Way knew nothing of what had happened until she arose to prepare the breakfast, when the bloody bodies met her sight.

Mrs. Bray was a daughter of Daniel Burgess, a leading merchant of Newcastle. The family has been prominent in this county.

Mrs. Bray and the children had been struck by some blunt instrument and evidently stunned before the razor was used. She was found lying on a bed and the oldest child, a boy, on a lounge. Both died without a struggle. The partially deaf hired girl was not awakened, although a younger child, a little girl who slept beside her was taken into another room and then killed. Bray was found lying on the porch outside unconscious and died shortly afterwards. He had been sick for some time with typhoid fever and was probably insane at the time of the tragedy.

Hundreds from this city visited the place Friday. It is the most horrible tragedy ever committed in this county and every one is in a fever of excitement.

Forest Fires in Michigan.

ONTONAGON, Mich., Oct. 10.—Forest fires are still raging in this vicinity. There has been no rain in over three weeks. Toward Rockland the road is impassable. Much farm property has been destroyed. There have been fierce fires all around the Halliwell Mining company property at Camp Union, 20 miles west of Ontonagon. All the bridges over Union river are burned, also the Iron river bridge and nearly all of the 20 bridges between Camp Union and Ontonagon.

Prince Bismarck Ill.

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—The Volkszeitung says that Prince Bismarck is suffering from neuralgia and insomnia.

The Dauntless Going Southward.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 10.—Capt. John Myers, of the schooner Tortugas, now in port, reports having met the tug Dauntless off Canaveral Tuesday. The Dauntless was proceeding southward. The Dauntless is the alleged filibustering tug owned by W. A. Bisbee, of Jacksonville.

Dr. Bolton's Call.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 10.—Dr. B. Mead Bolton, bacteriologist of the board of health at Baltimore, Md., has been appointed professor in bacteriology and pathology by the board of curators of the Missouri State university.

UNHAPPY CUBA.

There is no Respect or Safety for American People.

Many of the Inhabitants Are Dying of Starvation—American Citizens Are Arrested and Shot Down Without the Semblance of Trial by Spaniards.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 12.—A prominent resident of this city, who once resided in Cuba but escaped with others in a small boat to the United States, received a letter from one of his sisters in that country Saturday. He read the accounts of the march of Gomez to the west, and knew he must have crossed the plantation of his brother-in-law on the Rouque, but he could only imagine their fate. The letter was dated at the American consulate in Matanzas, September 29, and was written in Spanish. The letter reads as follows:

"We are all together in this city, where we have been since January. Our home has been abandoned since the Gomez invasion. We have been trying to leave this country and settle in Alabama or Louisiana and will probably do so. You can not imagine the state of affairs in this unhappy country. The Spanish arrest and often murder the people in the country, and nobody is sure in the evening that he will be living in the morning. There is no respect or safety for American people. The island is literally desolated, everything burned and destroyed. It is impossible to do any business or earn a dollar in this unhappy island and the people of this once rich country are literally dying of starvation. We do not know what the end will be, but the present conditions are desperate. American citizens are shot down without the semblance of a trial, the murder always being outside the cities. The Spaniards start out with the prisoners, claiming that they are to remove them to other cities, but they shoot them down and then claim the prisoners attempted to escape. Cubans are winning nearly every battle and will certainly win their contest for freedom."

COMMANDER GILLPATRICK

Drops Dead of Heart Disease in His Office in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 12.—Commander W. W. Gillpatrick, of the United States navy, dropped dead of heart disease in his office in the Federal building Saturday morning at 10:30.

He had but recently returned from a several weeks' vacation spent in the Virginias and at Annapolis, Md., leaving his wife at the latter place.

For the past two years Commander Gillpatrick has had charge of the U. S. light-house service on the Ohio, Kanawha and Tennessee rivers and was preparing to make an inspection trip over the Fourteenth light-house district on the beacon light steamer Golden Rod.

Commander Gillpatrick was 55 years of age and his place of residence was Leavenworth, Kas. He entered the United States navy on September 30, 1852, and has been in continuous service for 34 years. He was in command of the United States steamer Chicago when ordered by the navy department to take command of this district. A few moments after he fell dead the postman entered the office with a letter from Mrs. Gillpatrick.

CRAZY MAN AMUCK.

His Shot Killed an Innocent Citizen Without the Slightest Cause.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 12.—A crazy man ran amuck through the streets of Atlanta and deliberately shot down a well known citizen whom the man did not know and for whose killing he could give no excuse whatever. The lunatic is Ben. H. Osborne, who is a brother of J. B. Osborne, a labor agitator quite well known throughout the United States.

The man who did the killing has once been in the asylum, and preparations were being made to send him back there again. He made his escape, however, and the tragedy referred to was one result of it. The man killed was Theodore Schraeder, foreman of the engraving department of the Atlanta Lithographic Co. The crime occurred near the corner of Lloyd and Alabama streets, right in the heart of the city. Osborne, when arrested and asked why he did the deed, would only say: "I don't know; I don't know; My brains have been stolen and a dog's placed in their stead.

Wood Workers Elect Officers.

DETROIT, Oct. 12.—The national convention of the Amalgamated Wood Workers of America elected the following officers: President, D. D. Mulcahy, Detroit; treasurer, Henry Engleking, of Chicago; secretary, Thos. A. Kidd, of Chicago. General council, Chas. F. Gebelein, of Baltimore; James G. Le Chance, of Minneapolis; J. W. Goggins, of St. Louis, and W. J. Wolfe, of Toronto. The headquarters will remain at Chicago. No more national conventions will be held by the body until the need of such a meeting becomes apparent.

Cotton Crop Report.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The returns to the statistical division of the department of agriculture, for October, make cotton show a decline of 3.5 points from the September condition, which was 64.2 per cent. against 60.7 for the present month. There was very small yield from the top crop and the reports say the crop will be all gathered by November 1.

Du Maurier's Remains Cremated.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The body of Geo. Du Maurier, the artist and novelist who died on the morning of October 8, was cremated at Woking Saturday afternoon. The ashes will be interred in the Hampstead church yard, October 13.

Splendid Gift to Yale.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 12.—Millionaire J. Montgomery Sears, of this city, presented the magnificent classical library of the noted German scholar, Ernst Curtin, to Yale college. The library consists of 3,580 rare classical volumes, pamphlets and old manuscripts.

BANK ROBBED

And Two Men Instantly Killed at Sherburne, Minn.—Two Men, One of Whom Looked Like a Mere Boy, Did the Job.

SHERBURNE, Minn., Oct. 8.—This town is in the wildest state of excitement over the most thrilling tragedy that ever occurred in southern Minnesota. The bank of Sherburne was robbed of a large sum of money, and two men were almost instantly killed, about twenty minutes after 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Two men, one of whom looked like a mere boy, rode along the main street on bicycles apparently sizing up the situation and stopped in front of the Bank of Sherburne. After a moment's talk they went into the bank and the elder of the men engaged Assistant Cashier George Thorburn in conversation.

Precisely what occurred inside the bank is not known, as nobody was on the street in that immediate vicinity at that time. One of the desperadoes, however, evidently got hold of a roll of bills containing about $1,000. Thornburn probably tried to prevent the men from getting away with the money and they whipped out their revolvers and began firing and at the same time retreating. One of the bullets struck Thorburn in the neck and another cut the aorta, causing almost instant death from internal hemorrhage.

The shooting in the bank aroused the town and people began running in that direction. The first man to reach the place was Olaf Oestern, of Luverne, a traveling salesman for the Wood Harvester Co., of St. Paul. The desperadoes evidently feared that they would be captured, as they quickly turned their firearms upon Oestern. He made a dash to grapple with them, but was not quick enough, as he was struck in the head and fell dead at their feet. They ran down in the street firing at random, while people in the street scurried to places of safety.

The fleeing robbers ran about three blocks to a clump of bushes, where they had cached their wheels, mounted them and rode rapidly away toward the Iowa line, six miles to the south.

Mayor C. E. Everett at once did all in his power, together with the town marshal, to run down the bandits. He also sent a dispatch to Gov. Clough at St. Paul, telling him of the awful tragedy, and asking his advice. The governor answered immediately; "Wire all points and send out posses surrounding Sherburne."

Sheriff Hill was at Fairmount, the county seat of Martin, 20 miles east, but he came on here by train and organized a large posse of determined Sherburne men, which moved southward on horseback late in the afternoon. As the roads are in fine condition, the desperadoes could have gone forty or fifty miles before the posse started.

It is needless to say that if the men are captured they will be strung up to the limb of the first tree big enough to bear them.

SHERBURNE, Minn., Oct. 8.—At 10 p. m. the sheriff's posse return to town, having found no trace of the desperadoes. A posse of 500 men left here at daylight.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 8.—At 9:30 o'clock Wednesday evening Gov. Clough issued a proclamation offering a reward of $500 for the capture of the robbers.

TWO BANK ROBBERIES.

Vault Blown Up and $1,500 Taken at Claytonia, Neb.—Bank of Shelby, Neb., Robbed of $3,100.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 8.—Two bank robberies were reported here Wednesday. Claytonia, a village in Gage county, 27 miles south of Lincoln, was aroused at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning by a loud explosion. It was soon found that the vault of the Clayton depository had been blown open and about $1,500 stolen. Two horses belonging to Rev. Edward Sallenbach were missing.

Three suspicious looking men had been camping in the woods and Tuesday were in the village buying bread. A large posse is scouring the country for the robbers. Wm. Steinmeyer, president of the bank, came to Lincoln Wednesday morning. While he was reporting the robbery to the police, Albert P. Anderson arrived to report that the Bank of Shelby, Polk county, had been robbed of $3,100. Mr. Anderson is president of the bank, and lives in Lincoln. He received word by wire that the robbery occurred about 2 o'clock. The burglar-proof safe was blown open with dynamite. Many heard the explosion and hurried to the bank, but found no one in sight. The post office at Glennville, 12 miles from Hastings, had its safe blown open Sunday night and $230, besides stamps, taken.

THEATER PANIC.

Several Women Knocked Down and Trampled at a Matinee in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8.—Several women were knocked down and trampled upon in a panic at Hopkins' Grand opera house during the matinee performance Wednesday afternoon. A woman giving her name as Josephine Wright, of Kansas City, fainted and was carried to an adjoining drug store. The panic was started by boys in the gallery yelling "Fire." An usher dropped a tray of glasses with a crashing noise and instantly men, women and children made a wild rush for the exits. The attendants and police succeeded in restoring order in about fifteen minutes. None of the victims were seriously injured.

Heavy Demands for Gold.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8.—For a week heavy demands have been made upon the United States sub-treasury here for gold by people presenting treasury notes and gold certificates.

There was an average of 20 in line all day Wednesday. At noon the maximum was double that number.

This gave rise to the report that local brokers had organized to take all the gold. It was explained by those in line that they were drawing the yellow metal to deposit owing to the uncertainty of the result of the election. There is still about $1,500,000 in gold in the vaults.

HEAVY GALES.

Schooner Alsatian Capsizes Near Baker Island and is a Total Loss.

The Crew With Difficulty Was Rescued—A Storm and High Tide Wrecks a Portion of the Piers at Atlantic City—Railway Traffic Suspended.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 12.—Schooner Alsatian, from Bath, lumber laden for Boston, capsized off Baker island Sunday afternoon and is a total loss. According to Capt. Oliver the Alsatian left Bath Saturday and at 2 o'clock Sunday morning the wind freshened and the sea increased so that the heavy swell shifted the deck load and opened the water ways.

The vessel soon filled and became unmanageable. Attempts to get into Rockport and Salem were futile and as the sea were breaking over the waterlogged craft, the crew were lashed to the rigging. All that could be done was to let the schooner drift before the wind and sea. She drifted near Thachers island and nearly swamped, the crew being rendered almost unconscious by the waves. When near Baker's island reef a sea carried off the mainmast, capsized the vessel and threw the crew of four overboard. They succeeded in grabbing wreckage that came from the deck load. In the meantime a fishing boat which arrived here reported seeing a waterlogged vessel off Eastern Point, and Capt. Young, of the steamer Helen May Butler, immediately started to the vessel's assistance. Upon overtaking the wrecked sailors, Capt. Young and Steward Anderson manned a boat and put off to save the nearly exhausted men. With great difficulty and just as the victims were sinking they were hauled into the boat. Two of the shipwrecked men were unconscious, but soon recovered. Owing to the heavy storm that was raging the rescue was an heroic one. Capt. Young and his steward nearly sacrificed their lives, as the boat filled three times before the shipwrecked men were got on board the steamer.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 12.—The northeast storm that has been traveling along the Atlantic coast struck this city Sunday morning, and in connection with an extraordinarily high tide has done considerable damage. Two of the three piers along the ocean front have sustained the greatest damage so far. About 200 feet of the iron pier at the foot of Massachusetts avenue have been battered away. A section of the wrecked schooner Metcalf, which was lying near the pier, was broken away by the surf, and for an hour or so it pounded with terrific force against the piling of the pier. The piling withstood the battering at first, but at last the middle section went down with a crash. The mass of wood from the wreck is still floating along the beach front and more damage may be done by it.

The center of the pier at the foot of Texas avenue has partially given way. It is expected that the weakened parts will go out to sea before morning. The bulkhead at Chelsea has been destroyed. Railroad travel on the Camden and Atlantic railroad has been suspended, owing to the high waters on the meadows submerging the tracks.

The entire force of the life saving crew were out Sunday night on the beach watching for any ship in distress. The cottages on the Meadow side of the city have been surrounded by water all day and the occupants have been compelled to use boats to get to and fro from their homes. The wind reached a velocity of 55 miles an hour Sunday.

Many railroad ties were floating in on the beach Sunday night and it is believed they indicate the washing away of the trolley railway on Brigantine beach.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Oct. 12.—Information of what may have been another ocean tragedy was obtained Saturday. James C. McCleace picked up on the south shore a bottle containing the following hastily scribbled note on a leaf of a book:

"Sept. 16.—We are off Nantucket 20 miles and are about to sink. Please notify my wife, Mrs. Mary Frazer, of Gloucester.

"(Signed) JOHN C. FRAZER."

"We will never reach shore alive. Good-by."

The gale has increased steadily for the past 24 hours and blew a hurricane Sunday night. Small boats are being sunk at their moorings, but shipping was so thoroughly warned in advance that no other wrecks are anticipated. A small fleet of vessels anchored off Sankety Head Saturday night and made this harbor Sunday morning. One three-master is anchored in the sound near Great Point, and is in a dangerous position.

EDWARD W. BENSON,

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Stricken With Apoplexy During Divine Service, and Dies Almost Immediately.

LONDON, Oct. 12—Hon. and Most Rev. Edward White Benson, archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England, was stricken with apoplexy during divine service in the Hawarden church Sunday morning and died almost immediately, his death occurring at 11:45 a. m. Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone were in their pew when the archbishop was stricken. Archbishop Benson was 67 years of age.

Thos. E. Watson Ill.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 12.—Reports from Thomson, the home of Thomas E. Watson, are that the populist vice presidential candidate is confined to his room with a bad sore throat and is under treatment by his physician. H. W. Reed populist committeeman from Georgia, is in consultation with him and in telegraphic communication with Marion Butler. Mr. Watson has been ill since Tuesday night, and has been continually getting worse. No one is allowed to see him except Reed, whose mission is relative to Watson's candidacy and members of his family.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Oct. 14, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time	$1.00
Each additional time	.25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch	.50
☞Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered	$5.00.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

Neighborhood News.

Walton.

Oct. 11.—Mr. Ebright made a Republican speech at the Opera House, Saturday night. Mr. H. D. Rucker, the Free Silver Republican, who made such an impression on last Wednesday night, happening to be in town, asked the privilege of answering him, which was denied. He took notes of Ebright's speech, and this morning at the request of the RECORDER handed in the following comments:

He said the silver dollar was increased from 15½ to 1 to 16 to 1 in 1834. He should have said that the number of grains in a gold dollar had been reduced in 1834 and through that reduction the silver dollar become a 16 to 1 dollar.

Mr. Ebright in speaking of the crime of '73 used the gold stock argument, claiming that the bill was discussed for two years before its passage, and 5,000 copies of it had been sent to the bankers and financiers throughout the country (and he might have added London) for their approval. He should have told how that bill had been changed in the committee; how the chairman of that committee reported the bill back to Congress; how the previous question was asked and how the bill passed as it came from the committee without being read (Mr. Ebright might read the Congressional Record of April 9th, 1872, with fright. By so doing he will form the acquaintance of Mr. Ernest Slyd, a London financier, who is interested in the bill.) After the bill had passed it was discovered that the dollar had been dropped and the trade dollar substituted with a legal tender of $5.

Mr. Ebright then jumped to 1878. He should have tarried awhile at 1876, because it was in that year that the trade dollar was dropped from coinage and the last vestige of the dollar coinage swept away.

Mr. Ebright says Congress in 1872, provided money for the people by making an Eagle 10 units of value He should have said that the Spanish Milled dollar of 371¼ grains of pure silver was made the unit of value, and the Eagle or $10 gold piece contained ten such units. In other words: The silver dollar was made the unit of value and not the $10 gold piece. How could 10 units have been made, unless there first had been a unit?

He said President Jefferson stopped the coinage of silver dollar in 1806, and if any crime had ever been committed against silver, President Jefferson was guilty of it. Mr. Ebright stopped right there. He should have told his audience that the reason Mr. Jefferson stopped the coinage of the silver dollar was because it contained more silver than the Foreign Silver of like valuation, and foreign brokers advantageously speculated in it to such an extent that all our silver dollars went abroad. On that account Mr. Jefferson authorized the Directors of the Mint to not coin any more silver dollars, but to coin all the silver bullion presented at the mints into 50, 25 and 10 cent pieces, and under such instructions ALL silver bullion was coined into money when presented at the mints.

The speaker spoke of the great profit to be gained by the silver mine owners, and then, in the very next breath, said that free coinage would give us 50 cent dollars. We acknoledge that it costs 53 cents per ounce to mine silver, and if the dollar will be only a 50 cent dollar, our mine owners would become bankrupt if they attempted to supply the market. Every time Mr. Ebright spoke of a 50 cent dollar he seemed to wear a repressed smile which signified that he did not believe his own assertion.

His reason for the Mexican dollar being worth 50 cents was on account of it having no redeemer, while the American dollar is redeemable in gold. But here the speaker caught himself by saying that it was in an indirect manner through the greenback system, by which we have issued 262 millions in bonds.

He failed to state that silver is a commodity and gold is money. If the position of the metal was reversed, we would find silver occupying the place of gold. For reference I will take Austria, Prussia and the South German States who demonetized gold in 1857, and had it not been for France maintaining the parity of the two metals the world would have been on a basis of silver monometallism.

He spoke of cheap silver. To-day we have 528 millions more gold in the world than we have silver. The reason silver is cheap is because it is a commodity and is measured by gold.

He said we had more money than ever. In that he is mistaken. From Oct. 1, 1894 to Oct. 1, 1895, we fell 69 million in circulation, and from Oct. 1, 1895 to Oct. 1, 1896, we fell 79 million. The per capita has fallen from $23.57 to $21.18.

Mr. Ebright is a smart man and a good, fluent speaker, and he did the best he could under the circumstances. His eulogy on Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle and the national banker, was masterful in point of effort and language, and it fully demonstrated that the Republican party intends to maintain the Cleveland policy if given power. May the Lord of Hosts deliver us from such,

Taylorsport.

Miss Martha Wilson was visiting relatives at Milan, Ind, the past week.

The Coney Island Company is building a new house in the grove.

Geo. Clore, Misses Anna and Ada Graves, of Independence, spent a few days with J. H. Eddins and wife, last week.

The Republicans are flooding this neighborhood with gold literature and are endeavoring to carry this precinct.

Mrs. Soothorn is very sick at her daughter, Mrs. Hood, at Home City, O.

Andy Ernste and family were visiting Lee Manin and wife, of Elizabethtown, Ind., last week.

There is talk of the Coney Island Co., building a Lagoon at Parlor Grove.

Mr. Orem, the photographer, of Indiana, was in these parts, last week, taking pictures.

This is the banner Republican precinct in the county and there has not been one Democratic speech made here yet. Come, you who toot your horn—16 to 1.

Limaburg.

The Limaburg reading club closed with a social at W. F. Cloud's last Thursday evening. The entertainment consisted of select readings, recitations, &c. A lunch of cake and pickles, furnished by the young ladies of the society, was served. Of the prizes awarded Miss Lulie Tanner received the first and Miss Eva Garnett second.

E. J. Utz, L. S. Beemon and W. R. Rouse attended the Hamilton, Ohio, fair last week.

Miss Hallie Loring has 28 scholars.

As they were going home from the party last Thursday night, the horse driven by Harvey Tanner and Buddie Baker, ran off. They were thrown from the buggy, and shaken up slightly. The horse was stopped by Alonzo Beemon after it had run a considerable distance.

Limaburg has three political tickets—2 of gold and 1 silver.

Farmers are busy husking corn and digging Irish potatoes. Both crops yield well.

Big Bone.

The Big Bone Free Coinage of Gold and Silver Club visited Patriot, Ind., in a body, last Saturday, and assisted in raising a large hickory pole. All present enjoyed the exercise of the day and speak highly of the enthusiasm displayed by the orators of the day and the voters generally.

Next Saturday, Oct. 17th, our club, with the Beaver Lick and Union clubs, will meet at Beaver Lick at an early hour in the morning, and with music and banners, will march to Walton to be present at and participate in the grand Bryan and free silver and gold rally. Every body should go and hear genuine money inspiration.

Miss Edith McLaughlin, of Covington, and Miss Juliet Fick[illegible], of Maysville, grand daughters of the venerable C. A. McLaughlin, left here Saturday for their respective homes, after spending the summer at the accommodating Clay House.

Petersburg.

Died—Oct. 9th, at 5 o'clock a. m, aunt Jane Casey, mother of our esteemed friend, Wm. Casey. She was about 80 years of age, and had been a woman of wonderful strength of body and mind. Only the day before her death she was out on the street and about the house, superintending her work. No woman was more attentive to business nor held in higher esteem for integrity and warm-hearted liberality than our aged friend. A while before she passed away she put her arms about the neck of her dear boy and said; "Willie, be a good boy," and then said if she could only take him with her she would be willing to go. It can be truly said that no mother ever felt a deeper interest in her child, nor child ever loved a mother more tenderly. O, that children would be more appreciative of parents while they are spared to them!

Prof. Goetz's popular military band will give the "Pops" this winter in the new Liedertafal hall at Lawrenceburg.

Our young friends Helms and Whiting, will take part in these great concerts.

Mrs. E. T. Krutz has returned from a visit to Warsaw, Ky. Mrs. M. S. Hardin from Florence, Ind.

Mr. Lafe Helms now advocates "free silver." That's the way of the wise.

Mrs. Comer and daughter, Georgie, have returned to their home at Indianapolis, after a week's visit here.

The family and furniture of Bro. Mr. Harris, our Methodist minister, arrived Friday night on the Workum.

Dr. Chas. Grant arrived here from Red Sulpher Springs, W. Va., Thursday night. He is looking well and hearty.

Wm McWethy has moved back from Owensboro, Ky., where he has been living for a few years.

Ben Passon, of Illinois, is visiting his father here, but thinks he will return in time to vote for McKinley. We think he'd better stay here a while.

Job Morrison has moved back to the Loder house. Leon has moved to the Weindel property on market street.

Prof. Goetz will give one of his popular concerts in Gordon Bros' hall this winter. It should draw a large crowd.

Mrs. Emma Pease and family enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Frank Laws and wife last Sunday.

There are people in this world who envy the properous, and because they are not prosperous they start stories that press heavily upon the hearts of their fellowman. O, shame! that there should exist such creatures.

Arthur Evans, who left here about 3 years ago, has returned, bringing with him his better half. He is looking as "juicy" as ever.

The Epworth League held a business meeting last Thursday night. They elected Earl Whiting president; Bro. Harris, first vice-president; Lou Barnett, second, Ella Alcorn third. Nellie Krutz, secretary, Ethel Buchanan treasurer.

Bullittsville.

James Blanton passed through town Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Will Garnett, of Slater, Mo., is visiting her numerous relatives and friends here.

The many friends of Mrs. Sallie Calamese will be sorry to hear that her youngest child, Laura Ester, was buried last Sunday a week.

Protracted meeting is in progress at the Christian Church. There has been three additions and much interest is being manifested.

Mrs. Fulton, of Florence, who has been the guest of Mrs. F. E. Kirtley for the last two weeks, has returned home. Mr. John Fulton and wife were also pleasantly entertained on Saturday.

Miss Bessie Garnett and Mrs. Eunie Arnold have returned to their homes in Missouri. Owen Stephens accompanied them to Slater where he will visit for several weeks, and then go into business at Ashland, Kansas. His absence is much felt by his host of friends here, who are ardently wishing him great success.

Hathaway.

Every one to a man, nearly, attended the big Democrat rally at Burlington. All are for free silver and Bryan with all their heart and soul.

Mr. Clark Rouse is talking of building this fall.

T. L. Utz, who has been here at his father's, A. J. Utz, for the past week, has gone home.

Very sorry to hear of the sickness of Jene Riley at Union.

T. J. Stephens delivered some very fine locust posts to Leonard Lassing, last week.

Richard Stephens, of Rabbit Hash and Minnie Stephens, of this place, took every one by surprise and went to Lawrenceburg October 1, and were joined in the holy bonds of wedlock. Dick and his bride have our heart felt wishes for their happiness, and may their path be strewn with roses.

Mr. Roberts is progressing nicely with his singing school at Big Bone church.

Utzinger.

The river is still rising.

Chickens are dying with cholera.

Mrs. Julius Utzinger is in poor health.

We have had no Indian summer yet.

Sauerkraut and fresh pork are on the bill of fare.

It is said that Dr. Weindel will locate in Australia.

John Acra still has standing a fine field of tobacco.

Miss Fannie Cave is visiting relatives at Indianapolis, Ind.

Nine-tenths of the crimes committed are caused by whisky.

Some corn has been sold for 25 cents per bushel in the field.

Did you see B. R. Gaines' big cane he carried in the parade?

Prof. Grasser and his scholars were out nutting, last Sunday.

Ed Botts and his hounds were chasing reynard, one day last week.

Miss Jennie Botts, of Bellevue, was visiting her sister here, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. S. Whitaker have returned from a pleasant trip North.

D. E. Castleman spoke to the people at Woolper school house, Friday night.

Thos. Randall, Ethel, Alta and Marshall Terrill are attending school in Aurora.

Judge Downey, of Aurora, spoke at Pete last Thursday night. He is a good talker.

Eugene Pappet and son, life long Republicans, have joined the free silver host.

Miss Ida Hoffman, of Petersburg, was visiting relatives here, the latter part of last week.

Rev. Harris, of Bourbon county, our new Methodist minister has moved to Petersburg.

W. D. Cropper, our handsome postmaster, has been on the sick list for two or three weeks.

The people of Petersburg will miss J. Frank Grant, as he donated liberally to all worthy causes.

Owsley, son of Dr. Horace Grant, of Louisville, is visiting his uncle, J. F. Grant, at Petersburg.

John W. Early has painted his residence in town. Coming events cast their shadows before.

Benj. Passons, who has been out West, for a number of years, is visiting his father at Petersburg.

Applegate, Tolin & Co., put the finishing touches on uncle Tom Whittaker's residence, last week.

Leslie Balsly is teaching at the brick school house, and Miss Bessie Dolph at the Woolper school house.

The "High Teas" danced all night and went home with the girls in the morning, last Friday night.

Not much wheat has been sown in this vicinity for fear that the chinch bug will destroy it in the spring.

Grant Hensley has sued the city of Danville for $5,000 damages, for being arrested and searched on suspicion.

Strange lights have been seen in a vacant house near town, lately, and the boys shut their eyes as they pass by.

Jim Bradford and Sim Strader, two colored "gen'mens" got into a fight and Jim cracked Sim's head with a rock.

J. D. Parker, of Cincinnati, spoke to a multitude of Democrats at the Gasburg school house, one night not long since.

Some fellows will talk about other people when it is 16 to 1 that they have a worse failing than their victims whom they seek to devour.

Henry Hall, well known in this county, has joined the church and is now watchman at the Addyston, Ohio, Pipe and Steel Works.

If a strange item appears in the RECORDER from this end of the county that don't suit everybody, we are accused of being the author. We plead not guilty.

We thought we saw Gov. Bryan, of Covington, in the crowd at Burlington last Monday a week, and was showing him to some of our Indiana friends. It was Dr. Smith, of Big Bone.

Verona.

New Bethel protracted meeting closed last Sunday night. The ordiance of Baptism took place at Marshall Whitson's pond, Sunday morning.

Robt. O. Powers has a fine lot of apples which he is selling at reasonable prices.

An estimate of the vote of the precinct has been carefully taken and it is correct that there is just 16 silver men to 1 gold bug.

Mary Roberts who has been very low with fever we are glad to report is recovering.

Thos. A. Johnson is again very poorly.

Erlanger.

Miss Maggie Riggs, of Wyoming, O., is the guest of Miss Mattie Hoover.

A delightful surprise was tendered Master J. K. Carlin in honor of his 12th birthday. Among those present were Masters Lonnie, Clifford, Walter, Edwin and Russell Victors, Daniel Ulery, Eddie Arrison, John Broughton, Robt. and Willie Bollin.

A young colored lad by the name of Charley Utz, got into a dispute with some of the other boys, and getting angry, threw a large rock and hit Lonnie Price on the side of the head. He was taken to Dr. Slater's office who attended him. The boy is in a serious condition. The colored boy escaped.

Miss Minnie Hilker entertained the Floral Club, Thursday evening at her home on Erlanger road. Among those present were Misses Nellie and Lucy Rouse, Lucy Lancaster, Kate Walton, Lizzie Bentham, Sallie Stephens and Lizzie Hilker. Messrs. Dr. Rouse. Kirb Tanner, Linden Sewell, Lane Riggs, Carl Bradford, Otho Rouse and Charles Hilker.

A deaf and dumb young man while walking along the track Sunday morning was struck by passenger train No. 5, and thrown off. The engineer stopped his train and brought him to Erlanger where he was relieved of his pains by Drs. Slater and McCullum. He was sent in an ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Lost—A fine thin rind sow—been gone about six weeks. Any information as to her will be thankfully received.

3t S. S. SMITH, Gunpowder, Ky.

Livery Stable.

I am now fully equipped for taking of care Horses and Buggies, and keep

GOOD RIGS FOR HIRE

at reasonable rates.

W. A. CRIGLER,
Bromley, Ky.

THE QUEEN & CRESCENT
ROUTE

Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain. The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN. Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.

Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.

Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

What Others Say

Or do does not matter. Here is where the real money-saving Bargains are found.

It wouldn't do, you know, to carry our light-colored Suits over till next season, so we have determined to force the sale on them by cutting the price. We are not offering goods

At "HALF PRICE."

We do even better than that—we sell them at "HALF THEIR VALUE."

Remember, "Your Money Back if you want it"

Guarantees Perfect Satisfaction.

ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS

S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

STEPHENS & SCALES,

—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN—

Hardware, Cutlery, and Agrcultural Implements,

Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Steel Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,

BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE

AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.

No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.

Try the PETERSBURG FLOUR MILL.

FLOUR exchanged for WHEAT at all times and guaranteed. Call and get my prices on wheat. Also have on hand at all times

Mill Feed OF ALL KINDS,

AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

GOOD COAL IN THE YARD AT ALL TIMES,

☞Price, 10 cents per Bushel.☜

sept-24 BEN BELDEN, Petersburg, Ky.

BEST GOODS! LIVING PRICES!

Hardware,
Farm Machinery,
Fine Vehicles,
Harness.

HARRIS FITCH, Corner HIGH AND SHORT STREETS,

LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

J. J. GEISEN,

HATTER AND GENT'S

FURNISHING GOODS,

615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.

Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVERY COMPANY.

62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,

E. H. BAKER, Proprietor

(o)

Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.

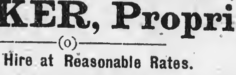
Telephone 580.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.

Prices Reasonable.

F. PIEPER,

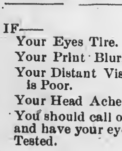
Optician and Jeweler,



Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to

We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.

616 Madison Ave., - - COVINGTON, KY.



FALL'S

"FREE SILVER on TOP BADGE"

Is the Latest Out.

Send 12c to P. T. FALL 737 Greenup St, COVINGTON, KY., and get one.

KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.

[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A. M.			A. M.	P. M
d 4:50	z 9:13	Ar Walton	Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8.52	Ar Williamstown	Lv	8:32
3:48	8.28	Ar Corinth	Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar Sadieville	Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar Georgetown	Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv Frankfort	Ar	11:30	7:25

z Daily. d Except Sunday.

C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.

Taken up—A red heifer, 2 years old. Owner must pay for this notice and prove property.

J. L. FRAZIER, Union, Ky.

For sale—First-class Thinrind Boar, 12 months old. W. F. GRANT.

Take Your COUNTY
PAPER.

Administrators Notice.

All persons having claims against the estate of Josiah Walton, deceased, are requested to present to us properly proven at the law office of D. E. Castleman, Burlington, Ky.

R. L. HUEY,
ERNEST WALTON, Admr's.

August 17th, 1896.

NOTICE—My graded Shorthorn Bull is making the season at James Delph's on the Florence pike, at $1.

W. H. ROUSE.

Local News.

The corn needs dry, crisp weather.

The trees are showing the effects of the frosts.

There have been some heavy frosts already this fall.

Go to the speaking at Florence to-night (Wednesday.)

Corn is selling here at 25 to 30 cents per bushel, put in the crib.

The trustees have put some new furniture in the school house here.

The weather has been very favorable to the small grain so far this fall..

Sam Ackmyer addressed the Democrats at Hebron, last Saturday evening.

The fiscal court was in session on the 6th inst., and allowed claims to the amount of about $700.

Evan Acra raised corn this year, the stalks of which grew to the remarkable height of 14 feet 8 inches.

Rice & Vest sold J. O. Huey's farm of 133 acres in the Locust Grove neighborhood, to A. W. Gaines for $3,500.

Those who desire to hear some good speaking will go to Florence to-night, (Wednesday), where the Democrats will have several orators.

Eighth Ky. Cavalry.—Reunion at Nicholasville, October 21st. Round trip via Queen & Crescent from all points in Kentucky at one fare. Ask agents for particulars.

Those wanting to rent any of the refreshment privileges at the Democratic Rally at Walton, next Saturday, must apply to Daniel Vest who has charge of the grounds.

Last county court day Mr. Benjamin Rice brought to town samples of two crops of apples borne by the same tree this season. Those of the second crop were small, and shaped like pears.

While in Petersburg last Saturday, we went through Gordon Bros' new building, which is certainly a credit to the town. The commodious hall above the store is the best in the county.

In another column will be found the sale advertisement of J. O. Huey. The people of this county are sorry to lose Mr. Huey as a citizen. He has not decided where he will locate permanently.

Dr. E. P. Damerou, dentist, will be in Burlington, on the first Monday in each month. Teeth will be extracted positively without pain by the use of "Odontunder." References:—Mrs. E. H. Blankenbeeker and Mrs. Virginia A. Corey, of Florence; Mrs. R. S. Crisler, of Burlington.

Monday Morning Atty. Castleman and Sheriff Roberts undertook to settle the question as to which is the better man. They repaired to the court house yard, where they "locked horns" and threw open the throttle, but neither was able to summon enough strength to down the other, and the affair was called a draw. When it comes to wrestling they are hard to handle.

Elijah Parker, one of Gasburg's sterling Democrats, has been looking over the names of the candidates for the presidency in the past, and says that the names of more than half of those who have been elected ended with the letter "n," and that no presidential candidate whose name ended with "y" was ever successful.

W. A. Gaines, Covington's colored politician, spoke at the colored school house here last Thursday night to quite a number of colored voters. Gaines is a pretty sharp negro and creates considerable enthusiasm among the colored voters. Several white voters, both Democratic and Republican, heard the speech. This is the first campaign in which the Republicans ever had speaking here for the benefit of the colored voters. They must think some of them are getting lukowarm.

The Burlington and Petersburg ball teams played a close and interesting game on the grounds of the latter club last Saturday afternoon. The Petersburg boys pulled out of the hole in the eighth inning and won out in the ninth, changing into victory what at one time looked like sure defeat. Alloway and Brady were in good form, there being five hits off of Alloway and seven off of Brady, while each struck out 8 men.

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9—
Burlington	2	0	0	0	0	2	0	1	0—5
Petersburg	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	5	2—7

Jack Horton, who escaped from jail some time since, is behind the bars again, where he has to remain about 30 days to complete his sentence of six months for petit larceny. Jack came to town just before dark last Thursday evening, and went to the house of Mrs. Bradberry, who is his relative. Jailer Crisler was informed that Horton was in town, and calling to his assistance, deputy sheriff Beall, they "surrounded" the house and Horton surrendered without a word. It is generally believed that Jack came back to be captured in order to make another month's board off of the county.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. U. C. Ambrose, of Berkshire, was in town Monday.

Addison Riddell, of Beaver, was in town last Thursday.

J. B. Berkshire and wife were visiting at Petersburg the first of this week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Huey, of Union, was the guest of friends in Burlington, last week.

Sheriff Roberts was at Walton and Verona, last Thursday and Friday, collecting taxes.

Thos. Hogan was visiting his parents the first of this week. He is now studying telegraphy.

Mrs. John M. Hunt, of Georgetown, Scott county, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Revill.

S. W. Tolin spoke at Walton, last Wednesday night. He reported an enthusiastic meeting.

Dr. Slater, of Erlanger, has returned from Ashville, North Carolina, very much improved in health.

Mrs. Riley, of Wheatley, Owen county, has been the guest of her son, Dr. Furnish, for several days.

Mrs. Emily Presser and Mrs. Hal Presser, of Hathaway, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Ryle, Monday.

Dr. J. J. Dulauey, who was hurt a few weeks since, by his horses running off and upsetting his carriage has not recovered sufficiently to be taken home.

Mr. J. H. Lawell, of Rabbit Hash, went to Bourbon county, last week, with a view to investing in blue grass land.

Mrs. Wallace Garrison, Mrs. Jno. Garrison and Miss Annie Rice, of Union, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Adams, last Wednesday.

Our friend Sam Ackmyer, has developed into a campaign orator, and those who have heard him say he makes a good speech—clear, concise, forcible.

Thos. G. Tupman, wife and daughter, of Bakersfield, California, who have been visiting their relatives in Kenton and Boone counties for some time, will start back home this week.

While in Petersburg last Saturday we met Dr. Chas. L. Graut, and were glad to find him looking so well, and hope it will be but a short time until his health will be perfectly restored.

Mrs. F. J. Bentham, of Florence, entertained from the 3d to the 16th in honor of her brother's wife, Mrs. Thos. Ironfield, of Canada. Mr. John Bentham will be welcome home in December.

L. E. Clore, who was kicked by a horse nearly three weeks ago, has not regained consciousness and is still in a very precarious condition, and his family and friends are very uneasy about him. There were five physicians to see him Tuesday morning, among them Dr. Conner, the noted surgeon of Cincinnati.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

Hon. H. D. Rucker, of Cincinnati, will address the Democrats at the Court House in Burlington, at 7 o'clock p. m., next Friday night, (Oct. 16th.) All are invited to come out and hear him.

Hon. R. P. Erust, Republican candidate for Congress, will speak at the Court House in Burlington, Thursday, October 15th, 1896, at 7 o'clock p. m. All are invited to come and hear him.

Please announce in your paper that I will speak in the court house at Burlington, on the night of the 15th inst. If anyone else wishes to speak I will gladly divide time with them. As this is my first effort in political oratory, I would be glad to see as many of my friends as will come. I extend a special invitation to the ladies. To those who differ with me upon the political issues I assure that their opinions will be respected. I am one of those who believe that an argument is never strengthened by the use of abusive language. I am for my country first, last and all the time. It is this that prompts me to make the speech I propose to make.
G. C. Graddy.

Trotting Horse Breeders Association. Lexington, Ky., Oct. 6th to 16th, 1896. Round trip tickets via Queen & Crescent Route for one fare good until Oct. 17th to return. No extra charge on vestibuled trains. Ask agents for particulars.
W. C. Rinearson,
Gen. Pas. Agt. Cincinnati, O.

Heury, the bright five or six year-old son of Hon. T. B. Mathews, of Petersburg, died of diphtheria at Sander, Carroll county, last Saturday morning. Mrs. Mathews and her two children were spending a few weeks at Sanders, when the son was stricken with the dreadful disease which baffled the best medical skill that could be obtained. The bereaved father and mother have the sympathy of all in their great sorrow.

Constable Addison Riddell, of Beaver lodged Benjamin McManama of the same place in jail last Saturday. McManama was charged with incest, and upon the examining trial held last Monday, Judge Stephens remanded the accused to jail to await the action of the grand jury. His bail was fixed at $300, which he has, as yet, been unable to give. Quite a number of the citizens of the Beaver neighborhood were present at the trial.

DEMOCRATIC Rally!

—AT—

WALTON, KY.

(Boone County.

Saturday, Oct. 17, 1896.

At which the following speakers will address the crowd:

ROBT. J. BRECKINRIDGE, Of Danville.
JOHN C. CARTER, of Vevay, Ind.
A. S. BERRY, of Newport.
J. C. S. BLACKBURN, of Versailles.

Everybody is invited to attend and bring Baskets of Provisions to assist in feeding the great throng of peop!

COMMITTEES:

Arrangements—B. L. Rice, O. Percival, Benj. Stephens, T. F. Curley, A. C. Roberts, B. S. O'Neal, H. C. Diers, Geo. Roberts, John Bagby, J. C. Byland, Joseph Cobb, Jas. T. Holder.

This committee will meet at Walton at 9 a. m. October 9th.

On Music—John Stephens and John Conner.

Finance—F. A. Utz, Reuben Conner, David Haley, John Conner, Sam Ackmyerc, A. C. Roberts, John Cloud, Ome Rogers, Harry Adams, Geo. W. Sleet, Geo. Berkshire, John P. Ryle.

On Reception—Dr. Crouch, Sidney Gaines, W. L. Riddell, D. E. Castleman, Reuben Conuer, T. F. Curley, S. C. Johnson, Frank Gordon, Ed E. Fry, Joseph Palmer, Jeff Childress, Dr. J. A. Loomis, A. Carter, C. C. Cram, George Steet, John Stephens. W. W. Grimsley, Chas. Schramm.

The Gasburg Democratic Club turned out in full force last Saturday afternoon, and visited Petersburg, where the line of march was over the principal streets of the town. D. E. Castleman and Sam Ackmyer, who addressed the club that afternoon, were met at Petersburg and escorted to the Gasburg school house, at which place the Democrats from the surrounding country had assembled to listen to the gospel of true Democracy, and which was given to them in good style by the speakers.

Mrs. M. F. Wingate, of Petersburg, died of typhoid fever, last Monday, after several weeks' illness. The husband and one son have been very low of the same disease, but have been improving slowly. Mrs. Wingate was a daughter of Mr. T. P. Crisler, of Bullittsville, and was a most estimable lady, and was honored and loved by all who knew her. The husband and children have many friends who mingle tears of sorrow with theirs.

While in Petersburg, last Saturday, we called on our friend, Richard McWethy, at his place of business. We found him fat, happy and as companionable as of yore. "Dick" is one of those fellows who to know is to admire.

The Republican clubs at Erlanger were addressed by Hon. Mc D. Shaw, last Friday night. The town hall was well filled by enthusiastic Republicans.

The Democrats are very anxious for next Saturday to fine day. If it is the Walton rally will be a tremennos affair.

You can not depend on the weather now.

WALTON—There was a grand outpouring of the Democrats, last Wednesday night. The opera house was crowded. Judge Cram opened the meeting with a stirring speech, replete with facts and figures, commanding the closest attention for an hour, frequently interrupted with outbursts of applause. Col. A. S. Berry next took the stand and held forth the doctrines of Free Silver for an hour and quarter in a manner that surprised even his most devoted admirers. It was really a magnificent address, and won the admiration of everyone who heard it, and all were convinced that at heart the Colonel is a sincere friend of the white metal, or he could not have made such a masterful oration as he did. The next speaker was Mr. H. D. Rucker, a free silver Republican, originator four years ago of the first McKinley club organized in the United States. He was a success from the start and had the people with him to the end. He stands ready to debate the currency question with anyone at any time. Hon. S. W. Tolin took up the subject at half past ten, and held the attention of the people for an hour. Either the subject or the speakers must have been deeply interesting, for very few persons left the hall during the meeting.

Scarlet fever is on the [illegible]

The Wal[illegible]

[illegible]

Public Sale!

I will offer for sale at my late residence, 5 miles south of Burlington,

Thursday, October 29, 1896

The following property:

25 good stock ewes and 1 2 year-old Hampshire Buck, 7 cattle, including 2 milch cows, 2 2-yr-old heifers, 1 yearling steer, 15 stock hogs, one Champion Mower and hayrake, haybed, wagon, road cart, plows and harrows and other farming implements; 1 oak sideboard, 1 bed room set, extension table, cook stove and other household goods; 3,500 shingles, about 1,400 new oak pickets.

TERMS OF SALE.

Credit of 9 months on sums over $5, purchaser to give note payable in the Boone Co. Deposit Bank; sums under $5, cash.

J. O. HUEY.

Sale to begin at 9 o'clock a. m.

The following were appointed officers of election for this year:

Petersburg—James W. Loder and Elihu Alden, judges; Elijah Parker, clerk; Wm. Casey, sheriff.

Carlton—J. J. Stephens and Z. T. Kelley, judges; G. H. Wilson, clerk; O. P. Craig, sheriff.

Bullittsville—Frank Hossman and Owen Gaines, judges; Owen Watts, clerk; Ross Shinkle, sheriff.

Florence—W. E. Clutterbuck and J. W. Nead, judges; Butler Carpenter, clerk; John Olsner, sheriff.

Bellevue—D. M. Snyder and John M. Moody, judges; Cyrus Kelly, clerk; B. F. Rogers, sheriff.

Constance—Henry McNeal and F. H. Russell, judges; W. B. Grubbs, clerk; J. W. Riggs, sheriff.

Verona—J. N. Dickerson and Ben Oneal, judges; J. R. Johnson, clerk; W. H. Adams, sheriff.

Burlington—Geo. Blyth and Sidney Gaines, judges; Tim Westbay, clerk; W. T. German, sheriff.

Hamilton—M. E. Hance and W. H. Moore, judges; G. M. Allen, clerk; Jas. B. Allen, sheriff.

Union—J. L. Riley and J. R. Dunbar, judges; J. L. Frazier, clerk; E. L. Riley, sheriff.

Beaver—G. M. Moore and John Turner, judges; Chas. Sleet, clerk; Thos. Finuell, sheriff.

Walton—David Haley and S. L. Edwards, judges; A. R. Johnson, clerk; Sam Taylor, sheriff.

Queen & Crescent Low Rates.
Boston, Mass., American Missionary Ass'n. Oct. 20th to 22nd.
St. Louis, Mo., American Street Ry. Ass'n. Oct. 20th to 23rd.
Masonic Grand Lodge Oct. 20th to 24th, at Louisville, Ky. Tickets from points in Kentucky on certificate plan.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.
Christopher Barlow's Executor, Plff.
vs
Matilda J. Barlow, &c, Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against Christopher Barlow's estate will present them to me properly proven according to law.

J. B. Berkshire, Master Com.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.
E. M. Gaines' Assignee, Plff.
vs.
Farmers & Traders Nat. Bank, Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896 All persons having claims against E. M. Gaines' estate will present them to me properly proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

NOTICE.

All persons holding claims against J. R. Clutterbuck must present them to me at my office in Burlington, Ky., proven as by law required and persons indebted to the said Clutterbuck must settle with me at once.

S. W. TOLIN, Assignee.
Sept. 10th, 1896.

Executor's Notice.

Those indebted to the estate of Jas. H. Wilson, dec'd., must come forward and settle at once, and those having claims against said estate must present the same at once proven according to law.

MONTGOMERY ANDERSON.
Executor.

Wm. F. GOETZE
Scientific Optician.
Headquarters at Hornberger's Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.

Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? [illegible] you wealth. [illegible]

16 to 1.

You will always find that we give you 16 ounces to every 1 pound you buy of us.

We Have Cut Down Profits to Suit the Hard Times.

The large amount of Goods we are Selling every day is sufficient proof of the above statement.

Give us a call,

W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,
DEALERS IN
PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,
63 and 65 Pike Street,
Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.
ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.
CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.
27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.
Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDER- TAKER EMBAL- MER,
Corner Pike & Russell Streets,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,
Undertakers AND Embalmers,
OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,
COVINGTON, KY.
CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.
Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL,
WHOLESALE AND
RETAIL GROCER,
GRASS SEED.
Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.
Tom Wilson, Salesman.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.

We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office

And FEED STORE from
708 Madison Avenue
To the Large and more Commodious Quarters
15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.
Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with
GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED
At the Lowest Market Values.

Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,

W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANTS,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.

A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.

UNDERTAKING.

is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. Hankins.

Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

FOR BRYAN AND SEWALL.

Vice President Stevenson Stands Up at St. Louis for Free Silver.

Saturday, October 3, was the opening day of the quadrennial convention of the National Association of Democratic Clubs. It was about 10:30 in the forenoon when the delegates and visitors began to assemble at the Auditorium, where the convention was held, and it was almost an hour later when President F. Black called the meeting to order. At least 300 delegates were present, and the vast hall was well filled with visitors. President Black delivered his quadrennial address, in which he declared that the cause the democratic party was supporting was that of no class, no section, but of the people as a whole.

Mr. Black was frequently interrupted by applause. When he had finished he introduced Vice President Stevenson, who said:

"For what do the real candidates for the presidency stand? Will the public interests—the interests of all the people—best be subserved by the success of the democratic party, or by the return of its antagonist to power? It must be remembered that during the 32 years immediately preceding the inauguration of President Cleveland on the 4th of March, 1893, there was no single moment that the democratic party controlled the presidency and both houses of congress; never a moment that it could place a single law upon the statute books. For all the legislation during that period, which has brought in its train financial disasters, 'monopolies' and 'trusts,' the republican party alone is responsible. During the period I have indicated the monetary system of the founders of our government was abandoned and silver demonetized.

"The sad results to all kinds of business, to all conditions of men, that have followed, 'as the night the day,' the demonetization act of 1873 have never been, will never be adequately told. Something of the evils that have followed in its train can be found in the enforced idleness of those who vainly seek employment, in the wrecked fortunes of men once prosperous in business, and in the deplorable condition of the finances of the nation. But we are told that the real issue—that upon which this election is to turn—is not the monetary, but the tariff question. Our opponents place this in the very fore front of the struggle. Meeting them for a moment upon their chosen ground, judging from their past history—what are their promises, what their intentions, in the event of success?

Regarding the Tariff.

"The nomination at St. Louis of the distinguished author of the last republican tariff law emphasized the determination of our opponents, when in the full tide of power, to reenact the McKinley law and restore to our statute books the most unjust, the most odious tariff schedules known to any period of our history. Can it be forgotten that the democratic victories of 1890 and of 1892 were the result of the revolt of the people against the 'protectionism run mad,' which found its perfect work in the McKinley law? Is it possible that the lessons of history are so soon to be forgotten? Can it be that the legislation under which the protected monopolists thrived as never before under which the articles of daily necessity in every home were taxed as never before; and by which the government was deprived of revenue absolutely necessary in meeting its expenditures—is so soon to be condoned and its authors, after repeated condemnation at the polls, again to be intrusted with supreme power?

"The return of the republican party to power means the repeal of the Wilson tariff law! It means the reenforcement of the McKinley law, or one even yet more odious in its provisions. Let no man deceive himself touching the issues involved in this contest. If, in the interest of the favored few, you desire the burdens of high tariff taxation again to come to your hearthstone, your place is with the followers of the McKinley law. You can have no lot or part with those who seek to lessen to the people the cost of every article of prime necessity. The election of a republican president and congress portends the renewal of tariff agitation, not in the interest of the consumer, but in the sole interest of monopoly and greed. It means the turning back of the hands upon the dial, the undoing of all that has been accomplished. It portends ceaseless agitation and the consequent derangement of all business. It means that the McKinley law, with its class favoritism, its organized greed, its horrors of depleted treasury shall again find place upon our statute books.

"The income tax provided for by the Wilson tariff bill has by the court of last resort been declared unconstitutional. With many others I deeply regret this decision of the supreme court.

Considers the Financial Question.

"The financial question overshadows all others in the present contest. Upon this question, the difference is irreconcilable between the two great parties now contending for supremacy. Shall the single gold standard be maintained, or shall there be a return to bimetallism? The success of the republican party means the one—that of the democratic party the other.

"Believing as I do that gold and silver find equal recognition in the constitution of the United States; that by their joint use in effecting exchanges and performing the other functions of money we have prospered in the past; and that the evil days now befallen us are in no small measure the result of the demonetization of silver, I have no hesitation in maintaining my party allegiance and casting my vote for Bryan and Sewall, the nominees of the democratic convention. I deeply regret that many of those with whom I have been associated in former contests now oppose the election of the candidates nominated in accordance with the time-honored methods and usages of the democratic party."

Position of the Two Parties.

Reviewing the declarations of the great parties in their platforms, and particularly referring to the republican platform recently adopted at St. Louis, Mr. Stevenson said:

"By this decision the republican party stands pledged to the maintenance, at all hazards, of the gold standard, unless by international agreement the leading commercial nations of the world will consent to return to bimetallism. In what party platform in any period of our history can there be found so humiliating a proposition? Did the republican leaders who formulated that declaration really expect England, 'the leading commercial nation of the world,' to consent to an international agreement looking to the reestablishment of bimetallism in the two great English-speaking nations? Or was this proposition simply to placate and keep in line until after election such members of the party as still believe the interests of the people should best be subserved by the use of the two precious metals as standard money? I repeat the inquiry of our candidate for the presidency: 'If the gold standard is the best—if it is desirable—why even this thought of a change?' Why even the suggestion of an international agreement? Why humble ourselves at the feet of England that she may consent to something that will not redound to our credit as a people? This clause of the republican platform is a confession of weakness. Either the single gold standard is the best for the country or it is not. If the best, why ask the consent of England or any other nation that bimetallism be restored? If not—if its maintenance bodes evil and only evil to our people—why shall not our government—the greatest the world has ever known—take the lead in accomplishing what the republican platform, by implication, admits should be done? In a word, is not the clause of the republican platform looking to international agreement a feeble confession that a return to bimetallism is desirable?

Believes the Democrats Are Right.

"I am firmly persuaded that in this great contest we are in the right; that the cause which we represent is that of the people. We believe that much of the evil that has befallen us as a people is the result of the unwise, unjust financial legislation of the last third of a century, and for which the republican party is solely responsible. Wherein is there promise for the future? Wherein is there hope? Will relief come by the election of McKinley and the restoration to power of the party at whose doors lies the responsibility of the ills that we endure, for the burdens that are upon us? By its platform, by the utterances of those high in its counsels, it stands pledged to a continuance, not a cure, of the ills that are upon us. It promises nothing; holds out no hope, by words, even, of a return to the monetary policy of the founders of the government—the policy that for so many years brought prosperity and contentment of all the people.

"I am firmly persuaded that in the present contest the interests of all the people are bound up in the success of the democratic party, whose creed upon the pending vital issue was the living faith of the founders of our government. Now, as in the struggles of the past, it appeals to the judgment, to the patriotism, the sense of the American people—its candidate for the presidency, the able and eloquent statesman whose words have cheered the despondent, given hope and inspiration to his countrymen, and whose inauguration will be the earnest of better days to the republic."

VOTERS FOR BRYAN.

They Will Stand Solidly Together for Their Personal Rights.

The vote of the wage-earners will insure to Mr. Bryan such a vote as was never given to a president. The coercion policy of the McKinleyites will solidify this vote, and, as a contemporary says, will insure the election of the man who is distinctly the wage-earners' candidate a marvelous majority.

The bulldozers have raised the question whether an employe's vote belongs to himself or to the man for whom he works. If it belongs to the employer, there is no free ballot and this is not a government by the people. If the employer can intimidate his employe by threats of discharge and possible starvation, the employe becomes a political serf and is on the high road to become an industrial one. Labor will not endure such treatment. American workmen will not surrender the right which is the foundation stone of liberty.

In the present controversy the wage-earners find supporting McKinley all those who have been their enemies, from Hanna down, and they are not going to join with their enemies. The more compulsion is exercised upon them the more firmly fixed will become their conviction that this is a struggle between the people and the pirates. During the past few days indications have come from a hundred sources that the vote of the workers in trade, shop and factory will be cast for Bryan, as it should be. Those anarchists and subverters of the constitution who thought to club the wage-earner into submission have aroused a feeling which will be as potent to make Bryan votes as any of the principles in his platform.—Buffalo Times.

A Boltocratic Blunder.

The Peoria Herald (boltocrat) never was more mistaken in its life than when it says there "was not a corporal's guard of free silver men in the state or country until something over a year ago," referring to the incipiency of the movement in this state for a democratic state convention in 1895. The tidal wave of 1894 which swept the democrats out of congress was an emphatic protest from the rank and file of the party against the unconditional repeal of the Sherman cowardly makeshift for free coinage, and the repudiation by Cleveland and his cuckoos of the national democratic platform of 1892. This platform pledged the democratic party to hold to the use and free coinage of silver and gold as the standard money of the country. Free coinage has been a doctrine of the democratic party since 1877, and the Herald knows it, or is inexcusable for its ignorance.—Illinois State Register.

How to Correct the Evil.

Senator Sherman, of Ohio, recently wrote a letter to Emmett Rittenhouse, of Ashland, O., in which he says: "The only way in which a republican administration can correct the evils of the past is by increasing the revenue by a new tariff law, and this, I fear, is not practicable." This is, to say the least, not very encouraging. Mr. Sherman declares that the only way to correct the evil is to increase taxation. That being the correction of one evil by another is a very doubtful expedient. Better, probably, be content with the evils we have rather than to resort to other evils we know not of for their correction. But for Senator Sherman to doubt the McKinley process of restoring prosperity by increasing taxation is not calculated to increase party harmony.—Southern Mercury.

Mark Hanna says he has just completed the organization of the finest equipped machine that was ever set up for a national campaign in America. Mr. Hanna has put a good deal of money into the campaign and hopes the machine will run for four years and earn dividends on the investment.—Minneapolis Times.

McKinley reminds the West Virginia editors that they have an increasing supply of coal oil and he thinks it ought to give them an increasing interest in protection. But he fails to remind them that the profits of it will accrue to Hanna's friends in the Standard Oil trust.—N. Y. World.

The man who says the money issued by this government is unsound and dishonest casts a slur on his country and seeks to injure the credit of the country by slandering its money issue. All such persons are traitors and should be treated as such.—Southern Mercury.

The republican campaign orators have no remedy to offer for the ills of the gold standard. Their entire stock consists in abusing the cure recommended by the democracy.—Philadelphia Item.

TO SERVE AS A SNARE.

What the Real Purpose of the Indianapolis Movement Is.

Yesterday's telegraphic advices from Chicago carried the news that letters received at the headquarters of the "national dmocratic party" indicate that the Palmer and Buckner ticket will not get much support from democrats unless the national committee demonstrates by its actions that the movement is not in any way an adjunct of McKinleyism.

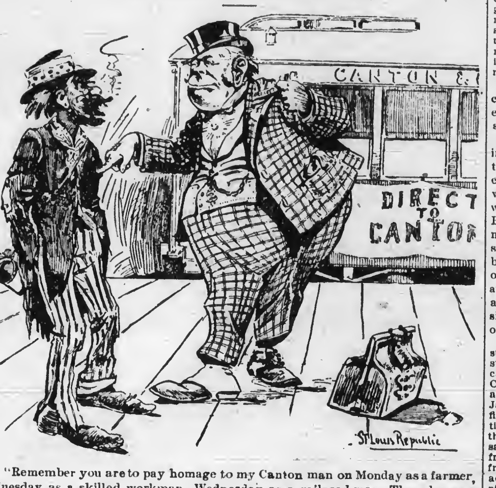
This reads as if it was intended for humor. Can it be possible that there is a man in the country of the most ordinary intellectual endowment who does not know that the Palmer and Buckner movement is nothing else and was never intended to be anything else but an adjunct of McKinleyism? It is expected, of course, that the movement will be supported by democrats who do not want to support free coinage, but who could not be induced under any circumstances to vote for McKinley, but the leaders of the movement, even to the standard-bearers, will vote for the republican candidates, because it is for the election of those candidates and nothing else their movement was inaugurated.

One of the most remarkable developments of this remarkable campaign is the state of mind of the democrat who wants to beat Bryan, but does not want to vote for McKinley. Generally, when a man is opposed to his party's candidates he votes for the nominees of the other party, but this isn't the case this year. We are now enjoying the contemplation of democrats who believe they can aid in the election of the republican candidates and still be loyal to the democratic party, although the apostles of this new political creed tell those democrats that if their plan shall promise just before election to be a failure, then they must abandon it and swallow the g. o. p. candidates neck and crop. That is, those apostles boldly announce that the alleged purpose of the decoy movement—that of affording democrats a chance to vote for democratic candidates—is not its purpose, at all; that it was organized for the sole purpose of electing McKinley, and that it intends to swing itself right into the McKinley camp if the prospective failure of the policy of indirection shall necessitate the adoption of the policy of direction.

Perhaps, therefore, it is not surprising to find democrats who sincerely believe that the decoy movement is an honest one and in the interest of democracy, and it is not to be wondered at, at all, that democrats who gave the movement credit for honesty should manifest disgust for it now that its leaders and mouthpieces are "giving it dead away." Thousands of democrats who might have been induced to vote for Palmer and Buckner if the Indianapolis movement had retained a shred of credit for politicial integrity will vote for Bryan in preference to deliberately aiding in the election of McKinley, as they would be doing, on the admission of the Indianapolis leaders, if they were to follow the decoy movement into the last ditch.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

——It was a happy coincidence which placed in the morning news columns immediately after the report of Maj. McKinley's speech to workingmen from Indiana an account of a meeting of the nail trust. The joss of the temple of monopoly drew a beautiful picture of the prosperity under the influence of the system which he represents in politics. But there was the report of the flourishing condition of the nail trust, showing where most of the bounty-made prosperity goes. McKinley gave the theory of protection to the workingmen and the nail trust meeting exemplified its practical results. But out of McKinleyism comes not only the swarm of plundering trusts in industry and business, but the boodle syndicate of trusts in politics.—St. Louis Republic.

——A Wall street banker holds the same relation to finances that a Chicago board of trade gambler holds to farming. Who would leave it to the gamblers of the board of trade in Chicago to say how much grain ought to be produced or inspected this year in the United States? Who would leave it to the Wall street banker how much money ought to be produced or coined?—Illinois State Register.



BOSS HANNA TO WEARY WALKER.

"Remember you are to pay homage to my Canton man on Monday as a farmer, Tuesday as a skilled workman, Wednesday as a railroad man, Thursday as a drummer, Friday as a coal miner and Saturday as a clerk."

PLUTOCRACY OR DEMOCRACY.

The Supreme Duty Which Confronts All True Freemen.

In great emergencies men seem to rise up to save the people, but it is for the people to accept their salvation or choose slavery. It is for free men to range themselves alongside of such spirits as Samuel Adams, John Hancock, George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, Charles Sumner and Abraham Lincoln, who stood for freedom and justice in opposition to tyranny and oppression. So also in the conflict today, the wealth-creators, who represent the rejuvenated or the "new democracy" are, under the leadership of William J. Bryan, fighting aginst industrial slavery, against the most dangerous and odious forms of tyranny and conscienceless plutocracy. On the other side we find the Morgans, the Belmonts of evil secret bond deal reputation, and a host of multi-millionaires who have fattened off of a nation's need and a people's misery; the Rockefellers and the Whitneys of the Standard Oil octopus the gamblers of Wall street and the usurers and acquirers of wealth; the bosses, Hanna, Platt and Quay, the cormorants who have grown inordinately wealthy, not through honest means so much as through special privileges, and last, but not least, those who have made common cause with England's soulless financiers who prey upon honest industry and sacrifice the glory and independence of our nation, as well as the happiness and prosperity of its people for its selfish advancement. All the great freebooters on the high seas of business life are banded together to defeat our second Lincoln.

The present battle is a conflict between plutocracy on the one side, and the intelligent wealth-creators of the nation on the other, the enormous wealth of a selfish few who are as firmly bent on further enslaving the people and establishing an oligarchy of special privileges on the ruins of a republic as was King George determined to compel the colonies to do his bidding. In this battle there is no middle ground. It is not the election of the noble statesman from the western city which bears the name of Lincoln so much as it is the salvation of the nation from the gamblers, the trusts, monopolists and alien masters. It is a war for the very life of the republic. The republic of Florence fell through the cunning of wealth. Our nation is in like peril to-day. The people have "slept over long." Voters, a supreme duty confronts you. Mark Hanna and his annex who masquerade as "gold democrats" because they think that thereby they can trade votes and beguile the people who do not do their own thinking into voting against the truest representative of democracy since Jefferson and Jackson, and the best exponent of genuine republicanism since Lincoln. The candidates of the gold ring, the trusts, monopolies and combines must be overthrown or we can hope for no such thing as prosperity, happiness or even self-respecting independence of our nation. Freemen, to the polls.—Editorial in October Arena.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

——There is truth in the republican argument that the producers of the country are suffering from overproduction—overproduction for others. — St. Louis Republic.

——The call on Mr. McKinley to denounce trusts is ridiculous. Why not demand that he force Hobart off his ticket and dispense with the services of Mark Hanna?—N. Y. Journal.

——Mark Hanna says that the western horizon is brightening. This probably means that the Wall street banking community has shipped a big pile of boodle to Chicago. — Philadelphia Item.

——The McKinleyites have a lively recollection of one of the most potent agencies in the defeat of McKinleyism four years ago. Every house is being flooded with appeals to the wife to save her husband from the "50-cent dollar." The circular says nothing about monopoly prices.—St. Louis Republic.

——There has not been a love feast and reunion of the leaders of the republican factions in Ohio in this whole campaign. Several of the prominent characters addressed an open meeting at Columbus, but Maj. McKinley was not there. Should not Foraker go to Canton? McKinley is confined to his dooryard.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

TENNESSEE HEARS HIM.

Mr. Bryan Greeted by Big Crowds at Memphis and Nashville.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 6.—William J. Bryan arrived in Memphis Monday morning at 7:30 o'clock. Thousands of people were at the Poplar street station to witness the arrival of the democratic candidate. The famous Neely zouaves were at the immediate entrance to the station and escorted Mr. Bryan and the Memphis committee to the Peabody hotel, where the party took breakfast. At ten o'clock Mr. Bryan was escorted to the baseball park by the committee. Ten thousand people were in waiting and gave the nominee a rousing reception. Mr. Bryan was introduced by Senator Isham G. Harris.

He spoke in part as follows:

"I say to you here, my friends that my interest in the cause of bimetallism is so deep that I would without a moment's hesitation resign my nomination in favor of any person in this country who can better carry this cause to victory. It is not a time to listen to personal ambitions. It is not a time to set personal interests above the national good. It is not a time when we are to consider the temporary effect of this election upon party organizations. It is a time when we are to consider the effect of the gold standard, if perpetuated, among party organizations not on this country alone, but on all mankind.

"I want to impress upon your minds that it is not only necessary that we shall elect a president and vice president in favor of free coinage, but it is necessary that there shall be a congress in favor of free coinage: The president can sign no bill until that bill reaches the white house, and before any bill reaches the white house it must have received the indorsement of a majority of the members of the house of representatives and a majority of the members of the senate. If there is one majority in either house against free coinage the president is powerless to restore bimetallism to the people. If you are in earnest for bimetallism you must show that earnestness by doing anything necessary to be done, to elect congress, senate and president.

"My friends, I could not feel the interest that I do in this campaign if all I had to commend was party regularity. I appeal to you on higher ground than that. I have a stronger claim upon your support than can be given by regularity of a convention. I stand by the right of the American people to have a financial system of their own. And therefore my candidacy appeals to every American citizen who believes in the right of the people of this country to govern themselves regardless of the aid or consent of any other nation on earth. I am not appealing to any sentiments hostile to foreigners, but I say to you, my friends, that that nation does not deserve to be called a nation which has to accept a financial policy 'ready made' from some other country."

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 6. — Great crowds greeted William J. Bryan in his eight hours' journey through Tennessee Monday.

The train bearing the party rolled into the Nashville station at 5:35. The town was wild. Red fire and Roman candles filled the air and the streets were almost impassable. Carriages were in waiting for the party and Mr. Bryan was promptly driven to the Haymarket, where he delivered his first speech. The candidate was introduced by Senator Bate as the next president of the United States. He was cheered and applauded throughout his speech and many times stopped by the enthusiasm of his listeners. He said among other things:

"I can understand why the people of this state, and especially of this portion of the state, should feel so deep an interest in the cause which is being represented by the Chicago platform, because, my friends, we are fighting to-day the battle that Andrew Jackson fought when he was in office. We find arrayed against us the same combination, the same aggregation of wealth, with the same abuse against him; we meet the same intolerance that he met, we suffer from the same abuse that he suffered from; every name [illegible] applied to-day to the advocates of free coinage that were applied to old Hickory when he fought for the American people. It has been the lot of those who have espoused our cause to be denounced and abused by those who favor the gold standard. It has been the lot of those who have defended the cause of the common people to be assailed by those who doubt that capacity of the people for self-government and would deny to them the right of eating the bread which they earn. The gold standard never fought a fight which was submitted to the people. The gold standard has made every step in its progress by underhand means and has not for one moment attempted to obtain the consent or the indorsement of the American people. But in this campaign, at least, we have the issue before the people, and we have a chance in this election to cast our ballots for the maintenance of the gold standard or for the restoration of the money of the constitution. I believe so truly in the justice of our cause that I cannot for one moment doubt what will be the result when the American people are called upon to decide this question.

"My friends, we have lost some democrats in this fight, but I am mighty glad that most of those whom we lost were generals. We have not lost many privates in the army. We might have kept all the democrats who are gone if we had been willing to pay the price they asked. If we had been willing to make the democratic party the agent to fasten plutocracy upon the American people we could have kept every man who has left us. But we have to choose between throwing overboard those who have been millstones about the neck of democracy and throwing over democracy itself, and we prefer to save democracy and let the aristocrats go. My friends, we have not lost by it. It has been our gain. It is always true that those who dare to do right are rewarded in the long run, and the democratic party is receiving its reward—not even waiting for the long run—it is receiving its reward right now for daring to do right at Chicago. We are drawing to our ranks those who are in the republican party for bimetallism. They have come to us because they see now that the hope of international bimetallism is a delusion, and that it is used only as a cover, while the leading republicans are attempting to fasten the gold standard permanently upon the American people. And not only are we gathering from the ranks of the republicans, but the populists, in their national convention here, were willing to go outside of their own party lines to nominate as their candidate for the presidency the man already nominated by the democrats and free silver republicans. We are consolidating the sentiment in favor of free coinage to the grand struggle against our enemies."

"Suspected Persons."

It will surprise most people to know that there is an English law to punish servants who invite their friends into their master's houses. It seems the intruders can be charged with being "suspected persons," and the servant who admits them with aiding and abetting them.

Buddhist Priests in Japan.

The present number of Buddhist priests in Japan amounts, according to Mr. Inouye Enryo, to 105,022, nine-tenths of them being priests only in name.

HUMOROUS.

—Friend—"Why do you drink whisky?" Col. Blood—"I don't know of any better use I can put it to."—Town Topics.

—Parke—"I don't suppose, old man, you can really appreciate how bright my children are." Lane—"No; I have never met your wife."—N. Y. Herald.

—Mrs. Wiggles—"Was that a good box of cigars, Ephraim, that I bought for your birthday?" Mr. Wiggles (craftily)—"I never saw a better box."—Somerville Journal.

—A Poor Rule, Etc.—Radbourn—"My dear fellow, it is always better to begin at the bottom of a ladder." Chesney—"Nonsense. How about when you are escaping from a fire?"—N. Y. World.

—"Well, the bicycle has been the means of closing our church." "Is that so? Did they really fight over it?" "Fight over it? No; the minister has gone on a wheeling tour."—Cleveland Leader.

—Just the Thing.—"I intended this poem merely as a pot-boiler," said the young man in lofty explanation. "That's a good idea. Take it right home and let your folks start the fire with it."—Washington Star.

—Farmer—"I guess there's somebody fishing in our trout stream behind the barn." Farmer's Wife—"How do you know? Have you found a line and hooks?" Farmer—No; I found a whisky flask."—Boston Courier.

—Teacher (about to expatiate on the virtues of the dog)—"Now, children, can you tell me the animal which is capable of the greatest attachment to man?" The Brightest Boy in the Class—"I know: the leech."—Exchange.

—The Belle's Strategem.—"Isn't it rather annoying to you to have them both call on you at once?" asked her dearest friend. "No; perfectly delightful" said the young woman with two devoted slaves. "You see, dear, I sent one on each side of me." "Well?" "And there is such a delightful coolness between them." "Oh!"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ARE YOU LEFT-HANDED?

Were the Aboriginals Ambidextrous in Their Practice of Art?

Dr. Daniel G. Brinton discusses the question of left-handedness in North American aboriginal art. If hands worked in the past as they do to-day then in primitive times the left-handed, it would be supposed, were not many. Take 100 Americans, and from two to four per cent. only are left-handed This two or four percent. may do general work better or more easily with the left than with the right hand. In the 96 per cent. of right-handed people there may be some few who are ambidextrous. "Has this proportion always been the same in the human species, and does it obtain to-day among savage tribes?" Dr. John Evans, as quoted by Sir Daniel Wilson, believes that there was a "manifest predominance of right-handedness among the paleolithic flint-workers of southern England." On the other side, De Mortillett, after a careful study of 354 stone scrapers coming from France and Switzerland, arrives at the contrary opinion. In the University of Pennsylvania, among a collection of flints of the very earliest types, found on the Libyan plateau, near Abydos, there are two, both of which, Dr. Brinton writes, are made for a left-handed man. It is difficult to describe, without giving great space to the subject, how the archaeologist can exactly determine whether a tool was to be used in the right or the left hand. Studying 200 stone or flint blades coming from various parts of the United States, the largest proportion was made for the right-handed. But, nevertheless, there was "33 per cent. for" probably left-handed persons, or, as Dr. Brinton writes it, "for persons, as I prefer to believe, * * * who were ambidextrous." That there must have been left-handed artists becomes more clear in this way. Ask anyone to draw a profile, and almost invariably the right-handed person makes the face looking to the left, while the left-handed person's sketch is to the right. In examining, then, a collection of American aboriginal rock drawings there is a predominance of profiles looking to the left, but not infrequent occurrences of profiles in the opposite direction. Dr. Brinton comes to the conclusion that De Mortillet was correct, also that there were more left-handed or ambidextrous American aborigines than Europeans. Perhaps, as Dr. Brinton indicates it, the specialization of hands came with a more recent culture.—American Anthropologist.

Early Days of a Great Chinaman.

Li Hung Chang's career is strikingly interesting to young people. Not of distinguished parents, he first leaps into prominence by carrying off honors at an examination where there are 20,000 competitors. The subjects are not, as with us, mathematics, geography, arts and sciences, but the teachings of Confucius, theory of government and Chinese poetry and history. Passing this examination promotes Li into official circles, and he becomes a compiler in the imperial printing office. But the T'ai-ping rebellion breaks out, and the student is soon called upon to become a soldier. He raises a regiment of home militia, and enters upon the field of war. In less than five years he achieves honor and distinction, and then Imperial Generalissimo Tseng Kwo-Fan appoints him on his staff.—Harper's Round Table.

Lighting a Large City.

Thirteen thousand lamps, gas, electric and naphtha, are required to illuminate the streets, avenues, parks, docks and bridges of the city of New York. The number of electric lights, slowly but visibly superseding gas lamps for purposes of street illumination, is 3,300, and the city expends in a year more than $1,000,000 for lighting. The appropriation this year is exactly $1,085,830 for lighting the highways and public property.—St. Louis Republic.

ARMAGEDDON.

The Powers of the Good and the Evil Will Wage a War.

Legions Will Rush to Battle in the Great Struggle, and the Cause of Righteousness Will Prevail—Sermon by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

In his sermon Sunday Rev. Dr. Talmage discussed the great conflict which prophecy foreshadows at the climax of the world's struggles—Armageddon. His text was Rev. xvi., 16: "And he gathered them together in a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon."

Megiddo is the name of a mountain that looks down upon Esdraelon, the greatest battlefield that the world has ever seen. There Barak fought the Canaanites; there Gideon fought the Midianites; there Josiah fought the invading Egyptians. The whole region stands for battle, and the Armageddon of my text borrows its name from it and is here used, not geographically, but figuratively, while setting forth the idea that there is to be a world's closing battle, the greatest of all battles, compared with which the conflicts of this century and all other centuries were insignificant, because of the greater number of combatants engaged, the greater victory and the greater defeat. The exact date of that battle we do not know, and the exact locality is uncertain. It may be in Asia, Europe, Africa or America; but the fact that such a battle will take place is as certain as God's eternal truth. When I use the superlative degree in regard to that coming conflict I do not forget that there have been wars all along on stupendous scale. As when at Marathon Miltiades brought on his men, not in ordinary march, but in full run, upon the horsemen of Persia and the black archers of Ethiopia, and scattered them, and crying, "Bring fire! Bring fire!" set into flame the ships of the invaders. As when Pizarro overcame Peru. As when Philip II. triumphed over Portugal. As when the Huns met the Goths. As when 300 Spartans sacrificed themselves at Thermopylæ. As when the Carthaginians took Agrigentum. As when Alexander headed the Macedonian phalanx. As when Hannibal invaded Italy. Battle of Hastings! Battle of Valmy! Battle of Pultowa! Battle of Arbela! Battle of Tours! Battle of Borodino! Battle of Lucknow! Battle of Solferino!. Battle of Fontenoy, where 100,000 were slain! Battle of Chalons, where 300,000 were massacred! Battle of Herat, where Genghis King destroyed 1,600,000 lives! Battle of Neishar, where 1,747,000 went down to death! 1,816,000 slain at Troy! And American battles, too, near us now to allow us to appreciate their awful grandeur and significance, except you who were there, facing the north or facing the south! But all the battles I have named put together will not equal in numbers enlisted, or fierceness, or grandeur, or triumph, or rout, the coming Armageddon contest. Whether it shall be fought with printers' type or with keen steel, whether by brain or muscle, whether by pen or carbine, whether by booming cannon or thunders of Christian eloquence, I do not know, and you may take what I say as figurative or literal, but take as certain what St. John, in his vision on the rocks of the Grecian archipelago, is pleased to call "Armageddon."

My sermon will first mention the regiments that will be engaged in the conflict; then will say something of the Commanders on both sides; and then speak of the battle itself and the tremendous issues. Beginning with those who will fight on the wrong side, I first mention the Regiments Diabolic. In this very chapter from which my text is taken we are told that the spirit of devils will be there. How many millions of them no one can tell, for the statistics of the satanic dominions have never been reported and the roll of that host has never on earth been called; but from the direful, and continental, and planetary work they have already done, and the fact that every man and woman and child on earth has a tempter, there must be at least sixteen hundred millions of evil spirits familiar with our world. Perhaps as many more are engaged on especial enterprises of abomination among the nations and empires of the earth. Beside that there must be an inconceivable number of inhabitants in realms pandemoniac, staying there to keep the great capitals of sin going from age to age. Many of them once lived in Heaven, but engaging in conspiracy to put satan on the throne, they were hurled out and down, and they are now among the worst thugs of the universe. Having been in three worlds—Heaven, earth and hell—they have all the advantages of great experience. Their power, their speed, their cunning, their hostility wonderful beyond all statement! In the Armageddon they will, I doubt not, be present in full array. They will have no reserve corps, but all will be at the front. There will not only be soldiers in that battle who can be seen and aimed at, but troops intangible and without corporocity, and weapons may strike clear through them without giving them hurt. With what shout of defiance will they climb up the ladders of fire and leap from the battlements of asbestus into the last campaign of hell! Paul, the bravest of men, was impressed with their might for evil when he said, "We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and against powers and against the rulers of the darkness in this world, against wickedness in high places." Oh, what an agitating moment, when the ranks diabolic move up and take their places for conflict in the Armageddon!

Other regiments who will march into the fight will be the Regiments Alcoholic. They will be made up of the brewers' companies, distillery owners and liquor dealers' associations, and the hundreds of millions of their patrons. They will move into the ranks with what the Bible calls the "Song of the drunkard." And what a bloated, and soaked, and bleared, and blasted, and hiccoughing, and nauseating host! If now, according to a scientist, in England there are 50,000 deaths annually from strong drink, and in the United States, according to another estimate, 98,000 deaths annually from strong drink, what an army of living drunkards that implies, coming up from the whole earth to take their places in the last battle, especially as the evil increases and the millions now staggering on their way may be joined by other millions of reinforcements; brigade after brigade, with drunkards' bones drumming on the head of beer barrels the dead march of souls. These millions of victims of alcohol joined by the millions of the victims of arrack, the spiritous liquor of China, and India, and Arabia, and Egypt, and Ceylon, and Siam!

Other regiments who will march in on the wrong side in the battle will be the Regiments Mohammedan. At the present time there about 175,000,000 Moslems. Their plain mission is to kill Christians, demean womanhood and take possession of the earth in the interest of ignorance, superstition and moral filth. The massacre of 50,000 Armenians in the last two or three years is only one chapter in their effort to devastate the earth of everything but themselves. So determined are they in their bad work that all the nations of the earth put together dare not say to them, "Stop! or we will make you stop." My hope is that long before that last battle of which I speak the Turkish government, and with it Mohammedanism, may be wiped out of existence. The Turkish power for the last 400 years has been the mightiest hindrance on earth to religious liberty and moral improvement. Her extermination is prophesied in the Book of Revelations in the figure of the drying up of the river Euphrates, and she is going rapidly, thank God! In 1820, by the Greek insurrection, she received the first destructive blow. In 1823 the Turkoman army of 30,000 was destroyed and the cause of liberty advanced. In 1827 England, France and Russia, not so cautious as they have since been, at Navarino humiliated the Turkish fleets and Greece was free. Weaker and weaker the Turkish power has become, and it has lost Algiers and Wallachia, and more than all, during the past decade, through her cruelty, has lost the sympathy of every good man and woman in all the earth, and if William E. Gladstone were prime minister of England the Turkish government would very soon either quit her outrages or go down under bombardment of the men-of-war from many nations now hovering near the Bosphorus. But if the Bible prophecy concerning the drying up of the Euphrates is not fulfilled before the battle mentioned in my text, Mohammedanism will march in with sword, and poison, and torch to take her part in the great Armageddon.

"Yea! to show the magnitude of the forces on the wrong side, I have to tell you that what is left of heathenism at that time will march into the conflict. There are 150,000,000 fetish idolaters, 220,000,000 Brahmins, 400,000,000 Buddhists. Through the sublimest movement of this century, the missionary movement, all the time gathering in momentum, I believe all, or nearly all of that 770,000,000 of heathendom will be converted to God. But that which is not converted will come into the Armageddon on the wrong side.

"Other regiments on that wrong side will be made up of offenders of all sorts—the defrauders, the libertines, the dynamiters, the anarchists, the oppressors and the foes of society, the criminals of all nations, by whatever name they are now called, or shall then be called. They may not before that have openly taken sides, but then they will be compelled to take sides. With what venom, with what violence; with what desperation they will fall into line at the great Armageddon! Is it not appalling, these uncounted regiments of the earth to be joined by the uncounted regiments from perdition? Can any power cope with them? Especially when I tell you who their commander is, for so much in all wars depends upon the chieftain. Their leader will not be a political accident or military 'happen so.' By talent, and adroitness, and courage, and unceasing industries he has come to bad eminence. He disputed the throne of Heaven with the Almighty, but no one has ever disputed the throne of eternal night with this monarch who will in the last battle take the field in person. Milton calls him Lucifer, Goethe calls him Mephistopheles, the Hebrew calls him Abaddon, the Greek calls him Apollyon. He is the impersonation of all malevolence, of all oppession, of all cruelty, the summing up of a falsehood. In his make-up nothing bad was left out and nothing good was put in, and he is to be the general, the commander-in-chief of all the forces on the wrong side in the great Armageddon. He has been in more battles than you have ever read about, and he has gained more victories than have ever been celebrated in this world. But I guess this old warrior of Pandemonium will not have an undisputed field. I guess there will be an army to dispute with his forces. I have mentioned the supremacy of this world. I guess our troops will not have to run when, on the day mentioned in my text, all the infernal batteries shall be unlimbered. We have been reviewing the troops diabolic. We have been measuring the calibers of their guns. We have been examining their ammunition wagons. Now let us look at the faces to be marshaled in the Armageddon on the right side.

First of all, I mention the Regiments Angelic. Alas! that the subject of demonology seems better understood than the subject of angelology. But the glorious spirits around the throne and all the bright immortals that fill the galleries and levels of the universe are to take part in that last great fight, and the regiments angelic are the only regiments capable of meeting the regiments plutonic. To show you something of an angel's power, I ask you to consider that just one of them slew 185,000 of Sennacherib's host in a night, and it is not a tough arithmetical question to solve, if one angel can slay 185,000 troops in a night, how many can 500,000,000 of them slay? The old Book says that "They excel in strength." It is not a celestial mob, but a disciplined host, and they know their rank. Cherubim, seraphim, thrones, principalities and powers! And the leaders of those regiments is Michael, the Archangel. David saw just one group of angels sweep past and they were 20,000 charioted. Paul, who in the Gamalian college had his faculties so wonderfully developed, confesses his incapacity to count them by saying, "Ye are come to Mt. Zion and an innumerable company of angels." If each soul on earth has a guardian angel, then there must be 1,600,000,000 angels on earth to-day. Beside that Heaven must be full of angels, those who stay there; not only the 12 angels who, we are told, guard the 12 gates, but those angels who help in the worship, and go on mission from mansion to mansion, and help to build the hosannas and enthrone the hallelujahs, and roll the doxologies of the service that never ends. But they all, if required, will be in the last fight between holiness and sin. Heaven could afford to adjourn just one day, and empty all its temples, and mansions and palaces, and boulevards into that oh battle. I think all the angels of God will join in it. The one that stood with sword of flame at the gate of paradise. The one that pointed Hagar to the fountain in the wilderness. The one that halted Balaam on the highway. The one that warned Lot to flee the doomed city. The one that took part with Joshua against the Canaanites. The one that informed Mary of the approach of the Nativity. The one that wrestled with Jacob at the brook Jabbok. The one that swung open the gate for the incarcerated Apostle Peter. The one that strengthened Christ in His last paroxysm. All, I think, will be there—their velocities inconceivable, so that when Daniel was in prayer, Gabriel, we are told, came from Heaven to speak to him, and if Heaven be at the center of the universe, that angel must have traveled thousands of millions of miles in an instant. Talk of earthly regiments on double-quick march! What will be the speed of the regiments angelic, when, at the command of the archangel, "Down to earth! Forward into the battle!" those regiments angelic, lightning-winged, rainbow-girdled, fire-footed, shall sweep into the great Armageddon.

The next regiments that I see marching into the fight will be the regiments ecclesiastic. According to the last account and practically only in the beginning of the great Gospel movement which proposes to take the whole earth for God, there are 4,600,000 Methodists, 3,725,000 Baptists, 1,280,333 Presbyterians, 1,230,000 Lutherans and 640,000 Episcopalians. But the present statistics of churches will be utterly swamped when, after all the great denominations have done their best work, the slowest of all the sects will have more numbers than the present enrollment of all denominations throughout Christendom. You see by that time an Atheist or an infidel will be a curiosity, and he will be looked at as we look at a man with long hair reaching below his shoulders, and long fingernails that are never cut, and a stare in the eyes indicating incipient lunacy—not to be argued with, but to be pitied; while it will not be any unusual thing to see men as much devoted to their religion as Francis Xavier was devoted to his religion, when he went through the streets asking all to come to hear his faith expounded, in ten years planting the Gospel in 50 nations and baptizing over a million souls. And the great hosts of believers will fill the earth, making the 2,317,000 combatants that Xerxes reviewed a corporal's guard in comparison. I see them, the regiments ecclesiastic, moving into that last battle. The Lutherans headed by some great Martin Luther yet to be born. The Methodists headed by some George Whitefield yet to come. The Presbyterians headed by some John Knox yet to arise. The Episcopalians headed by some Bishop Charnock yet to be enrobed. The Baptists headed by some Missionary Carey yet to bless the world. The Congregational church, headed by some Doctor Kirk, of pentecostal power, yet to take tongue of fire. I see them moving into the ranks, carrying a standard striped and starred: striped as suggesting Him by whose stripes we are healed, and starred as with the promise that those who turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars, forever and ever. Into that battle on our side will roll those mighty engines of power, the printing presses of Christendom. Into that battle will also move the mightiest telescopes, that shall bring the stars in their courses to fight for our God.

Again, the regiment elemental will come into that battle on the right side. The winds! God showed what He could do with them when the splintered timbers of the Spanish Armada were strewn on the rocks of Scotland, Norway and the Hibrides. The waters! He showed what he could do with them when he put the whole earth under them, leaving it subaqueous 150 days. The earthquakes! He showed what he could do with them when he let Caracas drop into the open mouth of horror and the island of the sea went into entombment. The lightnings! He showed what He could do with them when he wrapped Mt. Sinai in flame, and we have all seen their flashing lanterns moving with the chariots of the midnight hurricane. All the regiments elemental will come in on our side in the great Armageddon. Come and let us mount and ride along the line, and review the troops of Emanuel, and find that the regiments terrestrial and celestial that come into that battle on the right side are, as compared with those on the wrong side, two to one, a hundred to one, a thousand to one.

HER PLACE.

She Figured It Out Like One with Experience.

"Well," said Miss Hungerford to Mr. Gildersleeve, as they sat on the piazza of a summer hotel and looked about them, noting the other guests with critical eye, "when I am married—if I ever am married—I shall not march straight from the altar and put myself on exhibition at a summer resort."

"That is a commendable resolution," replied Mr. Gildersleeve.

"Just notice the three or four honeymooning couples at this hotel now."

"I've noticed them, and, do you know, I've rather envied the bridegrooms."

"Have you? Well, I haven't envied the brides. I don't believe in public lovemaking, either before or after the marriage."

"The honeymooners here seem to enjoy it, and it furnishes a great deal of amusement to some of the old married people."

"Well, no one will ever obtain amusement at my expense in that way," Miss Hungerford went on. "I consider newly-wedded affection too sacred a thing to be put on exhibition."

"Of course, you are right, Miss Hungerford, precisely right."

"Now, when I am married," Miss Hungerford proceeded, "I am going straight to my old aunt's place in the Catskills. It's the finest retreat imaginable in the hot summer days. I usually go there to rest up after a month at the shore. Perfect solitude, you know, the nicest cottage, with well-trained servants. You can lie in the hammock all day long and breathe the most delicious air. Then you can row on the dearest little lake, and take the most delightful walks, with no danger of anybody intruding on your privacy. When I was there last summer, auntly Pear said: 'Now, Annie, when you get married, I want you to come straight here with your husband and enjoy your honeymoon as it ought to be enjoyed. You and he are welcome to stay a month or two, if you like; the longer the better.' Now, don't you think it would be much better to spend a honeymoon in a place like that than at a crowded watering-place like this, Mr. Gildersleeve?"

"Indeed I do, Miss Hungerford." He moved nearer to her and added: "Annie, love, let's start right away."

"Oh, George, this is so very sudden! I'll need at least two weeks to get ready for the wedding."

She was ready in time, however.—Harper's Bazar.

Our Days Were Only Three Hours Long.

When the earth was young, says Dr. Ball, the eminent British astronomer, it turned on its axis so rapidly that it made one complete revolution once in every three hours! The earth was liquid then, and spun it around at that fearful speed probably for thousands of years. The sun caused ever-increasing tides on the surface of the great liquid planet, and at last it burst in two. But the break was not in the middle of what had been the great, swift-revolving globe of liquid matter. It was to one side, and the effect was to throw the smaller fragment out into space. That fragment kept on turning, and was soon fashioned into a globe. We see it today and know it as the moon. The larger piece also kept turning on its axis, and in the course of ages became the spherical, habitable earth. The smaller fragment of the great original globe, being held in place by the attraction of the larger, has been going around the earth ever since, but has been gradually increasing the distance between itself and its primary. Some astronomers believe that eventually the moon will get so far away that it cannot be seen by the inhabitants of our planet.—St. Louis Republic.

How, Indeed.

In the rush and crush of business in the general post office the other day an Irishman's answer was heard that is worth repeating. It was at the general delivery window, and the Irishman was poor and a typical son of the sod. He had applied for a letter.

"Letter? All right, sir. What name?"

The Irishman gave his name, but the clerk, not catching it, asked:

"How do you spell it?"

"Spell it!" answered the Irishman. "Shure, if a foine smart clerk loike you can't spell it, how d'ye think a poor man loike me can?"—Harper's Round Table.

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI.	Oct. 12
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	2 25	@ 2 85
Select butchers	3 65	@ 4 10
CALVES—Fair to good light	5 00	@ 6 00
HOGS—Common	2 60	@ 3 15
Mixed packers	3 20	@ 3 30
Light shippers	3 30	@ 2 45
SHEEP—Choice	2 35	@ 2 85
LAMBS—Good to choice	3 50	@ 4 00
FLOUR—Winter family	2 75	@ 3 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 75
No. 3 red		@ 72
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 26
Oats—No. 2		@ 18
Rye—No. 2		@ 42
HAY—Prime to choice	10 75	@ 11 00
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@ 9 37½
Lard—Prime steam		@ 4 15
BUTTER—Choice dairy		@ 8
Prime to choice creamery		@ 18½
APPLES—Per bbl		@ 1 25
POTATOES—New, per bbl	1 00	@ 1 10
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 90	@ 4 10
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@ 77¾
No. 2 red		@ 73½
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@ 30
OATS—Mixed		@ 22
PORK—New mess	8 25	@ 8 75
LARD—Western		@ 4 62½
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 50	@ 3 80
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 70¼
No. 2 Chicago spring		@ 68¼
CORN—No. 2		@ 23½
OATS—No. 2		@ 17¼
PORK—Mess	7 00	@ 7 05
LARD—Steam	4 27½	@ 4 30
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 50	@ 3 75
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2	73¼	@ 73½
Corn—Mixed	29½	@ 29½
Oats—Mixed	25	@ 26
LARD—Refined		@ 11 00
PORK—Mess		@ 16 85
CATTLE—First quality	3 80	@ 4 00
HOGS—Western	3 90	@ 4 00
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@ 64
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 21½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 16
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 65
Corn—Mixed		@ 23½
Oats—Mixed		@ 17
PORK—Mess	[illegible]	@ 7 00
LARD—Steam		@ 4 50

Important Contract.

Readers of this paper will be interested in learning that a large contract for advertising No-To-Bac and Cascarets, the famous preparations manufactured by the Sterling Remedy Co. of Chicago and New York, has been given. The Sterling Remedy Co. appreciate the value of this paper as an advertising medium, and the compliment is the more marked, as the company is a conservative concern which sells its products under an absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. Every retail druggist is authorized to sell No-To-Bac, guaranteed tobacco habit cure, and Cascarets, guaranteed constipation cure, under this absolute guarantee, and readers need not hesitate to buy these preparations, as it involves no risk whatever, either physical or financial.

THE REASON.—Tommy—"Say, mamma, do they have money in heaven?" Mamma—"I think not, dear. They have no financial problem there." Tommy—"Ah! Then that's why it's heaven."—Truth.

Piso's Cure for Consumption has no equal as a Cough medicine.—F. M. ABBOTT, 383 Seneca St., Buffalo, N. Y., May 9, 1894.

SHE—"It is wonderful how much a woman can go through." He—"Yes, especially in the way of pockets or fortunes."—Truth.

WHEN bilious or costive, eat a Cascaret, candy cathartic, cure guaranteed, 10c, 25c.

HE who would be a great soul in the future must be a great soul now.—R. W. Emerson.

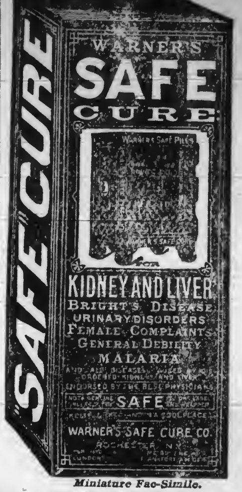
Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is taken internally. Price 75c.

IT must be pleasant to be a dog's nose in summer.—Atchison Globe.

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe.

WOMEN have to marry to prove that they have had a chance.

THE ADVANCE AGENT OF HEALTH



Miniature Fac-Simile.

FOR one hundred and fifteen years Walter Baker & Co. have made Cocoa and Chocolate, and the demand for it increases every year. Try it and you will see why.

Walter Baker & Co., Ltd., Dorchester, Mass.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
CURE CONSTIPATION
REGULATE THE LIVER
10¢ 25¢ 50¢
ALL DRUGGISTS

ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED to cure any case of constipation. Cascarets are the ideal Laxative, never grip or gripe, but cause easy natural results. Sample and booklet free. Ad. STERLING REMEDY CO., Chicago, Montreal, Can., or New York. 216.

"Check it!"

Battle Ax PLUG

A GREAT BIG PIECE FOR 10 CENTS

If he had bought a 5 cent piece he would have been able to take it with him.

There is no use buying more than a 5 cent piece of "Battle Ax." A 10 cent piece is most too big to carry, and the 5 cent piece is nearly as large as the 10 cent piece of other high grade tobaccos.

DROPSY Treated free. Positively CURED with Vegetable Remedies. Have cured many thousand cases pronounced hopeless. From first dose symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed. BOOK of testimonials of miraculous cures sent FREE. TEN DAYS TREATMENT FURNISHED FREE by mail. DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS, Specialists, Atlanta, Ga.
NAME THIS PAPER every time you write.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION
25 CTS.

STEADY WORK WE PAY CASH WEEKLY and want men everywhere to SELL STARK TREES millions tested, proven "absolutely best." Superb outfits, new system. STARK BROTHERS, LOUISIANA, Mo., ROCKPORT, Ill.

STOPPED: HEART BURN, YUCATAN.

OPIUM and WHISKY habits cured. Book sent FREE. Dr. B. M. Woolley, Atlanta, Ga.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE : COUNTY : RECORDER.

Wednesday, Oct. 14, 1896.

Rates of Subscription:
One year.............. .... $1 50.
Six months.............................. 75.
Three months.......................... 40.
☞Payable invariably in advance.

THE RECORDER
SOLICITS YOUR
Job Work,
NOTE HEADS,
LETTER HEADS,
ENVELOPES,
CARDS,
BILL HEADS,
STATEMENTS,
SALE BILLS,
AND HORSE BILLS,
Printed at the Lowest Prices consistent with neat work.
Send your order by mail and it will be attended promptly.

STATE NEWS.

Maysville voted dry.

Anderson county has a natural gas well.

Lawrenceburg is to have new electric lights.

They are mobbing toll-gates in Mercer county.

Toll-gates are becoming very unpopular in some parts of this State.

The entire apple orchard of Thos. Arnold, of Vanceburg, bloomed a second time this year.

Arthur Pearson, murdered Ben Smith, near Benton. The murder was a deliberate one.

Judge Apperson and Day fought in circuit court at Mt. Sterling, and each was sent to jail for three hours.

On Slate Creek, 35 miles from Pikeville, three men were instantly killed by premature discharge while blasting rock to open a coal bank.

J. P. Farrell, of Elliston Station, Grant county, committed suicide at the Central Hotel in Covington, by taking morphine. He had been on a protracted drunk.

Emery Hardin, aged 23, attended a church dedication near Flemingsburg, and attempted to climb a picket fence when he fell on the pickets and disembowled himself in a most terrible manner.

The dreaded "Texas fever," which has made its appearance at Paducah among the cattle, continues to spread. At first it was confined to Bell's dairy, but now the disease is gradually becoming general.

John Howe's two story brick building in Carrollton was partially destroyed by fire one morning last week. In that part of the building burnt, were the Republican headquarters, a grocery and the Odd-Fellows Hall.

Mrs. Jennie Crawford, a widow of Ashland, died from an overdose of morphine, but whether the drug was taken by accident or with suicidal intent is not known. The woman left five little children whose sole support she was.

Arthur Watson, who murdered Amanda Cane, of Kenton county, a few years ago, and escaped from the Covington jail, died in Iowa, where he was living under an assumed name. When he found he was to die he disclosed his real name. He was brought home last week, and buried.

A peculiar case came up in the Lexington police court. According to the testimony it developed that Ed Hughes, a negro, had stolen a bedstead from Susie Dancer while the latter was sleeping on it. The negro laid the sleeping woman on the floor while he took the bedstead to pieces and carried it away.

That the Mormons are well pleased with success in many of the mountain counties is shown by the zealous way in which they are working in new fields adjoining their recently acquired preserves. In many counties the Latter Day Saints have as many as six churches, and are soon to increase thier number by ving about 100 more Elders from h come to Kentucky to assist in bor of bringing the State over church of Brigham Young.

arrodsburg Sayings says: "Mr. and Mrs. Milt J. Jones, of this county have in their possession the wedding dress of the grandmother of Hon. Wm J. Bryan, candidate for President—Mrs. Col. John Lillard, who came to this place from Culpepper county, Virginia, after the Revolutionary war. The dress has only half arms, is a large flowered, low neck calico, was imported from England and cost $1 a yard.

The farmers of the country received $382,303,358 less for their wheat, corn, potatoes, rye, barley and buckwheat in 1895 than they did for the same products in 1880. In other words, they had nearly $400,000,000 less to spend or use to pay off their mortgages last year than they had 15 years ago from the shrinkage in these crops alone. Can any one wonder that times are hard except to the money dealers? If there be such a gigantic loss in the case of these products, the loss to the farmer from his entire products will amount to more than $800,000,000, which would otherwise be circulating among the retail merchants of the country and in every other avenue of trade.

Judge Cantrill rendered a judgment against the Kentucky Chair Company in favor of the Commonwealth for $48,000 for chairs under a contract made with Gov. Brown and the Sinking Fund. This issue between the State and the company arose on a tender by the company to the State of warrants for the money due on contract. The State was unable to pay her warrants, and they had been issued with that knowledge to the holders. The chair company stood on its tender, and permitted the Sinking Fund to cancel their contract with the State. Suit was brought, and the Chair Company claimed $90,000 in damages for the cancellation. The judge decided that the State was not bound to accept her warrants on the contract and sustained a demurrer to the answer. The defendant stood on its answer. judgment was given for $48,000 and an appeal was granted to the Court of Appeals.

CARROLL COUNTY
[News]

Howard Herold, who with three others, broke into a freight car at Worthville some few weeks ago, and who were indicted by the grand jury two weeks ago, was arrested in Covington Sunday and brought here and lodged in jail.

Perry Oaks, who lives near town made the first delivery of tobacco of the season yesterday to M. I. Barker. It was a first class grade and brought seven cents. Mr. Oaks cut this crop on August 13th, just 42 days elapsing from that time until he received his money.

Prentis Breeden was tried before 'Squire R. L. Vallandingham last Monday as an accomplice to his brother Louis for the killing of Wm Richmond a week ago last Saturday night. After the testimony for the Commonwealth had been given, M. L Downs, Breeden's attorney moved that the case against the prisoner be dismissed upon the grounds that there was no evidence against him to hold him over. The motion was sustained and the prisoner discharged.

Chas. A. Wright, of this place, received a letter Friday from his half-brother, Jerre D. Dunn, who left here about a year ago for Haughville. Ind., and worked at Parry's carriage factory in Indianapolis, in which he tells of his discharge, together with 116 others, because he expected to vote the Democrat ticket. He says the entire force was called before their employers, who stated to them that they expected every one of them to vote for a gold standard, but if they did not expect to vote that way they would be discharged, whereupon 117 out of 150 employes put on their coats and walked out.

There is something radically wrong with this country when one man can go to New York City, and in a few hours raise an election fund of $10,000,000, while thousands and thousands of men are hungry, ragged, idle and without money, who are willing to work for a small pittance, but can find no employment. The wrong will be righted before long.—Shelbyville (Ind.) Democrat.

THE nearer the day of election approaches the more the people are absorbed by politics.

How Presidents are Elected.

The exact procedure of a Presidential election is known to comparatively few people, and a recitation of the principal points is alway worth while.

The election takes place on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

The vote is for the electors, the number of whom in each State must equal the whole number of Representatives and Senators from the State to Congress.

The electors are required by the Constitution to meet in their respective states upon the same day, and Congress has decreed the second Monday in January following the election as the date.

The electors vote separately for President and Vice-President (one of whom at least shall not be from the same state as the elector), and the list of votes, after being signed, certified and sealed, is transmitted to Washington, directed to the President of the Senate.

Congress is required to be in session for counting the ballots of the electors upon the second Wednesday in the following February, the President of the Senate opening the certificates in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives jointly assembled.

The majority of the electoral votes elects the President and likewise the Vice President.

If no one has a majority, the election goes to the House of Representatives, the three (or two) candidates having the highest number of electoral votes being voted upon by States. The representation from each State has one vote. There must be two-thirds of the States present for a quorum and a majority of the States elect the President.

If the House of Representatives fails to choose a President before the next March 4. the Vice President acts as President.

The Vice President will have been elected previously, in all human probability, because if he has not been elected by a majority of the electoral votes at the joint session of Congress, the Senate is directed to select him by a majority vote from two highest numbers on the original electoral list, a two-thirds quorum being required for this action.

Beyond the provisions of the Constitution, an act of the Forty-ninth Congress covers all proceedings in case of dispute and also fixes the Presidential succession in the emergency of death; resignation and disability in the following order: Secretary of State, Treasury, War, Attorney General, Postmaster General. Secretary of Navy and Interior. But this acting President must have been approved by the Senate as Cabinet officer, and within constitutional requirements for Presidential eligibility.

He is compelled to convene Congress immediately and with twenty days notice.

The dates above in the pending Presidential succession matter as follows:

Election, November 3. 1896.

Electors vote January 11, 1897.

Congress counts vote Feb. 10, 1897.

The electoral vote is 447, of which 224 will constitute a majority.

THE Democrats of the Seventh Congressional District nominated Hon. E. E. Settle, of Owen county, as their candidate against Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge, the Republican candidate.

The small offerings of tobacco last week made the buyers watch the sales closer, and caused some competition on nearly all grades offered, and while there was no particular change in prices, the market was more active. The receipts were small for this season of the year.

There are a few politicians in Campbell county who have not become reconciled to the word of the Williamstown Convention and at this late day are scheming to defeat its nominee. Their action is, ostensibly, based on the refusal of Col. Berry to pay to a certain committee his campaign assessment, but at bottom there are other considerations, such as envy, jealousy and personal hate.

We are not and have not been a champion of any candidate, but we propose to print the news. Col. Berry and his friends in Newport are aware of this scheme and are taking steps to counteract it.—Commonwealth.

CROP AND STOCK.

Stock hogs sell for 3 cents per pound in Clark county.

Wheat and rye sowed before the last rains is coming up nicely in Scott county.

Some of the schools in Iowa have decided to use corn for fuel this winter, it being cheaper than coal.

An Owen county farmer exhibited at the Liberty fair last week a Chester White pig four months old that weighed 248 pounds.

"Swine plague," something like cholera, has killed 400 to 500 hogs in Jessamine county recently. John A. Steele lost 80 in the last few weeks, and Luther Davis, also lost 40.

Gen. C. M. Clay, of Madison county, offered at public sale last week his fine herd of Southdown sheep, but owing to the inclemency of the weather a small crowd was present. Only one lot of ten were offered, and sold at $4 05 per head.

The pumpkin crop in Missouri is so immense as to be a menace to life. In the hill country the farmers have to chain their pumpkins to corn stalks to prevent them from breaking loose from the vines, rolling down into the valleys and destroying their livestock and buildings.

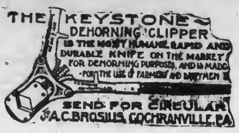
Our farmers are busily engaged in plowing and sowing wheat. The rains of last week have put the ground in splendid condition and farmers are taking advantage of it. There will be a largely increased acreage put in wheat as the prospect is better than for any other crop a farmer can raise. The price of choice seed wheat has advanced to 85 cents per bushel.—Blue Grass Clipper.

The American Agriculturalist says: "Actual thrashing returns from all winter and spring wheat States show the total wheat crop of the United States for 1896 to be 470,000,000 bushels, against 460,000,000 last year. The present returns of yield per acre, as reported by actual thrashing results, from the wheat belt, is 12.0 bushels of winter and 13.3 bushels of spring." According to final reports, the paper says, the oat crop of 1896 is 717,250,000 bushels, against 94,000,000 bushels in 1895. The average yield per acre is 23.6 bushels. The general quality is perhaps the worst on record. The proportion of merchantable oats will be unusually small. The general condition of corn Oct. 1 was 89.3.

THE Republicans are going to make one more desperate effort to capture Indiana, and with that in view forty of the ablest speakers they can command will be put to work in Indiana at once. They have abandoned their claim of a tremendous majority in that State, and will be satisfied with any.

Are You Afraid ?
TO READ BOTH SIDES OF THE QUESTION?
The New York Journal is the only Metropolitan paper indorsing
Bryan and Sewall
and it daily publishes articles by the leading financiers of the country on both sides of the question,
"Silver versus Gold."
It is progressive, liberal and always espouses the cause of the masses. Every broad minded man should read it, whether Republican or Democrat.
THE NEW YORK JOURNAL.
Daily - - - - - 1 Cent everywhere.
Subscription for One Month, including Sunday - - - - 40 cents
Two Months and a Half - - $1.00
Send subscription to
The New York Journal,
Circulation Department, NEW YORK.

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
—OF UP TO DATE—
CHESTER WHITE HOGS.



THE KEYSTONE DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
A.C. BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.

Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.
Write for circulars.
AEROMETER
EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.

COME AND SEE IT.
T. J. HUGHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

$50 REWARD!

Some time between TUESDAY, SEPT., 23d, 1896, and the Friday following, the house of Dr. E. W. Duncan, Walton, Ky, was broken into and CLOTHING STOLEN. Among other things taken was a light weight, brownish gray, Short Sack Overcoat, the style of the present fall season. On the inside of the collar was the name Jos. Bailer, Covington, Ky. On the underside of the piece of cloth containing this name was my own name written in ink. Just below the outside pocket on the right side of the coat was a square patch, 2½ to 3 inches square. On the left side of the front where the goods is folded back to form the facing is another patch of the exact size and shape of the one just described. The material was cut from this place to form the patch outside. This patch on the facing was made up of two pieces of equal size. These two small pieces were cut from surplus cloth near one of the seams in the back of the coat. There was also taken a SHORT SACK COAT of Black Cheviot that had been but little worn. This coat had the name insido the collar of C. & G. EMS, London, England. It may have in addition the two words—Cheapside and England. Instead of the buttons being simply sewed to the outside of the sleeves at the cuffs they were arranged to button and unbutton and were the only means of closing the lower 6 inches of the above sleeves. On the inside of this coat on the left side, low down, was a very large pocket, 9 inches long and 8 inches deep, closed by a button in the center. There were some PANTS taken, but there was no distinguishing feature except that none of them contained the ordinary watch pocket.

A REWARD OF $50

Will be given for the apprehension and conviction of the guilty party or parties. Address any information to the undersigned,

E. W. DUNCAN, Walton, Kv.

1896.

Your County Paper
Is the One to
Subscribe for,

It Gives all the
Neighborhood News,
Court News and
General News.

The Campaign is Now On and will be of unusual interest, and

The Recorder

Will Keep you
Posted on the Campaign.

15c Will Pay for it until
DEC. 1, 1896.

Or $1.50 will Pay for it for Twelve
Long Months.

Give It a Trial and Help
Along Home EnterPrise.

E. H. RIGGS.
—Dealer in—
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
—CEMENT, ETC.—
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1896. NO. 52.

The voters' minds are made up.

The money is on the move in this country now.

Two weeks from to-day this county will be wild with political excitement.

Remember that your vote belongs to you. Don't let another fellow cast it for you.

Settle has challenged Col. Breckinridge for a joint discussion. They would make an interesting set-to.

And Uncle Billy's name goes under the log cabin. It is anything with him to get back to Congress.

The speaking part of the programme is now about completed, and the next thing is to get ont the voters.

The pocket book argument is often more potent than that from the mouth, and it is now getting in its works.

The Republicans committee in the Ashland district has certified to the nomination of Col. Breckinridge as the Republican candidate for Congress. How the mighty has fallen.

Mr. Carlisle will make several speeches in this State this week. He will not tell his audiences that the predictions he made many years ago when discussing the financial question, are being verified.

There is but little doubt but a very large portion of the vote that has been claimed for Palmer and Buckner in this State will be cast for McKinley. The deal has been perfected in the last few weeks.

On his tour through Michigan, last week, Mr. Bryan was not sparing in his quotations from speeches of McKinley, Harrison, Blaine, Carlisle, Ingersoll, and others, showing that they had advocated what he is now advocating.

If a subscription of $20,000 can be obtained the Odd-Fellows of this State will begin the erection of a Widows' and Orphans' Home, and at the last session of the Grand Lodge the Widows' and Orphans' Home committee was directed to commence an active canvass among the lodges and membership to ascertain what amount can be raised.

Mr. Lauterbach, chairman of a Republican committee in New York, made a speech last week in which he used the language, "if Bryan is elected we will not submit," but as soon as he saw his words in cold type they frightened him, and he is claiming that the stenographer caught his words wrong, that he said "may not submit" instead of "will not submit." It is well enough not to hold a party responsible for the utterances of a fool.

Mr. DeGolley, of Ohio, who started out in this campaign as a Boltercrat, and was made a member of the Executive Committee in that State, has resigned and is now making speeches for Bryan. He says he was deceived—was told that the nomination of Palmer and Buckner was to preserve the Democratic party, but being on the inside he discovered that the real purpose of their nomination was to elect McKinley, and that he will not be a party to any such a deceptive scheme.

The demand by the manufacturers for tobacco has been only moderate for the past three months, and while offerings some two months ago were so large, it permitted the buyers to purchase at such figures as they might dictate, but as the stocks have gradually decreased, and the offerings have grown so limited, they are now hardly equal to the requirements of the manufacturers, and it is causing more competition and a stronger market. Prices have not advanced to any extent, but sufficiently to cause the sellers to be better satisfied, and causes less rejections.

The Republicans are figuring on a gain of at least one hundred votes in this county at the approaching election, and the Democrats are fully aware that they are going to lose votes of some who have been voting with them with the regularity with which elections have come. Now, if the Democratic organizations throughout the county will go to work and not stop until they register the party's strength at the polls on the third day of next November, the Republicans' anticipated gain may materialize, and Boone still give an increased Democratic majority—a majority so much in excess of any she has given in the past that the Republican gain will amount to nothing in the district or State. The size of the Democratic majority in Boone depends upon the earnest, hard work done on the day of the election. The work of organization that has been going on for several weeks is of no value unless it bear fruit on the third day of next month. The Republicans have about seven hundred voters to look after in this county, while the Democrats have about twenty-seven hundred. With such odds in their favor what excuse can the Democrats offer for a measly majority of one thousand four hundred and fifty-one as was the case four years ago? In the past the Democratic stay-at-home vote has been about one in four at the presidential elections, but this year every one is needed, and the Democratic club in each precinct is relied on as a medium to bring about different results. Will they do it? In some precincts they will be found trying very hard, and there is no doubt but what the effort will be rewarded. Democrats, your party needs your assistance at the polls on the third day of next month. Your gallant standard bearer is making a great fight, and has won the admiration of the country, but it takes votes to elect him, and each one of you can aid him to the extent of one vote. Do that and you do your duty.

[Newport State Journal.]

The vote of this Congressional District two years ago was as follows: Democratic 16,943; Republican, 13,931; Populist, 375. This vote is given as a starter to a showing that there isn't a ghost of a chance of Candidate Ernst's election. The election of '94 was when the great Republican landslide took place, when nearly every district in the State elected a Republican Congressman. Our Hon. A. S. Berry was one of the few the landslide didn't catch. This in a great measure was owing to that gentlemen's great popularity among his constituents, because of his ever careful attention to their interests while serving his first term. He had proved himself "a good and faithful servant," one that could be relied on at all times to do his duty. And he was not so strictly partisan in his work as to ignore requests for favors from those of the opposite party, as was proven in his assisting many in obtaining pensions in cases where justice required them. In fact he never failed to give attention and work to any matter any of his constituents would request of him. No wonder, then that his popularity so increased that he was re-elected to a second term by a handsome majority even at the time of the great Republican landslide. During his second term he went far beyond all expectations in telling work for his district—benefits for individuals too numerous to mention, for this section and that, on land and on river. Is it then any wonder that his reelection by even an old time majority is conceded? The voters of the district will act as wise men should and send back to his seat in the house the man who has been tried and found not wanting, Albert S. Berry.

It wont be long until the cabinet makers will resume work.

As it has often been stated, you but have to examine the congressional record of William J. Bryan to ascertain his service and loyalty to the Democratic party, and, although he is at the present time assailed and regarded by his enemies as the expounder of populistic, socialistic and anarchistic doctrines, during his career in congress he was the recognized leader of tariff reform, the great feature embodied in Democratic principles. Having had the good fortune of becoming personally acquainted with the nominee of the Chicago convention while in Washington and [illegible] opportunity of hearing four of his greatest speeches delivered upon the floor of the House, which have added not a little to his continual increasing fame and popularity, it may not be amiss at this time to recall, in part, some of the proceedings which transpired upon those memorable occasion.

The first speech was made early in the Fifty Second Congress, when the special measures to put wool, twine, etc., on the free list were up before the House for consideration, and it is regarded, by many, to have been his ablest effort. Prior to this time he was, compartively speaking, little known, and the result following the occasion was wonderful in deed.

At the conclusion of his address, which probably lasted three hours, such a profound impression had he made upon those present by reason of his logical arguments and matchless oratory, that for sometime the House was an utter scene of confusion and uproar, caused by the wild demonstrations of applause, while Bryan found himself entirely surrounded by his friends and admirers offering hearty and numerous congratulations.

The effect was spontaneous. He arose the next morning to find himself famous. Never a time after this could he fail to command the closest attention whenever he arose to participate in any discussion however important or trivial it might be. Many of the oldest members in congress declared it was one of the greatest orations they had ever listened to.

The special session of the Fifty Third Congress was the occasion of another notable event, when the repeal of the Sherman Act, was under consideration, for we find Mr. Bryan then violently opposing the measure which was to give to silver its death blow, and earnestly appealing for the mints of free coinage, which has become the paramount issue of the present day.

But the most memorable of all, and the one which drew on us especial attention, occurred during the fall of 1893, when it was readily conceded that the largest audience ever assembled in the House of Representatives was present to hear the noted orator speak upon the Wilson Bill, and its provisions. It was on a Saturday night, and long before the hour of convening for the evening session, the galleries were filled to overflowing, and all the corrodors upon the House Wing crowded with persons eager to gain admission in some way. Just before the announcement of the evenings proceedings, numerous consent was given to admit visitors and spectators upon the floor proper, and in a short time a glance from the gallery revealed a dense mass of humanity below.

The speaker opened his discourse with the acknowledgement that such a multitude was a great embarrassment to him, and that he felt highly honored in being permitted to address the House upon such an occasion. The most profound attention was observed throughout the evening, only interrupted by frequent applause. At the conclusion of his speech, one of the finest on record, he was again besieged by a throng of anxious admirers, and the debate upon the bill closed with a fitting climax.

The last, but not least in effect, was his reply to Bourke Cochran in support of the income tax, and though the latter was one of the foremost orators of the land, enjoying a world wide reputation, the young orator of Nebraska is accorded the distinction of even surpassing the eloquent New Yorker by his masterly address, embodying almost unanswerable arguments. He has even been termed the greatest living orator, equaled by none since the days of Demosthenes and Cicero.

Being a man of commanding presence and showing an expression of the utmost intelligence, [illegible] sure to [illegible] and is already on record as the cleanest and purest man in American politics. The Democrats may well feel proud in securing such a man for there standard bearer, as the able and patriotic statesman, William J. Bryan, endowed with such a scholarly training, such impressive eloquence, whose information upon all matters political and inter-national is almost unlimited; whose character is un-questionable; whose reputation is daily increasing, and if by the will of the American people he is made the next President of the United States, it is safe to assume that in point of rank and ability, he will equal, if not supercede any of his predecessors, and with the increasing of his administration, a brighter day will dawn, followed by greater industrial development and a greater prosperity throughout the land.

* * *

STATE NEWS.

George Prather killed Wm Keeling in Nelson county. They were enemies over the location of a school house, each wanting it near his home.

The persimmon crop will not be as heavy this year as last because the high winds blew many from the branches. Nevertheless, there will be lots of them.

Mrs. Wilson, of Sadieville, attempted suicide with poison. It is said that she wanted to die because her husband and sons would not get up and build the kitchen fire of mornings.

Farmers are busily engaged in plowing and sowing wheat. The rains of last week have put the ground in splendid conditoin, and farmers are taking advantage of it. There will be a largely increased acreage put in wheat, as the prospect is better than for any other crop a farmer can raise.—Georgetown News.

Edgar Minnard, a farmer residing near Anderson, Ind., took a pumpkin to that city and put it on exibit. He made affidavit before a Notary Public, and had several others to do so, that it weighed 84½ pounds. These affidavits will be forwarded to the Government offices and be entered for the $100 prize offered by the Secretary of Agriculture for the largest pumpkin raised in the United States this year from seed furnished by the government.

In job type the Frankfort Capital declares "Breckinridge has no opposition of any consequence in this district. Nobody cares for Settle, but all the leaders are mad." The above is quite different from the statement of a Breckinridge man living in Scott county, and whose opportunity is equally as good for knowing the feeling of the people as is that of the Capital. He says Settle will be elected.

The corporations are determined to make their employes vote for McKinley, and upon their success depends lagely the Major's election. The Republicans are now pursuing the same tactics as those for which they have been condemning the Democrats in the South. The corporations are threatening their employes with discharge if they vote for Bryan. Some men can not be driven.

Hon. H. D. Rucker, and Attys. Tolin and Lassing will speak at Constance next Friday evening at 7:30 p. m.

D. E. Castleman and S. W. Tolin will speak at Verona Monday evening, October 26th, at 7:30 p. m.

Everybody is invited to attend these meetings.

With this issue the Recorder completes its twenty-first year. It has no great promises to make as to what it will do in the future, but it will do in the future as it has in the past—the best it can.

Mr. T. D. Goodridge has been in a hospital in Cincinnati for the last week, preparing himself to have his knee operated on.

Vote for Bryan and Berry—they are the Democratic nominees.

Col. Graddy [illegible] not speak here last Thursday [illegible] as per his appointment [illegible].

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samnel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson.
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup'nt of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, [illegible] S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M. Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W Lester.
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill. Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George; Deputy Warden, M. A. [illegible]
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; [illegible] Dempsey, H. S. Irwin. Secretary—Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first [illegible]; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wed[illegible] after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday [illegible] second Monday; Add Riddell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN.
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896
At Walton, Ky.
Three Courses of Study to choose from:
English, Scientific or Classical,
Tuition per month for Higher Branches.................. $3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches.................. 2.50
We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2.00 for five days.
Teachers { Mrs. S. H. Myers. Chas. F. Prior. Rev. S. H. Myers.
Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organised and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky.
OSCAR GAINES Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
Executive Board—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. Cowen, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. Rogers, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administrator's Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of Abel Beemon, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

S. W. Adams, Adm'r.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
Burlington, Ky.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON.
......DENTIST,......
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
Main Office—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

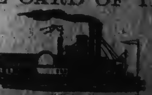
W. E. Vest. B. L. Rice.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞ All communications addressed to W. E. Vest, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
Capital,.................. $80,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 17,000
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
Capital paid in.................. $50,000
Surplus,.................. $ 2,600
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE



STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for [illegible]
6:00 am [illegible]
Leave La[illegible]
Leave Aur[illegible]
Leave [illegible]

GOD'S PLOWMEN,

Who Must Harrow and Thrash and Run Their Furrows

Up to the Cross—Men of Holy Lives Who Lived as Agriculturists—Nettles Mixed With Grain Sown for a Harvest of Souls—Talmage's Sermon.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was John xv, 1: "My father is the husbandman."

This summer, having gone in different directions over between 5,000 and 6,000 miles of harvest fields, I can hardly open my Bible without smelling the breath of new-mown hay and seeing the golden light of the wheat field. And when I open my Bible to take my text, the Scripture leaf rustles like the tassels of the corn.

We were nearly all of us born in the country. We dropped corn in the hill, and went on Saturday to the mill, tying the grist in the middle of the sack so that the contents on either side the horse balanced each other, and drove the cattle afield, our bare feet wet with the dew, and rode the horses with the halter to the brook until we fell off, and hunted the mow for nests until the feathered occupants went cackling away. We were nearly all of us born in the country, and all would have stayed there had not some adventurous lad on his vacation come back with better clothes and softer hands and set the whole village on fire with ambition for city life. So we all understand rustic allusions. The Bible is full of them. In Christ's sermon on the mount you could see the full-blown lilies and the glossy back of the crow's wing as it flies over Mt. Olivet. David and John, Paul and Isaiah find in country life a source of frequent illustration, while Christ in the text takes the responsibility of calling God a farmer, declaring: "My Father is the husbandman."

Noah was the first farmer. We say nothing about Cain, the tiller of the soil. Adam was a gardener on a large scale, but to Noah was given all the acres of the earth. Elisha was an agriculturist, not cultivating a ten-acre lot, for we find him plowing with 12 yoke of oxen. In Bible times the land was so plenty and the inhabitants so few that Noah was right when he gave to every inhabitant a certain portion of land; that land, if cultivated, ever after to be his own possession. Just as in Nebraska the United States government, on payment of $16, years ago gave pre-emption right to 160 acres to any man who would settle there and cultivate the soil.

All classes of people were expected to cultivate ground except ministers of religion. It was supposed that they would have their time entirely occupied with their own profession, although I am told that sometimes ministers do plunge so deeply into worldliness that they remind one of what Thomas Fraser said in regard to a man in his day who preached very well, but lived very ill: "When he is out of the pulpit, it is a pity he should ever go into it, and when he is in the pulpit, it is a pity he should ever come out of it."

They were not small crops raised in those times, for though the arts were rude, the plow turned up very rich soil, and barley, and cotton, and flax, and all kinds of grain came up at the call of the harvesters. Pliny tells of one stalk of grain that had on it between 300 and 400 ears. The rivers and the brooks, through artificial channels, were brought down to the roots of the corn, and to this habit of turning a river wherever it is wanted, Solomon refers when he says: "The king's heart is in the hand of the Lord, and He turneth it as the rivers of water are turned, whithersoever He will."

The wild beasts were caught, and then a hook was put into their nose, and then they were led over the field, and to that God refers when He says to wicked Sennacherib: "I will put a hook in thy nose and I will bring thee back by the way which thou camest." And God has a hook in every bad man's nose, whether it be Nebuchadnezzar or Ahad or Herod. He may think himself very independent, but sometime in his life, or in the hour of death, he will find that the Lord Almighty has a hook in his nose.

This was the rule in regard to the culture of the ground. "Thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together," illustrating the folly of ever putting intelligent and useful and pliable men in association with the stubborn and the unmanageable. The vast majority of troubles in the churches and in reformatory institutions comes from the disregard of this command of the Lord, "Thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together."

There were large amounts of property invested in cattle. The Moabites paid 100,000 sheep as an annual tax. Job had 7,000 sheep, 3,000 camels, 500 yoke of oxen. The time of vintage was ushered in with mirth and music. The clusters of the vine were put into the wine press, and then five men would go into the press and trample out the juice from the grape until their garments were saturated with the wine and had become the emblems of slaughter. Christ himself, wounded until covered with the blood of crucifixion, making use of this allusion when the question was asked: "Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel and thy garments like one who treadeth the wine vat?" He responded: "I have trodden the wine press alone."

In all ages there has been great honor paid to agriculture. Seven eighths of the people in every country are disciples of the plow. A government is strong in proportion as it is supported by an athletic and industrious yeomanry. So long ago as before the fall of Carthage, Strabo wrote 28 [illegible] agriculture; Hesiod wrote a poem [illegible] subject—"The Wo[illegible] was prouder of [illegible] than of all his [illegible] But I must [illegible] of age [illegible] amid [illegible] vine- [illegible] harvests than have ever before been gathered—I want to run out the analogy between the production of crops and the growth of grace in the soul, all these sacred writers making use of that analogy.

In the first place, I remark, in grace as in the fields, there must be a plow. That which theologians call conviction is only the plowshare turning up the sins that have been rooted and matted in the soul. A farmer said to his indolent son: "There are a hundred dollars buried deep in that field." The son went to work and plowed it very deep, and then complained that he had not found the money; but when the crop had been gathered and sold for a hundred dollars more than any previous year, then the young man took the hint as to what his father meant when he said there were a hundred dollars buried down in that field. Deep plowing for a crop. Deep plowing for a soul. He who makes light of sin will never amount to anything in the church or in the world. If a man speaks as though it were an inaccuracy or a mistake, instead of the loathsome, abominable, consuming and damning thing that God hates, that man will never yield a harvest of usefulness.

When I was a boy I plowed a field with spirited horses. I plowed it very quickly. Once in a while I passed over some of the sod without turning it, but I did not jerk back the plow with its rattling devices. I thought it made no difference. After a while my father came along and said: "Why, this will never do; this isn't plowed deep enough; there you have missed this, and you have missed that." And he plowed it over again. The difficulty with a great many people is that they are scratched with conviction, when the subsoil plow of God's truth ought to be put in up to the beam.

My word is to all Sabbath-school teachers, to all parents, to all Christian workers: Plow deep! Plow deep!

And if in your own personal experience you are apt to take a lenient view of the sinful side of your nature, put down into your soul the Ten Commandments, which reveal the holiness of God, and that sharp and glittering coulter will turn up your soul to the deepest depths. If a man preaches to you that you are only a little out of order by reason of sin, and that you need only a little fixing up, he deceives! You have suffered an appalling injury by reason of sin. There are quick poisons and slow poisons, but the druggist could give you one drop that could kill the body. And sin is like that drug, so virulent, so poisonous, so fatal that one drop is enough to kill the soul.

Deep plowing for a crop. Deep plowing for a soul. Broken heart or no religion. Broken soil or no harvest. Why was it that David and the jailer and the publican and Paul made such ado about their sins? Had they lost their senses? No. The plowshare struck them. Conviction turned up a great many things that were forgotten. As a farmer plowing sometimes turns up the skeleton of a man or the anatomy of a monster long ago buried, so the plowshare of conviction turns up the ghastly skeletons of sins long ago entombed. Geologists never brought up from the depths of the mountain mightier ichthyosaurus or megotherium.

But what means all this crooked plowing and these crooked furrows, the repentance that amounts to nothing, the repentance that ends in nothing? Men groan over their sins, but get no better. They weep, but their tears are not counted. They get convicted but not converted. What is the reason? I remember that on the farm we set a standard with a red flag at the other end of the field. We kept our eye on that. We plowed up that. Losing sight of that we made a crooked furrow. Keeping our eye on that we made a straight furrow.

Now in this matter of conviction we must have some standard to guide us. It is a red standard that God has set at the other end of the field. It is the Cross. Keeping your eye on that you will make a straight furrow. Losing sight of it you will make a crooked furrow. Plow up to the Cross. Aim not at either end of the horizontal piece of the Cross, but at the upright piece, at the center of it, the heart of the Son of God who bore your sins and made satisfaction. Crying and weeping will not bring you through. "Him hath God exalted to be a Prince and a Saviour to give repentence." Oh, plow up to the Cross!

Again, I remark, in grace as in the field there must be a sowing. In the autumnal weather you find the farmer going across the field at a stride of about twenty-three inches, and at every stride he puts his hand into the sack of grain and he sprinkles the seed corn over the field. It looks silly to a man who does not know what he is doing. He is doing a very important work. He is scattering the winter grain, and though the snow may come, the next year there will be a great crop. Now that is what we are doing when we are preaching the Gospel—we are scattering the seed. It is the foolishness of preaching, but it is the winter grain; and though the snows of worldliness may come down upon it, it will yield after awhile glorious harvest. Let us be sure we sow the right kind of seed. Sow mullen stalk and mullen stalk will come up. Sow Canada thistles and Canada thistles will come up. Sow wheat and wheat will come up. Let us distinguish between truth and error. Let us know the difference between wheat and hellebore, oats and henbane.

The largest denomination in this country is the denomination of Fothingarians. Their religion is a system of negations. You say to one of them: "What do you believe?" "Well, I don't believe in infant baptism." "What do you believe?" "Well, I don't believe in the perseverance of the saints." "Well, now tell me what you do believe?" "Well, I don't believe in the eternal punishment of the wicked." So their religion is a row of ciphers. Believe something and teach it; or, to resume the figure of my text, scatter [illegible] the right kind of seed.

A minister the other day preached a sermon calculated to set the denominations of Christians quarreling. He was sowing nettles. A minister the other day advertised that he would preach a sermon on the superiority of transcendental and unorganized forces. What was he sowing? Weeds. The Lord Jesus Christ 19 centuries ago planted the divine seed of doctrine. It sprang up. On one side of the stock are all the churches of Christendom. On the other side of the stalk are all the free governments of the earth, and on the top there shall be a flowering millennium after awhile. All from the gospel seed of doctrine. Every word that a parent, or Sabbath school teacher, or city missionary, or other Christian worker speaks for Christ comes up. Yea, it comes up with compound interest—you saving one soul, that one saving ten, the ten a hundred, the hundred a thousand, the thousand ten thousand, the ten thousand one hundred thousand—on, on forever.

Again, I remark, in grace as well as in the farm there must be a harrowing. I refer now not to a harrowing that goes over the field in order to prepare the ground for the seed, but a harrow which goes over after the seed is sown, lest the birds pick up the seed, sinking it down into the earth so that it can take root. You know a harrow. It is made of bars of wood nailed across each other, and the under side of each bar is furnished with sharp teeth, and when the horses are hitched to it, it goes tearing and leaping across the field, driving the seed down into the earth until it springs up in the harvest. [illegible] pain, sorrow, persecution are the Lord's harrow's to sink the Gospel truth into your heart. These were truths that you heard 30 years ago, they have not affected you until recently. Some great trouble came over you, and the truth was harrowed in, and it has come up. What did God mean in this country in 1857? For a century there was the Gospel preached, but a great deal of it produced no result. Then God harnessed a wild panic to a harrow of commercial disaster, and that harrow went down Wall street, and up Wall street, down Third steeet, and up Third street, down State street, and up State street, down Pennsylvania avenue, and up Pennsylvania avenue, until the whole land was torn to pieces as it had never been before. What followed the harrow? A great awakening in which there were 500,000 souls brought into the kingdom of our Lord. No harrow, no crop.

Again, I remark, in grace as in the farm there must be a reaping. Many Christians speak of religion as though it were a matter of economics or insurance. They expect to reap in the next world. Oh, no! Now is the time to reap. Gather up the joy of the Christian religion this morning, this afternoon, this night. If you have not as much grace as you would like to have, thank God for what you have, and pray for more. You are no worse enslaved than Joseph, no worse trouble than was David, no worse scourge than was Paul. Yet, amid the rattling of fetters, and amid the gloom of dungeons, and amid the horror of shipwreck, they triumphed in the grace of God. The weakest man in the house to-day has 500 acres of spiritual joy all ripe. Why do you not go and reap it? You have been groaning over your infirmities for 30 years. Now give one round shout over your emancipation. You say you have it so hard; you might have it worse. You wonder why this great cold trouble keeps revolving through your soul, turning and turning with a black hand on the crank. Ah, that trouble is the grindstone on which you are to sharpen your sickle. To the fields! Wake up! Take off your green spectacles. Pull up the corners of your mouth as far as you pull them down. To the fields! Reap! reap!

Again, I remark, in grace as in farming, there is a time for threshing. I tell you bluntly that is death. Just as the farmer with a flail beats the wheat out of the straw, so death beats the soul out of the body. Every sickness is a stroke of the flail, and the sick-bed is the threshing-floor. What, say you, is death to a good man but taking the wheat one of the straw? That is all. An aged man has fallen asleep. Only yesterday you saw him in the sunny porch playing with his grandchildren. Calmly he received the message to leave this world. He bade a pleasant good-bye to his old friends. The telegraph carries the tidings, and on swift rail-trains the kindred come, wanting once more to look on the face of dear old grandfather. Brush back the gray hairs from his brow; it will never ache again. Put him away in the slumber of the tomb. He will not be afraid of that night. Grandfather was never afraid of anything. He will rise in the morning of the resurrection. Grandfather was always the first to rise. His voice has already mingled in the doxology of Heaven. Grandfather always did sing in church. Anything ghastly in that? No. The thrashing of the wheat out of the straw. That is all.

The Saviour folds a lamb in His bosom. The little child filled all the house with her music, and her toys are scattered all up and down the stairs just as she left them. What if the hand that plucked four-o'clocks out of the meadow is still? It will wave in the eternal triumph. What if the voice that made music in the home is still? It will wave in the eternal triumph. What if the voice that made music in the home is still? It will sing the eternal hosanna. Put a white rose in one hand, a red rose in the other, and a wreath of orange blossoms on the brow, the white flower for the victory, the red flower for the Saviour's sacrifice, the orange blossoms for her marriage day. Any thing ghastly about that? Oh, no The sun went down and the flower shut. The wheat th[illegible] of the straw. "Dear Lord, [illegible] sleep," said a dying boy, [illegible] of my elders, [illegible] me sleep." And [illegible] eyes and awa[illegible]

MODEST CLAIMS OF SILVERITES.

Conservative Estimate of the Standing of the States.

We have on several occasions directed attention to the extravagant claims made by the republicans of states and electoral votes wherewith they expect, or profess that they expect, to land Hanna's man in the white house. The claims have been uniformly so outrageous that argument in connection with them was out of the question; the only way to treat them as they deserved was to laugh at them.

Within the last two or three days, however, the representatives of the free silver democracy have tried their hand at the same business, and they have compiled a list which, from its unmistakable modesty and conservatism, must challenge the respect of the republicans themselves. Here is the roll of states with their electoral votes which they announce to be "absolutely safe" for the Bryan and Sewall ticket:

Alabama	11
Arkansas	8
California	9
Colorado	4
Florida	4
Georgia	13
Idaho	3
Kansas	10
Kentucky	13
Louisiana	8
Mississippi	9
Missouri	17
Montana	3
Nebraska	8
Nevada	3
North Carolina	11
North Dakota	3
Oregon	4
South Carolina	9
South Dakota	4
Tennessee	12
Texas	15
Utah	3
Virginia	12
Washington	4
Wyoming	3
Total	203

That is, without exception, the most "likely" list that we have hitherto seen compiled on the free silver side; the states that are claimed in it are, every one of them, strongly bimetallic, and there is not any reason to doubt but that every one of them will help the democratic ticket on its road to victory.

Two things will be observed in the list that are striking. The one thing is that, contrary to all precedents in such cases, a claim is not made for the full 224 votes which constitute a majority of the electoral college vote; and the other thing is that not one of the big states of New York, Ohio, Illinois or Indiana is claimed, although the committee has good reason to believe that all of the three last named will go for Bryan.

The 26 states included in the above table are to be supplemented by the other four states, of Delaware with three votes, Maryland with eight votes, Minnesota with nine votes; and the previous 203 votes which the democratic committee pronounce to be "absolutely safe" for Bryan, swelled by the 26 further votes of the four states just named, which the committe pronounce to be "reasonably certain" for the free silver ticket, will give the 224 votes necessary to elect, with five to spare.

But while the committee give out this list of states and electoral votes as the list on which they expect to win, they do not by long odds convey an intimation, or even squint toward the idea, that these are all the states that the democrats are likely to carry. They contend that the Bryan ticket has a thoroughly good fighting chance in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan, and a poorer chance in Ohio and Iowa. New York, owing to the detestable treachery of Senator Hill, who cold-bloodedly but successfully "queered" the democratic state convention, the committee appears to have abandoned altogether, just as green-eyed politicians like Blackburn and Gorman have done.

But as New York is not necessary to democratic success, its loss may be contemplated with equanimity; the free silver ticket will win in a canter without its assistance.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

——No candidate for the presidency was ever maligned as Mr. Bryan has been, but he has not lost his temper and goes right ahead with his effective talks to the people. The slanderers are not accomplishing their object.—N. Y. Journal.

——Every [illegible] of those 1890 [illegible] up, poor Maj. [illegible] invented [illegible]

THE VITAL POINT.

Shall We Vote for a Government by Men or a Government by Money?

The American people will soon go to the polls and decide the issues that are now dividing them. The most conspicuous of these issues, the one about which there is more writing and talking than about all others, is the money question. But important as that question is, there is another of incalculably deeper moment to this republic. The supreme issue before the republic is:

Shall this nation be ruled by its money or its men?

On the one side we have McKinley, backed by the concentrated wealth of the country. Every trust on which class legislation in the interest of the rich and influential confers the privilege of taxing the masses for private profit; every syndicate that has made, or hopes to make, millions by raiding the treasury of the United States; every combination of capital that sees gain to itself in the contraction of the currency; every rich man who has come to think that the government should be run for the benefit of himself and others like him—every one of these elements is striving for the success of the republican candidate. The accumulated wealth of the country is working by every means, fair and foul, for the election of McKinley.

On the other side we have Bryan, whose only strength is his cause and himself. His appeal is straight to the people on the principles for which he stands. He asks no quarter from the trusts. He defies selfish wealth and challenges it to exert to the utmost its power to corrupt, to coerce and to confuse the issue by controlling the voice of the press. He begs for no man's vote who does not think it best for the country to give it to him. He urges the people to study the questions at issue and then vote as their knowledge directs. His is a brave, a frank, a rational, a manly and a truly American appeal.

Bryan speaks for the welfare of the industrious many; McKinley for the welfare of the opulent few.

Is there a thoughtful man in the whole United States who does not know that the greatest danger which is threatening this republic is the steadily growing power of conscienceless money? Does not every thoughtful man feel that unless the grip of wealth upon our government shall be loosened we must ultimately have a republic in name and an oligarchy in fact?

Citizens equally honest differ sincerely on the currency question. Silver men think the single gold standard a potent cause of our industrial distress; gold men think that bimetallism would increase rather than lessen that distress. But honest Americans should be agreed in believing that a presidential election carried by the trusts and syndicates, under the leadership of Mark Hanna, would be immeasurably more disastrous and dishonoring to the United States than the retention or introduction of any monetary system.

Every citizen before he goes to the ballot box will, if he be intelligent and patriotic, ask himself the vital question:

"Shall I vote for government by men, or for government by money?"—N. Y. Journal.

——Mr. Hanna began his career as the manager of a political trust by saddling McKinley with his syndicate; he followed this by saddling the republican national convention with McKinley, and crowned his work by saddling the republican party with a crushing load of millionaire finance committees. The defiance of public decency and popular sentiment into which the syndicate boss has led the republican party has never been equaled in the history of politics. The republicans realize their blunder now. They would give much to be rid of their mortgaged candidate and his political receivers.—St. Louis Republic.

——The Binghamton Republican quotes an act of 1873 to prove that the silver dollar in our currency has a "gold backing." The silver dollar has been standing up since 1873. Prior to 1873 it stood up, too, but between these two periods it had no standing in the currency. What held up the silver dollar from 1792 to 1803?—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

HAS IT COME TO THIS?

HUMOROUS.

—Indignant Butcher—"That dog of yours has been getting into my sausages." Pointer—"Well, he seems to know his place."—Yonkers Statesman.

—"Papa, why do they call language the 'mother tongue?'" "Because the father so seldom gets a chance to use it."—Chicago Record.

—An Effective Disguise.—"They say Bassy's girl did not recognize him when he called the other night." "No. He wore his bicycle face."—Detroit Free Press.

—Nearing the Goal.—"Your husband seems to be making money." "Yes; he says that by next summer he will be rich enough for somebody in the family to have hay fever."—Chicago Record.

—Gentleman—"My lad, can you direct me to the Bank of England?" Shoeblack (with withering scorn)—"Ga on; do yer fink I should be doing this if I was a bank director?"—World's Comic.

—Mr. Point Breeze—"Young Homewood is always relating anecdotes, and they are invariably poor ones." Mr. Frankstown—"Yes; Homewood has a good many poor relations."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

—"In reply to your inquiry as to hominy words there are in Nature's Cereal Story," wrote the country editor [illegible] correspondent, "we [illegible] a rye face, that we are fairly corn-ered."—N. Y. Tribune.

—Wiggles—"Well, did you make him take his words back as you said you were going to do?" Waggles—"Yes, he took them back, but he used them over again more emphatically than he did before."—Somerville Journal.

—Powerful Competition.—"Young man," said her father, "I think you are a straightforward, energetic person, and I should not object to you in the slightest as a son-in-law. However, my daughter's wishes in such a matter must be consulted." "Do you not think that she will eventually return my devotion?" "Very likely. But you must give her time. She has just bought a new bicycle, you know."—Washington Star.

ETIQUETTE AT THE BANKS.

Boston People Make the Life of the Teller an Easy One.

It would seem that most of the members of the large business concerns of our proud city understand to a degree the term "bank etiquette," as though they had basked in its element a lifetime and had been taught from childhood to understand its legitimate meaning. They arrange their deposits with a method the most satisfactory imaginable to the bank clerk, a delight to behold. This regularity, while it distinctly shows the training of a thorough business man, is attended with little or no effort on their part, but it means to the bank clerks the saving of an infinite amount of hard, trying labor. This method consists of placing all the bills, clean or ragged, of the larger denominations together on the top of whatever size package they chose to make, keeping the one and two dollar bills strictly to the bottom. Thus the clerk can, with little difficulty, make rapid headway through his arduous work, for he knows what he is facing. These deposits are meat to the eyes of the tellers on ordinary days, but more especially so on heavy days, when they have all they can do to finish up by six o'clock.

It is interesting to note the marvelous rapidity with which an expert goes through the bills, counting, sorting, straightening and proving, all at the same time. You observe that oftentimes he abruptly throws out a certain bill across the desk, far apart from the rest, with a "There!" most strongly emphasized, and immediately spurs up to resume his usual place, not the least disconcerted. The uninitiated is struck mute by the sudden exclamation, starts nervously and stares blankly at the man whom he supposes to have been bitten by an invisible scorpion or reptile. Closer scrutiny proves this particular bill to be a counterfeit, though it has taken the outsider fully 15 minutes to distinguish between it and the genuine bill, much to the disgust of the expert, who, at a single glance, detected it, going as he was at the rate of a mile a minute, and discarded it as quickly as though it burned him.—Boston Transcript.

Qualifications Needed for Consulship.

Anybody at all familiar with the duties of an American consul, anybody who knows what is expected of him by the department of state and what he is called upon to do by the public, will agree that he should neither be the product nor the victim of capricious political partisanship. He should be appointed upon his merits after careful examination and retained upon the same basis. There should be a career for the consul. There should be reward of merit and he should suffer for incompetency. Primarily the consul should be a gentleman, meaning thereby an honorable and educated man, familiar with the amenities and graces of good society. The next and absolutely necessary requirement should be an intelligent knowledge of the language of the post to which he is assigned. He need not be a professor of German or French or Spanish or Italian, but he should be able to speak and write intelligently the language of the country to which he is commissioned.—Scribner's.

Fully Occupied.

"Well, Charlie," said his aunt, as she met him on his return from the summer hotel, "what did you do with yourself all summer?"

"Oh, I was losin' my hat about half the time," said Charlie.

"Indeed! And what did you do the other half?"

"Oh, I spent that lookin' for my hat."—Harper's Round Table.

He Had Forgotten.

"Deacon, there certainly was water in that milk you sold us this morning."

"Muster been from that big yaller cow that fell inter th' creek. Forgot all about that."—Detroit Free Press.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

LOTS OF MONEY WASTED.

Which, If Properly Expended, Would Build Fine Country Roads.

The problem we have to solve in Pennsylvania is to endeavor to utilize the money and natural material at hand to the best advantage on our countrty roads. There is money enough expended in this state year by year which, if judiciously and practically used, in the course of a very few years would "pike" all the principal thoroughfares in the state outside of the cities and boroughs. From the best obtainable statistics we find that for the year ended May 31, 1895, the road tax levied in the several counties of Pennsylvania, outside the cities and boroughs, was $3,622,708.76. This, of course, does not include Philadelphia county. The total mileage of public roads in the same territory is 80,000 miles. From the best obtainable information, confirmed by personal observation over a large section of the state, I am satisfied that at least one-quarter of all the roads are not worked every year. This I believe to be a low estimate. This estimate leaves 60,000 miles of road actually worked during the year, or an average expenditure of $60 per mile. Now, if the provisions of the Flynn bill, passed by the last legislature, together with some contemplated amendments, were enforced, we would have a network of good roads extending all over the state at small additional expense, which would be a great boon to the traveling public and in time add thousands of dollars to the corporate wealth for every hundred expended.

THIS IS WHAT SOME FARMERS CALL A ROAD.

The plan contemplated is to have the roads of the state divided into three divisions, namely: State, county and township roads. All roads leading to and from one county into another, connecting county with county, I would classify as state roads, to be maintained by state appropriations. The second class should consist of the principal thoroughfares of the county leading to said state roads or arteries of commerce. These roads to be maintained by a special county tax under the direction of the county commissioners, according to the Flynn bill. I would also have the state appropriation above mentioned placed at the disposal of the county commissioners, to be expended according to the conditions of the above bill. Said appropriation to be allotted to the county in proportion to the amount the county itself raised for good road improvement.

The third class would consist of the smaller roads or feeders to the county roads, which would be maintained by the regular township tax, under the direction of the supervisors, but upon a more scientific basis than is conducted in some parts at present.—A. B. Dunning, in Good Roads.

USING THE SEPARATOR.

How to Get a Good Grain and the Most Satisfactory Results.

In running a separator do not have the milk needlessly warm. Mr. Wagener, instructor in butter making at Cornell university, teaches that 80 degrees is better than a higher temperature. He believes that probably the most important point in running a separator is the thickness of the cream, and says: "Adjust your separator so that your cream will be as thick as you can churn. By this I mean as thick as can be and yet fall from end to end of a revolving churn and not stick to the sides when churning. Such cream will generally contain 35 to 45 per cent. of fat. I consider this a very important point. Cream containing 40 per cent. of fat will churn more quickly and leave less fat in the buttermilk at 55 degrees than will cream containing 18 to 20 per cent. at 60 degrees. The secret of quick churning at the very low temperature—52 to 55 degrees, which we know to be the best—is to have your cream very rich. This is an advantage you cannot secure from cold settings, it being difficult to obtain cream of this class with much over 18 to 20 per cent. of fat. The second point of great importance is to cool the cream at once to a low temperature—at least 55 degrees—and hold it there for a few hours before warming it up to ripen. Whenever in summer time we are troubled with cream that coagulates before it gets much acid, or with different churnings, which some of us have, I feel sure that chilling the cream directly from the separator will help greatly. We shall get better grain, better flavor and more satisfactory results in every way. I believe that this matter of careless handling of cream after it is separated is the rock upon which many butter-makers split.

Roman Road Construction.

The Roman roads were built on the Telford plan, with a substratum of heavy blocks of the stone most abundant in the neighborhood, covered with a layer of smaller stones or gravel. They were highest in the middle, with a trench on each side to carry off the water, and no trees or shrubs were allowed to grow within 10 paces on either hand. The population of the districts through which these highways passed were required to keep them in order and to cut down weeds and shrubbery within the proscribed distance.

Bad milk will make bad butter, no matter how it is handled.

TURNING MONEY OVER.

A Few of the Mistakes Made by Many Dairy Farmers.

A farmer who has quite a cream trade was heard to say that it was only "turning money over." And while his receipts from the sale of cream were considerable, yet there was a great deal of truth in his remark. It should not have been so, for the price paid him was a good one, and there was no railroad freight or commission bill to pay out of the sales. It is not a pleasant task to criticise anyone, least of all a farmer, but sometimes good comes of it, and we venture to point out his mistakes, hoping that we may thereby help some one.

In the first place, his trade is only for certain times in the year, and instead of having his cows fresh at that time he turns a bull loose among his cows and they come in without regard to times or seasons.

Then instead of getting a thoroughbred bull he raises one from one of his cows, sired by any bull that happened to be the nearest to his farm.

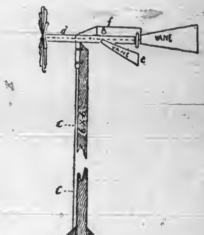
In times when prices were high some profit might be made in following such plans, or rather lack of plans, but now when prices are so very low these two causes alone are sufficient to change from profit to loss the whole business of dairying. I do not think that the present situation is at all just to the farmer, nor do I believe that affairs will always remain as they are now. I most ardently hope that after the election we will see better times, and every particle of influence I possess will be used to further such means as I believe will bring about the desired end. But no man may tell when the better times are coming, and in the meanwhile we must make our calculations on the present basis of prices.

The only way to do this is to cheapen the cost of our salable product. Just how we are to do this is the most important question that confronts our farmers, and it is one that must be answered or we will keep on going from bad to worse. It may be a thoroughbred bull will answer the question, or better feeding, or a silo, but just what it may be each one must decide for himself. It seems that sometimes we get into a certain way of doing things and keep on year after year whether we are being paid or not. This way of doing will not avail these times, however unjust it may be that things are as they are.—National Stockman.

CHEAP WINDMILL.

Can Be Made at Small Expense by Any Ingenious Farmer.

A windmill such as is portrayed below can be made by any ingenious farmer at a trifling expense. For an upright to place the windmill on, I use six by six inch elm scantling. Cut a two-inch strip four feet long from the center and run it down on the cribbing of the well. Two polls, (a, a,) were riveted through upright to cribbing. Two braces (b) of two by four-inch scantling make the upright secure. To upper end of the upright is bolted a piece of old pump piping about two feet long for the sucker rod (c c) to work through as well as for the windmill to turn and face the wind. The crosspiece upon which the windmill works (d) contains a hole just large enough to allow it to turn easily on this pipe. The shaft from the windmill to pitman passes close at one side of the pipe. The tail or vane is put on the opposite side of the crosspiece to the fan and balances it. To prevent the main vane from holding the fan too straight to the wind in a storm, I placed a smaller vane (e) at the side. Strong winds press against the smaller vane, turning the fan out enough to prevent breaking. The crosspiece is six by six inches. At about one-third of the distance from the pipe to pitman is placed a standard (g) for a lever (f) to work on. These parts were made by a blacksmith. My windmill has been in operation over a year and since placing the smaller vane (e) on the side, I have had no trouble with it; before then, a storm would break the leaves.—Farm and Home.



A CHEAP PUMP.

Butter Firm Without Ice.

A correspondent of Hoard's Dairyman gives the following method of keeping butter firm without the use of ice: "Take a tight box (10 or 12 inches high, 12 to 14 inches wide and 18 to 24 inches long) that can be got at any grocery store, put a loose shelf about five inches from the bottom on which to place the butter. Set a dish containing water in the bottom of the box and place the butter on the shelf. Take a piece of cloth large enough to well cover the butter and drop over the edge of the shelf into the dish of water. Moisten the cloth, spread it over the butter and let the end drop into the dish of water, and it will take up the water so as to keep the butter cool and hard and free from salt crystals and in fine shape for table use. Toweling crash is the best cloth to use for the purpose. The box should have a cover."

Better have a few trees and give them good care than many and neglect them.

INSANE RIDE BICYCLES.

Wheels Introduced with Success at the Michigan Asylum for the Demented.

Bicycle riding has been introduced into the Michigan insane asylum as a remedy for insanity, and the scorchers of Kalamazoo, Mich., where the asylum is located, are rejoicing over their vindication.

Every day when the roads are passable from five to eight insane men or women, under the espionage of one or two attendants, are allowed to pedal over the country roads, sometimes eight or ten miles from the asylum, and the physicians are doing all they can to encourage the fad.

The first person at the asylum to ride a wheel was Dr. Herman Ostrander, one of the assistant physicians. He became an adept two years ago, and the rest of the medical staff caught the fever.

The patients, however, were compelled to look on, and the only wheels they were allowed to have until a few weeks ago were those they are supposed to carry in their heads, and even these the staff tried hard to take away from them. Now the staff has found that by substituting racing wheels for the wheels in the patients' heads there is a noticeable improvement in their condition.

The first wheel ridden by a patient was sent as a present to one of the convalescents, who learned to ride without any difficulty. All the other victims of delusions soon had the owner of the wheel on the point of a relapse by their attempts to borrow it, and it was this, it is said, that finally induced the medical staff of the asylum to permit the other patients to own wheels.

Most of the patients received their bicycles as gifts from friends, but the wealthier made their own purchases, and the craze for riding spread among the victims of chronic melancholia a great deal faster than it did among the citizens of Kalamazoo, which is saying a great deal. Nearly 100 of the 1,000 patients in the institution now own wheels of their own.

The bad country roads are given almost as much credit among the medical staff for the beneficial effect on the patients as are the bicycles themselves. The paths about the asylum are so notorious that the patients are obliged to concentrate all their attention on their machines to keep from being thrown.

The citizens of Kalamazoo have nicknamed the wheeling parties from the asylum "Crazy Parties," and, to tell the truth, the antics of some of the riders deserve the name. It is no uncommon thing for a member of one of the parties to take a header, and then attempt to smash his machine with stones to pay for the tumble. Often the entire party has to stop while the asylum attendants drag an irate rider away from his wheel, which is usually blamed for the fall as though it were a person.

Every week trips are made to Long Lake, ten miles away, and to the chain of lakes a short distance from the asylum, and on these excursions lunch is taken along and the day is spent in the country. Between repairing punctures and cleaning chains the cranks have no time to get melancholy, and the physicians are unanimously of the opinion that the bicycle is one of the greatest helps to their branch of the medical profession that has yet been discovered. —Chicago Tribune.

SIGNALING AT SEA.

Diversity of Opinion About the Relative Merits of Lights.

There is a great diversity of opinion in the British navy as to the merits and demerits of colored lights for signaling. Most of the young officers are strongly in their favor. As they point out, a signal on this system can be kept showing as long as required, while any amount of repetition of flash-signaling may not, under some conditions, render it intelligible with any degree of certainty.

The British naval authorities who have been indefatigable in testing new systems of signaling, both for day and night purposes, have recently made a trial at Portsmouth of the Sellner system, invented by an officer in the Austrian navy. This system consists of two lanterns, each capable of producing five classes of light, namely, white and red, white occulating, red occulating. Thirty different combinations are on the code. Electric lights are used for the lanterns, and though, for the present, separate batteries are used for the lights and for the signaling apparatus by which the lights are changed and obscured at will, it is intended eventually one dynamo shall supply all of the current required. A record of signals sent by the apparatus is obtained by an attachment which prints the message sent automatically. No difficulty was experienced in reading the signals at a distance of six miles or more. The objection raised to the system is that the mechanism is far too delicate and complicated, though the results obtained with it far exceed those possible with the present Morse flash signaling.—Philadelphia Press.

A Small Brain.

Dr. Gore has furnished the Anthropological society with an acount of the smallest adult human brain ever examined by a professional anatomist or physiologist. It is a well-known fact that the brain of the adult male averages 49 ounces, the female 44½ ounces. The adult human being who had the smallest brain ever weighed was a female of 42 years of age. She was five feet high, and her intellect was infantile. The brain, without the membranes, weighed ten ounces and three grains, being the smallest mature brain on record.—N. Y. Sun.

While She's Gone.

Blobbs—I hear you have bought your cook a bicycle, and encourage her to take long rides.

Dobbs—Yes, and you can't imagine what a quiet, happy home we've had lately.—Kansas City World.

—No matter h[illegible] a man [illegible] a woman, i[illegible] intimate th[illegible] good [illegible] —Atchison [illegible]

MAKING MEN BEGGARS.

Women in London Crowding Out the Sterner Sex.

"I have before me," says Walter Besant in a recent issue of the London Queen, "the thirty-seventh annual report of the Society for Promoting the Employment of Women. I am sorry to learn from this report that the demand for women clerks and bookkeepers is on the increase.

"At the same time I am informed in other quarters that thousands of men clerks are tramping the streets of London, wearing out shoe leather in going up and down stairs in the weary work of trying to find places.

"They find, instead, women doing the work, which should keep them and their wives, for half the pay. One has no objection to women doing men's work if they get men's pay. They may even keep the men in idleness, if they please, like the laundresses.

"How shall we make these promoters understand the cut-throat policy of pushing women in everywhere, at half or quarter the pay, and driving the men abroad? However, there are other and more satisfactory features about this report.

"In the lower walks something has been done by the society in getting places for women as hair-dressers—will they ever become such admirable artists in this walk as the men?—in finding cooks and waitresses, and in getting temporary work of all kinds for women.

"But the numbers and figures given demonstrate that the work of the society is but a drop in the ocean. We have 40,000,000 of people, with 20,000,000 of women and girls, and all who are past the age of 15, with an insignificant minority of about 500,000, are clamoring for work."

PERFECT HEALTH.

How It May Be Obtained by All.

An Interesting Bit of History as Told by a Traveling Man.

From the World, Cleveland, Ohio.

After an extended trip lasting several months and embracing many points of interest throughout the West and South, Mr. George Lockhart, of Hudson, Ohio, returned home a few days ago. He is bright and genial as ever and looks as if his long holiday had thoroughly agreed with him.

Mr. Lockhart's business during his travels took him frequently to Hot Springs and other health resorts. He does not appear to have been very favorably impressed with the peculiarities of life at such places, nor with the benefits received by the patients. "Men go there to get cured of disease," says he. "They take one hot bath in the morning and spend the rest of the day generally in drinking, gambling and general dissipation. How they can expect to recover under such treatment passes my comprehension. But they are, as a rule, what the world calls good fellows, free with their money and bent on enjoying themselves.

"With one man, however, whom I met at such a place I formed what I hope will prove a permanent friendship. I am indebted to him for benefits which have left on my mind a feeling of the strongest gratitude. I was, as you know, not at all well. A slight lameness in my right leg, contracted about a year ago, had gradually become worse until I was compelled to go around on crutches all the time. Then my general health failed, until in the latter part of the summer I had about concluded to come home to die. Such a state of affairs as you will easily understand, was anything but comfortable. I was, in fact, neither more nor less than a helpless invalid, a nuisance to myself and everybody around me. It was at this juncture that one day on the train I fell into conversation with the man I mention. He recommended me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so. You see the result."

And Mr. Lockhart expanded his broad chest and smiled. "Look here," he continued, as he took off his hat and holding it on a level with his head, kicked it easily with the foot that used to be lame. No better picture of perfect health and abounding animal spirits could be wished for than this one-time invalid.

"My future movements are uncertain," said Mr. Lockhart at parting. "I will remain in Hudson for some time, but before the summer is over I expect to make a visit to Europe."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI. Oct. 19
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	2 10	@ 2 65
Select butchers	3 50	@ 4 00
CALVES—Fair to good light	4 50	@ 5 00
HOGS—Common	2 50	@ 3 05
Mixed packers	3 10	@ 3 30
Light shippers	3 20	@ 3 35
SHEEP—Choice	2 25	@ 2 75
LAMBS—Good to choice	3 25	@ 3 75
FLOUR—Winter family	2 80	@ 3 05
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 76
No. 3 red		@ 75
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 27
Oats—No. 2		@ 17½
Rye—No. 2		@ 43
HAY—Prime to choice	10 75	@ 11 00
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@ 9 50
Lard—Prime steam		@ 4 15
BUTTER—Choice dairy	14	@ 18
Prime to choice creamery		@ 22
APPLES—Per bbl		@ 1 25
POTATOES—New, per bbl	1 00	@ 1 10
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 20	@ 4 20
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@ 85½
No. 2 red	80½	@ 80¾
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@ 32¼
OATS—Mixed		@ 23½
PORK—New mess	8 50	@ 9 25
LARD—Western		@ 4 67½
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 50	@ 3 80
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	77½	@ 77¾
No. 2 Chicago spring		@ 74¼
CORN—No. 2		@ 25¾
OATS—No. 2		@ 19
PORK—Mess	7 15	@ 7 20
LARD—Steam	4 32½	@ 4 35
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 70	@ 3 85
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2	78¼	@ 78½
Corn—Mixed	31¼	@ 31½
Oats—Mixed		@ 21
LARD—Refined		@ 11 00
PORK—Mess		@ 16 85
CATTLE—First quality	3 75	@ 3 95
HOGS—Western	3 90	@ 4 00
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@ 69¼
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 24½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 18½
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	[illegible]	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 73
[illegible]		@ 25¼
[illegible]		@ 18
[illegible]		@ 8 50
[illegible]		@ 5 1[illegible]

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by druggists, price 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

LULU—"We girls are getting up a secret society of our own." George—"Indeed! What's the object?" Lulu—"I don't know yet, but I'll tell you all about it after I'm initiated."—Household Words.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

RELIGIOUS OBSERVANCE.—"You ride your wheel on Sunday, don't you?" "Yes, but I never run over anyone on that day."—Tit-Bits.

To Cleanse the System

Effectually yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently overcome habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them, to dispel headaches, colds, or fevers, use Syrup of Figs.

A MAN'S word is worth more at all other times than when he tells his wife that he has no money.—Atchison Globe.

CURE your cough with Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar.
Pike's Toothache Drops Cure in one minute.

THE girl who has a beau is usually the first in the family to catch cold in the fall. —Atchison Globe.

PISO'S Cure for Consumption is an A No. 1 Asthma medicine.—W. R. WILLIAMS, Antioch, Ills., April 11, 1894.

SELFISHNESS is self robbery, no matter whether it dwells in a hut or in a palace.—Ram's Horn.

JUST try a 10c box of Cascarets, the finest liver and bowel regulator ever made.

PRUDENCE and industry are the best safeguards against hard luck.—Chicago Standard.

REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE

In one of his wonderful sermons very truthfully said, "My brother, your trouble is not with the heart; it is a gastric disorder or a rebellious liver. It is not sin that blots out your hope of heaven, but bile that not only yellows your eyeballs and furs your tongue and makes your head ache but swoops upon your soul in dejection and forebodings,"—and Talmage is right! All this trouble can be removed! You can be cured!

How? By using

Warner's Safe Cure

We can give you incontrovertible proof from men and women, former sufferers,

But to-day well, and stay so.

There is no doubt of this. Twenty years experience proves our words true.

Write to-day for free treatment blank.
Warner's Safe Cure Co., Rochester, N.Y.

Send your name for a Souvenir of the Works of Eugene Field,

FIELD FLOWERS

The Eugene Field Monument Souvenir

The most beautiful Art Production of the century. "A small bunch of the most fragrant of blossoms gathered from the broad acres of Eugene Field's Farm of Love." Contains a selection of the most beautiful of the poems of Eugene Field. Handsomely illustrated by thirty-five of the world's greatest artists as their contribution to the Monument Fund. But for the noble contributions of the great artists this book could not have been manufactured for $7.00. For sale at book stores, or sent prepaid on receipt of $1.10. The love offering to the Child's Poet Laureate, published by the Committee to create a fund to build the Monument and to care for the family of the beloved poet.

Eugene Field Monument Souvenir Fund,
180 Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

A. N. K.—E. 1627

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

How Old are You?

You need not answer the question, madam, for in your case age is not counted by years. It will always be true that "a woman is as old as she looks." Nothing sets the seal of age so deeply upon woman's beauty as gray hair. It is natural, therefore, that every woman is anxious to preserve her hair in all its original abundance and beauty; or, that being denied the crowning gift of beautiful hair, she longs to possess it. Nothing is easier than to attain to this gift or to preserve it, if already possessed. Ayer's Hair Vigor restores gray or faded hair to its original color. It does this by simply aiding nature, by supplying the nutrition necessary to health and growth. There is no better preparation for the hair than

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR.

"A Good Foundation."

Battle Ax PLUG

Lay your foundation with "Battle Ax." It is the corner stone of economy. It is the one tobacco that is both BIG and GOOD. There is no better. There is no other 5-cent plug as large. Try it and see for yourself.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Oct. 21, 1896.

Advertising Rates:
One inch, one time........................$1.00
Each additional time.......................25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50
Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered........$5.00.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

Neighborhood News.

Union.

Several cases of typhoid fever in town and vicinity.

Schools, public and private are doing good work.

Supt. Voshell says Bryan is bound to be elected, and on the strength of that certainty he is going to take a week off. He attends the Grand Lodge F. & A. M., at Louisville, this week.

Union's Bryan and Sewall club attended the Walton raily eumasse. It was a red-letter day for Union's club, and they carried off the blue ribbon for making the best appearance of any club on the grounds. Pium Guily, the stalwart, carried the star-spangle-banner; there were 16 ladies on white horses followed by Tom Carlisle dressed to represent gold; then came the officers of the club followed by more than a hundred of the faithful. The marshals, N. W. Burkett and Jim Bristow, were all that could be required of their positions. The club returned home in good order, feeling proud by their laurels and strong enough to conquer the world for silver. Judge Green made an excellent speech, and so did Mark Gray; but Mr. Carter, of Vevay, Ind., made a grand effort. We never heard any better, except W. J. Bryan's.

Erlanger.

The Masonic Lodge meets next Saturday evening at 7 o'clock.

Don't forget to pay your school taxes to L. Morrell, this week, or the penalties will be added.

We understand that Erlanger is to have another saloon. Too many in one place do no good, and it is hoped the parties will change their minds.

As predicted in these columns, the Trustees of Elsmere, were indicted by the grand jury for issuing saloon license for $25 instead of $125, which the law clearly states shall be the fee. Those indicted were John Wocher, Chas. Jackson and Alex Daron.

The Republicans held a meeting at Elsmer, on Friday night. A very good crowd was in attendance. The speakers were M. L. Green and E. J. Green. Monte Green made an excellent speech and surprised his friends with his eloquence.

A grand mass meeting given by the Free Silver Club, last Saturday night, at the K. of. P. Hall, was very large. Col. George Washington, of Newport, spoke for one hour and forty minutes, holding his audience spell-bound by his eloquence, and when he wanted to stop they made him continue. The Florence and Burlington Democratic clubs were present as guestr of the Erlanger club.

Utzinger.

J. A. Duncan had a very good horse to die the other day.

The Lawrenceburg ferry boat sank, but it has been raised again.

Geo. W. Terrill has returned from Powell county, where he went to look at his land.

Walter Kyle and sister, Lucy, of Indiana, were guests of Edward Botts and sisters, last week.

Four funerals in two days at Petersburg is a gentle reminder that "dust thou art, and unto dust thou shalt return."

William Green of Dillsboro, Ind., an old resident of this county, and heretofore a stanch Republican, was here last Friday. He has come out on the side of 16 to 1.

The remains of Mrs. Annie Foster, who died three years ago, were removed from the Dillsboro, Indiana, cemetery, to the old Foster burying ground on the Woolper pike, last Friday.

This is the X that Mc. and Palmer will be crucified on in November.

"Our Father, who art in England, Rothschilds be thy name. Thy kingdom come to America. Thy will be done in the United States as it is in England. Give us this day our bonds in gold, but not in silver. Give us plenty of laboring men's votes to keep monopoly in power and its friends in office. We know, our Father, that we have done many things that were wrong; we have robbed the honest poor and brought distress to many a poor man; we know it was wrong to refund the bonds and make them payable in coin; we know it was wrong to water our stock, but Thou knowest that we made money at that. Now, our Father, Thou knowest that we are above politics. It is the same to us whether gold Democrats or Republicans rule, for Thou knowest we are able to sway such parties in our favor. Lead us not in the [illegible] of the "common people," the [illegible] laborer, and above all, [illegible] 16 to 1. Thus shall [illegible] bonds, interest, [illegible] Republic [illegible]

Bullittsville.

Mrs. Annie Gaines is still convalescing.

Mrs. Mollie Gaines has returned to her home in Richmond.

The basket meeting at Mt. Pleasant, last Sunday, was well attended.

The Misses Cleveland, of Paris, are the guests of Mrs. J. L. Riley.

Mrs. Crouch, of Union, was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Gaines, last week.

Misses Bernice Duncan and Zayda Gaines visited relatives in Covington, several days last week.

Mrs. J. Wash Watts has been called to Louisville on account of the illness of her grand-son, little Harold Garr.

Gunpowder.

Mrs. Jasper Rouse and sister, of Grant county, are visiting in this vicinity.

John Hamilton and family, of Ludlow, are visiting relations in this neighborhood.

John Jackson is erecting a new house on the "Terrill Lot." He expects to move into it very soon.

Some one became very hungry for sorghum molasses and went to Mr. W. H. Garnett's while he was at church and divided his supply.

We were very sorry to hear of the death of Mr. L. E. Clore. His widow and the fatherless child have the heartfelt condolence of the entire community.

Mr. Charles Tanner is one of the proudest men on the Burlington pike. He wore a 2x4 inch smile on his face last week. Cause—a great big boy at his house.

Rev. H. Max Lentz, with an assistant from Springfield, Onio, is conducting a very interesting protracted meeting at the Hopeful church. They have two additions.

Beaver.

Married, on the 14th inst. William Isabelle to Miss Ollie Smith.

Samuel Davis and wife, of Gallatin county, were visiting G. M Moore, last Friday.

Our public school, which is being taught by our favorite teacher, Will E. Cook, is progressing nicely.

Edgar Powers, of near Verona, delivered some very nice apples to parties in this neighborhood, last week, at fifty eents per bushel.

The Beaver Free Silver Club formed a procession early Saturday morning, about 80 in number, headed by F. L. Gordon and marshaled by John Haley, awaited the arrival of the Big Bone club, which soon showed up, headed by the Patriot, Indiana, drum corps, and marshaled by W. W. Grimsley. Both clubs preceded by 16 silver grey horses and one dun, marched together to Walton, where they met several other clubs from different parts of the county, and enjoyed the day to its full extent, and judging from the demonstration one would conclude that old Boone was all right for Bryan and free silver.

Petersburg.

Mrs. Bahn is very sick.

Leonard Ruth is laid up with quinsy.

The doctors report 18 cases of sore throat.

Miss Fannie Vest, formerly of this place, died a few days since.

Joseph Ferris has sold his fine farm to John M. Lassing, of Burlington.

Mr. John Loder, of Indianapolis, a brother of Mrs. Bond, of this place, died a few days ago.

John Helms, a brother of Andrew, of this place, has returned to his home in Shelbyville, Indiana, after a week's visit here.

Clarence Buchanan has the sore throat.

There is a great deal of sore throat here at this time.

Job Morrison carries a reminder of an interview between him and Newt Maguire.

Miss Lizzie Romines was buried here during the funeral exercises of Mrs. Wingate.

M. F. Wingate and son, Gaines, are said to be better. We sincerely hope they will entirely recover.

Andy Leonard and family are here from Louisville on account of the death of Mrs. Casey, Mr. Leonard's mother-in-law.

J. J. Ferris has sold his farm of 450 acres to Robert Willis, of Union. It is said to be one of the best farms for all purposes in Boone county.

One of the largest funeral processions ever seen here was when Mrs. Eliza Wingate was taken to the vault last Tuesday. Religious exercises were conducted by Rev. Harris, of the Methodist church.

Mr. J. Frank Grant took his departure for his new field of labor Monday morning. You may be sure he has been pretty busy bidding "good by" for a while. We will look for him back in two weeks.

The display of flowers at Henry Mathews' funeral was regarded the most beautiful ever seen here. It may be said of little Henry that there was less imprudence according to activity in him than any boy in the knowledge of the writer.

Died—Saturday morning, Oct. 17, at 8 o'clock, little Ed Houze, of diphtheria, aged about 7 years. He was a son of Doc Houze, who lives in Ithermer Yerkes' house in the east end of town. The remains were taken to Antioch, Ind., for interment. The bereaved family have the sympathy of many friends and relatives.

Our old friend, Noah Pugh, died in Arkansas on the 8th of June. He had been subject to asthma and being very old, probably due to the exposure incident to a life in a new country, his death was brought about. He had entered 80 acres of land under the homestead law in a rich region of country, where a great deal of hard work was necessary.

Constance.

J. J. Rucker's new building is nearly completed.

Miss Bertha Knapp, of Home City, was visiting Mrs. Murat.

Capt. Kotmeyer is beautifying his premises with a gravel walk.

Col. Berry has agreed to speak here if a suitable place can be got.

Henry Habley has been appointed school trustee in place of Clint Reevs.

Hon. Richard P. Ernst will address the citizens of Hebron Thursday night.

The Constance Building Association has declared a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent.

Rev. Coppage closed a week's protracted meeting at Fair View church, last Sunday night.

Mr. England's mare backed his market cart over a steep bank, turning the vehicle over several times without doing any damage.

Hons. H. D. Rucker, S. W. Tolin and J. M. Lassing will speak here Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Rucker is of Cincinnati, and is a very fine speaker. He is a Republican who believes that a revival of prosperity depends upon the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

CLUTTERBUCK-SAXTON.

J. R Clutterbuck and Mrs. Susie E. Saxton were married in Covington, last Wednesday. Although it was believed by many that they would marry, so quietly were the arrangements made that only a very few of their most intimate friends were not taken by surprise when it became norated Wednesday that they had gone to get married. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Clutterbuck a long and happy life.

WALTON-STAPP.

Atty. R. R Walton, son of Geo. W. Walton, and grand-son of R. Y. Randall, both of this county, was married to Miss Plume Stapp, the accomplished daughter of Atty. David H. Stapp, at the home of the bride's parents in Chicago, Tuesday evening, Oct. 20th, 1896, in the presence of a host of assembled friends and relatives. The wedding was a very pleasant and happy occasion. Miss Lou Herdigan, of Aurora, Ind., a chum and classmate of the bride, acted as bride's maid, and Dr. J. H. Walton, of Home City, Ohio, brother of the groom, was best man.

After receiving the congratulations of friends, and partaking of an elegant repast, the bride and groom left to spend a few days on quite a novel trip that had been previously arranged by the groom's cousin, F. W. Berkshire.

TERRILL-DICKERSON.

A lovelier day than Thursday, October 15th, 1886, would be difficult to imagine. The trees in their gorgeous livery of red and gold, the air spicy and balmy, and the glorious sunshine made it a fitting day for a wedding, and the consecration of two lives to a unity of purpose and effort for all future time. Sweetly solemn was the ceremony that made Miss Hattie Dickerson and Mr. Benjamin A. Terrill one. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Dickerson, of near Union, and a most loveable and charming girl; the groom, one of our sterling and energetic young men, and a son of Dr. J. C. Terrill, of Covington, Ky.

They were married at the residence of the bride's parents by Rev. Sam Adams, of the Union Baptist church. Preceded by Miss Lulu Williams and Mr. Lucien Dickerson, jr., and Miss Nannie Bristow and Mr. Marshal Hedges, the happy couple came into the parlor at 1:30 p. m., to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Mrs. Susie Garrison. The ceremony was brief, but impressive, and both the contracting parties seemed fully aware of the full import of the step they were taking. The bride looked lovely in a gray cloth travelling suit and carried a huge bunch of roses. The groom was attired in the conventional black.

After the ceremony the guests retired to the dining room where a delightful luncheon was spread, after which the happy couple amid a shower of rice and old shoes left, about 4 p. m., for Cincinnati, thence to go on a pleasant tour before returning to take up their home on Mr. Terrill's farm near Union.

Among those present were Mrs. J. C. Terrill, Miss Mary Terrill, Dr. Smith Terrill, James Terrill, Dr. Ranshaw, E. T. Rice and Prof. F. M. Youmans, of Covington; Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Rice, Miss Annie Rice, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Conner, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Rice, Mrs. Susie Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hicks, Mrs. W. L. Gaines, Miss Lulu Williams, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cleek and daughters, Misses Effie and Fannie, Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon [illegible]tow, Marshal Hedges, Robt. [illegible] and Mrs. Adams, [illegible] Huey, Mr. and [illegible] ters, Misses [illegible] Mrs. Hogan and [illegible]

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

There will be a meeting of the County Campaign Committee at Burlington on Thursday, October 22d at 1 o'clock p. m. All the members are requested to be present. T. F. CURLEY, Ch'm.

Lost—A fine thin rind sow—been gone about six weeks. Any information as to her will be thankfully received.
3t S. S. SMITH, Gunpowder, Ky.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

R. C. Anderson's Admr., Plff.
vs } equity.
Sallie Anderson, &c., Defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the August term thereof, 1896, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-house door in Burlington, Boone county, Ky., to the highest bidder at Public Sale on Monday, the 2d day of Nov'r. 1896, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout, being County Court day, upon a credit of 12 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Two tracts of land lying and being in Boone county, Ky., and bounded thus:

Lot No 3.—Beginning at a stone a corner with the dower in a line of John H. Corbin; thence with his line s 81¾ w 35,97 chains to a line of Clark Rouse; thence with his line n 18½ w 12.51 chs to a stone on the north side of a branch of Riddell's Run; thence n 88¼ e 9.70 chains to a stone; thence n 69¾ e 10.25 chains to a stone; thence n 85½ e 6.20 chains to a stone; thence n85 e 4.18 chs to a stone; thence n 87 e 6.67 chs to a stone; thence n 60 e 4.45 chs to a stone a corner with the dower; thence with a line thereof s 5½ e 19.25 chs to the beginning, containing 49 a, 3 r, 17 poles. There is reserved for this lot a passway 20 feet in width—beginning at a stone a corner with the above described tract also a corner with the dower; thence passing over the dower and the tract set apart to Sallie Anderson n 81¾ e 5.80 chs, n 39 e 6.61 chs, n 63½ e 5 30 chains, n 74½ e 6,20 chs, n 60¾ e 11,6 chs, s 89¾ e 13,50 chains to a stone in the Hamilton Graded road.

Lot No. 2.—or dower tract, beginning at a stone in a line of Thos. Garrison a corner with the lot set off to Sallie Anderson; thence with the line of said lot s 8 e 13.24 chs to a stone on a branch in a line of John H. Corbin: thence with his line s 63½ w 2.34 chains s 38 w 6.6 chains to a stone; thence leaving the branch s 81¾ w 5.80 chs to a stone in said John H. Corbin's line; thence n 5½ w 19.25 chs to a stone in a in a line of E. Utz; thence with his line n 60 e 2.35 chs to a black oak tree; thence n 36½ e 5 chs to a stone; thence n 81¾ e 6.16 chs to the beginning, containing 25 acres, 0 roods, 24 pols. There is excepted out of this lot a passway 20 feet in width. Beginning at a stone a corner with lot No. 3 and the dower in the line of J. H. Corbin; thence along said line n 81¾ e 5.80 chains n 38 e 6.61 chs, n 63½ e 2.34 chs to a stone; there is also reserved for this lot a passway 20 feet in width, beginning at a stone a corner with lot No. 3 and a corner with the dower in a line of J. H. Corbin; thence along said line passing over the dower and the tract set apart to Sallie Anderson n 81¾ e 5.80 chains, n 38 e 9.61 chs, n 63¾ e 5.30 chains, n 74½ e 6.20 chs, n 60¾ e 11.6 chs, s 89¾ e 13.50 chains to a stone in the Hamilton Graded road.

I will first offer the first tract herein described or a sufficiency thereof to pay the debt, interest and costs, if this does not bring enough to pay said debt, interest and costs, I will then offer the dower tract subject to the life occupancy of Sallie Anderson.

Or sufficient thereof to produce the sums of money so ordered to be made. For the purchase price the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms

Amount to be made by sale $815 63.
J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C. C.

Livery Stable.

I am now fully equipped for taking of care Horses and Buggies, and keep GOOD RIGS FOR HIRE at reasonable rates.

W. A. CRIGLER,
Bromley, Ky.

THE QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain.
The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.
Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.

Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.
Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? [illegible] bring you wealth. [illegible] & CO., Patent Attorneys [illegible] their $1,800 prize offer [illegible] wanted.

Isn't It Reasonable?

We maintain that GOOD CLOTHING CAN BE BOUGHT BOR LESS MONEY at Our Store than elsewhere in this vicinity. Why do we say so? Because we know it to be a fact that
Our EXPENSES ARE THE LOWEST. BUYING IS THE CLOSEST. And
WE ARE SATISFIED WITH THE SMALLEST PROFITS.

You can not get something for nothing anyanywhere, but you can get get value for your money at

ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS
S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

STEPHENS & SCALES,
—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN—
Hardware, Cutlery, and Agricultural Implements,
Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Steel Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood [illegible] Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,
BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE
AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.
No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.

Try the PETERSBURG FLOUR MILL.
FLOUR exchanged for WHEAT at all times and guaranteed. Call and get my prices on wheat. Also have on hand at all times
Mill Feed OF ALL KINDS,
AT THE LOWEST PRICES.
GOOD COAL IN THE YARD AT ALL TIMES,
Price 10 cents per Bushel.
sept-24 BEN BELDEN, Petersburg, Ky.

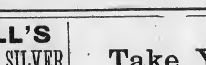
BEST GOODS! LIVING PRICES!
Hardware,
Farm Machinery,
Fine Vehicles,
Harness.
HARRIS FITCH, Corner HIGH AND SHORT STREETS,
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

J. J. GEISEN,
HATTER AND GENT'S
FURNISHING GOODS,
615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.
Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

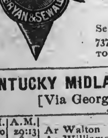
METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVERY COMPANY.
62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,
E. H. BAKER, Proprietor
(o)
Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.
Telephone 580.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.
Prices Reasonable.

F. PIEPER,
Optician and Jeweler,



Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to
We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.
616 Madison Ave., - - COVINGTON, KY.



FALL'S
"FREE SILVER on TOP BADGE"
Is the Latest Out.
Send 12c to P. T. FALL
737 Greenup St, COVINGTON, KY., and get one.

KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.

[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A. M.			A. M.	P. M
d 4:50	z9:13	Ar Walton	Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8.52	Ar Williamstown	Lv	8:32
3:48	8.28	Ar Corinth	Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar Sadieville	Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar Georgetown	Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv Frankfort	Ar	11:30	7:25

z Daily. d Except Sunday.

C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.

Take Your COUNTY PAPER.

Administrators Notice.

All persons having claims against the estate of Josiah Walton, deceased, are requested to present to us properly proven at the law office of D. E. Castleman, Burlington, Ky.
R. L. HUEY,
ERNEST WALTON, Admr's.
August 17th, 1896.

Taken up—A red heifer, 2 years old. Owner must pay for this notice and prove property.
J. L. FRAZIER, Union, Ky.

For sale—First-class Thinrind Boar, 12 months old. W. F. GRANT.

NOTICE—My graded Shorthorn Bull is making the season at James Delph's on the Florence pike, at $1.
W. H. ROUSE.

Local News.

The members of the Burlington Democratic club are hereby called to meet at 6:30 p. m. next Saturday. A full attendance is desired, as business of importance will be brought before the club.

J. G. FURNISH, President.

This is fine fall weather.

Vote for Bryan and Berry.

Farmers are busy husking corn.

Some very fine weather last week.

For sale—By Ed Berkshire, 3 good 2 year-old steers.

The frost was on the pumpkin vine Monday morning.

There are now forty lunatics at the County Infirmary.

Hunters from the city are beginning to annoy the farmers.

The frost Monday morning was the heaviest of the season.

Edgar Cropper delivered a lot of nice hogs to Acra & Beemon here Monday morning.

Nearly all the Democratic voting population of Burlington went to Walton last Saturday.

Notice—I will be at Florence, Saturday, Nov. 7, 1896, to collect taxes.

C. C. ROBERTS, S B. C.

Both the political parties at this place are well pleased with the efforts of their speakers here last week.

For sale or Rent—By J. H. Casey, of Bullittsville, a farm of 80 acres on the North Bend road, near Hebron this county.

We neglected, last week, to mention the nice cotillion party given the young people by Mr. and Mrs. Tim Westbay.

Hon. Wm. McD. Shaw will speak in the Court House in Burlington, on the first Monday in November, 1896, at one o'clock p. m.

Rice & Vest sold to J. M. Utz, of Florence, the J. H. Corbin farm of 126½ acres in the Union neighborhood for $4,800 cash.

Hon. M. D. Gray will speak at the Bullittsville school house next Friday night, and at Hebron at 2 o'clock p. m. the next day (Saturday.)

During the last two weeks, for the first time in months, this office has been crowded with job work, a verification of the adage, "it never rains but it pours."

One day last week Benj. McManama's son brought him a bundle of clothing, and upon investigation two files and a hammer were found among them by the Jailer.

I desire to express my thanks to those good friends who were so faithful in their attention to my beloved husband during his fatal illness.

MRS. L. E. CLORE.

Dameron & Major, dentists, 527 Race Street, Cincinnati. E P. Dameron formerly of Newport; G. R. Major, formerly with Woodward & Major. Mr. E. P. Dameron will be in Burlington the first Monday in November.

Bluford Allen, of Hamilton, sent us, last week, two sweet potatoes, one 1 foot and 2 inches in circumference and weighed nearly four pounds. The other was one foot in length but of moderate circumference. Thanks, Bluford.

Those who deposit money for the use of any book in the public school library, will have the money deposited returned to them if the volume is not kept out over the specified time. The deposit is made to insure the return of the book.

Mrs. William Carpenter, of Gallatin county, a sister of T. D. and W. C. Goodridge and Mrs. G. T. Gaines, died of consumption, last Thursday night. She had been ill of consumption for some considerable time. The remains were interred at Warsaw.

There will be a big rally at Union, next Saturday, October 24th. Speaking will begin at 2 o'clock p. m., standard time. Hon. A. S. Berry, Judge Green, D. E. Castleman and others will address those present. Every member of our Bryan and Sewall club is requested to be present by 1:30 p. m. sharp to take part in the parade. Everybody and the ladies especially are invited. The precinct campaign committee will hold a meeting after the speaking.

M. J. CROUCH. Chairman.

The vote of the Sixth Congressional District for the Presidential candidates in 1892 by counties is as follows:

	Cleveland.	Harrison.
Kenton	5,686	3,494
Campbell	4,302	3,959
Boone	2,009	545
Carroll	1,574	542
Gallatin	737	273
Trimble	1,149	264
Grant.	1,591	1,034
Pendleton	1,419	1,014
	18,467	11,089

Cleveland 18,467
Harrison 11,089

Cleveland's majority........7,378

The Republicans and Democrats each had their inning here last week. Thursday night Hon. Richard P. Ernst Republican candidate for Congress, accompanied by the Newport Ernst Quintet club, came out to enthuse the members of his party, and the Republicans gave him an enthusiastic reception.

The meeting was opened by the quintet club singing two or three campaign songs, at the conclusion of which Mr. Ernst began his speech to a good sized audience, of which at least one-one-half of the voters were Democrats. The speech was listened to most attentively throughout, and was a good presentation of the money question from the Republican standpoint. At frequent intervals the speaker was heartily applauded by his Republican friends, who were very much pleased with his efforts. At the conclusion of the speech the quintet club favored the audience with two or three more songs, which were again enjoyed by the Democrats and Republicans, notwithstanding they were strictly partisan. The young men who made the music were good singers, and are enthusiastic Ernst men.

Friday night was Democratic night, Col. Sam Ackmyer, of Bullittsville, and H. D. Rucker, of Ohio, being the orators. A good sized audience greeted the speakers, and was liberal with its applause throughout the evening.

Col. Ackmyer was the first speaker, and was given a good send off by C. L. Crisler, who introduced him. Col. Ackmyer spoke for about twenty minutes, devoting his remarks to the money question and urging the Democrats to put their shoulders to the wheel on the 3d day of November and roll up a big majority for Bryan. The speaker was given an ovation at the start and was often applauded during his speech.

Hon. H. D. Rucker, of Ohio, was the second speaker. He is a free silver Republican and speaks in the interest of Bryan for the presidency. Mr. Rucker is an experienced campaigner, and is well posted in the financial history of the United States, and is an encyclopedia of statistics. He spoke for an hour and a half, and was listened to most attentively. He made a strong argument, covering about all the points of the gold standard advocates. Many Democrats pronounce Mr. Rucker's speech the best they have heard during the present campaign, and gave him hearty applause at frequent intervals while addressing them.

L. E. Clore, who was kicked by a horse three weeks ago last Thursday, lingered till last Friday afternoon, when he expired. Only at very short intervals was he conscious after receiving the fatal blow. Everything that was possible for loving hands or medical skill was done to restore him to his family, but of no avail. Mr. Clore was in his 38th year, and was a modest, unassuming gentleman whom to know was to like, and he will be greatly missed in his neighborhood, where he spent his life. The death of a straight forward, upright citizen like Mr. Clore is always deplored, and when cut down just upon the threshhold of the prime of life, with years of usefulness apparently unfolding before him, the sadder is the death of man. His wife was Miss Annie, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Tanner, and to them was born an only child, a daughter, now about four years of age. There could be no stronger testimonial of the high esteem in which the community held the deceased than the very large cortege of friends who assembled at the Hopeful church, last Sunday afternoon, to pay their last, sad respects to the departed. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. T. L. Utz and H. Max Lentz, after which the remains were placed in the Hopeful vault to await final interment.

"A Precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled:
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon His love has given,
And though the body slumber here
The soul is safe in heaven."

PERSONAL MENTION.

The Bellevue Baptist church will ordain two Deacons next Saturday.

Mrs. Dr. Smith has gone to Jacksonville, Florida, on a visit of a month.

Born—On the 17th inst., to R. C. Gaines and wife, of Utzinger, a daughter.

Rev. Hixon occupied the pulpit at the Baptist church last Sunday morning and evening.

Edgar Cropper is attending the Masonic Grand Lodge at Louisville this week. He represents Burlington lodge No. 264.

Hon. John S. Gaunt, of Carrollton, was elected Deputy Grand Master of the Kentucky Grand Lodge of Odd-Fellows, last week.

Program for the Teachers' Association to be held in Bellevue, Oct. 24th:

One Trustee System.

Physiology for primary grades to the text book.

To what extent may we take the advice of parents?

Dinner.

Opening Exercises.

Mensuration.

How to secure a District Library?

L. H. Vos[illegible]

THE DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

A Great Outpouring of Democrats at Walton.

Thousands of People Give Ear to the Preaching of Pure Democracy.

FOUR GOOD SPEECHES DELIVER'D

The Boone County Democratic Campaign Committee may well feel proud of the grand success of the meeting held at Walton, last Saturday.

At an early hour the streets of the town were thronged by people from every direction, some of whom had come many miles to hear the gospel of true Democracy proclaimed by the several orators who had been secured for the occasion.

By 10 a. m., several of the Democratic clubs arrived, when they proceeded to a point north of town and formed a procession. In the procession were the Verona, Big Bone, Hebron, Florence, Union, Beaver and Walton Clubs. The line of march was through the town to Arnold's Grove, where a speakers' stand had been erected beneath the bows of a stately oak. In the procession were many of old Boone's handsome daughters, the most of whom rode white horses, and were heartily cheered as they passed along the crowded thoroughfare.

It was nearly 12 o'clock when the exercises began at the speakers' stand. D. D. Castleman was master of ceremonies there and introduced Judge John W Green, who delivered a most excellent speech on the issues of the campaign. The speech was well received by the large audience that seemed eager to catch every word as it fell from the speaker's lips. Judge Green handled his subject in a masterly manner, and elicited round after round of applause.

At the conclusion of Judge Green's speech an adjournment for dinner was announced, and in a few minutes thereafter the hunger of the large crowd was being satisfied by the contents of the hundreds of baskets which had been prepared by the patriotic ladies of Boone county.

As soon as dinner was over the crowd gathered about the stand again, anxious for the speaking to resume. Hon. J. M. Lassing introduced Mr. J. P. Carter, of Vevay, Ind. Mr. Carter had spoken but a few sentences before the audience discovered that a political treat in the way of a magnificent speech was theirs. As the speaker proceeded the crowd pressed towards the stand, and every inch of available space within ear-shot of the speaker was occupied, and for nearly two hours he held the audience spell-bound while he delivered an address full of eloquence, wit and sarcasm, but at all times replete with argument in opposition to the single gold standard. To say that Mr. Carter captivated his audience is only a partial expression of the manner in which his speech was regarded.

Hon. M. D. Gray, of Williamstown, was the next speaker. His effort was one of those that have made him famous as a Kentucky orator. He ridiculed the Palmer and Buckner ticket as none but Gray can, and his arguments in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver were presented in a forcible manner.

H. H. Hardy, of Covington, closed the exercises at the stand with a ringing speech, when the multitude of enthusiastic Democrats, took their departure for home, the several clubs having formed a procession and marched back through town amid great enthusiasm.

NOTES.

Good order prevailed throughout the day.

There were no candidates for county offices on hand. Oh, no.

The afternoon was quite chilly, but it did not cool the ardor of the Democrats.

The Big Bone and Beaver Lick people could not be outdone in furnishing provisions.

Supt. Voshell looked like a patriot of old, mounted on his charger, and carrying a bugle.

There were a great many ladies present, and many of them were attentive listeners to the speeches.

There were a great many banners in the procession, bearing humorous and appropriate inscriptions.

Marshal James Waller, of Verona, wore a silver helmet and carried a sword. He did good work in moving the immense procession.

The crowd was estimated by some at 3,000 and by some at 8,000. The first figures are about correct. It was conceded by all to be the largest crowd ever in Walton.

J. H. Westover, editor of the Williamstown Courier, was [illegible] with the crowd. He is a ceaseless worker on behalf of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver.

The only accident [illegible] was that of Mr. Sam Taylor's [illegible] colliding with another vehicle. [illegible] overturned, and Mr. Tay[illegible] [illegible] badly [illegible] vict in [illegible]

Public Sale!

I will offer for sale at my late residence, 5 miles south of Burlington,

Thursday, October 29, 1896

The following property:

25 good stock ewes and 1 2 year-old Hampshire Buck, 7 cattle, including 2 milch cows, 2 2-yr-old heifers, 1 yearling steer, 15 stock hogs, one Champion Mower and hayrake, haybed, wagon, road cart, plows and harrows and other farming implements; 1 oak sideboard, 1 bed room set, extension table, cook stove and other household goods; 3,500 shingles, about 1,400 new oak pickets.

TERMS OF SALE.

Credit of 9 months on sums over $5, purchaser to give note payable in the Boone Co. Deposit Bank; sums under $5, cash.

J. O. HUEY.

Sale to begin at 9 o'clock a. m.

The following were appointed officers of election for this year:

Petersburg—James W. Loder and Elihu Alden, judges; Elijah Parker, clerk; Wm. Casey, sheriff.

Carlton—J. J. Stephens and Z. T. Kelley, judges; G. H. Wilson, clerk; O. P. Craig, sheriff.

Bullittsville—Frank Hossman and Owen Gaines, judges; Owen Watts, clerk; Ross Shinkle, sheriff.

Florence—W. E. Clutterbuck and J. W. Nead, judges; Butler Carpenter, clerk; John Olsner, sheriff.

Bellevue—D. M. Snyder and John M. Moody, judges; Cyrus Kelly, clerk; B. F. Rogers, sheriff.

Constance—Henry McNeal and F. H. Russell, judges; W. B. Grubbs, clerk; J. W. Riggs, sheriff.

Verona—J. N. Dickerson and Ben Oneal, judges; J. R. Johnson, clerk; W. H. Adams, sheriff.

Burlington—Geo. Blyth and Sidney Gaines, judges; Tim Westbay, clerk; W. T. German, sheriff.

Ham[illegible] M. E. Hance and W. H. Moore, judges; G. M. Allen, clerk; Jas. B. Allen, sheriff.

Union—J. L. Riley and J. R. Dunbar, judges; J. L. Frazier, clerk; E. L. Riley, sheriff.

Beaver—G. M. Moore and John Turner, judges; Chas. Sleet, clerk; Thos. Finnell, sheriff.

Walton—David Haley and S. L. Edwards, judges; A. R. Johnson, clerk; Sam Taylor, sheriff.

Queen & Crescent Low Rates.

Boston, Mass., American Missionary Ass'n. Oct. 20th to 22nd.

St. Louis, Mo., American Street Ry. Ass'n. Oct. 20th to 23rd.

Masonic Grand Lodge Oct. 20th to 24th, at Louisville, Ky. Tickets from points in Kentucky on certificate plan.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

Christopher Barlow's Executor, Plff.
vs
Matilda J. Barlow, &c, Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against Christopher Barlow's estate will present them to me properly proven according to law.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, Master Com.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

E. M. Gaines' Assignee, Plff.
vs.
Farmers & Traders Nat. Bank, Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896 All persons having claims against E. M. Gaines' estate will present them to me properly proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

NOTICE.

All persons holding claims against J. R. Clutterbuck must present them to me at my office in Burlington, Ky., proven as by law required and persons indebted to the said Clutterbuck must settle with me at once.

S. W. TOLIN, Assignee.

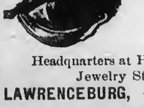
Sept. 10th, 1896.

Executor's Notice.

Those indebted to the estate of Jas. H. Wilson, dec'd., must come forward and settle at once, and those having claims against said estate must present the same at once proven according to law.

MONTGOMERY ANDERSON, Executor.

Wm. F. GOETZE



Scientific Optician.

Headquarters at Hornberger's Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.

Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDER[illegible] & CO., Patent Attor[illegible] [illegible] prize offer [illegible] wanted.

16 to 1,

You will always find that we give you 16 ounces to every 1 pound you buy of us.

We Have Cut Down Profits to Suit the Hard Times.

The large amount of Goods we are Selling every day is sufficient proof of the above statement.

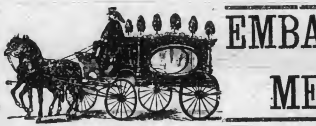
Give us a call,

W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,
DEALERS IN
PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,
63 and 65 Pike Street,
Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.
ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.
CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.
27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.
Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDER-TAKER



EMBAL-MER,
Corner Pike & Russell Streets,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,
Undertakers AND Embalmers,
OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,
COVINGTON, KY.
CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.
Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL,
WHOLESALE AND
RETAIL GROCER,
GRASS SEED.
Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.
Tom Wilson, Salesman.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.

☞ We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office

And FEED STORE from
708 Madison Avenue
To the Large and more Commodious Quarters
15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.

Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with

GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED
At the Lowest Market Values.

Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,

W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANTS,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.

A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.

UNDERTAKING.

is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. HANKINS.

Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : : KY.

CURRENT TOPICS.

BALTIMORE is to have a Credit Men's association.

THE easiest thing to collect these days is a crowd.

THE wheels of a watch travel about 355 miles per year.

THE official ballot of Pennsylvania is 15 columns wide.

THERE are hardly a dozen Hebrews in the British army.

THE late Sir John Millais left an estate valued at $1,250,000.

WASHINGTON (D. C) stonemasons want alien labor prohibited.

RATS and mice are generally very active and noisy just before a storm.

THE only gem in the world which can not be counterfeited is the opal.

THE full seating capacity of all the London theaters combined is 200,000.

IT is said that of all instruments the violin requires the most delicate ear to play.

A HUMMING bird a little larger than a house fly is common in the East Indies.

THE Vatican is the coldest palace in Rome, because of its immense size 1,100 rooms.

SOUNDS can be heard distinctly twice the distance on water that they can on land.

MICROSCOPISTS say that the strongest microscopes do not reveal the lowest stages of animal life.

IN making champagne the grapes are squeezed six times, each pressure making wine of different quality.

DES MOINES council will inaugurate publis works for the unemployed and change the force every two weeks.

M. COQUELIN, whose fortune is estimated at $1,000,000, has the reputation of being the richest actor in the world.

FLORIDA has adopted a constitutional amendment changing the date of the state election from October to November.

MAN is the only animal whose nostrils open downward. Even in the highest apes the nostrils open to the front.

THE latest suggestion made in the columns of a London paper is that married men should wear wedding rings.

A SNAKE of an unknown species, measuring 19 feet and 6 inches in length, was recently killed at Gerwin, Ontario.

IT is announced that Miss Amy Crawford Heacock, of Reading, Pa., is engaged to Baron von Knesebeck, of the Eleventh regiment of Uhlans.

A CHILD born on the high seas is by nativity a citizen or subject of that nation whose flag covers the ship on which he is born. This is international law.

THE Gaekwar of Baroda possesses the most costly sword in the world. The hilt is so set with precious stones that the weapon is worth at least £820,000.

LORD CHIEF JUSTICE RUSSELL said in a speech on his recent visit to Montreal that the average English judge makes a great sacrifice in income in taking the bench.

SKATES made of gold are popular in Petersburg. One lady had the blades of her skates enriched with diamonds. Skates set with pearls and precious stones have also been in fashion.

THE sum expended by the queen in the form of bounties to those mothers in the United Kingdom who have given birth to triplets amounts to the large sum of $85,000 during her 60 years' reign.

A SCIENTIST recommends that every life boat carried by ships should be provided with a bottle of citric acid, which precipitates chloride of sodium and converts sea water into a palatable drink.

THREE places at least are known where green snow is found. One of these places is near Mt. Hecla, Iceland; another 14 miles east of the mouth of the Obi; and the third near Quito, South America.

ALTHOUGH much is heard concerning Lady Henry Somerset, little or nothing is heard of her husband. Such a person does exist, however, and he sometimes is seen at La Scala in Milan. He resides mostly in Italy.

AS a child, King Umberto, of Italy, was extremely fragile and as a youth he was very delicate. When he grew older, however, his constitution improved, and now he almost equals his late father, Victor Emanuel, in robustness.

A GOOD test of a man's symmetry may be made if he stands with his face to the wall. The chest of a perfectly formed man will touch the wall, his nose will be four inches away, his thighs five and the tips of his toes three.

THE Manhattan elevated railroad has recently made some satisfactory experiments with an electric motor with a view to doing away with all steam locomotives. The new device requires no trolleys and no overhead or tunnel wires.

BARBERS in the early days of the Christian era were not permitted to talk while shaving a patron. Indeed, silence was so much appreciated by persons while under the barber's hands that mutes were preferred for this service.

REV. ASA ROUTH, of Sullivan county, who is one of the oldest ministers in East Tennessee, has, since he was ordained, witnessed 5,000 conversions, baptized 3,000 persons, married 1,000 couples and preached more than 500 memorial sermons.

MR. GLADSTONE'S maid n speech in the house of commons was an unmistakable failure. He spoke so low that even those nearest to him failed to catch the drift of his words, and later on he had to rise on "a point of explanation," at the request of a speaker who had complained of the want of clearness of the honourable member for Newark.

BLOODY BATTLE

Between Robbers and Citizens at Meeker, Col.—Three Bandits Dead and Three on the Other Side Wounded.

MEEKER, Col., Oct. 15.—One of the most desperate battles was fought on the streets of this town Wednesday between men who robbed the bank of Meeker and the citizens, and Wednesday night three robbers laid on cooling boards in the morgue and three citizens were wounded by the thieves before they bit the dust. The dead: Geo. Harris, Charles Jones, William Smith.

The robbers entered the town from the north, mounted, and proceed to the bank without any attempt at concealment. The bank is located in a general store, one of the largest of the trading houses in this section of the country. They stepped quickly into the room, two of them remaining in front of the apartment, while one of them approached the bank window where the cashier was engaged in conversation with a depositor, and brushing him aside they thrust a revolver in his face. The man dodged and the sound of a pistol shot caused the cashier to raise his hands. Then the two men in the center of the room commanded everybody to hold up their hands or die. Cashier Moulton then opened the doors of the safe at the point of the revolver, and the contents of the strong box were removed, after which the robbers took all the fire arms in the possession of the men in the store and then forced them to leave by a rear door, where they had hitched their horses.

As they stepped through the door it was to find that the building had been surrounded by the townspeople, who were aroused by the shots, and the alternative of surrendering or fighting it out was presented to them. They raised their revolvers and commenced to fire immediately. Then commenced one of the most desperate battles. Bullets cut the air, penetrating the buildings and sailed through the crowd.

The first shot of the fusilade was fired at Deputy Sheriff William Clark. The bank officers and those in the store broke for cover. Guns were distributed among them and the robbers, finding themselves alone, opened fire, shooting at everybody in sight. Then the people of the town commenced their work, and in less time than it takes to tell it, about one hundred shots were fired and three men fell to the floor.

The robbers fell still defiant and firing. Two of them died in an instant, their skulls split, their hearts pierced and their bodies penetrated by rifle balls. One of the men, who gave his name as Harris, lived for an hour, and gave the names of his pals as stated above. The names are undoubtedly assumed, but the man who gave his name as Harris, died with the secret of their identity—loyal to the last to his partners in crime. Jones and Harris were literally riddled with bullets, and that Harris lived so long is remarkable. There were perhaps 100 men in the vicinity of the place at the time, but wounds received were slight. The robbers managed to empty their revolvers, putting up one of the gamest fights ever recorded in criminal annals. The money, less than $1,000, was recovered.

A TRAIN

On the Union Pacific Road Held Up Near Uintah, Utah—All the Booty Secured Was a Few Mail Bags.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Oct. 15.—The Union Pacific train due here at 2:15 Wednesday morning was held up a short distance from Uintah, at the mouth of Weber canyon, and about eight miles from Ogden. A train was made up at Ogden and sent to the scene of the robbery, and orders were given to organize a posse and run the robbers down.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 15.—The train robbers on the Union Pacific in Weber canyon secured four pouches of registered mail; value not yet ascertained.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Oct. 15.—It appears that the hold-up of the westbound Union Pacific train No. 3, eight miles east of Ogden at 3:15 Wednesday morning, was the work of one man, who by a clever coup cajoled the passengers and trainmen into the belief that he had ample assistance in the raid that he was making.

It was reported Wednesday night that a package containing $25,000 in greenbacks for Wells, Fargo & Co.'s bank in San Francisco was overlooked by the robber, who got hold of it, tore the end open and threw it to one side without examining it sufficiently to become aware of the nature of its contents.

TRAINS COLLIDE.

Both Engines Wrecked and Two Men Burned to Death.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 15.—Passenger train No. 35 from the north due here at 4:50 a. m., and train No. 36, leaving here Tuesday night at 11:25 on the Florida Central and Peninsula railroad, came together near Swansea, 120 miles from here Wednesday morning at 3:05 o'clock. It was a head-end collision and both engines were totally wrecked. The combination mail and baggage car on train No. 35 turned over and pinned down in the debris Baggagemaster Lines and Mail Clerk Thomas. The car caught fire and they being unable to extricate themselves, were burned to death. The engineers and firemen jumped. None of the passengers were seriously hurt, though many were bruised and all badly shaken up.

One Man Killed and Two Wounded.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 15.—At Neslow, Wayne county, W. Va., a row occurred in the store of John Shelton, among a number of persons who were discussing the political situation. Dow Hobbs and Luke Tripplett were the leaders in the difficulty, and it was not long before revolvers were flourished. Hobbs opened fire and the second ball from his revolver killed Tripplett. A number of shots were then fired at random, and when peace was restored Aaron Brock and John Shelton were each found to be seriously wounded. Hobbs was uninjured and made his escape.

RAMBUSCH

Operated His Schemes With a Boldness That is Startling.

Amount of His Defalcations It is Thought Will Reach Half a Million Dollars—Duplicate Keys for All the Offices and Vaults in the Courthouse.

JUNEAU, Wis., Oct. 16.—All doubt as to the character of W. T. Rambusch, one of the most prominent men of this city, whose disappearance last week led to an investigation which disclosed business transactions, to say the least, questionable, were removed Thursday morning, when a letter was received from him making a confession which fully substantiates the apprehensions of even those who feared the worst.

The letter was dated at Philadelphia and was addressed to his wife. Mrs. Rambusch received it Thursday morning and, painful as it was, reached the conclusion that it was her duty to make its contents known to those who were investigating the business affairs of her husband.

In the letter Mr. Rambusch makes a full confession, as complete in detail as the limits of an ordinary letter will permit.

The most startling information the letter contained was the assertion that Mr. Rambusch contemplated taking his own life. In fact, it is believed that he expected to be dead before the letter reached Juneau.

Telegrams describing the fugitive have been sent all over the country, but there is little doubt expressed that he is now either dead in Philadelphia or sailing across the Atlantic for a foreign port. His wife and child are completely overcome, and the intense excitement in the town still continues.

Thursday's developments in the case have shown that Rambusch had operated with a boldness that is startling. Thursday morning a set of keys were found which proved to be duplicate keys for all the offices and vaults in the courthouse, and the further discovery was made that the official records have been tampered with. It seems that Mr. Rambusch had privileges extended to him because of his high standing that could not have been granted by the officials to anybody else, and it is said that when his doings were criticized by officials who were styled over-officious, the people were indignant that anybody should accuse Mr. Rambusch of doing what was not right.

It is now evident that he used his keys to get into offices and vaults when nobody was around and make such use of records as he saw fit.

The muddle grows worse every minute. People are coming to town by the score to see what they have lost and new steals are being discovered every hour. It is now known beyond a doubt that Mr. Rambusch drew absolutely fraudulent mortgages, signed the names of the holders of the land and filed the mortgages. The amount of [illegible]cations, it is believed, will reach in the neighborhood of half a million.

TO DIVIDE

The Archbishopric of New York and Elevate Archbishop Corrigan to a Cardinalate.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—It is reported that at a conference of the archbishops, Cardinal Satolli and Archbishop Martinelli, the papal delegate, Thursday discussed the long-mooted question of dividing the archbishopric of New York and the elevation of Archbishop Corrigan to a cardinalate. It is said the archbishops urged upon Cardinal Satolli the creation of a new archbishopric. It was reported the cardinal consented to the proposal, and will probably place the matter before the pope. The cardinal's word, it is believed, will have great weight with his holiness on all matters touching the church in the United States.

Fresh Troops for the Philippine Islands.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Standard's correspondent telegraphs that the Spanish government will immediately prepare several fast steamers to convey several thousand troops to Manilla. The government has telegraphed to Gen. Blanco offering him all the forces he requires for the suppression of the insurrection. The dispatch adds that the news of the defeat of the Spanish forces has caused an unpleasant sensation in Madrid.

Chased Out of Town by a Mob.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Oct. 16.—At Shawnee while James Wilson, a stockman, was getting shaved, Dr. Mahren, a prominent physician of this town, entered the shop and began talking politics. Wilson said that McKinley was a plutocrat and was incompetent. This enraged Mahren, who rushed to the barber's chair and dashed a bottle of vitriol in Wilson's face. Wilson died in great agony and Mahren was chased out of town by a mob.

Will Meet in Milwaukee Next Year.

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—At the second day's session of the National Funeral Directors' association Thursday, the committee on time and place of meeting recommended that the next annual convention be held in Milwaukee, Wis., October 7, and the report was adopted. These officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, J. H. Sparer, Alliance, O.; secretary, Chas. A. Miller, of Cincinnati.

Politics Set Him Crazy.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 16.—John Marion, a Floyd county farmer, has lost his mind over the political situation.

Steel Works Resume.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 16.—The Edgar Thomson steel works has resumed work in all departments after a two-weeks' shutdown. The present order is from the Japanese government, and calls for 10,000 tons of steel rails. The Carnegie Co.'s big works at Duquesne and Homestead are also again in full operation.

The Rebels Have Enough.

MADRID, Oct. 16.—An official dispatch from Manilla, capital of the Philippine islands, announces that the rebellion in the Island of Mindanao, the second largest of the group, is ended.

DUN'S REVIEW.

Silver States Buying Gold at a Small Premium—New York Exports for October Largely Increased Over September.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—R. G. Dun & Co. says Saturday:

Gold commands a small premium. The most powerful force in business at present is a conservative timidity and the foreign bankers who have been offering for a small percentage to insure people against a premium on gold until December have made an easy and sure profit out of prevalent apprehensions. From Kansas, Nebraska and other states where the silver agitation is said to be strong, come orders by many bankers and business men to get them gold at a small premium, and there has also been some demand for hoarding from individuals in other states who are afraid even of their own best judgment.

One commercial change, which more than any other, insures better business in the near future, is the excess of merchandise exports over imports.

In two weeks of October the exports from New York have increased 30.6 per cent., against 31.2 in September, while imports have decreased 24 per cent. against 35.2 in September. Continued shipments of gold from Europe, not including $4,000,000 from Australia, now amount to $59,250,000 since the movement began, of which $52,250,000 has already arrived and have not been arrested by measures taken by the great European banks.

The heavy movement of grain is the cornerstone. After an increase of $5,923,675 on exports of bread stuffs in September there have been shipped the past week from Alantic ports alone 2,134,744 bushels flour included, and 4,204,645 in two weeks of October, against 3,510,271 bushels last year. A more important fact is that all available grain freights have been engaged for months ahead here and on the Pacific coast. The minister of agriculture in Indiana stated in council on Thursday that distress was expected in a large part of India as the result of the droughts. A high official of Russia, in this country now, confirms accounts of shortness in the Russian yield. Thus estimates that Europe will fall 100,000,000 bushels short of last year in supply of wheat are strongly supported, and while department estimates of yield in this country are not credited, there is every reason to expect a remarkable foreign demand. Wheat has advanced 4½ cents for the week.

Boot and shoe makers got very narrow orders at old prices, or at an advance less than one per cent.

Difficulties threaten the iron manufacture, for pig is higher. Bessemer at $11.50 and gray forge at $9.75 at Pittsburgh, while plates, angles and beams are weaker, and various combinations hold prices only by long outside competitors to take the market as far as they can. Steel bars are largely sold at 1c, while 1⁄2c is demanded for iron; all the nails that outsiders can produce are sold at less than the association asks, billets are still selling for less than pool price and its shipments in September aggregated only 36,000 tons, mainly on sheet and tin plate bars, and the demand for rails is growing small.

Wool is stronger, with continued speculative buying, and sales at eastern markets have been 14,536,300 pounds for two weeks, against 21,209,700 last year and 13,702,800 in 1892, but consigned wool has been mostly withdrawn until after the election. No gain is at present possible in goods, and, though the number of mills starting for the week is 15 against 7 stopping, much of the work done is in anticipation of a better demand than now exists. The cotton manufacture has also started more spindles, but the demand for goods scarcely increases and print cloths sell at 2.5 per cent. Failures for the week have been 328 in the United States, against 263 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 46 last year.

BACKED DOWN.

The Spaniards Attempt to Arrest a Man on an American Steamer.

HAVANA, Oct. 17.—Another international incident occurred in the harbor here Friday. The police attempted to arrest on board the Ward line steamship Vigilancia a passenger who was on his way from New York to Mexico. The man's name was Angel Fernandez. He was born in Asturias, Spain, but claimed to be a Mexican citizen. Capt. McIntosh, of the Vigilancia refused to deliver the man up, and the police ordered the Vigilancia to be detained. Thereupon Capt. McIntosh consulted with Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, the United States consul general, and soon after the Vigilancia was allowed to sail, with Fernandez on board, to Mexico.

For the Independence of Canada.

MONTREAL, Oct. 17.—The new Canadian Independence club is making an active campaign and its membership is increasing every day. A secret convention of the club was held here with 100 delegates in attendance. The club proposes to form clubs in every part of Canada with the object of securing the independence of Canada by constitutional means.

British Gold Arrives.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The steamship Columbia, which arrived from Southampton Friday morning, brought $1,652,500 in gold. Consignments of $1,200,000 on the Normannia and $850,000 on the Etruria are expected.

Paderewski Reported Insane.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A rumor is current in musical circles that Paderewski, the pianist, has gone insane. The origin of t[illegible] is a mystery. Paderewski[illegible] here deny the story, but [illegible] or confirmation could be se[illegible] from Europe.

Czar a[illegible]rina in Hamburg.

BERLIN, [illegible]—The czar and czarina arrived F[illegible]t Hamburg, where their maj[illegible]d the foundation stone of the ne[illegible]ed Russian Church at this place[illegible]ess Frederick, who is staying a[illegible]g, welcomed the czar and czar[illegible] their arrival.

MATANZAS INVADED.

Aguierre Reported to Be Marching With Strong Force From Janice

To Greet and Conduct Roderiguez Through Southern Havana—Garcia and Rosa Menacing Puerto Principe City—Moving West From Coscoro.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—A special to the Herald from Havana, Cuba, says:

Sunday morning's reports indicate that while Capt. Gen Weyler's attention is centered in Maceo's movements in the west, Gomez's advance columns, under Mayia Roderiguez, Rabi, Quindan Banda and Pancho Carrillo, are laughing at the central trocha and have swept across Santa Clara province without meeting serious opposition and invaded Matanzas with from four to seven thousand fresh recruits from the Orient.

Roderiguez is now encamped north of Alfonso XII., near the line of Havana province. Aguierre is reported to be marching with a strong force from Janice to greet and conduct him westward through southern Havana, the supposed plan being to attack the western trocha south of Artemisa, before the Spanish general, Gonzalez Munoz, can engage Maceo at Cacara Cara.

Calixto Garcia and Avelino Rosa, with rebel troops are said to be now menacing Puerto Principe city, moving west from Cascoro by irregular marches toward Ciego de Avila.

The Herald's correspondent at Ciego de Avila reports that a party of 400 insurgents crossed the central trocha near Jagua on the morning of the 8th, under a sharp fire from the Spanish forts. The rebels moved rapidly westward. It is believed that Robiz's column is following up the invasion in Santa Clara simultaneously with Roderiguez's entry into Matanzas province.

The party crossing at Jagua did not lose a man. They made no response to the Spanish fire, treating it with contempt.

A filibustering expedition, composed of 25 men, arms and ammunition, is reported to have disembarked on the night of October 14 on the coast near Punta del Indio, between Havana and Jaruco. The leader was unknown. It is understood that the party came from the Bahamas.

S. Valencia met and conducted the expeditionists to Gen. Aguirrez's rebel headquarters in the interior.

CARNEY, OK.,

Raided by a Band of Six Desperadoes—A Posse in Pursuit.

GUTHRIE, Ok. T., Oct. 19.—A band of six desperadoes, said by the authorities to have been led by "Dynamite Dick," a pal of the late Dalton and Doolin, Saturday night at 10 o'clock raided the little town of Carney, 30 miles east of Guthrie. All the bandits were masked, heavily armed and well mounted. The first store attacked was J. E. Fouts general merchandise establishment. Only Fouts and his sons were in the store when the robbers rushed in, and they were compelled to open the safe and hand over $800 in cash. The robbers then bound and gagged their victims and carried them out of town. Meanwhile the remainder of the band attacked the hotel and post office, but got nothing in the latter place. In the hotel three men were relieved of $500 in money, watches and jewelry. Then mounting their horses they fled.

Two posses of United States marshals were immediately organized and started in pursuit. Two men, supposed to be members of the gang, stopped at a farm house Sunday morning and demanded food. Their horses were jaded and foam covered, evidently having been ridden to their full powers. The posses were close behind them.

Carney is a town of 300 inhabitants and the bandits had their plans well matured, judging from the dispatch with which they executed them.

Arrested for Obtaining Railway Passes.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19.—G. D. Berry, chief clerk to Superintendent Robinson, of the St. Joseph & Grand Island railroad, was arrested in St. Joseph by Post Office Inspectors Waterbury, of Denver, and Sutton, of Kansas City, on a charge of obtaining passes from many of the railroads of the country by fraud and disposing of them to brokers. He was brought here and released under bond of $2,000. He is a member of one of the oldest families in St. Joseph.

Olney Thanks the Porte.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The Daily News publishes a dispatch from Constantinople Monday saying that Mr. Olney, the American secretary of state, has cabled to the porte thanking it for permitting a number of Armenian women and children to leave Turkey to join their husbands and fathers who are now in the United States. The dispatch adds that permission has again been refused to all other Armenians to leave the country.

Miss Caldwell's Reception in Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—A reception was held from 3 to 6 at the palatial flat occupied by Miss Mary Gwendolin Caldwell on the Champs Elysee. There were about 200 members of the elite of French society present in Miss Caldwell's apartments, which are the finest in that part of Paris. The event was a preliminary to the marriage of Miss Caldwell to the Marquis des Monstriers-Merinville, which will take place in this city on Monday, October 19.

Shipwrecked Marines Brought to Port.

QUARANTINE, S. I., Oct. 19.—The Clyde line steamer Delaware arrived Sunday afternoon from Haytian ports with Capt. Watts and seven men, the crew of the Halifax schooner Southern Cross, which was abandoned in a sinking condition on October 16.

Whisky Jailed for Safe Keeping.

WEST LIBERTY, Ky., Oct. 19.—Deputy Collector B. M. Carr, of this place, who seized 11 barrels of whisky and two fine stills belonging to Burton & Wheeler, of Walnut Grove, has locked up the whisky in jail here for safe keeping.

"How To Fill the Milk Can."

This is the title of a novel and instructive pamphlet issued by the Smalley Mfg. Co., Manitowoc, Wis. It describes the most modern method of stock feeding, emphasizing the importance of the silo on the farm and the intelligent feeding of ensilage. The Smalley Mfg. Co. are doing good work in their effort to advance the interests of the farmer, the stock raiser and the dairyman. Their pamphlets are a source of valuable information and should be read by everyone interested in the subject. No. 1 describes the modern round silo and how to build it; No. 2 is a treatise on "Corn Hay," the new fodder product and how to make it. All of these pamphlets are sent free to anyone, together with Catalogues of the Smalley Family of Feed Savers, consisting of the most practical Ensilage and Fodder Cutters, Corn Shredders, Feed Mills, Ear Corn Grinders and Root Cutters. Each of these machines is a labor saver and a profit maker, and they are being more widely used every day in every section.

A GERMAN paper contains the following unique advertisement: "Any person who can prove that my tapioca contains anything injurious to health will have three boxes of it sent to him free of charge."—Christian Register.

HER hat was large, but—joyous truth!—
Revenge was waiting there;
Before her sat a football youth
With a head of flaunting hair.
—Washington Star.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Plan for Your Trip to California This Winter.

On November 4th the Wabash R. R., in connection with the A. T. & S. F., will inaugurate a line of vestibuled sleeping cars between St. Louis and Los Angeles, Cal., without change. These sleepers will leave St. Louis every Wednesday and Saturday nights at 9:15, arriving Los Angeles Fridays and Mondays at 6:05 p. m. For full particulars write to ED SWIFT, S. P. A., Wabash R. R., Room 30 Carew Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, or L. S. McCLELLAN, D. P. A., Wabash R. R., American Nat'l Bank B'ld'g., Louisville, Ky.

YOUNG Mr. Punctuality was on a mountain top. He pulled out his watch. "Ah!" said he, "if the sun doesn't rise in just one minute and nine seconds, it will be late."

"HARRY," asked the teacher, "what is an outline?" "Well," replied Harry, who was taking his first lesson in drawing, "at our house the only outline is the clothesline."

Get a Farm While Prices Are Low.

If you want a farm of your own now is the time to get one in Northern Wisconsin, along the line of the Lake Superior division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, where a sure crop can be raised each year, which can always be sold at good prices in the lumbering towns along the line of this railroad. Low prices; long time. Address C. E. Rollins, 161 La Salle Street, Chicago.

THE best cure for sorrow is to sympathize with another in his sorrow. The cure for despondency is to lift the burden from some other heart.

A Tenacious Clutch

Is that of dyspepsia. Few remedies do more than palliate this obstinate complaint. Try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, however, and you will find that it is conquerable, along with its symptoms, heartburn, flatulence, nervousness, and loss of flesh and vigor. Biliousness and constipation frequently accompany it. These, besides malarial, rheumatic and kidney complaints, are also subduable with the Bitters.

HOWSO—"I know how to govern my wife, sir." CUMSO—"Well, why don't you do it?" Howso—"She won't let me."—Brooklyn Life.

THE man who sells what he does not own cannot cheat the man who never pays him for it. A great deal of business is done on that basis.—Texas Sifter.

Half Fare to St. Louis Via C. H. & D. Ry.

On account of the meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at St. Louis, agents of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Ry. will sell tickets to St. Louis and return at one fare for the round trip, on November 12 and 13, good to return until November 19.

HE—"What do you think of young Jones?" She—"I think if he had lived in Biblical days, Balaam's ass would never have attained such prominence."—Harlem Life.

SEND FOR ONE.

Comprehensive Pamphlets

Have just been published setting forth the agricultural and industrial resources of Missouri and Nebraska. Copies will be mailed free to prospective homeseekers on application. L. W. WAKELEY, G. P. A., Burlington Route. St. Louis, Mo.

"HAVE you an account at Jones'?" "No. I did have; but he keeps a collector out with it now."—Up-to-Date.

WHEN bilious or costive, eat a Cascaret, candy cathartic, cure guaranteed, 10c, 25c.

AS THE Persian proverb has it: "Do not burn the blanket to get rid of one flea." Burn the dog.

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe.

THE people should really take more pains to conceal what they know.

Take

Care of your physical health. Build up your system, tone your stomach, enrich your blood, prevent colds, pneumonia and fevers by taking

Hood's

Sarsaparilla

The Best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

LATEST and BEST WELL DRILLING MACHINES

100 feet to 2000 ft.

LOOMIS & NYMAN, TIFFIN, OHIO.

STEADY WORK

WE PAY CASH WEEKLY and want men everywhere to SELL STARK TREES millions tested, proven "absolutely best." Superb outfits, new system. STARK BROTHERS, LOUISIANA, Mo., ROCKPORT, Ill.

FREE

To introduce, One Nursing Bottle Nipple and Teething Pad. Best ever invented. Send address and 2c. stamp for postage to MILLER MFG. CO., Akron, O.

EFFECTS OF A SMILE: YUCATAN KILLS IT.

PISO'S CURE FOR

25 CTS

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

CONSUMPTION

GEODETIC SURVEY.

The Project Has Cost the Government About One Million Dollars,

And Was Begun Nearly a Quarter of a Century Ago—The Base Line is 2,625.8 Miles in Length—The Longest Arc Heretofore Was in India.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The coast and geodetic survey has just concluded its labors in the field upon the most stupendous geodetic survey ever undertaken in any country, and which gives the United States the longest base line upon which to establish subsequent surveys in existence in the world. It is known as the trans-continental arc and lies along the 39th parallel of north latitude extending from ocean to ocean. Its eastern end is at a point on the Atlantic ten miles south of Little Egg island lighthouse, below Cape May, and its western end is six miles north of Punta Arenas lighthouse on the Pacific above San Francisco several miles. According to the radius of the 39th parallel, as given by Bessel, the famous astronomer of Konigsberg, Germany, who has calculated the diameters of the earth, and measures the distance from the earth to 61 Cygni, the nearest fixed star, the length of the arc, as measured by the coast and geodetic survey officials, is 111 feet in error, and according to the radius of the same parallel as fixed by Sir Andrew Clark, of Glasgow university, the error is 98½ feet. But Gen. Duffield, superintendent of the survey, declares that these variations from the heretofore established standards show error in them and not in the calculation of his scientists. By the measurements made on the line and which have been aggregated in the office here, the arc, at sea level for the entire distance, that is following the curvature of the earth's surface, is 2,625.8 miles in length. The establishment of the radius of the 39th parallel, from these measurements, is a matter for future calculation.

The value and vastness of the work just accomplished can not be intelligently appreciated by the unscientific mind. It was inaugurated by the survey nearly, if not quite, half a century ago. Progress upon it has been spasmodic, but some work was done every year since the beginning. It has cost the government about $1,000,000, but the expenditure is said by the officials to be fully justified by the importance of the project. Russia and China are the only other countries on th[illegible]be wherein a base line of anything like equal magnitude is possible, and in neither one is it likely to be surveyed for many years. The longest base line heretofore surveyed was that in India, running north and south, about a thousand miles in length. European scientists have been greatly interested in the progress of the American arc and its completion [illegible] doubtless be the occasion of the receipt by the coast and geodetic survey of many congratulations from abroad.

THE VATICAN

Favors the Candidacy of McKinley But Does Not Approve of Archbishop Ireland's Letter.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Daily News Friday publishes a dispatch from Rome saying that the vatican, although favoring the candidacy of McKinley for the presidency of the United States, does not approve of the recent letter of Archbishop Ireland, supporting McKinley, because it mixes religion and politics, which the vatican thinks, should best be separate in the United States. It is feared that the letter will displease eastern and southern Irish Catholics who support Mr. Bryan. The dispatch adds that instructions will perhaps be sent to Mgr. Martinelli, the papal delegate, concerning the attitude of the Catholic clergy in the presidential campaign.

The Bancroft Arrives at Smyrna.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The dispatch vessel Bancroft reached Smyrna Thursday morning, according to a cablegram received at the navy department from Adm. Selfridge. It is stated at the navy department that the little vessel must have exhausted her coal supply in the 1,800 mile voyage, the length of the Mediterranean, and she will undoubtedly remain at Smyrna for several days at least to refill her bunkers. It will then depend entirely upon circumstances whether she will proceed to her intended eventual destination at Constantinople.

The Printers Elect Officers.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Oct. 16.—The main business of the International Typographical union convention, which is now being held in this city, is practically concluded. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, W. B. Prescott; second vice president, Hugo Miller, of Indianapolis; secretary and treasurer, John W. Bramwood, of Denver. For delegates to the American Federation of Labor: Frank Morrison, of Chicago; Daniel J. Sullivan, of New York, and Edward Hirsch, of Baltimore.

Receipts and Expenditures.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The first half of October shows a deficit of $5,739,873, and for the fiscal year to date of $30,934,000. The total receipts for the fiscal year to date have been $91,575,670 and the expenditures have aggregated $122,509,679. The receipts for the month of October to date have been $12,400,120 and the expenditures $18,104,000.

Patrick J. Tynan Released.

BOULOGNE, Oct. 16.—Patrick J. Tynan, the alleged dynamiter, whose extradition to England was refused by the French government, was released from prison Thursday evening. It is stated that for the present he will remain here.

Wilson to Speak for Sound Money.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Postmaster General Wilson will leave Washington Saturday for his home, Charlestown, W. Va., where he will make an address on the financial question. The postmaster general will talk on sound money.

FUNERAL SERVICES

Over the Remains of Most Rev. Edward White Benson, Archbishop of Canterbury.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The funeral services over the body of the Most Rev. Edward White Benson, archbishop of Canterbury, and primate of all England, who was stricken with apoplexy during the services in the Hawarden Church last Sunday morning, and died almost immediately afterward, were held in the Cathedral at Canterbury Friday forenoon. The great edifice was crowded with people, among whom were the duke of York and Prince Charles of Denmark, as the representatives of the prince of Wales, the duke Connaught, duke of Cambridge and a host of Ecclesiastical, political and social dignitaries. There were several distinct services, the first one beginning at 8 o'clock in the morning. The coffin containing the body of the deceased archbishop was covered with a white and gold-embroidered pall and was placed in front of the altar surrounded by lighted tapers. Very Rev. F. William Farrar, D.D., dean of Canterbury, opened the series of services by celebrating the funcion of holy communion. The weather was extremely disagreeable, a heavy rainfall, accompanied by high winds, prevailing, but this state of things had no effect in keeping people away from the cathedral. Everybody present wore deep mourning, and the primate's throne was heavily draped with black.

At 12 o'clock the funeral procession was formed in the cloisters of the cathedral, the clergy attached to the diocese leading, followed by the members of the house of commons, members of the house of lords, bishops and members of the convocation. Then came Most Rev. Wm. D. MacLagan, D. D., archbishop of York and primate of England; Most Rev. Wm. C. Lord Plunkett, D. D., archbishop of Dublin; Very Rev. F. Wm. Farrar, dean of Canterbury, and Rev. Hughes Benson. Next came the coffin with the pall bearers, the Earl of Cranbrook, Lord Ashcomb, Lord MacNaighten, the dean of Lincoln; Sir E. M. Thompson and the chancellor of Truro.

Within the cathedral the family and relatives of the dead archbishop, the family of the archbishop of York and other representatives of the private mourners occupied places in the rear of the choir. As the procession reached the nave the choir sang Gounod's "Send Out Thy Light," and afterward a specia[illegible] anthem [illegible]mposed by Sir Herbert Stanley Oakley, composer to her majesty in Scotland and professor of music in the University in Edinburgh. The clergy who officiated at the interment comprised Canon A. J. Mason, of Canterbury; Rt. Rev. Randall T. Davidson, bishop of Winchester; Rev. Hugh Benson and the archbishops of Dublin and York.

The interment took place in the vault of the Canterbury cathedral.

DEAD FIREMEN.

Gilmore Chemical and Soap Works, Montreal, Burned—Car Factory and Tea Warehouse Adjoining Badly Damaged.

MONTREAL, Oct. 17.—A big fire is raging here. It began at 1:30 p. m., in Gilmore Bros. & Co.'s place of business at 31 St. Peters street. Their stock is in part made up of chemicals and soap, manufactured on the premises. This material, catching fire, caused the flames to spread rapidly. The flames communicated on one side to Kearney Bros.' tea warehouse and on the other to the car factory of B. Goldstein & Co.

It is reported that 16 men are entombed under the falling roof of the Gilmore building. Of this number only five have been taken out. It is feared that some of the others are dead. The fire at 3 p. m. was under control.

It is not yet possible to verify the report that 16 men were in the loft that went down, and possibly another day will be reached before the possible missing are definitely accounted for. The fire is attributed to the combustible nature of the stock handled in the building, and once under way the blaze spread rapidly. Three dead firemen have been taken from the ruins thus far.

For the first 20 minutes of the fire explosion after explosion occurred among the chemicals in the Gilmore building. The loss will reach $150,000. The buildings are all owned by the Gray Nuns and are insured.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

At Dayton, Tenn., Wrecks a Large Building and Shakes Up the Town.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 17.—An explosion occurred before daybreak Friday morning at Dayton, Tenn., which wrecked a large building and dispersed the fragments over the entire town. The explosion was preceded by fire undoubtedly of incendiary origin in the supply storehouse of the Dayton Coal and Iron Co., where, in addition to $5,000 in merchandise, 225 pounds of dynamite for use in coal mines was stored. The force of the concussion shook the earth, and besides blowing the large two-story frame structure to atoms, badly damaged the brick office and store of the company, 200 yards distant, and also shattered windows in the depot, courthouse and nearly every business house in the place, though many were over half a mile from the center of destruction. The fact that no pedestrians were abroad so early prevented serious loss of life. The damage will exceed $12,000.

Want Election Day a Holiday.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—Efforts are being made to have election day declared a legal holiday in this city. The Building Trades council will petition Mayor Walbridge to authorize the closing of all municipal offices on that day and circulars have been addressed to merchants, stock exchanges, etc., to join in the request. The movement is based on the fact that the polls will close at 5 p. m., and therefore many workmen will be unable to vote unless a holiday is granted.

Many wholesale houses have already agreed to close at noon on election day.

WAR DEPARTMENT.

For the Running Expenses of the War Office $1,464,236 is Needed.

This is a Reduction of $621,942 in the Expenses for Salaries and Contingencies for Estimate of Four Years Ago—Total Requirement $52,875,638.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Secretary Lamont will Monday transmit to the secretary of the treasury his estimates of appropriations required by the war department for the next fiscal year. The aggregate is $52,875,638.

The estimate for the running expenses of the war office in Washington is $1,464,236, showing a reduction in the annual expenses for salaries and contingencies in that office of $621,942 from the estimates of four years ago. The other estimates in detail are as follows: Pay of the army as fixed by law, $13,522,889; subsistence of the army, $1,659,837; quartermaster's supplies, $2,200,000; incidental expenses of the army, $600,000; barracks and quarters, including hospitals, $835,000; shooting ranges, $25,000; cavalry and artillery horses, $130,000; army transportation, $2,500,000; clothing, $1,100,000; medical supplies, $140,000; ordnance department, $1,131,000; military academy, $521,812; arsenals, $139,796; military posts, national cemeterys and national parks, $1,558,380; national soldiers' homes, $1,443,314; artificial limbs for soldiers of the late war, $191,000; public buildings and ground in Washington, $139,992; miscellaneous items, $402,000; rivers and harbors, $5,349,000; to meet payments on existing contracts, the department at this time being unable to say what sum will be required by future contracts for which authority exists. The estimate for fortifications and sea coast defenses has been increased to $15,825,827. In this connection Secretary Lamont makes a statement of the condition of this work, the advances that have been made, and the results that can be secured by the increased appropriation which he asks. This shows that on the 1st of July, 1893, but one modern gun had been placed in position. On the 1st of July, 1897, there will have been completed defenses with armament as follows:

Thirteen 12-inch guns, 37 10-inch, 8 8-inch and 3 rapid fire guns and 80 12-inch mortars.

Of these 7 12-inch, 19 10-inch, 15 8-inch, 4 rapid fire and 32 12-inch mortars, embankments are to be constructed under contract while the remaining ones are now being built by the engineer's department.

STEAMER PARIS

Arrives at Southampton in a Crippled Condition.

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 19.—The American line steamer Paris, Capt. Watkins, from New York, October 8, before reported as proceeding with her starboard engine disabled, arrived here Sunday morning. To a representative of the United Associated Presses, Capt. Watkins said that on the morning of October 8 the starboard shaft broke in the tube about fifty feet from the propeller. The vessel was at once stopped, and after an examination, it was decided to proceed for Southampton under the port engine. The Paris was then 353 miles from New York. In the afternoon of the same day the White Star line steamer Teutonic, bound eastward, passed the Paris. Later the Hamburg-American line steamer Fuerst Bismarck, bound for New York, sighted the Paris and went along side of her. The Fuerst Bismarck offered to take the Paris in tow, but the offer was declined.

During the trip the Paris spoke 30 other vessels. The Paris completed her passage under her port screw, averaging 12¼ knots per hour, and she covered the course without a hitch.

AMERICAN WOOL.

Over a Million Pounds of It Sold in England in the Early Fall.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—United States Consul Meeker, at Bradford, reports to the state department that over 1,000,000 pounds of American wool was sold in England early in the fall at an average price of nine cents per pound, and these sales would have continued, except for the advance in freight rates and stiffer prices at home, so that there are still large amounts held for sale in England waiting higher prices. Complaint is made of the quality of this wool, which is of the short merino type, and the dealers complain that the Boston shippers selected the very worst they had to send over. In one lot there were 78 pieces waste, and British merchants strongly advise American wool buyers, if they hope to keep place in the British market, to educate wool growers, through agricultural papers, so they may bring their wool to market in better condition.

Death of Millionaire Harris.

NEW LONDON, Ct., Oct. 19.—Hon. Jonathan Newton Harris, aged 81, and one of the best known men in New England, died Sunday of heart disease. Mr. Harris was a millionaire, having made a fortune by a patent medicine. In 1851 he formed a co-partnership with J. L. Harris & Co., of Cincinnati, controlling the sale of coalition patent medicines west of the Allegheny mountains. Mr. Harris has given large sums to charity and for educational purposes, including $100,000 to found a school of science at Kioto, Japan.

Defaulter Legg Coming [illegible]ome.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. [illegible]—Sheriff Barnes, of Pike county, Oh[illegible] arrived Sunday from Waverly to t[illegible] back J. W. Legg, alias Manley, the [illegible]aulting treasurer of that count[illegible] Sheriff Barnes saw Legg for a fe[illegible]nutes, and during the interview [illegible] most broke down. He stated th[illegible]ce his departure he had been tor[illegible] and had taken morphine and [illegible]y to leaden his fears. He wa[illegible] go back and would not fight [illegible]ion. He thought, moreover, he [illegible] a portion of the money he [illegible]en. The sheriff leaves on Mon[illegible] his prisoner.

REPLY TO WASHBURN.

Mr. Bryan Finds a Theme in a Letter from the Ex-Senator.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 13.—Mr. Bryan declines to comment for publication on Archbishop Ireland's letter, holding that he can not make an exception to his almost invariable rule not to enter into a controversy with any person on political subjects. He may, however, have something to say on the subject indirectly in one of his speeches.

The 8,300 seats of the Exposition building were filled when Mr. Bryan, escorted by a body of 20 old soldiers, entered. The candidate received an ovation which lasted for fully five minutes. When the enthusiasm had ceased ex-Mayor P. B. Winston called the meeting to order and introduced E. C. Marchand, who presented to the candidate an ink stand, 16 parts silver and one gold, on behalf of laboring men of Minneapolis.

After returning thanks for the inkstand presented him Mr. Bryan said that he advocated bimetallism because he believed it was a good thing for the laboring men of the country, and continued as follows:

"I have received a letter dated October 12 and signed by W. D. Washburn, who is, I understand, an ex-senator from this state. In this letter he asks me certain questions about my vote and action in the house of representatives on the tariff bill, for which I refer him to the Congressional Record. But when he asks me to enter into a discussion of the tariff question I tell him that there is a question before the American people which is far more important than the tariff question. There is a question which can be settled now; the tariff question can be settled any time. If he wants me to discuss tariff I tell him to join with me in a prohibitory duty on foreign financial policies and then I will discuss the rest of the schedule. Or, if he is not willing to discriminate against that foreign product by a prohibitory duty, I will ask him to wait until he has settled the money question by international agreement and then submit the tariff question to international agreement. I am not going to discuss the tariff question, because I am going to discuss the paramount issue of this campaign, made so by three political parties and considered so by three political parties, and considered so by republicans who are afraid to discuss it and try to discuss the tariff question instead. But there is a part of this letter which I think you ought to hear, and I am not going to deny you any good thing. He says:

"'The audience will be composed, I presume, very largely of laboring men and wage-earners of a high order. This class of people, like others dominated by human selfishness, so far as their own interests are concerned, probably prefer to receive their wages in dollars worth 100 cents rather than those worth only 53 cents.'

"I shall take for my text the words: 'Like others dominated by human selfishness, so far as their own interests are concerned.' Laboring men, I want to ask you why it is that every goldbug says that you are selfish and that you are influenced by selfish considerations, while every goldbug pretends to be a philanthropist who simply loves honest money because it will help other people? I want to know why it is that these goldbugs are so sorry that everybody else will be influenced by personal interests and so positive that personal interest cannot affect them. I will tell you why: If a man believes a thing is good for himself, and also good for others, he will admit that it is good for himself. If he thinks a thing good for himself, but bad for others, he will never admit that it is good for himself. You will find that men never deny that a thing is good for them if they also believe it is good for others. It is only when they believe that they prosper by others' adversity that you hear them standing up and denying that they have any pecuniary benefit."

Mr. Bryan said he had received during the day, too late to verify its correctness by the Congressional Record, what purported to be an extract from the speech delivered by Mr. Washburn in the United States senate July 11, 1892. He continued:

"In this extract I find that Mr. Washburn gives the price of wheat, beginning with 1865 and running down to 1890, and that he uses these words: 'The hopes of the producer have been turned to ashes. The grain dealer, the miller and the business man have been disappointed. The balance of trade in favor of this country that everyone looked forward to with so much assurance has been much below the general estimate, probably from depreciation of prices in agriculture and few exports, at least $200,000,000. Gold is still leaving the country and there is but little profit or spirit in general business, while I think there is a general disappointment that, with the tariff of 1890, we do not see better times.'

"But there is another thing that I want you to notice about Mr. Washburn's letter I believe that Mr. Washburn is a large employer of labor. Now, if he is dominated by selfishness, why is he worrying so much about having to pay his employes in 53-cent dollars? If his employes are so much afraid that they are going to suffer personal loss because of free coinage, why doesn't Mr. Washburn rejoice, if he is dominated by human selfishness?

"Now, if these words are correct, then Senator Washburn tells you that there was general disappointment that the tariff of 1890 was not followed by better times. And, again, he says, Mr. President, the people of the country were startled. I certainly was, when the statement was made in an article in one of the magazines a few weeks since that one-half of the property and wealth of this country were owned by 36,000 persons. And he says: 'The millionaires, the ten millionaires the forty-millionaires, or the hundred millionaires, almost without exception, have neither created nor earned their wealth. The royal road to wealth has been through the illegitimate speculation, stock and grain gambling, market wrecking, railroad wrecking trusts and the whole family of iniquities that have been developed under the nefarious methods of the exchange of this country.'

"Ought the senator to be surprised if we are alarmed at the same thing which scared him four years ago? Ought he not to be alarmed when he finds that nearly every man whom he describes there, nearly every class which he described, is united in this campaign in opposing the candidates nominated by the Chicago convention. If it is alarming that 36,000 people own half the wealth of this country, is it not alarming that those who own the wealth should unite to control legislation in order that they may continue their domination of the affairs of this country? Is it not alarming that all the great trusts get together behind the bulwark which the republican party has raised up by its platform and contribute out of their abundance a corruption fund which has never been paralleled in the political history of this country and seek with that fund to purchase an election in order that they may get back out of the people more than they have spent in trying to overcome the people?"

A dispatch received from Lowell observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., announces that the astronomers of the observatory have discovered that the planets Mercury and Venus each turn once on its axis during one revolution about the sun, making the day just equal to the year on those planets.

The emperor and empress of Russia are attended on all their journeys by four Circassian domestics gorgeously dressed in long red coats embroidered in gold and high black hats. These four are the imperial traveling servants.

MR. BRYAN'S TRAVELS.

Continues His Campaigning Tour in Minnesota.

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 14.—Mr. Bryan, accompanied by Congressman Towne and others, left Minneapolis at eight a. m. Tuesday, his objective point being Duluth. En route to this city short speeches were made at Anoka, Elk River and Big Lake, arriving here, the candidate made a short address.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 14.—Five stops were made by the Bryan special between Little Falls and Duluth and five more speeches were added to the several hundred the democratic candidate has made in the campaign. For the size of the places where the train halted the crowds that turned out to see Mr. Bryan were of fair proportions. That at Staples numbered 800; at Brainerd, 2,000; at Aitken, 300; Carleton, 500, and West Superior, 10,000. McKinley badges of yellow ribbon were noticeable at several places, particularly so at Brainerd, and Mr. Bryan made some comments on their use. He said:

"I do not know what arguments are most familiarly advanced here against free coinage. I was going to say that coercion was the argument that is being resorted to now by our republican friends more than any other argument. But there is one advantage about the voting in the states where they have the Australian ballot, and that is that while a man may wear a badge in order to save his employment he has a right to use his vote in order to save his country. I do not find it in my heart to criticise the man who wears the republican badge under compulsion. These are hard times, and they will be harder than this if the gold standard continues, and I do not wonder that the man who has a job does not like to risk having that job taken away from him because he insists upon being an American citizen. Some one has said that a man wears a republican badge to save his employment, and he votes for free silver to make his job worth saving."

After a journey of 200 miles, during which he made 11 speeches, Mr. Bryan reached this city at seven p. m. Tuesday. A big crowd was at the Union depot when the candidate's train arrived, and hearty cheers followed Bryan and Towne on their way though the streets to the St. Louis hotel. Immediately after supper there Mr. Bryan started out to fulfill his Duluth contracts. Like the women of Minneapolis, the female supporters of Mr. Bryan in Duluth had arranged a meeting for their exclusive benefit. They said they wanted to hear the nominee at some place where men should not be admitted, and the local reception committee secured the Lyceum theater for the purpose. There were 2,500 ladies present, and they received Mr. Bryan's remarks with manifestations of enthusiasm. The candidate talked about the democratic side of the money question.

The second meeting was in the car shed of the local street railway company, a great structure capable of holding between 12,000 and 15,000 people. It was packed and jammed with male humanity when Mr. Bryan arrived there at 9:25. His reception was of the heartiest, and the cheering on his appearance lasted several minutes. Mr. Bryan was introduced by L. C. Harris, Mr. Towne's law partner, and spoke in part as follows:

Mr. Bryan referred in complimentary terms of Charles A. Towne and John Lind and said that Mr. Towne could better afford to be defeated than the people could afford to allow his cause to suffer defeat. "I beg you to remember the responsibilities which rest upon you in an hour like this and leave no effort undone to give a majority in the house and a majority in the senate as well as a president, all in favor of free coinage at sixteen to one, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other people on earth."

A Voice—"And you won't veto it, will you?"

Mr. Bryan—"I will not, but I want you to have two-thirds if possible in both houses, so that if any change should come to me, and I should veto it, I want you to have enough to pass it over my veto. But my friends, you need have no concern about my vetoing any measure which is in harmony with the platform on which I stand. I have been taught to believe that platforms are guides to those elected. Not merely the means by which one may be elected. You may rest assured that I believe in what is in that platform, so far as my ability may go."

CHAIRMAN JONES' CLAIM.

Says Bryan Is Sure of 279 Electoral Votes—The Candidate in Minnesota.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Senator Jones, of the democratic national committee, characterized the table of the probable electoral vote, as given out Monday night by Senator Quay, as a "gigantic bluff." The chairman pointed out that of all the states classed by Senator Quay as doubtful, only Tennessee and Virginia have not complete fusion of democrats, populists and silver republicans. He called attention to the state election in August in Tennessee, where a judge of the chancery court of appeals was elected, in which the democratic majority was increased over 25,000 votes and added that an examination of the vote cast by the fusion parties in all the states classed as doubtful would show the impossibility of the republicans carrying one of them. The senator also stated that of the states classed for McKinley there was complete fusion of all the silver forces in the following: Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Ohio, West Virginia and Wisconsin. In 32 states altogether complete fusion had been effected of all the forces opposed to the gold standard. Chairman Jones then said a table had been compiled from the latest reliable information received by the national committee which shows at this time 279 electoral votes sure for Bryan, 81 for McKinley, and 87 are in doubt yet.

The Hebrews called R Resh, the forehead, and the Phoenician form of the letter closely resembles in outline the upper part of the head, the hair, eyebrows, eyes, beginning of the nose and tips of the ears being plainly visible.

A lapboard which instead of being made in the ordinary shape is made round, and prevents any possible looseness in the outside material, as the board has practically the curve of the body.

Mr. Sargent, it is said, is contemplating a series of Biblical illustrations.

MICHIGAN TOWNS.

Many Visited by Mr. Bryan—Expounds His Doctrines to Big Crowds.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 15.—From the time he left Duluth late Tuesday night until he reached Marquette, Mr. Bryan traveled 400 miles, and at ten o'clock Wednesday night he left Marquette for another all night run to Mackinaw City, where his second day of campaigning in the Wolverine state will begin. His course lay partly along a region interesting in its desolation, past miles and miles of forest laid bare by lumbermen, by fire and by storm, and through towns and hamlets supported by the iron and coal interests of the section.

The half hour spent by Mr. Bryan at Iron Mountain had an additional interest to both candidate and audience from the fact that Marcus A. Hanna has mining interests in the vicinity and is a large shipper of ore from that place. A large number of miners in their working clothes, with candles projecting from their characteristic headgear, lined the railroad track as the train drew into the station. Around the stand erected for Mr. Bryan's accommodation, a few feet from where the train came to a standstill, 1,500 people had assembled, and Mr. Bryan was cheered as he ascended the stand. Mr. Hanna's association with the little city brought no direct reference from Mr. Bryan, but in the course of his remarks he said:

"You say it is a good thing for the laboring man to be paid in dollars which buy a great deal Remember that the laboring man is interested more in getting a chance to work than he is interested in the pay that he gets when he does work. The gold standard increases the number of idle men, and the idle men are a menace to every man who has employment, and the laboring men understand that, because the laboring men of this country are demanding the opening of our mints and restoration of free coinage at sixteen to one, and I would rather trust those laboring men to know what is good for them than to trust the men who have spent their lives trying to destroy labor organizations."

At 2:30 the Bryan special reached Norway, another mining town, 15 minutes' run from Iron Mountain. The Scandinavian type was sufficiently numerous among the 500 or 600 men and women there to indicate how the place received its name. In a short speech from the rear platform of the train Mr. Bryan made reference to those who have tried to destroy labor organizations similar to that made at Iron Mountain. The people of Powers, 400 of them, heard the candidate deliver a brief speech, which contained some new features. He said:

"I notice that the other day one of the gold democrats who has left the democratic party said that we are not giving the liberty to the individual that we ought to. That when we say that a man cannot contract for a particular kind of money we are taking away his personal liberty. My friends, you have usury laws. Those usury laws interfere with personal liberty, but what kind of liberty is it that they interfere with? It is the liberty that the man who loans money has to oppress those who borrow money, and the fact that we have to have usury laws shows that there is that in human nature which must be restrained. Our contention that the laws ought to prohibit the making of contracts in a particular kind of money, our contention that the law ought to prevent a man demonetizing by contract that which the government makes money by law, is based upon exactly the same principle. The dollar that is good for ninety-nine people is good enough for the other hundredth man. The dollar that is good enough for the laboring man and the farmer is good enough for the banker and money lender when they loan money. My friends, show me a man who believes that the man who loans money ought to be allowed to demonetize by contract that which the law has declared to be money and I will show you a man who thinks that the right of the creditor is more sacred than the right of the debtor, and show me a man who believes that the creditor's right is more sacred than the right of the debtor and I will show you a man who needs to read the declaration of independence and find that all men are created equal."

Fully 5,000 persons heard Mr. Bryan at Escanaba. The atmosphere had changed from warm to raw and Mr. Bryan kept his hat on and the collar of his overcoat turned up about his ears during the time he remained on the speaker's stand. In his speech he said in part:

"I am especially glad to have the coal trust against me, because I want to assure you that the coal trust is not against me with any more earnestness than I am against the coal trust, my friends, and they cannot dislike me any more than I dislike them, and they cannot try to prevent my election with any more earnestness than I, if elected, will try to prevent their putting a representative by every fireside and collecting tribute from every family that needs warmth."

At Ispheming his train arrived at 6:30 o'clock. Mr. Bryan addressed 3,000 people from the porch of a hotel. In the course of his remarks he said:

"In this campaign we are submitting our cause to the judgment of the American people. I have been criticised sometimes for traveling around among the people, but I do not know where a candidate is going to go if you do not allow him to go among the people who are going to vote for him. There is no other place that I can go and feel at home. If I were to go to visit the headquarters of a trust they would put me out. If I were to try to make my home with the syndicate that has been bleeding this government I could not stay there long, and the people are about the only ones to whom I can go and not feel that my coming will be unwelcome. If a candidate is to meet the people, he must either go to them or they must come to him. Times are so hard under a gold standard that you could not possibly come to me, so I had to come to you.

"Our opponents seem to think that all they have to do is to get the heads of trusts and syndicates together and let them shout in chorus: 'Stop talking!' and the people will keep still. The coal trust thinks that it can charge you a dollar more a ton for coal and tells you not to say anything about it, but they cannot do it. You will stop opposing the coal trust when the coal trust stops opposing you. You have as much right to array yourselves against it as it has to array itself against the welfare of the entire country."

M. Moissan states in the Annales de Chimie et de Physique that the most stable compounds known to science disappear in the electric furnace. The only exceptions are the perfectly crystallized borides, silicides and carbides discovered by him. These, he thinks, probable are original constituents of the globe and must still exist in some of the stars.

As long as a man earns money his children do not think that he needs a guardian, but when he begins to spend the money he has earned, that's different.—Atchison Globe.

IN THE BERMUDAS.

A Quaint Example of the Last Century Country House.

A noteworthy example of the last century country house is one old place singularly consistent in detail, harmonious as a whole, and without a jarring hint of anything modern. Fortunate in its location, it is also fortunate in retaining a sufficient number of the ancestral acres to secure to it a dignified seclusion. Set well back from the road, the approach is by a long drive overarched with tall, slender oleanders, their graceful tops a mass of spicy pink and white and crimson blooms. The house has the air of peering from beneath the spreading trees that surround it, over the grounds that saunter leisurely down to the very margin of the lagoon, and out at the gem-like islands lapped by the luminous water, the white sails in the offing, and the big steamers at their anchorage. Essentially a homelike apartment, and evidently the favorite gathering place of the family, is the living-room that extends quite through the center of the building. Finished in dark woods and fitted with massive furniture, grotesquely carved, brought from overseas ages ago, it is presided over by dim old family portraits that look down complacently from the walls on an interior, little changed since the originals' own day.

In one corner is the oddest winding stair, by which access is given to the drawing room that comprises the entire second story. A beautiful room it is—lofty, airy, and with a quaintly original character as impressive as it is pleasing. By a peculiar arrangement opposite ends of the room, front and back, are constituted each an immensely wide window composed of smaller ones. On the wall, covering it may be two-thirds of the space, is a remarkable paper, thrown into high relief by a section of white wall above, and a broad dark surbase beneath. All in soft grays, the figures large, the effect is that of a series of crayon sketches illustrating some old romantic story, with its turreted castles on a river-bank where knights [illegible] ladies explore the woodland paths or sit in rustic arbors listening to the strains of the minstrels in the boats below.

Placed here in the time of the founder, when the house—not an old house then—was garnished for the home-coming of the first of its brides, the unique paper is held in high renown by the islanders as a local marvel. And from the time that the home began to resound to the patter of childish footsteps down to the present, the children of the family have ever regarded the wondrous paper as their especial treasure. For has it not fairy princes and princesses galore, and have not countless hours been blissfully spent in adapting the old tales or in inventing new ones to meet the fancied requirements of the charming folk portrayed upon the wall?—Mary F. Honeyman, in Chautauquan.

Little Lord Fauntleroy.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett was the guest of honor at a dinner of the London Authors' club, July 16. Her son, Vivian Burnett, has just finished his sophomore year at Harvard. His fame as the original of Little Lord Fauntleroy has cost him dear at college, where he is universally known as Curly Locks. One of the tasks imposed on him during his initiation into the Pi Eta society was to wear the costume of Little Lord Fauntleroy in public for three days. He performed it courageously, however; he visited a high-priced tailor, and ordered an elaborate suit of Fauntleroys — short breeches, velvet collar, and all. His haberdasher got some fine, long, black silk hose for him, and from a wig-maker he secured a wig that looked like molten gold.—Current Literature.

Hard, Unfeeling Men.

One of the things that exasperates the average man of affairs is to find people complaining grievously of their lot, when he knows that they are not passing through anything like the trouble he has experienced time and again. They expect him to sympathize with them—which usually means to agree with them about the magnitude of their troubles. But for the life of him he finds himself unable to do so. He can see no special reason why they should not take up their burdens and bear them as he has had to do.—Boston Watchman.

Tricky Thief.

An Englishman has just been robbed by an ingenious trick in a Paris cafe. He entered into conversation with a well-dressed stranger who began playing with the lever of a seltzer water siphon on the table. Suddenly he turned the steam on the Englishman's shirt front, jumped up apologizing profusely and wiping off the water with his handkerchief. Then he left the cafe, and the Englishman found that his pocketbook with $800 in bank notes had gone with the stranger.

COUNTESS UVAROV.

A Woman Is President of the Russian Archæological Congress.

The Vossische Zeitung gives an interesting account of the Russian archæological congress, which was founded in 1869 by the late Count Alexei Uvarov, and all the strings of which throughout the Russian empire are now in the hands of his widow, a wise, highly cultured and intellectual woman. Countess Praskovja Ssergejevna Uvarov is one of the most distinguished women in Russia — perhaps in Europe. She was a Princess Trubetzkoi, a member of one of the oldest Bojar families, and was only 17 years old when she married Count Uvarov, in whose scientific labors and studies she fully shared, sometimes also undertaking independent work of her own. Her best-known book is "The Christian Monuments of the Caucasus," the result of her journeys on foot and on horseback in that wild and mountainous country. A saying of the countess shows her mode of thought: "It is absolutely necessary for the healthy and normal development of the people of a country and of every race that they should have a sense of reverence and esteem for their ancestors, and learn to know and value the art productions of their native land and its inhabitants."

Countess Uvarov inherited from her husband the presidentship of the archæological congress, and it is somewhat strange to see a woman leading scientific meetings. The countess is tall and distinguished looking. She wears her black hair simply folded in thick braids round her head. She dresses in a plain black dress and a gray hat and feathers. As president she listeus attentively to the papers read, and clearly sums them up, adding practical comments. The Russians style her "der Herr (Mr.) President Frau Grafin Uvarov."

The choice of Riga for the tenth Russian archæological congress was a rather unfavorable one, owing to the forced Russification of the Baltic provinces, and it was owing to the tact of the countess in declaring that politics would uot be discussed, and in obtaining permission for German as well as Russian to be spoken, that the Baltic historical societies and others joined the congress. There were uo less than 600 members present at the meetings, of whom 150 were representatives of academies and directors of archives and museums. From Germany came Prof. Virchow and his son Hans, Dr. Voss and Dr. Kossing of Berlin, and other distinguished men.

Countess Uvarov, with great tact, dispensed with the usual custom of the sprinkling of the members with holy water at the first meeting, and substituted the singing of a hymn; but she rather offended the archbishop of Riga by this, who showed his displeasure by absenting himself. The most distinguished Russian professors present were Profs. Uspenski, director of the Russian archæological institute in Constantinople; Prof. Anintichin of Moscow, an expert in ecclesiastical archæology; Prof. Iloyaisky, historian; Prof. Zagorelli of St. Petersburg, well known for his knowledge of the monuments of the east; Prof. Kerpetshnikov of Odessa, an authority on Byzantine monuments. Only one paper was read in French, the others in Russian and German, and little or no discussion followed. Three meetings of two or three hours' duration each took place in one day, which was fatiguing, and the ouly member of congress who was present at all was the indefatigable president, Countess Uvarov, who was the first to enter and the last to leave the hall.—London Daily News.

Gladstone's Correspondence.

Notwithstanding the pressure of his literary and other work with which he busies himself in his retreat at Hawarden, Mr. Gladstone has almost completed the task of rearrauging his correspondence for biographical purposes. A friend who has recently had occasion to visit Hawarden Castle tells me that the right honorable gentleman, who is a most indefatigable worker, and who sits at his desk five hours every day, has gone through the whole of the correspondence that has accumulated for years past. A vast number of letters have been weeded out and laid aside, but there still remains no less a number than about 60,000 missives, all of which are carefully tied up in bundles and docketed. In this work Mr. Gladstone was assisted by Mrs. Drew, who is probably the only person, next to her father, thoroughly acquainted with these letters, which will some day be the foundation of the right honorable gentleman's biography. — London Correspondence Birmingham Post.

—"They say that human nature is always the same," said the middle-aged lady; "but I don't think so." "What's the reason?" asked her niece. "Twenty years ago girls read magazines and did needlework. Now they study a road map and learn to use a monkey wrench."—Washington Star.

CHINESE LABOR UNIONS.

Some of the Rules Regarding the Location of Laundries.

The members of the Laundrymen's union arrange so as to divide the territory for location of their laundries and for business. In San Francisco the laundries in that part of the city which the Chinese call "Spanishtown" will not come into the city proper to get customers, nor those in the city proper go to "Spanish-town" for their business. Thus they divide the territory for business.

The division of territory for the location of their shops is the most curious thing to one who is unaccustomed to the Chinese way of conducting business. The rules by which locations are made lawful in the eyes of the union are elaborately written in the constitution and by-laws. A laundry must be situated so that there shall be ten doors between it and any other laundry. When there is more than one house in the same yard and there is but one gate leading from the street into the yard, only one door is counted; but if there are two gates leading from the street into the yard, two doors are reckoned. A stable whose door faces the street and whose roof is gabled will be counted as one door or house, or if it has a swinging door and a level roof it is a door; but if it has a "shedroof" and no swinging door, it counts nothing. There are many more such rules as these, but the space is too limited to write them all.

When a man wants to open a laundry and does not wish to join the union, because if he do join he cannot find a suitable location according to its rules, the unionists will combine to crush the new man out. There are instances of this description within the writer's knowledge. When the union men find out that a non-union laundry has been started (they call it an unlawful laundry), they first tell the owner to close up his laundry. If he does not listen to them, then they meet and arrange that each union laundry is to take the clothes of one of the new laundry's customers for half price or even for nothing for a month or so. By this method they often force the new laundryman to give up his business. Of course each of the old laundries can afford to take one customer for nothing for a time, while the new one cannot afford to work for all his customers for nothing for any length of time.—Walter F. Fong, in Chautauquan.

THE ART OF EXPRESSION.

Three Ways of Enjoying a Fine Poem—The Best of All.

There are three distinct ways in which we may enjoy a fine poem: We may read it from the printed page in silence; we may listen while some one reads it aloud, or listen to some one reading it while we ourselves hold the book and follow the words as they are spoken by the reader. There is also a fourth method, and that is to commit the poem to memory and to repeat it aloud.

The first method is the most common and the least satisfactory, because we may be morally certain that we are reading it pretty badly. Besides, reading in silence is unsocial, a little selfish and not always fair to the poet or ourselves. Reading in silence misses half the charm of reading. It is not easy to carry the cadence, rhythm and musical form of the poem in the mind. Just try it. Read any good poem for the first time to yourself and then listen to the same poem read or recited aloud by a trained reader. Now it's quite another thing. Now to the thought we add the sound of the rhyme, the swing of the rhythm, all the music of the words, and all the charm of a beautiful voice. Besides all this, the reader may give a wholly new meaning to the words and thus add something to the poem we might never have found alone. As well look over the notes of a song and try to imagine how they will sound as to read always in silence.—Chautauquan.

Good, Better, Best.

It is not always true that "any is better than none." Half a loaf is better than no loaf, but faint praise is hardly to be preferred to no praise, while the acceptableness of many a gift, whether from purse or brain, is neutralized by half-heartedness. A teacher's attainments, however modest they may be, are better than none, if he is adding to them as he is able; but he cannot be sure that his teaching is better than none if he is doing less than his best. The only safe stand to take is to strive constantly and unceasingly toward a higher standard.—S. S. Times.

A Prolific Writer.

The most prolific writer in Russia is said to be Mme. Irma Fedossova, a peasant of the province of Petrossawodsk, who has given to the world moro than 10,000 poems.

—A whortleberry patch in Klamath county, Ore., covers an area of 60 square miles.

BREVITIES OF FUN.

—Mother — "Johnny?" Johnny—"Yessum!" Mother—"Lookout for yourself out there in the street; if you don't, the first thing you know, you'll be bicycled."—Roxbury Gazette.

—Della Ware—"What style of headgear would you wear to match this bathing suit?" Her Dearest Friend—"I think I should wear something that had a veil on it, dear."—Buffalo Times.

—Bacon—"I saw Bloomer to-day. He had his arm in a sling, and was walking with crutches." Egbert—"Riding a bike, I suppose?" "No; not yet. He'd been down to buy one, though, at a dry goods store."—Yonkers Statesman.

—Winks—"It must be fine to be able to write things in shorthand, so that nobody can read what you have written." Binks—"Yes, that's so. It's my secret. Sometimes I can't do it myself, when the notes are six months old."—Somerville Journal.

—"My misguided friends," said the fat man with the puffs under his eyes, "I will admit that I am a capitalist. That part of your assertion can go unchallenged. But when you say that I am not a producer, you are wrong. I have been backing a comic opera company for two months."—Indianapolis Journal.

—"How do you know I'm a newly married man?" asked the nervous individul of the elderly indlvidual who had taxed him with that condition. "Know!" said the other, "know! Why, by your labored attempts to make us believe the corset box you are carrying contains a bottle of whisky."—Boston Transcript.

CAN TALK NOW.

The Accomplishment of Helen Kellar, the Blind Deaf Mute.

Helen is no longer dumb. She has for the last five years employed articulate speech as almost her sole method of communicating with those who can hear. She was not quite ten years old when one day she startled Miss Sullivan by spelling upon her fingers, "I must speak." She had learned of a deaf and blind child in Norway, Ragnhild Kaata, who had been taught to speak. At once the determination seized her that she also would speak. Nothing could discourage or dissuade her; and so she was taken to Miss Sarah Fuller, of the Horace Mann school, to receive her first instruction in articulation. Details of the process of that instruction cannot here be given. Suffice it to say that "in less than a month she was able to converse intelligibly in oral language." Only 11 lessons and the child was talking more distinctly than the majority of deaf children under the best instruction in articulation are able to do after several years of effort! There is something which touches the fountain of tears in the pathetic yet exultant words of the determined girl when she found herself able to speak: "I am not dumb now!" It was the writer's privilege at Chautauqua, in July, 1894, to have repeated opportunities to converse with this most interesting child; and while her articulation was by no means perfect, there was but little difficulty in understanding all she said. It was the writer's privilege also to personally test her remarkable ability in lip-reading by touch. He found her able with great facility to understand in a protracted conversation what was said, by putting her fingers upon his lips.—J. T. McFarland, D.D., in Chautauquan.

Strengthening Asphalt Roads.

An ingenious application of "expanded steel" has been made to the strengthening of asphalt pavements. This is simply a thin sheet of metal with slits cut in it and expanded lengthwise by forcing these slits into diamond-shaped apertures. It was at first used only as a substitute of lathing in the construction of buildings. It is proposed to have steel sheets of one-half inch in thickness cut into large sized strips, and then expanded under powerful pressure. These sheets will be inserted flatways in the concrete bed by first laying four or five inches of the stone and cement mixture, and then covering the entire surface with steel. Over this steel, in turn, will be put the rest of the concrete. When partly dry, a 10-ton roller will be passed over the base. The concrete will be forced into the interstices in the steel sheets, and the whole will make a solid foundation of great resisting power.—Philadelphia Item.

A[illegible]er and Goldenrod.

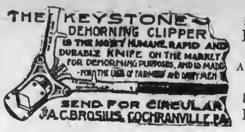
Popu[illegible]dgment is often an aid in scie[illegible] studies. A botanist, for insta[illegible] only with difficulty descri[illegible]gular terms the difference[illegible] an aster and a goldenro[illegible] botanist will not ad[illegible] the list of his regular terms. [illegible] the mere plant lover can de[illegible]tween the two families by col[illegible]. The golden-rod family h[illegible] flowers, while white or p[illegible] characteristic of the aster[illegible]

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.

La : Belle : Herd

—OF UP TO DATE—

CHESTER WHITE HOGS.



THE KEYSTONE
DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
J. A. C. BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.

Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.

Write for circulars.

AEROMETER

EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.

COME AND SEE IT.

Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.

T. J. HUGHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

$50 REWARD!

Some time between TUESDAY, SEPT., 23d, 1896, and the Friday following, the house of Dr. E. W. Duncan, Walton, Ky, was broken into and CLOTHING STOLEN. Among other things taken was a light weight, brownish gray, Short Sack Overcoat, the style of the present fall season. On the inside of the collar was the name Jos. Bailer, Covington, Ky. On the underside of the piece of cloth containing this name was my own name written in ink. Just below the outside pocket on the right side of the coat was a square patch, 2½ to 3 inches square. On the left side of the front where the goods is folded back to form the facing is another patch of the exact size and shape of the one just described. The material was cut from this place to form the patch outside. This patch on the facing was made up of two pieces of equal size. These two small pieces were cut from surplus cloth near one of the seams in the back of the coat. There was also taken a SHORT SACK COAT of Black Cheviot that had been but little worn. This coat had the name inside the collar of C. & G. Ems, London, England. It may have in addition the two words—Cheapside and England. Instead of the buttons being simply sewed to the outside of the sleeves at the cuffs they were arranged to button and unbutton and were the only means of closing the lower 6 inches of the above sleeves. On the inside of this coat on the left side, low down, was a very large pocket, 9 inches long and 8 inches deep, closed by a button in the center. There were some PANTS taken, but there was no distinguishing feature except that none of them contained the ordinary watch pocket.

A REWARD OF $50

Will be given for the apprehension and conviction of the guilty party or parties. Address any information to the undersigned,

E. W. DUNCAN, Walton, Ky.

1896.

Your County Paper
Is the One to
Subscribe for,

It Gives all the
Neighborhood News,
Court News and
General News.

The Campaign is Now On and will be of unusual interest, and

The Recorder

Will Keep you
Posted on the Campaign.

15c Will Pay for it until
DEC. 1, 1896.

Or $1.50 will Pay for it for Twelve
Long Months.

Give It a Trial and Help
Along Home EnterPrise.

E. H. RIGGS,

—Dealer in—

HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,

—CEMENT, ETC.—

TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFINC.

FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.

Erlanger, : : : KY.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1896. NO. 2.

A WATERLOO.

The Democrats Were Not In It.

The Republicans Swept The Country.

LET'EN SHOUT.

The following is the majorities conceded to McKinley by the five o'clock edition of Cincinnati Enquirer.

Minnesota	50,000
Michigan	35,000
New Jersey	25,000
Massachusetts	100,000
Connecticut	50,000
New York	250,000
Vermont	35,000
New Hampshire	10,000
Maine	40,000
Wisconsin	100,000
Ohio	50,000
Maryland	30,000
Pennsylvania	150,000
Illinois	75,000
Iowa	80,000
Rhode Island	30,000

The following States are claimed by the Enquirer for the Democrats:

DEMOCRATIC.

Tennessee	5,000
Colorado	100,000
Utah	10,000
Nevada	2,000
Mississippi	50,000
Alabama	50,000
Virginia	25,000
Florida	14,000
Texas	75,000
Georgia	50,000
Missouri	50,000
Montana	20,000
North Carolina	8,000
South Carolina	40,000
California	3,000
Arkansas	60,000
Louisiana	30,000
Idaho	10,000
Kansas	15,000

DOUBTFUL.

South Dakota,
Indiana,
Delaware,
North Dakota,
Nebraska,
Washington.
Kentucky,
Oregon,
West Virginia,
Wyoming.

A rain or snow always follows a Presidential election.

WE Democrats are feeling too utterly too too just now.

Boone county is the last place on earth that will go Republican.

IT was a fine day for the election nearly all over the country.

THE election is over, now let every one get down to business.

KEEP your temper—many a candidate for President has been defeated.

BERRY'S majority in this county is just about double what it was two years ago.

Some of the Republican boys are slightly hoarse. They have a right to get that way.

BOONE maintains her distinction of being Kentcky's Democratic county. All hail, to Boone!

THE campaign liarsare now without a job. There has been an over production of those fellows this fall.

SEVERAL of the boys went to Cincinnati Tuesday night to get the election returns. The Democrats soon got enough.

IT is a good plan to keep yourself in a position not to have to fall hard when the election returns come in and show that the other fellows have won.

Let our Republican friends beat the drums, burn red rights and shout themselves hoarse, their victory justifies it. Go, in boys.

We have to keep our rooster in the coop this time. There are too many eagles loose in the country for his safety.

THE rallying cry of the campaign orator is no longer heard in the land. He has sheathed his voice and dreams no more of flights of oratory and storms of applause.

THE opinion of the Court of Appeals in the Walling and Jackson murder cases is expected by the middle of this month. The filing of the record in the Walling case was delayed several weeks.

IN comparing the vote of the county with that cast four years ago for President, it will be noticed that the Democrats gained 290 votes being 14.4 per cent., while the Republicans gained 240 votes, being 41.2 per cent.

THE prolonged struggle with Cuba is making Spain uneasy for fear that Uncle Sam will interfere in the interest of the Insurgents, and the Spanish government is straining every nerve to bring the war to a close to avoid trouble with this country.

THE Cuban insurgents are a plucky set of fellows, and have reached a point in their war where they recognize that liberty or death is their portion. The struggle they are making for independence is much stronger than it was thought posible for them to put up.

STATE NEWS.

Frankfort spends about $2,000 annually caring for her poor.

Night riders destroyed eight or nine toll-gates in Franklin county, last week.

The prevalence of diphtheria has caused the closing of a school at Hopkinsville.

Breathitt county is overrun with squirrels. In places large cornfields have been almost destroyed.

Rosanah Calhoun was burned to death in Knott county by her clothes catching fire while she was ironing.

Last week there were $21,052 in the State treasury. Why are not the old claims against the State being paid?

Queen Victoria's crown was made in 1838. It contains 2,783 dimonds, 277 pearls, 27 emeralds, 17 sapphires and 5 rubies.

J. W. Bugg, who killed Phil. Board, was convicted of murder at Harrodsburg and sentenced to life imprisonment.

A detachment of revenue officers will be sent to Morgan, Elliott and Magoffin counties to break up the illicit distilleries there.

Six thousand dollars has been raised for the building of a Widows' and Orphans' Home by the Odd Fellows of the State.

Paducah cow owners held a mass meeting and adopted resolutions demanding the repeal of the ordinance against cattle running at large.

Madison county comes to the front with the latest 16 to 1 story. It is reported that 16 boys have become engaged to one girl.

Two sons, aged 18 and 12 years, of Thomas Givens, were burned in his house in Butler county while he and his wife were absent at Morgantown.

At Louisville, Jim Powell and Albert Hoskins, both colored, had a fight with knives about a woman; Powell received cut across back and hand; Hoskins long gash in the arm.

At Adairville mean whisky and cards resulted in death of one man probably and of another. Arch Proctor stabbed to death Aaran Crofton and seriously wounded his brother, Doc Crofton.

A compromise has been effected between the city of Lexington and former Collector S. G. Sharp, by which the city will get $17,000 of the $24,000 which the collector is said to owe the city.

Postoffice Inspector Fleming caused the arrest of Postmaster Charles Lusk, of Rush, Carter county, on the charge of stealing and converting to his own use money found in mail matter.

At Louisville, during a fight over a crap game between Richard Hamilton and Henry Gentry, both colored, Hamilton drew knife and stabbed Gentry in the arm and right hand, almost servering hand from arm.

In Lawrence county, Rev. David Osborn a physician and Baptist preacher, shot and dangerously wounded Joe Cyrus, ex-deputy Sheriff on George creek; cause, old grudge, renewed by political discussion.

Ellen Howard was carrying a lamp in the residence of Booker Robinson, at Cleopatra, McLean County, when it exploded. She has since died from her injuries. The flames set the residence a fire and it was burned.

Mrs. Geo. Cliff, of Waynesburg, was looking through an old trunk when she discovered a package of grayish powder. She smelled it to tell what it was. A few minutes later she fell to the floor. Her life has been despaired of.

In the Sixth Congressional District composed of the counties of Campbell, Kenton, Pendleton, Grant Boone, Gallatin, Trimble Carroll, there are 154 post-offices as follows: Campbell 25, Kenton 22, Pendleton 30, Grant 24, Boone 22, Gallatin 8, Trimble 11, Carroll 12.

The little child of Mr. William Goins, of the Bald Knob neighborhood, met with an accident which caused its death yesterday. It was playing in a room by itself when its clothes became ignited and it was so seriously burned that it lived but a few hours.—Capital.

John D. Hinton, of Lexington, the Secretary of a Building Association, is charged in a petition in the Circuit Court with having a colored woman sign a deed transferring her property to the Building Association instead of a mortgage securing a loan, as the woman supposed.

A Kentucky woman has invented what she calls a "snore diverter," says an exchange. It is composed of a hood and flexible pipe. When her husband's snores grow unbearable the hood is lowered over his head and the snore is conducted into the cellar since the diverter was used.

Upon a farm in New Jersey every operation, including growth, is said to be carried on by electricity—electric plows, electric sewers, the crops being brought to perfection in half the ordinary time by means of an electric current, while at night the farm is bright with the rays of electric lights.

A difficulty between Dan Reeder and Horace Hudson, at Lancaster, Ky., terminated in Hudson being shot three times, once in the head, which will likely prove fatal. They are brother-in-laws, and disagreement over a division of land led to the shooting. Both are farmers of the Bryantsville neighborhood.

While John D. Canary, of Hebbardsville, was making sorghum molasses his four-year-old son ate some of the sirup and shortly after was seized with convulsions which resulted in his death. Mr. Canary thinks the sorghum alone would not have been fatal, but that the boy must have swallowed a spider or some other poisonous insect.

Thomas Cloyd, a convict in the penitentiary from Monroe county, has gone crazy about politics. He has been sick for some weeks, and while in the hospital has been allowed to read the newspapers. He imagines that he is a great political speaker and that he is being forcibly prevented from filling appointments in Alabama and other states. He is so violent that it takes four men to hold him.

Down in Christian county several physicians were fined $20 for neglecting to report births and deaths. They took the case to the Court of Appeals to test the constitutionality of the law. The Appellate Court decided that the law was constitutional, but reversed the decision because the State Auditor and County Clerk had not provided the proper blanks on which the physicians could make their returns.

That the Mormons are well pleased with their success in many of the mountain counties is shown by the zealous way in which they are working in new fields adjoining their recently acquired preserves. In many counties the Latter Day Saints have as many as six churches, and are soon to increase this number by having about 100 more Elders from Utah come to Kentucky to assist in the labor of bringing the State over to the church of Brigam Young.

Some idea of the enormous amount of campaign literature sent out from Washington recently may be gathered from the 40,000,000 speech envelopes which have been printed at the Government Printing Office, upon orders from Congressmen. 5,000,000 were ordered by Senator Faulkner, chairman of the Democratic committee; 4,000,000 by Representive Babcock chairman of the Republican committee; 4,700,000 by Representative Linton of Mich., the A. P. A. leader in the House, and the remainder by other members. The literary part of the campaign is now over, and the fight is hand-to hand.

The toll-mobs have struck Owen county. Last Saturday night a gang of men numbering 48 by actual count rode up to the double gate kept by "Uncle" Paddy Woods and wife, a mile this side of Monterey and announced their intention of putting a stop to the toll business. They borrowed Mr. Woods' axe with which to do the work. They broke the handle and readily paid the owner twenty cents to buy a new one. None of the men wore masks, nor were any of them recognized by the gate keeper. Mr. Wood says they went about their work in a businesslike way and had a leader who was addressed as "Cap." He inquired what time of night it was and upon being told, said he guessed they "would have time to get back to Frankfort by morning." One of the gang addressed Mr. Woods as "Uncle Paddy," which led him to believe that some of them at least did not live very far away. The same night the gate on the Gratz pike, just beyond, was cut down, as were also four gates beyond Monterey on Cedar Creek. The outrages were continued Monday night, for at an early hour the raiders—whether the same as of Saturday night is not known—visited the gate near Owenton, kept by Mrs. Kemper, on the Monterey pike, and cut the pole. The gate kept by Mrs. Perry, on the Georgetown pike a mile and a half from Owenton, was treated in the same way, as were the gates father on. It is our information that every gate in the Eastern part of the county has been demolished. Threats have been made that the work of destruction would be kept up until not a gate will be left in the county. For the good name of our people it is to be hoped that this work of devastation and outlawry has come to an end.

News was received yesterday that the gates on the Sweet Owen pike were broken down Tuesday night.—Owen Herald.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson.
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup'nt of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, am S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M. Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W Lester.
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill. Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George; Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; I. F. Dempsey, H. S. Irwin. Secretary-Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday; Add Riddell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896
AT WALTON, KY.

Three Courses of Study to choose from: English, Scientific or Classical,

Tuition per month for Higher Branches	$3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches	2.50

We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2.00 for five days.

Teachers { Mrs. S. H. MYERS.
CHAS. F. PRIOR.
Rev. S. H. MYERS.

Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.

EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.

J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky.
OSCAR GAINES Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. COWEN, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administrator's Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of Abel Beemon, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

S. W. ADAMS, Adm'r.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
—o—
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON.
...... DENTIST, ...
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
MAIN OFFICE—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

W. E. VEST. B. L. RICE.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated. ☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)

CAPITAL,	$30,000
Surplus and undivided profits,	17,000

—)o(—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations, Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY

CAPITAL PAID IN	$50,000
SURPLUS,	$ 2.600

Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE
STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:50 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 2:50 pm; 4:30pm.
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 8:30 am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm. Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5:15 pm.
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:10 am; 10:00 am; 12:40 pm; 3:00 pm; 4:45 pm.
ELIHU ALDEN, Master.

THE RECORDER.
W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher
BURLINGTON, : : : KY.

IN THE SHADOW.

We walk within the shadow, and we feel its thickening fold
That wraps us round and holds us close, a cloak against the cold;
The day is growing somber, and the joyous light has fled,
And beneath our feet the road is rough, and clouds are overhead.

We sit within the shadow, and in that silence dumb,
To us in softened echoes remembered voices come;
Dear eyes that closed in slumber once, dear hands that straightened lie,
Awaken tender yearnings as the day wanes slowly by

We rest within the shadow, though the hurrying people go
On errands swift for gold and gain, beyond us, to and fro;
We have no care for transient things; we wish no more to strive
As once we did; we rest, we dream, we feel but half alive.

Our resting and our waiting, and our plodding on the way,
With the sunshine of the past casting darkness on to-day,
With no caring for the future, while the heartache holds us fast,
With no thought for any pleasure—ah! 'tis well these cannot last.

For the shadow always lifts, and the sunlight glows again;
There are sudden gleams of brightness, sweet clear shining after rain;
And we gird ourselves for action, strengthened we arise and go
From the sanctuary outward, where the feet tramp to and fro.

Life must have its sometime sorrow, but the years that drift along
Touch the minor chords but seldom; there are spaces blithe with song.
Sometimes we must face the shadow, where the wind blows keen and cold,
But the shadow fades at dawning, and the east is flecked with gold.

—Margaret E. Sangster, in Harper's Magazine.

THE NEW TENANT.

"NOW, Mary, I have spoken!" Mr. Peel threw himself back in his chair as if that settled the matter once for all.

"I heard you, dear," sweetly responded Mrs. Peel; "and now, listen to me. I have accepted Herr Schmidt's offer, and he will enter the adjoining house as tenant to-morrow."

"Not if I know it, madam!" shouted Phineas, jumping from his chair and bringing his fist down on the table. "Do you think I am going to have Rhyd cottage turned into a menagerie, and my garden into a howling wilderness? The house may remain tenantless forever, but Herr Schmidt and his monstrosities shall not enter there."

"Herr Schmidt, my dear, is merely a naturalist."

"I know it!" stormed Phineas. "I've heard of these plaguey naturalists before. I've no desire to come downstairs some fine morning to find a ring-tailed monkey sitting on the window sill, acting as referee while the kangaroos and crocodiles play leapfrog over the flower beds. No, madam! No naturalists for Phineas Peel!"

Pretty Mrs. Peel never allowed her temper to get the better of her. She laughed softly at her husband's fears, and did not alter her determination in the least.

"Has it slipped your memory, Phineas," she asked, "that Rhyd cottage is a portion of my property? If I choose to let it to a naturalist—even though he be a foreigner—I am perfectly justified in doing so."

This was true enough, and Phineas calmed down.

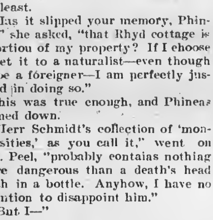
"Herr Schmidt's collection of 'monstrosities,' as you call it," went on Mrs. Peel, "probably contains nothing more dangerous than a death's head moth in a bottle. Anyhow, I have no intention to disappoint him."

"But I—"

"You will treat him with the respect due from one gentleman to another, Phineas," broke in Mrs. Peel. "And now, dear, we'll dismiss the subject."

Phineas Peel was—though at times he doubted it—a lucky fellow. He had carried off a young and handsome woman from a host of suitors.

Why Mary Marsden had chosen to bestow her hand and fortune on such a plain, everyday sort of fellow as the diminutive Phineas Peel was always a mystery to her acquaintances. The wedding was an accomplished fact before her relatives had recovered from the shock caused by the announcement of her engagement.



NO NATURALISTS FOR PHINEAS PEEL.

Mary appeared to be happy enough, too. Phineas, taken as a whole, was not a bad sort of fellow. He was jealous, that was true, but his wife came to regard that as an extra proof of his devotion.

Had the proposed tenant of Rhyd cottage been an aged, decrepit, broken-down old man, Phineas would have stretched out the right hand of fellowship. But alas! Herr Schmidt was young and handsome—far too handsome, Phineas thought.

"Very well, Mary," said Phineas, taking his hat from the peg and making for the door; "you have overruled me as usual, and must be prepared for the consequences. In less than a week we shall have the house and garden overrun with every conceivable variety of reptile—from the beastly lizard to the boa constrictor."

And Phineas stalked indignantly forth with the merry laughter of his wife ringing in his ears.

II.

A month or more had passed, and so far the fears of Phineas had proved to be groundless. Herr Schmidt's "monstrosities" had been kept well within bounds, and as yet Mr. Peel had not seen so much as a strange caterpillar in his garden, which never looked better.

However, he was not happy. He had taken an aversion to the new tenant from the first, and would never be satisfied until he had got rid of him.

"Confound the fellow," muttered Phineas one evening, as he sat on an upturned bucket behind the peasticks, "he's prowling about on the other side of the hedge again. Hope he won't catch sight of me, for I'm about tired of his oily tongue and eternal smile. Hullo! what the deuce is the meaning of this?"

Down the garden path tripped Mrs. Peel. The naturalist was evidently expecting her, and greeted her with a smile that almost brought tears into the eyes of the furious Phineas.

"Goot efening," he said. "You vos joost a leetle late!"

It was evident that this was not the first chat indulged in over the boundary hedge. Though Phineas strained his ears, he could not catch the drift of the conversation. Like a flash he remembered that Mary had often of late taken a stroll in the garden at dusk. Was this the explanation?

Phineas had been glaring at the couple from behind the peasticks for ten minutes or so, when he saw his wife take a rosebud from his favorite tree and hand it over the hedge with a charming smile to the delighted Herr Schmidt. Then, with a pleasant "Good night," Mrs. Peel tripped lightly into the house.

"Vi[illegible]—villain!" hissed Phineas, savagely jumping from his seat and shaking his fist after the retreating figure in the next garden, "I'll pay you out for this."

The rage of Mr. Peel was something to be remembered. Nothing but blood, he vowed, would obliterate his wrongs. But he would be cautious. He would smile and smile and murder while he smiled. Seizing a peastick he tragically buried it in the heart of an unoffending cabbage, and played havoc with a stately row of sunflowers.

Half an hour later Mary saw him take down a huge old-fashioned duck gun from the hook in the hall.

"There's a German vulture in the neighborhood," he volunteered, impressively, "and I'm going to bag him at the first opportunity."

However, as nothing short of an earthquake would have induced the old gun to go off in any circumstances—and Phineas had made assurances doubly sure by dropping in the shot first and powder afterward—the "vulture" in question was not likely to be seriously damaged, and Mary contented herself with expressing a hope that her husband would not hurt himself.

On the following evening Phineas took up his old position in the garden, with murder in his heart. Herr Schmidt, however, did not put in an appearance. After waiting some time, Phineas reentered the house and reared his duck gun up in the hall in a conspicuous position.

He had almost decided to run up to town and consult his brother John, the detective, with a view to having the movements of Herr Schmidt watched, when he was startled by the click of the letter box.

A scrap of paper lay on the mat. Picking it up, Phineas glanced at it, turned deadly pale, then hurried into the garden. Scribbled in lead pencil on dirty paper was the following:

"Peel has discovered everything. We have not a moment to lose and must clear out to-night. The front door is unsafe. Will meet you at the back—10:30 sharp."

There was no signature.

"Good gracious!" ejaculated Phineas, after reading the note for a third time. "I'd no idea matters had gone so far. Oh, yes, Mr. Schmidt," he added grimly —"I'll meet you at 10:30 sharp."

III.

It was about 10:45, and raining heavily. Phineas Peel, seated on a wall overlooking the back of Rhyd cottage, with his duck gun laid across his knees, was beginning to feel uncomfortable.

"The note said 10:30," he muttered. "It must be after that time now. What's that?"

Phineas had caught the sound of heavy feet moving cautiously over the gravel. He grasped his gun and peered into the gloom, but could distinguish nothing.

Suddenly he heard voices, evidently at the front of the house. He was about to quit his position, under the impression that Herr Schmidt was leaving by the front door, after all, when one of the back windows was cautiously raised and the lithe form of the naturalist dropped lightly to the ground.

Creeping along the side of the wall on which Phineas lay, he presented an excellent mark. Mr. Peel, however, could not bring himself to shoot a man down in cold blood. He would give him a chance.

"Stop, you scoundrel!" he shouted.

The effect of the challenge was scarcely what Phineas had anticipated. Herr Schmidt darted forward and seized the barrel of the gun.

He was much the stronger of the two, and Phineas was pulled from the wall in a twinkling. Lying on the broad of his back on the gravel in a half-dazed condition, he saw the tall form of Schmidt standing over him with the gun raised.

"Keep your tongue still, you fool," he hissed, "or I'll brain you. Now, quick, help me over the wall."

Phineas hesitated, but the threatening attitude of the other induced him to rise. However, he had no intention of giving in.

Obeying his instructions, he caught hold of Schmidt's foot to give him "a leg up." Before the naturalist could grip the top of the wall, however, Phineas saw his opportunity.

Bracing himself for the effort, he exerted all his strength and pulled Schmidt bodily from the wall. He fell flat on his face, and before he could recover himself Phineas jumped on his back and seized him around the throat, emitting a yell that would have done credit to a Sioux Indian.

The next moment Phineas was dragged off from behind and found himself in the clutches of a burly member of the local police force.

Four or five others seized Schmidt, who struggled in vain to free himself.

"What am I arrested for?" gasped Phineas. "There's your man!"

Phineas would no doubt have been led off with the other prisoner but for the timely arrival on the scene of the last person in the world he had expected to see—his brother John!

"Here, what on earth is the meaning of all this?" he demanded, when, as the result of John Peel's interference, he found himself free.

John stayed behind a minute or two to explain that Herr Schmidt, the "naturalist," and Edward Harper—the notorious forger who had defied New Scotland Yard for the past six weeks—were one and the same.

"It was a smart dodge of Harper's," said John Peel, "and he might have got clear away but for that clever wife of yours, Phineas. Mary suspected the man from the first, and supplied me from time to time with valuable information. It is to her entirely that the credit of the capture is due. Tell her I'll call round and thank her myself to-morrow. By-the-by, the gang of which he was the head got wind of our intentions, and a man was dispatched with a warning. Harper doesn't appear to have received it."

"STOP, YOU SCOUNDREL."

Then Phineas began to understand things a little more clearly.

"I suppose this will be it," he remarked, producing the note and handing it to his brother. "You see, the messenger left it in the wrong door, and I—er—I thought I might as well see the fun."

For some little time after Phineas was of the opinion that he had made a fool of himself. Lately, however, he has taken a different view of the matter, and is never tired of relating how he literally "dropped on" Harper, the forger, alias Schmidt, the naturalist, next door.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

Another Mother and Man.

The truth of the adage about the hand that rules the world being the one that rocks the cradle is again exemplified, but this time not in the world of statesmanship, but in that of science. Nicola Tesla, who ranks with Edison in electrical invention, was, as a boy in Montenegro, full of mischief and also under the guidance of a remarkable woman—his mother. He once went by himself to a chapel in the hills back of his native town, and managed to get himself locked in it at night. A search was made for him, but there was no clew until, clear and sharp on the night air, rang out the tones of the chapel bell. Nicola was cold, nervous and hungry when found. On another occasion, when up to some boyish pranks, his mother suddenly appeared on the scene. He was so startled that he fell into a kettle of fresh milk, spoiling the milk and his clothes at the same time. Like many other men who have become famous along one line of usefulness, young Tesla was started in life at another line. His father wanted him educated for the church, but his mother encouraged his scientific tastes, and finally had her way. She was a woman of unusual ability, force of character and ingenuity. This last characteristic was developed in her embroidery, which was of artistic and original designs, and made her famous all through the part of Montenegro in which she lived. To his mother's love and influence Tesla attributes much of his manhood's success.—Harper's Round Table.

Afraid He Would Be Ruined.

When Spenser had finished his famous poem, "The Fairy Queen," he carried it to the earl of Southampton, the great patron of the poets of that day. The manuscript being sent up to the earl, he read a few pages and then ordered his servant to give the writer £20. Reading on, he cried in a rapture: "Carry that man another £20." Proceeding further, he exclaimed: "Give him £20 more." But at length he lost all patience and said: "Go turn that fellow out of the house, for if I read further I shall be ruined."—Chicago Tribune.

FRAUD IN BIRDS OF PLUMAGE

Brilliant Feathers on Show Birds Produced by Artificial Means.

Bird faking have been brought to perfection, indeed, when expert judges are unable to detect where imposition begins. A great deal of humbug is permitted to escape unrevealed at many of the best stores. Of prizes a handsome cinnamon-colored linnet received a lion's share, and the elegant bird was acknowledged a formidable rival. The songster had passed through many experienced hands and invariably came off with flying colors. It possessed as many first and second honors as feathers in its pinions and its perfect shade was the envy of the local fanciers.

But eventually a vigilant judge had his suspicions aroused, and the rumor escaped that the darling of the aviary was artistically doctored. Its form was believed to be nature's own molding, but the exquisite tint which had hitherto been the charm par excellence was decreed to be the work of a cunning dye. The secret out, the owner made a plain statement, and the dye went the rounds of inspection. It was a blonde preparation for the human hair, but the fancier had discovered that its virtues were not limited to the beautifying of hoary locks. The judge was a cute old fellow. He observed that he had noticed a resemblance between the hair of the fancier and the feathers of the bird, after which some of the latter were put to careful analysis.

A snow-wite bantam cock was at one time a conspicuous prize winner at some of the north county shows. Its points were, according to the rules of the show run, as near perfection as could be obtained. This ideal in white brought its lucky owner many substantial trophies and it was his proud boast that the superb creature paid the expense of his poultry yard, which, with its numerous houses and runs, were somewhat expensive.

The customary fall awaited his pride. Somebody discovered that the tail feathers betrayed not the elastic characteristic of this appendage. Examination published the fact that their brittleness was due to some bleaching preparation or chemical. The perfect bird had an imperfect plume, and the yellow shades on the large feathers had been bleached to the approved state of whiteness. After this discovery the fowl was ignominiously banished to the remoteness of a back yard, and the owner's name was canceled from the list of exhibitors.

Worthy of a better object was the exceeding care bestowed on the head and neck of a mallard. This drake was a worthy specimen of his class but his possessor deemed the feathers of head and throat to lack the metallic luster which imparts a beauty so striking to the flawless bird. In this case a luminous paint of extravagant composition was employed and the green feathers received that tint of gold and purple essential to undisputed magnificence. As the dye was perfectly fixed the drake passed successfully, and was awarded a second prize. Elated with success the fakist cheered his son unwisely, and betrayed his unscrupulousness while in a state of insobriety.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE CZAR'S POLICY.

He Has the Power to Make Turkish Massacres Impossible.

Will there be any change or will the powers content themselves with vigorous notes, demands for indemnity for the outrages on foreigners and the destruction of foreign property and lift not a finger to secure the punishment of the real criminals? Much will depend upon the course to be taken by Russia. The recent death of Prince Lobanoff is a matter of international significance. More than any other one man has he been identified with the policy of non-intervention in Turkish matters, in pursuance of his greater policy of Panslavic aggrandizement. To him, Turks, Kurds, Armenians, Nestorians were simply so many pawns, all of equal value, to be sacrificed or advanced, according to the immediate crisis in the game. There has not appeared in the whole conduct of the Russian foreign office a single hint that the terrible oppression under which the non-Greek Christians of Turkey suffered was regarded with any degree of abhorrence. Certainly no Russian official has lifted a finger to relieve them. From various sources it has become public that the czar and czarina have recently been apprised of the real nature of Turkish oppression and massacre and have been much moved by the sentiment of the rest of the Christian world in regard to Russia's responsibility for them. It is said that the czar sought to modify Prince Lobanoff's stern, unbending policy, but failed. He has now an opportunity to inaugurate a different one. If he does not, then the full weight of censure from every Christian nation of the world should rest upon him. He has the power to make such massacres an impossibility. If he does not exercise that power he will be held responsible for them.—Chicago News.

Grape Cultivation in China.

French viniculturists are somewhat disturbed by the reports that come from Manchu of the enormous attention that is now given to the cultivation of grapes in northern China. Heretofore these have been raised only for table use. In 1893 the first attempts were made to manufacture from them wine of an ordinary quality and a superior sort of champagne. The results have been so satisfactory that a foreign house determined to secure from the Chinese government a monopoly of the manufacture of wines from the vineyards of Manchu. By an imperial edict this right has been awarded for a long term of years, and a distinguished European expert has been sent to China to take charge of the large plant in process of building in the grape district. French viniculturists are worried by what they consider may be a formidable "yellow invasion" of their market.—N. Y. Times.

THE PLEASING SIDE.

It Is Not Well to Be Too Plain in Telling the Truth.

Some people seem to be very much afraid of telling pleasing truths. They apparently consider that to be honest they must be disagreeable, and that to be frank means only to be brutal as well as callous to the suffering which the frankness may cause.

Now there are numerous ways of speaking the truth, as well as numerous ways of looking at it. To be truthful need not mean to be unpleasing. We can be honest without making ourselves hated and shunned because of our outspoken candor. Unpleasant truths may be often suppressed without loss of rectitude, or, if compelled to speak them, we may persistently show the "pleasing side," and leave the hearer to find out for himself, if he must know it, that there is an unpleasing side as well.

For there is always more than one side to a truth. Two sides, at least, can be seen by the most simple-minded person, and those whose minds are complex can readily see many sides to the same truth. To illustrate: "You are shorter than the mantel-shelf!" said a disagreeable big sister, in a disagreeably triumphant tone, to an aspiring small boy.

"Well," retorted the boy, "that is only because the mantel-shelf is made higher than I am now!"

"Your hand is too big for your glove!" comments the candid friend.

"Oh, no; she has only made a little mistake in buying her gloves a size too small," is the way the peace-maker says the same thing.

Now, if it is true that there are as many as two sides even to an unpleasant truth, and that one side is always more pleasing than another, why, the question may be asked, is it not equally honorable to choose always the pleasantest side to present to our friends? And if it should come about that we are more loved than hated because we practice as well as preach the doctrine, why must we be called flatterers and time-servers for our pains? More than this: There are truths which are so joyous and lovely that it is only a gladness to speak them—truths which seem to have no unpleasant side at all. And if it is incumbent on us to speak truth, does not this law include the truth which is good alike to speaker and hearer as well as the truth at which we hesitate and shrink from displaying? Our friend's smile is cordial and heart-warming. Her taste in dress is perfect. Her house is a model of neatness. Is it not truthfulness to assure her of the fact? And do we not deprive the world of a joy we could impart when we do not hasten to speak the pleasant truth that presents itself to our minds?

It may be that happiness is a quality of which we might obtain a larger share than is usual if we determined to discover the pleasing side of the most unpleasing truth, and to reflect that side only.—Harper's Bazar.

A CLINCHING ARGUMENT.

How a Creole Viewed the Question of a Property Qualification.

The proposal to have a property and educational qualification for voters was defeated in Louisiana some time ago. The creoles voted against the proposed amendment to the constitution almost to a man. The action of a large number of them can readily be understood when one considers an incident which occurred one day before the election at the democratic headquarters in New Orleans.

A tall, lean creole went to the headquarters and asked to have the question at issue explained. One of the party leaders explained, and when he had finished the visitor said: "I haf a cousseen, Alphonse. He no read, no write. He vote?"

"Has he any property?" asked the man who had explained things.

"Non. Oh! Oui. A mule, Jacques."

"How much is the mule worth?"

"Two hundred dollars."

"Alphonse can vote," said the democratic leader.

The tall creole was silent awhile, and stood with his eyes fastened in meditation on the floor. At length he began again:

"I haf a cousseen, Jean Baptiste. He no read, no write. He vote?"

"Does Jean Baptiste own anything?"

"Rien."

"Not even a mule?"

"Non."

"Then Jean Baptiste can't vote."

"Alphonse vote?"

"Yes. Alphonse owns a mule."

"If ze mule die—Alphonse vote?"

"No."

The creole again fixed his eyes on the floor, and for a long time was silent. Then he looked up and cried:

"Ah! I see! Ze mule vote. Me no want zat 'mendment."—N. Y. Sun.

Grape Sweetmeats.

Allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar to one pound of fruit. The Isabella or some dark, rich grapes are the best for this. Weigh the fruit. Squeeze the pulp from the skin of each grape with the fingers, throwing the pulps into one bowl and the skins into another. When you have accomplished this, put the pulp into a porcelain-lined kettle on the fire. Heat gradually, and then stew gently for about 15 minutes, until, by testing, you will find that the seeds come out easily. Turn them into a coarse sieve and press all the juice and pulp through this, extracting all the seeds. Now put pulp and skins back on the fire in the same kettle and when boiling add the sugar, and continue to boil for about 30 minutes. It should be a rich, dark color by this time, and quite thick; if it is not, boil 15 minutes longer. Put in glass jars when cold and set away for winter use.—Ladies' World.

Couldn't Prove It.

Guest—You say this is oyster soup? I don't believe it.

Waiter—Yes, it is, boss. If you'll wait a minute, sah, I'll bring you the oyster we made it from.—Harlem Life.

HUMOROUS.

—She—"Why do you love me, dearest?" He—"Er—why—because you are not like other girls, for one reason." She—"Who were the other girls?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

—Open to Discussion.—He — "They say that ill-temper will make a woman grow ugly in appearance." She—"More likely it is the other way. Losing her looks will make a woman grow ill-tempered."—Indianapolis Journal.

—"What is the matter with the dinner, Mary?" asked Mrs. Hicks, impatiently. "It's an hour late." "Yez said to have cold roast beef for dinner, ma'am; it's cookin' it's been up to twinty minutes ago."—Harper's Bazar.

—Bigson—"I once possessed a splendid dog, who could always distinguish between a vagabond and a respectable person." Jigson—"Well, what's become of him?" Bigson—"Oh, I was obliged to give him away. He bit me."—Tit-Bits.

—The Lost Adjective. — Count Le Frnug (rapturously)—"Zere is only vun vord in ze Eenglish language to deser-r-ribe your beauty, Mees Goldrox." Miss Goldrox—"Oh, count!" Count Le Frnug—"And unforchunntely I half forgotten vat ett ees."—Harper's Bazar.

—Richard—"They say that kissing is dangerous. Do you believe it?" Robert—"It is when any third person happens to see you. It is more than likely if that woman over there had not been witness to a transaction of that kind I should not have been her son-in-law."—Boston Transcript.

—Counsel for the Defense — "You have heard the testimony of Mr. Brown for the prosecution. Now, did you ever hear Mr. Brown's reputation for truth and veracity questioned?" Witness—"Not directly; but he has a baby at his house, he owns a dog and rides a bicycle, and he is an amateur fisherman." Counsel—"That will do, sir." Counsel for the prosecution—"We do not care to cross-examine the witness, your honor."—Boston Transcript.

OLD BUILDINGS IN SARDINIA.

The Mystery of Their Construction Not Yet Penetrated.

For centuries past the ingenuity of learned men has been exercised on the Noraghe of Sardinia, but to this day they have no more been able to discover the origin of these famous buildings than had the Romans before them. They were unable to say whether they were used for tombs or fire temples, for trophies of victory, for observatories, or merely for human dwelling places.

More than 3,000 of them have been counted in Sardinia, standing on artificial mounds 30 or 60 feet high, and measuring at the base 100 to 300 feet in circumference. They are usually in the shape of towers, built with immense blocks of stone roughly hewn with hammers. No cement is used in their structure, nor is there any inscription to indicate their origin.

A low entrance at one side leads into a long and lofty passage, communicating by a very low door with a domed chamber beyond. On either side of this small cells have been formed in the walls. A spiral staircase rising steeply from the dome leads to another but somewhat smaller chamber above, and again beyond this to the broken top of the Noraghe.

Nothing has been found within these buildings, and to this day their existence is a mystery.

In the same vicinity other buildings have been discovered which are no less puzzling to antiquaries. The general opinion is that they were built for the purpose of burying giants.

The most interesting archaeological mysteries of this country are the Denes of Essex and Middlesex. They are perpendicular shafts sunk in the earth, with lateral caves at the bottom, but the purpose for which they were dug out has never been discovered. It is possible, however, that they might have been used as granaries or even as places of refuge in time of trouble.

The Rathes of Kerry form an interesting study, the only conclusion that has been arrived at, however, being that they were inhabited at some remote age by a race of dwarfs. The district is covered with hundreds of green mounds, beneath which, when the earth has been removed, it is seen that there are tiny underground buildings.

A small opening, through which a man is barely able to crawl on his hands and knees, gives access to the inclosed and walled-in space beyond, which is divided into several smaller chambers. Each one communicates with the other by a small hole, a similar aperture being made in the outer wall for the purpose of ventilation. A rude fireplace is sometimes found in a remote corner, but no outlet beyond the holes for ventilation is provided for the smoke. Very little more than this is known about these mysterious habitations.—London Tit-Bits.

A Beneficent Lake.

According to Prof. Forel, of Lausanne, the Lake of Geneva, lying in the deep valley between the Alps and Jura mountains, performs a remarkable work for the benefit of man. During the summer its waters store up a great quantity of heat, which is slowly radiated into the air in the course of the following autumn. Thus the freezing currents descending from the snow-topped mountains around are warmed and tempered, and the atmosphere along the shore of the lake is maintained at a moderate temperature. The excellence of the grapes which produce the celebrated white wines of this region is thought to be largely due to the influence of the lake upon the condition of the atmosphere. But the remote descendants of the present inhabitants will experience quite a different state of affairs, for Prof. Forel says that in 64,000 years the river Rhone will have turned the lake into a broad plain, by means of the soil it is constantly carrying down from the mountains.—Youth's Companion.

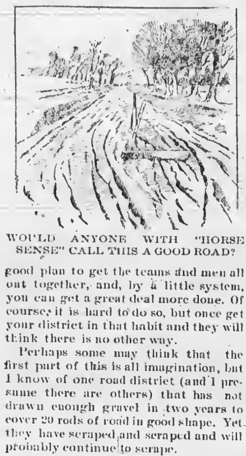
AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

HOWL FROM MICHIGAN.

This Man Pleads Eloquently for Substantial Gravel Roads.

I want to make a small howl in regard to road-making. I do not suppose it will do any good, but it will relieve my mind. This, as we all know, is the season for the farmer to go out with the new road machine and scrape the sod along the side of the road into the middle of the same and call it a road.

It is very nice for a few weeks, and then comes a little rut here and another there, so that by the time the winter sets in we have a muddy, rutty road to ride over. And it is not a few rods, either, for a road district can do a mile or two of it in the time required to "work on the road." Now, why cannot they work, say, 20 or 30 rods with the road machine, make a good, wide roadbed, and then draw on good gravel, not sand? Almost every district has a bank of gravel within its limits. If not on the road, go back on the farm. If the farmer is a good, generous, free-hearted man he will give it to his own district. If not, cancel his road-work for the gravel. He certainly should be willing to do that. It is a good plan to get the teams and men all out together, and, by a little system, you can get a great deal more done. Of course, it is hard to do so, but once get your district in that habit and they will think there is no other way.



WOULD ANYONE WITH "HORSE SENSE" CALL THIS A GOOD ROAD?

Perhaps some may think that the first part of this is all imagination, but I know of one road district (and I presume there are others) that has not drawn enough gravel in two years to cover 20 rods of road in good shape. Yet they have scraped and scraped and will probably continue to scrape.

Anyone who has driven 50 miles with a horse knows that when he gets on a gravel road he gets on a good road. It is very seldom that you see a railroad company drawing sod, sand and clay to ballast their road.

If the proof of the pudding is in the eating, the proof of a good road is in its smoothness and lasting qualities, and a well-made gravel road will knock out a sod, sand and clay road every time.—Cor. Michigan Farmer.

ROADS ARE IMPROVING.

Continued Agitation Is Beginning to Bear Good Fruit.

From scores of localities in every corner of the land comes the cheering message: "Our roads are better than they have been." And the same thing holds true of town and city streets.

It is very clear to an intelligent observer in a position to broadly view the field that more and better road-building is being done this year than has been in any past year.

The agitation for improved highways has begun to produce practical results. The people are getting their feet on the ground, and are materializing the worth of their theories regarding good roads.

It is pleasant to note that the people everywhere appreciate the many advantages to be gained from improved highways. Every mile of good road makes it easier to secure more of the same sort. The example is contagious.

Even in localities where no work for the betterment of roads has begun, there has been created a dislike for mud that will result in its early disappearance.

When the people of a community get sufficiently tired of poor roads they mend them. A few wheelmen, if they are live members of the L. A. W., can so point out the disadvantages of mud that many others will unite with them in working for good roads and clean streets.

Everybody wants good roads when their attention is called to the matter. With some one to act as a leader they will follow. Pick out just the right sort of a man, and put him in charge of your streets and highways, and he will make it more of a pleasure and of greater profit to reside in his neighborhood.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

DAIRY SUGGESTIONS.

Watering is as important as feeding.

Prepare now to winter the best, and make meat of the rest.

A cow's biography is expressed, not in good deeds, but in quarts of milk.

Cows which give a large quantity of yellow milk are not always the best butter cows.

Smoking an old pipe where there is milk or butter, is first-rate evidence that the smoker ought not to be in the dairy business.

Every time you swear at a cow she makes you pay for your ill manners. Every time you kick her you kick pennies out of your pocketbook.

Fine butter will always sell readily at a profitable price, while poor butter fails to find a customer and loses in quality daily, and in the end makes a loss to everyone who has anything to do with it.

Nothing will spoil a cow, or cows, quicker than a man with a bad temper—one that has the smell of brimstone on his breath. There is as much room for improvement in farmers as in the cows they keep.—Colman's Rural World.

SETTING FRUIT TREES.

Some Things to Be Considered When Starting an Orchard.

It often proves to be a perplexing matter where to set an orchard. There are a great many things to be considered, and each farmer must do this for himself. All that anyone else can do is to give some of the leading principles upon which success depends. If possible, fruit trees should be placed where they will be protected by a woods or a hill, but if such cannot be had a windbreak should be supplied (I would use for a windbreak evergreen trees set in zigzag rows and but a few feet apart). Avoid placing trees where they will be exposed to high winds, or early and late frosts in the fall or spring. Often through neglect of this whole orchards are ruined.

The nature of each variety should be studied and those that thrive best in dry soil should be placed on such ground, and those that require moist soil should be placed where there is no liability to drought.

Some farms are not well adapted for the production of fruit, but can be greatly helped by manuring, draining or cultivating. Fruit trees should be placed as near the house as possible, as they are more apt to get the proper care there than if they are at a distance. Care should be taken not to place them where they will cut off all views of the farm, and where they will be in the way in harvesting your grain. Upon some farms it seems as though an effort was made to shut off from view every bit of landscape and every nice building within range of human vision, thus making the home unattractive.

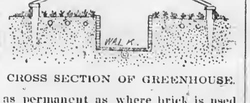
If your orchard should be along a public highway, do not place your most delicious fruit next to the road, as in that case you will have plenty of help to gather it. There are people who have no regard for the rights of property.

It is time for those wishing to set trees this fall to order them and select the places they are to occupy. Always bear in mind that an old tree requires more ground than a young one, and place them accordingly.—M. L. Miller, in Ohio Farmer.

SIMPLE GREENHOUSE.

Unique in Its Arrangement of Benches and Easily Constructed.

The illustration shows a cross section of an easily constructed and very serviceable greenhouse. It is unique in its arrangement of benches, these being on the ground, thus retaining heat and moisture much better than a thin layer of earth upon a raised wooden bench. The walk is a trench dug out between the benches, cemented and having a line of tile beneath it to secure perfect drainage. The sides of the walk can be bricked up, or boarded, as preferred, the latter method, of course, not being as permanent as where brick is used. The walls of this greenhouse are very low, just allowing the eaves to clear the ground satisfactorily, so that snow will not lie upon the glass. Pipes are indicated in the solid benches for use in sub-irrigation, if this plan of watering is desired. The heating pipes are suspended over the benches, as in the ordinary greenhouse. The same construction could be used in a three-bench greenhouse, in which case two walks would have to be dug, leaving a solid bed between them. In this case, the two roofs would have to be supported by a purlin plate, and uprights. One can work out the details to suit his own circumstances. Where cedar posts are used as a foundation, it would be necessary to heavily mulch the ground just outside the walls to keep the frost out of the ground adjacent to the solid benches, as frost there would render the maintaining of heat in the benches much more difficult. A solid foundation is, of course, preferable.—Webb Donnell, in Orange Judd Farmer.



CROSS SECTION OF GREENHOUSE.

THE BERRY INDUSTRY.

Profitable Only Where the Local Market Is Fairly Good.

It is being demonstrated that the ordinary farmer who has no local markets for berries cannot make much money growing them. Shipments to city markets have been proving very disappointing, owing to the fact that many have undertaken to help out farm incomes by producing from one to five or more acres of berries, and city markets are deluged with stock of ordinary quality. Berries must be sent by express to insure prompt delivery, and the charges for carriage often appear exorbitant. Whether this be true or not, the charges are out of all proportion to the receipts, and when crates, boxes and picking are paid for out of the receipts from the commission merchant, not infrequently nothing remains for the grower. Except for experienced horticulturists, the only safe market for the berry-grower to-day is a local one. If there is a home demand, or if one can be created in a community or near-by town, berries pay well; but beyond this there is in this branch of horticulture no outlet for the farmer who wants to get away from staples.—Farm and Fireside.

The Proper Use of Quinces.

It is rather a curious fact about the quince that this fruit is less used by itself than as an accompaniment for other fruits. Apples, and even pears, are much improved by having some quinces mixed with them when cooked or canned. Sweet apples, mixed with one-third their bulk of quinces, make very good pies. There are some kinds of pears, like Bartlett and Seckel, that are sweet, and when canned they become almost tasteless. A few quinces put up with them greatly improves the flavor.—American Cultivator.

THE DRAWING-ROOM.

How to Make the Company Room Cheerful and Attractive.

The term drawing-room, formerly the room in which company withdrew from the dining-room, is a much more appropriate term in its origin than the more common parlor, which was the room in which the sisters of the old nurseries met to gossip and parley. It has been a practice of late to decry the necessity of a separate room in an ordinary dwelling house for the reception of company. In a large house, where there are plenty of servants to look after the house and control the depredation of children, there is really less need of a special room than in a plainer home where the mother and housekeeper does her own work. The plea which some such housekeepers make, that they must have one room that is kept in order, free from the inroads of dust, and which will always be in readiness for the reception of the casual guest, is founded on reason. It is not possible for any woman with a large family, and one who does her own work, to keep every portion of the house in that ideal state of order which can be attained with sufficient and capable household help. She does not care to display the necessary makeshifts of her housekeeping to the critical eyes of casual friends. It is not necessary that this "company room" should be so elegantly furnished that the rest of the house is bare and uncomfortable. It may be simply and tastefully furnished at a comparatively small expenditure of money. A simple matting, with a few bright rugs of tastefully-chosen rag carpet, makes a more desirable floor covering than a gaudy tapestry Brussels. Any carpet in an apartment which is not in general use is likely to be attacked by moths. Cotton draperies are now found in most attractive colors in "velvets" and tapestries, as well as in sheer colored muslins and Madras cloths in stained glass effects.

These tapestries and hangings, in the designs of the English art decorators, are no more expensive than the showy, cheaply-made cheniles, and will last much longer, either as furniture covering or as drapery.

An open fire is an agreeable feature of a room of this kind. If one lives near the mountains, pine cones and knots of pine supply a beautiful fire, readily kindled when needed. If one lives near the seashore a supply of driftwood can be easily obtained, and it is unnecessary to rehearse the beauty of this opalescent flame. A few simple vases of bitter-sweet and fluffy swamp-grasses, ferns ripened to a golden hue and bleached a ghost-like white, supply the most beautiful decoration. Good casts of masterpieces are even cheaper than good photographs, and both are to be preferred to inferior oil paintings.—N. Y. Tribune.

PAT AND THE PRIEST.

The Former Found a Way Out of the Latter's Dilemma.

A clergyman was standing at the corner of a square in the city on Thanksgiving day about the hour of dinner, says the Philadelphia American, when one of his countrymen, observing the worthy father in perplexity, thus addressed him:

"Oh, Father O'Leary, how is your riverence?"

"Mighty put out, Pat," was the reply.

"Put out—who'd put out your riverence?"

"Ah; you don't understand; that is just it. I am invited to dine at one of the houses in this square and I have forgotten the name and I never looked at the number and now it is nearly six o'clock."

"Och, is that all?" was the reply. "Just now be aisy, your riverence; I'll settle that for you."

So saying, away went the good-natured Irishman around the square, glancing at the houses and when he discovered lights that denoted hospitality he rang the doorbell and inquired:

"Is Father O'Leary here?"

As might be expected, again and again he was repulsed. At length an angry footman exclaimed:

"No, bother on Father O'Leary! he is not here, but he was to dine here today and the cook is in a rage and says the dinner will be spoiled. All is waiting for Father O'Leary."

Paddy leaped from the door as if the steps were on fire and rushed up to the astonished priest, saying:

"All is right, your riverence; you dine at 2145 and a mighty-good dinner you'll get."

"Oh, Pat," said the grateful pastor, "the blessings of a hungry man be upon you."

"Long life and happiness to your riverence. I have your malady and only wish I had your cure."—Chicago News.

New Passementeries.

Many of the new passementeries are open-patterned like the lace insertions of the summer, and are, as a rule, with straight edges, so that they can be arranged as insertions over bright satin ribbon. Jacket bodices are trimmed with these passementeries and ribbons with charming effect. The short jacket effects still continue to appear, with the much-liked variation of making them double-breasted all or a portion of the way down. Many of these jackets are part of the waist, being attached to it permanently, and are most often of wool over silk, with sometimes a plastron placed at the throat covered with velvet.—St. Louis Republic.

Scalloped Mushrooms.

Peel a quart of button mushrooms, put into a saucepan with half a teacup of butter, a teacup of cream, half a teaspoonful of salt and saltspoonful of pepper, thicken with cracker meal and let boil down. Put this mixture in a baking-dish, cover the top with grated cracker and bits of butter. Set in the oven until brown.—Ladies' Home Journal.

NEW WOMAN VS. BULK.

How a West Side Girl Succeeded in Closing a Car Door.

He was so big he got in his own way. Not only was his stature exceptional, but his girth kept even stride therewith. He floundered onto a Madison street trailer the other morning and took station before the forward door. There he remained for a space. This is how it all happened, says the Chicago Chronicle.

She was young, pretty, black-haired and black-eyed. When the train stopped at one of the cross streets she stepped gracefully on that forward platform and encountered him of the bulk. He shambled a bit, but got in the way more than he would have done if he had retained his position. Finally, after much darting about, the girl succeeded in entering the car to escape the chill wind, which was blowing gayly.

The car was crowded and she was forced to stand. So she took her position immediately inside the door, while the big man maintained a similar position on the platform. He settled back against the door and by sheer weight inserted a portion of his anatomy in the doorway. It was cold, but the girl could not shut the door; he was too heavy. Then she thought and then she smiled.

She quietly adjusted her hat pin, gave the door a gentle pull and the big man nearly vaulted over the dashboard. He did not say anything nor did he upset more than half the other passengers on the platform. He fell off to the street, gazed wistfully at the receding car and started down the street. The girl burst into a hysterical laugh, bottled up suddenly and became preternaturally solemn. There was a button off the back of his coat. She put her foot over it as it lay on the car floor.

MAIMED MOTOR MAN.

Drawn Out of Shape By a Peculiar Disease—He Is Made Whole.

From the Crisis, East Liverpool, Ohio.

It is hardly necessary to introduce Mr. Robert Collingwood to the people of East Liverpool, Ohio, as everybody in that section of the country knows him, but to those who have not the pleasure of his acquaintance, let it be stated that he is a motorman on the East Liverpool and Wellsville Electric Street Railway, and he has the esteem and has had the sympathy of the community in which he resides, on account of a bone-racking disease, which baffled the skill of physicians. In fact for months he was thought to be the most unfortunate of men, as he lay upon his bed enduring excruciating agonies. His limbs were drawn out of shape, and he was looked upon as a hopeless cripple by his fellows, and as for his ever being able to put his hand to a lever again, such a thing was never expected.

While the Union was doing all in its power financially and otherwise for his benefit, to the astonishment of his friends, and especially of physicians, Mr. Collingwood began to mend and soon was able to report for duty at the power house of the company.

When asked to what he attributed his recovery he said: "To Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had really given up all hope of recovery, and had lost all faith in doctors and medicine, when I was induced to try Pink Pills, so procuring a box from our East End druggist, I began using them in a half-hearted manner, but in a very short time I began to notice an improvement in my condition. My pains became less frequent and severe, my appetite was better, and a wish to live supervened and ambition reappeared taking the place of the chronic exhaustion and resignation of despair which had hitherto marked my condition. I wanted to move about in the open air, and found to my delight that I was able to do so. My kidneys, which had been sluggish even in normal health, acted regularly. My digestion improved and my blood circulated as it had not done for years. I was soon able to walk to the drugstore and buy my own medicine, which it is needless to say was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I can now do my work and am getting stronger every day."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine in the sense that name implies. They were first compounded as a prescription and used as such in general practice by an eminent physician. So great was their efficacy that it was deemed wise to place them within the reach of all. They are now manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Med. Co.

A WAY OF ESCAPE.—"There is one good thing about foreign nobility, after all." "What is that?" "Why, when they come over here they can't compel us to associate with them."—Chicago Record.

KNICKERBOCKER—"Were you knocked speechless when you collided with that stone?" Bloomer—"No; but my wheel was knocked spokeless."—Norristown Herald.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI.		Nov. 2
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	2 10	@ 2 65
Select butchers	3 40	@ 4 60
CALVES—Fair to good light	5 00	@ 6 00
HOGS—Common	2 50	@ 3 00
Mixed packers	3 15	@ 3 25
Light shippers	3 30	@ 3 35
SHEEP—Choice	2 25	@ 2 75
LAMBS—Good to choice	3 35	@ 3 85
FLOUR—Winter family	3 00	@ 3 35
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 81
No. 3 red		@ [illegible]
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 25½
Oats—No. 2		@ 19½
Rye—No. 2		@ 37
HAY—Prime to choice	10 25	@ 10 50
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@ 8 [illegible]
Lard—Prime steam		@ 4 20
BUTTER—Choice dairy	14	@ 18
Prime to choice creamery		@ 21½
APPLES—Per bbl	1 25	@ 1 50
POTATOES—New, per bbl	75	@ 1 00
NEW YORK
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 45	@ 4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@ 82¾
No. 2 red		@ 81½
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@ 31½
OATS—Mixed		@ 22½
PORK—New mess	8 50	@ 9 00
LARD—Western		@ 4 55
CHICAGO
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	73¼	@ 74¼
No. 2 Chicago spring		@ 70
CORN—No. 2	23¾	@ 24
OATS—No. 2		@ 18
PORK—Mess	7 10	@ 7 1[illegible]
LARD—Steam	7 10	@ 7 15
BALTIMORE
FLOUR—Family	3 90	@ 4 30
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2	76⅛	@ 76½
Corn—Mixed	29⅛	@ 29⅝
Oats—Mixed	26	@ 26½
LARD—Refined		@ 11 00
PORK—Mess		@ 10 85
CATTLE—First quality	3 50	@ 3 70
HOGS—Western	3 60	@ 3 80
INDIANAPOLIS
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@ 70
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 25
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 19½
LOUISVILLE
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 75
Corn—Mixed		@ 28
Oats—Mixed		@ 19
PORK—Mess	[illegible]	@ 8 50
LARD—Steam		@ 5 50

Personally Conducted Excursions to California

Via the Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line leave Chicago every Thursday. Comfortable Tourist Sleeping Cars, low rates, quickest time and the best of care and attention, are advantages secured by those who join these excursions. For full particulars apply to your nearest ticket agent, or address W. B. KNISKERN, G. P. & T. A., Chicago & North-Western R'y, Chicago, Ill.

MISS KEEDICK—"What an awful talker Mr. Gilley is, and how little he says when he speaks!" Miss Kittish—"The poor fellow is troubled with an impediment in his thoughts."—N. Y. World.

The Ladies.

The pleasant effect and perfect safety with which ladies may use Syrup of Figs, under all conditions, makes it their favorite remedy. To get the true and genuine article, look for the name of the California Fig Syrup Company, printed near the bottom of the package. For sale by all responsible druggists.

"THERE are no jokes like the old jokes,"
Said the humorist blithe and gay.
"And the jokes that now find favor Pleased the folks of another day."
—Philadelphia North American.

WE think Piso's Cure for Consumption is the only medicine for Coughs.—JENNIE PINCKARD, Springfield, Ills., Oct. 1, 1894.

TEACHER—"What is a straight line?" Pupil—"The picture of its own road which each company prints in the railroad map."—Boston Transcript.

WHEN bilious or costive, eat a Cascaret, candy cathartic, cure guaranteed, 10c, 25c.

"DOROTHY says she was disappointed in England." "Why was that?" "Things didn't look so English as she thought they would."—Chicago Record.

DISEASE DOES NOT STAND STILL.

Every one is either growing better or worse.

How is it with you?

You are suffering from

KIDNEY, LIVER OR URINARY TROUBLES.

Have tried doctors and medicine without avail, and have become disgusted.

DON'T GIVE UP!

Warner's Safe Cure

WILL CURE YOU.

Thousands now well, but once like you, say so. Give an honest medicine an honest chance.

Large bottle or new style smaller one at your druggist's. Write for free treatment blank to-day. Warner's Safe Cure Co., Rochester, N. Y.

A Cougher's Coffers

may not be so full as he wishes, but if he is wise he will neglect his coffers awhile and attend to his cough. A man's coffers may be so secure that no one can take them away from him. But a little cough has taken many a man away from his coffers. The "slight cough" is somewhat like the small pebble that lies on the mountain side, and appears utterly insignificant. A fluttering bird, perhaps, starts the pebble rolling, and the rolling pebble begets an avalanche that buries a town. Many fatal diseases begin with a slight cough. But any cough, taken in time, can be cured by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

More particulars about Pectoral in Ayer's Curebook, 100 pages. Sent free. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

"How happy could I be with either
Were the other dear charmer away."

Battle Ax PLUG

The ripest and sweetest leaf and the purest ingredients are used in the manufacture of "Battle Ax," and no matter how much you pay for a much smaller piece of any other high-grade brand, you cannot buy a better chew than "Battle Ax."

For 5 cents you get a piece of "Battle Ax" almost as large as the other fellow's 10-cent piece.

There's MONEY in it!

No business pays as well on amount invested as DRILLING WELLS with our modern machinery. "IT SUCCEEDS—THAT'S THE REASON!" LOOMIS & NYMAN, : TIFFIN, OHIO.

STEADY WORK WE PAY CASH WEEKLY and want men everywhere to SELL STARK TREES millions tested, proven "absolutely best." Superb outfits, new system. STARK BROTHERS, LOUISIANA, Mo., ROCKPORT, Ill.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

LIVE STOCK CUTS.

We will furnish duplicates of LIVE STOCK CUTS or any other Cut shown in any Specimen Book, at or below quoted prices for same.

A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO., 429 Elm Street, Cincinnati.

HAVE YOU TRIED YUCATAN?

SPARKLING DIAMONDS Latest Invention. Defies Detection and keeps brilliant. Big money for Agents. Sample Pin or Stud and terms, by mail on receipt of $1. UNION JEWELRY CO., 40 Decatur St., ALLEGHENY, Pa.

A. N. K.—E. 1629

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Nov. 4, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time	$1.00
Each additional time	.25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch	.50
☞Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered	$5.00.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

Neighborhood News.

Limaburg.

Born—To Rupert Brown and wife on the 30th ult., a bouncing boy.

Jeptha Tanner had a good horse to die one day last week.

Moses and Kirb Tanner put a new iron roof on the blacksmith shop, last week.

Erlanger.

Chas. W. Zmbiel was not seen in town for two days and a committee was appointed to find out the cause.—A bouncing boy arrived.

John Souther will leave for Georgetown Wednesday to take charge of another branch grocery there. Good luck to John, is the wish of our town.

The boys played a good many tricks Halloween eve., but the worst was done to Mr. Osborn's place, where they tore the palings from the fence. That is malicious.

Richwood.

Harry Soden is improving after a spell of fever.

Daniel Bedinger and wife spent a few days, last week, visiting in Ohio.

A very rare specimen of the silver fox has been discovered in Carpenter's woods.

Prof. W. E. Cook dismissed his school at Beaver Lick for two days this week.

Dr. B. A. Dulaney delivered several very eloquent speeches for the Democracy in Cincinnati, last week.

Bullittsville.

Mrs. Wash Watts has returned from Louisville.

Mrs. H. C. Duncan dined a number of friends, last Tuesday.

Miss Lutie Watts entertained a number of friends, last Thursday night.

Misses Zayda Gaines and Bernice Duncan are visiting in Indianapolis.

The C. W. B. M. of the Christian Church met last Saturday afternoon with a full attendance.

Miss Sadie Kirtley and Mr. Belfield Graddy were the guests of Miss Grace Grant, of Petersburg, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Sidney Blankenbecker, of Louisville, was paying his devotions to one of our fair daughters, last Saturday and Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Bullittsburg Church celebrated its first anniversary, last Saturday at the residence of Mrs. F. F. Kirtley.

Misses Lutie Watts, Bessie Cropper, Fannie Willis and Bertha Gaines and Messrs. T. G. Graves, Chester Davis, Will Gaines and Elmo Gaines composed a party that attended the matinee, last Saturday.

Walton.

The readers of this paper are presented with the "Roll of Honor" from Miss Kipp's room in the district school. Miss Lizzie says that the publication last month stimulated her pupils to such an extent that during the prevalence of the scarlet fever, when any of them were sent home they invariably went from the school house with tears running down their cheeks. The names are given as they appear on the roll call and precedence in the standing is not indicated by their placing on the roll, the wise young teacher preferring that all worthy of being enrolled should be considered as having an equal standing. Forty on the list shows well for a room with sixty scholars:

Katie Bentz,
Sina Richey,
Pauline Curley,
Walter Shafer,
Dora Lunsford,
Pauline Lunsford,
Francis Fisher,
Anna Baker,
Dlarence Lunsford,
Camron Shafer,
Ella Haley,
Carrie Campbell,
Rivolet DeMoisey,
Jesse McClure,
John McClure,
Clifford Sanders,
Clifton Botts,
Gladys Wilson,
Bertie Connelly,
Oscar Smith,
Gerald Huston,
Hallie Watson,
Claud Stephenson,
Alma Dahling,
Willie Duncan,
Clara Stephenson,
Clara Diers,
Emerson Crisler,
Georgie Grubbs,
Lula Jones,
Carrie Watson,
Arvey Florence,
Arthur Holden,
John Rex,
Della Stephenson,
Harris Watson,
Katie Bolington,
Roy Cluster,
Maggie Stephens'n,
Maggie Snow,
Lillie Durr,
Pearl McClure,
Stephen Durr.

The pupils of Walton academy met with their teacher on Friday evening at the school room, and had a very enjoyable social from 7 until 10 p. m. The event was one of several that are to be held during the school year. Music, marching, recitations by Prof. Prior, acting charades, and playing innocent games, constituted the programme, and all enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

In Saturday's game of base ball the Waltons defeated the Bracht club by a score of 44 to 22. Umpire—J. T. Booth.

Petersburg.

Noah Sebree, youngest son of Richard and Lydia Sebree, was born on Richland Creek, Owen county, Ky., June 27th, 1820. His father died when he was 10 years old and his mother was dependent on him more than any other for help. Young as he was she hired him out for $12 a year and at the end of the first year, after giving his mother one-half, he had saved $2.50 and a steel cap. At about 14 years of age, he came to his Uncle Reuben's, who lived on Woolper Creek, Boone county, in whose family he made his home till he found employment, which was not long.

March 11th, 1843, he was married to Helen M. Jarrell, youngest daughter of Zachary and Nancy Jarrell, who proved to be a faithful and true wife until her death July 22d, 1889. Through all these years of sunshine and shadow they labored and toiled and sacrificed until they had acquired a comfortable portion of earthly goods. They had also given their five sons ample opportunity for storing their minds with knowledge which had been denied them in their youth. In his early manhood he had formed the friendship of two companions especially, which grew stronger as the years went by—these were Messrs. Henry Snyder and Elijah Ryle. Really all his neighbors and acquaintances were his friends; but there was always felt a debt of gratitude to Mr. B. R. Gaines for special favors in financial matters.

Until within the last seven or eight years he had been an active farmer, but nearly ever since his second marriage, which was Nov. 26, 1889, to Mary A. Sebree, he has lived a quiet life in the town of Petersburg. In January, 1891, he was stricken down with a dreadful disease and his life was despondent of, but by the best medical treatment by Dr. J. M. Grant and nursing by D. M. Hewitt and others he was restored to comparative good health. Then again in August, 1894, he was thrown from a buggy and his left ankle broken. It was thought then surely recovery would be impossible, but his wonderful constitution and the best of treatment and nursing gave him a little longer lease of life.

His last days were spent in his humble home listening to the reading of the Western Recorder, a paper which he dearly loved and in social intercourse with kind, attentive friends. On account of his misfortunes his contributions to his church and other benevolent enterprises were interrupted which was a source of great regret to his liberal spirit.

He had been a member of Bullittsburg Baptist church for over 50 years and an honored deacon about 20 years.

No man loved peace more, nor did more to preserve it. It was appropriate therefore that he should request his family on the dying bed not to quarrel.

The immediate cause leading to his death, was the drinking of cold milk, which was followed by a child. After this it was plainly seen that the day of life would soon be over.

His pastor Rev. J. A. Kirtley visited him a few days before death and told him he would be glad to see him out to church the next Sunday. Referring to this conversation afterwards, he said, "I shall soon be in the assembly that never breaks up." Just before midnight, Oct. 30 1896, the spirit of the dear old father and grandfather, husband, friend and christian, returned to the God who gave it.

After an impressive and appropriate discourse by the pastor from the 23 Psalm, at 11 o'clock Sunday Nov. 1, the remains were followed by a large number of mourners to the Bullittsburg cemetery and committed to their last earthly resting place.

Gunpowder.

Boys, get your horns in readiness—a wedding soon.

Prof. S. J. Orem went home to vote for Bryan and free silver.

Mr. W. E. Orem, of Blumington, Ind. was in this neighborhood last week taking pictures.

G. W. Utz has put a new roof on his house, and is having a coat of paint put on. J. C. Hankins is doing the work.

Simie and Irvin Tanner attended a party at Karl Rouse's, last Saturday night. They report being in a very entertaining crowd, and had an excellent time.

J. G. Vaughn and wife, W. R. Tanner and family, E. G. Vaughn and family, R. O. Beemon and family, Alonzo Vaughn and wife, Legrand Utz and wife and J. W. Utz and family were visiting Henry L. Tanner's last Sunday, and in the evening prayer meeting was held at the above mentioned place, where a large crowd assembled to bid Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Vaughn farewell. They start for Canon City, Colorado, Nov. 3d, where they expect to make their future home. There are many friends who are very sorry to see them take their departure for they were very active in church affairs and the assistance will be very much missed.

The finest drove of cattle that passed through town for some time were 19 which James Rogers sold to J. M. Conner, at 4 cents a pound. They averaged 1694 pounds.

Lots of surprises turned up yesterday.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

CARROLL COUNTY
[Democrat.]

Diphtheria has shown itselp in different parts of the county.

Robert Luckett, a well known farmer, living near the Trimble line, was stricken with paralysis Wednesday.

It was an unusual thing. Many people living in one town loaded themselves with eatables, delicate and substantial, and took them to a preacher living in another town. That's what the members of Rev. O. M. Huey's church in Brooksburg did Wednesday. They came up here and literally overwhelmed Mr. Huey with surprise and good things. They spread a big dinner, too, right in his own house, and a merry and happy party it was.

There ought to be schools established in every county to teach the art of curing hams, bacon, etc. Take the two hams of the same hog, give one of them to a certain farmer to be cured, the other to another farmer for the same purpose, and in taste they will be as different as a turnip and a Pryor Red apple. Some of the best hams we have ever tasted were from the smokehouses of A. S. Lee, John Hanks, John S. Gullion, G. L. Dunn. We might name others. There is no reason why every person could not have just such sweet, tender, juicy meat as these men have, instead of the hard, dry, salty stuff that is too common in this country.

GALLATIN COUNTY.
[Independent]

Monday night, the residence of Jas. J. Ellis, in the Oakland neighborhood, was destroyed by fire, resulting from a defective flue.

Will S. Marshall, editor of the Weekly Three Links, and the Kentucky Craftsman, published at Lexington, was here yesterday soliciting subscriptions to his publications.

Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 27th, at 2:30 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Crouch, occurred one of the prettiest wedding of the season, when Miss Hattie Crouch became the wife of Dr. J. Sam Brown.

Gallatin county has the best tobacco crop that has been grown within its borders for ten years, and a good portion of it has been stripped and will soon be ready for inspection of the buyers. It is a "gilt edge" crop, planted early, fully matured, and housed without any damage whatever. Many other sections were bothered by the worms in the crop, but there were very few here.

Speaking of the wool interests in this county a gentleman remarked the other day, that owing to the low price of wool, that many sheep went unsheared in this county this year, the farmers not deeming it worth while. By the way, Bailey Furnish, the son of Harrison Furnish, is generally considered the champion sheep shearer of the county for a young man. When the season is here he makes a first class hand, and can shear from 55 to 75 sheep in a day. Considering that he is not yet a man his work is considered remarkable.

THE toll gate mobs are bent on destroying all the toll gates in Central Kentucky. A large number of gates have been demolished, and the work is still going on. So far no arrests have been made, nor is it claimed that any of the guilty persons have been recognized.

IT is claimed that an unknown ruined city, covering a space larger than the city of New York, has been discovered in Mexico. It has two temples and two great pyramids. The city is in the mountainous regions of Mexico, and the scientist who made the discovery has had taken 300 photographs of the ruins.

THERE was considerable talk about scratching Berry in this county; but the figures show that he ran only 32 votes behind, in a total Democratic vote of 2,299 in the county. In the Burlington precinct 11 voters put the cross in the square opposite the name of the first Democratic elector, and these eleven votes could be counted for that one only elector, when it is evident the voters intended to vote the straight ticket. Only one ballot was thrown out at the Burlington polls.

THE national campaign is over. It was one of the most remarkable in the history of this nation, and W. J. Bryan, the Democratic leader made a most wonderful race. The entire money power of the country was arrayed against him, but he took the field and made a heroic stauggle against Wall Street, syndicates and which wield a greater influence in the elections in this country than any principlpes ever yet embodied in a platform. The candidate who is supported by the money interests of the country can be backed as a winner every time.

Daniel Benton's liberation from Chester insane prison recently recalls one of the queerest cases ever tried in this State. Part of the evidence for the defense was given by a widow who mistook the accused for her dead husband, stuck to him all through his trial for making a false pension claim, and could hardly be brought to believe him an imposter even after he had been convicted.

William Newby lived in White county at the beginning of the war. He enlisted and was sent to the front. After an interval friends returned to White county and told Mrs. Newby her husband had been killed at the battle of Shiloh, and they had assisted at his burial.

A few years ago a man came to Mrs. Newby's home and persuaded her that he was Newby, that he had been wounded at Shiloh, had lost his mind and had wandered about the country ever since in search of his home and friends. He had come to himself after years of wandering and had returned to his home. The man her friends had seen buried, he said, was not Newby, but a man who resembled him.

Hope helped the widow's delusion and by her aid the man proceeded to establish his claim in other quarters. The authorities were not to be deceived, however, and when he applied for a pension they prosecuted him in the federal courts and proved that he was "Rickety" Dan Benton, a White county pauper and petty thief.

The trial occupied two weeks, and over 200 witnesses were summoned. Mrs. Newby declared throughout she believed Benton to be her husband, and her brother gave similar testimony. Benton was convicted, however, and sentenced to imprisonment.—Chicago Chronicle.

CROP AND STOCK.

George Bramblett's tobacco warehouse and the Christian Church at Bramblett burned Saturday night, with 450,000 pounds of tobacco belonging to Mr. Bramblett.

The farm of Brutus J. Clay in Madison, containing 280 acres, rented for next year for $1,015, $10 more than for this year.

Thomas Henry Clay, of Clark county, delivered last week to Jonas Wiehl, 355 head of cattle. They were bought about three weeks before at four cents per pound, and were considered an extra lot of cattle for the price.

In Jessamine, Thos. White bought 40 head of sheep at 54c per head and sold them at Versalles for $1.20 per head.

Cablegrams received from Bombay say that the drought continues with no signs of abatement and that the crop situation in India is daily becoming more serious.

Residence of Booker Robertson, in McLean county burned Thursday morning, and Mrs. Helon Howard, who was asleep in the house was cremated, as she failed to awaken in time to make her escape.

The handsome and costly barn of H. H. Southgate in the Highlands was totally destroyed by fire. All the contents of the barn, carriages, harness, feed &c., were totally destroyed. The barn was valued at $2,000 and the contents as nearly as much more. The barn and its contents were insured.—Kentucky Journal.

You have got it on us badly this time.

Democrats appear to be scarce in this country now.

No use of crying over spilt milk. Keep your heads up, Democrats.

According to the Republican claims McKinley will have at least 314 electoral votes. They claim Kentucky by 15,000. They concede to Bryan 101 electoral votes.

Livery Stable.

I am now fully equipped for taking of care Horses and Buggies, and keep GOOD RIGS FOR HIRE at reasonable rates.

W. A. CRIGLER,
Bromley, Ky.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Isn't It Reasonable?

We maintain that GOOD CLOTHING CAN BE BOUGHT BOR LESS MONEY at Our Store than elsewhere in this vicinity. Why do we say so? Because we know it to be a fact that

Our EXPENSES ARE THE LOWEST. BUYING IS THE CLOSEST. And

WE ARE SATISFIED WITH THE SMALLEST PROFITS.

You can not get something for nothing anyanywhere, but you can get get value for your money at

ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS
S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

STEPHENS & SCALES,

—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN—

Hardware, Cutlery, and Agrcultural Implements,

Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Steel Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,

BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE
AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.
No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.

Try the PETERSBURG FLOUR MILL.

FLOUR exchanged for WHEAT at all times and guaranteed. Call and get my prices on wheat. Also have on hand at all times

Mill Feed OF ALL KINDS,
AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

GOOD COAL IN THE YARD AT ALL TIMES,
☞Price, 10 cents per Bushel.☜

sept-24 BEN BELDEN, Petersburg, Ky.

BEST GOODS! LIVING PRICES!

Hardware,
Farm Machinery,
Fine Vehicles,
Harness.

HARRIS FITCH, Corner HIGH AND SHORT STREETS,
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

J. J. GEISEN,
HATTER AND GENT'S
FURNISHING GOODS,
615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.
Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

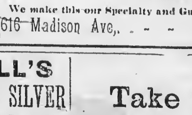
METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVERY COMPANY.
62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,
E. H. BAKER, Proprietor

Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.
Telephone 580.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs,
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.

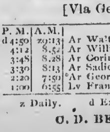
Prices Reasonable.

F. PIEPER,
Optician and Jeweler,



Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to

We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.
616 Madison Ave., - - - COVINGTON, KY.



FALL'S "FREE SILVER on TOP BADGE"
Is the Latest Out.
Send 12c to R. T. FALL, 737 Greenup St, COVINGTON, KY., and get one.

KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.
[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A. M.				A. M.	P. M.
d 4:50	z 9:13	Ar	Walton	Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8.52	Ar	Williamstown	Lv	8:32
3:48	8.28	Ar	Corinth	Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar	Sadieville	Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar	Georgetown	Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv	Frankfort	Ar	11:30	[illegible]

z Daily. d Except Sunday.

C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.

Taken up—A red heifer, 2 years old. Owner must pay for this notice and prove property.
J. L. FRAZIER, Union, Ky.

For sale—First-class Thinrind Boar 12 months old. W. F. GRANT.

Take Your COUNTY
PAPER.

Administrators Notice.

All persons having claims against the estate of Josiah Walton, deceased, are requested to present to us properly proven at the law office of D. E. Castleman, Burlington, Ky.

R. L. HUEY,
ERNEST WALTON, Adm'rs.

August 17th, 1896.

NOTICE—My graded Shorthorn Bull is making the season at James Delph's on the Florence pike, at $1.
W. H. ROUSE.

Local News.

Apples are few and cider scarce.

A good many paid their taxes Monday.

November made a good start in the way of weather.

The trees were not long in shedding their leaves this fall.

Diphtheria has caused many schools in this State to close.

The Governor has set apart November 16th as Arbor Day.

J. F. Blyth sold a cow and calf on the street Monday for $31 25.

Lots of leaves were burnt on the streets last Saturday morning.

The election had no effect on the price of rabbits—10 cents a piece.

The crowd commenced coming into town at an early hour Monday morning.

Figuring before election does not elect anybody; it is the voting that does the electing.

Boone was well represented at the Democratic rally at Lawrenceburg, last Saturday.

Rice & Vest sold, the W. E. Bristow farm of 100 acres to Mike Holtzworth for $3,600.

The minutes of the last session of the North Bend Association are now being distributed.

The wheat is getting a good start for the winter. At this time last fall it had not sprouted.

The young folks enjoyed a dance at R. H. Sandford's out on the Bellevue pike, last Friday night.

In this issue will be found the advertisement of C. Ross Lodwick, of Cincinnati. Geo. Blyth is his agent.

That commodious, new barn of Clinton Gaines, of Bullittsville, was built by R. C. Rice and Frank Hossman.

The weather this fall has been very favorable to the small grain, of which there was a considerable acreage sowed.

For Sale.—10 months old Poland China Boar—full blood and ~~never~~ has been used. H. C. Duncan, Bullittsville, Kentucky.

Marce Riddell sold his young horse to an Ohio gentleman, last week. Considering the times the price received was a fancy one.

Very little business appears on the docket for the next term of the Circuit Court, but it may come in more rapidly during this month.

A. W. Gaines will move, in a few days, to his farm in the Locust Grove neighborhood. The people down there will find him a good citizen and neighbor.

Mrs. Laura Martin got her face badly cut last Saturday evening by striking a barbed wire on a gate. She did not know the wire was at the top of the gate.

Constable Watson, of Walton, lodged Elizabeth Dickers in jail here last Wednesday morning, to lay out a fine for assault and battery. She has a young baby.

John Acra, from down on Middle Creek, brought in Monday, a monstrosity belonging to the Irish potato family. It was a cluster of large and small potatoes.

It will take a few days for the election excitement that has been growing for the past few months, to die out, and for the people to get settled down to business again.

J. J. Berkshire delivered a lot of fruit trees here last Monday. The people of this county buy a great many fruit trees, and there are many good orchards throughout the county.

The election is over and we hope our correspondents will now furnish a nice lot of neighborhood items each week. The neighborhood news is the best feature of all local papers.

Ezra Reuse, of Limaburg, brought to this office Monday, some of the finest Milan apples we ever saw. They were so large that many doubted their being of that variety, but the flavor proves them genuine.

Dameron & Major, dentists, 527 Race Street, Cincinnati. E. P. Dameron formerly of Newport; G. R. Major, formerly with Woodward & Major. Mr. E. P. Dameron will be in Burlington the first Monday in November.

Halloween was celebrated last Saturday night, by a crowd of about fifteen women and girls, who, in disguise, paraded the streets. The procession was illuminated by pumpkin lanters representing faces, some of them most hideous.

Should this be a dry fall it will behoove everybody to be very careful with fire. There is a heavy growth of weeds and grasses in the fields, and should fire get started it would be impossible to check it before great damage results.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Atty. Sam Adams, of Erlanger, was in town yesterday.

O. F. Glackin, of Richwood, was in town, last Saturday.

Mr. Henry Crisler is considerably crippled by a carbuncle on his knee.

Albert Closher, of Covington, was the guest of J. J. Berkshire, last Sunday.

Joe Morrison and Thos. Coyn, of Petersburg, were in town last Sunday afternoon.

R. C. Rice and wife are citizens of Burlington again, having moved back to town last week.

Leslie Clutterbuck came out home from the city Monday to cast his first vote for President.

Mr O. P. Porter came out to vote, Monday, the first time he has been in town for quite a while.

James Allen and wife, of Big Bone, were visiting B. W. Adams and wife, last Sunday and Monday.

W. J. Rice is repairing the Chambers residence just south of town, and will move thereto in a few weeks.

Messrs. Geo. Roberts and wife and Mac Watson and wife, of Verona, were guests at C. C. Roberts' last Sunday.

John Lassing got lost down on Gunpowder one night last week as he was going to Hathaway to deliver a political speech.

Ben Drake, of Bellevue, was in town last Friday with a lot of very fine fish which were caught in the river near that town.

Mr. Wood Stephens, of Hathaway, and Miss Ryle, of Waterloo, spent a day or two this week with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Barker.

Mrs. Julia Elstun, of Hathaway, and Mrs. Walter Reed, of Covington, were visiting their relatives in Burlington, Sunday and Monday.

J. W. Duncan, W. C. Brown, J. F. Blyth, Edson Riddell and W. E. Vest attended the Democratic rally at Lawrenceburg, last Saturday.

Prof. Gaines, of Walton, spent last Sunday with his parents near here. The Professor has become a wheelman and made the trip on his bike.

After witnessing the Democratic turnout at Lawrenceburg last Saturday, J. M. Lassing addressed a large crowd of Democrats at Petersburg that night.

The nicest present received at this office for a long time, was a handsome bouquet of chrysathemus sent in Monday by Mrs. J. H. Clore. There were several colors in the bouquet.

John T. Conley, of Gallatin county, was mixing with his old Boone county friends at J. O. Huey's sale, last Thursday. Mr. Conley attended school at the old Locust Grove school house, and quite a number of his schoolmates, who had not seen him for years, were among those to gladly greet him.

The farmers need some damp weather in which to husk their shock corn.

A new order book was opened in the County Court, last week, the one completed having been in use since, June, 1889.

The Democratic round up at Erlanler, Monday night, beat anything along that line that has occurred there since the barbecue in Price's woods many years ago.

Geo. W. Popham has sold his new crop of tobacco for $6 and $5; Mr. McMullen, sold for $6 all round and J. D. Mitchell sold for $5 all round. Hiram Long was the purchaser.

David Williamson caught a string of very fine bass in Gunpowder, one day last week. He is about the most successful angler in the county, he works hard while fishing, He says a lazy man has no business trying to fish.

An order was entered in the County Court, Monday, permitting Geo. W. Terrill to sell his interest in the Lawrenceburg ferry. We hear that S. W. Tolin will be the purchaser, and will then be the sole owner of the ferry.

The Master Commissioner made the following sales Monday:

In the case of R. C. Anderson's admr. vs. Sallie Anderson, 39 acres of land for $817 05.

In the case of R. H. Sandford vs. Lucy Parsons, &c., the Sandford hotel and lot in Burlington for $385.

Quite a large crowd attended J. O. Huey's sale, last Thursday. Everything brought pretty good prices. Hogs that would weigh about 100 pounds brought $3.95 per head; milch cows, $25 to $30; heifers, $15 to $17; one steer, $18.50; two-year-old Hampshire buck, $5.10; 25 sheep, $4.40 per head. The sale was on a credit of 9 months.

COUNTY COURT.

W. L. Riddell allowed $20 for county printing.

G. W. Baker appointed Judge of election at Big Boone in place of W. H. Moore; and John Q. Elstun appointed sheriff of election at Union in place of E. L. Riley.

C. C. Snow's will probated, and Frances Snow qualified as executrix.

E. S. West qualified as administrator of E. V. West.

The commissioners reports of division of the dower lands of Mrs. America Fraizer was confirmed, and deeds ordered made.

The Election in Old Boone.

The following is the vote by precincts as cast in this county yesterday for President and Congressman. While the figures are not official they are so very nearly correct that the official count will make a very slight change either way:

	Bryan.	McK.	Berry	Ernst
Bullittsville	214	37	217	38
Burlington.........	261	94	249	93
Rabbit Hash......	164	32	163	33
Bellevue	125	51	124	54
Petersburg.........	235	74	224	73
Union..................	218	30	218	32
Florence	276	59	272	64
Beaver	118	28	118	28
Big Bone...........	182	88	180	88
Walton...............	198	117	198	117
Verona...............	192	37	192	37
Constance	116	135	112	128
Total	2299	782	2267	785

The following is the vote given for President in this county in 1892, that it may be compared with the vote cast yesterday:

According to the best figures obtainable Berry's majority in the district is about 3,000.

	Cleveland.	Harrison.
Walton.........	206	64
Beaver..........	99	28
Burlington....	221	74
Big Bone	163	71
Bellevue........	111	47
Petersburg.....	206	58
Florence........	212	37
Bullittsville...	183	33
Rabbit Hash..	148	15
Constance......	103	80
Union............	182	16
Verona..........	175	22
Total..	2,009	545

It is over.

They did not bury Berry.

Boone is a Democratic Gibralter.

Boone polled the largest vote yesterday ever cast in the county.

The Democrats can live under any government the Republicans can.

So far as heard from there was very little trouble at the polls in this county.

There are about 25 voters in this precinct who were not at the polls yesterday..

There is no promise of any change for the better in the result of yesterday's election.

Constance and Walton precincts made the biggest Republican gain in this county.

Four years ago we Democrats were doing the shouting, but the other fellows are shouting now.

Some of the boys who went to city last night came home this morning with crape on their hats.

You could tell a Republican wherever you met him this morning—the distinguishing mark was that smile.

Voting began here Tuesday morning promptly on time. Voters from the country were on hand waiting for the polls to open.

The best thing about the election yesterday was the defeat of Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge by the gallant Settle, of Owen county.

That McKinley Aid Society organized at Indianapolis accomplished that for which it was intended, viz:—to switch to the Republican party a large block of heretofore Democrats.

A CARD.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

An article in your last issue does me an injustice in stating that I wanted County Judge Stephens to remove W. H. Moore, of Big Bone, and E. L. Riley, of Union, as judges of the election. While I can hardly see the propriety of our County Judge making public a private official request, I am sorry the entire facts were not published.

Judge Stephens had appointed three Democratic and one Republican officer at Union I requested the appointment of another Republican to take the place of one of the Democrats and did not specify which one, and would not have dared to dictate any such course, but the laws allow and demand an equal division of officers and on that equal division I insisted, but did not ask Judge Stephens to remove any one in particular and certainly never asked the removal of Mr. Riley.

On complaint of prominent Republicans of Big Bone that Mr. W. H. Moore was a "Free Silver" advocate and had been appointed a Republican judge, I requested Judge Stephens, in my official capacity, to appoint Mr. Geo. W. Baker in his place. This I had a perfect right to do and make no apologies for so doing.

An election in any precinct conducted by three Democratic and one Republican official is illegal and the vote of that precinct cannot, if contested, be counted, and I don't want to contest.

T. B. MATHEWS, Chairman
Boone Co. Rep. Ex. Com.

[The requests made by Mr. Mathews were proper, but we wish to exonerate Judge Stephens from giving it for publication, as it was not from him that we obtained the information, and we know Mr. Mathews does not want to charge him wrongfully.—ED.

A visit to the court house at at a late hour this morning found all the offices deserted.

Hon T. B. Mathews, J. G. Tomlin and others addressed the Republicans here Monday.

It was a fine day for an election in this part of the country. Everybody who wanted to could get out.

The present membership of the churches composing the North Bend Association of Baptists is 2,821. During last year there were received by baptism, 107; by letter, 81; restored, 19. The decrease was as follows: Died, 32; excluded, 29; letters granted, 81. Bullittsburg has 148 members; Bellevue, 180; Sand Run, 56; East Bend, 42; Burlington, 103; Big Bone, 251; Florence, 57; Walton, 167; Beaver Lick, 114; Union, 99; Erlanger, 71. The net increase in the membership last year was 115.

Capt. George W. Terrill, of Boone county, Ky., was swindled out of several fine horses by a smooth talking man a short time ago. The man represented himself to be a real estate agent and traded Mr. Terrill a deed for a farm in Powell county, Ky., for the horses. When Mr. Terrill went to see his farm, it was no place to be found and the man with the horses could not be located.—Aurora Bulletin.

We will try and give our readers a better paper from now on.

ANNOUCEMENT!

I wish to announce to my friends that I have accepted the agency for

C. ROSS LODWICK,

Undertaker & Embalmer,

3035 W. 6th St, CINCINNATI, O.,

And am prepared to furnish all articles for

FUNERAL PURPOSES

on short notice.

Prompt attention will be paid to FUNERAL ORDERS and strict attention given to the care of the dead.

Respectfully,

GEO. BLYTH, Burlington, Ky.

Administrat's Notice.

Those indebted to the estate of J. V. West, dec'd., must come forward and settle at once, and those having claims against said estate must present the same at once proven according to law.

E. S. WEST, Adm'r.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

Christopher Barlow's Executor, Plff.
vs
Matilda J. Barlow, &c., Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against Christopher Barlow's estate will present them to me properly proven according to law.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, Master Com.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

E. M. Gaines' Assignee, Plff.
vs.
Farmers & Traders Nat. Bank, Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against E. M. Gaines' estate will present them to me properly proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Are You Afraid ?

TO READ BOTH SIDES OF THE QUESTION?

The New York Journal is the only Metropolitan paper indorsing

Bryan and Sewall

and it daily publishes articles by the leading financiers of the country on both sides of the question,

"Silver versus Gold."

It is progressive, liberal and always espouses the cause of the masses. Every broad minded man should read it, whether Republican or Democrat.

THE NEW YORK JOURNAL.

Daily - - - - - 1 Cent everywhere.
Subscription for One Month, including Sunday - - - - 40 cents
Two Months and a Half - - $1.00

Send subscription to
The New York Journal,
Circulation Department, NEW YORK.

16 to 1,

You will always find that we give you 16 ounces to every 1 pound you buy of us.

We Have Cut Down Profits to Suit the Hard Times.

The large amount of Goods we are Selling every day is sufficient proof of the above statement.

Give us a call,

W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,

DEALERS IN

PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,

63 and 65 Pike Street,

Covington, Telephone, 4213. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.

ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.

CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.

27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.

Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDERTAKER EMBALMER,

Corner Pike & Russell Streets,

COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.

INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,

Undertakers and Embalmers,

OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,

COVINGTON, KY.

CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.

Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL,

WHOLESALE AND

RETAIL GROCER,

GRASS SEED.

Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.

Tom Wilson, Salesman.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.

We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office

And FEED STORE from

708 Madison Avenue

To the Large and more Commodious Quarters

15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.

Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with

GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED

At the Lowest Market Values.

Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,

W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,

GENERAL MERCHANTS,

HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.

A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.

UNDERTAKING.

is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. HANKINS.

Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : : KY.

NOVEMBER—1896.

Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
8	9	10	11	12	13	14
15	16	17	18	19	20	21
22	23	24	25	26	27	28
29	30	....	....	....	....	....

CURRENT TOPICS.

SPAIN has expended thus far $145,000,000 in her futile efforts to suppress the Cuban insurrection.

JAMES PAYN recently declared that "Carlyle was free from affection of any kind; he had not even manners."

RUSSELL SAGE celebrated his eightieth birthday recently by going down to his office and doing a full day's work.

IT is estimated that two years are required for the Gulf stream water to travel from Florida to the coast of Norway.

WM. B. PHILLIPS, of New Madrid, Mo., is credited with a total of 1,350 squirrels in three days' hunting on Little river.

CALIFORNIA has shipped 10,000 tons of wheat to India at good prices, and this is believed to be but the beginning of a large and profitable trade in the same direcotin.

WHEN a railway line runs north and south, on the track on which the trains run from the south the eastern rail will wear out first, and on the other line the western.

LADY SPENCER has collected $2,500 toward the $30,000 required for the memorial to Nelson, which will soon be erected at Burnham-Thorpe, near Norfolk, England.

RECENT insurance statistics show that if the wife dies first the husband on an average survives nine years; while if the husband dies first the wife survives eleven years.

IN Paris a hand organ competition has been started by some wags; every grinder gets five francs for entering, whilst there are several prizes, one of which is the score of the "Gotterdammerung."

THE government has contracted for 150,000 pounds of dried apples and 68,000 pounds of dried peaches for the Indian schools. It is thus that the products of the enlightened east go to swell the population of the benighted west.

THOMAS EDISON receives many amusing letters. Not long ago he was startled by an epistle from a young lady asking if he could not invent an electrical contrivance that would enable her to see the face of her future husband.

A NEW life insurance company, called the British Life Office, has been formed in London. It will receive monthly premiums and loan policy holders money for building purposes to the extent of $500 for each five shillings of premium.

MRS. SKEATS, an old lady living in London, has six sons on the police force, all of whom have over 21 years' service to their credit. Mrs. Skeats has but one daughter, and she has evinced the family trait by marrying a London policeman.

THE camel's foot is a soft cushion, peculiarly well adapted to the stones and gravel over which it is constantly walking. During a single journey through the Sahara, horses have worn out three sets of shoes, while the camel's feet are not even sore.

NOT only are the Astors going heavily into the tearing down of their old-fashioned houses in New York and erecting hotels and business buildings in their stead, but they are now launching out into the remodeling of others of these old-fashioned houses for business purposes.

A PLUNGE of 80 feet 8½ inches was made in 1 minute 38 seconds in the contest for the English plunging championship by Mr. W. Allason. This beats the record by over 5 feet. There is a time limit of 1 minute, however, in tho championship competition, which Mr. Allason won, his plunge of 73 feet four inches in that time being also a record.

AFTER smoking tobacco 50 years or more, Mrs. Hannah Chard, a Gloucester county, New Jersey centenarian, has thrown away her pipe with the determination never to use it again. The old lady became convinced recently that smoking was shortening her life. "Aunt" Hannah still enjoys good health and is looking forwerd to the celebration of her 108th birthday.

MEN are now living who heard the eminent scientist, Prof. Silliman, declare in a lecture at Yale college, after a careful mathematical calculation, that no boat could contain a sufficient amount of coal to propel it across the Atlantic ocean. It is not likely that he ever dreamed that ships would be constructed which could contain and consume nearly 2,000 tons on a single voyage.

A MAN arrested in London on a charge of attempting to commit suicide said he had no intention of killing himself, but had had a dream in which he thought he was cutting his throat and woke up to find that he was really hacking his neck with a carving knife.

THE biggest annual pension that is paid in any part of the world is $95,000. The duke of Richmond is the recipient, and he has never moved a finger or a leg to acquire this vast annuity, which is perpetual, passing from son to son, for no other reason than that the first duke of Portland had a pull with Charles II.

THE SITUATION

In Constantinople Causes Anxiety in Diplomatic Circles.

A Thinly Veiled Invitation to Mussulmans to Prepare to Attack Christians—Another Massacre Probable—Diplomats Telegraph for Instructions.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs that the situation in that city is causing the gravest anxiety in diplomatic circles, which are again discussing the question of the deposition of the sultan. The statement of the porte that no forced levy has been made to procure money with which to buy arms, and that the irade which was construed to be an order for such a levy was merely an appeal to Turkish subjects to voluntarily contribute to a fund that it was found necessary to raise for the armament and equipment of the imperial troops is recognized as a thinly veiled invitation to Musselmans to prepare to attack Christians. This can not fail to bring about massacres in the provinces, even if the vigilance of the guard ships is able to prevent the killing of Christians in Constantinople.

The correspondent adds that after a meeting held on Monday the diplomats telegraphed to their respective governments asking for instructions with a view to imminent happenings.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Chronicle Friday publishes a dispatch from Rome saying that as soon as the czar returns to St. Petersburg he will propose to the powers the holding of a diplomatic conference regarding Turkey. To this proposal the powers will certainly assent.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Morning Post Friday publishes a dispatch from Constantinople saying that 25 kilos of dynamite and other explosives have been found by the police in the Taskin quarter of Pera. Forty arrests have been made in connection with the discovery.

MAY GO TO COURT.

The Ineligibility of J. R. Sovereign to Serve as an Arkansas Elector.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 30.—The news of J. R. Sovereign's ineligibility to serve as an elector because he had failed to pay his poll tax caused a great sensation throughout the state. Three days after the democratic and populist state central committee had agreed upon a fusion on electors, a well-defined report reached Gov. Clark that J. R. Sovereign, one of the populist electors selected by the populist committee, was disqualified because he had failed to pay his poll tax, which is the essential requirement of citizenship in Arkansas. An investigation was immediately set upon foot and the report was found to be true. It was too late, however, to substitute another name, as the time for filing certificates of nominations had expired the day after fusion had been agreed apon. A prominent state official informed your correspondent Friday that tho trouble will be easily adjusted, because the governor and attorney general holds that the power of naming Mr. Sovereign's successsor rests with the chief executive of the state. Prominent attorneys of both parties take issue with the governor and attorney general, however, and claim that the republican elector receiving the largest number of votes will be entitled to the commission. The question will unquestionably go to the courts for settlement.

EMPEROR WILLIAM

Writes a Letter to Emperor Joseph Relative to the Hamburg Nachrichten's Recent Article.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 30.—The Pesther Lloyd is authority for the statement that Emperor William has written a letter to Emperor Francis Joseph relative to the Hamburg Nachrichten's recent article which was inspired by Prince Bismarck, showing that for the six years from 1884 to 1890, a secret alliance existed between Germany and Russia, to the prejudice of Austria, one of the contracting nations of the triple alliance, of which Germany and Italy were the others.

The proposition for the formation of the triple alliance was made in 1882 and adopted in 1883, but it was not until March, 1887, that the alliance was formally signed. According to the Nachrichten's revelations the secret Russo-German treaty provided that in certain contingencies Austria would not have the benefit of German support provided for by the triple alliance, a statement that has caused widespread comment on the Bismarckian methods in Austro-Hungarian and other political circles.

A Brick Country Road.

MONMOUTH, Ill., Oct. 30.—Monmouth township, Warren county, has completed 3,000 feet of brick pavement, the first hard country road ever put down in tho United States. The brick is single course, laid on six inches of sand and supported on each side by 2¼ feet of crushed stone. The cost will be less than $5,000 a mile.

The Gold Reserve.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The treasury gold reserve at the close of business Thursday stood at $118,277,315. The day's withdrawals at New York were $513,200. There were deposited $300,000 gold in exchange for currency.

Republicans Claim Connecticut by 34,000.

HARTFORD, Ct. Oct. 30.—Chairman Fyler, of the republican state central committees, sent out a dispach to a number of papers Thursday night saying that a careful canvass of this state just completed shows a plurality for McKinley of 34,000.

Well Known Singer Married.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—Joan d'Rezcke, the well known singer, was married to the Commisse De Mailley Nestle Friday. Maurice Grau and the Jean and Edouard d'Rezcke will sail from Havre for New York Saturday on the La Champagne

CALL LOANS

Advance to One Hundred Per Cent. in New York City—Bankers Meet and Consider Means to Tide Over the Money Trouble.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—A meeting of the bank presidents was held at the Union League club to discuss the advance in call loans to 100 per cent. Among those who were present were H. W. Cannon, of the Chase national bank; F. D. Tappen, of the Gallatin national Bank; William A. Nash, of the Corn exchange, and J. Edward Simmons, of the Fourth national They decided to take measures to assist the street, but not to issue clearing-house certificates. President J. Edward Simmons, of the Clearing-house association, said Friday morning: "There is nothing in the situation to excite alarm. The banks are abundantly able to meet any emergency that may arise, and they will do so."

A member of the clearing-house says: "There was no large house or houses of good credit Thursday which did not succeed in getting whatever funds were required to enable them to meet engagements."

"An investigation furthermore proves that no one laid down on his bank. There will be no clearing-house certificates issued. It is evident to all thinking men who have examined the last bank statement that the banks are abundantly able to meet any monetary stringency that can possibly arrive.

Money on call ranged between 25 and 60 per cent. up to midday. The demand was not quite as large as Thursday and the announcement by President J. Edward Simmons, of the Clearing-house association, that the banks are abundantly able to meet any emergency had a reassuring effect. The scarcity of money is generally credited to the general hoarding of money by the public. Since August 28 last the receipts of gold from abroad have been fully $70,000,000 and of this nearly $50,000,000 can not be accounted for. An official of a leading bank states that the bulk of this gold has been hoarded, mostly in small amounts, by people all over the country. Business in time loans and commercial paper is practically at a standstill. So far as stock exchange borrowers are concerned it is generally accepted that anybody with reasonable collateral will have no trouble in securing accommodations.

RIOT AT NORFOLK.

Two Negro Factions Come Together at a Political Meeting—Several Persons Were Hurt.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 31.—At a colored political meeting on Scott street Friday night a riot was precipitated between two Negro factions, one of which is supporting Col. Wise, the regular republican nominee, while the others Whally, the gold democrat. The meeting was barely opened before the disorder began. Brickbats were the arguments of the Wise men and they quickly became masters of the situation after which they proceeded to demolish the hall. During the bombardment of the building by rocks, several persons were hurt badly by the flying missiles. Two police men who attempted to restore order, were roughly handled by the mob, and one of them was badly injured. Reinforcements arrived at police headquarters, however, and the mob was dispersed but, not before two other officers were slightly injured.

UNRULY STUDENTS

Cause a Suspension of the West Virginia University.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 31.—Thursday the contest between the faculty and students was precipitated by 300 students leaving the chapel in a body. Several members of the faculty were hooted and hissed on their entrance, and, as a result, one member of the senior class, J. M. Orr, has been suspended for the rest of the term, and Friday the president of the class, W. J. Brune, was cited for trial. All exercises at the university were suspended. Several very serious charges were preferrad against the student, who is a member of the Y. M. C. A., and a very prominent young man. At his request the trial was postponed until after the election vacation is ended, which will be next week. Matters are very much strained, and an outbreak can easily be precipitated.

Kankakee Swamp Drainage.

SAN PIERRE, Ind., Oct. 31.—A meeting of the stockholders of the two Kankakee River Improvement associations has been called to meet here Saturday to discuss the draining of the Kankakee valley. The gigantic project will reclaim and open for settlement 300,000 acres of land in Illinois and Indiana.

Hocking Valley Miners Strike.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—Two hundred miners have gone out on a strike in Hocking valley because Courtright, Kissler & Co., owners of the mine, are using a larger screen than is specified in the contract and which miners claim is an unjust discrimination against them.

Bit Off His Nose.

CORINTH, Ky., Oct. 31.—Quite a serious difficulty occurred on the Owen pike, five miles from here, in which a man named Smith bit off the nose of Andy Simpson. Simpson walked four miles to his home, and found his nose lodged in his waistcoat. The doctors operated on him.

Schooner is Safe.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 31.—The schooner Yelga Caroline, of Tacoma, reported lost by Juneau papers on October 21, is safe. T. O. Naglestod, one of her passengers, reports that she reached Juneau the evening of October 21, just in time for him to catch the Wulapa south. The Caroline was six weeks making the trip to Juneau, being delayed by storms.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The treasury gold reserve at the close of business Friday stood at $117,359,480. The withdrawals at New York were $982,300.

IN MISSISSIPPI.

Terrific Cyclone Visits the Eastern Part of Lafayette County.

The Wind Lifts a Buggy, Two Men and Two Horses and Carries Them Two Hundred Yards—Buggy Demolished, but Men Not Seriously Hurt.

OXFORD, Miss., Oct. 30.—A terrific cyclone passed through the eastern part of Lafayette county Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, demolishing farm houses and uprooting trees of all sizes. The news just reached here through Hon. W. V. Sullivan, congressional candidate, and T. J. Harkins. Mr. Sullivan had been speaking in the county and was returning to Oxford. They were driving a double team in the buggy. The wind lifted their buggy, horses and all, and carried them 200 yards. The buggy was utterly demolished by falling timbers, but neither men nor horses were seriously hurt. The storm passed through the edge of the town of Delay and demolished several houses. The house of Milton Eskridge was blown away, but his wife and several children miraculously escaped with but few bruises. The extent of the damage can not be given, but no casualties have as yet been reported. Not a tree was left standing in the cyclone's path.

STORM IN NEW ORLEANS.

Property Loss About $100,000—No Loss of Life Reported.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—About 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon a tornado struck this city on the river front, just above Peniston street, and swept over a distance of about a mile and a half, or thirty blocks from Peniston street, to Robin street, the track of the storm being about 1,500 feet wide, from the river to Annunciation street. Property to the amount of $100,000 was destroyed. Hundreds of buildings were wrecked. No loss of life reported.

NEWELLTON, La., Oct. 30.—Tensas parish has again been visited by a most destructive cyclone. Twelve cabins on Locust land were completely demolished, and one colored woman was instantly killed and several were blown into the lake. At Johnson's Bend the ginhouse contained a great quantity of hay, and was totally wrecked. Three barns containing corn were also destroyed, and a great deal of the corn was blown away. Six cabins were in its path, and all were blown to pieces and many timbers were blown into Lake St. Joseph. Several persons were badly cut and bruised, but no lives were lost.

Later reports show two deaths of colored men at Mr. Brand's from lightning, and two colored women and a baby from Locustland were drowned in Lake Bruen, where they were carried by the fury of the elements.

CHINESE REFORMS.

Li Hung Chang Will Reorganize the Board of Foreign Affairs on the European Plan.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Standard Friday publishes a dispatch from Berlin which says that Li Hung Chang, who was appointed minister of foreign affairs a few days ago, has been ordered to take up his permanent residence in Pekin. At present he resides in Tien Tsin. The dispatch adds that the Tsung Li Yamen, or board of foreign affairs will be re-organized on the European plan. Prince Ching, president of the Tsung Li Yamen, was opposed to any change being made in the board and has resigned his office.

Li Hung Chang has cabled to Herr Detring, commissioner of Chinese customs, who is now on leave of absence, to shorten his conge and hasten to Pekin. The German papers interpret this as an omen for the execution of reforms.

NEW SWINDLE.

An Italian Sells Fraudulent Citizenship Papers to His Countrymen.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Fraudulent citizenship papers have been discovered in the possession of a number of Italians residing in this city. These papers bear the counterfeit seal of the superior court and the forged signature of its chief clerk. One of the Italians found with the fraudulent papers in his possession statod that he bought it from a fellow countryman for $10. He says the seller made considerably money disposing of the papers to Italians, and that he had sailed for Italy. Most of the holders of these papers, it is believed, reside in an upper district of the city dubbed "Little Italy," and this district will be carefully watched on election day.

Bismarck May Be Courtmartialed.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Telegraph Friday publishes a dispatch from Vienna saying that it is positively stated in well-informed circles that should Prince Bismarck continue his disclosures of state secrets his position will not protect him from serious consequences. It is moditated in Berlin, the dispatch adds, to court martial him in his capacity of Gen. Oberst on the active list of the German army.

A Solution of the Venezuela Dispute.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Tho Chronicle Friday says there is reason to believe that a solution of the Venezuelan dispute will be found in the appointment of a tribunal similar to the Behring sea tribunal of arbitration in which case Sir Richard Webster, attorney general, will represent Great Britain as he did before the Behring sea tribunal.

Armed Men Hold Up a Saloon.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Eight men with drawn revolvers held up the saloon of Jos. Hamm at 48 Chicago avenue, at 9 o'clock Thursday night, within a stone's throw of the East Chicago avenue station.

The robbers went into the saloon, locked the front door, and, after knocking the bar tender senseless, going through two customers and the cash till, walked away with about $500 in cash and two watches. Hamm fired two shots at the men as they retreated up a rear alley but without effect.

STEAMER SINKS.

The Courier Strikes the False Works of the L. and N. Bridge at Cincinnati, and Goes to the Bottom—Hogs Drowned.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 31.—The freight steamer Courier, from Maysville, Friday evening struck the false work of the L. and N. bridge, now being remodeled. A large hole was knocked in her side. The boat was immediately turned in toward the shore, where she sank in about twelve feet of water. A large number of hogs on board were drowned, while others escaped and swam to shore, where they were captured and some of them taken away by denizens of the river front. The Courier's cargo will be almost a total loss. The vessel will be raised.

The absence of safety lights or some one's blunder caused the accident.

There were between fifteen and twenty passengers on the boat, four of whom were women. The entire crew numbered between thirty and forty people, a number of whom were colored women. The women all screamed in chorus when the vessel struck, and their cries could be heard up as far as Second street.

The Courier was built at Freedom, Pa., in 1885. The boat is about 165 feet in length and its capacity is 290 tons. It is licensed to ply between this city and Maysville, a distance of about 65 miles. The Courier was purchased by its present owners from S. M. Gamble, tho well-known steamboat owner, of Wheeling, W. Va. A short time ago it was repaired at a cost of $3,000. The Courier left Cincinnati daily at 11 p. m., and was due back here any time between 4 and 8:30 p. m. Friday night's trip to Maysville was made for the dismantled vessel by the packet Dick Brown. The vessel originally cost about $16,000, but is said to be worth only a little over half that amount now.

SECRET TREATY.

One Object the Restoration of Denmark for Favors Shown Russia and France in Case of Trouble With Germany.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A dispatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Copenhagen, Friday afternoon, relative to the enormous sums which are being expended by the Danish government upon the fortification of Copenhagen, says that this work is undertaken in pursuance of a secret understanding arrived at between Russia and France by which Russia guarantees the integrity of Denmark, and that, should a favorable occasion arise, she will insist upon part of Schleswig-Holstein, inhabited by Danes, being restored to Denmark in case a plebiscite of the inhabitants express the desire of the people that this step should be taken.

On the other hand, the dispatch adds, Denmark undertakes, should Russia be engaged in war, to place at her disposal the harbors, forts and shipbuilding yards of Copenhagen, which, it is pointed out, as a base of operations against North Germany, are worth over 100,000 men.

ARKANSAS

Comes in for a Portion of the Terrific Cyclone—The Eastern Part of Jefferson County Badly Damaged by the Wind.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 31.—Reports of a terrific cyclone which passed through the eastern part of Jefferson county Thursday evening reached this city Friday. The full extent of the storm can not be ascertained, but it is known to have been quite extensive. It struck first near Sherrill at 11:45 o'clock Thursday forenoon, passing from south to north. Its path was about two hundred yards wide in some places and not more than one hundred in others. Nothing stood before it and barns, houses, fences, stock and forests were carried along in its terrible vortex. Two occupants of the house were injured in the Smith place. One large log residence, containing a family of six, was also scattered, but the occupants who were in the house at the time miraculously escaped death. Fifteen or more people, most of them Negroes, were more or less injured.

Anthracite Coal Found in Canada.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 31.—Coal has been discovered near Sudbury, in the Algoma district, which is believed to be identical with the anthracite found in the region of the Lehigh valley, Pennsylvania, except that it contains no sulphur. The extent of the deposit has not been definitely ascertained, but as far as investigation has progressed it is known to cover an area of at least 100 acres. Samples of the coal have been brought to this city and have been pronounced by experts to be of good quality.

Death of a Cardinal.

ROME, Oct. 31.—Cardinal Prince Gustavo Adolpho Von Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst, brother of Prince Von Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst, the imperil chancellor of Germany, died here Friday morning. He was born February 22, 1823, and created cardinal June 23, 1863. Cardinal Hohenlohe was the ranking member of the sacred college in respect of priority of appointment, and held the office of archpriest of the Liberian Basilica in Rome. He had been ill for several weeks.

Determined to Commit Suicide.

PERRY, O. T., Oct. 31.—Ross Bowers, aged 15, who attempted suicide last Sunday by drinking carbolic acid, cut his throat Friday morning with a razor. The boy's father was once a prominent man here, but he is now in the Kansas penitentiary. The lad's mother was burned to death a year ago.

Austria Will Bar Our Glucose.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—United States Consul Hurst, at Prague, reports to the state department that the Austrian government is about to treble the duty on glucose, to effectually bar out the better and cheaper article from America. Within five months the United States shipped 2,640,000 pounds of this commodity into Austria, paying a duty of $2.90 for every 220 pounds.

Vessel Sinks at Hamburg.

HAMBURG, Oct. 31.—The steamer Cordelia, from Guatemala via Montevidio, was sunk in the harbor here Friday by a collision with the sailing vessel Etna.

OLD AGE BRINGS RESEMBLANCE

When Years Creep Upon Them Members of Families Look Like Each Other.

"Age brings out family likenesses or resemblance as nothing else can or will," remarked a scientist who has given much attention to the study of physiology and its running mate, physlognomy," says the Washington Star. "In the ordinary life of a man or woman they are so much occupied by other things—that is, with the pleasures, passions or business of the world—that they do not show any of the lineaments of their parents. When old age comes on them, however, they show many of the resemblances of the parent stock. Take your own circle, for illustration.

"If you are old enough to remember the parents of any of your friends or relatives you will notice that as they in turn grow old the family likenesses come out. There are, of course, some people who have the general features and appearances of their parents, and in many cases of both father and mother, though in most cases of but one, and that most likely of the father, in their youth and through their life. There are others, though, who had none of the marked family likenesses until they reached an advanced age. By this I mean 50 years or so. In many cases persons have shown in their own faces none of the family likenesses until they reached very advanced ages, and it grows more and more marked as they leave the milestones of age behind them."

$100 Reward $100.

Tho readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is tho only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are tho best.

"I AM sorry I bought one of those doormats with 'Welcome' on it." "Why so?" "Somo stupid fellow mistook the meaning of the word and helped himself to it the first night."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Tourist Sleeping Cars to California Daily.

Every day in the year Tourist Sleeping Cars are run through from Chicago to California via the Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific R'ys). Only $6.00 for completely equipped double berth from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. For tickets and full information apply to agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. KNISKERN, G. P. & T. A., Chicago & North-Western R'y, Chicago.

"Er little learnin' may be er danj'us t'ing," said Uncle Eben, "but I doan' believe dat it's nigh ez danj'us oz no learnin' 'tall.'—Washington Star.

Home-Seekers Excursions.

On November 17 and December 1 and 15, 1896, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway will sell round trip excursion tickets from Chicago to a great many points in tho Western and Southwestern states both on its own line and elsewhere, at greatly reduced rates. Details as to rates, routes, etc., may be obtained on application to any coupon ticket agent or by addressing GEO. H. HEAFFORD, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

MAUL—"Too bad, old fellow, tho hanging committee skied your canvas." D'Auber—"My boy, with the hanging committee the art is to conceal tho art."—London Figaro.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

MR. HOJACK—"Miss Teaspot must be surprisingly beautiful." Mr. Tomdik—"Indeed! What makes you think so?" "She looks well even in an amateur photograph."—Life.

Left Destitute!

Not of worldly goods, but of all earthly comfort, is the poor wretch tormented by malaria. The fell scourge is, however, shorn of its thong in advance by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, its only sure preventive and remedy. Dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, rheumatism, nervousness and kidney complaints are also among the bodily afflictions which this beneficent medicine overcomes with certainty. Use it systematically.

ON THE FOOTBALL TEAM.—"Bragley claims to be a great tackler." "He is—when you get him at a free lunch table."—Detroit Free Press.

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe.

"I DO not believe that I have a true friend in the world." "So you have been trying to borrow money, too, have you?"—Truth.

HOW MY THROAT HURTS!—Why don't you use Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar? Pike's Toothache Drops Cure in one minute.

TEDDY—"I tell you it's so." Nellie—"I say it is not." Teddy—"Well, mamma says it's so; and if mamma says it's so, it's so even if it isn't so"—Harper's Round Table.

JUST try a 10c box of Cascarets, the finest liver and bowel regulator ever made.

BEAUTIFUL heiress (after the ball)—"Mary, go back to the hall and see if perhaps there are any more lieutenants kneeling about."—Flegende Blaetter.

Enrich

Your blood at this season by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and you will not need to fear pneumonia, fevers or the grip. Remember

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the Best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills act harmoniously with Hood's Sarsaparilla. 25c.

TOP SNAP, Extension Rib DOUBLE Breech Loader $9.00 GUNS BUY-CYCLES Pistols, Sporting Goods, Fishing Tackle, cheaper than elsewhere. Send 2c. for 60-page catalogue. POWELL & CLEMENT CO. 166 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

CHANT OF STARS.

Universe Thrilled With Cadence When the Morning Stars Sang Together.

Planets and Worlds Were in Harmony For the Discord of Sin Had Not Been Struck—An Eloquent Sermon by Rev. Dr. Talmage, D. D.

Dr. Talmage, in his sermon Sunday, illustrated a most practical truth. His subject was: "The Chant of the Stars," and the text, Job xxxviii, 6-7: "Who laid the corner-stone thereof, when the morning stars sang together?"

We have all seen the ceremony at the laying of the corner-stone of church, asylum or Masonic temple. Into the hollow of the stone were placed scrolls of history and important documents, to be suggestive if, 100 or 200 years after the building should be destroyed by fire or torn down. We remember the silver trowel or iron hammer that smote the square piece of granite into sanctity. We remember some venerable man who presided wielding the trowel or hammer. We remember also the music as the choir stood on the scattered stones and timber of the building about to be constructed. The leaves of the note books fluttered in the wind, and were turned over with a great rustling, and we remember how the bass, baritone, tenor, contralto and soprano voices commingled. They had for many days been rehearsing the special programme, that it might be worthy of the corner stone laying.

In my text the poet of Uz calls us to a grander ceremony—the laying of the foundation of this great temple of a world. The corner stone was a block of light and the trowel was of celestial crystal. All about and on the embankments of clouds stood the angelic choristers, unrolling their librettos of overture, and other worlds clapped shining cymbals while the ceremony went on, and God the architect, by stroke of light after stroke of light, dedicated the great cathedral of a world, with mountains for pillars, and sky for frescoed ceiling, and flowering fields for a floor, and sunrise and midnight aurora for upholstery, "Who laid the corner-stone thereof, when the morning stars sang together?"

The fact is that the whole universe was a complete cadence, an unbroken dithyramb, a musical portfolio. The great sheet of immensity had been spread out, and written on it were the stars, the smaller of them minims, the larger of them sustained notes. The meteors marked the staccato passages the whole Heavens a gamut with all sounds, intonations, modulations, the space betweed the words a musical interval, trembling of stellar light a quaver, the thunder a bass clef, the wind among trees a treble clef. That is the way God made all things a perfect harmony.

But one day a harp string snapped in the great orchestra. One day a voice sounded out of tune. One day a discord, harsh and terrific, grated upon the glorious antiphon. It was sin that made the dissonance, and that harsh discord has been sounding through the centuries. All the work of Christians and philanthropists and reformers of all ages is to stop that discord and get all things back into the perfect harmony which was heard at the laying of the corner stone when the morning stars sang together. Before I get through, if I am Divinely helped, I will make it plain that sin is discord and righeousness harmony. That, in general, things are out of tune is as plain as to a musician's ear is the unhappy clash of clarinet and bassoon in an orchestral rendering.

The world's health out of tune: weak lungs and the atmosphere in collision, disordered eye and noonday light in quarrel, rheumatic limb and damp weather in struggle, neuralgias and pneumonias and consumptions and epilep ies in flocks sweep upon neighborhoods and cities. Where you find one person with sound throat and keen eyesight, and alert ear and easy respiration, and regular pulsation and supple limb, and prime digestion and steady nerves, you find a hundred who have to be very careful because this or that or the other physical function is disordered.

The human intellect out of tune: the judgment wrongly served or the memory leaky or the will weak or the temper inflammable, the well-balanced mind exceptional.

Domestic life out of tune: only here and there a conjugal outbreak of incompatibility of temper through divorce courts, or a filial outbreak about a father's will through the surrogate's court, or a case of wife-beating or husband-poisoning through the criminal courts, but thousands of families with June outside and January within.

Society out of tune. Labor and capital, their hands on each other's throat. Spirit of caste keeping those down in the social scale who are struggling to get up, and putting those who are up in anxiety lest they have to come down. No wonder the old pianoforte of society is all out of tune, when hypocrisy and lying, and subterfuge, and double dealing, and sycophancy, and charlatanism, and revenge, have for 6,000 years been banging away at the keys and stamping the pedals.

On all sides there is a shipwreck of harmonies. Nations in discord without realizing it; so wrong is the feeling of nation for nation that symbols chosen are fierce and destructive. In this country, where our skies are full of robins and doves and morning larks, we have our national symbol the fierce and filthy eagle, as cruel a bird as can be found in all the ornithological catalogues. In Great Britain, where they have lambs and fallow deer, their symbol is the merciless lion. In Russia, where from between her frozen north and blooming south all kindly beasts dwell, they chose the growling bear; and in the world's heraldry a favorite figure is the dragon, the fabled winged serpent, ferocious and dreadful. And so fond is the world of contention that we climb out through the heavens and baptize one of the other planets with the spirit of battle and call it Mars, after the god of war; and we give to the eighth sign of the zodiac the name of the scorpion, a creature which is chiefly celebrated for its deadly sting. But, after all, these symbols are expressive of the way nation feels toward nation. Discord wide as the continent and bridging the seas.

I suppose you have noticed how warmly in love dry goods stores are with other dry goods stores, and how highly grocerymen think of the sugars of the grocerymen on the same street. And in what a eulogistic way allopathic and homeopathic doctors speak of each other, and how ministers will sometimes put ministers on that beautiful cooking instrument which the English call a spit, an iron roller with spikes on it, and turned by a crank before a hot fire, and then if the minister being roasted cries out against it, the men who are turning him say: "Hush, my brother, we are turning the spit for the glory of God and the good of your soul, and you must be quiet while we close the service with:

> "Blest be the tie that binds
> Our hearts in Christian love."

The earth is diametered and circumferenced with discord, and the music that was rendered at the laying of the world's corner stone, when the morning stars sang together, is not heard now; and though here and there, from this and that part of society, and from this and that part of the earth, there comes a thrilling solo of love, or a warble of worship, or a sweet duet of patience, they are drowned out by a discord that shakes the earth.

Paul says: "The whole creation groaneth," and while the nightingale, and the plover sometimes sing so sweetly that their notes have been written out in musical notation, and it is found that the cuckoo sings in the key of D, and that the cormorant is a basso in the winged choir, yet sportsman's gun and the autumnal blast often leave them ruffled and bleeding or dead in meadow or forest. Paul was right, for the groan in nature drowns out the prima donnas of the sky.

Tartini, the great musical composer, dreamed one night that he made a contract with Satan, the latter to be ever in the composer's service. But one night he handed Satan a violin, on which Diabolus played such sweet music that the composer was awakened by the emotion, and tried to reproduce the sounds, and therefore was written Tartini's most famous piece, "The Devil's Sonata," a dream ingenius, but faulty, for all melody descends from Heaven, and only discords ascend from hell. All hatreds, feuds, controversies, backbitings and revenges are the devil's sonata, are diabolical fugue, are demoniac phantasy, are grand march of doom, are allegro of perdition.

But if in this world things in general are out of tune to our frail ear, how much more so to beings angelic and deific! It takes a skilled artist to fully appreciate disagreement of sound. Many have no capacity to detect a defect of musical execution, and, though there were in one bar as many offenses against harmony as could crowd in between the lower F of the bass and the higher G of the soprano, it would give them no discomfort, while on the forehead of the educated artist heads of perspiration would stand out as a result of the harrowing dissonance. While an amateur was performing on a piano and had just struck the wrong chord, John Sebastian Bach, the immortal composer, entered the room, and the amateur rose in embarrassment, and Bach rushed past the host, who stepped forward to greet him, and before the keyboard had stopped vibrating, put his adroit hand upon the keys and changed the painful inharmony into glorious cadence. Then Bach turned and gave salutation to the host.

But the worst of all discord is moral discord. If society and the world are painfully discordant to imperfect man, what must they be to a perfect God! People try to define what sin is. It seems to me that sin is getting out of harmony with God, a disagreement with His holiness, with His purity, with His love, with His commands, our will clashing with His will, the finite dashing against the infinite, the frail against the puissant, the created against the Creator. If 1,000 musicians, with flute and cornet-a-piston, and trumpet, and violoncello, the hautboy, and trombone, and all the wind and stringed instruments that ever gathered in a Dusseldorf jubilee should resolve that they would play out of tune, and put concord to the rack, and make the place wild with shrieking and grating and rasping sounds, they could not make such a pandemonium as that which rages in a sinful soul when God listens to the play of its thoughts, passions and emotion—discord, lifelong discord, maddening discord.

The world pays more for discord than it does for consonance. High prices have been paid for music. One man gave $225 to hear the Swedish songstress in New York, and another $625 to hear her in Providence. Fabulous prices have been paid for sweet sounds, but far more has been paid for discord. The Crimean war cost $1,700,000,000, and the American civil war over $950,000,000, and the war debts of professed Christian nations are about $15,000,000,000. The world pays for this red ticket, which admits it to the saturnalia of broken bones, and death agonies, and destroyed cities, and plowed graves, and destroyed hearts, any amount of money Satan asks. Discord! Discord!

But I have to tell you that the song that the morning stars sang together at the laying of the world's corner stone is to resound again. Mozart's greatest overture was composed one night when he was several times overpowered with sleep, and artists say they can tell the places in the music where he was falling asleep, and places where he awakened. So the overture of the morning stars, spoken of in my text, has been asleep, but it will awaken and be more grandly rendered by the evening stars of the world's existence than by the morning stars, and the vespers will be sweeter than the matins. The work of all good men and women and of all good churches and all reform associations help to bring the race back to the original harmony. The rebellious heart to be attuned, social life to be attuned, commercial ethics to be attuned, internationality to be attuned, hemispheres to be attuned.

In olden times the choristers had a tuning fork with two prongs, and they would strike it on the back of pew or music rack and put it to the air, and then start the tune, and all the other voices would join. In modern orchestra the leader has a complete instrument rightly tuned, and he sounds that, and all the other performers tune the keys of their instruments to make them correspond, and draw the bow over the strings and listen, and sound it over again, until all the keys are screwed to concert pitch, and the discords melt into one great symphony, and the curtain hoists, and the baton taps, and audiences are raptured with Schumann's "Paradise and the Peri," oa Rossini's "Stabat Mater," or Bach's "Magnificat" in D.

Now, our world can never be attuned by an imperfect instrument. Even a Cremona would not do. Heaven has ordained the only instrument, and it is made out of the wood of the cross, and the voices that accompany it are imported voices, cantatrices of the first Christmas night, when Heaven serenaded the earth with "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men." Lest we start too far off, and get lost in generalities, we had better begin with ourselves, get our own hearts and lives in harmony with the eternal Christ. Oh, for His Almighty Spirit to attune us to chord our will with His will, to modulate our life with His life, and bring us into unison with all that is pure, and self-sacrificing, and heavenly! The strings of our nature are all broken and twisted, and the bow is so slack it can not evoke anything mellifluous. The instrument made for Heaven to play on has been roughly twanged and struck by influences worldly and demoniac. O master hand of Christ restore this split, and fractured, and despoiled, and unstrung nature, until first we shall wail out for our sin and then thrill with Divine pardon!

The whole world must also be attune by the same power. I was in a weighing scale manufactory of Vermont. Six hundred hands, and they have never had a strike. Complete harmony between labor and capital, the operatives of scores of years in their beautiful homes near by the mansions of the manufacturers, whose invention and Christian behavior made the great enterprise. So, all the world over, labor and capital will be brought into euphony. You may have heard what is called the "Anvil Chorus," composed by Verdi, a tune played with hammers, great and small, now with mighty stroke, and now with heavy stroke, beating a great iron anvil. That is what the world has got to come to—anvil chorus, yard stick chorus, shuttle chorus, trowel chorus, crowbar chorus, pickax chorus, gold mine chorus, rail track chorus, locomotive chorus. It can be done, and it will be done. So all social life will be attuned by the Gospel harp. There will be as many classes in society as now, but the classes will not be regulated by birth, or wealth, or accident, but by the scale of virtue and benevolence, and people will be assigned to their places as good, or very good, or most excellent. So, also, commercial life will be attuned, and there will be 12 in every dozen and 16 ounces in every pound, and apples at the bottom of the barrel will be as sound as those on the top, and silk goods will not be cotton, and sellers will not have to charge honest people more than the right price because others will not pay, and goods will come to you corresponding with the sample by which you purchased them, and coffee will not be chicoried, and sugar will not be sanded, and milk will not be chalked, and adulteration of food will be a state prison offense. Aye, all things shall be attuned.

In the sixteenth century the singers called the Fischer brothers reached the lowest bass ever recorded, and the highest note ever trilled was by La Pastardella, and Catnlini's voice had a compass of three and a half octaves; but Christianity is more wonderful, for it runs all up and down the greatest heights and the deepest depths of the world's necessity, and it will compass everything and bring it in accord with the song which the morning stars sang at the laying of the world's corner stone. All the sacred music in homes, and concert halls, and churches tends towards this consummation. Make it more and more hearty. Sing in your families. Sing in your places of business. If we with proper spirit use these faculties we are rehearsing for the skies.

Heaven is to have a new song, an entirely new song, but I should not wonder, if sometimes on earth a tune is fashioned out of many tunes, or it is one tune with the variations, so some of the songs of the redeemed may have playing through them the songs of earth; and how thrilling, as coming through the great anthem of the saved, accompanied by harpers and trumpeters with their trumpets, if we should hear some of the strains of Antioch, and Mount Pisgah, and Coronation, and Lenox, and St. Martin's, and Fountain, and Ariel, and Old Hundred! How they would bring to mind the praying circles, and communion days, and the Christmas festivals, and the church worship in which on earth we mingled! I have no idea that when we bid farewell to earth we are to bid farewell to all these grand old Gospel hymns, which melted and raptured our souls for so many years.

If there were but one potato in the world, a careful cultivator might produce 10,000,000,000 from it in ten years, and thus supply the world with seed again.

When the birch is used in prisons the victim's head is put between the front legs and his body drawn tightly over a cushion.

SMALL RIOTS.

Bryan and McKinley Parades at Chicago Come Together.

Sunday Night the Police Were Called Upon to Quell Another—In an All Round Fight Between 15 and 20 People Were Battered and Bruised.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—The police were called on Sunday night to quell a riot on the West Side caused by a clash between the republicans and the free silver democrats. In an all round fight between 15 and 20 people were battered and bruised. The fray took place in front of a republican meeting place at the corner of Union and Madison streets. From a near-by Bryan hall came a crowd of silver men who went out marching.

When they arrived in front of the McKinley hall it is alleged they stopped and commenced shouting for Bryan thereby interrupting the speakers inside. There was a general exit from the hall, the two crowds came together and the fight became so mixed that it is said that the combatants could not tell their friends from their enemies. A riot call was sent into the nearest police station and 25 policemen were sent to the scene.

The police soon restored order and as no one was seriously injured and the crowd involved was so great the matter was overlooked and no arrests made.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Bryan and McKinley forces met in West Madison street Saturday night. Four men were injured and three arrested, two of the latter being liberated when it appeared to the police that they were neither instigators of the riots nor active participants. The trouble necessitated the calling out of extra squads of officers until a whole company was detailed within the two blocks bounded by Desplaines and Halsted streets.

The injured are: Richard Porter, E. J. Proctor, Roger Converse. The trouble began at 6:30 o'clock. The headquarters of the Eighteenth ward silver democrats and republicans are nearly opposite each other, and the crowds which hang about both places came together three times before midnight.

FLOODS IN FRANCE.

Most of the Rivers Out of Their Banks—Many Villages Surrounded by Water.

Paris, Nov. 2.—The Seine has been rising for some days, and has now reached a point that is causing much alarm. Low lying structures along its banks have been flooded and much damage has been done above and below. The river is so full of floating debris that traffic upon it has been stopped.

Most of the other rivers in France are also out of their banks. Many of the villages along the Rhone are completely surrounded by water. At Vallabreques, near Tarascon, the inhabitants have been driven from their homes by the rising waters and are camping in the cemetery, which is situated on high ground.

Near Nimes, department of Gard and Bourg, in the department of Ain, a number of bridges have been swept away. Families living on low ground near the Rhone have taken refuge in the upper stories of their houses, the lower portion being inundated. The district northeast of Nimes has suffered extensively. The bishop of Nimes has gone on a boat to render what assistance he can to the distressed villagers. The inundations are so extensive that the postmen have to use boats to perform their labors.

The plain of Roquemaure is an immense lake. The water is so deep that only the tops of the trees are visible.

The roads northeast of Bourguare are impassable. The inhabitants are terrified as the flood gives promise of increasing.

The islets of Piot and Barthelaise in the Rhone near Avignone, capital of the department of Vaeluse are completely submerged. The inundations are causing much distress and the property loss will be heavy.

A POSSE

Overtakes a Gang of Outlaws—Over a Hundred Shots Fired, but the Bandits Escape Unhurt.

Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 2.—United States Deputy Marshal Thomas and posse came in from Creek county, having been in search of "Dynamite Dick" and his gang of outlaws, who looted Carney and the Sac and Fox agency. They brought with them a team of mules loaded with plunder and a saddle horse which they captured. They came upon three of the outlaws as they were leading their horses up a ravine, and a pitched battle ensued. It was getting dark, and though over a hundred shots were fired nobody was hurt, and the outlaws escaped in the darkness, abandoning mules, baggage and one horse. There is no doubt about their being the Carney gang, led by "Dynamite Dick." A large posse will give chase.

Papal Affairs.

London, Nov. 2.—A dispatch from Rome to the Central News says that the pope will raise the diocese of Buffalo, N. Y., to a metropolitan see, with jurisdiction over Rochester, Syracuse and Elmira. His holiness Sunday received Cardinal Satolli, late papal delegate to the United States, who recently returned to Rome. The pope, it is said, will appoint Bishop Keane, ex-rector of the Catholic university at Washington, a Titular archbishop.

The Vice President in Wheeling.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 2.—Vice President Stevenson and party arrived here from Massillon, O., Saturday morning. From 10 a. m. until noon the vice president was tendered a reception at the Hotel Windsor, thousands of democrats being in line. Saturday afternoon, in company with Gov. MacCorkle and other speakers, he addressed three big meetings in the city.

Died in the Woods.

Red House, W. Va., Nov. 2.—Wm. Smith was found dead in the woods near here. It is supposed that he died in an epileptic fit.

TEXAS TORNADO.

Considerable Damage Done in the Vicinity of Sherman—A Tenement House Demolished and Four Persons Seriously Hurt.

Sherman, Tex., Oct. 29.—A tornado originated about 5:15 o'clock Wednesday evening near Farmington, 16 miles southwest of Sherman and, after forming, took a northeasterly course, passing about three miles east of Sherman. It was seen by hundreds of people in this city. The usual tornado phenomena were prevalent. The barometer registered 29.04, six points lower than it did on May 15, when the disastrous tornado visited this city. Citizens here were much excited and it was some time before any effort was made to learn the extent of the damage. The first destructive work of the storm was noted 12 miles southwest of Sherman, where it demolished a tenement house on the farm of Geo. Duke. No one was hurt at that place and the tornado rose from the earth, striking again at a point about four miles southeast of Sherman, where it demolished a tenement house on the farm of Jim Farris, occupied by a family named Hays. Four members of this family were seriously hurt, and it is reported that Mr. Hays' back is broken. Several persons telephoned from suburban towns asking that searchers be sent out to look for persons who are missing. Necessary articles have been sent out to care for the wounded. It was pitch dark soon after the passage of the storm. A man who was in the Farris field is among the missing. Manager McBride, of the Western Union Telegraph Co., sighted the storm when it was just south of the city, and wired the Denison office to that effect. Denison is 12 miles north of here, and in 30 minutes Mr. McBride received a message stating that the storm was passing east of Denison. This would make it's speed near 25 miles an hour.

A report has just come in that Loving's schoolhouse, four miles east of Sherman was unroofed. The sky lighted up brilliantly during the passage of the storm, but darkness followed.

ARIZONA.

The Territory is Reported to be in a Flourishing Condition by Gov. Franklin.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Hon. Benjamin Franklin, governor of Arizona, has submitted his annual report of the operation of that territory during the last fiscal year.

He says the product of the three months the important industries, mining, stock raising and agriculture gave an aggregate return of over $18,000,000. The mine output was nearly $14,000,000. The population of Arizona is over 100,000, an increase of nearly 25,000 over last year. Taxable property is estimated at $28,047,176, but Gov. Franklin says this does not represent more than one-third of the actual value of property in the territory as it is not assessed at its real value. Over 10,000,000 acres of land may be reclaimed for agricultural purposes, but of this amount only 1,000,000 acres have yet been reclaimed.

Gov. Franklin says that Arizona is without question the most attractive mineral field in the United States as it has coal, lime, lead, copper, gold and silver in abundance and deposits of fine marble, red, black, grey and other grades. The building stone and rich deposits of onyx, or ribbon agate. He says about 40,000,000 acres of the latter in Arizona can be described as mineral bearing, and only needs an introduction of sufficient capital to properly develop it. The output of gold the past year was $5,200,000, nearly a million dollars' increase over the previous year. The financial condition of the territory, the governor says, compares favorably with any other territory, and the banks are in good condition. There are about 38,000 Indians in the territory.

GEORGIA LEGISLATURE.

No Contests for Any of the Offices—Five Candidates for the U. S. Senate.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 29.—The Georgia legislature met at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and was immdiately organized. There was no contest for any of the offices, all of them being settled by the caucus. Hon. Robert Berner was elected president of the senate; Hon. C. G. Gray, president pro tem; Hon. A. H. Jenkins, of Putnam, was elected speaker; Hon. W. A. Dodson, of Sumpter, speaker pro tem., Hon. Mark Hardin, clerk.

No business was done beyond the formal organization. The legislature has before it a hot contest for the United States senatorship, precipitated by the sudden death of Hon. Charles F. Crisp, who would have been unanimously chosen. There are five candidates including Gov. Atkinson.

LIFT FOR FARMERS.

The Hated Russian Thistle is Worth $1.50 a Ton.

Chamberlain, S. D., Oct. 29.—As a result of experiments last winter the mill at Castalia will again this winter use the Russian thistle for fuel in place of coal. The proprietor of the mill offers farmers $1.50 per ton for all the thistles they can bring in. Thus the farmers in that section will receive an income from what has heretofore been one of their greatest enemies, the thistles growing in such profusion in some localities that small grain has been completely crowded out.

Hotel Burned.

Gadsden, Ala., Oct. 29.—The Alabama hotel, W. P. Sheehan proprietor, at Attalla, was destroyed by fire Tuesday night. Three firemen were seriously injured by falling timber. Fireman Cox is dying. He had both thighs broken. Two spectators were also seriously injured.

Thomson Steel Works Resume.

Braddock, Pa., Oct. 29.—The Edgar Thomson steel works at this place will resume operations Thursday in all departments, giving employment to more than 2,000 men. The works have been practically idle for a month.

EXCEPTIONS

Taken to the New Courtmartial of Correspondent Milton.

Spanish Bankers Loan the Government $80,000,000 for War Purposes—A Later Loan to Be Made Guaranteed by the Tobacco Monopoly.

Havana, Nov. 2, via Tampa, Fla.—Owing to a notice of protest from Consul General Lee, filed just previous to his departure from Washington, taking exceptions to the new courtmartial of the correspondent, Melton, Capt. Laborde, of the Competitor, and other members of the vessel's crew, commenced in Fortress Cabana, recently, the proceedings in the case have been temporarily suspended, though a summons has been published in local papers requiring various witnesses to appear and file written evidence against the prisoners and one member of the expedition, Geo. Ferran, who, after landing, surrendered to the Spanish authorities and was pardoned under Weyler's amnesty decree, having since resided under parole with his family in Guanabace, has just been arrested and thrown into jail awaiting the trial as a witness.

James Brown, a British subject and prominent in Havana business circles, has been imprisoned on a political charge.

London, Nov. 2.—The Standard Monday publishes a dispatch from Madrid saying that the loan to be made to the government by Spanish bankers, announcement of which was made to the cabinet on Thursday last, amounts to 400,000,000 pesetas (about $80,000,000) nominal, redeemable in eight years and bearing five per cent interest. Of this amount 20,000,000 pesetas was used to pay the Spanish Trans-Atlantic Steamship Co. the arrears due it for transporting troops to Cuba; 50,000,000 pesetas will be devoted to the reimbursement of the Bank of Spain for its latest disturbances; 63,000,000 pesetas for the reimbursement of the Bank de Paris et du Pais and the remainder for war expenses in Cuba.

Senor Canovas del Castillo, the prime minister, in announcing the subject of the loan, said the issue would be made in December and would be guaranteed by the customs.

The government hopes to later issue a loan of a thousand million pesetas, guaranteed by the tobacco monopoly.

NO CORNER IN MONEY.

The Stringency Was Brought on by Steady Withdrawals.

New York, Nov. 2.—Fifteen of the largest banks in New York have arranged a syndicate, or money pool, by which it is intended to prevent the renewal of any such conditions in the money market as developed Thursday. Individual members of the syndicate are not yet named, because since the formation of the pool, applications have been received and are constantly coming in from other banks wishing tu join the agreement. On the stock exchange Thursday all day there was such a scarcity of money offered on call as to force rates up to the sensational figures of 100 per cent. a year, which naturally resulted in a sharp decline in the stock market. As everybody acquainted with the situation knows, the resources of the banks have been greatly curtailed on account of the general uneasiness in regard to the political situation, and there has been going on for weeks a steady withdrawal on accounts, not only from the savings banks but from all other depository institutions. The present stringency in the money market, therefore, is not unnatural, and there is no foundation whatever for the current foolish talk of a corner in money.

GEN. LEE.

The Consul General Sails From Havana for the United States.

Havana, Nov. 2.—Consul General Lee sailed Sunday for New York on board the Ward line steamer Vigilancia. Capt. Gen. Weyler sent an adjutant aboard the steamer to bid him adieu. A number of Gen. Lee's personal friends also went on board the steamer to see him off.

Gen. Lee was very reserved as to the true motives of his journey. The only thing he would say was that he would see President Cleveland in Washington. Maj. Fondevelille reports that his command had an engagement Sunday on the outskirts of Cojimar, near Havana, with 2,500 rebels led by La Crete and Aguirre. The first report placed the rebel loss at 27 killed, but a later one says that 52 were killed. The loss of the troops was one captain and 14 privates.

Injured in a Hotel Fire.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 2.—The Carlinos hotel, at 112 Main street was destroyed by fire at an early hour Sunday morning. There were 22 persons in the building when the fire started. All but nine of them escaped uninjured; three were women, one of whom, an unknown, was burned to death. The injured are: Matt Speak, Mike Weidger, Henry Miller, Mrs. Henry Miller, Charles Miller, Henry Miller, jr., Lottie Smith and an unknown boy. All are expected to recover.

McKinley's Campaign Closed.

Canton, O., Nov. 2.—With Saturday's demonstration the work of the campaign at Maj. McKinley's home was practically closed. The names of only a few visiting delegations appeared on the schedule for Saturday.

Damages for a Cycler's Death.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 2.—George T. Pearson, administrator, has instituted suit for $25,000 damages against the Coliseum Co. for the death of William R. Pearson, a bicycle rider, who died from injuries received while training on the Coliseum track last August.

Accidentally Shot by His Wife.

Vandalia, Ill., Nov. 2.—Edward Armstrong went quail hunting, accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Armstrong, who was using a hammerless gun, accidentally shot her husband, the charge entering his head, killing him instantly.

WEALTHY ENGLISH ACTORS.

Many Have Made the Bulk of Their Fortunes in America.

The richest living actor is Mr. Bancroft, and the beginning of his fortune, which is said to be nearly $1,500,000, was made at a little theater in Tottenham court road, known in its day as the Queen's. Mr. Bancroft received $30,000 per annum from Beerbohm Tree in the form of rent for the Haymarket theater, which he purchased some 15 years ago.

Sir Henry Irving gives away thousands of dollars every year to less fortunate brothers and sisters on the stage. Unfortunate actors have not a better or more willing friend, Wilson Barrett perhaps excepted, than the "Knight of the Stage." Were it not for this fact, Sir Henry would probably be very rich. His productions, even costing, as they frequently do, as much as $100,000 to stage, have scarcely ever proved financial failures, while his tours in this country, where he is most popular, have brought him enormous sums of clear profit. His first two tours in America cleared for him above $450,000, and his last trip is said to have increased his banking account to the tune of $300,000.

The Kendals have also made large fortunes here, where they have always met with greater success than at home. By two trips taken in 1889 and 1890 they cleared $600,000, which they have increased very considerably by doing the provinces in England.

J. L. Toole, in spite of his popularity in London, has never made any very big sums out of his metropolitan productions. In Australia and in the provinces he is more appreciated than in London, and he has had great financial prosperity. His Australian tour, made some six years ago, put some $80,000 into his pocket, and his fortune is now said to exceed $400,000.

George Conquest, whose right name is Oliver, inherited from his father $350,000, which he is said to have doubled during the many years he has run the Surrey theater with such conspicuous success. His yearly pantomimes, although costing enormous sums to produce, have always added largely to his wealth

Mrs. Sara Lane is probably the richest woman in the profession. Her productions at the Britannia theater, Hoxton, have ever met with success only equaled by her own enormous popularity at this seat of blood-and-thunder drama. Her theater, which is nightly filled from floor to roof by most enthusiastic audiences, only holds $500, but in 52 years she has, by careful management and judicious catering, succeeding in accumulating a fortune of more than $900,000.

Charles Wyndham has made a considerable fortune since he first took the Criterion theater 11 years ago. His productions have always been very successful, and his wealth is estimated at $500,000.

Beerbohm Tree is another actor who has been enormously successful, but the exact amount of his fortune is not known. It is, however, acknowledged to be very large.

W. S. Penley has made a fortune out of "Charley's Aunt." Indeed, if reports are to be believed, the amount of the fortune exceeds $1,000,000; and this is quite possible, considering the years this play has been running, not only in London, but all over the world. Edward Terry, whose successes in Australia have been much greater than his successes in England, is the lucky possessor of some $200,000, a considerable portion of which was made out of "Sweet Lavender." Charles Warner is somewhat of a go-as you-please gentleman, and contents himself with a fortune of approximately $150,000; while Mrs. Langtry is said to be worth about $1,000,000.—Hartford Times.

Alabama Steel.

All Alabama will rejoice when told that steel from Alabama iron can be made at a profit. The experiment has been tried several times and with results that have seemed encouraging, but the steel industry has not obtained that foothold in the state that was predicted and so earnestly hoped for. There was no question but that when steel came to be made here cheaply, a new industrial era would dawn for Alabama. We believe the time has at last arrived. The tests of the Hawkins process have been going on for some time in Birmingham, and have been noticed by us. Now, we are informed, the last doubt has been removed. Alabama iron will produce good steel.—Mobile Register.

Europe's Population.

Within the last decade the population of Europe has increased by about 30,000,000, of whom Russia contributed 12,519,000 and France only 67,000.

Twin Evils.

Misfortunes and imprudence are often twins.—Ram's Horn.

HOW HE GOT EVEN.

Virginia Justice Has a Grudge Against the National Capital.

A Washington man who had some business before one of the smaller courts in a Virginia county went down there on a recent Saturday to attend to it. He found the judge before whom the matter came, and as it was merely a pro forma proceeding he had no anticipation of trouble in getting it done. When the matter was presented the judge said:

"No, sah; if I transact that business for you I will have to open co't, and I will not open co't for any Washington man on Saturday."

"Why not?" asked the astonished capital city man.

"Because, sah, I went down to Washington on a Saturday not long ago and not a single judge was sitting in the co't. I am an attorney, sah, an attorney admitted to practice in Washington co'ts, and yet because it was a Saturday, I was not allowed to practice there, sah, when I had some vital points to make, sah."

"Well, I am not blamed for that," said the man from Washington; "you ought not to hold me responsible for what the judges do or do not do."

"It makes no difference, sah; you are a part of the system, a devilish bad system, sah, and you must help to reform it, sah, and you are the first man I have had opportunity to impress my views upon, and I am going to make them felt. Go home and inform your system of Saturday co'ts, and then come to me, sah."

And Virginia got even with Washington in one case.—Washington Star.

DISPOSITIONS OF ANIMALS.

Horses and Dogs, Like Human Beings, Have Individuality.

Readers who are familiar with animal life know that a general statement can hardly be made as to the traits of animals of a given species. Foxes, for instance, have the reputation of being cunning, but all foxes are certainly not cunning, and this disposition manifests itself in diverse ways in different foxes. Even when you get an animal of a standard breed, for instance a Gordon setter, you can hardly venture to say that your dog will resemble either in sagacity or affection another dog of the same strain. There is almost as much difference in dogs as in men, and there often seems to be but little more identity of disposition in dogs of the same breed than in boys of the same family. Horses have a marked individual character, and one of the great pleasures of owning a horse is that of studying his character and adjusting your treatment of him to his individual disposition. Some horses develop the most touching confidence in their masters, and even in the midst of apparent danger will remain undisturbed if a well-known hand holds the reins. Other horses seem to be impervious to the finer influences of human companionship. If animals have souls their souls are as individual as their bodies.—Boston Watchman.

VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

The Predicament Through Which a Young Man Lost His Best Girl.

A young man quite well known in Cumminsville was placed in a sorry predicament one night last week, but it was not wholly his fault, as he was a victim of circumstances, having been out of work for some time. On the night in question he was one of a party that accompanied a number of young ladies to Chester Park. He had delayed going until the last moment, chiefly on account of the faded condition of his hat, a derby that had seen considerable service. However, a bright idea struck him, and to remedy the defect he concluded to give the dilapidated tile a generous bath of ink. After it had been thoroughly coated he dried it out, polished it up, and it presented a fair appearance. At the park the young man was one of the gayest of the gay, but on the way home it began raining, and he being without an umbrella the effect of the water on the derby soon manifested itself. The ink ran off the hat down over his shirt bosom, and a considerable portion of it got mixed up in his best girl's white dress. The couple journeyed home through the rain in the dark, and not until the light at the young lady's home was turned on was their condition revealed Now they don't speak.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Argon and Water.

Prof. Villard, of the Ecole Normale in Paris, has succeeded in making the newly discovered and obdurate gas, argon, combine with water; it required a pressure of 200 atmospheres to coerce it into this combination. The compound is colorless and crystallizes very prettily when kept cool.

The Reform Takes All Her Time.

The woman who marries a man to reform him, has no time to take proper care of her complexion.—Ram's Horn.

FEMININE PORTRAITS.

The Exaggeration Seen in Japanese and Greek Art.

While Japanese designs are usually very various, when they come to depict feminine beauty they exhibit a single type, which we find identical on all the "Kakemono." It is a strange kind of beauty, with the face greatly elongated, the nose continuing the profile of the forehead, and the eyes excessively oblique; a beauty rare enough in Japan, where the plebeian woman's face is short and round, but which may be found in the patricians and in the courtesans of high rank. We can prove the exaggeration here by figures. In the Japanese photographs the line of the eyes forms an angle of from two to seven degrees with the horizontal. This is said by some authors to be only in appearance, but M. Regalia has proved its reality by measurements of the cranial orbits. In the Japanese drawings the line makes an angle of from 35 to 44 degrees. A comparison of these with old drawings of the eighteenth century will show that the exaggeration has become much more marked in the present century.

The Grecian portrait seems the perfection of the human type to us, and artists copy it, although it is actually rare. In it the line of the nose is more or less perfectly the prolongation of the line of the forehead. The hollow at the root of the nose is almost effaced, and the prominence of the nose is softened. The absolute Grecian profile would therefore be represented in a drawing by a single continuous line for the forehead and nose. Yet another condition is essential for obtaining the fine Grecian profile. The forehead should not be receding. This marks the distinction between the Grecian and the Egyptian profile.—F. Regnault, in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly.

RAILWAY MILEAGE.

Interesting Facts Gleaned by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The aggregate mileage on June 30, 1805, was, according to the eighth annual report on the statistics of railways in the United States, 180,657.47, being an increase during the year covered by the report of 1,948.92. It was noted in last year's report that the increase in mileage for the year ending June 30, 1894, was relatively less than for any previous year since the organization of the commission, the per cent. of increase for that year being 1.27. The per cent. of increase for the year ending June 30, 1895, is but 1.09, showing a yet further decline in railway construction. From current indications, however, it may be expected that the year ending June 30, 1896, will show greater activity in the extension of railway facilities.

Such increase in railway mileage as has taken place does not seem to have been localized, but, on the contrary, to have been fairly well distributed. Arizona leads in railway construction, with a new mileage of 247.41 miles; Illinois shows an increase of 188.70 miles; Pennsylvania an increase of 157 miles; Maine an increase of 132.86 miles; Texas an increase of 110.41 miles; Montana an increase of 105.79 miles; these being the only territory and states which show an increase in railway mileage over 100 miles. Attention has been called in previous reports to the steady and continuous extension of railway facilities in the southern states; the present report shows this tendency to have been in some degree arrested.

SAFETY APPLIANCE.

By Which Balloons May Be Controlled by the Aeronaut.

So many terrible disasters to aeronauts have from time to time been recorded that it is pleasant to learn that in the near future ballooning may be as safe as any other form of locomotion.

An Italian aeronaut, named Capazza, has invented two balloon attachments, which are said to have fully realized the expectations formed of them. The one is an enormous parachute stretched over the balloon, and the other a folded inverted parachute hanging under the basket.

If the aeronaut finds that his balloon is rising too fast, he opens the folded parachute, which immediately acts as a huge air brake, and effectually retards progress. On the other hand, should the air vessel explode through expansion, fire, or any other cause, the top parachute comes into action, and a descent may be made without the slightest inconvenience.

A Great Mind.

Contention and disputation are not the mark of either a great mind or a calm, sweet spirit. The thinker quietly does his best to make his meaning clear, but if there is still lack of perception on the part of his hearers, he simply waits for that justification which time is sure to bring.—James Mudge.

—The tarantula is named from its abundance in the vicinity of Taranto.

SUPERSTITION AND SCIENCE.

Is It Dangerous to Sleep in the Moonlight?

The fact that it is dangerous to sleep with the moonlight falling on one's head has always been known to superstitious, and has always been denied by scientific, men. A man may sleep in the moonlight on the deck of a ship in the tropics, and awake either mad or imbecile, but the ship's doctor will scout the idea that the moonlight has had anything to do with the man's misfortune, whereas the superstitious man knows the danger of sleeping in the moonlight as well as he knows the danger of starting a journey on Friday. The discovery of the Roentgen rays will prove that in this matter of moonshine the superstitious man has been right, and the merely scientific man has been wrong. Recently a man's brain was examined by aid of the Roentgen rays, which were used to make his skull transparent, and the next day it was found that the rays had turned the man's hair perfectly white wherever they had struck it. The Roentgen rays exist in both sunlight and moonlight. If these rays, when given out by an electric light, can turn the hair gray, may they not, when given off by moonlight, have the power to affect the brain of the sleeper who has exposed his head to them? If so, we have a satisfactory explanation of the perfectly well ascertained fact that it is dangerous to sleep in the moonlight, especially in the tropics. Before very long scientific men will gravely announce that they have made this important discovery, and science will then be able to boast the possession of one more grain of truth.—Pearson's Magazine.

WAGES OF WAITER GIRLS.

They Make More Than in Other Lines of Work.

The girl waiters in a first-class lunchroom are paid more than the average of women workers at other employments. They receive eight dollars a week and their meals for working eight hours a day, four dollars for half time, five hours, and thirty-three cents for four hours of extra work. It is unskilled labor. No previous experience is required, and there is a great deal of competition for that reason. The "tip" is almost unknown to the lunchroom woman waiter.

"We have to work hard," said one girl, talking of her labors one day, "but it is easy to learn how to do the work. I had never waited on a table before, and I began on full time. But you never did see anything like the way people act here when there's a crowd. They will not do a thing unless you say please. I come along with a lot of boiling hot coffee and call 'One side,' but three of them will stand right in the middle of the floor until I say 'One side, please.' We do not get 'tips' very often, although one of our young women got $2.70 one election night. A gentleman gave me fifty cents once, and sometimes we get five cents or ten cents. A man gave one of the girls a penny once. She did not look at it until after he was gone. Perhaps he thought it was a five-cent or ten-cent piece."—N. Y. Times.

Birds in London.

The mutations of bird-life in London are an interesting study. It was but as far back as the reign of the second George that the fields around Hanover square, in which a spring of crystal water bubbled up, were frequented by snipe and woodcocks, which were there shot by sportsmen; and in the early part of the present century—well within the memory of living people—rooks, magpies and kites built in the elms which surrounded St. Giles' church. They were the ancestors of the rooks which still colonize in Gray's Inn gardens. They survived the progress of civilization, but the magpies and kites found no resting place. Also within the memory of many, on the site where Belgrave and Eaton squares were built in 1825, there were marshy fields which were the haunt of the wild goose, the plover, the mallard and the snipe.—St. James' Gazette.

Chasing a Dummy Rabbit.

In the absence of live rabbits the Presidio club inaugurated a new sport which is quite likely to supersede the original game. It is the running of a stuffed hare by the dogs. To do this an inverted bicycle with the tire off one of the wheels was located at one end of the field. A string, wound around the tireless wheel, stretched 125 yards off, where it was tied to a stuffed hare. The "winder" or wheelman waited for the signal and began turning the wheel so as to haul in the string and the rabbit, which the dogs tried to overtake. In one instance only did the terriers reach the game.—San Francisco Call.

—The older men get, the more they admire the woman who can go into a meat market, and put her hand on a good piece of meat.—Atchison Globe.

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
—OF UP TO DATE—
CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
THE KEYSTONE DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN.
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
A. C. BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.
Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.
Write for circulars.
AEROMETER
EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.
COME AND SEE IT.
T. J. HUGHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

1896.
Your County Paper
Is the One to
Subscribe for,
It Gives all the
Neighborhood News,
Court News and
General News.
The Campaign is Now On and will be of unusual interest, and
The Recorder
Will Keep you
Posted on the Campaign.
15c Will Pay for it until
DEC. 1, 1896.
Or $1.50 will Pay for it for Twelve
Long Months.
Give It a Trial and Help
Along Home EnterPrise.

E. H. RIGGS,
—Dealer in—
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
—CEMENT, ETC.—
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

NOTICE.

All persons holding claims against J. R. Clutterbuck must present them to me at my office in Burlington, Ky., proven as by law required and persons indebted to the said Clutterbuck must settle with me at once.

S. W. TOLIN, Assignee.
Sept. 10th, 1896.

Wm. F. GOETZE
Scientific
Optician.
Headquarters at Hornberger's
Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.
Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

THE QUEEN &
CRESCENT
ROUTE
Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain.
The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.
Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.
Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.
Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1896. NO. 3.

THE Democracy of this Congressional district stood squarely up to the work.

AT Mayfield, Ohio, a girl fell while dancing and broke both her arms. Moral—Don't dance.

THE Boltercrats not only bolted the Chicago convention, but most of them bolted the Indianapolis convention also.

MAJOR MCKINLEY will find himself besieged by not less than sixteen applicants for every one office he has at his disposal.

MR. BRYAN says the silver cause is not dead, and that he will continue to labor for its advancement for the next four years.

WHEN Major McKinley enters the White House he will find himself surrounded by persons of conflicting interests that will cause him many a restless night.

CHICAGO cast 46,000 votes more for President than the city of New York polled. The Windy City has the call on the eastern metropolis from a political stand point.

THE Republicans are now able to elect a member of their party to the United States Senate, and this fact will be the main cause prompting the Governor to call a special session of the legislature.

IT is about settled that there will be a special session of the Legislature this winter. The Republicans will be able to elect a United States Senator, which will be one inducement for calling the extra session.

EVERY man must be conceded the right to change his politics and vote as he pleases, but when he changes his politics with a view to political emoluments he soon learns that no one has any use for him. For example—W. C. P. Breckinridge.

THE newspapers over in Johnny Bulldom were very much elated over Major McKinley's election, but they took advantage of the occasion to remind the Major that he must go slow on the tariff question. The English do not want Uncle Sam to adopt another high tariff.

IN 1892 Cleveland received 277 electoral votes, and the Democrats thought they had captured the country for years to come, but at the next election they encountered a reverse, and now comes another landslide against them—worse than that of 1892 against the Republicans. Who can tell anything about politics anyhow?

AS soon as the Democrats were satisfied that the Republicans had won the election, Mr. Bryan sent Major McKinley the following dispatch: "Senator Jones has just informed me that the returns indicate your election, and I hasten to extend my congratulations. We have submitted the issue to the American people, and their will is law."

MR. HODGE, who, by the grace of the Democrats is chairman of the Congressional District Committee, is not the man to be at the head of the party organization in the district. He is not in accord with the party, and his resignation ought to be demanded. The Commercial Tribune of last Thursday morning, says of him:

"He never at any time had much faith in the election of Bryan and did not hesitate to say so. Nor did he hesitate to say that he thought that it was for the good of the business interests of the country for McKinley to win. Hodge is a business man himself and he knows what it means for the commercial interests of the country to be hanging on the possibility of a lot of irresponsible agitators undertaking to bring about a change in our monetary system."

Mr. Hodge should be given the bounce at once. There are a number of good Democrats in the district who would look to the party interest, and at least know how to keep their mouths closed during a campaign.

ELECTION ECHOES.

The silent vote did the business.

The Prohibition candidate received 36 votes in Boone.

The Republicans have everything going their way in Kentucky.

The result in this Congressional District shows that Col. Berry made a great race.

It is strange that voters cannot learn how to vote the Australian ballot correctly.

W. C. P. Breckinridge thought he had found a home in the "log cabin," but there was no comfort there for Billy.

The Democratic clubs, and the local speakers, are entitled to credit for the large Democratic vote polled in this county.

There were about 25 votes in the Burlington precinct that were not cast. Five or six of these were not able to go to the polls.

Senator Voorhees will be given a political rest after the 4th of March. The Indiana legislature will succeed him with a Republican.

Democrats are rejoicing over the defeat of Col. Breckinridge. They regard him a worse enemy to Democracy than Major McKinley is.

Burnam beat Judge Pryor for Judge of the Court of Appeals. Pryor is recognized as one of the best judges that ever graced the bench in Kentucky.

The Palmer and Buckner vote in this county was so small that it was entirely overlooked in our report last week. They received 13 votes in the county.

A bogus election report reached here last Wednesday evening that set most of the Democrats wild with joy. The report gave Bryan the electoral College by a few votes.

Our friend, J. L. Frazier, of Union, has proven himself a political prophet. On the Monday before the election of Tuesday week, he told the RECORDER that 1,200 votes would catch the majority in Kentucky no matter which way it went. He out guessed the professional politicians.

Beginning with 1872 the Electoral College has stood as follows: In 1872—Democrats, 42; Republicans, 286. 1876—Democrats 184; Republicans, 185. 1880—Democrats, 155; Republicans, 214. 1884—Democrats, 218; Republicans, 182. 1888—Democrats, 168; Republicans, 233. 1892—Democrats, 277; Republicans, 145; People's Party, 22. It has been a very changeable body.

The largest and juciest plum in this congresssional district is the Collectorship, and already several names have been mentioned in connection with that desirable position, among them that of Hon. T. B. Mathews, of Petersburg. In the matter of political sagacity no Republican in the district out classes Mr. Mathews, and as to qualifications for the place no better equipped man can be found in his party. His party services in the past entitle him to the office, and the RECORDER would be glad to see him appointed.

THE smoke of battle has cleared away, and while the Democrats are badly snowed under the cause for which they did battle still lives and will continue to grow in strength so long as the country remains in its present condition. The new administration will have to do something to bring about a change for the better, and should it not be able to make good the promises the leaders gave out during the campaign, the silver advocates will have a walk-over in 1900.

AFTER providing for the faithful in his own party, Major McKinley will discover that he will have very little—in fact nothing—left for the new comers to his party, who are claiming that they made his success possible.

AND Kentucky tried to make it a stand off.

POLITICAL.

The Senatorial bee has begun buzzing in Gov. Bradley's cap again.

L. L. Bristow has withdrawn from the race for the legislature in Scott county.

And Georgetown, the Belle of the Blue Grass, is now a Republican city. That may look well, but it sounds awful.—News.

The Republicans say they will revenge Breckinridge's defeat by making him United States Senator over Joe Blackburn when the next Legislature meets.—Georgetown News.

The success of the Democratic city ticket was, to a certain extent, a surprise to the public and we believe even to some of the candidates who won. There had been no organization and less direction, and that a party thus circumstanced should win in a year when political allegiance seemed to rest so lightly upon so many voters only serves to demonstrate the national cohesiveness of the Democracy. Custom and tradition, perhaps, more strongly than anything else held them together, and acting from a common impulse they stuck to the ticket from end to end an thus pulling it through by a fair majority.—Commonwealth.

The Baltimore Sun says that when Governor-elect Joseph F Johnston, of Alabama, is inaugurated he will stand upon a foundation of silver. The heels of his shoe will be covered with plates of the white metal. W. H. Council, president of the Colored State Normal and Industrial School, at Normal, Ala., has just had manufactured a pair of patent leather shoes, which will be worn by Governor Johnston at his inaugural. The shoes are the handiwork of negro students. On the solid silver heel plates are carved horseshoes. Within the horseshoe of the left plat is this: "Made and presented to His Excellency, Joseph F. Johnston, Governor of the State of Alabama, by the State Normal and Industrial Normal and Industrial School, Normal Ala."

Hon. Will Lyons, of Newport, was interviwed by the Covington Commonwealth, on the Senatorial question in this State. He said:

"We have clearly a majority in the House, and you can set it down as certain that the Senator chosen at a special session this season will be either a Republican or a sound money Democrat. If Hunter is a candidate he will have many friends. If he is out of the race and a Republican be chosen, Holt will be the man. If a sound money Democrat stands any show it will be Buckner.

"Carlisle, if put up, would be killed by Blackburn's friends. As to Breckinridge I for one would not vote for him and there are many others on both sides of the House who hold that the moral character of a United States Senator must be somewhat better than that of Breckinridge. Judge Boyle does not stand well with the fighting element of his party. The talk of Governor Bradley being elected is all moonshine, he was elected Governor for four years and as such he will remain until his term expires. If he should be chosen we would have to fight for Governor next November with chances of a Democrat being elected. The Republicans are taking no such chances voluntarily."

THE boys over at Union do not propose to abandon their political organization, notwithstanding the recent land-slide.

IT is very evident that Breckinridge would contest Settle's election if there was a single ground upon which to base a contest.

IT is said that Major McKinley will be asked to recognize the Kentucky Boltocrats by providing Gen. Buckner with a foreign portfolio, to all of which many prominent Kentucky Republicans are expected to agree and join in the request.

One of the greatest curiosities in the United States, or in the world, perhaps, is the wonderful ledge of ice which exists, even in the midst of the hottest summer, in Scott county, Va. This natural icehouse is situated on the north side of Stone mountain and about six miles from the mouth of a small stream known as Stony creek. The marvel is said to have been known to at least one of the early settlers, a Mr. Danridge, who, it is alleged, discovered it while deer hunting away back in 1830. Owing to the fact that the land on which it was situated could not be bought, Mr. Danridge positively refused to tell of the whereabouts of the ice ledge, and only visited the place when it was absolutely necessary to obtain a supply to be used in case of sickness.

The old man died many years ago, and from that time until 1893 the location of Danridge's ice mine was unknown, the old gentleman having never even taken his own family into the secret.

In the year last mentioned, however, a party of herb diggers visited the unfrequented region contiguous to Stone mountain and were fortunate enough to rediscover the lost ice mine.

During two or three months in the middle of summer the ice is only protected from the sun's rays by a thick growth of moss. The formation of the ice layer is similar to that of a coal vein, being thin in some places and thicker in others, the average thickness being about four feet. Persons of some scientific attainments who have visited the place for the purpose of studying the wonder say that it has the appearance of having been there since the time of the ice age, which the geologists talk so much about. Another plausible theory is that somewhere beneath the bed is situated a great natural laboratory where either is constantly formed and expelled, and that the process of freezing is now constantly going on. Whatever view is taken it is one of the greatest natural wonders the state affords.—St. Louis Republic.

CROP AND STOCK.

The crop of winter apples is expected to reach 59,000,000 barrels.

Chariton Alexander, Sr., shipped 43 cars of the finest fat bullocks that have left here this season. They were shipped to Schwarzschild & Sulzberger, New York, and went out on a special train over the L. & N. and C. H. & D. These cattle will be exported to England for Christmas beeves for her Majesty's subjects to feast on. These cattle are shipped in Mr. Alexander's name, but belong to farmers in Bourbon. Mr. Alexander's fine cattle is still on his fine blue grass farm, rolling in fat.—Kentuckian.

Warren county's cattle raising industry is expected to bring at least $100,000 to that county this month. Choice cattle to the value of $50,000 will be shipped direct to the foreign markets and other herds will go out to supply the domestic markets and bring another $50,000. A cattle raiser talking to the Park City Times says: "This is not a bad showing for Warren county in the cattle industry. It ought to have some sort of influence on business, too, to have $100,000 brought into the county within the next month. These cattle, of course, are sold for spot cash, and this sale ought to put considerable money into circulation. Warren county farmers have for several years been turning greater attention to cattle raising than formerly and the export buyers particularly now visit us regularly as they do other sections of the State."

AT one precinct in Central Kentucky Palmer and Buckner received one vote, and now there are sixteen ex-Democrats in the precinct, who are claiming it as their vote.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup'nt of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, Sam S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M. Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W Lester.
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill. Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George; Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; I. F. Dempsey. H. S. Irwin. Secretary-Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday alter second Monday; Add Riddell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896
AT WALTON, KY.
Three Courses of Study to choose from: English, Scientific or Classical,
Tuition per month for Higher Branches.................. $3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches.................. 2.50
We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2.00 for five days.
Teachers { Mrs. S. H. MYERS. / CHAS. F. PRIOR. / Rev. S. H. MYERS.
Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky. | OSCAR GAINES Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. COWEN, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administratrix Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of L. E. Clore, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

ANNIE L. CLORE, Adm'rx.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON,
DENTIST,
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
MAIN OFFICE—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

W. E. VEST. B. L. RICE.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL,.................. $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 17,000
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN.................. $50,000
SURPLUS,.................. $ 2.600
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE

STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:50 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 2:50 pm; 4:30 pm;
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 8:30 am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm. Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5:15 pm.
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:10 am; 10:00 am; 12:40 pm; 3:00 pm; 4:45 pm.
ELIHU ALDEN, Master.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON. : : : KY.

NOVEMBER—1896.

Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
8	9	10	11	12	13	14
15	16	17	18	19	20	21
22	23	24	25	26	27	28
29	30	....	....	....	....	....

CURRENT TOPICS.

THE London Globe advises Spain to let Cuba go.

RUSSIA denies that she will postpone currency reform.

ONE-THIRD of the females of France over 14 years of age are farm laborers.

A PENNSYLVANIA law forbids political parades in the ten days before election.

"OKLAHOMA BILL," once a member of the Dalton gang committed suicide at Kansas City.

THE exact distance to either the north or south pole from the equator is 6,000 miles.

A BAND of Arkansans, with Capt. Frank Moritz, have gone to Cuba to fight the Spanish.

THE greatest velocity attained by a whale when struck by a harpoon is nine miles an hour.

W. Y. ATKINSON was the other day inaugurated for the second time as governor of Georgia.

H. L. WASHINGTON, of Texas, has been appointed United States consul at Alexandretta, Syria.

IT is quite a common thing in Shanghai for needy natives to pawn their idols in order to buy food.

A FRENCH autograph collector says the signature of Christopher Columbus can always find a buyer at $4,000.

THE largest hammer is in the Krupp gun works, Essen, Germany. It was made in 1880 and weighs 150 tons.

FIVE apples weighing a pound each grown in Daviess county, Mo., were brought to Bethany for exhibition.

THE queen of Portugal is the most dressy woman in Europe. She buys costumes, bonnets and hats wholesale.

THE Chicago Trades and Labor assembly, after baffling with internal dissensions for some time, was formally disbanded.

THERE is a house in Paris occupied by over 50 tenants who for 20 years have never paid any rent, the landlord being unknown.

THE superior court of Boston has handed down a learned opinion in which "Yankee Doodle" is declared to be not a sacred tune.

EX-GOV. NORTHEN, of Georgia, is making an energetic and successful effort to bring immigrants to that state. He has established some fifty agencies in Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin.

A GREAT future is expect for the Alaska candlefish, which run in vast schools along the coast of the territory. The candlefish is about ten inches in length, and serves the natives for oil as well as food. The oil is said to be equal to that taken from codlivers.

WHO says that woman is not able to take care of herself? Within a period of a few days a 12-year-old girl in New York has captured a burglar, a young woman has driven off a highwayman and a married woman has held fast to a pickpocket until she could hand him over to the police.

"ROBBING Peter to pay Paul" is said to have originated in an act of the church government of England in 1550. At that time the Cathedral of St. Paul, in London, being out of repair and no funds available, a portion of the income of Westminster, which was consecrated to St. Peter, was diverted to the repair of St. Paul's.

WHAT a pity that some means less expensive than artificial cold storage can not be discovered for preserving the apple crop, when there is an enormous yield like that of this year, until a year when there is practically a failure. The aggregate yield this year in this country is about 59,000,000 barrels, largely in excess of the demand.

AFTER careful inquiry, it is said that the English professional man heads the list as the tallest of adult males, reaching an average height of 5 feet 9 inches and a fraction over. The next fullest men are Americans, only a fraction less tall than their English brothers. The majority of the European nations average 5 feet 6 inches for the adult male, but the Portugese, Austrians and Spaniards are a little short of this.

THE latest reports from Paris show that diphtheria, as a fatal disease, has practically disappeared from that city. In September last not a single fatal case was reported. Formerly the average number of deaths from it in that month in the French capital was as high as 20. Thanks to the antitoxin experiments in Paris 35 weeks of the present year have passed there without a single death from the once dreaded malady.

THE queen of Denmark, who, although 78 years of age, still retains her vivacity and charm, declares that the only way she keeps young is by having young people about her. She always has a houseful of them.

QUEEN VICTORIA has presented to Mr. Edmund Chandler, of Fressingfield, Suffolk, a portrait of herself, with an inscription recording that he had assisted to ring the bells of the parish church on every birthday of her majesty since her accession. He was born on February 29, 1812, and so jokingly claims that he has just come of age. His father was a ringer, and so is a grandson.

ANNUAL REPORT

Of First Assistant Postmaster General Frank H. Jones.

Rural Free Delivery Being Tested in About Thirty States—Negotiations Pending for an Exchange of Money Orders With Mexico—Year's Estimates.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—First Assistant Postmaster General Frank H. Jones, in his annual report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, states that there has during the time been a saving of $3,278,985, and also shows an improvement in the service of delivering the volume of mail matter.

The number of presidential post offices is 3,654, the salaries of the postmasters being $6,203,900, and the total gross receipts from these offices were $65,282,364.

Mr. Jones recommends that $17,000,000 be appropriated to compensate postmasters for the next fiscal year. He asks only $11,000,000 for clerk hire, a considerable decrease in proportion to the increase of clerks to be employed. He recommends that $75,000 be appropriated for the rental and purchase of cancelling machines. He thinks $15,000 a sufficient sum to cover advertising expenses regarding unclaimed letters, and advocates the adoption of the bulletin board system in this matter. He recommends that ten inspectors be assigned to look after the work in the salary and allowance branch of the service. Free delivery service has been established in 24 cities during the year and there are now but 63 entitled to it, but on account of the expense the remainder could not be benefitted. Experimental free delivery in towns and villages has shown a reduction in gross receipts in a majority of offices. By November 1 next rural free delivery will be tested in about thirty states. There was a reduction of dismissals of letter carriers, which evidences the high standard of discipline. An estimated expenditure of $13,326,500 is made on account of free delivery system for the fiscal year 1897-98. Negotiations are now pending for an exchange of money orders with Mexico.

Mr. Jones recommends that a penalty be prescribed for the unlawful use of the frank of a member of congress, and suggests $300 fine in each case. He said the law was disregarded during the campaign just closed. He asks legislation to do away with private post office boxes.

KENTUCKY FOR M'KINLEY.

Chairman Roberts Says the State Goes Republican by About 444 Plurality.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 9.—The republican state campaign committee will close up shop Monday. Chairman Sam Roberts issued his final bulletin Sunday afternoon. It is as follows:

Practically complete official returns give McKinley 444 plurality in Kentucky, unofficial advices indicating that the four missing counties will increase rather than decrease these figures. The republicans elect four members of congress and a judge of the highest court of the state for an eight year term, and by the filling of vacancies have secured a majority of two in the general assembly on joint ballot, which insures the election of a republican successor to Senator Blackburn. The total vote of the state will approximate 425,000, with an increase of 70,000 over last year's vote and 25,000 more than the highest estimates before the election. The republican vote increased about 4,000 over Bradley's vote a year ago, which was 17,000 higher than ever before cast in a presidential election. The democratic vote was 25,000 higher. These will give some idea of the intensity of the political struggle through which Kentucky has just passed."

(Signed) SAM. J. ROBERTS,
Chairman

Mr. Roberts sent congratulatory telegrams to Maj. McKinley and Mark Hanna giving their views as to the final result. When asked about the probability of the democrats getting one electoral vote Mr. Roberts stated that this could not be ascertained until the official count was made by the state canvassing board. Gov. Bradley, as a member of the state canvassing board has sent the following telegram to National Committeeman Scott, of New York: "Kentucky has certainly gone for McKinley and will just as certainly be counted."

(Signed) W. O. BRADLEY.

Up to 10 o'clock the Courier Journal had no new figures on the result of the election in Kentucky and McKinley's plurality stands 489 with six counties to be heard from officially. Whether or not the discrepancy between the votes for different electors on the same ticket has resulted in the choice of one Bryan elector and 12 McKinley electors can not be known positively until the state canvassing board foots up the vote for each elector. The democratic leaders still claim the state but none of them was in town Sunday.

England's Occupation of Egypt.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Judging from the information obtainable, it is believed that the czar's influence has brought about an arrangement of the Anglo-French differences regarding Egypt. This implies a prolongation of the British occupation of Egypt, with a free hand to extend it to the whole of the upper Nile.

The Report Denied.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Pall Mall Gazette announces that it is authorized to deny the truth of the report that Great Britain has granted railway concessions in the interior of Venezuela, the line of the proposed railway crossing the railway reserved for delimitation. The projected railway, if built at all, the Gazette says, will not encroach upon the Schombergk line. If Great Britain and the United States agree to settle the Venezuela matter by arbitration the matter of the proposed railway will be referred to arbitrators wherever it touches debatable lands.

TRADE REVIEW.

The Election Immediately Stiffens the Price of Pig Iron—A Great Revolution in the Condition which Control Business.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—R. G. Dun & Co. says Saturday in their weekly review of trade: A great revolution has been effected this week in the conditions which control business. It could not be in any fair degree reflected as yet in transactions or in records but there is ample evidence already that a crushing weight has been lifted and rolled away and the business world has adjusted itself to a state of freedom and security which it has not known for years and new contracts, involving many millions, have become binding since the election. The rush for stocks on Wednesday lifted the average for all railways $1.16 per share in a single day and trust stocks $1.54, and in many of the most active the advance was so sudden that heavy sales for realizing caused some reaction. The wild advance of over 3 cents in wheat on Monday and Wednesday was also followed by realizing and decline on Thursday. But the instant vanishing of the premium on gold, which had reached about 2 per cent., the unlocking of many millions, which had been hoarded, the collapse of the interest rate from 8 and 12 to 6 and 5½ per cent. and the quick demand for American securities on foreign account, are signs of more lasting promise.

Speculation in cotton was also excited on the theory that mills would now start up and would meet a large demand for goods. But the advance was met by realizing sales and a slight reaction. It will be all the better for business if bright hopes do not hoist prices too fast.

The election immediately stiffened prices of pig iron, which reached $12 at Pittsburgh for Bessemer, and the certainty that many large orders for buildings and bridges and other finished forms would now become operative justifies some advance. The future of this trade depends upon the extent of increase in demand for finished products of iron and steel, which is likely to be materially affected by the course pursued by various combinations. The billet pool, which is openly undersold at Pittsburgh and has caused no end of disturbance in business by favoring one class of producers to the detriment of another, has been in session here and is said to have changed its basis of allotment so as to secure fairer results.

A slight advance in sheetings and print cloths is the only change which yet appears in the market for cotton goods, and practically no change has yet appeared in woolens.

Failures for the week have been 230 in the United States, against 280 last year, and 52 in Canada against 49 last year.

KENTUCKY ELECTION.

It Will Take the Official Count to Determine the Result.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 7.—It will take the official count to satisfy both sides as to the result in Kentucky. The last newspaper figures place McKinley's plurality in the state at 633 The official count by counties is about complete outside of this, Jefferson county, which will not be finished for four or five days, owing to the large vote, but the figures are not obtainable at this late hour. The state returning board will meet three weeks from Tuesday to pass on the count by counties.

Kash and Smith, the first electors on the republican and democratic tickets are running ahead of the other electors on the official count, and no matter which way the state goes the electoral vote is going to be divided, that is, if the republicans carry the state they will get 12 electors and the democrats one, and vice versa, if the democrats win. This results from the fact that a large number of voters placed the cross opposite the name of the first elector, instead of under the party device. The canvassing board has ruled in these cases that the vote should count only for one electoral notwithstanding the evident intention of the voter. This raises an interesting question in regard to votes.

The republicans were very chipper Friday night. Chairman Roberts said at 9 o'clock: "We have received official returns from all except 27 counties. We have trustworthy returns from the missing ones, however, and the 110 counties of the state show 435 plurality for McKinley. We are perfectly satisfied that we have carried the state. I am waiting on further official returns and expect to send Maj. McKinley a telegram before midnight. I concede the democrats one electoral vote, owing to the failure of voters to stamp their ballots correctly.

As the official returns came in Friday night the statement was confirmed that the electoral vote of the state is going to stand 12 to 1. In some counties the head of the electoral ticket leads the other 12 by more than a hundred votes.

Maj. H. P. Johnston, chairman of the democratic state central committee, said Friday night that from information in his possession he believed the state had given Bryan 1,000 plurality.

Death of Mrs. Wm. H. Vanderbilt.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Wm. H. Vanderbilt, the mother of Cornelius and Wm. K. Vanderbilt, died at Scarborough, N. Y., Friday afternoon. Her death was due to heart disease.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The treasury gold reserve at the close of business Friday stood at $118,414,514. The net gain in the gold at New York for the day was $915,000. The day's withdrawals of gold at New York were $35,700 in coin and $42,700 in bars for manufacturing purposes.

Col. Patterson Will Contest.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 7.—Official returns show E. W. Carmack to have defeated Josiah Patterson for congress from this district by 454 majority. Col. Patterson has finally declared his purpose to contest before congress.

AN OUTRAGE

Committed on an American Citizen Residing in Cuba.

A Sample of a "Great Spanish Victory"—Seventeen Pacificos Murdered in Cold Blood—The Town and Garrison of Guaymaro Captured by Garcia.

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 9.—Passengers who arrived from Havana bring intelligence of another outrage committed on an American citizen. Although the details are incomplete, the facts are positive, since the victim has filed a protest with Vice Consul Springer and the case has been sent to Washington for instructions. It appears that near the town of San Jose de Las Lajas, this province, a Spanish force patroling the country surprised three rebels who tried to sneak into town. The Spaniards gave chase and the rebels fled. In order to discover the hiding place of the fugitives, the Spanish forces divided into squads of 50 men and sent them in different directions, and one of these parties went to the estate owned by a Cuban, where Frederick L. Graycraft, a native of Indiana and only two years in Cuba, was manager. They forced the residence, destroyed the furniture and ransacked the premises. The women present were insulted in the most outrageous manner, except raping. Graycraft protested that he was an American and showed papers. This, it seems, incensed the officer in command, who drew a sword and commenced slashing at Graycraft. He managed to avert death, but was wounded in the back, receiving a fearful gash that carried away part of the flesh. His forearm was also cut to the bone. The other officers interfering, saved his life. Graycraft was forced to deliver about $160 in his possession. Meantime Graycraft heard great outcries outside and went out later and found 17 pacificos had been killed. There was not one insurgent amongst them. All this was reported last week as a great Spanish victory.

Letters received from Puerto Principe give further details of the capture of the town of Guaymaro by Calixto Garcia. The whole garrison, 160 men, surrendered, and are still prisoners, although Garcia sent word to Castellanos that he would deliver them. Garcia is also attending the officers' and soldiers' wounds.

It is rumored Weyler has issued secret orders to military commanders in sugar districts, prohibiting grinding except on Spanish properties. Orders have also been issued to seize foreigners residing on sugar estates, to kill cattle and destroy implements and to simulate flight in order to scare the farmers and laborers. Passengers by the steamer Olivette also report that numerous insurgents from the command of Gen. Gomez have entered the province of Matanzas during the past few days and have caused Gen Weyler to dispatch 6,000 of his troops, stationed in Pinar del Rio district into Matanzas. Considerable excitement exists in Havana and also in Matanzas, fearing an attack upon the latter place.

VERY CLOSE

Will Be the Standing in the Senate of the Two Leading Parties.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 9.—In an interview Saturday evening with the Journal reporter Senator Nelson W. Aldrich gave it as his opinion that the standing of the two leading parties in the next senate would be very close. It is expected that President-elect McKinley will call a special session of congress to consider the revenue question soon after inauguration. The senator figures that at the present time only two states are doubtful—North Carolina and South Dakota. In the former the legislature is fusion, republican and populist, and in the latter the populists claim a majority. As matters stand the financial forces are evenly divided in the senate, 44 gold and the same number silver. These figures are likely to change, however, for it is possible that some silver republican may accept the verdict of the elections according to the St. Louis platform. Until the exact status of the senate is decided, Senator Aldrich will not state his opinion concerning the future course the party is likely to take in the matter of revenue legislation.

Congressman Harmer Tendered a Portfolio.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—A dispatch from Washington Saturday evening stated that there was a report in republican circles at the capital to the effect that Congressman Alfred C. Harmer, of this city, would be tendered a portfolio in the McKinley cabinet. Mr. Harmer said Sunday that it was the first time he had heard of it, although for some time past, he said, it was intimated to him that his very close friends were bringing his name forward in connection with a cabinet office.

A Gale on the English Coast.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—A northeast gale that is prevailing has done much damage at various points along the coast. A number of Yarmouth smacks and lots of fishing boats have been wrecked. The Dutch Galiot Dena has been wrecked at the mouth of the river Tees. No lives were lost. The crew of the steamer Camwood have landed at Lowestof and report that their vessel foundered at sea. A snow storm is prevailing in London.

Will Walk to San Francisco.

MT. GILEAD, O., Nov. 9.—Brice Osborne, of this place, did not think McKinley would be elected; therefore, in accordance with an ante-election proposition, he must walk to San Francisco, Cal. He will start on the morning of November 16, and will pass through Cincinnati a few days later.

A Decree Ordering Reforms in Anatolia.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The Tempts has a dispatch from Constantinople stating a decree ordering the extension reforms promised for the province of Anatolia to the whole empire was submitted Sunday to the council of ministers.

A STEAMER

Collides With a Schooner Near the St. Johns Harbor—The Latter Was Cut in Two Amidships and Sank Instantely—Thirteen Lives Lost.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Nov. 7.—The steamer Tiberia, DeLisle, bound for Sydney, left here at seven o'clock Friday night. Ten minutes later when just beyond the entrance to the harbor, she collided with the schooner Maggie, bound from Buenavist bay for St. Johns with a cargo of fish and lumber. Thirteen lives were lost. The schooner carried a crew of 9 and 14 passengers, 5 of whom were women. The schooner had her lights displayed and there was no justification on the steamer's part for the collision, because the night was clear and the schooner quite near the shore in a part of the entrance where steamers rarely go. The shock of the collision was awful. The schooner was struck amidships, cut in two pieces and sank instantly. All aboard were on deck. They were thrown into the water and those saved were only rescued by the help of the floating deck load of lumber. Several were caught under the sails and dragged down with the sinking vessel. Others were unable to keep afloat until the rescue boats arrived and dropped off the planks. Two men climbed up the steamer's side and seven were saved by her boats. One woman was also saved, making ten souls rescued. The other 13, nine men and four women, drowned. Capt. Blundon's wife, who was bringing her consumptive 16-year-old boy to the hospital at St. Johns, was drowned, although her husband had her on a plank. The boy was saved. The captain's brother and nephew were also lost.

Two passengers named Holloway, brother and sister, were drowned, as was also James Power and his wife. Seven widows and 23 orphans is the result of this catastrophe.

The pecuniary losses of the survivors are heavy. Capt. Blundon owned 800 quintals of fish aboard valued at $3,000. Several other men had their summer's wages, $400 a piece, with them, and two men had $1,000 each, and were coming to St. Johns to make purchases. All were more or less closely related.

The police are arranging to cause the arrest of the Tiberia's crew at Sidney, on a charge of manslaughter. The government is caring for the survivors

CAPT. HATFIELD.

The Notorious Outlaw Surprised in His Sleep and Made Prisoner.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 7.—Capt. Hatfield, the most notorious outlaw in the West Virginia mountains, has been captured. J. H. Clark, the detective and deputy sheriff of the Norfolk & Western railway, with Dan Christian arrived here at daybreak with Hatfield and his 14-year-old son. They were captured in the mountains of Mingo county at dusk Thursday night.

After two days and nights' tireless trailing and reconnoitering the Hatfields were located in a natural rock fort in the mountains, which was used by their faction as a place of refuge during their trouble with the McCoys, of Kentucky, six years ago.

Hatfield and his son are charged with the murder of John Rutherford, Elliott Rutherford and Hanse Chambers in an election quarrel at Matewan, W. Va. Father and son were seen by a correspondent at the jail here Friday. They seemed not the least worried over the affair.

The 14-year-old lad smiled and said: "I killed Elliott Rutherford and Hanse Chambers. Dad killed John Rutherford."

"Cap" Hatfield for years led the famous band of Hatfields against the McCoys. The fame of that feud spread over the whole country. Hatfield is charged with killing 17 men in the past 20 years.

Hatfield and his son were asleep in a crevice of a large rock cliff on Tug river when the officers discovered them. Hatfield had two Winchesters and two revolvers, while the boy was sleeping with a Winchester lying on each side of him.

RECIPROCITY.

Canadian Ministry Pledged to Negotiate a Treaty With the United States.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7.—The present ministry, it is said, is pledged to send delegates to Washington to negotiate a treaty of reciprocity with the United States, and it is said Sir Richard Cartwright, minister of trade and commerce, W. S. Fielding, minister of finance, and W. Patterson, controller of customs, will make this part of their work in connection with the revision of the tariff. The chief organ of the dominion government announced Friday that as the election in the United States has changed the administration at Washington, no attempt will be made to negotiate a treaty of reciprocity with the United States until next March; or more probably after the close of the next session of parliament, when the new administration at Washing will be firmly established.

Gen. Lee Calls on the President.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—After spending nearly an hour in conversation with Secretary Olney Friday afternoon, Consul General Lee took lunch with Assistant Secretary of State Rockhill, and later went to the white house and called on the president, with whom he stayed over an hour. No affirmation as to his alleged statements in regard to the duration of the war could be obtained, and they are accordingly set down as imaginary.

Pennsylvania's Vote.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—Complete returns from every county in Pennsylvania show the total vote to be as follows: McKinley, 720,971; Bryan, 423,966; Levering, 18,263; Palmer, 10,921. McKinley's plurality, 297,005. For congressmen at large, Grow, rep., 703,433; Davenport, rep., 700,810; Dewitt, dem., 410,071; Allman, dem. and pop., 412,200.

Banks Paying in Gold.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 7.—Savings banks deposits have heavily increased the past two days, and the banks are now willing to pay gold in small amounts.

Use

The experience of those who have been cured of scrofula, catarrh, rheumatism, by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and obtain like benefit yourself.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills do not purge, pain or gripe. All druggists. 25c.

Chinamen Buying Wives.

The Chinamen of Australia, when they take a notion to marry, write to a matrimonial agent in Hong Kong somewhat as follows: "I want a wife. She must be a maiden under 20 years of age, and must not have left her father's house. She must also have never read a book, and her eyelashes must be half an inch in length. Her teeth must be as sparkling as the pearls of Ceylon, her breath must be like unto the scents of the magnificent odorous groves of Java, and her attire must be from the silken weavers of Ka-la-Ching, which are on the banks of the greatest river in the world—the everflowing Yang-tse-Kiang." The price of a Chinese woman delivered in Sydney is $190, but two Chinese women only cost $260; therefore, the Chinese import the women in couples. The importer never sees the women before they arrive, and then he generally selects the best one. The other is shown around to a number of well-to-do Chinese, and after they have inspected her she is submitted to what may be called public auction.

Dance in Church.

There was a curious, and to many English people an incredible, sight to have been seen in Seville recently, viz., a dance in a church. Saturday was the feast of the assumption and one of the four days on which the dance is performed, the others being the first two days of the carnival and the feast of the eurilication. It is danced by eight small boys, and its measure is slow. That of the minuet.

Personally Conducted Excursions to California

Via the Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line leave Chicago every Thursday. Comfortable Tourist Sleeping Cars, low rates, quickest time and the best of care and attention, are advantages secured by those who join these excursions. For full particulars apply to your nearest ticket agent, or address W. B. KNISKERN, G. P. & T. A., Chicago & North-Western R'y, Chicago, Ill.

"FOLKS dat is allus lookin' foh trouble," said Uncle Eben, "hab jes' one t'ing ter brag about. Dey doan' hahdly ebber git disapp'inted."—Washington Star.

Get a Farm While Prices Are Low.

If you want a farm of your own now is the time to get one in Northern Wisconsin, along the line of the Lake Superior division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, where a sure crop can be raised each year, which can always be sold at good prices in the lumbering towns along the line of this railroad. Low prices; long time. Address C. E. Rollins, 161 La Salle Street, Chicago.

A GIRL'S idea of a pretty wedding dress is one that cannot possibly be of any use to a woman after she has married.—Atchison Globe.

I BELIEVE Piso's Cure for Consumption saved my boy's life last summer. MRS. ALLIE DOUGLASS, LeRoy, Mich., Oct. 26, '94.

IT is said that red noses run in families, the same as quick temper, or consumption.—Atchison Globe.

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe.

HOW time flies from the date on which a man distinguishes himself!

WHEN bilious or costive, eat a Cascaret, candy cathartic, cure guaranteed, 10c, 25c.

PEOPLE who eat the most, usually think the least.—Atchison Globe.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

TOP SNAP, Extension Rib DOUBLE Breech Loader $9.00 GUNS BUY-CYCLES Pistols, Sporting Goods, Fishing Tackle, cheaper than elsewhere. Send 2c. for 60-page catalogue. POWELL & CLEMENT CO. 166 Main St. Cincinnati, O.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

REPUBLICANS

Successful in a Hotly Contested Election.

Latest Returns Give McKinley 260 Electoral Votes.

Mr. Bryan is Sure of 170 Votes, With Two States Doubtful.

William Jennings Bryan Sends His Congratulations to the President Elect—It Will Require the Official Returns to Settle the Result in Kentucky.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 6.—The following table is the result of the late election so far as learned up to a. m. Friday.

REPUBLICAN.

State.	Plurality.	Electoral Vote.
California	8,000	9
Connecticut	53,000	6
Delaware	1,800	3
Illinois	144,131	24
Indiana	21 003	15
Iowa	67,033	13
Maine	48,000	6
Maryland	32,500	8
Massachusetts	168 7,6	15
Michigan	[illegible]4 300	14
Minnesota	48,812	9
New Hampshire	25,000	4
New Jersey	85,000	10
New York	260,000	36
North Dakota	8,000	3
Ohio	50,000	23
Oregon	10 000	4
Pennsylvania	298,000	32
Rhode Island	24,000	4
Vermont	40,000	4
West Virginia	10,000	6
Wisconsin	100,000	12
Total		260

DEMOCRATIC.

State.	Plurality.	Electoral Vote.
Alabama	35,000	11
Arkansas	50,000	8
Colorado	100,000	4
Florida	12,000	4
Georgia	30,000	13
Idaho	13 000	3
Kansas	13,000	10
Louisiana	40,000	8
Mississippi	40,000	9
Missouri	60,000	17
Montana	6,000	3
Nebraska	13,000	8
Nevada	3,000	3
North Carolina	17,000	11
South Carolina	42,000	9
Tennessee	15,000	12
Texas	45 000	15
Utah	3,000	3
Virginia	22,000	12
Washington	3,000	4
Wyoming	8,000	3
Total		170

DOUBTFUL.

	Electoral Vote.
Kentucky	13
South Dakota	4
Total	17

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 6.—At 8:25 Thursday evening Senator Jones' telegram to Mr. Bryan that he had given up the fight was handed to Mr. Bryan at his residence. "You may say," said Mr. Bryan to the United Associated Presses representative, "that the election of McKinley is conceded and that I will issue a statement Thursday night."

Immediately after receiving Senator Jones' telegram Mr. Bryan wrote the following dispatch:

HON. WM. MCKINLEY, Canton, O.—Senator Jones has just informed me that the returns indicate your election, and I hasten to extend my congratulations. We have submitted the issues to the American people and their will is law. W. J. BRYAN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Chairman Jones formally conceded the defeat of Wm. J. Bryan Thursday night and made his last presidential campaign statement to the public. The free silver standard was really lowered late Wednesday night, so far as the election of 1896 is concerned, when advices were received at headquarters from West Virginia conceding the electoral vote of that state to McKinley, but it was decided not to make a public announcement of the fact until to-day. In the meantime Gov. Stone arrived in Chicago from Missouri in response to Senator Jones' telegram. The national committee chairman, the governor and Campaign Chairman Campau were in conference this evening in the senator's room, and at its conclusion the following statement was given to the press:

"The result of the presidential election is apparently no longer in doubt. It has been one of the closest contests that the people have been called on to determine in recent years. We have claimed the election on our advices from states that were admittedly in doubt, in which we knew there had been many frauds and from which there were evidences of tampering with the returns. It seems now to be apparent that while Mr. Bryan, after making the most brilliant campaign in the history of our country, has carried most of the states claimed to be doubtful, but has not carried enough to assure his success in the electoral college. Bryan electors have been chosen in all the states south of the Potomac and Ohio except West Virginia and all those west of the Missouri, except California and Oregon. He has 190 electoral votes. This number may be increased by final returns from states yet in question.

"Thus this remarkable campaign closes with the election of Wm McKinley. The result was brought about by every kind of coercion and intimidation on the part of the money power, including threats of lock-outs and dismissals and impending starvation; by the employment of by far the largest campaign fund ever used in this country and by the subordination of a large portion of the American press. The president-elect and his party are under pledge to the American people to continue the gold standard, and by its operation to restore prosperity to this country. As chief executive, Mr. McKinley will have the cordial support of the millions of patriotic Americans who have cast their votes for Wm. Jennings Bryan. They bow to the majesty of the officers and abide by the result, with none of the mutterings that would have come from the money power had it been unsuccessful. They are confident the gold standard cannot give the promised prosperity, but will gladly welcome it if it comes. They will continue the great struggle for the uplifting of humanity and to the maintenance of the dignity of our country in the establishment of an American monetary system. And the democratic party, guided by its present allies will still uplift the bimetallic standard and bear it on to victory.

"JAMES K. JONES,

"Chairman of the Democratic National Committe."

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The status of the United States senate after the fourth of March next is still a matter of doubt. Present indications, however, are that the republicans will be compelled to seek recruits from those of their number who joined the free silver forces last spring or an alliance with sound money democrats to accomplish legislation affecting either financial or tariff subjects. The senate in the Fifty-fifth congress will probably be as follows: Gold republicans, 36; gold democrats, 8; silver republicans, 10; silver democrats, 25; populists, 9. Total 90.

OHIO.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 5.—Chairman Kurtz of the republican state executive committee, issued a bulletin Wednesday evening that 86 out of 88 counties of the state give republican gains over the republican plurality of last year of 12,450, and democratic gains of 50,632. This is a net democratic gain of 38,187 over the vote of last year, and shows a republican plurality in the state of 54,440. Estimating the result in the other two counties, Morrow and Stark, at 1,500 democratic plurality, the republican electoral ticket plurality in Ohio is 52,940.

INDIANA.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 6.—With complete returns from 74 of the 92 counties of the state, McKinley's majority in Indiana figures 20,252. Chairman Parks Martin, of the democrats, has conceded the state. Nearly all the missing counties are in the sparsely populated portion of the state, and there is no reason to believe that the official figures will show a majority less than 22,000. The republicans have carried 9 of the 13 congressional districts, two less than was figured on Wednesday night. The congressmen are as follows:

First district, J. A. Hemenway, rep.; Second, W. R. Miers, dem.; Third, W. T. Zenor, dem.; Fourth, W. S. Holman, dem.; Fifth, G. W. Faris, rep.; Sixth, H. U. Johnson, rep.; Seventh, Jesse Overstreet, rep.; Eighth, C. L. Henry, rep.; Ninth, C. B. Landis, rep.; Tenth, E. D. Crumpacker, rep.; Eleventh, G. W. Steele, rep.; Twelfth, W. E. Robinson, dem.; Thirteenth, L. W. Royse, rep.

The legislature is still slightly in doubt, but there is every indication that the republicans will have a majority on joint ballot, which means that Fairbanks will succeed Voorhees in the United States senate.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 6.—Indiana complete, with the returns from 36 counties taken from the official count and the rest unofficial gives the state to McKinley by 22,145. The republican state ticket has run about 5,000 ahead of this, owing to the fact that the populists had a state ticket in the field. The official count gives the Ninth congressional district to Landis, rep., over Needle, pop., by 220. This makes the delegation stand four democrats and nine republicans. The republicans hold a majority of 10 in the senate and six in the house.

KENTUCKY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 6.—The Evening Times says: Kentucky returns, with 15 precincts missing, give McKinley 818 plurality. Estimates are made on counties.

Complete returns from Bell county increase McKinley's plurality in the state to 989.

At 1:15 p. m. The Times' returns, with nine precincts missing, give McKinley 783 plurality.

The Evening Times, 6:30 o'clock extra, gives McKinley the state by 478 plurality. It will take the official count to decide the result.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 5.—The fight for Kentucky's electoral vote grows warmer each minute. The democrats are trying to throw out two large republican precincts in Christian and McCracken on the ground of irregularities in registration. The official count, which is now in progress in every county, will probably be finished by Saturday, except in this, Jefferson county, where it will take a week. It is expected that McKinley will gain 150 in Jefferson if the ratio of Thursday keeps up.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 6.—At 1 a. m. Friday, Courier-Journal reports show McKinley's plurality in Kentucky to be 456

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The latest returns from all counties in New York state make McKinley's plurality in the state 269 080.

TENNESSEE.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 6.—Advices received Thursday evening indicate that the state may give McKinley a small plurality. Wm. A. Rule, of Knoxville, wires that east Tennessee will give a plurality of 37,000 for McKinley and Hobart. Thomas Baker, a member of the republican state committee, telegraphs that "after all the stuffing and stealing of ballots on the part of democrats in middle and western Tennessee, McKinley still has a plurality of 28,000." D. A. Nunn, of Nashville, wires that the state will give a plurality of 15,000. The impression grows here that on anything like a fair count Tennessee is for McKinley.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 5.—Tennessee is generally conceded to Bryan, but the gubernatorial election at midnight is exceedingly close between Taylor (dem.) and Tillman (rep.) Each side claims it, and the official count may be necessary. Congressional results are certain to be:

First district — W. P. Brownlow, republican.
Second—H. R. Gibson, republican.
Third—J. A. Moore, democrat.
Fourth—Benton McMillan, democrat.
Fifth—J. D. Richardson, democrat.
Sixth—J. W. Gaines, democrat.
Seventh—N. N. Cox, democrat.
Eighth—T. W. Dims, democrat.
Ninth—Rice A. Pierce, democrat.
Tenth—E. W. Carmack.

In the Tenth district, Carmack, silver democrat, has a majority over Josiah Patterson, gold democrat, but the matter will be contested.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 6.—South Dakota is so close that it will take official count to decide how the state has gone. McKinley now appears to lead by 627.

YANKTON, S. D., Nov. 6.—The latest returns at republican state headquarters are more favorable to republicans. The majority of 1,000 has been maintained since 10 o'clock Wednesday night, and the republican managers declare that McKinley's majority will not fall below this figure. The opposition, under the leadership of Senator Pettigrew, is preparing to contest every close precinct. The legislature is populist and will elect free silver United States senator.

WEST VIRGINIA.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 6.—McKinley's majority over Bryan in West Virginia is at this hour 12,337. This is based on actual returns in the hands of the republican state committee. A few scattering districts are to be heard from yet, but by giving the democrats all they claim the majority remains as stated above. The probabilities are that when all returns are in the figures given may be increased somewhat.

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—Complete returns from this state, though unofficial and subject to revision, give the following votes for president and governor: Bryan, 10[illegible],655; McKinley, 267,787. Palmer, 11,510. McKinley's plurality, 16[illegible],13[illegible].

In 1892 the total vote was: Cleveland, 176,813; Harrison, 202,814. Harrison's plurality, 26,001.

The complete vote for governor gives: Prince, 13,674. Williams, 101,097; Wolcott, 256,282. Wolcott's plurality, 155,183.

Of the 13 congressmen elected, all but one are republicans.

ILLINOIS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Returns from the state are coming in very slowly, but bear out early estimates of a majority exceeding 100 000 for McKinley, with Tanner for governor running well up. In Chicago Tanner polled 30,000 votes less than the head of the ticket, but he ran ahead in many country districts, and it is believed will not be far behind McKinley when the returns are complete. The entire Cook (Chicago) republican ticket is elected.

Republican majority in both branches of the state legislature is assured and in consequence a republican successor to Senator Palmer, late candidate for the presidency on the gold democratic ticket.

The democrats have elected three and possibly four congressmen. Those elected are: Hinrichsen in the Sixteenth, Hunter in the Ninteenth and Jehu Baker in the Twenty-first congressional districts. In the Seventeenth Caldwell, democrat, claims his election and in the Third the race is very close between Belknap, republican, and Darrow, democrat, with the latter slightly in the lead.

NEBRASKA.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 5.—Official returns from Nebraska, including Lancaster and Douglas, the heavy republican strong-holds, received up to 8 p. m., give Bryan 56,68[illegible]; McKinley, 50,635. Holcomb, fusion, for governor, 37,158. Macey, republican, 28 765.

LINCOLN, Nov. 5.—All returns Wednesday and early Wednesday evening indicate that Bryan has carried Nebraska by not less than 7,000. Republicans virtually admit it. The fusionist ticket is elected.

CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—Secretary McLaughlin, of the state committee, positively stated Wednesday evening that California has gone for the republican candidate by from 5,000 to 6,000. The republican papers in this city give the majority as ranging from 5,000 to 10,000. The Examiner conceded the same to McKinley by 3,000.

Up to a late hour returns had been received from 1,876 out of 2,377 precincts. These place McKinley in the lead by 7,341, the figures standing, McKinley 1[illegible]8,799, Bryan 121,4[illegible]8.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—Complete returns from 1,708 out of 2,377 precincts give McKinley 120,0[illegible]8, Bryan 112,8[illegible]0.

WYOMING.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 6.—Senator Warren says: The republican national and state tickets have carried eight counties, the democratic national and state tickets four counties, one county not heard from, but it is certainly republican. We have elected one elector and supreme judge. Two electors and congressman in doubt, with chances in favor of republicans.

MAJ. WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

KANSAS.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—Telegrams Wednesday morning from Kansas indicate that Bryan has carried the state by 15,000. The returns with the exception of those from Leavenworth and Atchison counties indicate heavy gains for the silver forces. The state ticket seems to have run but little behind the electoral ticket so far as heard from

At Leavenworth, the soldiers in the soldiers' home were allowed to vote this year for the first time, and as a result the county gives the republicans about 1,000 majority.

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 5.—Incomplete returns from 50 of the 106 counties of Kansas indicate the election of Bryan and Sewall electors by 10,000 to 15,000, and the election of the fusion state ticket by from 5,000 to 8,000.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 5.—Fusion headquarters now claim Bryan electors by 19,000; state ticket by 13,000; seven out of eight congressmen, five out of the six judges of the appellate court and a majority of 26 in the legislature on joint ballot.

HON. GARRET A. HOBART.

MISSOURI.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 5.—From returns received up to 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, the indications are that the republicans have made a clean sweep in this city. The majorities run from 2,000 to 6,000 on the legislative and judicial tickets. With but a dozen precincts to hear from, the following is the vote on congressmen:

Tenth district, Bartholdt, rep., majority 6,028.

Eleventh district, Joy, majority 3,520.

Twelfth district, Pearce, rep., 2,970.

McKinley's majority in this city appears to be about 12,000.

The indications at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning are that Lewis, rep., for governor, has carried St. Louis by at least 10,000 majority.

The returns from the state are coming in slow, but it is conceded that Bryan will carry Missouri by about 30,000 majority, and that Stephens, dem., for governor, is elected by at least 22,000 majority.

WISCONSIN.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 5.—The returns from Wisconsin received up to noon Wednesday indicate that McKinley and the republican state ticket have been elected by about 100,000 majority. The democrats will have the smallest representation in both branches of the legislature ever known. There are still a few districts in doubt, one of which is in Dodge county, where Mr. Webster's election is not quite certain. As nearly as can be learned the two houses will be divided as follows:

Senate—Republican holdovers, 18; democratic holdovers, 4.

Elected Tuesday—Republicans, 16; total, 33.

Assembly—Republicans, 92; democrats, 8. Total, 100.

Republican majority on joint ballot, 121. The congressional delegation of ten is solidly republican.

MINNESOTA.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 5.—Returns are coming in very slowly from the country districts of this state, but there does not seem to be any doubt that McKinley has carried the state.

Lind, fusion candidate for governor, is running heavily ahead of his ticket. It is thought he is elected.

Towne, fusion candidate for congress in the Duluth district has just wired that he is elected.

Tawney, McCleary, Fletcher and Stevens, republicans are elected to congress.

Lommen, fusion, has probably beaten Eddy for congress.

The contest between Peck, fusion, and Heatwole, republican, in the Third district is close

MICHIGAN

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 5.—Returns from the state Wednesday morning swell the republican plurality on presidential electors to 35,000. Mayor Pingree, republican, for governor, runs nearly 10,000 ahead of the national ticket. The democrats have made gains in the legislature, but it remains republican by two-thirds majority.

Brucker, silver democrat, has defeated Linton, republican, in the Eighth congressional district, and Todd, silver democrat, is probably elected over Milnes, republican.

MARYLAND.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—Maryland will have a solid republican delegation in the next congress. The First district gave the republican candidate 472 plurality. The official count will not materially change the following figures: First district, Dr Isaac S. Barber, 500 plurality; Second district, Wm. B. Baker, 2,000 plurality; Third district, Dr. Wm. S. Boose, 6,800 plurality; Fourth district, W. W. McIntyre, 9 109 plurality; Fifth district, Sidney E. Mudd 2,000 plurality; Sixth district, Capt. John McDonald, 3,000 plurality.

WASHINGTON.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 5.—Bryan has carried Washington by 10,000 upwards and every man on the fusion free silver state ticket have been elected. Sullivan (rep.) gubernatorial candidate, concedes his defeat. John Rogers, the successful candidate, has won by about 5,000. Lewis and Jones, free silver congressional candidates, have been elected by large majorities. Lewis running probably ahead of the Bryan electors, while returns come in slowly they indicate the free silver forces will control the next legislature on joint ballot and name a successor to United States Senator Watson C. Squire.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 4.—As the returns continue to come in from the northern parishes, it seems likely that Bryan's plurality in this state is from 40,000 to 50,000. The movement among sugar planters for McKinley appears to have had only slight effect. Silver carried the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth congressional districts by large majorities. The republicans charge fraud and will contest the two city districts and probably the others.

MAINE.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 4.—One hundred and thirty towns give McKinley 36,459, Bryan 14,3[illegible]7, scattering 2,233. Same in 1892 gave Harrison 28,756, Cleveland 21,763, scattering 2,287.

BATH, Nov. 4.—As expected McKinley carried this city, the home of Mr. Arthur Sewall, and he also carried Mr. Sewall's own ward. The vote in the city was: Bryan, 472; McKinley, 1,2[illegible]; Bryan people's party, 12; Levering, pro., 28. Republican plurality, 752. The result in Sewall's ward was as follows: Bryan, 63; McKinley, 167; Palmer, 2.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 4.—One hundred and ninety-five towns give McKinley, 55,175, Bryan, 22,164, scattering, 3,319.

COLORADO.

DENVER, Nov. 5.—The result of Tuesday's election shows Bryan carried the state by over 100,000, two silver congressmen elected—Shafroth and Bell—both re-elected, and a legislature which insures the return to the senate of Henry M. Teller. The governorship is still in doubt, both Adams, democrat-republican, Bailey, populist and silver party, claiming election. It will be close either way, with the changes at 9 o'clock slightly favoring Bailey. The weather is fine and reports from different sections of the state coming in fast.

IOWA.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 5.—The returns from Iowa are not yet complete, but indicate that the national republican ticket has carried the state by not less than 75,000 and possibly 80,000 over the fused democrats and populists. Palmer and Buckner will receive not over 4,000 votes.

The republican state ticket, headed by secretary of state and including auditor, supreme judge, attorney general and railroad commissioner, is elected by about the same figures as the national ticket.

The republicans have elected the entire 11 congressmen.

NEVADA.

CARSON, Nov. 5.—From meager returns received so far from this state Bryan and Sewall will carry it by about 4,000 majority. The three largest and principal counties go for Bryan by about two to one; also for Newlands, the silver democratic nominee for congress, and balance of the silver democratic state ticket. Senator J. P. Jones' legislative ticket will carry a majority of the counties. Numerous small precincts have not been heard from at all.

MONTANA.

BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 4.—Returns from the state are very meager but indicate a smaller majority for Bryan than expected. He will carry the state by 15,000. Robert Smith, fusion candidate for governor, is elected by 10,000, and indications are that nearly the entire fusion ticket is elected by majorities ranging from 2,000 to 10,000. The next legislature will be democratic and populist.

Twelve precincts in Butte give Bryan 2,095, McKinley 312.

UTAH.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Nov. 5.—Latest returns show Bryan's majority in the state will not be less than 30,000. King, (dem.) for congress, by 10,000. Democrats control the legislature, insuring election of senator to succeed Brown (rep.). Populists cut no figure, having fused with democrats. No gold democrat vote was cast.

ARKANSAS.

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 5.—Returns from the election indicate that Bryan's majority in this state will be about 35,000. All the democratic candidates for congress are elected by increased majorities. They are as follows: First district, P. D. McCullough; Second, John S. Little; Third, D. M. McRae; Fourth, W. L. Terry; Fifth, H. A. Dinsmore; Sixth, S. Brundige.

DELAWARE.

WILMINGTON, Nov. 5.—The United Associated Presses has now sufficient figures to announce that Delaware's electoral vote is for McKinley by 1,500 to 1,800. The democrats elect Tunnell governor, and Handy to congress by 4,000 plurality. The democrats also control the legislature on joint ballot.

NORTH CAROLINA.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 6.—The democrats have elected Kitchen for congress; republicans elect White over Woodward; populists carry First, Third, Fourth, Sixth and Seventh districts; Eighth and Ninth in doubt, with chances favoring republicans. Governor in doubt, and it may take official vote to decide. The electoral vote still remains doubtful, both parties claiming it. The full returns only will decide.

WEST VIRGINIA.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 5.—Returns so far Wednesday morning confirm the estimates of Tuesday night of 10,000 plurality for McKinley.

CONNECTICUT.

HARTFORD, Ct., Nov. 5.—Revised returns (unofficial) from every town in the state show that McKinley's plurality is 54,142.

The republican majority on joint ballot in the legislature will be 214.

Cook (rep.), for governor, has a majority of 44,340 and a plurality of 53,392 over Sargent, silver democrat.

COLORADO.

DENVER, Nov. 5.—Bryan and Sewall have carried Colorado by a plurality of 130,000. The legislature is a mixture, composed of a fusion of all parties, a unit for silver and all pledged to the return of Senator Teller to the United States senate. On state ticket the indications point to the election of the Bailey ticket.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 4.—Returns are coming in very slowly but enough have already been received to indicate that the republicans have secured the most sweeping victory in this state in its history. Everything seems to portend a veritable landslide.

RHODE ISLAND.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 5.—Returns from Rhode Island show that McKinley has carried the state by a plurality that will approximate 23,000. Melville Bull and Adin B. Cronin, republicans, are overwhelmingly elected to congress.

FLORIDA.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 4.—The Florida Times-Union estimates that Bryan has carried Florida by 10,000 plurality. For congress Davis, democrat, second district 4,000, and Sparkman, democrat, first district, 5,000 plurality.

GEORGIA.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 4.—The state is safe for Bryan. There was no Watson ticket in the field. The republicans made heavy gains, carrying the city of Atlanta by 7,000, a gain of 5,000. Heavy gains were also made in Savannah.

OREGON.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 5.—With six counties to be heard from out of the 26 in the state, McKinley has a majority of 3,243. Populists claim Bryan will make gains when returns are received from back counties.

NORTH DAKOTA.

FARGO, Nov. 5.—Eight hundred of the 1,243 precincts in the state give McKinley a majority of 25,000. Johnson, candidate for congress, republican, runs ahead by 7,000, but the entire state ticket will be elected.

ALABAMA.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 4.—The vote cast in the state from the present outlook will be much less than in August this year or in November 1892. Bryan will have the state, but by greatly reduced majority.

VIRGINIA.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 4.—The returns at a late hour show that the democrats have suffered heavy losses all over the state, and the defeat of the Bryan ticket is conceded by democrats by a plurality of 15,000.

TEXAS.

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 5.—Latest estimates place Bryan's plurality in Texas over 160,000, and Culberson's, democratic nominee for governor, 30,000. All the democratic candidates for congress are elected.

NEW JERSEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The latests returns from New Jersey makes makes McKinley's plurality 74,691.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 4.—Bryan's plurality in South Carolina is now estimated at 40,000. There was little change from the vote of four years ago. Cleveland's majority being a little more than 41,000

WASHINGTON.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Nov. 5.—Three hundred and sixty-seven precincts out of 1,100 in state give McKinley 17,703, Bryan 23,461. This is about one-half of the vote of the state.

VERMONT.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Nov. 4.—McKinley's plurality in the state will be 40,000. The previous high water mark in pluralities for president was 30,554 given to Grant in 1872.

MISSISSIPPI.

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 4.—Bryan will have a majority of 50,000. The vote for Watson will not exceed 10,000. Seven democratic congressmen have been elected.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—The latest estimates from counties in Pennsylvania to the United Associated Presses gives a plurality of 277,624 for McKinley.

OKLAHOMA.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Nov. 5.—Returns from 18 of the 23 counties of the territory give the free silver fusion ticket increased strength over first reports and indicate election of Callahan for silver to congress by 1,000 majority. Both branches of the legislature controlled by democrats.

IDAHO.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, Nov. 4.—Returns come in very slowly and there will be no figures obtainable until Wednesday morning. The state is conceded to Bryan by 15,000 to 20,000 majority. Borah, silver republican, it is claimed, is ahead for congress.

NEW MEXICO.

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 4.—Returns coming very slow. Out of 418 precincts in the territory, only 13 have been heard from. For congressmen, Catron (rep.) has 657; Ferguson (dem.) 675.

BIG DEMONSTRATION

At Tonawanda, N. Y., Over the Formal Opening of the Niagara Iron Works.

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y., Nov. 6.—One of the biggest demonstrations ever witnessed in Niagara county took place here Thursday afternoon, when the Niagara Iron foundry at Ironton, was formally opened, and 300 additional men given employment at the new plant. The event marks the beginning of an era of prosperity here, and it was fittingly celebrated. At 2:30 o'clock a procession was formed and preceded by a brass band marched to the iron works. There the furnaces had been prepared for lighting, and promptly at 3 o'clock President-elect McKinley touched a button in his house at Canton and the electric wire connecting it with the furnace emitted a spark which ignited the inflammable material and the new blast furnaces were put in operation. A telephone message was sent to the North Side water-works, where a signal was given by a steam whistle, and soon every whistle and fire alarm gong in the city rang out the glad tidings. The day was observed as a holiday.

Price of Pig Iron Advanced.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 6.—Great interest was imparted to the iron and steel markets Thursday by the announcement of an advance of 75 cents per ton on pig iron. The advance is represented to have been in response to legitimate buying for immediate wants and it is said that prices for large tonnage, for forward delivery, have been refused. Several furnaces in the Shenango and Mahoning valleys have been ordered to start this week, and four of them were blown in Thursday.

Locomotive Boiler Explodes With Fatal Results.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 6.—Wm. Mann, white, a machinist, and Abe Goss, a colored laborer, were killed Thursday morning by the explosion of a locomotive boiler in the Southern railway yards here. Jim Rodgers, colored, was seriously injured. The engine had just come in from Chattanooga and was being cleaned up. It is supposed that the water was allowed to get too low in the boiler.

Illinois Complete.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Unofficial returns from all of the 102 counties in Illinois (including Cook) give McKinley a plurality of 144,131, and Tanner a plurality of 115,504. Complete official returns may change these figures a trifle, but this is principally the result in the state.

McKinley's Plurality in Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 6.—Latest returns from South Dakota do not show any change there. Bad feeling exists because of a likelihood of a change in all the state offices. The plurality for McKinley in Minnesota is 51,284. Clough is elected governor over Lind by a plurality of 5,066.

McKinley Carries California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—Complete returns from 2,115 out of 2,377 districts give McKinley 141,117; Bryan, 134,134. In 1892 these same districts gave Harrison 117,148; Cleveland, 116,899. McKinley's plurality in these districts, 6,983.

The Result in Oregon.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 6.—With three counties and five precincts to hear from, complete returns give McKinley a plurality of 2,693. This may be slightly reduced, but the result will not be affected.

Bryan Carries North Carolina.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 6.—Bryan carries North Carolina by 15,600 is the official statement made at democratic state headquarters. The republican state chairman concedes his victory, but declares the majorty is only 5,000.

Plead Not Guilty.

ELYRIA, Nov. 6.—J. H. Essig, E. A. Ault and S. W. Matthews, ex-councilmen of Lorain, indicted by the grand jury for receiving bribes, waived examination Thursday, pleaded not guilty and gave bond.

The Dakotas.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 6.—North Dakota is certainly republican by 5,500. South Dakota is not over 600 either way. Now looks republican legislative and state ticket populist.

Idaho for Bryan.

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 6.—Bryan probably has 12,000 majority. The democratic and populist ticket is all elected including Gunn for congress. Claggett, democratic senator, is elected.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Nov. 11, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time....................$1.00
Each additional time.................. .25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50
☞Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered........$5.00.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

Neighborhood News.

Richwood.

Lou Aydlott is on the sick list.

Mit Beemon was visiting friends here Saturday and Sunday.

Prof. B. F. Bristow, of Covington, was here last Saturday evening.

Bullittsville.

Miss Lizzie Stephens is visiting in Delhi, Ohio.

Misses Lutie Watts and Mary Corn spent several days in Cincinnati, last week.

Madam Rumor says there will be several weddings in this vicinity between now and Christmas.

Miss Bessie Cropper entertained quite a number of her young friends, last Saturday night.

Misses Lacey Kirtley, Bertha Gaines and Bessie Cropper were the guests of Miss Lutie Gaines, last Thursday night.

Beaver.

Mrs. Morgan Black is very low with consumption.

Two daughters of Marshall Hill, of Covington, were visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hughes, Sunday.

Mrs. John Slayback's horse dropped dead in the shafts, last Sunday morning, while driving to church.

Rev. Rolan began a series of meetings at Hughes' Chapel, Sunday morning. Preaching at 10 a. m. and 6½ p. m.

Mrs. Ryle, of McVille, was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Allie Roter, last week.

G E. Carroll has helped the appearance of our town very much by erecting a beautiful veranda in front of his house.

Well, the political contest is over and the goldites put it on us this time, but the "golden calf" only wants a little more rope to hang itself.

Erlanger.

Wm. Sexton has arrived home after a three weeks' visit in the South, where he was investing in lumber.

The School Board held their meeting Friday evening and paid the salaries of the teachers.

The citizens held an indignation meeting, last Saturday evening at Konnerding's place, against Acklin Riggs the road Supervisor. He has called the men out to work the roads four days, when the roads are in good condition and a half days work would put them in the best of condition. Resolutions were passed and a committee composed of N. Flemming, M. Auerkamp, Frank Winterberger, J. McAlpin, Jno. Guerny and Wm. Bolin were appointed to call on Mr. Riggs and try and arbitrate the matter and report back to the citizens. In the evening the committee reported that the supervisors $5,000 prorated to different roads, and agreed to accept $2 cash from each Erlanger man who has been called out, which would bring in about $200, and that those that are out of work could work the roads and he would complete the repairs. In the minds of the citizens it is believed that $20 would be sufficient to repair the roads. Those present decided to pay as they work in the city and could not help themselves.

Verona.

Hurrah for Hon. A. S. Berry our tall Congressman.

The Democrats have about recovered from the shock of last Wednesday.

R. S. Houston and John Vest were out in grand style on election day.

John Conley, who was paralyzed a few days since, is slowly recovering.

L. J. Hume has opened a grocery in the building lately vacated by J. W. Kennedy.

The Republicans made a poor turn out here last Friday night, owing to the great number of Democrats.

Thos. A. Johnson, who has been suffering from prostration for several weeks, is at this writing, resting some better.

Jesse Hamilton, of Washington, D. C., who has been spending a vacation here, returned home Tuesday, after voting.

Our esteemed friends, Chester and Clayton Walton, of Erlanger, were entertained on a hunting tour at L. C. Roberts', last Wednesday and Thursday.

James Bagby with Miss Pattie Hume and Butler Myers with Miss Ida Craven, were the pleasant guests of Misses Katie and Bertha Roberts, last Sunday a week.

The three Misses Johnson, after spending several months with their brother-in-law, Geo. B. Johnson and wife, of this place, and friends at Big Bone, returned to their home near Lexington, last Friday.

Petersburg.

Mr. Geo. Moore, of Cincinnati, has been here for some time calking the float of the Boone Co. Distilling Co.

Ithimer Yerkes and family left here on the Sunshine, last Wednesday night for Vicksburg, Miss.. where they expect to locate. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

The report that the cows of Charley Bahn and Levi Spencer, that were driven off some time ago, had been found, was false. They have never been heard of yet.

Stella Sturgeon, whose serious illness has been reported, is improving nicely. No more cases of sore throat at this writing.

Mr. Milton Vawter, of North Madison, Ind., was here, last week, looking after Mrs. Amanda Sebree's interests.

On account of the sickness of Wm. Casey, the coal barge sent here for him was turned over to Frank Baker.

Mrs. Beagle, of Cincinnati, visited her daughter here last week.

Dr. Jack Walton, of Home City, O., was on hand to vote for gold.

Rev. Leslie Early will preach at the Christian church, Sunday night, November 15th.

Born—To Gus Passons and wife, a bouncing boy.

Walton.

The captivating modesty which adorns some of the Republican leaders since the election is charming in the superlative degree One of them was heard to assert with that tone of supercilious dignity which is characteristic of the superior soul that "all the best citizens voted the Republican ticket, that only toughs and low down people voted the Democratic." This observation was strongly corroborated by the distinguished Geo. Chapman of the colored contingent, who, upon being asked by a lady of this place, why he did not vote vith the Democrats, replied with the most engaging emphasis. "Why, that wouldn't do at all, I have to vote with my color." The Democracy are unfortunate indeed, when they cannot have as an ally the race so many of whose members are supposed to be midnight visitors to, and purveyors from, chicken roosts not their own.

Taylorsport.

Farmers are busy husking corn.

First snow of the season fell on the 8th inst.

B. F. Hood returned from Kingstown, Ind., on time for the election.

Sprague Bros., are building a store and will soon be selling goods.

Capt. Pickleheimer has his boat on the dock at Cincinnati, for repairs

Brice Mayhus' house opposite here, was destroyed by fire with all contents, last Sunday night.

Rastus Winters house was entered by thieves while the family was away last Wednesday, and numerous articles were taken

Mr. Breed and family, of Cincinnati, were visiting their parents, W. B. Grubbs and wife, a few days, last week.

Mrs. Barr and children, Misses Geneva and Anna Kolo, of Ludlow, spent last week with Capt. Pickleheimer and wife.

Miss Mary Terrill, of Covington, was visiting Miss Jo Grubbs, last week.

Charley Hood, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., is with his parents for a few days.

From the increase of the vote in this precinct it wont be long before it will be the largest in the county. All we have to do is to go up on the hillside and shake them off the bushes.

Bryan has proven himself a phenomenon in his fight against all combines, and we should look to him with pride. Cleveland, Carlisle, Breckinridge and others who have been the standard bearers of the Democratic party should be branded by every Democrat in the land.

Dr. W. B. Grubbs heard a steamboat crowing Wednesday morning about 2 o'clock, and taking it for granted Bryan was elected, dressed himself, called all hands, raised steam in his threshing machine engine and commenced crowing vigorously. Hurrah! Dr.

* * *

The dirt roads are in good condition but for how long no man knoweth.

* * *

From a Democratic standpoint, Kentucky played whaley in the election.

* * *

Col. Berry feels grateful to Boone county for the manner in which it stood by him in the election.

* * *

A fellow who worked for J. P. Tanner, of Florence, appropriated $60 of Mr. Tanner's money and skipped out.

* * *

Bob Farrell, the noted convict who died in the penitentiary, a few days since, willed Col. L. C. Norman a fine horse.

* * *

Both sides are charging fraud in the election in this State. It seems that everybody is considered dishonest in elections.

* * *

A great many Democrats in this State need instructions how to handle the Kangaroo. They hit it at the wrong place.

* * *

The weather clerk is undecided whether to furnish snow or rain. He has had the matter under advisement for several days.

* * *

The Sheriff has filled his appointments at the several places in the county for collecting taxes. He reports collections as having been slow.

* * *

Don't fall out with your neighbor because he was on the winning side in the election. He has the same right to his political opinion that you have to yours.

* * *

The prospects for a very large crop of wheat in Central Kentucky next year is extremely flattering at present. A large acreage was sowed, and the seed was never known to come up better. The ground is now hidden, and the vigorous growth attained will enable the crops to stand a hard winter.

* * *

Robert Egbert, a school tax collector in the "Poor-Neck" District of Mercer County, shot Hugh Ketron twice inflicting mortal wounds. Ketron refused to pay his taxes. Egbert levied upon a hog Ketron owned, and while he was driving it away Ketron interfered. He attempted to stab the collector. Both men have been respectable farmers.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Omer Cleek, of Beaver, was in town Saturday.

Geo. Mitchell, of Kenton county, was in town Monday.

Mr. A. G. Winston, of Hebron, was in town Thursday.

S. W. Tolin made a business trip to Petersburg yesterday.

Mr. C. Ross Lodwick, of Cincinnati, was in town Saturday.

Sheriff Roberts has at last conceded that McKinley is elected.

Paul Hallam, spent last week with his relatives in Covington.

C. H. Acar, of Bellevue, was among the visitors to town yesterday.

Mrs. Julia Clore has been complaining considerably the past week.

Mrs. Michael Clore, of Bellevue, fell, one day last week, and dislocated her hip.

W. E. Walton, of Constance, made the RECORDER a brief call, last Friday.

C. C. Roberts and family were visiting relatives at Walton, last Saturday and Sunday.

Edward Rice and wife, of the Utzinger neighborhood, were guests of F. Riddell and wife, last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Rouse were visiting Mr. Thos. Rouse, of Crittenden, Grant county, Saturday and Sunday.

T. A. Huey, of Union, made this office a call, last Friday. He looks like the world is dealing kindly with him.

R. S. Cowen and sister, Miss Annie, were visiting Dr. L C. Cowen, of Rabbit Hash, last Saturday night and Sunday.

Hiram Long, the Hopeful tobacco merchant, was in this part of the county, last Saturday, looking after bargains in tobacco.

Miss L. E. Runyan returned home, last Saturday, after several weeks' visit with Misses Julia and Cora Stevenson, of Norwood. Ohio.

Hons. T. B. Mathews, of Petersburg, and W. L Lyons, of Newport, were on hand Friday to witness the count of the vote of this county.

Mr. Amos Mannin, of Hebron, called in Monday morning to tell us that McKinley was elected, but we had heard something to that effect some days before.

In renewing his subscription to the RECORDER W. T. Davis says: "I live three miles from Lenoir City, Tenn. I have bought a farm out here of 141 acres, well improved. One hundred [illegible] cleared and the rest in good timber. I have just finished sowing thirty-five acres of wheat. I think I have the best place in the county, and am well pleased with this part of the State, and believe it is a good place to live."

* * *

Some kind weather is brewing.

J. B. Berkshire is bracing the benches in the Circuit court room. They need strengthening.

C. C. Roberts will meet W. H. Adams at Verona on November 31st, to pay an election bet.

T. B. Mathews and John P. Ernst will be the strong entries for Revenue Collector in this district.

Miss Laura Baker, who committed suicide at Lakeland Asylum, was buried at Union, last Saturday.

Owen county did the handsome thing by her son in giving him the largest majority she ever gave a candidate.

The river is falling, but a low stage of watter will not catch the coal merchants without a large stock on hand.

NOTICE—Those owing school tax in Districts Nos. 11 and 46 must come forward at once and pay or I will be compelled to advertise and sell property to satisfy same. C. C. ROBSRTS, S. B. C.

The following is the report of the Woolper school for the second month, giving the names of the scholars on the honor roll, none of them being below 90 per cent. :

Ella Scott, Lou Aylor, Mary Sebree, Pearl Sebree, Louella Cason, Hester Nettles, Maud Scott, Wilber Scott, Raymond Cook, Edna Sullivan, Essie Acra, Clyde Akins, Nettie Hewitt, Genie Sebree, Hanna Cason, James Costello, Marion Hewitt.

BETTIE DOLPH, Teacher.

* * *

John Winter, a resident of Bell county, last week while digging a cellar at his home on Elkwell creek excavated a giant mummy and several other curiosities. The mummy was of a man of great statue, eight feet high and wrapped in a winding cloth of skins. It was placed in a canoe-like coffin and crumbled away on being exposed to the air. At the head of the giant was a stone hatchet, a few cooking utensils and a large hollow stone, which presumably contained food. At his feet was a skin shield, which has also crumbled into dust.

* * *

THE Wall Street bankers grow red in the face every time reference is made to the bimetal clause in the St. Louis platform. They are for gold monometallism, and "by the eternal" they are going to have it.

IT is a good thing for the country that the result of the presidential election did not hinge on Kentucky's electoral vote. Had it been that her vote was necessary to decide the election, the country would be laboring under an excitement equal to that during the civil war.

TRIMBLE COUNTY.

[BANNER]

The Democrats have decided not to ratify.

From what we can learn we have wiped the gold-standard party off the face of the earth. They didn't get a smell. It took both McKinley and Bryan to do it, but wev'e got'em down and there let 'em stay.

The sound money support of Pryor was disappointing. He ran only six votes ahead of the ticket in the county and several Republicans have said that they voted for him. Pryor did not receive the votes of more than three or four who left the Democratic party.

OWEN COUNTY.

[Herald.]

The principal increase in the Republican vote in Carroll county was at Ghent and Worthville.

T. Sauders Orr has severed his connection with the News, having sold his interest to Geo. S. Lee & Co.

Thos. Dangerfield and Miss Emma Ogburn went to Vevay last Saturday to attend the rally and while there got married.

The B. Y. P. U. will give a concert in the new opera house Thanksgiving night It goes without saying that it will be first class in every respect.

Miss Lily Howe has the finest collection of campaign buttons we have seen. There are 38 on a black velvet back ground, and it is quite a unique display.

The Democratic primary in Owen county Tuesday resulted in the nomination of the following officers: J. W. Hill for judge; H. B. Beck, circuit clerk; Rolla Alexander, sheriff; Dan Lilly, assessor; Joseph Hayden, jailer. The county attorney's race is very close between Todd and Settle, and it will take the official count to determine it.

[News]

The meeting at the Cove Hill Baptist church closed Saturday with seven additions.

The Republican boys had a fine time jollifying Tuesday night. They waked the echoes with their cannon.

The Palmer and Buckner vote in Carroll county was as follows, according to returns given out by the officers of election; Ghent 9, Carrollton. court house 4, Carrollton engine house, 4, Locust, 1. Total, 18.

GALLATIN COUNTY.

[Independent]

Warsaw has the best coal supply it has had for years.

Corn is down to a remarkably low price, selling at 20 cents per bushel delivered.

Tuesday morning, at about four o'clock, a fire was discovered in the hen house on the farm of J. W. Hance, near Jackson Landing, and his hen house, coal house and ice house were consumed by the flames. It was with considerable difficulty that their elegant house was saved, as it caught fire in several places. The loss is quite a severe one, and is estimated at $400. The fire is supposed to have been caused by shanty-boat men, who in attempting to steal some chickens accidentally set fire to the hen house. A shanty-boat was noticed to depart from the landing early that morning, which caused the suspicion that they had something to do with the fire.

Republicans have begun to discuss the question of new officers for the revenue service. It seems to be generally agreed among local politicians that George W. Lieberth is logically the man for collector of the Sixth district. We know of no man who has more than a shadow of a claim to that office as compared with Mr. Lieberth's claim. He has spent his time and talent in the interest of Republicanism. In whatever official station he has held he reflected credit on himself and honored his party. As a legislator he was a conspicuous success, being the author of a number of good laws affecting his constituency. As chief of police of Newport he has shown equal efficiency. His management of the Kentucky campaign—for he is a member of the State committee—has been admirable, and his hand has been potent in directing the affairs of his party in the Sixth district. Mr. Ernst owes him a great debt of gratitude. Mr. Lieberth has a clinch on the political rabbit foot in this district, luck attending him in whatever way his aspirations lead him. Again, having been in the revenue service, he has a knowledge of it that will recommend him for the head of the district system. Mr. Lieberth would certainly suit us as well as any other Republican.

* * *

[RISING SUN LOCAL]

Mr. Fred Henchen, living up Bogus Hollow, has harvested his second crop of oats this year. About half an acre came up and fully matured. Nature is cutting some queer pranks this year.

A well-known farmer of the Big Bone neighborhood was in town Wednesday, and during a conversation with Dr. Simpson said: "Doc, there's just two things a Kentuckian can't stand." What are they?" "Water and Republican majorities."

A queer suicide occurred at the lower landing Monday morning. A homeless dog that has been subsisting on the scraps thrown to it from the meat shops for some time, and which had been kicked and cuffed around until existence was unbearable, deliberately waded into the river and drowned itself. The deed was witnessed by Mr. Joseph Jones.

Isn't It Reasonable?
We maintain that GOOD CLOTHING CAN BE BOUGHT BOR LESS MONEY at Our Store than elsewhere in this vicinity. Why do we say so? Because we know it to be a fact that
Our EXPENSES ARE THE LOWEST. BUYING IS THE CLOSEST. And
WE ARE SATISFIED WITH THE SMALLEST PROFITS.
You can not get something for nothing anyanywhere, but you can get get value for your money at
ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS
S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

STEPHENS & SCALES,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Hardware, Cutlery, and Agricultural Implements,
Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Steel Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,
BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE
AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.
No. 26 Pike Street, - - - - Covington, Ky.

Try the PETERSBURG FLOUR MILL.
FLOUR exchanged for WHEAT at all times and guaranteed. Call and get my prices on wheat. Also have on hand at all times
Mill Feed OF ALL KINDS,
AT THE LOWEST PRICES.
GOOD COAL IN THE YARD AT ALL TIMES,
☞Price, 10 cents per Bushel.
sept-24 BEN BELDEN, Petersburg, Ky.

BEST GOODS! LIVING PRICES!
Hardware,
Farm Machinery,
Fine Vehicles,
Harness.
HARRIS FITCH, Corner HIGH AND SHORT STREETS,
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

J. J. GEISEN,
HATTER AND GENT'S
FURNISHING GOODS,
615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.
Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVERY COMPANY.
62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,
E. H. BAKER, Proprietor
(o)
Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.
Telephone 580.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.
Prices Reasonable.
F. PIEPER,
Optician and Jeweler,
Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to
We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.
616 Madison Ave., - - COVINGTON, KY.

KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.
[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A.M.		A.M.	P. M
d 4:50	z9:13	Ar Walton Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8.52	Ar Williamstown Lv	8:32
3:48	8.28	Ar Corinth Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar Sadieville Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar Georgetown Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv Frankfort Ar	11:30	7:25

z Daily. d Except Sunday.
C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.

Scientific American Agency for
PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.
For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the
Scientific American
Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Take Your COUNTY
PAPER.

Livery Stable.
I am now fully equipped for taking of care Horses and Buggies, and keep GOOD RIGS FOR HIRE
at reasonable rates.
W. A. CRIGLER,
Bromley, Ky.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent?
Protect your ideas; [illegible] bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDE[illegible] CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., [illegible] their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred [illegible] wanted.

Local News.

NOTICE—Members of Union Democratic Club will meet at the town hall, Union, Ky., Saturday, Nov. 21st, 1896, at 7 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of effecting a permanent organization. All Democrats and bimetallists are invited to take part. M. J. CROUCH, Pres.

Election bets are being paid.

This has been a very fine fall for farm work.

Some winter weather last Sunday and Monday.

Jack Horton completes his jail sentence to-day.

Only about one month now until Circuit Court.

Are you fattening a turkey for Thanksgiving?

There is a fine crop of turkeys in the county this fall.

The Gallatin County Circuit Court begins next Monday.

No excuse for killing lean hogs this fall. Corn is plentiful.

The weather Sunday did not encourage street corner crowds.

The largest vote ever polled in Kentucky was that of the 3d inst.

They say gold is coming out of its hiding places. Will it stay out?

The Democrats have recovered from the defeat given them on Nov. 3.

The crop of new hats will be out soon. They will adorn Republican heads, though.

W. J. Rice has moved to his farm just south of Burlington, on the East Bend road.

The President has designated November 26th as a day for National Thanksgiving.

Considerable tobacco has been stripped, while but little of the new crop has been sold.

The vote received by Palmer and Buckner hardly entitles them to the class of "also rans."

Since the gold standard has been endorsed, Brasher Rouse desires to dispose of several very fine young dogs.

Some of the fox hunters are looking forward to great sport this winter. They claim they have some extra fast young dogs.

James Kelley, a nephew of the Corcoran boys, of Bullittsville, was killed in a coal mine accident at Vandalia, Illinois, last Wednesday.

The Democrats are in the saddle again in Dearborn county, Ind. They captured the entire lay-out of county offices on the 3d of this month.

James Clore lost a load of pumpkins on the election, but as the supply of pumpkins exceeds the demand, the winner refuses to take the pumpkins.

Some of the farmers are preparing to put up a large supply of corn, believing that they will not be able to buy again at the very low price for some time to come.

From the very large vote polled in Kentucky on the 3d inst., it is evident that all the living men in the State voted—and may be some that are not living.

The Burlington and Florence pike is now in very fine condition for driving over, but a large quantity of metal is ready for spreading on the road this winter.

In St. Elizabeth hospital, Covington, is a lady who is 110 years old. She is totally blind, very deaf and entirely helpless. There is no doubt as to her age being correctly given.

Mrs. Annie E. Clore has been appointed administratrix of the estate of her deceased husband, L. E. Clore. G. H. Gordon, Jerry Delph and S. J. Rouse were appointed appraisers.

The county election returns published by the RECORDER correspond with the official count made last Friday, except at Bullittsville Berry received only 215 votes instead of 217 as published.

Occasionally someone who is in arrears for subscription orders the RECORDER discontinued without paying up what is due. The only proper way to discontinue is to pay what you owe first.

Good times have come already. Two men were in town Monday distributing packages of coffee to all whom they met. With each package several chromos were given. Come on with your sacks of flour.

Superstitious people are predicting a long, cold winter. The fur of the rabbit and mink is thicker than usual, the corn husks are double, the nut crop is large, and the squirrels have begun to lay in stores of acorns.

Quite a number of the young people of the town enjoyed a cotillion party at the Boone House, last Friday night. It was about midnight when the party broke up, and all returned home highly pleased with the evening's amusement.

The sale of the personal estate of L. E. Clore, deceased, will take place at his late residence on the Burlington and Florence pike, Thursday, November 19th, beginning at 12 o'clock m. sharp.

The growing wheat is looking very well for this time of the year. The farmers consider it so well advanced that the chinch bugs will do it very little if any harm. Some were afraid to sow wheat on account of the anticipated ravages of these pests.

Miss Vida Myrtle Crigler, daughter of W. A. Crigler and wife, of Bromley, died last Sunday from the effects of a sunstroke received more than a year ago. She was a sister of Mrs. John Aylor, of Limaburg, and Mrs. George Gordon, of near Burlington.

Some time last Saturday night a thief entered the residence of Frank Crisler, of Bromley, and who furnishes the Sunday daily papers here, and stole about $45 in money. The loss falls heavily on Mr. Crisler, who had been some time in saving up that amount. No clue to the guilty party.

The Governor has appointed a new State Board of Equalization to succeed the Democratic Board. They are: First district, Ed Parker, London; Second district H. C. Martin, Munfordsville; Third district, R. M. Michael, Lexington; Fourth district, W. A. Bullock, Bowling Green.

It is strange that so many Democrats fail to mark their ballots correctly, while the Republicans make so few mistakes. One reason is the Republicans make no pretentions at scratching, and, as a result, they seldom lose a vote because of a ballot that cannot be understood by the officers of election when making the count.

An aged Missouri farmer declares that the coming winter will be unusually severe, for, says he, "When the mule holiers a great deal it is a sure sign, and they have been hollering most of the time lately." He probably bases his belief on the old adage, which has it, "when the donkey blows his horn, 'tis time to house your hay and corn."

When the counting board counted the vote last Friday they found among the rejected ballots returned 19 Democrats who only voted for the first elector on the ticket; three Republicans made the same mistake on their ballot; three ballots had no marks on them; two ballotts were voted for both the Democratic and Republican ticket; one could not be identified as belonging to any one; one ballot was rejected because the voter showed his vote to the officers of election.

J. W. Pomfrey, editor of the Covington Extra, sent the following dispatch to President-elect McKinley:

"I am the editor of the Extra, the only Democratic paper in this county supporting William J. Bryan. While I have no apology to make, I desire, before packing my grip for passage up Salt River, on the steamer Governor Altgeld, Jo Blackburn Captain, to congratulate you on your election to the Presidency. Believing that you will be the President of the whole people, I move to make your election unnanimous."

The vote at California, Cambell, Co., was so badly mixed up on the returns, says the Commonwealth, that no man could make head or tail of it, not even the election officers themselves, and it was cast out, except the vote for Berry and Ernst. It was supposed to give Bryan 155 and McKinley 55.

The vote of Fifth Ward A, Newport, was cast out entirely because it developed that the election officers burnt up the stub book and everything else except a rough memorandum of the vote and the tin ballot box. This precinct supposedly gave McKinley 208 and Bryan 106 votes.

A Louisville paper says: "John G. Carlisle will be J. C. S. Blackburn's successor as United States Senator from Kentucky if he will accept. By Tuesday's election the Republican vote in the Legislature became 70 on joint ballot, which is sufficient to elect, but not a quorum. Thus the gold standard Democrats are masters of the situation. In addition, one Republican member of the Legislature who was elected Tuesday owes his victory to a pledge, in writing, that in consideration of the support of the gold Democrats he would vote for Carlisle for Senator."

Mrs. C. L. Crisler passed the 54th anniversary of her birth on the 3d inst., but it was not convenient for her friends to celebrate the event that day, and the ceremony was postponed until last Saturday evening, when she was given a big surprise. A crowd of about 25 persons, called on her directly after supper Saturday evening, and before she recovered from the surprise caused by such a throng of callers, she was submerged with presents too numerous to mention, among them being dresses, aprons, towels, sugar, coffee, crackers, soap, &c., &c. The visitors took possession of the house, and for a few hours a joyous scene followed, at the conclusion of which all took their leave, wishing the hostess a return of many more happy birth days.

Big Barn Burned.

The big dairy barn, belonging to Joe List, dairyman, living on the Lexington pike, was entirely consumed by fire last Friday night, and but for the extraordinary efforts made by the neighbors, every head of stock in the barn would have been cremated. All the cattle and horses were turned out except two valuable draught horses that were in the portion of the stable where the fire originated, and both of them were burned to death. The barn was one of the best in the vicinity, and cost $2,000. In addition to this, the entire amount of hay, corn and oats, calculated to feed the stock all winter, is a total loss. The origin of the fire is a mystery, as the work of the night had been done, and there was no one about the stable, so far as is known. Sexton Wright, of the cemetery adjoining, was the first to discover the blaze, and says it came from the hay loft, and the supposition is prevalent that some tramp may have crawled into the hay to sleep, and accidentally set it on fire and burned to death himself.

The following is taken from last Saturday's Louisville Commercial:

"Miss Laura Baker, an inmate of the Lakeland Asylum, 37 years of age, committed suicide Thursday night by drowning herself in the lake at that place.

"Miss Baker was from Boone county, and had been an inmate at the asylum for the past two years. Some days ago she asked permission of the grounds, and as she seemed in a perfectly rational state, that was granted her. Three days ago she was heard to make threats that she intended to take her own life when she got an opportunity.

"The Superintendent was informed of this and her limits were again restricted to the walls of the asylum. On Thursday night, when she and her attendant, Miss Emma Tatum, were on their way to supper, she succeeded in getting from under her eye unobserved.

"She must have gone straight to the lake and thrown herself in. She was soon missed and a search instituted. It was three hours before the body was discovered and taken from the lake.

"This is the second case of the kind which has occurred at the asylum during the past week. John W. Lowe, of Louisville, was drowned there Wednesday."

The Teachers' Association met at the Union school house, Saturday, Nov. 7. On account of bad weather there were not many present.

The first thing on the programme was the Welcome Address, by Dr. M. J. Crouch together with response by Prof. Henry Hill, which was enjoyed by all.

Recitation—Miss Eva Smith.

Talk on Composition by Miss Nannie Bristow.

Ornamentation of the school room by C. N. Curry, discussed by Dr. Crouch, Prof. Voshell, Miss Nannie Bristow and Prof. Collins.

Recitation—Miss Bessie Houston.

The association then adjourned for noon until 1:30 p. m. Of course one of Boone county's old fashioned dinners was served in style, which every one enjoyed.

The first thing in the afternoon, was the discussion of Physiology by Prof. Voshell and Dr. Crouch.

Select Reading—Miss Ella Tanner.

Civil Government—C. N. Curry and Prof. Hill.

Recitation—Virginia Conner.

Essay—Miss Susie Hogan; Subject—"The White Lilly."

Recitation—Edna Mullen.

Should boys and girls play together? Discussed by Profs. Voshell, Hill, Curry, Collins and Miss Harriet Bedinger.

Recitation—Gean Cleek.

Resolved, That we, the teachers assembled at our regular meeting at Union, return our grateful thanks to the people of Union for the excellent dinner furnished.

C. N. CURRY, Secretary.

The following is the vote in this district for Congress, compiled from the local papers:

	Berry.	Ernst.
Boone	2265	785
Campbell	4517	5854
Carroll	1764	693
Gallatin	927	391
Pendleton	1891	1617
Trimble	1230	430
Grant	1842	1423
Kenton	6690	6262
Total	21,126	17,455

Berry's majority......3,761.

The Covington Extra says: "The Pie Hunters are lined up something in this order: For Collector—The handsome and urbane Comingore; the antagonistic and experienced Bowen; the pugnacious Matthews, and the handsome and suave Lieberth, of the county of Campbell, and who now holds two offices—Chief of Police of Newport and member of the legislature from the county of Campbell.

"The choice lies between Comingore and Matthews, and the eyes of the Lick telecope are not needed to tell which way the political cat will jump."

Which way will the cat jump, say you?

Solon Early was in town Friday, and administered on the estate of Noah Sebree, deceased. He was accompanied by a Mr. Vaughter, of Madison, Ind., whose wife was a daughter of Mrs. Noah Sebree's first husband. Mr. Vaughter is a grandson of John Watts, who laid out the town of Burlington. It was his first visit here.

The Warsaw Independent gives the following good advice to tobacco growers:

"The tobacco growers should take the greatest care in assorting the different grades of tobacco when stripping their crops as this is what sells a crop to a better advantage, especially when the crop is of any size. Many buyers make a good profit by grading their purchases where the crops are not properly handled. It will not be long until the buyers will be in the field looking for purchases and the best handled crops usually attract their attention and meet with a prompt and satisfactory sale. Get your crops ready, handle them carefully and neatly and you will get all the markets affords. The crop in this section is far superior to a usual crop, and this is the very kind of tobacco that buyers have a chance to make a profit on. The market will improve now and we want our growers to get every cent their crops can possibly bring, and careful handling will do much in this direction."

Geo. Campbell, colored, has bought of Henry Rice, colored, his property in the north part of town, paying $500 cash therefor.

ANNOUCEMENT!

I wish to announce to my friends that I have accepted the agency for

C. ROSS LODWICK,

Undertaker & Embalmer,

3035 W. 6th St. CINCINNATI, O.,

And am prepared to furnish all articles for

FUNERAL PURPOSES

on short notice.

Prompt attention will be paid to FUNNERAL ORDERS and strict attention given to the care of the dead.

Respectfully,

GEO. BLYTH, Burlington, Ky.

Administrat's Notice.

Those indebted to the estate of J. V. West, dec'd., must come forward and settle at once, and those having claims against said estate must present the same at once proven according to law.

E. S. WEST, Adm'r.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

Christopher Barlow's Executor, Plff.

vs

Matilda J. Barlow, &c., Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against Christopher Barlow's estate will present them to me properly proven according to law.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, Master Com.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

E. M. Gaines' Assignee, Plff.

vs.

Farmers & Traders Nat. Bank, Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against E. M. Gaines' estate will present them to me properly proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Are You Afraid?

TO READ BOTH SIDES OF THE QUESTION?

The New York Journal is the only Metropolitan paper indorsing

Bryan and Sewall

and it daily publishes articles by the leading financiers of the country on both sides of the question,

"Silver versus Gold."

It is progressive, liberal and always espouses the cause of the masses. Every broad minded man should read it, whether Republican or Democrat.

THE NEW YORK JOURNAL.

Daily - - - - - 1 Cent everywhere.
Subscription for One Month, including Sunday - - - - 40 cents
Two Months and a Half - - - $1.00

Send subscription to

The New York Journal,

Circulation Department, NEW YORK.

16 to 1,

You will always find that we give you 16 ounces to every 1 pound you buy of us.

We Have Cut Down Profits to Suit the Hard Times.

The large amount of Goods we are Selling every day is sufficient proof of the above statement.

Give us a call,

W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,

DEALERS IN

PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,

63 and 65 Pike Street,

Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.

ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.

CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.

27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.

Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDER-TAKER EMBAL-MER,

Corner Pike & Russell Streets,

COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.

INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,

Undertakers AND Embalmers,

OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,

COVINGTON, KY.

CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.

Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL,

WHOLESALE AND

RETAIL GROCER,

GRASS SEED.

Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.

Tom Wilson, Salesman.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.

We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office

And FEED STORE from

708 Madison Avenue

To the Large and more Commodious Quarters

15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.

Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with

GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED

At the Lowest Market Values.

Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,

W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,

GENERAL MERCHANTS,

HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.

A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.

UNDERTAKING.

is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. HANKINS.

Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

MEN'S SOULS.

The Emotion that Stirs Some Breasts to Rescue Them.

Theologians, Willing to Die for the Glory of God, Not More Zealous Than the Missionaries at Home and Abroad—Sermon by Rev. Dr. Talmage.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was Rom. ix, iii: "I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren, my kinsmen according to the flesh."

A tough passage, indeed, for those who take Paul literally. When some of the old theologians declared that they were willing to be damned for the glory of God, they said what no one believed. Paul did not in the text mean he was willing to die forever to save his relatives. He used hyperbole, and when he declared, "I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren, my kinsmen according to the flesh," he meant in the most vehement of all possible ways to declare his anxiety for the salvation of his relatives and friends. It was a passion for souls. Not more than one Christian out of thousands of Christians feels it. All-absorbing desire for the betterment of the physical and mental condition is very common. It would take more of a mathematician than I ever can be to calculate how many are up to an anxiety that sometimes will not let them sleep nights, planning for the efficiency of hospitals where the sick and wounded of body are treated, and for eye and ear infirmaries and for dispensaries and retreats where the poorest may have most skillful surgery and helpful treatment. Oh! it is beautiful and glorious, this widespread and ever intensifying movement to alleviate and cure physical misfortunes. May God encourage and help the thousands of splendid men and women engaged in that work. But all that is outside of my subject to-day. In behalf of the immortality of a man, the inner eye, the inner ear, the inner capacity for gladness or distress, how few feel anything like the overwhelming concentration expressed in my text. Rarer than four-leaved clovers, rarer than century plants, rarer than prima donnas, have been those of whom it may be said, "They had a passion for souls." You could count on the fingers and thumb of your left hand all the names of those you can recall, who in the last, the eighteenth century, were so characterized. All the names of those you could recall in our times as having this passion for souls you can count on the fingers and thumbs of your right and left hands. There are many more such consecrated souls, but they are scattered so widely you do not know them. Thoroughly Christian people by the hundreds of millions there are to-day, but how few people do you know who are utterly oblivious to everything in this world except the redemption of souls? Paul had it when he wrote my text, and the time will come when the majority of Christians will have it, if this world is ever to be lifted out of the slough in which it has been floundering for near 19 centuries. And the betterment had better begin with myself and yourself. When a committee of the "Society of Friends" called upon a member to reprimand him for breaking some small rule of the society, the member replied: "I had a dream in which all the Friends had assembled to plan some way to have our meeting-house cleaned, for it was very filthy. Many propositions were made, but no conclusion was reached until one of the members rose and said: 'Friends, I think if each one would take a broom and sweep immediately around his own seat, the meeting-house would be clean.'" So let the work of spiritual improvement begin around our own soul. Some one whispers up from the right hand side of the pulpit and says: "Will you please name some one of the persons in our times who have this passion for souls?" Oh, no! That would be invidious and imprudent, and the mere mentioning of names of such persons, might cause in them spiritual pride, and then the Lord would have no more use for them. Some one whispers up from the left hand side of the pulpit: "Will you not then mention among the people of the past some who had this passion for souls?" Oh, yes! Samuel Rutherford, the Scotchman of 300 years ago, his imprisonment at Aberdeen for his religious zeal, and the public burning of his book, "Lex-Rex," in Edinboro, and his unjust arraignment for high treason, and other persecutions purifying and sanctifying him, so that his works, entitled "Trial and Triumph of Faith" and "Christ Dying and Drawing Sinners to Himself," and, above all, his 215 unparalled letters, showed that he had the passions for souls. Richard Baxter, whose "Paraphrase of the New Testament" caused him to be dragged before Lord Jeffries, who howled at him as "a rascal" and a "sniveling Presbyterian," and imprisoned him for two years—Baxter, writing 168 religious books, his "Call to the Unconverted" bringing uncounted thousands into the pardon of the Gospel, and his "Saints' Everlasting Rest" opening Heaven to a host innumerable. Richard Cecil. Thomas-a-Kempis, writing his "Imitation of Christ" for all ages. Harlan Page. Robert McCheyne. Nettleton. Finney. And more whom I might mention, the characteristic of whose lives was an overtowering passion for souls. A. B. Earl, the Baptist evangelist, had it. I. N. Inskip, the Methodist evangelist, had it. Jacob Knapp, had it. Dr. Bachus, president of Hamilton college, had it, and when told he had only half an hour to live; said: "Is that so? Then take me out of my bed and place me upon my knees, and let me spend that time in calling on God for the salvation of the world." And so he died upon his knees. Then there have been others whose names have been known only in their own family or neighborhood, and here and there you think of one. What unction they had in prayer! What power they had in exhortation! If they walked into a home every member of it felt a holy thrill, and if they walked into a prayer meeting the dullness and stolidity instantly vanished. One of them would sometimes electrify a whole city.

But the most wonderful one of that characterization the world ever saw or heard or felt was a peasant in the far east, wearing a plain blouse like an inverted wheat sack, with three openings, one for the neck and the other two for the arms. His father, a wheelright and house-builder, and given to various carpentry. His mother at first under suspicion, because of the circumstances of his nativity, and He chased by a Herodic mania out of His native land, to live awhile under the shadows of the Sphinx and Pyramid of Gizeh, afterward confounding the LL. D.'s of Jerusalem. Then stopping the paroxysm of tempest and of madman. His path strewn with slain dropsies and catalipsies and ophthalmias, transfigured on one mountain, preaching on another mountain, dying on another mountain and ascending from another mountain—the greatest, the loveliest, the mightiest, the kindest, the most self-sacrificing, most beautiful Being whose feet ever touched the earth. Tell us, ye deserts, who heard our Saviour's prayer; tell us, ye seas that drenched Him with your serf; tell us, ye multitudes who heard Him preach on deck, on beach, on hillside; tell us, Golgotha who heard the stroke of the hammer on the spikeheads, and the dying groan in that midnight that dropped on midnoon, did anyone like Jesus have this passion for souls?

But breaking right in upon me is the question, How can we get something of this Pauline and Christly longing for saved immortalities? I answer: By better appreciating the prolongation of the soul's existence compared with everything physical and material. How I hope that surgeon will successfully remove the cataract from that man's eye! It is such a sad thing to be blind. Let us pray while the doctor is busy with the delicate operation. But for how long a time will he be able to give his patient eyesight? Well, if the patient be 40 years of age, he will add to his happiness perhaps fifty years of eyesight, and that will bring the man to 90 years, and it is not probable that he will live longer than that, or that he will live so long. But what is good eyesight for 50 years more as compared with clear vision for the soul a billion of centuries? I hope the effort to drive back the typhoid fever from yonder home will be successful. God help the doctors! We will wait in great anxiety until the fires of that fever are extinguished, and when the man rises from his pillow and walks out, with what heartiness we will welcome him into the fresh air and the church and business circles. He is 30 years of age, and if he shall live 60 years more that will make him 90. But what are 60 years more of earthly vigor compared with the soul's health for a quadrillion mellenimums—a millenimum, as you know, a thousand years? This world, since fitted up for man's residence, has existed about 6,000 years. How much longer will it exist? We will suppose it will last as much longer, which is very doubtful. That will make its existence 12,000 years But what are or will be 12,000 years compared with the eternity preceding those years and the eternity following them? Time, as compared to eternity, like the drop of the night dew shaken from the top of a grass blade by the cow's hoof on its way afield this morning, as compared with Mediterranean, and Arabian, and Atlantic, and Pacific watery dominions

A stranger desired to purchase a farm, but the owner would not sell it—would only let it. The stranger hired it by lease for only one crop, but he sowed acorns, and to mature that crop three hundred years were necessary. That was a practiced deception, but I deceive you not when I tell you that the crop of the soul takes hold of unending ages.

I see the author of my text seated in the house of Gaius, who entertained him at Corinth, not far from the overhanging fortress of Acro Corinthus, and meditating on the longevity of the soul, and getting more and more agitated about its value and the awful risk some of his kindred were running concerning it, and he writes this letter containing the text, which Chrysostom admired so much he had it read to him twice a week, and among other things, he says those daring and startling words of my text: "I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren, my kinsmen, according to the flesh."

Another way to get something of the Pauline longing for redeemed immortalities is by examining the vast machinery arranged to save this inner and spiritual nature. That machinery started to revolve on the edge of the Garden of Eden, just after the cyclone of sin prostrated its sycamores, and tamarisks, and willows, and will not cease to revolve until the last soul of earth shall get rid of its last sin and enter the Heavenly Eden. On that stupendous machinery for soul-saving, the patriarch put his hand, and prophet his hand, and evangelist his hand, and apostle his hand, and Christ his hand, and almost every hand that touched it became a crushed hand. It was the most expensive machinery ever constructed. It cost more to start it, and has cost and will cost more to keep it running than all the wheels that ever made revolution on this planet. That machinery turned not by ordinary motive power, but by force of tears and blood. To connect its bands of influence, made out of human and Christly nerves, with all parts of the earth, millions of good men and women are now at work and will be at work until every wilderness shall become a garden, and every tear of grief shall be a tear of joy, and the sword of divine victory shall give the wound to the old dragon that shall send him howling to the pit, the iron gate clanging against him, never again to open.

All that, and infinitely more, to save the soul! Why, it must be a tremendous soul—tremendous for good or tremendous for evil; tremendous for happiness or tremendous for woe. Put on the left side of the largest sheet of paper that ever came from a paper mill a single unit, the figure 1, and how many ciphers would you have to add to the right of that figure to express the soul's value, each cipher adding tenfold? Working into that scheme of the soul's redemption, how many angels of God, descending and ascending! How many storms swooping on Lake Galilee? How many earthquakes opening dungeons and striking cataclysms through mountains; from top to base! What noonday sun was put on retreat! What Omnipotence lifted, and what Godhead was put to torture! All that for the soul! No wonder that Paul though possessing great equipose of temperament, when he thought what his friends and kindred were risking concerning their souls, flung aside all his ordinary modes of speech, argument, and apt simile, and bold metaphor, and learned allusion, as unfit to express how he felt, and seizing upon the appalling hyperbolism of my text, cries out: "I could wish myself accursed." That is, struck of the thunderbolts of the Omnipotent God, sunk to unfathomed depths, chained into servitude to Abaddon, and thrust into furnaces whose fires shall never burn out, if only those whom I love might now and forever be saved. Mind you, Paul does not say, "I do wish." He says, "I could wish." Even in the agony he felt for others, he did not lose his balance—"I could wish myself accursed." I could, but I do not. Only one thing that ever lived was literally willing to give up Heaven for perdition, and that was the Divine Peasant whom I mentioned a few moments ago. He was not willing to exchange dominions of bliss for dominions of wretchedness, but He did so; for that He forsook Heaven witness the stooping star and all those who saw His miracles of mercy, and that He actually entered the gates of the world of perpetual conflagration the Bible distinctly declares. He did not say, with Paul: "I could," but He said: "I will; I do," and for the souls of men He "descended into hell."

Now, the object of this sermon is to stir at least one-fourth of you to an ambition for that which my text presents blazing vocabulary, namely, a passion for souls. To prove that it is possible to have much of that spirit, I bring the consecration of 2,900 foreign missionaries. It is usually estimated that there are at least 3,000 missionaries. I make a liberal allowance and admit there may be ten bad missionaries out of the 3,000, but I do not believe there is one. All English and American merchants leave Bombay, Calcutta, Amoy and Pekin as soon as they make their fortunes. Why? Because no European or American in his senses would stay in that climate after monetary inducements have ceased. Now, the missionaries there are put down on the barest necessities and most of them do not lay up one dollar in 20 years. Why, then, do they stay in those lands of intolerable heat, and cobras, and raging fevers, the thermometer sometimes playing at 130 and 140 degrees of oppressiveness, 12,000 miles from home, because of the unhealthy climate and the prevailing immoralities of those regions compelled to send their children to England, or Scotland, or America, probably never to see them again? O Blessed Christ! Can it be anything but a passion for souls? It is easy to understand all this frequent depreciation of foreign missionaries when you know that they are all opposed to the opium traffic, and that interferes with commerce, and then the missionaries are moral, and that is an offense to many of the merchants—not all of them, but many of them—who, absent from all home restraint, are so immoral that we can make only faint allusion to the monstrosity of their abominations. Oh, I would like to be at the gate of Heaven when those missionaries go in, to see how they will have the pick of coronets, and thrones, and mansions on the best streets of Heaven. We who have had easy pulpits and loving congregations, entering Heaven, will, in my opinion, have to take our turn and wait for the Christian workers, who, amid physical sufferings and mental privation and environment of squalor, have done their work, and on the principle that in proportion as one has been self-sacrificing and suffering for Christ's sake on earth will be their celestial preferment.

Who is that young woman on the worst street in Washington, New York or London, Bible in hand, and a little package in which small vials of medicines, and another bundle in which are biscuits? How dare she risk herself among those "roughs," and where is she going? She is one of the queens of Heaven, hunting up the sick and hungry, and before night she will have read Christ's "Let not your heart be troubled" in eight or ten places, and counted out from those vials the right number of drops to ease pain, and given food to a family that would otherwise had nothing to eat to-day, and taken the measure of a dead child that she may prepare for it a shroud, her very act of kindness for the body accompanied with a benediction for the soul. You see nothing but the filthy street along which she walks and the rickety stairs up which she climbs, but she is accompanied by an unseen cohort of angels with drawn swords to defend her, and with garlands twisted for her victories, all up and down the tenement house districts.

A BELFAST correspondent states that the Pennsylvania, a twin-screw steamer, with 30,000 tons displacement, 20,000 tons carrying capacity, 585 feet long, 62 feet beam and 42 feet deep, was successfully launched by Messrs. Harland & Wolff, Belfast, for the Hamburg-American line. The normal speed of the vessel, the measurement of which makes her the largest vessel afloat, will be 14 knots. She is fitted up for 200 first, 150 second and 1,000 steerage passengers.

A BRAVE JERSEY BOY.

Perhaps the darkest days experienced by the little army of Washington were those that witnessed the retreat across the Jerseys. New York had fallen into the hands of the boastful enemy; he had taken Forts Lee and Washington and the patriots were on the retreat with the victorious British following in their wake.

It was during this famous retreat that the following incidents occurred:

Some time after dark during one of those memorable autumn days the American army began to pass a little hamlet at cross-roads between New Brunswick and Princeton, in New Jersey.

The place did not contain more than 20 houses, and these were so scattered that the collection had never been dignified by a name. The houses were of the old-fashioned kind, and several were stone, and to all large gardens were attached.

The wagon train, which carried much of the ammunition that belonged to the army, came straggling through the hamlet, guarded by a detachment of the most faithful. As the last wagon reached the place the hindmost axel broke off and the precious contents were dumped upon the ground.

Instantly all was confusion, and the soldiers tried to repair the mishup, but soon discovered that it was irreparable.

The other wagons being some distance in advance, and all heavily loaded, the men decided to bury the powder somewhere where it would not be found by the enemy when advancing, flushed with late victories.

The soldiers were discussing the burial of the ammunition when a boy of 15 appeared suddenly in their midst. He was a stout lad, not very well clad, but bright eyed and eager to lend a hand in the time of need.

"If you bury the powder here you must take care that the Tories don't watch you and turn it over to the British when they come along," said he to the sergeant who had charge of the wagon guard.

"You've got tories here, have you, boy?" asked the sergeant.

"Three families, sir. You might throw a guard around their houses while you bury the powder, and that will keep them from finding out where you put it."

"The very thing. You're fit to command a regiment," cried the soldier, and then he told the boy to point out the homes of the three tories, which was done, and guards were placed at the houses.

It was far into the night when the wagon guard moved on without the powder, and the boy had been cautioned to keep the secret that had been entrusted to his care.

"I'll do that, sir," said he, his eyes flashing. "You can move on believing that Toby Travers won't tell the enemy the hiding place of the ammunition. It's safe here, and when you come back you'll find it right where you've hid it.'

Daylight saw the headquarters of Lord Cornwallis established in one of the tory homes, and Toby saw more redcoats then he ever expected to see.

He was standing in the doorway of his humble home when he espied four British soldiers, headed by a tall sergeant, advancing toward him, and while he gazed they halted in front of the house.

"You're the Travers boy, aren't you?" the sergeant said, haughtily.

"My name's Toby Travers."

"I thought so. Well, Master Travers, we want you."

Toby started a little, but kept his composure.

"Whatever can you want with me?" he inquired.

"Come along and we'll answer that question in a little while."

Without a word of further explanation he was marching to the tory's house and pushed half rudely across the threshold.

"This is the boy," said the sergeant, saluting his officer. "We caught him at his home and he is the boy who knows where they buried the powder."

For a moment longer the leader of the British army looked across the table and then said gruffly:

"Where is it, boy?"

All eyes were riveted upon Toby and the tall sergeant at the door grinned his delight.

"Aren't you going to tell?" demanded Cornwallis.

"Why should I? If you found the powder you would use it against Gen. Washington."

"Of course we would! That would be paying the rebels back in their own coin."

"Then," said Toby, resolutely, "you can go out and find the powder."

The face of Cornwallis flushed for a moment—his eyes seemed to flash.

"Do you know who I am, boy?" he exclaimed.

"Yes, sir—you are Gen. Cornwallis."

"I am. I command this army and serve the king. I hold your fate in my hands, young sir, and unless you tell where the rebels hid their powder last night you are liable to severe punishment."

"I cannot do that, general," said Toby, resolved to keep his secret at all hazards. "I promised—"

"What's a promise to a rebel?" interrupted the British chief. "Come, sir. We can't wait all day on you. You are delaying the advance of my army and you must tell."

"I refuse to tell you, sir. There!"

"This is treason of the deepest dye!" exclaimed Cornwallis. "I never saw anything like it and from a boy, too."

"This is too much," ventured one of the other officers in a lowered voice. "You should discipline the young rebel, my lord."

"Just what I am going to do. Here sergeant. Take the prisoner and see that he is guarded till night. If he still refuses to disclose the hiding place of this rebel powder you will stand him up before six soldiers and see that the muskets are loaded with ball."

Toby was escorted to the only empty house in the hamlet, an old stone affair with a clapboard roof and one little window which had been boarded up.

Nearly all day the British force followed through the village on its march after Washington's retreating army. All day a tall, gruff sentry paced up and down in front of Toby's prison. Every now and then he looked in to see that "rebel brat" was safe and each time he caught the resolute look of the boy still confined between the four walls.

'Why don't you make a clean breast of it, boy?" said the guard toward evening.

"I am not a tory, sir," came the quick answer.

"Tory or not, it behooves you to tell where the rebel powder is. You know the orders."

Toby turned away and went over to the other side of the old house, where he remained, looking defiantly at the guard, who thought him one of the "stubbornest rebels" he had ever seen.

Night came at last, throwing her sable pall over the memorable little place.

The last detachment of the British army had vanished, but 20 men remained behind to take care of the boy, safe in their clutches. More than once since sundown Toby was visited and urged to betray the hiding place of Gen. Washington's ammunition; but to all the pleadings and threats he turned a deaf ear, and was heartily cursed for his refusal.

"We will quit here at nine o'clock," said the sergeant, at last. "It is the last moment of grace you have, boy."

It was seven, then.

Toby listened to the retreating footsteps of the sergeant, and then the guard resumed his tramp in front of the old stone pile.

"This is Abner Bryant's work," said the little prisoner to himself. "He is mad because they watched his house, and did not give him a chance to tell Cornwallis where the powder was buried. He takes this plan to become a hero in Cornwallis' eye and to show this British commander that he is loyal to the king. Never mind, Abner. We may be quits one of these days, and you may not stand quite so high in the estimation of King George's general!"

It was almost nine o'clock when the sergeant drew up his squad and saw that their muskets were loaded with ball.

Abner Bryant and the other tories of the crossroads stood off a little distance and witnessed this ceremony.

"He'll tell," said the head tory. "The boy will weaken at the last moment, and when the rear-guard leaves us they'll take the rebel powder along."

"Certainly. His mother understands this, for she won't shed a tear, you know."

"There they go now. The sergeant is going to carry out his orders if the little rebel still remains defiant."

"In front of the stone house the detachment halted and the sentry saluted.

"It is nine o'clock," said the sergeant.

The sergeant unlocked the door, the key grating harshly in the rusty padlock, and the next moment he looked in and called for Toby.

There was no reply, and the soldier went inside.

A moment's glance seemed sufficient.

"There's a hole in the roof!" cried he.

"A hole in the roof?" echoed half a dozen voices.

"Bring a light. Quick! The little scamp has escaped."

The utmost confusion reigned.

A light was brought and revealed the interior of the stone pile; a loose clapboard in the roof told that the little rebel had actually taken flight, and the white-faced sentry seemed ready to fall on his knees with fear.

"He was here ten minutes ago. I heard him," he managed to say.

"And ten minutes to him meant a great deal. He can run like a deer," put in Abner Bryant.

"It seems to me I heard a horse cross the bridge a little while ago," remarked another and then the soldiers separated.

The sergeant and one other hastened to Toby's home and searched it. Abner Bryant ran home to get out his best horse, but a startling discovery awaited him.

The "best horse" was gone.

The excitement that followed Toby's escape was intense. The patriots of the hamlet secretly rejoiced, while the three tories bit their lips with chagrin.

Some months later Abner Bryant received a letter exploiting the good qualities of his missing horse and thanking him for the use of it.

The letter was signed "Toby Travers," and the enraged tory tore it up and threw it into the fire.

What became of the little rebel of the cross-roads?

The day after the surrender at Yorktown he was the bearer of a message from Washington to Cornwallis and the defeated general looked at him with a great deal of curiosity.

"We have met before, my lord," said Capt. Toby, with a bow.

"I've been thinking as much," answered Cornwallis, "but just now I cannot place you."

"I'm the Jersey boy who wouldn't betray the hiding place of the patriot powder."

A flush came to the Briton's face and he turned it away. But the next moment he turned suddenly to the young captain:

"We've heard from that powder since. I understand that a lot of rebels afterward unearthed it and used some of it against us in the siege of Yorktown," he said, with a smile. "Your general nearly lost a young captain that time; but I commend your courage on that occasion. You deserve to be made a major."

It was the proudest moment in Capt. Toby's life, and the next proudest was when he went back to the little hamlet and turned over to Abner Bryant his black horse which had carried him to safety on the most eventful night in his history.—Denver Republican.

HUMOROUS.

—Her Meaning.—Angry Father—"What do you mean by being engaged to half a dozen men at once?" She—"Nothing."—Detroit Free Press.

—Ambiguous.—Ardent Lover—"For you, miss, I am ready to go to the ends of the world." Coy Maiden—"Oh, sir, you go too far."—Fliegende Blatter.

—A Compound Fracture.—"Why was it that she broke the engagement, Fluffy?" "Because she found out that I was broke."—Detroit Free Press.

—"It must be such pleasure to sing as you do. Does your husband sing, too?" "Well, John—John wants to sing awfully—and he does."—Harlem Life.

—Old Gruff—"Waiter, you don't mean to say that this is spring lamb?" Waiter—"Indeed, it is, sir." Old Gruff—"Hm! What year?"—Harper's Bazar.

—"That young widow next door has bought a bicycle." "Isn't that a trifle odd?" "No; she says she had to have it so she could carry flowers out to the cemetery."—Chicago Record.

—Better Places Than Home.—The Bride—"Why do you stay away from home every night, Fred?" The Brute—"It must be the result of the habit acquired while courting you."—Truth.

—In the Art Gallery. Pleasant Woman (noticing a man copying one of the old masters)—"Why do they paint this picture twice?" Her Husband—"Why, that's obvious. When the new picture is done they hang that on the wall and throw the old one away."—Fliegende Blatter.

THEY ALL SWING THEIR ARMS.

Singular Habit Alleged Against Women of Chicago While Out Walking.

The women of Chicago, old and young, matrons and schoolgirls, all have a habit that is distinctly their own. They swing their arms. It matters little whether they come from the North or West side, the fashionable suburb of Buena Park or from Cicero, when they promenade their right arms swing to and fro with the regularity of an eight-day clock. The well-gowned and well-groomed maidens who take their constitutional either on the Lake Shore or along Michigan boulevard are as much addicted to the disagreeable mannishism as their sisters who take their grooming on South Halsted street, or who promenade after long hours spent in a factory out on Archer road.

Sometimes the maid or dame who rushes from one shop to another in the retail district of Chicago swings only one arm backward and forward as she hurries on, bent upon securing a good bargain. But if her haste is exceedingly great both are often in motion and not always do they move in unison. When the promenade is well filled with women, even if their costumes are rich and gay, the gloss is taken from the throng by this ungainly habit.

The belles who walk on Fifth avenue, New York, and in Hyde Park, London, do not appear to affect this unpleasant habit and, although some physicians are of the opinion, that the swinging of the arms comes from too snug a fitting corsage, this cannot be true, for the fashionable dames of London are noted the world over for the smallness of their waists. The only way that physical culturists can account for the mannerism is that the women do not realize that they have acquired a motion in walking that throws their arms with each step. A well-known teacher of Delsarte insists that if the mothers of Chicago would but watch for a couple of hours one of the promenades that girls frequent they would surely make an effort to overcome this peculiar habit of their daughters, for it is too ugly a mannerism to permit to grow more than it has.—Chicago Chronicle.

French School Uniforms.

Nothing must seem stranger to Americans accustomed to see schoolboys of all ages come and go freely through the streets dressed according to their parents' taste and means than to watch those long lines of French boys, sometimes nearly grown to manhood, wearing a school uniform of semimilitary coats and caps, and led out for a walk like a flock of sheep by a shepherd. Their uniform is worn without any pretension to strict regimental regulation; the little fellows look ridiculous as their brass-buttoned coats are generally too long and ill-fitting. Their sole care seems to be directed toward playing the worst tricks they can on the usher who is leading them. Schoolboy slang dubs this overseer a pion, a chess pawn, and there is no more perfect example of a butt than this subaltern functionary. His tyrannical supervision, his power to inflict punishment for the slightest peccadillo, necessarily make him hated by those whose words and least actions he watches during recess as well as during study hours. If the usher is vulgar or coarse at times, the boys in general are far from having good manners. —Th. Bentzon, in Century.

Bedrock Finance.

"You are charged with knocking the complainant down with a club and taking all his valuables," said the judge.

"He tole me to," said the prisoner.

"Eh?"

"He tole me to do it. I stops him on the corner to get a light, see? An', of course, we got to talkin' about de money question. Den he says to me: "De only right way to git at de money question is to start right in on first principles," he says. 'Is dat de way youse want to do?' I says. 'It is,' says he. 'All right,' I says, an' soaks 'im an' takes wot belongs to me by rights of first principles."—Indianapolis Journal.

Vaccination in Afghanistan.

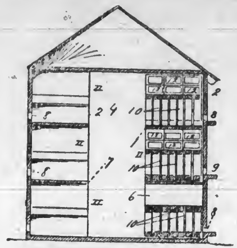
Abdurrahman Khan, ameer of Afghanistan, has introduced vaccination into his country by the advice of Miss Hamilton, his English physician. Two calf lymph stations have been established and a proclamation has been issued from Cabul calling on the people to bring in their children to be vaccinated before next spring.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

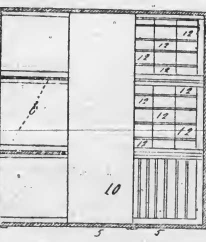
IMPROVED BEE HOUSE.

It Has Some Good Points, But Also Some Serious Disadvantages.

The illustrations represent a bee house recently patented. The house has a door and central passageway, as shown, and is provided with vertical cross-partitions secured to the inner faces of the side walls, which divide the walls into sections accessible from the passageway, as seen in the engraving. Longitudinal horizontal division boards are secured to the vertical partitions and divide the spaces between them into hive compartments. The side wall opposite each compartment has a bee opening and an alighting board (see 8 and 9 in Fig. 1). Horizontal strips are secured to the vertical partitions in each compartment, from which the brood frames are suspended, and the honey sections are arranged above the brood frames in each compartment and are supported by them. This house is designed to replace the individual hives and must be warmer, drier and easier of access than they are; but contagious diseases, mice, moths, etc., can do greater injury and will be more difficult to remove, as there are so many swarms kept in close quarters.—Farm and Home.



VERTICAL CROSS SECTION.



THE GROUND PLAN.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

To supply more than is eaten up at once is wasteful.

Excessive sweating of a horse when at work is a very good sign of weakness.

Any kind of live stock will depreciate in value when cut short in their rations.

Pigs should be fed for the greater growth of bone and muscle, rather than of fat.

All classes of stock need a supply of salt where they can help themselves.

That farming pays best, other things being equal, which produces the most manure.

The man that always feeds his stock well is the man that makes stock feeding pay.

Generally the more condensed and the nearer finished the products are the better the farm will pay.—Farmers' Union.

Improved Quality of Sheep.

Here is the way the Chicago Drovers' Journal looks at the situation. Comment is entirely unnecessary: The decline in the price of wool has, in a way, been a benefit to the shipment of the west. Breeders have been under the necessity of breeding up their flocks to a better standard, a thing which they probably never would have done had wool remained at a profit. There is quite a difference in the kind of sheep coming to market now and those of a few years ago. The wool producing ability of the sheep has not been lessened, and should things ever turn so as to benefit the sheepman again, he will be in better shape than ever before. Sheepmen are making money even now, and are kicking simply because they are not making as much as they used to.

Pushing Cattle from Birth.

Much more profit may be made in feeding beef cattle if they are pushed to their utmost capacity of feeding from birth, and killed not more than two years old, says the Philadelphia Record. With the smaller breeds probably a year old would be still better as those animals which are born to be small stop growing early, and no amount of feeding will enable them to rival the breeds of the same animals that have for generations been bred for beef. The more rapidly beef is fattened the more tender and better flavored will be its flesh. This does not mean that the animals should be stuffed to repletion. That is just the way to injure digestion, and thus retard fattening.

Dry Earth on the Floor.

The poultry house is more easily cleaned in winter than in summer, as the cold freezes the droppings, rendering them easily swept up and shoveled, but this will depend upon how the floor is managed. If it is covered with dry dirt or sifted coal ashes, the cleaning is simply a matter of using a broom; but if no absorbent material is used, the fresh droppings become frozen and adhere to the wood requiring considerable scraping for their removal.—Farm and Fireside.

INEXCUSABLE WASTE.

Why Farmers Should Feed Skim-Milk to Their Stock.

I was in a creamery in the southern part of Illinois, where the sweet separated milk was sold at one cent per gallon. A stream of wagons was driving up one side of the factory, the milk was poured into the tank that fed the separator, while a stream of young women were carrying off the skimmilk in pails. The people of the village evidently realized that they had a good thing in the very cheap, sweet skimmed milk.

The price paid for milk was about 1½ cents per hundred weight. Now if the factory sold the milk in gallon lots at that price it naturally follows that the farmers that sold the whole milk could have bought back the skimmed milk at even less. The value of that milk if fed to hogs was from 12 to 20 cents, if fed with corn and counting the fertilizer in the undigested portions. Recent figures from our experiment stations show that in 100 pounds of such milk there is enough nitrogen, phosphorus and potash to bring the manurial value up to ten or twelve cents. As only 25 per cent. of this is digested, it would leave the manurial value of the milk at from seven to ten cents. Add this to the value of the other digested portion for the making of pork and we have a value of nearly 20 cents.

Why should farmers allow this value to slip away from them? Of course if they want to sell skim-milk to the townspeople at half price, or as an act of philanthropy, no one will find fault, but from a business standpoint it is an unwise thing to do. Any enterprising farmer located near such a liberal-minded creamery should improve the opportunity to secure as much as possible of the milk and turn it into pork, poultry and eggs. But it is to be hoped that the time is not far distant when farmers will know too much to let so valuable a product go except for full value.—Ohio Farmer.

SEASONS AND DISEASES.

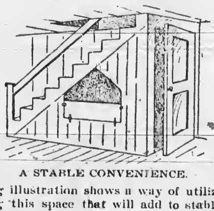
Each Parish Has a Poultry Ailment of Its Own.

We have four seasons, and each one has some peculiar disease to which the fancier can expose his fowls. Spring is the most healthful of the four, yet we take our birds from their winter quarters and turn them loose in the breeding yard and they will eat too heartily of the green grass, and several will be found crop-bound a day or two later. No matter how much green feed is given in winter, grass will be taken in too large quantities in the spring. Summer brings the molting season and with it come numerous diseases. Cholera always makes its appearance at the negligent fancier's place. No disorder is so rapidly destructive, and yet there is less necessity for this disease than almost any other. It springs with fowls just the same as with the human family. Probably no disease has been blamed for the effects of other disorders so much as cholera. I remember when I was a boy that everything going in the summer was called cholera. Even if the old hen's leg was broken my grandmother would say she had the cholera and would have to be killed to keep the disease from spreading. Death comes very quickly with genuine cholera, and a whole flock will die when only a few sick ones can be seen about the place. They are apparently well to-day and dead to-morrow. Autumn brings that which is worse than cholera — cold, roup, canker, etc. With a case of genuine roup there is no cure. As the disease advances the fowl becomes very poor, has a ravenous appetite, but takes on no fat. Roup may continue on to winter, and even through it. Winter is the season of frozen combs and feet if one has not comfortable quarters.—Ohio Poultry Journal.

STABLE CONVENIENCE.

How to Make Good Use of the Waste Space Under the Stairway.

The space under the stairway in a stable is usually worse than wasted, because it is apt to be made the dumping ground for a thousand and one odds and ends, resulting in a heap inextricably confused. The accompanying illustration shows a way of utilizing this space that will add to stable conveniences. The space is boarded up and that portion having the greatest height is made into a harness closet, while the rest is made a grain bin, with one or more compartments. To reach the bottom of the bin when the grain is low, a part of the front is hinged, so as to turn down. — Orange Judd Farmer.



A STABLE CONVENIENCE.

The Farmer's Happy Home.

A recent letter from the superintendent of farmers' institutes in the state of Pennsylvania states "that at every two day's institute held in the state during the coming winter the evening session of the first day is to be set apart to the ladies, and the topic is to be 'Country Homes.' All topics relating to home life in the country will be included, such as the construction of homes, the heating, lighting, ventilating and sanitary arrangements for country homes; the water supply, sewage and plumbing for houses in the country; the cooking of food, the care of the sick, the care of the children; flower gardening, kitchen gardening, house decoration, and all that relates in any way to comfort, convenience, health and enjoyment in a country home."

The manure that can be secured from the stock should pay for the work of feeding them.

HUNTER KNEW HIS DANGER.

Frightened Just Once and He Will Never Forget It.

"Yes, folks," said old Zeb, the hunter and mountain guide, to a party of New Yorkers who were sitting on the veranda of the little mountain hotel one evening, waiting for the old man to tell one of his "b'ar" stories, "there used to be heaps o' the biggest kind of game in these 'ere parts at one time."

"It was a common occurrence years ago, I suppose," said the young man wearing the patent leather shoes and white vest, "to see bears and wolves from the windows of your house?"

"Fur shore," answered the guide, as he replenished his pipe and got comfortably settled, "fur shore; and many a time I've sent a bullet into a critter while standin' in the door of my cabin."

"And I suppose," said another of the listeners, as Zeb stopped there without telling a story, "that you have had many hair-breadth escapes and hand-to-hand fights with the ferocious beasts?"

"Waal, I reckon, stranger."

"And haven't you ever been frightened?"

"Jess once, sir, jess once; and the fright I got that day I'll never forgit; it was one arternoon when I was in the thickest part o' the woods, 'way on t'other side o' the mountain. On the day before my old woman had gone to pay her relations a visit, and left me 'n' the little boy to hum. I had kinder got lonesome layin' around, and me 'n' the young 'un started off fur a walk. With my gun on my shoulder and the kid by the hand I was trudgin' along, when I heard a sound that made my blood run cold."

"A panther's scream, probably?" said the young man, as he drew his chair closer to the others and glanced furtively around.

"The cries of a pack of wolves, more likely," suggested another of the group.

"No," continued the old guide, "'twa'n't no panther's scream nor wolves that made that noise. 'Twas sunthin' wuss than that, and I knowed it. It was kinder a long, wheezin' sound, and at fust I didn't know what to make of it. Finally I put the young 'un behind me and crept a leetle ways through the bresh to whar I kalkerlated the sound come from, and pretty soon I saw standin' in front of a cabin two objicks that made my old heart thump right into my mouth, and my legs tremble so I could hardly stand."

The circle of listeners by this time had drawn their chairs so close to the old hunter that he was hemmed in on all sides, and many were holding their breaths for the finish of the weird story. By and by he went on:

"Them two objicks was a woman and a child. The little 'un was whoopin', and the woman was lappin' it on the back."

"And what was it that frightened you so much?" was asked.

"Why, thar I was, all alone with my only son—thar was my ole woman a hundred miles from hum—no doctor within 25 miles of me, and—"

"Well, what's that got to do with bears and mountain lions?"

"B'ars and mountain lions be dinged! Thar was that child with a terrible case o' hoopin' cough, and my only son near by, and I tell you, what, folks, I lit out and didn't stop runnin' until me 'n' the kid was miles away. Yes, folks—"

But old Zeb was all alone with the fresh mountain breezes.—Harper's Magazine.

FALL GOWN FOR YOUNG GIRL.

May Be Made of Various Materials to Please Fancy.

One of the early fall model gowns for a young girl of 17 is made of dark blue serge. The skirt is a plain godet, with seven gores, and each seam is covered with a narrow white woolen passementerie, inexpensive and very pretty.

The bodice has a seamless back and a front without darts, with the fullness drawn down in flat plaits to the belt. At the front the bodice is cut away to show a V and high-standing collar of dull red silk covered with the cream passementerie.

The broad pointed revers, the high-pointed cuffs, and the tall belt are of cream serge. A full high frill of cream mousseline de sole finishes the top of the standing collar.

A delightful little hat that goes with this costume is a sailor of rough red straw with a band at the back that tips it way over the face. It is trimmed entirely in choux or bright red tulle and quantities of red currants with a few of their green leaves and stems.

Such pretty shades in red there are for fall. One of the loveliest is currant red, deep, and with a strength that makes it a favorite wherever one sees it.—Chicago Tribune.

Mutton Mince.

A delicious mutton mince is made as follows: Mince two onions and fry them in a tablespoonful of butter. Add three half-pint cups of minced mutton, a cupful of chopped potatoes, a tablespoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of pepper. Stir well, and add half a cupful of stewed tomatoes and a tablespoonful of minced parsley. Stir in now a cupful of rich brown gravy or sauce and cook very slowly for 20 minutes on top of the stove or in the oven. Roll the hash out on a hot platter, sprinkle it with minced parsley and serve at once. A dish of spiced currants or currant jelly is the appropriate accompaniment of this dish.—Boston Budget.

A Delicious Relish.

Put two gallons of sliced green tomatoes into a crock with layers of salt and let remain over night. In the morning drain the tomatoes and chop rather fine. Put these into a porcelain kettle with two quarts of vinegar, one quart of brown sugar, two tablespoonfuls each of mustard and black pepper, one tablespoonful each of cloves and allspice. Cook until the tomatoes are very soft and put into jars.

UNIVERSAL COLLECTING MANIA.

Head of the House at Last Succumbs to the Disease.

"For heaven's sake," he cried, relates the Chicago Times-Herald, "I never saw anything like this collecting mania."

"It's a very instructive amusement."

"Yes, maybe, but not for me. There's my daughter Agnes, she's collecting buttons and asks me every day to go around to the headquarters to get her some, and I must buy of every street fakir I pass or she doesn't like it. There's my daughter Lucy, she goes over all of my letters and cuts off the monograms, destroying them. I don't like her to do it, but I can't stop it. She says some infernal nonsense about it being 'all the rage.' Then my son Tom is just as bad. He asks me for postage stamps and cuts them off the letters before I read them in the morning. And they are always having something new to collect. Every member of my family is a collector."

"How about your wife?"

"Oh, she's worse than any of them. She says she is collecting coins and makes it an excuse for going through my pockets every time. She calls it being a numismatist. I think it should be called kleptomania." Just then a man with a bill entered the office.

"I am," he began, "a collector for—"

"Confound you, then, get," cried the infuriated man; "I am a collector myself. I am trying to collect my senses."

Didn't Believe It.

Some years ago, while visiting the Spokanes, Gen. Philip Sheridan related to the Indians, through an interpreter, the wonders of the railroad, and then waited to see what effect the revelation would have upon them. "What do they say?" he asked the interpreter. "They say they don't believe it," was the answer. Sheridan then described the steamboat, and the interpreter repeated this. "What do they say to that?" the general asked again, seeing the Indians faces all impressive. "They say they don't believe that, either." Then the general gave an account of the telephone, and told how a man at the end of a long wire had talked to a man at the other end of it. The interpreter remained silent. "Well," said the general, "why don't you interpret that to them?" "Because I don't believe that story myself," answered the conscientious man.

Dinners Are Useful.

One day, when somebody objected to the practice of having dinners for parish or public purposes, "Sir," said Lord Stowell, "I approve of the dining system; it puts people in a good humor and makes them agree when they otherwise might not; a dinner lubricates business."

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI.		Nov. 9
LIVE STOCK—Cattle.common	2 25	@	2 85
Select butchers	3 65	@	4 10
CALVES—Fair to good light	6 00	@	6 50
HOGS—Common	2 85	@	3 25
Mixed packers	3 35	@	3 45
Light shippers	3 35	@	3 60
SHEEP—Choice	2 50	@	3 00
LAMBS—Good to choice	3 50	@	4 00
FLOUR—Winter family	3 20	@	3 55
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	86½
No. 3 red		@	8[illegible]
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	2[illegible]
Oats—No. 2		@	2[illegible]
Rye—No. 2		@	35
HAY—Prime to choice	10 25	@	10 50
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@	8 50
Lard—Prime steam		@	4 05
BUTTER—Choice dairy	13	@	17
Prime to choice creamery		@	20½
APPLES—Per bbl	1 25	@	1 50
POTATOES—New, per bbl	75	@	1 00
	NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 50	@	4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n.		@	9[illegible]
No. 2 red		@	9[illegible]
CORN—No. 2 mixed	30⅞	@	31
OATS—Mixed		@	26¼
PORK—New mess	8 50	@	9 00
LARD—Western		@	4 55
	CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 75	@	4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	83¼	@	84¼
No. 2 Chicago spring	77	@	77¼
CORN—No. 2	21⅛	@	21⅛
OATS—No. 2		@	18⅛
PORK—Mess	6 95	@	7 00
LARD—Steam	4 10	@	4 12½
	BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 90	@	4 30
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2	82¼	@	8[illegible]
Corn—Mixed	29⅛	@	29⅞
Oats—Mixed	26	@	26½
LARD—Refined		@	11 00
PORK—Mess		@	16 85
CATTLE—First quality	3 75	@	4 00
HOGS—Western	3 60	@	3 80
	INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@	70
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	25
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@	15½
	LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@	4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	75
Corn—Mixed		@	28
Oats—Mixed		@	19
PORK—Mess		@	8 50
LARD—Steam		@	5 00

A THOUGHT
THAT KILLED
A MAN!

HE thought that he could trifle with disease. He was run down in health, felt tired and worn out, complained of dizziness, biliousness, backaches and headaches. His liver and kidneys were out of order. He thought to get well by dosing himself with cheap remedies. And then came the ending. He fell a victim to Bright's disease! The money he ought to have invested in a safe, reliable remedy went for a tombstone.

Warner's Safe Cure

is the only standard remedy in the world for kidney and liver complaints. It is the only remedy which physicians universally prescribe. It is the only remedy that is backed by the testimony of thousands whom it has relieved and cured.

THERE IS NOTHING ELSE
THAT CAN TAKE ITS PLACE

STATE [illegible] ss.

FRANK [illegible] makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE. FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A.D. 1886.

[SEAL] A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

DE BATS—"How do you pronounce the word 'oleomargarine?'" Hotel Waiter—"I pronounce it butter, or I'd lose my job."—Advertiser.

The Faults and Follies of the Age

Are numerous, but of the latter none is more ridiculous than the promiscuous and random use of laxative pills and other drastic cathartics. These wrench, convulse and weaken both the stomach and the bowels. If Hostetter's Stomach Bitters be used instead of these no-remedies, the result is accomplished without pain and with great benefit to the bowels, the stomach and the liver. Use this remedy when constipation is manifested, and thereby prevent it from becoming chronic.

WAITER—"How will you have your steak, sir?" Patron—"I don't care how you cook it, but I'd like it this week."—London Figaro.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

"A HONEYCOMB," says Brother Watkins, "am a lot ob little cells; but a honeymoon am often one big sell."—Philadelphia Record.

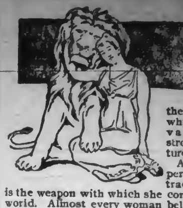
Tourist Sleeping Cars to California Daily.

Every day in the year Tourist Sleeping Cars are run through from Chicago to California via the Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific R'ys). Only $6.00 for completely equipped double berth from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. For tickets and full information apply to agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. KNISKERN, G. P. & T. A., Chicago & North-Western R'y, Chicago.

HOME is dearer to a woman than a man because to her it is a place where she can sit around without her corset on.—Atchison Globe.

JUST try a 10c box of Cascarets, the finest liver and bowel regulator ever made.

ALL busy people finally get so that they hate those who are lazy.—Atchison Globe.



Beauty is the power which captivates the strongest natures.

A woman's personal attractiveness is the weapon with which she conquers her world. Almost every woman believes that she possesses at least some one attractive feature and strives to make the most of that. But mere regularity of feature is not the most attractive form of beauty.

Mankind is more influenced by the bright glowing vitality of perfect health. A classic cast of countenance will not make a woman attractive and captivating, if she is pale, thin, weak and nervous, or has a pimply complexion or unwholesome breath.

These complaints are due to imperfect nutrition. The digestive and blood-making organs fail to extract the needed nourishment from the food, and the liver is too sluggish to cleanse the blood of bilious impurities. The entire constitution becomes weak and poisoned.

The only perfect antidote for this state of things is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It gives power to the digestive and nutritive organs to make an abundance of pure, rich, highly vitalized blood, which permeates the whole system with the sweetness of purity; the beauty of womanly vigor and animation.

It creates solid, healthy flesh and natural color; clears the complexion; dispels wrinkles; rounds out the form and imbues the whole physique with the irresistible natural magnetism of perfect health.

Miss Julia Ellis, of Faith, McLean Co., Ky., writes: "After suffering for a long while with a lingering disease, I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. I took seven bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription' and found relief. Life is now no longer a burden to me. I weigh 120 pounds. A year ago I weighed 92 pounds. I shall praise Dr. Pierce's medicines wherever I go. I feel better than ever before. My health was very much impaired, and I feel that I owe a great deal to your wonderful medicines. I truly believe they saved my life. I thank you for the advice which you so kindly gave me while taking your medicines."

LIVE STOCK
CUTS.

We will furnish duplicates of LIVE STOCK CUTS or any other Cut shown in any specimen Book, at or below quoted prices for same.

A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO.,
429 Elm Street, Cincinnati.

YUCATAN, KING OF GUMS.

W[illegible] at home, pleasant and profitable, no agency, no canvassing. Address C. J. GOSS, BUFFALO GAP, S. D.

A. N. K.—E. 1630

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Be Sure

'Tis pure Cocoa, and not made by the so-called "Dutch Process."

Walter Baker & Co.'s Breakfast Cocoa is absolutely pure — no chemicals. WALTER BAKER & CO., Ltd., Dorchester, Mass.

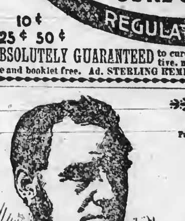
You're clipping coupons when you use Pearline (use no soap). Every saving, big or little, is a coupon clipped and paid. Where's a more satisfactory way of saving than by washing and cleaning with Pearline? Saves on both sides. Exertion, hard work and drudgery for you yourself—while it's saving actual money to your pocket, in clothes, time and health. It's by just such savings that genuine coupons come to every wise and thrifty woman. 475

Millions NOW USE Pearline

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
CURE CONSTIPATION
REGULATE THE LIVER

10¢ 25¢ 50¢ ALL DRUGGISTS

ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED to cure any case of constipation. Cascarets are the Ideal Laxative, never grip or gripe, but cause easy natural results. Sample and booklet free. Ad. STERLING REMEDY CO., Chicago, Montreal, Can., or New York. 217.



IAN MACLAREN,
ONE OF THE COMPANION'S NOTED CONTRIBUTORS FOR '97.
See Special Offer Below.

Fully 200 of the Most Famous Men and Women of both continents have contributed to the next year's Volume of

The Youth's Companion

Celebrating in 1897 its seventy-first birthday, THE COMPANION offers its readers many exceptionally brilliant features. The two hemispheres have been explored in search of attractive matter.

Distinguished Writers.

IAN MACLAREN.
RUDYARD KIPLING.
HALL CAINE.
FRANK R. STOCKTON.
HAROLD FREDERIC.
MADAME LILLIAN NORDICA.
CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER.
STEPHEN CRANE.
HAMLIN GARLAND.
MAX O'RELL.
W. CLARK RUSSELL.
ALICE LONGFELLOW.
HON. THOMAS B. REED.
ANDREW CARNEGIE.
LIEUT. R. E. PEARY, U. S. N.
DR. CYRUS EDSON.
DR. ED. EVERETT HALE.
DR. LYMAN ABBOTT.

And more than One Hundred other Eminent Writers.

For the Whole Family.

THE COMPANION also announces for 1897, Four Absorbing Serials, Adventure Stories on Land and Sea, Stories for Boys, Stories for Girls, Reporters' Stories, Doctors' Stories, Lawyers' Stories, Stories for Everybody—all profusely illustrated by popular artists. Six Double Holiday Numbers. More than two thousand Articles of Miscellany—Anecdote, Humor, Travel. Timely Editorials, Current Events, Current Topics and Nature and Science Departments every week, etc.

52 Weeks for $1.75. Send for Full Prospectus.

12-Color Calendar FREE.

New Subscribers who will cut out this slip and send it at once with name and address and $1 75 (the subscription price) will receive:
FREE – The Youth's Companion every week from time subscription is received to January 1, 1897.
FREE – Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Double Numbers.
FREE – Our Artistic 4-Page Folding Calendar for 1897, Lithographed in Twelve Beautiful Colors. 43
And The Youth's Companion 52 Weeks, a full year, to January 1, 1898.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, Boston, Mass.

BOONE : COUNTY : RECORDER.

Wednesday, Nov. 11. 1896.

Rates of Subscription:
One year........................ $1 50.
Six months........................ 75.
Three months........................ 40.
☞Payable invariably in advance.

STATE NEWS.

Diphtheria has subsided in Scott county and the schools have opened again.

Thirty-one divorce judgments were handed down in one day at Elizabethtown.

A vicious ram killed a child of Charles Rust near Pikeville, by butting it to death.

Gov. Bradley has refused to pardon Van Winkle Powell, charged with vote-selling.

Henry Wright, of Clark county, gathered 20 bushels of sweet potatoes from 500 plants.

Mrs. Susan Childress, of Pike county, is the mother of new triplets—two girls and a boy.

James McCoy's little daughter died in Madison county from eating the kernels of peach seeds.

Near Hopkinsville, Mrs. Zella Marsh died from the kick of a horse she was driving from the stable.

Free turnpikes carried in Madison County by a majority of 2,023. Many forgot to vote on the question.

In a fight near Corinth, John Smith bit off Andy Simpson's nose. The latter found it lodged in his waistcoat when he got home.

In a cave in Breckinridge county, 67 feet under ground, seven human skulls were found, supposed to be the victims of John A. Murrell's gang.

Isaac Kelly resigned as Superintendent of the Louisville workhouse to become Superintendent of the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home.

Policeman White, of Owensboro, was held up by three negroes and his pistol taken away from him, when he was shot to death. Only one of the murderers was caught.

Alexander Mattingly, of near Mt. Gilead, Mason county, was killed by his team running away and throwing him out of the wagon, breaking his neck. He was aged 60 years.

Marrying seems to have gotten into the heads of the Lancaster young men and all who can raise money enough to pay for the license and fee the minister are looking for wives.

In the entry of divorce secured by the wife of H. C. Hemson, of Mayslick, it is stated that the husband refused the wife "enough provender to keep her organic system from faltering."

A west-bound C. & O. freight train struck J Fletcher Marcum, formerly editor of the Kentucky Democrat, of Catlettsburg, at Kilgore Station, and it is thought he is fatally injured.

While adjusting some machinery at the Lancaster flour mills, Mr. Will Rucker, the miller, got his hand between the rollers and three fingers were mashed flat before he could extricate the hand.

Prohibitionists throughout Kentucky voted for a dead man for elector. Judge R. S. Friend, of Prestonburg, whom they selected as their representative on the ticket, died more than a year ago.

Bud Reynolds was shot to death by Tom Moore, at Prestonburg, this State. Renolds had expressed his objection to the attention Moore was paying his daughter. The news reached the latter's ear and a fight followed.

Squire Tyrlar was shot and wounded fatally at his home in Adair county by Ed Gibson, an orphan boy, whom he was rearing. The boy was intoxicated, and Squire Tyrlar attempted to whip him for it.

The Richmond Climax says it has on exhibition a sweet potato 22 inches long, not including the bend in it. If straight, would probably measure a yard in length. Its circumference at the greatest point is 4½ inches.

The residence used by the sexton of the Frankfort Cemetery burned and George Harris, the sexton, narrowly escaped from death. The house was built nearly half a century ago by Alex. Macklin, the famed pork packer.

It is said that in the last 22 years the members of the Church of England have voluntarily contributed more than $400,000,000 to foreign and home missions, to church building and repair, to elementary education and to charity.

Henry Jenkins murdered Avery Reeves on the Garrick farm 10 miles from Lexington, by planting a spade on Reeves' neck, and, with his foot, sent the blade through the flesh, almost severing his enemy's head. The crime was unprovoked.

The proposition to issue $75,000 worth of bonds in Covington for the purpose of making all new streets with brick was defeated at the election Tuesday. The vote stood 2145 for and 1519 against the proposition. It required a two thirds vote to carry.

Miss Daisy Sullivan, the pretty daughter of a Marshall county farmer, was assassinated by some one with a shotgun. She was 18 years old and was highly esteemed until recently it developed that she was in an interesting condition. A young man that she kept company with is suspected of the crime.

Mrs. Adeline Hancock, one of the oldest and most interesting personages in Mercer county, died Friday week. She was born in Virginia on Christmas Day, 1793, and had lived in Mercer county for ninety years. She was an inveterate smoker, and a few moments before passing away she asked that her pipe be held to her lips, and in that way she enjoyed her last whiff. The pipe was buried with her.

At Upland, this county, Mrs. Jake Minton, lighted a torch for the purpose of taking her aged father up stairs to put him to bed, he being too feeble to retire unassisted. From some unknown cause the torch exploded and in a very short space of time the house was reduced to ashes. Mr. Ford was unable to make his escape and was cremated, while Mrs. Minton was so badly burned in her heroic efforts to save her father that she died two days later in great agony.—Somerset Reporter.

I am glad that I have lived to see the day when women are beginning to discard the abominations in dress which have been robbing them of their good health and happiness and usefulness as women and members of society. In my eighty-four years of life I have noticed many things, and one of the most distressing from my standpoint has been the habit on the part of women, of cramping and pushing the vital organs out of their true positions in the anatomy, by tightly laced corsets. For this supposed enhancement of their beauty I have seen women afterward pay heavy penalties. I don't object to corsets, but they must be worn with discretion. My hope in regard to the new fashion is that it has come to stay.—Exchange.

Politics in Kentucky are not what they use to be. A few years ago it was only a question of majority with the Democrats.

From the reports from many parts of the State it appears that the voters still have considerable trouble with the kangaroo ballot.

From the claims that are being made by some who still declare that they are Democrats, it appear that Democrats elected the President after all.

The fellow who wants a government position must get up and go after it, for the time long since came when hunting men for the offices ceased to be necessary.

The Eleventh Congressional district is claimed for McKinley by 14,340, and the Democrats charge it was obtained by fraud. The majority in that district grew larger, day by day, as it was required to throw the State into the Republican column.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

GRANT COUNTY
[Courier]

Meritt Roland sold 8 fat hogs to I. Wolf, weight 232 pounds per head at $2.75 per hundred.

J. J. Hardin sold for Bond Bros. 15 head of export cattle, weight 1320, at 4 cents per hundred to Louisville buyers.

James Potriffle Jump shot and killed last week a chicken hawk, the largest that has ever been seen in this part of the country. The hawk measured eight feet and three inches from tip to tip.

If Madam Rumor is correct there will be a double wedding sometime during the month of November. The contracting parties will be prominent young people of this place.

Owen county polled a total vote of 4400. Two hundred voters at least were unable to vote. The county should be redistricted and a number of new voting precincts established. If we just had a few more voting precincts several hundred votes would be added to the county poll.

CARROLL COUNTY
[Democrat.]
[Herald]

Peter Sher, a prominent farmer and trader of the Lusby's Mill neighborhood, was shot and instantly killed by Jim Burke, a negro last Saturday about 1 o'clock. A crowd of men were discussing politics at the saloon kept by Lish Smith, on the hill a mile and a half from Lusby's Mill. Burke was horseback and took some part in the discussion, when Shea, who feared trouble, took the horse by the bridle and led him some distance from the crowd. When they had gone about seventy five yards the negro, who was under the influence of liquor, drew his pistol, a 38-calibre Smith & Wesson, and shot Shea through the head, the ball entering just over the right eye. He lived but a few minutes.

The negro then put spurs to his horse and escaped in the direction of Grant county. Deputy Sheriff Rolla Alexander happened in the neighborhood in a buggy and made pursuit as soon as he learned of the killing, but made such poor headway that he returned to Owenton and procured a fresh horse and resumed the chase. Deputy Sheriff Rige Moore went with him this time, but when they got in the neighborhood of where the killing occurred the negro had already been arrested. He was brought to Owenton by a round-about way, because a mob was feared, and was lodged in jail about 9 or 10 o'clock that night.

The town was full of people and the indications of a mob were so evident that Sheriff Gayle quietly hustled the prisoner off to Carrollton for safe-keeping. Circuit Court meets again to-day and the grand jury will take the case up at once. Of course he will be given a fair and impartial trial without ony unnecessary delay. This, we believe, will satisfy the people. When Burke was captured he was very drunk and said he did not know that he had shot Shea, but afterwards, so it is said, he acknowledged the shooting and gave his alleged reasons for the same. What they were we did not learn. Burke lived at Williamstown and was shot in that place several years ago by Willard Steger, but was not seriously hurt. His reputation has been that of a desperate character.

Peter Shea was well liked by all who knew him, and his sad death is much deplored. He leaves a wife and six children. Nearly a year ago he took out an insurance policy on his life with Eastland & Cobb for $1,000.

The Republicans claim that they have carried this State between 400 and 500 votes. The Democrats are claiming frauds in the Eleventh Congressional district, while the Republicans are claiming frauds on behalf of the Democrats at other points. The courts will be called on to decide how Kentucky voted on the 3d of this month. Smith, the first elector on the Democratic ticket, is elected, he having run ahead of his ticket because of many Democrats placing the cross in the square opposite his name only. The first elector on the Republican ticket ran ahead for the same reason.

The carcasses of giants are being dug up in this State.

Winter Feeding.

An inter-exchange of practical experience is one of the best methods of improvement. The agricultural board of the State of Maine is sending prominent farmers over the State a list of questions on farm topics, and publishing their answers. From replies to a list of questions in regard to stock feeding, we select the following:

We dry our corn fodder and cut it, and feed once a day, and in this way they eat it clean. Our method of feeding formerly was to feed all the course fodder in the first part of the winter, but since we have changed our method our stock does a great deal better.—I. B. Weeks.

I have fed oats and corn ground together, five parts of oats to one of corn, mixed with cotton seed; two quarts of oats and corn meal and one quart of cotton seed, twice a day. It has given the best results of any grain I ever fed.—Charles Hemmenway.

Regular feed and a regular time to feed will keep stock in the best condition, and with the least expense. I have made a practice of feeding my cows in the fall with corn fodder, ears and all. I raise sweet corn on purpose to feed, and it saves the time of husking and grinding. Corn fodder will keep well if mixed with dry straw.—Frank Hart.

Have fed straw and turnips with good results, generally to dry cows and young cattle. I also feed fish pomace to sheep and young cattle with the best results. I have never fed pumpkins, but consider straw and liberal feed of turnips about equal to English hay, especially with a feed of fish pomace daily. Feed our dairy cows with good hay or a balanced feed of grain. Fall feed is excellent.—A. R. Lincoln.

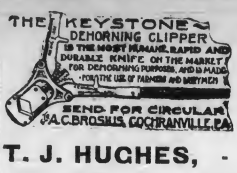
The most good we ever got out of pumpkins was to take a dry cow we wanted to fat, tie her in the barn and give her all she could eat, and she would seem to fat very fast. Then sell her to the meat man, don't kill her yourself. Our method of feeding the Western feed is to purchase that kind that will, with the kind we have, bring the ration up to one of portein to carbohydrates, and that is generally largely cotton seed with some shorts.—R. W. Ellis.

When we think of the many animals that will have to stand tied up by the head in all ill contrived tie-ups; half dozen, with a half bushel of filth on each animal we are led to the conclusion that there is still room for improvement along the line of caring for stood. I have never had any experience in feeding unthreshed grain; but think threshed straw is of some value, especially when fed in connection with ensilage when supplemented with grain. We feed largely of shorts, some cotton seed meal, gluten meal, oats, &c. Grain is the cheapest ever known and should be fed liberally the coming winter and the manure therefrom carefully preserved, thereby transferring some of the fertility of the western plains to our worn out fields, making two spires of grass grow where none grows now, and causing the wilderness to blossom as the rose. I have grown and fed root crops in years past and thought them very valuable. In short let us raise more of these crops, buy less and produce, in order to make our farms selfsustaining.—A. P. Googins.

I propose to feed some unthreshed grain and some straw and some straw and turnips. I have fed cows on straw and turnips all winter and think they did better than they would on good hay without any provinder. I have four acres of beans and the vines make good sheep fodder, and cows like them very much. Some in town are going to feed their horses on straw and oats. When I feed different kinds of coarse fodder I feed some of each kind every day. Stock will do better than to feed one kind at a time.—S. W. Taber.

I shall feed a smaller quantity of hay to each animal than usual and make up the deficiency with purchased grain. Thus I shall increase the number of animals kept, and have more manure for next spring's use. I find that oats cut when pretty well matured can be well substituted for hay for horses. In raking them they are liable to get dusty and should be sprinkled with water before using. Suppose one has a rather rough, rocky pasture, largely covered with short bushes that have many roots is there any better way to get it broke up than by stocking it with pigs? Last spring I enclosed a small part of such a pasture, and put four pigs in and they have done good business, and seems to me that it must get well fertilized.—E. T. Perkins.

We are all people of one country—revere the same flag, and have a common interest in the welfare of the government, and any policy that advances the interests of the country is beneficial to the whole people. Because defeated the Demcrats will not fold their hands and take a back seat, but they will be up with their shoulders to the wheel assisting to bring about the era of prosperity which the Republicans pledged their success to produce.



PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
—OF UP TO DATE—
CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
THE KEYSTONE DEHORNING CLIPPER IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
A. C. BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.
Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.
Write for circulars.
AEROMETER
EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.
COME AND SEE IT.
T. J. HUCHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

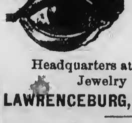
1896.
Your County Paper
Is the One to
Subscribe for,
It Gives all the
Neighborhood News,
Court News and
General News.
The Recorder
$1.50 will Pay for it
Until Jan. 1st, 1898.
Give It a Trial and Help
Along Home EnterPrise.

E. H. RIGGS,
—Dealer in—
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
—CEMENT, ETC.—
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFINC.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

NOTICE.

All persons holding claims against J. R. Clutterbuck must present them to me at my office in Burlington, Ky., proven as by law required and persons indebted to the said Clutterbuck must settle with me at once.

S. W. TOLIN, Assignee.
Sept. 10th, 1896.



Wm. F. GOETZE
Scientific Optician.
Headquarters at Hornberger's Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.
Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

Subscribe for the Recorder.

THE QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE
Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain.
The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.
Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.
Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.
Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1896. NO. 4.

Mr. Hanna is a more prominent man than Major McKinley.

The vote in Kentucky increased 25 per cent over that polled in 1892.

That great growth of the Republican majority in the Eleventh district is hard to understand.

All those mills that have started up since the election are filling orders received prior to the election.

Of course Democrats can not help taking a friendly interest in the Republican scramble for office.

There will be lively times at Frankfort again this winter if there is a special session of the legislature.

If all those who are reported as wanting the Collectorship in this District, stay in the fight, a merry time will they have before the winner is named.

The Franklin county Democrats will hold a primary election next month to nominate candidates for county offices to be voted for in November, 1897.

Will there be a gold bug Democrat in McKinley's cabinet? Gold bug Democrats made his election certain, and he certainly feels under obligations to them for their assistance.

The Republicans are entitled to every government office on the list, and Major McKinley should install his supporters without delay after his inauguration. "To the victors belongs the spoils," and the responsibility of the administration.

It is given out by Col. Henry Queen, one of Secretary Carlisle's closest friends, that it is the intention of the latter to return to Covington at the close of the present administration and practice law. In fact, he says, the Secretary is already looking around for a house.

Mr. Hanna pays the following tribute to the gold Democrats:

"They were," he said, "a very important factor in the election, and I don't think any man appreciates their services more than I do. They worked just as hard for the same results. There were no break in the line anywhere, and they were loyal from the outset. The value of their services cannot be overestimated."

The McKnight club, the strongest Republican organization in Covington, proposed to celebrate McKinley's election on a grand scale, and invited all the other Republican clubs in the city to participate, but they each declined, which shows conclusively "dat thar am trouble in de lan' 'mong the Covington Republicans shore's you'er born."

Many of the government officers who favored the election of Bryan are losing their positions because of being offensive partisans; but, on the other hand, government employes who took the stump to assist in McKinley's election did not incur the displeasure of the administration. This illustrates the President's idea of a free ballot.

Butcher Weyler's first real experience with the Cubans was anything but pleasant. When he took personal command of the Spanish army, he expected to drive the Cubans from the island into the sea, but after a short engagement with a small force of the Insurgents, he was glad to escape with his life. Weyler is nothing but a bluffer, and his bluffs don't win in Cuba.

In naming suitable persons for the next Democratic candidate for Governor, don't forget Hon. W. C. Owens, of Scott county. The Democrats of Kentucky owe him a debt of gratitude that would be fittingly recognized by making him their candidate; and then there is Hon. William Goebel, of Covington, who is entitled to any good thing at the disposal of the Democrats. Either of the above named gentleman would make a Governor of whom Kentucky would be proud.

A Redhot Epistle.

Judge W. B. Fleming, who was removed from the position of Chief of the Law and Record Division, the day after the election, sent the following letter to Secretary Carlisle:

"Sir:—Our government guarantees all its citizens the privilege of free speech, so that every American has the natural right to express in a proper manner his political opinions. In accepting office a citizen forfeits neither his civil nor his religious liberty. The civil service law was intended not to destroy these rights, but to protect them, so that a minor official should at least be as secure in defending the creed and nominee of his party as would be a Cabinet officer in exercising the same inalienable rights.

"No objection on your part to my activity in the campaign which has just closed, was ever made known to me pending the campaign. On the contrary, I was informed that you held to the view that you could not consistently remove any man exercising the same rights which you were exercising. My removal from office, the first intimation of which I obtained from newspapers while on a train on my return, was therefore a complete surprise to me. No one knows better than yourself the long friendship I had manifested for you, the interest I had taken, and the sacrifice of time and money made by me in promoting your ambitions. In view of all the facts it seems that I was at least entitled to some warning and notice before being kicked out of office without an opportunity of declining to resign.

"Had I known or suspected that I could not hold office under this administration and at the same time exercise the rights of an American freeman, I would have promptly tendered you my resignation at the opening of the campaign. In asmuch as other appointees, including many in your own department, who have been permitted to take part against Bryan in the campaign, not only on the stump but in the work of organization without rebuke or removal, and it is evident that the abuse of my offending lies not in any actions, but in my convictions.

"It follows, therefore, that you have used your great office to suppress freedom of thought and action and punish those who dare to differ from you, a thing unsupportable in a free government, by terrorizing over the weak and humble. For such abuse of office, which is a public trust, you cannot but be held accountable at the bar of public opinion, as well as by the verdict of history. In conclusion I can only say that humble as I am, I would rather be a discharged employe of the Treasury department, discharged for doing my duty as I see it, than to be Secretary of the Treasury with a record of self stultification such as you have made for yourself.

"This much of a protest I deem it proper to make against your treacherous and tyrannous action.

Very Truly Yours,
W. B. Fleming.

The Courier-Journal is presuming to again advise the Kentucky Democrats, but it will find that they want none of its advise. The Courier-Journal inaugurated, in Kentucky, the fight for silver legislation, and then betrayed those following its teachings, and there has been nothing too mean for it to call them since its betrayal. Does it suppose that Democrats will ever have any respect for it? If it does it is badly mistaken.

It is evident that the first business that will engage the attention of the legislature at the special session. will be the election of a United States Senator, and no legislation will be accomplished until the Senator is named. A Republican will win the prize, but the Democrats expect to have something to do with the selection of the winner.

Another war cloud has been discovered, and pointed out to Uncle Sam, but with all the bluster, and mystery said to surround military quarters at Washington, the prediction that Spain and the United States will not engage in a war, is a safe one.

With the race for Clerk of the Court of Appeals and a full outfit of county officers to elect next year, there need be no apprehension of becoming lonesome, politically.

An Indian has been successfully working the gold-brick racket in Illinois.

A famine prevails in India. A million and a quarter of people are reported on the verge of starvation.

Spain has sent out five times as many soldiers to conquer Cuba as England sent to prevent this country's independence.

To what party will Col. Breckinridge go now? He has tried nearly all of them. Guess he is now out in the cold indefinitely.

Four years ago the Democrats were crawling over one another, trying to get slices of the federal pie that was to be dished out, but the other fellows are doing the crawling act now.

There are numerous instances where the tally sheets show too few votes for Palmer and Buckner, if those who assert they voted for them are sincere in their claims. Is it possible that Palmer and Buckner have been counted out?

Among the many predictions as to what will become of Messrs. Cleveland and Carlisle after the fourth of next March, is one, for which there is apparently some good reason—that they will constitute a law firm in the city of New York, styled Cleveland & Carlisle.

The Covington postoffice pays a good salary, and the scramble for postmaster will prove as interesting as that for the Collectorship. Hardeman, who was succeeded by Carlisle is pushing his claims to the appointment on the grounds that Republicans believe in giving an office a second term.

Some fellow who has been engaged making election estimates for several months past, having lost the job, has begun making estimates along another line, and proclaims that if there was but one potaoe in the world, its owner could raise 10,000,000,000 potatoes from it in ten year, and furnish the whole world with seed.

Several of the Democratic clubs in the county have decided to continue their organization, and the others should follow their example. Party organization is necessary to success, and it is easier to maintain the organization under the present conditions, than it would be to reorganize the clubs after another campaign is opened.

Every new warship this country constructs is considered by England as an additional menace to her interests. She has about surrounded this country with fortifications, and has a powerful navy ready for service, and knowing her greed, it is advisable for the United States to put itself in condition to cope with the English even at the risk of their construing activity in the American navy yards as an open declation of war.

Returns from all the 119 counties in the State have been received at the office of Secretary of State. On the National ticket they show a total vote of 445,000, McKinley's vote is 218,055, and Bryan's 217,798; McKinley's plurality 257. Returns came in much earlier than usual. It is probable that the canvassing board will begin its work in a few days. W. B. Smith was the only Bryan elector who got in.

Col. O'Neal's pension is, apparently a matter of considerable concern to the Republicans in Covington, and Col. Berry, who was instrumental in securing O'Neal's pension, has been called upon to tell what he knows about it, and he makes this statement:

"Col. O'Neal came to me and said: 'Col. Berry, you have beaten me for Congress, and I think you ought to help me get a pension.' I told the people in the Pension Department the circumstances, and Col. O'Neal got his pension without further investigation. I believe that any Republican who runs for Congress in the Sixth District is entitled to a pension."

"The vote in Ohio," says the Cincinnati Enquirer, "as now stated, shows that the Democratic party cast the largest vote for Mr. Bryan ever given to any candidate of that party since the organization of the State, approximating 475,000. This is 70,000 votes more than were given to Cleveland in 1892, and 140,000 more than receieved by Ex-Governor Campbell when he ran in 1895 upon the gold standard platform of the Springfield convention. The free coinage candidate for President polled 47,000 more votes in Ohio than any Republican ever received in the State prior to November 3, 1896, as Governor Bushnell, who received the highest number of Republican votes ever given to any candidate up to that date, polled but 427,000 in 1895. There is no doubt but some few voters whose personal interests were identical with those of the trusts, combines, corporations and syndicates represented by the Cleveland Administration and the Republican, machine deserted the Democratic ranks in the face of the enemy, but their places were promptly filled by thousands of earnest, zealous, courageous men, who came to support the party that had declared for the people. The Democratic party in Ohio is stronger today than at any time since the days of Jackson, and now, with a living issue, supported loyally, zealously and energetically by a half million voters, will await the next contest with the greatest confidence."

The Enquirer is still possessed of the happy faculty of extracting consolation from defeat.

W. S. Holman, of Indiana, has served fifteen terms in the national Congress, and will begin his sixteenth term on the fourth of March next, if living. He is one of the very few men who has not made a fortune out of long service in Congress. He is worth no more now than he was at the beginning of public life. No disgrace or scandal attaches to him.

Our good friend Riddell of the Boone County Recorder, published this week an extensive testimonial of Hon. George W. Lieberth, for the U. S. Collectorship under the incoming administration, giving credit to the Independent, evidently by mistake as the Independent never contained a testimonial of anyone for the office.—Warsaw Independent.

The article above referred to should have been credited to one of the Carrollton papers, but to which one the Recorder can not now say.

It must be apparent to every thoughtful observer of current events that the issue involving the maintainance of a sound currency in this country is settled, not only for to-day but for all time. The people may be annoyed occasionally by spasmodic efforts to revive the question, but the doctrine of free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, will never again be seriously considered by the American people.—Capital.

That do settle it.

The court of Appeals has affirmed the judgment of the lower court fixing Robert Laughlin's punishment at death. The crime of which the doomed man is convicted was committed in Bracken county, Feb. 15. The charge of arson was coupled with the murder indictment. Laughlin set fire to his house, and burned the woman and girl. Laughlin's relations with his niece were afterward discovered.

Since Owen county disposed of the Massie murder case, justice is traveling on swifter wings down there. Jim Burke, who murdered Peter Shea in that county a few days before the last election, was tried and given a life sentence in twelve days after he committed the crime.

Now is the time to subscribe for the Recorder. One dollar and fifty cents will pay for it from now until January 1, 1898. Reader, tell your neighbor, who is not a subscriber, of this paper.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson.
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup't of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, Sam S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M. Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W Lester.
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill. Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George; Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; I. F. Dempsey, H. S. Irwin. Secretary-Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday; Add Riddell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896
At Walton, Ky.

Three Courses of Study to choose from: English, Scientific or Classical,

Tuition per month for Higher Branches	$3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches	2.50

We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2 00 for five days.

Teachers
Mrs. S. H. Myers.
Chas. F. Prior.
Rev. S. H. Myers.

Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.

EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.

J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
Executive Board—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. Cowen, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. Rogers, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administratrix Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of L. E. Clore, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

Annie L. Clore, Adm'rx.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
Burlington, Ky.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON.
……DENTIST,……
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
Main Office—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

W. E. Vest. B. L. Rice.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. Vest, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)

Capital,	$30,000
Surplus and undivided profits,	17,000

Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

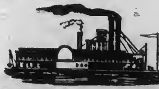
ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY

Capital paid in	$50,000
Surplus,	$ 2.600

Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE



STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:50 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 2:50 pm; 4:30 pm;
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 8:30 am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm. Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5:15 pm.
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:10 am; 10:00 am; 12:40 pm; 3:00 pm; 4:45 pm.
ELIHU ALDEN, Master.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : : KY.

CURRENT TOPICS.

GERMAN Painters' union of New York established a trade school.

MR MCKINLEY will be 54 years of age at the time of his inauguration.

GEN. BUCKNER is being talked of for a foreign mission under McKinley.

A BABE should gain at least four ounces each day until it is six months old.

KANSAS CITY unionists want a state law in conservance with National Labor day.

THE German government's detectives are said to be keeping a close watch on Bismarck.

MME. ADELINA PATTI during the course of her operatic career has earned $5,000,000.

THE "Iron Hall" organization is endeavoring to revive itself and start in business again.

NATIONAL head quarters of the Union Veteran Legion have been established at Wilmington, Del.

WASHINGTON unionists have asked the government to pay navy yard bricklayers $4 a day.

IT is claimed that labor is better organized in the city of Detroit than in any other city in America.

THE Chilian cabinet has resigned, in consequence of the passage of a vote of censure of the government.

THE farmers of Northern Colorado contemplate organizing to handle the products of their own fields.

M. BRUNETIERE, editor of the Revue des Deux Mondes, is to lecture in America in French next December, on French poetry in the nineteenth century.

ON account of the ill health of Congressman Hitt, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, it is thought that he will resign his seat in the Fifty-fifth congress and accept a first-class mission board.

GENERAL activity in the West Virginia coal field along the Norfolk and Western railway has resulted from the resumption of work by the immense plant of the Illinois Steel Co. and other similar industries.

THE indications are that there will be fully as many contested election cases in the Fifty-fifth congress as there were in the present congress. And this time there promises to be a few contests from the west.

KNOW KOFFEE, a government detective on the gold coast of Africa, having been murdered England has imposed heavy fines on King Ackah Euyuimah, of Benin, and King Blay, of Attuaboe.

DR. NANSEN is a lover of bright colors. His ship, the Fram, was painted green, gray, scarlet and white, picked out with gold—a bright dash color among the everlasting white the Arctic seas.

OWING to arbitrary regulations adopted by the Austrian government regarding the investment of funds there, it seems that the New York Life, the Mutual Life and the Equitable Life will all withdraw.

IN the Alps and Pyranees there is a race of people who are old men at 15 and die at 30, all through drinking lime water. The Chinese, on the other hand, drink only rain water, where possible, and they live extraordinarily long.

THE company which has bought the Giants' Causeway, meaning to let it out to tourists at so much a head, is bringing an action for trespass against a gentleman who, on principle, refused to pay his penny, but insisted on enjoying the causeway for nothing.

A CHICAGO clerk recently threw a book agent forcibly out of his office, after refusing to take his card in to his employer, and was justified by the judge before whom he was tried for assault, who established as Chicago law the theory that such forcible measures in dealing with book agents were justifiable.

THE czarina's favorite color is white, so much so that in St. Petersburg she has come to be known as the white czarina. A particularly pretty summer costume of hers was of white silk and lace with an Antoinette fichu, and one of the picturesque empire bonnets which, so far, none but French women have dared to wear.

AN ingenious Yankee cobbler is plying his trade at Atlantic, Me., in a queer craft. He has built a scow with a house on it which he uses as a workshop. During the summer he sails from one place to another doing shoemaking; in the winter he puts the whole arrangement on runners and has it hauled to convenient places.

IT is stated in the Indian papers that the entire harem of the late Shah has been dismissed, and that the palaces are almost empty of female occupants. The ladies have been enjoined to avoid contracting marriages with any civil or military officials, but they are free in their choice among the hordes of mollahs or priests and merchants.

A HITHERTO unknown composition by Richard Wagner has been discovered at Zurich. It was found among some scores sent by Wagner's Paris publishers on the occasion of the Zurich celebration in 1878, is entitled "Second Concert Overture," and was written before "Rienzi." As soon as permission is obtained from Beyreuth it will be performed in public.

A GREAT impetus has been given to the iron industry in the south, as well as all over the country, since the election. Large sales have been made at advanced prices in Sheffield, Ala., and another large furnace that will give employment to 500 men has been ordered in blast.

ONE of the richest men in Mexico is Maximilian Damm, a German by birth, who began life in Mexico as a clerk. Finally he went into business for himself, and while he was visiting in Germany his manager took what was supposed to be a worthless mine for a bad debt. It is now paying him an annual income of $700,000.

GEN. GARCIA,

With a Large Rebel Force, Captures the Town of Guaiamaro—Bridges Blown Up, Culverts Burned and Railway Tracks Torn Up.

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 12.—Passengers who arrived from Havana Wednesday night bring intelligence that the capture of Guaiamaro was of more importance than first reported. When the news reached Havana it caused great excitement. It was partially printed, but was wired to Madrid and made a sensation. It is said it so stirred the people that they forced the government to oblige Weyler to take the field.

The steamer Julia, which arrived at Havana Sunday from Nuevitas, reports no communication with the city of Puerto Principe since the 27th.

Many bridges have been blown up, culverts burned and about seven kilometers of railway track torn up. Great anxiety prevails in Nuevitas regarding the fate of Puerto Principe. The steamer brought letters detailing the attack on Guaiamaro. It appears that Gen. Calixto Garcia, with a large rebel force and two pieces of artillery, attacked the place on October 17. The next day he captured the trenches and destroyed ten forts surrounding the town.

The garrison, 150 soldiers and 25 armed citizens, surrendered, but were ordered released except Quartermaster Maguel Mola, who, being a Cuban, attended the wounded. They were then sent to Puerto Principe under an escort. The officers were paroled. Maj. Martizez, in command of the detachment, was wounded in the arm and died at the hospital as a result of amputation.

The citizens of the town were forced to aid the rebels destroy the trenches, houses, etc.

The church tower was blown up with dynamite. Much war material was captured. All steamers were sacked, owners made prisoners, and a ransom asked.

The so-called fusion of local political parties is a farce. It was all done by coercion. Civil Gov. Porrua, acting under instructions of Weyler, forced the leaders of the parties to accept. Their resolution was taken the same day Weyler left for the field, who feared to leave behind troublesome elements. There is a great undercurrent of ill feeling against Weyler in Spanish circles. It is known he has been pushed to take the field. It is said he will fail in his campain against Gen. Maceo. The latter is reported strongly fortified in the mountains. Tuesday night Weyler encamped in the Gomor Andoro hills, and news has arrived that he had an engagement with the rebel parties under Perioco del Gado and Perico Diaz. It is reported Weyler was forced to fall back. News also has been received that Gen. Munoz made another attack on the Rubi hills where Maceo is supposed to be strongly entrenched. A fierce fight is said to have occurred but no details are known.

Great excitement prevails in Havana, not only on account of the above, but also because of news received from the United States regarding President Cleveland's future attitude on the Cuban question.

SECRET SERVICE.

Annual Report of Chief W. P. Hazen—Counterfeiting Materially Decreased.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The annual report of W. P. Hazen, chief of the secret service, states that the counterfeiting of paper money has materially decreased during the past year. This can in part be accounted for by the large increase in "raised" or "altered" notes found in circulation, some of which are most skilfully executed. He attributes the facility with which the public are deceived by raised notes to the frequent changes in the designs of the United States notes, which makes it almost impossible for the public to become familiar with the currency. It is also made plain, he adds, that the distinctive paper in use is an aid to the criminal rather than a protection to the public, because of the fact that a note printed upon paper containing silk threads (as a number of the best of the counterfeits and all the raised notes are) is accepted in a majority of instances without hesitation, owing to the erroneous impression that the paper used by the government is manufactured by a secret process and can not be counterfeited. He has also become convinced that the introduction of silk into the paper tends to lessen its wearing qualities and is, therefore, responsible to a degree for its short life.

The counterfeiting of gold and silver coins has been on the increase in all parts of the country. Some counterfeits of silver coins have appeared on the Pacific coast that are quite as good as the genuine, both in weight and fineness, and made from dies of excellent workmanship.

Bishop Ireland in Disfavor.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—A news agency dispatch from Rome says: Statements circulated in the United States that the pope has decided to remove Archbishop Ireland from the diocese of St. Paul are untrue, but it is said by those qualified to know that Archbishop Ireland has lost the major part of the former consideration in which he was held at the vatican, and that the course he pursued in the recent election in the United States has increased this disfavor.

Another Dummy Ballot.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 12.—The general assembly took another dummy ballot for United States senator Wednesday, each democratic delegation voting for a different name. Wednesday night Lewis withdrew from the race which now practically narrows down to Gov. Atkinson, Capt. Howell and A. S. Clay.

Wants Indemnity.

PRETORIA, Nov. 12.—The Transvaal government have decided to claim £1,000,000 sterling indemnity from the British South Africa company to cover the damage sustained by the Jameson raid.

KING OSCAR

May Be the Fifth Arbitrator in the Boundary Question.

Frederick Coudert Spoken of as the Third—A Petty Trick—Our President Forestalled in the Announcement of His Splendid Diplomatic Triumph.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—There remain but few details to be settled in the matter of the Venezuelan arbitration, and these details are now being arranged between Secretary Olney and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador. It is generally conceded that King Oscar of Norway and Sweden will be the fifth arbitrator, though it is intimated that in case he should decline, the president of the sister republic will ultimately be selected. This is really a matter of detail.

KING OSCAR II.

It is taken for granted that Chief Justice Fuller will be one of the American arbitrators, and it is not impossible that Mr. Frederick Coudert may be the other. Mr. Coudert, being a member of the Venezuelan commission, is eminently equipped with all information, and would therefore be a valuable representative of this government.

There is a rumor Thursday that the British foreign office has been guilty of a petty trick, designed to deprive the president of the personal triumph of announcing in his forthcoming message to congress that American diplomacy and determination had triumphed over Great Britain. The publication in advance of the signature of any portion of the proposed Venezuelan protocol was a glaring breach of the diplomatic usages that are recognized between all governments. It is known, of course, that neither Secretary Olney nor Sir Julian Pauncefote had given out this information. Inquiry by the diplomats representing other governments finally revealed the fact that certain details of the treaty, embodying its most important features, had been given out by the British foreign office to be cabled to Washington and printed here in order to forestall President Cleveland.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The St. James Gazette Thursday afternoon publishes a leading article, headed "An Historic Moment," in the course of which it says: "Lord Salisbury's great admission of the principle that the United States have the right to intervene in frontier disputes of the American powers and to compel the disputants to arbitrate, altogther transcends in importance the question of the Guiana boundary. It is a formal recognition of the hegemony of the United States on the American continent and gives the president a position in the new world which the medieval popes and emperors tried vainly to claim in Europe."

A PARIS PAPER

On the Proposed Treaty Between the United States and Great Britain.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—The Temps in an article on the proposed settlement by arbitration of the Anglo-Venezuelan question, remarked upon the immense impulsion Great Britain is giving to one of the most extreme consequences of the Monroe doctrine. It contends that with the consent of Great Britain the United States are invested with their right to interfere in all territorial quarrels with European powers with new world states, even when not asked by the latter and without their consent. These great innovations in international law, the paper adds, consecrate the absolute supremacy of the United States in the western hemisphere and must cost British pride dear. Europe, however, will be unable to accept such a grave departure from the rights of nations.

The National W. C. T. U.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 13.—The 500 officers and delegates to the twenty-third annual convention of the National W. C. T. U. were called to order in Exposition Music hall at nine o'clock Friday by President Frances E. Willard. Prior to this a morning prayer meeting was conducted in Schuyler Memorial hall by Miss Elizabeth Greenwood, of New York.

Suicided in the Park.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—E. J. Ballou committed suicide in Jackson park at noon Thursday by shooting himself through the head. The reasons for his committing the deed are unknown. He was the local agent for the Publishers' Collection agency, of St. Paul, and he also represented a magazine called "City Government," published in New York.

Turkish Reforms Being Carried Out.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—M. Hanotaux, minister of foreign affairs, informed the cabinet Thursday morning that the Turkish ambassador, Zia Pasha, had communicated with the foreign office in writing, confirming the reports that the reforms which the sultan had promised were being carried out, telegrams having already been sent by the porte to the military governors informing them that they would be held answerable for any further bloodshed and instructing them to immediately put into operation the reform agreed upon in 1895.

LAKE STEAMER

Goes on the Rocks at Conneaut, O.—Two of the Crew Drowned—The Vessel Destroyed by Fire.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 14.—The steamer Wallula, ore laden from Ashland, Wis., to Conneaut, O., went ashore while trying to make the latter port during the storm Friday forenoon. When it appeared as though she was going to miss her pier, the crew scuttled her, hoping to make her right up. The effort was a failure and she went on to the rocks. She pounded heavily and it was with the greatest difficulty that part of her crew were rescued. Two seamen were drowned. Just as the last man was taken off the ship burst forth in a blaze and Friday night was still burning.

Shortly after eight o'clock the big steamer was first noticed from shore coming in. She was laboring hard in the heavy seas and as she bore down toward the harbor she sent up signals of distress.

Two tugs tried to get out to her, but were beaten off by the seas and finally were forced to return within the breakwaters. So heavily laden was the Wallula that she rolled and rocked and finally the crew entirely lost control of her. A rudder chain broke and the big vessel became the plaything of every sea that rolled in. All efforts to steer with the wheel were in vain. A big crowd gathered on shore and watched the ship as she tossed about.

It became evident that nothing could save her from going ashore, but the captain resorted to heroic measures to get her ashore as safely as possible. He ordered the sea cocks opened in order to let in water. In this way he thought to steady her in her fierce battle with the seas. The ship was accordingly scuttled. Either the captain's orders were misunderstood or else the sailors acted with too great energy, for too many sea cocks were opened and one was broken. The result was that the water rushed in in great volume and the steamer rapidly settled. She was in great danger of going down more than one-half mile from shore. The crew were called to the pumps and ordered to pump for their lives. It became almost impossible to work the pumps, but the men clung to their work like grim death. She rolled and filled, the water gaining rapidly. At this juncture a life-saving crew put off from the shore. The captain gave orders to the men to abandon the pumps and look to their personal safety. The life-savers neared and a wild scramble for their lives ensued among the members of the crew. Lines were sent aboard and ten of the 12 men were taken off. Two others, seamen, whose full names could not be learned, were lost overboard. The missing men were known as "Wilson" and "Pat."

After the ship was abandoned she remained up longer than had been anticipated and did not sink, but was driven hard ashore. Immediately after she struck a spiral flame shot up from her. This broke into a fierce blaze, which mantled her fore and aft. From the shore the fire appeared to be largely in the vessel's interior, and continued to burn until darkness fell. The rescued seamen were cared for on shore.

The Wallula was owned by Thomas Wilson, of this city, and was valued at $90,000. She carried an unusually large cago of ore, the value of which is not known. The vessel is insured for $75,000. She was in command of Capt. Holmes. Capt. Holmes said Friday evening that the storm was the worst he had encountered for many years. The fact that the Wallula was so heavily freighted made her unweildly and it became impossible to navigate.

TRADE IN WHEAT.

The Harbor of San Francisco, Cal., Crowded With Vessels.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Not since the days of '49 has San Francisco harbor been so crowded with ships as it is at present. All classes of vessels are anchored in the bay and seven out of every ten are seeking a charter. Many of the sailing ships are in ballast and a few have brought coal from Australia for a nominal sum in order to clear expenses. All the captains are excited over the advance in wheat and some of the later arrivals are holding out for a 35-shilling rate to the United Kingdom. The disengaged tonnage in port at present exceeds 70,000 tons, while on the same date last year it was only 27,644. The chartered tonnage aggregates 103,892 as against 92,415 on this date in '95.

Alleged Election Frauds Investigated.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 14.—The grand jury ended a five days' session Friday night investigating alleged election frauds in the city of Wheeling and Ohio county, but none were found. The charge of fraud was made by the Wheeling Register, a democratic paper. The writer of the article was summoned before the jury Friday and promptly hedged, stating the publication referred to matters in another district of the state.

Congressman Hitt for the Senate.

GALENA, Ill., Nov. 14.—Congressman R. R. Hitt, chairman of the house committee on foreign relations, who has been in public life for 20 years, Friday became an avowed candidate for the United States senate to succeed Senator Palmer. In an interview published in the Gazette he authorized his friends to present his name to the republican joint caucus when the legislature meets next year.

A Tug Boat Sinks.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—The tug L. B. Johnson tripped on the tow line of the steamer V. H. Ketchum and was sunk near the mouth of the harbor at an early hour Friday morning. Her crew of five men were thrown into the water and narrowly escaped death. They were rescued by the life-saving crew after a long battle with the waves, nearly frozen and thoroughly exhausted.

Kansas' Official Vote.

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 14.—Returns from all the counties of the state show that Bryan received 11,974 plurality.

FREE SHIP BILL.

The Commissioner of Navigation Urges Its Passage.

The Large and Profitable Carrying Trade Once Conducted Between Asiatic and European Ports by American Vessels Has Almost Passed Away.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Despite the fact that there is no probability of either this congress or the next passing a free ship bill, the commissioner of navigation, in his annual report given to the press Sunday night, refers prominently to the subject, and urges the necessity for the passage of such a measure. He invites attention to the fact that our maritime rank on the Pacific is now threatened by a new rival, Japan, which has just established a trans-Pacific line to the United States, with the co-operation of American capital, is preparing to extend rapidly the service. In 1880 the tonnage of American vessels, entering the United States, from the ports of Asia and Oceanica was 233,395 tons, and of foreign vessels 442,251 tons. Fifteen years later in 1895, American tonnage had increased but a trifle, to 308,481 tons, while the foreign tonnage has leaped to 657,206 tons. In his argument the commissioner says: "The large and profitable carrying trade, once conducted between Asiatic and European ports by American vessels, which seldom entered American ports, has almost entirely passed away. We have already seen the American flag almost wholly disappear from the mid-Atlantic, save as borne by the mail steamers of the American line and the figures show that the carrying trade of the Pacific is slipping from us."

Before it is altogether lost, Commissioner Chamberlain suggests that congress inquire into the condition of trans-Pacific transportation. Within the last five years Japan's sea going steel steamers have increased from 13 of 27,710 tons to 23 of 106,383 tons. The number of American steel and iron steamers on the Pacific coast is 68,225 tons.

A SUMMARY

Of the Political Division of the House of Representatives in the Fifty-fifth Congress.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Although the official figures of the recent election have not in all cases reached republican congressional headquarters, the result of the contests in the various congressional districts is known with sufficient exactness to warrant the announcement of the summary of the political divisions in the house of representatives in the Fifty-fifth congress. This shows 207 republicans, 137 democrats and 13 populists. In making this division, the committee have placed among the populists Messrs. Hartman, of Montana, Newlands, of Nevada, and Shaforth, of Colorado, who were elected to the present congress as republicans. Also Jess Baker, of Illinois, who was a republican representative in the Fifty-first congress. The other populists come from Kansas, North Carolina, Colorado and California.

Upon the question of silver the division is said to be: Free silver, 153; against silver, 204. Two of the democrats are opposed to free coinage of silver—Messrs. McAleer, of Pennsylvania, and Elliott, of South Carolina, and five republicans favor it—Messrs. Silbum, Broderick, Curtis, Tenney and Beach.

WEYLER AND THE NUNS.

An Order Issued by the General That May Cause Serious Complications.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 16.—One of the most important items that has escaped the Spanish press censor has just come to light here. When Weyler ordered a number of public buildings to be used for public hospitals, the convent of the Usurlines was included. When the mother superior heard this she went to Bishop Santander Y. Frutos, of the Havana diocese.

He called on Weyler and asked him to rescind the order as to this building. This Weyler declined to do. The bishop declared that the nuns would only vacate at the point of the bayonet, warning Weyler that he contemplated a sacrilligious act that would mean excommunication. Weyler said his orders must be obeyed, and that if the nuns did not move quickly he would eject them. The bishop dared him to touch them.

This enraged Weyler and he ordered his secretary to issue orders to have the bishop thrown in the fortress of Cabanas, but his secretary called his attention to the complications that would be likely to arise.

Weyler let it drop, but the bishop left immediately for Rome to lay the matter before the pope and great anxiety is manifested as to the result, for it is felt that if the church takes offense, its influence would be thrown with the Carlist party and the two will combine to overthrow the present government.

W. J. Arkell for a Cabinet Position.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—A reporter of the United Associated Presses in conversation with a gentleman who stands high in the councils of the republican party and a close friend of Maj. McKinley was told that it was not unlikely Wm. J. Arkell, the publisher, would be tendered a portfolio in President McKinley's cabinet, probably that of postmaster general.

Jewish Women in Council.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The first annual convention of Jewish women was formally begun Sunday afternoon at Tuxedo hall, when the credentials presented a list of delegates. The partially finished list shows that delegates are from nearly all the prominent cities in country are present.

West Virginia's Official Vote.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 16.—West Virginia's official vote has been counted. Thirty-one counties give McKinley 22 031 majority. The remainder give Bryan 9,938. McKinley's net plurality is 12,101.

ELECTRIC STROKE.

It Affects Workmen as Does Fierce Sun Heat.

One of the most extraordinary modern diseases is a peculiar affection, most aptly termed electric stroke, which not infrequently befalls workmen employed in melting metals by means of electricity. It appears from observations made at the great steel and iron works at Cruzot, says the Boston Journal, that the intense voltage arc between the carbon and the metal to be melted emits rays which, even at the distance of ten meters, produce a painful, hot, pricking sensation, like that of a burn, on such uncovered portions of the body as the throat, face, and more especially the forehead.

The skin of the parts affected becomes either copper-colored or assumes a bronze hue; the eyes, in spite of black glasses, are so intensely dazzled as to be useless for some minutes, after which xanthopsia (yellow vision) sets in, everything appearing saffron-colored, the conjunctive are inflamed, and there is a gritty feeling, as of sand under the eyelids. There is frequently great pain, accompanied often by sleeplessness, and in some instances fever.

After a few days these symptoms subside and the skin of the affected parts peels and the patient is restored to health.

Now, the remarkable thing about all this is that very little heat is radiated from the electric arc used; all the trouble arises from the light rays, and, although it has not yet been experimentally proved, there can be little doubt that the blue and violet—that is, the chemical—rays are to blame.

Useful Member of a Family.

The Portuguese say that no man can be a good husband who does not eat a good breakfast, which leads the Waterbury American to say that this is a mean way of throwing upon the wife all the responsibility for the husband's goodness, for without a good wife there can be no good breakfast for him to eat. That may be right in theory, but it is wrong in practice. We know a man who has cooked breakfast the greater part of the time for the past 15 years for his family. And we violate no confidence when we say it is a good breakfast, too. He is a man who loves good living, and he knows how to prepare a meal with the best of women. Yet he is a workingman who puts in from ten to fifteen hours a day of hard work, and the kind of work that is exhausting.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

SUPERSTITION FOILED.—"Somebody has invented a mirror that will not break." "Gracious! Now how are we going to tell when there is to be a death in the house?"—Chicago Record.

Physicians Wise in Their Generation.

The above class of scientists recognize, and have repeatedly borne testimony, to the efficacy of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a remedy and preventive of fever and ague, rheumatism, want of vigor, liver complaint, and some other ailments and infirm conditions of the system. Experience and observation have taught them its value. They but echo the verdict long since pronounced by the public and the press. Only the benighted now are ignorant of America's tonic and alterative.

ANSON—"I believe male attire for woman lowers her religious standard." Ganley—"Why so?" Anson—"Because in man's garb she looks like a he-then."—Washington Times.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

"I DUNNO which is de wust o' de two," said Uncle Eben, "de man dat t'inks he's too good ter be in politics er de man dat's so bad he has ter be put out."—Washington Star.

A Michigan Romance.

An interesting story by Stanley Waterloo, also containing valuable information about the summer resorts in the north, will be mailed to any address on receipt of 4 cents to pay postage. Address D. G. Edwards, Passenger Traffic Manager, C. H. & D. Ry., Cincinnati, O.

"You," shouted the long, lean man, "you, sir, are no patriot." "Well, what if I ain't?" retorted the short, fat man. "Election's over, ain't it?"—Indianapolis Journal.

WHEN bilious or costive, eat a Cascaret, candy cathartic, cure guaranteed, 10c, 25c.

"DIGBY tells me he fears his wife is the victim of a wasting disease." "What is it?" "Bargain counter." Chicago Record.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease and requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine purifies the blood and cures catarrh.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills easy to buy, easy to take, easy in effect. 25c.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

THE SUPERNATURAL.

"Let Me Go, for the Day Breaketh," Cried the Angel,

When He Wrestled All Night by the Brook of Jobbok With Jacob—Struggle of Everyday Life Foreshadowed—Sermon by Dr. Talmage.

Out of this strange scene of Bible times, Dr. Talmage, in his sermon Sunday, draws remarkable lessons of good cheer and triumph. His subject was: "Wrestling with the Supernatural," and the text: "Genesis xxxii, 25, 26: "And when he saw that he prevailed not against him, he touched the hollow of his thigh; and the hollow of Jacob's thigh was out of joint as he wrestled with him. And he said, Let me go, for the day breaketh. And he said, I will not let thee go except thou bless me."

There is a cloud of dust from a traveling herd of cattle, and sheep, and goats, and camels They are the present that Jacob sends to gain the good will of his offended brother. That night Jacob halts by the brook Jabbok. But there is no rest for the weary man. No shining ladder to let the angels down into his dream; but a severe struggle, that lasts until morning, with an unknown visitor. They each try to throw the other. The unknown visitor, to reveal his superior power, by a touch wrenches Jacob's thigh bone from its socket, perhaps maiming him for life. As on the morning sky the clusters of purple cloud begin to ripen, Jacob sees it is an angel with whom he has been contending, and not one of his brother's coadjutors. "Let me go," cries the angel, lifting himself up into increasing light, "the day breaketh."

You see, in the first place, that God allows good people sometimes to get into a terrible struggle. Jacob was a good man; but here he is left alone in the midnight to wrestle with a tremendous influence by the brook Jabbok. For Joseph, a pit; for Daniel, a wild beast den; for David, dethronement and exile; for John the Baptist, a wilderness, diet and the executioner's ax; for Peter, a prison; for Paul, shipwreck; for John, desolate Patmos; for Christ, the cross.

For whom the racks, the gibbets, the prisons, the thumbscrews? For the sons and daughters of the Lord Almighty. Some one said to a Christian reformer, "The world is against you." "Then," he replied, "I am against the world."

I will go further and say that every Christian has his struggle. With financial misfortune some of you have had the middle-night wrestle. Red hot disasters have dropped into your store from loft to cellar. What you bought you could not sell. Whom you trusted, fled. The help you expected would not come. Some giant panic, with long arms and grip like death, took hold of you in an awful wrestle, from which you have not yet escaped, and it is uncertain whether it will throw yon or you will throw it. Here is another soul in struggle with some bad appetite. He knew not how stealthily it was growing upon him. One hour he woke up. He said, "For the sake of my soul, of my family, of my children, and of my God, I must stop this!" And behold, he found himself alone, by the brook of Jabbok; and it was midnight. That evil appetite seized upon him, and he seized upon it; and oh, the horror of the conflict. When once a bad habit hath raused itself up to destroy a man, and the man has sworn that, by the help of the eternal God, he will destroy it, all Heaven draws itself out in long line of light to look from above, and all hell stretches itself in myrmidons of spite to look up from beneath. I have seen men rally themselves for a struggle, and they have bitten their lip, and clenched their fist, and cried with a blood-red earnestness and a rain of scalding tears: "God, help me!"

From a wrestle with habit I have seen men falling back defeated. Calling for no help, but relying on their own resolutions, they have come into the struggle; and for a time it seemed as if they were getting the upper hand of their habit, but that habit rallied again its infernal power, and lifted the soul, from its standing, and, with a force borrowed from the pit, hurled it into outer darkness.

But, thank God, I have often seen a better termination than this. I have seen men prepare themselves for such a wrestling. They laid hold of God's help as they went into combat. The giant habit, regaled by the cup of many dissipations, came out strong and defiant. They clenched. There were the writhings and distortions of a fearful struggle. But the old giant began to waver, and at last, in the midnight, alone, with none but God to witness, by the brook Jabbok, the giant fell; and the triumphant wrestler broke the darkness with the cry, "Thanks be unto God, who giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ."

There is a widow's heart, that first was desolated by bereavement, and since, by the anxieties and trials that came in the support of a family. It is a sad thing to see a man contending for a livelihood under disadvantages; but to see a delicate woman, with helpless little ones at her back, fighting the giants of poverty and sorrow, is more affecting. It was a humble home; and passers-by knew not that within those four walls were displays of courage more admirable than that of Hannibal crossing the Alps, or in the Pass of Thermopylae, or at Balaklava, where "into the jaws of death rode the six hundred." These heroes had the world to cheer them on; but there were none to applaud the struggle in that humble home. She fought for bread, for clothing, for fire, for shelter, with aching head, and weak side, and exhausted strength, through the long night by the brook Jabbok. Could it be that none would give her help? Had God forgotten to be gracious? No! Contending soul! The midnight air is full of wings, coming to the rescue. She hears it now, in the sough of the night wind, in the ripple of the brook Jabbok, the promise made so long ago, ringing down the sky: "Thy fatherless children, I will preserve them alive; and let thy widows trust in me!" Some one said to a very poor woman, "How is it that in such distress you keep cheerful?" She said, "I do it by what I call cross-prayers. When I had my rent to pay, and nothing to pay it with, and bread to buy, and nothing to buy it with, I used to sit down and cry. But now I do not get discouraged. If I go along the street, when I come to a corner of the street, I say, 'The Lord help me!' I then go on till I come to another crossing of the street, and again I say, 'The Lord help me!' And so I utter a prayer at every crossing; and since I have got into the habit of saying these 'cross-prayers,' I have been able to keep up my courage."

Learn, again, from this subject that people sometimes are surprised to find out that what they have been struggling with in the darkness is really an "angel of blessing."

Jacob found in the morning that this strange personage was not an enemy, but a God-dispatched messenger to promise prosperity for him and for his children. And so many a man, at the close of his trial, has found that he has been trying to throw down his own blessing. If you are a Christian man, I will go back in your history and find that the grandest things that have ever happened to you have been your trials. Nothing short of scourging, imprisonment and shipwreck could have made Paul what he was. When David was fleeing through the wilderness, pursued by his own son, he was being prepared to become the sweet singer of Israel. The pit and the dungeon were the best schools at which Joseph ever graduated. The hurricane that upset the tent and killed Job's children prepared the man of Uz to be the subject of the magnificent poem that has astounded the ages. There is no way to get the wheat out of the straw but to thresh it. There is no way to purify gold but to burn it. Look at the people who have always had it their own way. They are proud, discontented, useless and unhappy. If you want to find cheerful folks, go among those who have been purified by the fire. After Rosini had rendered "William Tell" the five hundredth tims a company of musicians came under his window in Paris and screnaded him. They put upon his brow a golden crown of laurel leaves. But, amid all the applause and enthusiasm Rossini turned to a friend and said: "I would give all this brilliant scene for a few days of youth and love." Contrast the melancholy feeling of Rossini, who had everything that this world could give him, with the joyful experience of Isaac Watts, whose sorrows were great, when he says:

The Hill of Zion yields
A thousand sacred sweets,
Before we reach the heavenly fields
Or walk the golden streets.

Then let our songs abound,
And every tear be dry:
We're marching through Immanuel's grounds
To fairer worlds on high.

It is prosperity that kills and trouble that saves. While the Israelites were on the march, amid great privations and hardships, they behaved well. After awhile they prayed for meat; and the sky darkened with a great flock of quails; and these quails fell in great multitudes all about them; and the Israelites ate and ate, and stuffed themselves until they died. Oh, my friends, it is not hardship, or trial, or starvation that injures the soul, but abundant supply. It is not the vulture of trouble that eats up the Christian's life; it is the quails! It is the quails! You will yet find out that your midnight wrestle by the brook Jabbok is with an angel of God, come down to bless and to save.

Learn again that, while our wrestling with trouble might be triumphant we must expect that it will leave its mark upon us. Jacob prevailed, but the angel touched him and his thighbone sprang from its socket, and the good man went limping on his way. We must carry through this world the mark of the combat. What plowed these premature wrinkles in your face? What whitened your hair before it was time for frost? What silenced forever so much of the hilarity of your household? Ah, it is because the angel of trouble hath touched you that you go limping on your way. You need not be surprised that those who have passed through the fire do not feel as gay as once they did. Do not be out of patience with those who come not ont of their despondency. They may triumph over their loss, and yet their gait shall tell you that they have been trouble-touched. Are we stoics that we can, unmoved, see our cradle rifled of the bright eyes and the sweep lips? Can we stand unmoved and see our gardens of earthly delight uprooted? Will Jesus, who wept Himself, be angry with us if we pour our tears into the graves that open to swallow down what we loved best? Was Lazarus more dear to Him than our beloved dead to us? No. We have a right to weep. Our tears must come. You shall not drive them back to scald the heart.

They fell into God's bottle. Afflicted ones have died because they could not weep. Thank God for the sweet, the mysterious relief that comes to us in tears! Under this gentle rain the flowers of hope put forth their bloom. God pity that dry, withered, parched, all-consuming grief that wrings its hands, and grinds its teeth, and bites its nails into the quick, but can not weep! We may have found the comfort of the Cross, and yet ever after show that in the dark night, and by the brook Jabbok, we were trouble-touched.

Again we may take the idea of the text, and announce the approach of the day dawn. No one was ever more glad to see the morning that was Jacob after that night of struggle. It is appropriate for philanthropists and Christians to cry out with this angel of the text. "The day breaketh." The world's prospects are brightening. Superstition has had its strongest props knocked out. The tyrants of earth are falling flat in the dust. The Church of Christ is rising up in its strength to go forth, "fair as the morn, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners." Clap your hands, all ye people, "the day breaketh."

As I look around me, I see many who have passed through the waves of trouble that came up higher than their girdle. In God's name I proclaim cessation of hostilities. You shall not always go saddened and heart-broken. God will lift your burden. God will bring your dead to life. God will stanch the heart's bleeding. I know He will. Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pities yon. The pains of earth will end. The tomb will burst. The dead will rise. The morning star trembles on a brightening sky. The gates of the east begin to swing open. "The day breaketh."

Luther and Melancthon were talking together gloomily about the prospects of the church. They could see no hope of deliverance. After awhile Luther got up and said to Melancthon, "Come, Phillip, let us sing the forty-sixth Psalm, 'God is our refuge and strength in every time of trouble.'"

Death to many, nay, to all, is a struggle and a wrestle. We have many friends whom it would be hard to leave, I care not how bright our future hope is. It is a bitter thing to look upon this fair world, and know that we shall never again see its blossoming spring, its autumnal fruits, its sparkling streams, and to say farewell to those with whom we played in childhood or counseled in manhood. In that night, like Jacob, we may have to wrestle, but God will not leave us unblessed. It shall not be told in Heaven that a dying soul cried unto God for help, but was not delivered. The lattice may be turned to keep out the sun, or a book set to dim the light of the midnight taper; or the room may be filled with the cries of orphanage or widowhood; or the Church of Christ may mourn over our going; but if Jesus calls, all is well. The strong wrestling by the brook will cease; the hours of death's night will pass along; 1 o'clock in the morning; 2 o'clock in the morning; 4 o'clock in the morning; 5 o'clock in the morning; "the day breaketh."

So I would have it when I die. I am in no haste to be gone. I would like to stand here 20 years and preach this Gospel. I have no grudge against this world. The only fault I have to find with this world is, that it treats me too well. But when the time comes to go, I trust to be ready, my wordly affairs all settled. If I have wronged others, I want, then, to be sure of their forgiveness. In that last wrestling, my arm enfeebled with sickness, and my head faint, I want Jesus beside me. If there be hands on this side of the flood stretched out to hold me back, I want the heavenly hands stretched out to draw me forward. Then, O Jesus, help me on, and help me up. Unfearing, undoubting, may I step right ont into the light, and be able to look back to my kindred and friends, who would detain me here, exclaiming: Let me go—let me go! The day breaketh.

INTERESTING ITEMS.

Hop pickers at Puyallup, Wash., get 50 to 85 cents per 100 pounds.

The Kentucky Growers' Fire Insurance Co., with $100,000 capital, has been incorporated at Lexington.

Prince Hilkoff, now Russian minister, once worked in a Philadelphia locomotive shop at $1 a day.

Nearly everybody smokes in Japan. The girls begin when they are ten years of age, and the boys a year earlier.

The total strength of a German cavalry regiment is 25 officers, 667 men and 792 horses, 63 of which are officers' chargers.

Noah's wife is said by Armenians to be buried on Mt. Ararat, and the Armenians trace their ancestry back to Japhet in one long genealogical tree.

Dr. Sofshue says linseed oil is a sure remedy for both hard and soft corns. If they are indurated and very painful the relief it gives in a short time is most grateful. Bind on a soft rag with linseed oil, and continue to dampen it with the oil every night and morning until the corn is removed easily and without pain.

According to the "Diary of an Idle Woman in Constantinople," the sultan of Turkey is a domestic man, intensely fond of his children, for whom he has a tiny theater, wherein they play small parts for the delectation of their papa. The principal bete noire of his majesty the sultan is the bicycle, which he declares is immoral and dangerous to the state.

Helen Kellar, the deaf, dumb and blind girl, has added to other achievements that of riding a bicycle through the streets of Cambridge. It is, to be sure, a tandem, and her companion does the steering, but, as showing the possibility of a new pleasure for the blind, this latest triumph of the famous mute is regarded as an important as well as an interesting one.

Young Beresford, the English lordling who is serving a term of imprisonment in Georgia for swindling, has tired of work with a gang of convicts and is circulating through the mails for signature a petition to the governor, in which he promises, if pardoned, to lead hereafter an upright life. A good many people in Georgia think Beresford has been sufficiently punished, and it is likely that his effort to secure freedom will be successful.

Of all the curious names for places and things none is more curious than that given to a benevolent institution in Boston. It has the appearance of a travesty upon the current joke of Bostonian high talk. It is a place of refuge and reformation for women addicted to the drink habit, and is called in all seriousness, "The Drunken Ladies' Home." Many Boston women send here for the plain sewing done by the inmates, and it sounds oddly enough to hear, as one sometimes does, a request that another member of the family will go to the Drunken Ladies for such and such a garment.

WAR CLOUDS.

Spaniards Showing a Bitter Feeling Toward Anything American.

Note Sent to Foreign Ministers Uncovered by Minister Taylor, Who Exacted Its Withdrawal—Information Demanded of Southern Roads.

Washington, Nov. 13.—From a number of sonrces the rumor relating to the probability of war with Spain are confirmed. It is believed that the state department possesses definite information from Minister Taylor regarding the strong and ungovernable enmity which is attached to things American in the Spanish mind. It is said that these advices have even gone so far as to sound a note of warning that an outbreak of violence might be expected in various turbulent quarters. This information will not surprise those who recall the uncontrollable anger which burst forth in Spanish cities and towns on the occasion of the house resolutions sympathizing with the Cuban course.

This ill feeling is not secret and hidden; it finds vent in music halls and the Madrid cafes, it is said, whenever the name America is pronounced or reference to this country is made.

Among other things, a story has reached this city, traceable to the British embassy, it is said, which shows that Spanish relations with this country are not over-cordial, even in diplomatic and official quarters.

The secretary of state is known to have detailed a clerk to remain at the state department each night until midnight to receive and translate from the diplomatic code any messages which may come in, and it is presumed that something interesting is looked for from Minister Taylor. It is said at the department that Mr. Olney left word that any message from Madrid should be brought to him without delay.

A dinner was given some weeks ago in Madrid, the guests including the various ministers to Spain, among them Minister Taylor and the British minister at Madrid. The entertainment was enlivened by the British minister divulging to Minister Taylor a note which he had that day received from the foreign office in Madrid, a note similar, it turned out, to communications sent to other ministers, with the glaring exception of Mr. Taylor. After the dinner Minister Taylor procured a copy of the note, which in substance presented an inquiry as to the attitude which would be assumed by England and other governments in the event of war between Spain and the United States. So bold and pointed a query exerted much comment among the diplomats at Madrid. That it found no sympathetic response is shown by the fact that Minister Taylor early learned of the inquiry, and was able to go, as he did, without delay, to the Spanish foreign office, and enter a protest against the action. The note, upon the demand of Minister Taylor, was recalled, and the incident probably ended with that surrender, although the implied insult can not be removed.

The war department has called on the leading trunk line roads running to Key West, New Orleans and the other gulf ports for an immediate statement of their capacity to move troops, supplies and heavy war material.

The information demanded is complete to the most minute detail, and embraces such questions as: "If you are required to move 5,000 troops over your lines, with necessary equipment and supplied, how long after notification will yon require to perform the service?"

Caution as to secrecy is imposed on all roads called on for information.

THE TITLE

To 90,000 Acres of Land in Oregon Involved in a Case Before the Supreme Court.

Washington, Nov. 13.—A case involving the title to about ninety thousand acres of land in Oregon was argued in the supreme court of the United States Thursday. The land in controversy formed part of the grant originally made to the Oregon Central Co. to aid in the construction of a railroad from Portland to Astoria and from a junction near Forest Grove to the Yamhill river, near McMinnville. The circuit court held that the land was forfeited to the United States, but the court of appeals reversed that decision, and the government came to the supreme court. For the United States appeared Assistant Attorney General Dickinson and ex-Attorney General Geo. N. Williams, of Oregon, and for the railroad company Mr. Joseph H. Choate, of New York.

On Full Time.

Waltham, Mass., Nov. 13.—Notice was posted in the American Waltham Watch factory Thursday afternoon that beginning on Monday, November 16, the factory would run on full time. The factory employs 2,000 hands and they have been working on short time for the past five months, besides having had a vacation of some six weeks.

High Price for Wheat.

New York, Nov. 13.—A new high price for wheat was scored when cash wheat sold at 95 cents a bushel. The previous high price was 94 cents on Tuesday. The chief dealings were in December wheat or wheat deliverable in December, which touched 89¼ and closed at 89⅛, or 2⅛ above the closing on Wednesday.

New Railway in China.

Pekin, Nov. 13.—It is stated that the government will borrow from Chinese capitalists the sum of 20,000,000 taels for the construction of the Hankow & Pekin railway. It was stated a short time ago that an American syndicate would advance 30,000,000 taels for the building of this line, but it is now rumored that there is a hitch in the negotiations.

Rusie Wants to Be Released.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Amos Rusie has filed a bill in the United States court demanding his release from the New York Baseball club reservation.

A SUMMARY

Of the Agreement Between Great Britain and the United States Regarding the Venezuela Boundary Dispute.

London, Nov. 14.—The Chronicle Saturday publishes what it claims to be a complete summary of the agreement regarding the Venezuela question. The article is entitled, "Heads of a proposed agreement between Venezuela and Great Britain for the settlement of the Venezuela boundary question, as agreed upon between Great Britain and the United States of America."

There are four heads. Under the first the appointment of an arbitrational treaty to determine the boundary is provided for. Under the second provision is made for the appointment of a tribunal of five members, two to be nominated by the supreme court of the United States, two by the supreme court of Great Britain, while the fifth member is to be a jurist selected by the other members.

In the event of these four members failing to agree upon the selection of the fifth member, King Oscar, of Sweden and Norway, will select him. The fifth member will be president of the tribunal and he may be a judge of either the supreme court of the United States or the similar court of Great Britain.

Under the third head the tribunal is directed to examine all the facts necessary to decide the controversy regarding the territory known to belong to the United Netherlands and the kingdom of Spain when Great Britain acquired Guiana.

Under the fourth head it is provided that the arbitrators shall ascertain all the facts necessary to arrive at a proper decision. They must be governed in their findings by three short rules, the most important of which provides a prescription of 50 years. The arbitrators may give effect to the rights of settlers. In establishing the facts the ordinary rules of law shall prevail.

The agreement is dated November 12, 1896, and is signed by Secretary of State Olney and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador to the United States.

The Chronicle adds that the foregoing will be the basis of the Anglo-Venezuelan treaty.

Treating of the settlement of the Veneznela question, the Daily News, in its issue Saturday, will comment upon certain tory complaints that Lord Salisbury climbed down from the position first assumed by him, which was that there was "nothing to arbitrate," and also upon the complaints of some French and German critics that Lord Salisbury had improperly exalted the United States.

The statement that the finishing of the arbitration court must be completed early in February is unfounded. It is scarcely to be expected that a decision will be reached short of a year.

FROM MADRID

Havana Gets Orders to Annoy American Shipmasters.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The relations of this country with the government at Madrid have been further strained by the action of the Spanish officials at Havana. For some time the latter have been exercising a disagreeable authority, presumably under instructions from Madrid, and have caused much annoyance to shipmasters.

Mariners have been subjected to all sorts of fines and taxes, under the guise of violating harbor regulations. Some of the levies have been without justice and based on no other reason than that it was possible to extort this revenue from American sources. For a time, it appears, no protest was advanced by individuals, but the matter has grown so palpable in its injustice and boldness that the circumstances were at last reported to the state department by returning mariners.

Secretary Olney at once instructed Minister Taylor at Madrid to file a protest against the action of the Havana officials, together with the demand that the system should be discontinued without delay.

THE OFFICIALS

Deny That the War Department Has Called on the Railway Lines for Rates of Transportation of Troops, Etc.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Officials of the war department deny without qualification the story published by a Chicago paper Friday to the effect that the war department had called on railroad companies for rates for the transportation of troops and war materials from the west to gulf ports.

Some six weeks ago the department, in the ordinary course of routine business, called on the trans-continental roads for bids for the exchange of troops between Florida and California. This call is the only basis for the absolutely unjustifiable and alarming publication in the Chicago newspaper.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Secretary Herbert is energetically getting our new navy ready for any emergency. While no information is vouchsafed the press, it is known that great activity prevails throughout all the naval bureaus.

The Net Gold in the Treasury.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The net gold in the treasury at the close of business Friday amounted to $123,346,288. The net gain at the New York subtreasury amounted to $253,700. The withdrawals were $7,100 in coin and $25,900 in bars.

Adm. Ramsay's Report.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The annual report of Adm. F. M. Ramsey, chief of the bureau of navigation, shows that during the past year the cruisers and battleships Indiana, Massachusetts, Oregon, Texas, Boston, Monadnock, Terror, Monongahela and Adams were commissioned for service.

At the close of the fiscal year 31 per cent. of the enlisted men in the navy were serving under continuous service. More than 72 per cent. of the enlisted men were American citizens, and more than 82 per cent. of the apprentice boys were American born.

FIERCE BATTLE.

It is Believed That Gens. Weyler and Maceo's Forces Have Met.

The Insurgent Army is Well Located in the Hills and Pour a Hot Fire Into the Spanish Troops—The Spaniards Make a Most Desperate Attack.

New York, Nov. 14.—A Jacksonville, Fla., special says:

Cipher dispatches just received report a fierce battle in progress in Pinar Del Rio. It is believed that Maceo and Weyler have met.

The reports of fire arms have been almost incessantly heard for several hours. No details of the engagement are given other than the statement that one of the most decisive engagements fought since Cuba struck her first blow for freedom is being waged.

The dispatch adds: "Insurgent forces are well located in the hills and are pouring a hot fire into the Spanish troops, which have repeatedly been driven back in attempts to capture the Cuban stronghold. The insurgents have the advantage of position, being at a great elevation, but the Spaniards are making a most desperate attack.

"From a distance it looks as if several towns are in flames. The sky is lighted up by the constant fire of artillery.

"Whether or not Maceo himself is directing the insurgents' tactics, can not at this time be learned. An outcome of the engagement would be impossible to predict, for, although both sides are fighting as if they intended to stick to it until the last man falls, there is no doubt that the hills of Pinar Del Rio will be dyed with blood before either side claims a victory."

The dispatch then describes the tactics of the Spanish forces as endeavoring to surround each elevation separately in order to gain ground of vantage, but adds that the insurgent maneuvers in each case are believed to have prevented such results.

THE PRESIDENT

Does Not Anticipate Any Trouble With Spain Over the Cuban Situation.

Washington, Nov. 16.—Many statements respecting the attitude of the administration on the Cuban question have been circulated during the past week and various articles of a conflicting character have been distributed throughout the country. The president has said that he does not anticipate any trouble with Spain over the Cuban situation and that there is no intention to change the policy respecting the matter which was laid down by the administration a year ago.

In addition to this members of the cabinet have stated that the Cuban matter would be left for the new administration to settle. While following such a course, the facts warrant the statement that should an emergency arise requiring decisive action the government will be found keenly alive to the requirements of the occasion and amply provided for any emergency which may be encountered. Measures of a precautionary character have been taken to meet any critical condition which may arise, in other words, the United States is judiciously continuing the work of strengthening its fortifications and works of defense, which have been in progress for several years and will thereby be prepared to change its policy should it be deemed advisable so to do. Investigation proves that army officers along the Atlantic coast are pushing the work in their several departments with all possible dispatch under orders to have certain classes of heavy ordnance ready for use at as early a day as this. Every precaution for secrecy has been taken, and officers located at the navy yards decline to discuss their unusual activity. While Secretary Lamont says he is trying to make some return in finished works of defense for the great expenditures which have been made in that direction there is no doubt that the maxim "in time of peace prepare for war" has been passed along the line. No well informed official anticipates trouble, but as one of them said Sunday night, "It is like a fire drill on board ship. We want to know that everybody would be ready if a fire should break out."

PATRIOTIC OUTBURST

In Spain Over the New Loan Issued by the Government.

London, Nov. 16.—The Daily News Monday publishes a dispatch from Paris detailing a patriotic outburst in Spain which is manifesting itself in an eager desire to subscribe to the new loan issued by the government. Ladies are selling their jewelry in order to raise money to help the government, while the bishops are promising to devote the gold and silver plate belonging to the church to the same object. Brokers in Madrid have undertaken to dispose of scrip to the amount of 4,000,000 pounds. So great is the popular desire to take part of the loan that the Bank of Spain and the Bank of Borcelona were opened to-day (Sunday) in order to receive subscriptions.

Ohio's Official Vote.

Columbus, O., Nov. 16.—Clarence M. Smith, the statistician of the secretary of state's office, in charge of the tabulation of the official returns, gives out the vote for the first elector on each electoral ticket, as follows: McKinley 525,989, Bryan 474,880, populist 2,615, prohibition 5,067, national party 2,716, national democrat 1,857, social-labor 1,167. McKinley's plurality 51,109, McKinley's majority 37,687.

A $100,000 Fire at Elberton, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 16.—A special from Elberton, Ga., says fire there Sunday morning destroyed $100,000 worth of property. It started in the sample room of the Elberton Cotton and Compress Co. on McIntosh street, and spread in both directions up and down the street.

The Totals in Georgia.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 16.—The canvassing of the vote cast for presidential electors in Georgia has been concluded and showed the following totals: Bryan, 94,232; Palmer, 2,708; McKinley, 60,191.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Nov. 18, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time	$1.00
Each additional time	.25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch	.50
☞Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered	$5.00.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - - Publisher.

Neighborhood News.

Limaburg.

The health of our community is good.

A good crop of Irish potatoes have been dug.

Everett Dixon has two fresh milch cows for sale.

Husking corn is the order of the day in this vicinity.

Some of the boys are returning from their trip up Salt river.

The young people were given a delightful party at Chas. Youell's, last Saturday night.

Boys, get your cow bells and tin horns in tune, two or three weddings are slated for an early date.

Richard Beemon and wife and Harry Lewis Tanner and family were guests of James W. Utz, last Sunday. Besides a fine dinner, they were treated to some delicious watermelon which was enjoyed.

Richwood.

We will have a wedding to report in a few days.

Mrs. Reuben Conner has returned from Durham, N. C.

Miss Mattie Allen is in Covington, visiting her sister, Mrs. J. B. Thornton.

Frank Youell has moved into the Gaines Robinson house near Kensington.

Mrs. Charley Allen, of Big Bone, is visiting her father, Mr. Cumberland Wilson.

John Matson has returned to the city after spending the summer at his country home near Kensington.

Mr. and Mrs. Green C. Fields rejoice over the arrival of a new son—Brice Fleming Fields.

The many friends of Geo. M. Southgate formerly of Boone county, will be pleased to hear that he was elected County Clerk of Pottawattomie county, Oklahoma. Mr. Southgate ran on the Democratic ticket and received a handsome majority over his Republican and Populist opponents.

Hathaway.

Many of the farmers have been very busy stripping tobacco.

Jessie, little son of Oscar Sullivan, of Waterloo, was buried at Big Bone a few days since.

Eddie Ryle and wife, of Kenton Co., visited friends and relatives in this neighborhood, recently.

B. D. Adams and wife entertained quite a number of friends in honor of Misses Riley and Hoffman, of Kenton county.

The party at Wm. Phillip's was the social event of the season. A very large crowd of young people were entertained, dancing being the principal amusement. The Hathaway and Waterloo band furnished the music.

Mr. Richard Clements celebrated his 64th birthday on the 5th inst. Among those who enjoyed the occasion with Mr. Clements were Eddie Ryle and family, Eugene Clements and family, H. C. Presser and family, Mrs. Emily Presser, B. D. Adams and wife and Misses Ryle and Hoffman. An excellent dinner was one of the features of the occasion.

Erlanger.

E. L. Garvey has gone to his Florida ranch to reside in the future.

John Oliver has erected his mill on the Stephenson property and blew the first whistle Saturday morning.

Good Faith Lodge, No. 95 F. & A. M. conferred the Master's degree on Bro. Geo. Rost, after which a banquet was served.

Acklin Riggs, supervisor of the county roads, accepted the proposition of the committee to pay $2 and he to employ his own laborers.

LaFayette Lodge K. of P. will give their first reception next Friday evening at their Castle Hall. All their friends and the public are invited.

Two marriages in one week in this town shows that business is improving. Frank Rigler was married to Miss Roth, of Newport, and Richard Alpin to Miss Mary Myers.

The Erlanger Improvement Association organized at Konnerding's Hall by electing the following officers: President, Louis Morelli; Vice-President, N. Flemming; Sect'y, Frank Winteroerger; Treas., Geo. Meuday. Executive committee, Mat Heuerkamp, John S. Zumbiel, Geo. C. Bloss, Alonzo Victor and Isadore Hagen. The object of the association is the advancement and incorporation of Erlanger.

Bellevue.

The excitement of the campaign is waning and the mist is clearing away. Democrats of this district unanimously rejoice over the defeat of Billy B. and also rejoice to know that a majority in the 7th district have not yet bowed the knee to Baal.

Salathiel Beemon and wife passed the 53d anniversary of their wedding on the 7th inst.

John Crigler and Jeff Cloud from the north end, made a hasty trip to this community on the 12th inst.

Permelia Corbin has a citron which was harvested, Sept. 1895, and is in a perfect state of preservation.

Rev. Hill, of Williamstown, and the pastor are conducting a very interesting meeting at the Baptist church. There have been four additions:—Walter Marshall and wife, Miss Myrtle Corbin and Dr. Ryle.

Joseph Maurer & Sons shipped fifteen dozen clothes baskets on the 16th.

J. T. Marshall was the only teacher of this part of the county who observed Arbor Day.

Jas. Clutterbuck and wife, of Burlington, attended church, last Sunday.

O. Snyder and wife were guests of M. J. Corbin and wife, Sunday.

Constance.

Rev. Moore, of Cummingsville, Ohio, preached at the Christian church, last Sunday night.

Wm. Price and Wm. Reeves have returned from their trip to New Orleans.

T. B. Masters paied an election bet by wheeling Arthur Peno in a wheelbarrow.

Mr. Corry Utz married Miss Augusta Zurella, last Wednesday. We wish them much joy.

Chas. Benzero and brother are building a new factory at Trautman's Station, opposite here.

The boys have had a number of clay pigeon shooting matches here. Wm. Unglesby won first prize.

A novelty of a steamboat passed here last week. It had four wheels, two on a side.

Harrison Clore has a number of hands at work putting metal on the pike and cleaning out the ditches.

J. J. Rucker's new store house presents a handsome appearance. We need a few more men like John to build up our town.

Mrs. Minnie Prable, one of our oldest citizens, died last Wednesday. She was 69 years old, a faithful wife and a good mother. Her remains were buried in the Constance cemetery, last Friday.

There has been quite a number of persons robbed lately. Spencer Tanner lost $60; J. C. Hankins a barrel of flour; Mc. Anderson, a hog; Mrs. Murat a lot of clothes.

Verona.

The Verona Educational Association will meet at the Town Hall, Nov 28th, 1896, at 9:30 a. m.—session till 3 p. m. All friends of education are cordially invited to attend.

PROGRAM:

Song—"Our Public School."
Welcome Address—J. H. Craven.
Response—A. C. Collins.
Piano Solo—Lulu Powers.
Primary Work—Lizzie Kipp, Annie Wolfe.
Calisthenics—Lillie Rouse.
Language as Spoken by the Pupils—Wm. Gaines, Lizzie Rogers.
Cornet Duette—J. W. Bagby, Taylor Grubbs.
Ventillation—Dr. R. L. Finnell.
"The Teacher's Dream"—Bessie Callahan.
Address—D. E. Castleman.
Noon recess—Basket dinner at Public School Building.
Song—"Our American School."
Physiological Anatomy of the Heart—Dr. B. K. Menifee.
Vocal Duette—J. W. Bagby, Taylor Grubbs.
Should other than the Common Branches be taught?—W. E. Cook, Nannie Youell.
"Opening Exercises"—N. E. Hamilton.
Piano Solo—Miss Pfeifler.
School Literature—Mrs. S. H. Myers, Prof. Pryor.
"Home Sweet Home"—Cornet.

North bound train No. 6, due at Verona 5:15 p. m., will stop for the benefit of the Association.

Rabbit Hash.

Mrs. J. R. Stephens is quite sick.

Our new school house is near completion.

R. H. Stephens and wife have gone to housekeeping.

Miss Maud Ryle was at home a few days from Florence, last week.

Mr. T. C. S. Ryle has bought R. R. Hager's farm in East Bend.

Prof. B. W. Nelson, of the Petersburg schools, was in town, Sunday.

Potatoes 12½ cents; corn 18 cents, and prosperity is deluging the country.

Protracted meeting is being conducted at the Methodist church by the pastor.

Mr. Z. T. Kelly presented the new K. of P. hall with a new stove. Many thanks.

We hope L. J. Calvert will not forget to send us a piece of "cake" when the proper time arrives.

It is hard to tell which is the most jubilant over the election O. F. Craig or our friend, Mart Staley.

The young folks are preparing to give a dramatic entertainment at the K. P. hall during the holidays.

Wheat never looked better at this time of year in this neighborhood, so say the oldest farmers.

Miss Kate Kirtley has built a neat new house on her farm in East Bend and moved to it last week.

Col. J. M. Moody was in town last Tuesday, selling first-class beef. He says he is still in the matrimonial market.

Owing to the inclement weather only a few persons from here attended the jollification at Rising Sun, last Tuesday night.

There are several prospective candidates for county offices in this community, who will announce themselves when the proper time comes.

Rising Sun is now connected by telephone with the outside world, something that Burlington needs, and needs badly, too. [You are correct—Ed.]

A private letter from Mrs. Josie Piatt, at Sherman, Texas, says she is doing well and enjoying good health. She has a host of friends who are glad to hear it.

The river is rising again, but our coal yard is full of coal, of which no more is needed at present. A great deal of coal has passed here this week for southern markets

Farmers are busy gathering the largest crop of corn that was ever raised in this vicinity. Take it all over, the neighborhood will average 50 bushels per acre, and some fields will make 75 and 80 bushels per acre.

All of our factories have started up since the wave of prosperity struck us, and no more loafers will be seen around the croquet ground for three or four months, and our wise men are busy making a cabinet for McKinley.

The election is a thing of the past, and confidence and prosperity abound on every hand. We met our friend, Ed Parsons, wreathed in smiles, and asked him why so happy. His answer was, "McKinley is elected and I have been living on confidence and turnips ever since.

Since the election we never saw things quieter than they are now. No news of any description, and it is almost impossible to get a pleasant smile or civil answer, much less any news, but we will try and send something every week, be it much or little. Please save us about two columns Thanksgiving to report those two weddings that are so much talked about.

Utzinger.

Turkeys are being engaged at 6 cents per pound.

Mrs. Morgan Tolin fell and dislocated her arm at the elbow.

1900—For President, W. J. Bryan and Claud Mathews, of Indiana.

Mrs. Chas. A. Gaines has been very sick, but is better at this writing.

We can't live on confidence, and that is all the Republicans have promised.

Evan Settle has got old Billy Breckinridge's hide nailed on the barn door.

The Str. Workum blew out her cylender head on her down trip, Tuesday.

Frank Cason has rented his farm out and will move to Ludlow in a few days.

The "Salt River" trip went pretty hard with some of the boys around Petersburg.

A. E Chambers is at home after six months continued service in the Revenue service.

W. J. Casey, of Petersburg, who has been sick for some time, is able to walk down in town.

There are several bad mud holes in the Ashbyfork road near Fred Pfalzgraf's residence.

Hubert Cox says he wouldn't believe that Bryan was defeated till he saw it in the RECORDER.

Thirteen voters stayed at home in the Petersburg precinct—seve[illegible] Republicans and six Democrats.

Ed Black, son of John Bl[illegible] shot himself through the hand, last Tuesday, making a very painful wound.

Little Jennie Leonard is in a pitiable condition, suffering from nervous prostration. She was such a bright child.

W. D. Cropper says he is going to send in his resignation as postmaster at this place. Jonas Stephens is likely to be his successor.

Sam Hensley has built a pond 125 ft. long and 60 ft. wide, and covered the bottom with large rock. He is going to stock it with bass.

Peter Hartman has been offered $400 for one acre of ground near the Lawrenceburg ferry. A city man wants to start a summer resort

Miss Julia Smith gave the young people a pumpkin pie party, last Saturday night. A number of young ladies and gents from Petersburg attended.

Spent Sunday with Mr. Thos. Baker, of Hartford, Ind. Wheat in the Laughery bottoms looks fine and all the farmers have a fine stand of timothy.

Sebe Jones and Miss Rosa Thompson both of this vicinity, were married in Lawrenceburg, last Wednesday. May happiness and prosperity be their lot.

A man and his wife in Aurora, Ind., parted on account of the presidential election. The wife said no dutiful husband would vote for a single gold standard.

Young Balsley, the operator at the Big Four depot in Lawrenceburg, sat on the comb of Jake Rief's house four hours bare headed and barefooted to pay an election bet.

The remains of James Kelly, who was killed in a coal mine in Illinois, were buried in the Petersburg cemetery, last Saturday evening. A Mr. Dean, of Illinois, accompanied them here.

Ed Botts, of Bellevue, precinct was in town, last Wednesday night. Ed says he would accept a position under McKinley's administration. He will go after the Chinese Inspector's office.

It is said that F. C. Laws has brought suit against the Indianapolis Street Railway Co., for damages for being knocked from one of the Company's cars and badly injured some time since.

Hon. N. S. Walton went out to the barn the other morning to shoot a chicken for dinner. He saw a big fat one sitting on a rail, and took aim and fired. When he went to get his chicken he found that he had killed two other chickens and a big turkey.

We are all citizens of a common country, and we have again given convincing proof of the fact that we all desire and intend to live together in peace and harmony without regard to political differences, which divide us during a campaign, but which are not permitted to cause any serious friction or bitterness or to interfere with our relations with each other in our business and social life. However, we may feel about the result of the election, we all can unite in self congratulation upon the manner in which the American people demeaned themselves during the most heated and exciting political contest witnessed for more than a generation.

Walton.

Mr. Joe Reed will, this week, give two musical and elocutionary entertainments at the Opera House, on the nights of Nov. 20th and 21st. It is useless to say anything of these as Mr. Reed has secured the very best home talent which will be sandwiched as it were by artists of note from the Academy of music, Cinnti, O.

Mrs. Edward P. Holden gave a large dinner party on last Friday in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. V. America Miller, of Palm Springs, Fla. The dinner was a genuine old fashioned Kentucky one, and needs neither description nor comment, further than to say it was greatly enjoyed by all present, among whom were the following: Mr. and Mrs Thos. J. Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Northcutt, Mrs. Rosa Byland, Mrs. James Holder, Mr. Charles Lermond, Mrs. Emma Lermond, Mrs. Walter Wilson, Mr. Taylor Crowe, Mrs. Dr. Wilson (and Gladys of course) Miss Effe Lermond, H. C. Holder and "yours truly."

Pat'k Feerock's boys and the hired man, Hammer, went out coon hunting one night last week, and their dogs soon "treed" up a small sappling in Burke's woods. They could see what they took to be a very large coon in the top of the tree, and the German started to climb up and shake it down, when an ominous growl caused him to come down. The loud shouting of the lads caused the animal to make a fearful spring, not to the ground, but to another tree some 25 or 30 feet off, and from that to another and another and so on until it had crossed the woods. Its extraordinary size and agility made the hunters apprehensive, and they went to the nearest house and procured a gun, when one of the boys struck a light, while the other aimed for the plainly seen glaring eyes of the animal. A lucky shot killed it out right, and then they did not know what the game was. Hammer said it was a lynk (lynx), but it was a huge wildcat, 3 feet 3 inches from tip to tip; another has been heard sending forth its piercing screams from the same woods. It is evidently the mate of the one killed, and although the boys have been talking of going after it, they don't seem to be in a hurry about it since they have learned the nature of the beast with claws 2½ inches long. It is thought one of this pair is what gave Oscar Beach the scare of his life a short time ago, when he was out late. The skin will be mounted and exhibited in the window of Sam Hind's drug store, Feerock having promised it to him on Saturday. Farmers have been missing poultry and young farm animals for some time and couldn't account for their disappearance. The wildcat killed could have carried a good sized pig very easily.

Walton Academy now has 72 pupils enrolled and the teachers are able to say (and their statements are corroborated by its patrons) that they are gratified with the zeal and fidelity shown by those under their charge. The following "Roll of Honor" does not include all who are working faithfully and earnestly, mentioning only those who have attained the highest per centage in their studies: Emma Ambrose, Mabel Bagby, Gertrude Curley, Alice Dixon, Blanche Dyas, Lucy Field, Myrtle Wade, Louise Green, Lena Hedges, Lucille Hind, Madge Holder, Anna Hudson, Effie Lermond, Lida Percival, Mary Percival, Walter Rouse, Mary Rouse, Lydia Taylor, Eleanor Walsh, Sidney Ambrose, Leslie Jones, Rob Byland, Willie Browning, Raymond Byland, Chas. Chambers, Jacob Cleek, Harvey Diers, Watson Dyas, Everett Dixon, Ralph Edwards, Fleming Hedges, Walter Herndon, Leon Pryor, Wayne Hind, John Q. Roberts, Thos. Stevens, Roy Stamler, Ernest McElroy, Edna Ransler, Beulah Rich, May Smith, Lydia Taylor and Hattie Taylor.

Petersburg.

On her down river trip, last Tuesday, the Workum became disabled and had to be towed to the city by the John Mackey. She had a pretty big load all the same.

Our "war hoss" has quit politics and turned hunter. He got four rabbits last Friday—so he said.

Mr. H. P. Crisler was in town Saturday using a cane—something very unnatural for him. He says neither he nor aunt Liz has any teeth, but he is well supplied with boils.

Snelling & Brooks had lots of grinding Saturday. The new corn is dry enough to grind in large quantities.

The wife of Henry Drew, of Dillsboro, Ind., died recently and left three little boys. The widow Drew, of this place, Henry's mother, will keep house for him.

Hog killing is one of the subjects of conversation at present. There will be a great many hogs killed even in town, this season. Business will begin pretty soon.

The household effects of the late Noah Sebree, will be sold Saturday the 21st, commencing at 2 o'clock p. m., under the supervision of administrator Early.

Our school is in good running order again, after the suspension of two weeks on account of sickness.

Earl Whiting can lay claim to the prettiest little house in town.

Dr. Tilly is having a barn built on the George Theetge property.

James Jarrell and wife visited his mother Sunday. She has been quite poorly but is better now. Dick Hensley her son-in-law is recovering slowly from a sick spell.

Marion Bruce will move to the John Rucker place near here

Claud Holton received serious injuries by a fall from his horse. He is improving nicely.

Tom Hines has been complaining of late, but is about well again.

Tom Randall has the whooping cough.

Steve and Jim Burns have finished gathering a very fine crop of corn on the Wingate place out on the Woolper pike.

Rev. Mr. Leslie Early had a fine congregation at the Christian church Sunday night.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

Large Vote Polled—Free Turnpikes Won—New Hotel—A Warning to Boone and Gallatin, and the Courier-Journal Skinned.

[News]

3582 votes were cast in the Democratic primary in Owen.

Free turnpikes ran a little better than free silver in Owen. Out of a total vote of 3358 cast on the question, free turnpikes received 2870 to 488 against.

Owenton is to have a new three-story hotel at once. Mr. John Woods and other parties interested with him will begin the erection of a $10,000 house on the site of the old Virginia House.

A mistaken idea seems to obtain abroad that the late primary was held in the same room as the general election. The fact is that they were held in different places over one-hundred yards apart and were conducted by a different set of officers.

Boone and Gallatin counties did very well in the way of casting a Democratic vote for Bryan and Owen is proud of them; but she serves notice now that she cast 3,387 votes for Bryan herself, and will have 17 votes in the State convention and 3,600 in a primary (as the ballots were short this year and all did not get to vote), and she does not care what the majority of the District Committee may do in regard to selecting the next State Senator.

The liars and blackguards in command of the Courier-Journal, not satisfied with their filthy work done previous to the election, with a contemptible intimation that the Democracy of Owen had illegally added to Bryan's vote, and had held back returns. That which aggravates the meanness of the insinuation is that at the time the article was written, they held a message from their correspondent at Owenton, giving the figures, which message was dispatched them on Tuesday night of the election, and was never published. The managers, editors and all connected with the sheet, are liars and blackguards and have as little regard for decency, as any gang of pirates or ship scuttlers that ever infested the seas. As a newspaper it is a stench in the nostrils of intelligent men.

Isn't It Reasonable?

We maintain that GOOD CLOTHING CAN BE BOUGHT BOR LESS MONEY at Our Store than elsewhere in this vicinity. Why do we say so? Because we know it to be a fact that

Our EXPENSES ARE THE LOWEST. BUYING IS THE CLOSEST. And

WE ARE SATISFIED WITH THE SMALLEST PROFITS.

You can not get something for nothing anyanywhere, but you can get get value for your money at

ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS

S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

STEPHENS & SCALES,

—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN—

Hardware, Cutlery, and Agricultural Implements,

Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Steel Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,

BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE

AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.

No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.

Try the PETERSBURG FLOUR MILL.

FLOUR exchanged for WHEAT at all times and guaranteed. Call and get my prices on wheat. Also have on hand at all times

Mill Feed OF ALL KINDS,

AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

GOOD COAL IN THE YARD AT ALL TIMES,

☞Price, 10 cents per Bushel.☜

sept-24 BEN BELDEN, Petersburg, Ky.

BEST GOODS! LIVING PRICES!

Hardware,
Farm Machinery,
Fine Vehicles,
Harness.

HARRIS FITCH, Corner HIGH AND SHORT STREETS,

LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

J. J. GEISEN,

HATTER AND GENT'S FURNISHING GOODS,

615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.

Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVFRY COMPANY.

62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,

E. H. BAKER, Proprietor

(o)

Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.

Telephone 580.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.

Prices Reasonable.

F. PIEPER,

Optician and Jeweler,

Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to

We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.

616 Madison Ave, - - COVINGTON, KY.

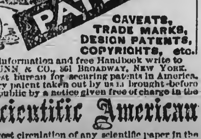
KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.

[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A.M.			A.M.	P. M
d 4:50	z9:13	Ar Walton	Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8.52	Ar Williamstown	Lv	8:32
3:48	8.28	Ar Corinth	Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar Sadieville	Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar Georgetown	Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv Frankfort	Ar	11:30	7:25

z Daily. d Except Sunday.

C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.



Scientific American Agency for

PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Take Your COUNTY PAPER.

Livery Stable.

I am now fully equipped for taking of care Horses and Buggies, and keep

GOOD RIGS FOR HIRE

at reasonable rates.

W. A. CRIGLER,
Bromley, Ky.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Local News.

NOTICE—Members of Union Democratic Club will meet at the town hall, Union, Ky., Saturday, Nov. 21st, 1896, at 7 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of effecting a permanent organization. All Democrats and bimetallists are invited to take part. M. J. CROUCH, Pres.

McKnight is out of humor.

Many persons have bad colds.

Next Thursday is thanksgiving.

Covington is the political storm center in this district.

There is a great deal of good reading matter in this issue.

J. M. Lassing's youngest child has been quite sick of flux.

You can shoot quails now without violating the game law.

The bottom dropped out of the rabbit trade here, last week.

To-morrow, Thursday, is the sale of the personal property of L. E. Clore.

Some body will pronounce this unhealthy weather, if it lasts much longer.

Boone will be entitled to 12 delegates in the next Democratic State Convention.

Monday was Arbor Day. Some of the schools in the county observed it as a holiday.

If you want the RECORDER from now until January 1, 1898, now is the time to subscribe.

F. P. Walton has had a new roof put on a portion of his wife's large house in Burlington.

George Blyth sold, last week, three horses to parties who will ship them to Atlanta, Georgia.

Woodcocks are more numerous than common this fall. Several have been killed in this vicinity.

The County Clerk has prepared the list of transfers from this county for the State Board of Equalization.

It is seldom that pastures are as good as they are at this time of year. The grass has been growing all the fall.

Erlanger should not let the business boom about which so much is being said run away from its electric railway.

Lost, strayed or gone somewhere—James L. Clore. He has not been seen about his accustomed haunts since the election.

That shower of stars predicted for last Saturday night, did not come to time. The astronomers were off in their calculations.

Assessor Brady is getting along nicely with his official duties, the remainder of his work now being confined to the north end of the county.

You, who have not paid your taxes for 1896, would better attend to it and avoid the penalty which will be added on the first day of next month.

There are generally a good many people from different parts of the county in Burlington every Monday, and last Monday was no exception to the rule.

Dr. Furnish bought of Job Morrison, one of the smallest and frailest looking buggies that ever struck the town. The builder claims that it will prove a lasting vehicle.

Jim Burke, the negro who killed Peter Shea, of Owen county, was tried in the Owen Circuit Court, last Thursday, and his punishment fixed at confinement in the penitentiary for life.

NOTICE—Those owing school tax in Districts Nos. 11 and 46 must come forward at once and pay or I will be compelled to advertise and sell property to satisfy same. C. C. ROBSRTS, S. B. C.

Henry C. Hafer and Miss Ida L. Tanner, of Hebron, were married by Rev. H. Max Lentz, at his residence near Florence, last Wednesday. The bride and groom have the best wishes of many friends.

In its "Possible and Probable" column the Louisville Baptist Enquirer says that Rev. J. S. Kirtley, of St. Louis, has accepted a call to the second church of Little Rock. This is said to be the best church in the State.

Mr. Oscar Gaines went out last Saturday to buy forty turkeys for as many thanskgiving customers in the city. He found a great many of the fowls, but the owners declined to sell them, having decided to hold them for the holiday market.

Before being released, last Wednesday, Jack Horton gave the jail a thorough scrubbing. He said he wanted to leave the institution in good condition. The jail now has two inmates, each awaiting the action of the next grand jury.

One of our local nimrods made rather a remarkable record the other day. He shot at five rabbits, killed one, gave away three and had one left. How he did this is his own secret, but some of the boys with him say their rabbits did not count out right.

A large portion of the poll tax levied for school purposes in district No. 1 remains unpaid, and the trustees take this method of informing those who are delinquent that they must pay at once or the collection of the tax will be enforced.

Spencer Tanner has detectives on the lookout for the fellow who stole his money a few days since. The thief is named Whayland, and had been working for Mr. Tanner but a few days when he stole the money, $60. It was taken from a stand drawer.

The Executive Board of the North Bend Association will hold its quarterly session with the church at Burlington, Friday, Nov. 27th at 10 a. m. It is important that all the churches collect and report funds at that meeting.

B. F. SWINDLER, Sect'y. & Treas.

White Caps have made their appearance in Covington, the victims they raided last Saturday night being a man and woman of questionable characters. The White Caps gave the their subjects a severe whipping with switches.

Independence, the county seat of Kenton county, was visited by a very destructive fire at four o'clock, last Sunday morning. Eight houses were consumed, entailing a loss of about $8,000 with small insurance. Some think the fire was the work of an incendiary.

S. W. Tolin is now sole owner of the Lawrenceburg ferry, and will put in a new boat as soon as he can have it built. Job Morrison, of Petersburg, was here last Thursday to see Mr. Tolin in regard to building the boat, and the work on the new craft will begin at an early date.

Our Hon. A. S. Berry, owing to the abuse of the Louisville and other boltocratic papers during the recent campaign has become so popular that he is in constant receipt of letters from prominent Democrats in all parts of the State requesting him to be the next candidate of the party for Governor.—State Journal.

J. W. Keffer, of near Sugar Creek, has a peach tree that has a fine second crop of fruit, of good size, well flavored, and large enough to eat, being about the size of an ordinary apricot. The year has been wonderfully prolific for a second crop of nearly everything, and some of the second crop apples were very large and finely developed.—Warsaw Independent.

About the first business the County Clerk was called on to transact, last Monday, was to issue a license to Mr. Wood L. Stephens, of Hathaway, to marry Miss Edna L. Ryle, daughter of Esq. Wade H. Ryle, of the Waterloo neighborhood. The matrimonial rites will be solemnized to-day at the residence of the bride's brother-in-law, Mr. A. J. Barker, here in Burlington.

A Kentucky farmer and his wife owned a hog and wanted to weigh it. The man weighed 135 pounds and the woman 100 pounds. They put a board across the fence so that when they sat down upon the ends it exactly balanced. Then they changed places, his wife taking the pig in her lap, just balancing the board again. What was the weight of the hog? Send in your answer.

At one time, last Monday, there were five old rebel soldiers in the county clerk's office. B. W. Adams, the county clerk; George L. Smith, of Hathaway; Clinton Gaines and Bruce Henry, of Bullittsville, and Assessor R. A. Brady. These old soldiers are all in good health, and active business men, none of them being in a physical condition that would entitle them to pensions were they permitted to draw one, the five averaging at least 200 lbs. Henry being the dwarf.

Last Saturday Mrs. Minerva White was eating chicken, when some part of the food lodged in her throat. It annoyed her considerable and she concluded that it was a bone. Sunday morning Dr. Smith was called in and made an examination, but did not remove the obstruction, not having the necessary instrument. Monday morning Dr. Smith accompanied by Dr. Furnish visited Mrs. White, and being prepared for the operation they relieved her by forcing the obstruction into her stomach. Dr. Smith is of the opinion that it was some substance other than a bone that caused the trouble.

Last week two farmers, who live not far from Burlington, drove their fat hogs to Erlanger, from which place they intended to ship them by rail to the city. At Erlanger the hogs were all put in the same pen. It was after dark when the porkers were loaded and started to the city to be put on the market next morning. When the hogs were unloaded at the stockyards one of the shippers was surprised to find that he had not a single hog in the lot. Returning to Erlanger he found his hogs all safe and sound in the pen where they were put the day before. The hogs, five in number, had separated from the other 45, and piled up in one corner of the lot, and were overlooked when the loading was done. The owner drove them back home, and does not say when he will attempt to ship them again.

PERSONAL MENTION.

B. W. Adams, J. F. Blyth and Eddie McKim have gone down to the Beaver and Verona neighborhoods, where they expect to kill all the rabbits and quails that inhabit that part of the county. Those wanting rabbits or quails should be ready to call on these hunters as soon as they return. They will be prepared to supply a very large demand.

Geo. R. Berkshire, of Petersburg, was in town last Thursday. He had but little to say in regard to the political event of the 3rd inst., although his friend, Harry Blyth, was rather anxious to ascertain what he thought of the occurrence.

Messrs. A. G. Winston, of Hebron; W. O. B. Kirtley, of North Bend; Geo. L. Smith, of Hathaway; Julius Utzinger, of Utzinger, and Harvey and Spencer Tanner, of Mt. Pleasant, were among the visitors in town Monday.

Last Saturday was pay day with the teachers of the public schools, and quite a number called at Supt. Voshell's office and received checks for their money. The schools in the county are progressing nicely.

Mr. Adam Heist, who has moved to Ludlow, called in last Thursday to have his paper changed to that office. We hope Mr. Heist's past prosperity will continue with him at his new home.

Jacob Tewal and daughter were received into the Baptist church, last Sunday evening. They were formerly members of Ten Mile Baptist church, in Gallatin county.

Vincent Ross and son, of Gallatin county, were in town, last Friday. It is seldom that Mr. Ross visits Burlington now, but in his younger days he came very often.

Hon. John S. Gaunt, of Carrollton, stopped off in Burlington, yesterday, on his return from the salt river trip. He is in excellent health and fine spirits.

Hear that Mr. B. R. Gaines has bought of John W. Berkshire his farm of 149 acres on the pike near Petersburg. It is a tract of fine land.

D. E. Castleman is attending the Gallatin circuit court, which began at Warsaw, last Monday. The docket is said to be small.

Our friend J. M. Utz, of Limaburg, was in town Monday, looking as spry as a youngster of twenty summers.

Prof. Collins and pupils planted half a dozen nice trees in the public school house yard, last Monday.

J. A. Riddell and wife, of the Hebron neighborhood, were visiting relatives in Burlington, Sunday.

Thos. D. Goodridge's friends will be glad to learn that he will be at home again in a few days.

Dr. B. A. Dulaney, of Florence, was shaking hands with friends in Burlington, last Saturday.

Mrs. John Rue, of Lexington, is visiting her brother, Jeff Eddins and wife at this place.

Circuit Clerk Duncan was laid up a day or two, last week, with a severe cold.

Columbus Kirtley and Clinton Gaines of Bullittsville, were in town Monday.

C. C. Craig, of East Bend, was among the visitors in town, last Saturday.

Mr. Bruce Henry, of Bullittsville, called on the type heavers Monday.

C. H. Acra, of Bellevue, was in town yesterday, enroute to Florence.

J. B. Berkshire was calling on friends in Petersburg, last Friday.

Mr. T. P. Crisler, of Bullittsville, was in town last Saturday.

Z. T. Brker, of Big Bone, was in town yesterday.

We have been having glorious weather for a week past. It is very much like the spring time article.

Several hunters from Riverside, Ohio, have gone into camp on Ashby Fork. The citizens down there are sorry to see them.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c.

The two cows that were stolen from the Petersburg herd, about three weeks ago, were found at Riverside, Ohio, last Saturday, where the theives, for some cause, had abandoned them.

FROM CARROLL COUNTY.

Ducks on the River—Arm Broken at Foot Ball—D. B. Wallace for Collector—A Shooting Scrape.

[News]

The river has been full of wild ducks for several days and sportsmen have been slipping up on a few of them.

While playing foot-ball on lower Fourth street Sunday afternoon, Carroll Hendricks, son of J. K. Hendricks, got in the center of a tackle and had his arm broken at the elbow.

The Odd Fellows have decided not to build for the present, but have gone to work to repair the old lodge room in the Howe building, which was damaged by fire several weeks ago.

Carrollton has a small colored population considering the fact that she is a river town, and of the older colored citizens we can say that they are the most polite and law-abiding to be found any place. But, on the contrary, there is a class of the younger element that do not know their places, and nothing short of a severe lesson will ever teach them.

T. B. Mathews, of Boone, is slated for the Collectorship of this district, and it is rumored that it was understood when he withdrew from the Congressional race in favor of Ernst, that he should have it. He is well fitted for the place and a popular gentleman. The friends of D. B. Wallace, the popular editor of the Warsaw Independent, will push him forward as an applicant, and it is possible that the slate may be broken.

On Monday evening last as Alf. Handion was going home he and Charley Miller, gate keeper at the first gate below Prestonville on the Locust pike, had some words about toll and an account Handion had against Miller. The latter became enraged, and going into the house, got his shotgun and fired two shots at Handion, who was but about fifteen paces away, but the latter dodged behind his horse both times, and only one or two of the stray shot struck, which glanced off his head. Hanion had a writ issued for Miller's arrest for shooting with intent to kill.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

Rev. McMillan to Preach for Another Year—The Local Option Law Compromised.

[Courier]

The Williamstown Baptist church has called the Rev. William McMillan, its present excellent pastor, for another year.

The local option law has been completely knocked out as far as Grant county is concerned for the present. After the adverse decision by the Circuit Court on the legality of the election at which the law received a majority of the votes cast it was supposed that the W. C. T. U. would appeal the case to the Court of Appeals. Fearing that the mistakes made in taking the vote would prove fatal even in the upper Court the good ladies back of the movement have compromised the case, agreeing not to appeal the case provided the liquor dealers will pay all of the cost of both sides at this time. The terms of the compromise have been accepted and the case will not be taken up and the liquor law in Grant county stands just the same as if no vote had been taken. Whether or not another vote will be taken at a near date the Courier is not advised.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court.

James H. Lawell, Plaintiff,
vs
J. H. Walton's adm'r, heirs, &c., defts.

Notice is hereby given that I will begin my sittings at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., on the 23rd day of Nov., 1896, to hear proof of claims, under the order of reference in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 10th day of Dec., 1896. All persons having claims against J. H. Walton's estate will present them to me proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

ANNOUCEMENT!

I wish to announce to my friends that I have accepted the agency for

C. ROSS LODWICK,

Undertaker & Embalmer,

3035 W. 6th St. CINCINNATI, O.,

And am prepared to furnish all articles for

FUNERAL PURPOSES

on short notice.

Prompt attention will be paid to FUNNERAL ORDERS and strict attention given to the care of the dead.

Respectfully,

GEO. BLYTH, Burlington, Ky.

Administrat's Notice.

Those indebted to the estate of J. V. West, dec'd., must come forward and settle at once, and those having claims against said estate must present the same at once proven according to law.

E. S. WEST, Adm'r.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

Christopher Barlow's Executor, Plff.
vs
Matilda J. Barlow, &c., Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against Christopher Barlow's estate will present them to me properly proven according to law.

J. B, BERKSHIRE, Master Com.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

E. M. Gaines' Assignee, Plff.
vs.
Farmers & Traders Nat. Bank, Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against E. M. Gaines' estate will present them to me properly proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

16 to 1,

You will always find that we give you 16 ounces to every 1 pound you buy of us.

We Have Cut Down Profits to Suit the Hard Times.

The large amount of Goods we are Selling every day is sufficient proof of the above statement.

Give us a call,

W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,
DEALERS IN
PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,
63 and 65 Pike Street,
Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.
ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.
CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.
27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.
Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDERTAKER EMBALMER,
Corner Pike & Russell Streets,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,
Undertakers AND Embalmers,
OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,
COVINGTON, KY.
CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.
Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL,
WHOLESALE AND
RETAIL GROCER,
GRASS SEED.
Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.
Tom Wilson, Salesman.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.

We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office
And FEED STORE from
708 Madison Avenue
To the Large and more Commodious Quarters
15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.
Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with
GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED
At the Lowest Market Values.
Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,
W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANTS,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.

A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.

UNDERTAKING.
is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. HANKINS.
Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher

BURLINGTON, : : : KY.

NO ROYAL ROAD TO LEARNING.

He who studies hard will rise—
  The earnest are deserving;
Knowledge comes by sturdy knocks,
  Unflinching and unswerving.
Remember, oh, ambitious soul,
  For great achievements burning,
No one ever yet has found
  A royal road to learning.

Brick by brick the walls go up,
  Each fitted and cemented;
Through wearying days of thought
  Machinery is invented.
Are you anxious to achieve?
  For fame and fortune yearning?
Day by day you'll have to build—
  There's no royal road to learning.

In the busy marts of life
  Drones are thrust aside unheeded:
In the dusky mines of thought
  Idlers are not needed.
To some fixed and shining goal
  Ever let your feet be turning;
Elevate your standard high—
  There's no royal road to learning.
—Frank H. Stauffer, in Golden Days.

AN AWKWARD SITUATION.

Ambition to get leading parts induced me to throw up a good position in the north of England to join a manager starting at Salisbury. The business turned out disastrous, the theater closing in a fortnight. I, an utter stranger to the place, with a wife and babe, was taken ill and could hardly stir for days. But for a good-hearted landlady I do not know what would have become of us.

One morning, however, over a melancholy pipe in the grassy hollow below Old Sarum, a ray of hope dawned upon me. In my anxiety and depression one old acquaintance had altogether slipped my memory. This was a Mr. Atherstone, an art dealer of Bond street. He first knew me when I had become assistant to a well-known engraver and watched my progress with great interest. I wrote, telling him the whole story of my misfortune. A prompt reply followed.

Apart from proof of Mr. Atherstone's good feeling toward me his letter contained news that I read with surprise and pleasure—not without reason, as the following extract will show:

"I want you to undertake a commission that requires tact and discrimination. It is a private inquiry, and has to be carried through at Shrewton Court, Merivale, the seat of Lord Mountfalcon, within a few miles of Salisbury. Obtain permission from the owner to see his art treasures. I shall forward to you a jeweled miniature of Lord Mountfalcon, and want you to ascertain if it is a fac-simile of one in the collection. That is the least important part of the inquiry with which I trust you. Find out, at any trouble and with all the skill you can command, the circumstances under which the fac-simile came to be painted. There is a keeper of the galleries; try and make friends with him. Keep the object of your visit as dark as possible."

On again hearing from the art dealer I wrote to Lord Mountfalcon, asking permission to visit his picture galleries. By next post I had the most courteous of replies, acceding to my request. One thing puzzled me—the handwriting of the note signed by the nobleman was familiar. Where I had before seen it I could not recollect. Next morning I went over to Merivale. Shrewton Court, situated in a spacious park, commands many picturesque objects. One is a graceful Ionic temple, half hidden in a mass of firs and white elms. So much did it strike my fancy that I left the pathway to obtain a close view. It was prevented, however, by a singular incident. As I approached, a young girl in white bounded down the marble steps. Her melancholy yet beautiful face, and sunny tresses, decked with pansies and lilies, might have been Ophelia's. To my perplexity she advanced and courtesied three times. Directly afterward a matronly woman ran out of the building. She quietly took the girl by the hand and led her away.

The Shrewton collection would be famous, if only for its Florentine and Venetian masterpieces. While absorbed before them a light footfall aroused me. I turned and saw Lord Mountfalcon. His open, handsome face would have been an excellent letter of introduction anywhere. He said:

"I have seen you before; was it not as Charles Surface at Exeter?"

From theatricals Lord Mountfalcon's talk glided into matters of pictorial art, in which he was evidently an enthusiast. Half an hour passed, and his lordship remarked:

"I must now leave you. On no account miss the small blue galleries. There is a portfolio of Rembrandt etchings that must have special value in the eyes of a practiced draughtsman. Perhaps you might also like to look at my bronzes, cameos and miniatures?"

"I should, my lord," I answered, "very much. Are there many?"

"Yes, a large number," replied his lordship, "very representative, from Hilliard and Cooper to Ross and Moule. My portrait by Moule I regard as fine as anything painted by Cosway. The keeper shall now attend you. He will have orders to let you see anything in which you may have an interest."

When the keeper entered the mystery vanished about the handwriting sent to me the day before.

I had known Mr. Samuel Crackenthorpe, and we were no longer on speaking terms. We had been intimate at Exeter, where he was then a lawyer's clerk and a small money lender. It was not long before I found out he was a mean, wily, intriguing, treacherous fellow, and on discovering him guilty of gross dishonesty I angrily cut his acquaintance. We met, of course, like perfect strangers, but Crackenthorpe's manner was polite, even to obsequiousness.

I had looked at the water colors, bronzes and prints, and now asked for the miniatures. They were contained in three large cases, placed upon a table in the smaller chamber of the blue gallery, and unlocked at my request. Just as I was preparing to examine the works of art a footman entered and informed me it was his master's wish I should take luncheon. I could either sit down with Mr. Crackenthorpe or be attended separately. But I excused myself on the score of wanting to leave almost immediately, intending to resume my visit next day. Left alone, I examined several of the miniatures. At last I unhooked the Mountfalcon picture. It represented the nobleman in court dress. I satisfied myself on every point. After the closest scrutiny I was convinced the miniature I carried in my breast coat pocket differed in nothing from the original. It was perfect in similarity of jewels, arms and setting. It struck me that I would compare the pictures.

The light being less strong in the northern than southern division of the gallery, I entered the brighter chamber. There I looked at the miniatures side by side. I was aghast for a moment lest they should seem displaced. To tell which from which should have been impossible. Putting the copy in my pocket, I returned, placing the original on a small table near the cases. Some feeling impelled me to again visit the south apartment, where I once more examined every point in the picture Mr. Atherstone had sent. My all-absorbing thought was to get a clew to the history of that picture. My meditation was broken by a faint, sigh-like sound from the inner apartment. I looked around; it was perfectly solitary and silent. But on returning to replace Lord Mountfalcon's miniature, it had disappeared.

My feelings can be conceived. I searched in vain. Everything else had been untouched. Amid bewilderment, a terrible idea occurred to me. I knew Crackenthorpe's malevolent nature. Had he, I thought, found an opportunity to pay off a grudge against me? It was time, however, to meet the difficulty. Stating what had happened, I requested Crackenthorpe to at once summon his master, if at hand.

Lord Mountfalcon listened to my statement with the greatest calmness and patience. In reply, he said most likely I must have inadvertently dropped the picture among the prints or other things on the tables. The keeper and a footman were then ordered to make a search through everything. It was perfectly fruitless. The nobleman, whose eyes had never left me, said:

"What explanation have you? I learn that you have been alone with the works of art more than half an hour, and during that time no one has been near the gallery."

"It is a matter of opinion, my lord," I returned, looking hard at the keeper; "a noise I heard warrants my belief that someone secretly did enter."

"Do you want to throw suspicion on me?" exclaimed Crackenthorpe. "It would not be the first time you have falsely charged me with dishonesty."

The nobleman waved his hand and said to me:

"It is very painful to me, but I have no alternative. You must be searched."

"Forbear, my lord," I calmly replied; "spare me such humiliation."

"Hear me for a moment only," cried the keeper. "I assure you he is a man of disreputable character," and creeping closer to me, Crackenthorpe struck my breast pocket and hissed out: "What have you there?"

I knew full well, heaven knows, but what could I do?

"I have no property of Lord Mountfalcon's," I said, "and Mr. Crackenthorpe knows that perfectly well."

"Disprove his charge, then, by producing what your pocket contains," was the answer. "I can have no more delay. If you again refuse what is demanded one of my servants must ride off to Salisbury for a constable."

Surveying the whole question, I answered:

"Allow me a private interview, Lord Mountfalcon, and I can give you such an explanation that must remove all suspicion."

What the nobleman's answer might have been I know not. At the moment a wild, mocking cry came from the garden.

"What is that?" exclaimed Lord Mountfalcon, anxiously; "surely I know the sound."

In an instant he had quitted the gallery. Soon confused voices, intermingled with the angry tones of the master of the mansion, arose in the corridor. Something unusual had taken place. In a few minutes Lord Mountfalcon, strangely pale, reentered and laid the missing miniature on the table. He said to me, with extended hand:

"I deeply regret we have caused you so much anxiety. Hear my explanation. A niece of mine, unfortunately of weak intellect, gained admission in some inexplicable manner to the gallery. The noise you heard doubtless came from her entrance or departure. A gardener observed her unattended, and following the young lady saw her cast something into the rosary. It was the portrait taken from the table where you had deposited it. I deeply regret you should have been placed in such an awkward situation."

I bowed and prepared to depart. Lord Mountfalcon would not hear of it, stating he wished to see me in private.

"By the way," he added to Crackenthorpe, "it is a mystery to me how Lady Hester could have obtained entrance here. By means of that locked door she is entirely cut off from this side of the mansion. Has the door been unlocked since my orders?"

"I have no knowledge of it," faltered the keeper, turning pale.

Lord Mountfalcon crossed to the door, and it opened on the handle being turned. What transpired I did not learn until an hour later.

As I sat over my luncheon I began to see my way to the possibility of obtaining a clew to the history of the miniature in my pocket. Atherstone had given me some facts, but I had been sensitive about disclosing them. It was not long before I was closeted with the owner of Shrewton court. In a lull of conversation his lordship observed in a quiet tone:

"Was it solely an interest in art bringing you to Merivale?"

I answered in the negative.

"I thought so," was the reply. "Now we have established friendly relations, may I ask why you at first so firmly resisted my demand of your being searched?"

"Because, my lord," I answered, "I have such a terrible witness of guilt in my pocket."

"What was it," observed the nobleman.

"Only this!" I replied, handing over the replica.

Silence in the room was only broken by the faint ticking of a small French clock. "I am astounded," cried the nobleman. "Surely this is my miniature. Yet, no! My own is slightly stained by the wet grass of the rosary. To whom does it belong?"

"I am ignorant," was my answer. "It has been in the hands of a dealer for sale, and one of his clients is eager to ascertain how it came to be painted."

"Who is that?" was the inquiry.

"I have no knowledge," I replied.

"Well," observed the nobleman, "I would pay a handsome reward to find out the history of the thing. Have you any key to unlock the mystery?"

"No," I said; "but most likely Crackenthorpe has. May I put him through a cross-examination in your presence?"

"By all means," returned Lord Mountfalcon; "it may prevent his being lodged in jail. That unlocked door in the blue gallery has revealed what a grossly dishonest fellow he is. Ask him what you please."

Sam Crackenthorpe, fearful of being prosecuted by his master, answered every question I put. The examination as near as I recollect, was as follows:

"Well, Mr. Crackenthorpe, you know this fac-simile of the miniature you asserted I had in my pocket?"

"Yes."

"Who painted it?"

"Mr. Moule."

"Where?"

"In my sitting-room."

"Who obtained his services?"

"I did."

"At whose request?"

"A lady came to see the galleries after Lord Mountfalcon went off to the Mediterranean."

"Her name."

"Miss Wincaunton."

"Where did she see the original miniature?"

"At Moslem, the jeweler's, in Piccadilly."

"What story was told the miniature painter to blind him?"

"That his lordship's sister secretly wanted a copy."

"How came Miss Wincaunton to wish for a copy?"

"Because she so admired the likeness."

Three months afterward Mr. Atherstone and I witnessed the ceremony of the marriage at St. George's, Hanover square, between Lord Mountfalcon and the beautiful Lady Susan Brewster. A rival, Miss Wincaunton, had insinuated the nobleman was in love with her, producing as proof the miniature she had obtained under such mean and crafty circumstances. Lady Brewster returned Lord Mountfalcon's picture in a fit of anger, believing the falsehood, and broke off the engagement. On Mr. Atherstone communicating the facts of the case Lady Susan became reconciled to her old lover.

After the ceremonial was over Mr. Atherstone took me out for luncheon. Later on, dallying with a cigar and a bottle of claret, the art dealer said:

"I think we are in duty bound to drink the health of the bride and bridegroom."

We did it in bumpers.

"By the by," continued my old friend, "I shall run down the week after next to Shrewton court, for Lord Mountfalcon told me he had fitted you up capital quarters as the new keeper of his art galleries."—Lloyd's London Weekly.

EARLY CALIFORNIA SHIPS.

How Commerce Grew in the Youth of the Golden State.

The first European vessel to enter this port (San Francisco) of which there is any record, was the Eagle, in 1816, commanded by Capt. William H. Davis. She sailed from Boston via the Sandwich islands and Alaska. She brought an assortment of goods, which was a revelation to the natives, and their garments of skin and hides were substituted by the clothing of civilization. Payments were made in hides, tallow, soap and fish. The Eagle then became engaged in the sea otter trade, and was very successful, as otters were plentiful in this bay and all along the coast. She made three trips, netting about $25,000 on each trip. This stimulated others, and this discovery, no doubt, gave an impetus to commerce, which made this port known to the world.

Commerce in these days of manna was carried on in what might be termed a "free-and-easy" manner. On many articles the duty was 100 per cent., which practically amounted to confiscation, or made smuggling necessary in self-defense. The Mexican officials generally opened the door. Frequently vessels were permitted to pass Monterey—the port of entry—coming to Yerba Buena, and, after selling as much of the cargo as possible, return to Monterey for entry and dispose of the remainder.

The shippers were not sworn as to the value of the cargo; they gave fictitious invoices, and by this means would get off on the payment of $5,000 on a $20,000 cargo.

It became so customary to swindle the government as to scarcely excite comment, except in cases where goods were concealed in false linings of the vessel and the government officials were outwitted.—Overland Monthly.

—Servian kings were formerly called [illegible].

A PROTEST IN ORDER.

The Precious Programme of Hanna and the Gold Syndicate.

Just as the people, and business men generally are settling themselves to the work of bringing back prosperity, and dropping politics and political agitation, Mr. Hanna in consultation with Whitelaw Reid, D. O. Mills, Ogden Mills, John A. Stewart, J. Pierpont Morgan, Messrs. Sloane, Webb and Twombly, three sons-in-law of Vanderbilt, Mr. Depew, A. S. Hewitt, Cornelius N. Bliss and other representatives of his multi-millionaire contingent decides that for the good of that contingent, the gold standard campaign must be made continuous, and that the agitation, speech making, etc., must go on during the four years when Hanna will be in power as regent of the McKinley court. As a part of this precious programme, arranged without regard for the welfare of the business of the country, the national republican committee is to remain in active existence, to assume general control of the party in all the states, and to act as the political advisory board of the administration.

As though this plan, which in itself is well calculated to replace the drag on business, was not enough, congress is to be called together in special session, immediately after McKinley's inauguration, for the purpose of taking up the tariff question, and presumably for the purpose of perfecting legislation designed to still further fortify the trusts, and make the position of these menaces to public welfare even more impregnable than it is now.

If this is the programme, and we have no doubt that it is; the leading bankers, and business men generally, together with the press have an immediate duty to perform.

The country is in no condition to stand Mr. Hanna's four years of continuous campaign, nor does it want congress to begin its seesawing over the tariff. Certainly not before the people have had some little chance to recover from the depression and stagnation from which they have suffered since the panic brought on by the mistakes of the Harrison administration previous to 1892.

It is the duty of all prominent men to protest against this programme. If Hanna is bent upon this line of work, you may be sure that active opposition on the part of the democracy will be promptly forthcoming, and then where are we? If four months of campaign work brings business practically to a standstill, what will four years of constant campaigning do? There should be no delay in making the opposition to Hanna's plans apparent. Papers which do not protest should be looked upon as opposed to the best interest of our business men, and others who hold their peace or refuse to join in opposition to any political agitation at present should be looked upon as enemies to the welfare of the whole business world.—Buffalo Times.

A Living Issue.

The American people are opposed to trust combinations, and they feel that leaders of the great political parties have not respected their opposition. Bryan's strength lay not so much in silver as in the popular protest against the unrestricted greed and unjust practices of the "combines," and against the failure of both of the great parties heretofore even to attempt the enforcement of anti-trust laws which they had enacted. Many gave expression to this protest by voting for Bryan, but a great number of people who were in agreement with them as to the trusts supported McKinley because they did not believe that any disease can be cured by a dose of arsenic. The election has not silenced this popular protest against trust greed and injustice, Mr. McKinley, and there are thousands of good men who are waiting to see what your attitude and that of your party towards the combinations and the anti-trust laws will be. They know that the exactions of many combinations are made possible only by tariff duties, and that before this campaign it was the avowed purpose of your party to increase the very duties which are used as instruments of extortion. You should think of these things. The warning is plain enough; the signs can be seen by anyone who is willing to see them.—N. Y. Times.

An Admirable Record.

Out of the record of the past the people may draw encouragement for the present. Mr. Bryan's defeat is not defeat for his principles, perhaps not even permanent defeat for himself. He and his party accepted a situation in June last which seemed absolutely to compel defeat. Democracy had been discredited, demoralized, assassinated by Grover Cleveland. To put a ticket in the field seemed ridiculous. But with a really democratic platform, with frank and outspoken repudiation of Clevelandism, the party has made inroads on republican strongholds and approached very near to victory. Against Mr. Bryan this year every agency of capitalism and cupidity was arrayed. For his overthrow the most enormous campaign fund known to American politics was expended, while in his behalf pennies were available where his foes had dollars. Against him the sinister agencies of corruption, coercion and intimidation were cruelly employed. Yet, despite all, he has made a better showing at the polls than Harrison in 1892, and as good as Cleveland in 1888. The democratic party has every reason to be proud of the issue of this campaign, and every possible reason to adhere for the next four years to the principles which have made so creditable an outcome possible.—N. Y. Journal.

——It has postponed Bryan's election only four years. If four years more of the gold standard, McKinleyism and Mark Hannaism do not drive the majority of the American people to a realizing sense of the infamous wrong inflicted upon them, then—well, plutocracy, the world is thine.—Wheeling Register.

THE M'KINLEY ADMINISTRATION.

Will Doubtless Be Dominated by the Great Boss Hanna.

Mr. Bryan has accepted defeat manfully, as he met manfully the shock of combat, and has telegraphed to Maj. McKinley his congratulations in this wise:

"Senator Jones has just informed me that the returns indicate your election, and I hasten to extend my congratulations. We have submitted the issue to the American people, and their will is law.—William J. Bryan."

That Mr. Bryan made a gallant struggle for victory his most bitter enemies will concede. That he comes out of the conflict a greater man than he was when he entered it, that his efforts for election have been characterized by tact, dignity and almost unprecedented ability, his opponents ought to admit. Defeat must bring disappointment to him, but it cannot bring mortification.

It is well that the defeat is one which, though not sweeping, is still conclusive. We who pressed the Bryan cause dreaded the effect of the huge republican campaign fund, of the coercive methods employed by republican sympathizers, of the seeming conspiracy of the press to befog the issues and to befoul the candidates of the democracy. All of these agencies were employed against the democratic ticket to their fullest degree, but, however great their influence, they were not the determining factor in the election. The issues were submitted to the people, and the people expressed their convictions—repudiated Bryan as they repudiated Cleveland in 1888; struck down democracy as they struck down republicanism in 1892.

Mr. McKinley will now become president after one of the most hotly contested elections of the later years of the republic. He will have a house of representatives at his beck and call, and a senate so nearly in accord with his views that a little tact alone on his part will be needed to bend it to his wishes. He will be the ruler for four years—the "strong man" who, as Mr. Cleveland's minister to the Court of St. James says, the American people need to keep them orderly. Will he rise to the occasion? Will he discard the associates whose character, more than his, has inspired doubt of him? Will he "restore prosperity," or — failing that, as anyone might fail—will he at least strive for justice to all men and for the demolition of special privileges to any men? Probably he will try, for no man was ever big enough to become a candidate for the presidency who had not in his heart ideals which soared above subserviency to any class, or particularly to any mercenary interest. It is not McKinley, but his associates, whom the people dread, and if he shall govern, indeed, and not through ministers chosen by Mark Hanna, his administration will be not dangerous even though it may not be inspiring.—N. Y. Journal.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

——God still reigns, and the government at Washington will go right on, even if we do have to sell more bonds.—Illinois State Register.

——Money is "soundest" when it is tightest. That's what Wall street wants—money that is "sound" because it is tight.—Atlanta Constitution.

——We have been badly licked, but we shall not blubber about it. Just give us the date of the next scrap, and we will try and be there.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

——Modesty would have suggested to Boss Hanna the propriety of permitting Maj. McKinley to outline his policy; that is, she would if she had been near. But modesty is not the handmaid of a successful boss.—St. Louis Republic.

——The republican "tidal wave" seems to amount practically to a narrow escape for the g. o. p. It is pretty evident that the money power will not be able to withstand another siege of its citadel.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

——The democratic party, however, will survive this defeat, as it has others. It will be more careful of its leaders in future. Its factions will reunite and battle for the principles with which it has won so many glorious victories in the past and with which it will win other victories in years to come.—Savannah News.

——William Jennings Bryan lives in the hearts and confidence of his countrymen. He has proven himself the foremost American of his day, and he will continue to be the leader of the people and the ablest defender of their cause. His cause is not lost. His victory is but deferred.—Augusta Chronicle.

——Is it any wonder that the New York World, which did all that a great paper could do to defeat Mr. Bryan, finds itself compelled at the close of the hot campaign to give this estimate of the defeated candidate: "Mr. Bryan has been defeated, but he emerges from the campaign one of the foremost men of his time—strong, brave, manly—a popular political orator without a rival—the representative of the south and west, young, stainless, tireless and thirsty for power."—Buffalo Times.

The Cause Still Lives.

Those papers that greeted the returns from the election so gleefully and characterized the result as a McKinley "avalanche," a "tremendous tidal wave," the "thunder toned voice of the people" and the like, are daily revising their original characterizations in the light of facts, facts which prove that the republican electoral and popular majorities have no special significance except as showing that the democratic party barely failed to achieve a victory. In view of the conditions of the opposing parties, in respect to organization, the vote for Bryan is far more significant than that of his opponent. It shows that a popular idea has taken hold of the masses, and that the most stupendous efforts have been powerless to dispel it. There is plenty of life and hope in bimetallism yet.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

HUMOROUS.

—"Gentlemen," said the orator, "this crisis will soon be at an end." "Thank heaven," murmured an auditor; "he's going to stop talking."—Philadelphia North American.

—"Say, Tompkins, what did Brown die of?" "Well, he was fishing, and the ground gave way under him, I think—" "Oh, sort—er—bank failure, I suppose!"—Boston Globe.

—Teacher—"Anything is called transparent that can be seen through. What scholar can give an example?" Bobby—"De hole in de fence round de baseball park."—Norristown Herald.

—Mrs. Teller—"My husband has a wonderful memory." Mrs. Askins—"Indeed?" Mrs. Teller—"Oh, yes, he never forgets to forget whatever I tell him to bring home."—N. Y. World.

Urban—"Say, Suh, what did you raise out here last summer?" Suburban—"Chickens." Urban—"Chickens? I didn't know there was any money in chickens." Suburban — "Well, there ought to be. I put $800 in chicken raising last summer."—Harper's Bazar.

—Young Madewun—"My dear, I can truthfully say that your promises are like your piecrust." Mrs. Madewun—"Why, Charlie?" Young Madewun—"Because, my sweet, it isn't short and light and is easily broken."—Philadelphia North American.

—"You say that women have been the cause of your committing this atrocious murder?" The culprit inclined his head. "Yes," he answered, "such is indeed the fact. Your honor knows how dead pleasant woman make it for atrocious murderers."—Detroit Tribune.

ENGLAND'S NAVAL WEAKNESS.

Her Ships of War Not as Powerful as Many Suppose Them to Be.

The numerical inferiority of the British fleet of battleships to the forces of France and Russia becomes more serious when we consider the course of a possible war between England on the one side and the allies on the other.

Let us consider the result of Franco-Russian intervention did we send our fleet up the Dardanelles. Our Mediterranean fleet, with its 12 battleships more or less damaged, would be trapped in the sea of Marmora, with the Russian Black sea fleet, five or six battleships strong, waiting for it in the Black sea, fresh, undamaged, with magazines and bunkers full. The works in the Bosphorus would prevent the further advance of our ships while they would cover the attacks of the Russian torpedo flotilla, which swarms in the Black sea.

In the Mediterranean the Toulon fleet would at once put to sea, effect a junction with the North sea (France) squadron and attack our channel fleet with some 20 ships. As repeated experience has shown that it takes days for us to mobilize, we should not have been able in the meantime largely to reinforce our fleet, and therefore our channel ships must either run or be beaten. In either case, with the arrival of the Baltic fleet to complete our ruin, we lose the command of the channel. The aim of Napoleon 90 years ago is accomplished and this country is open not to thousands, but to hundreds of thousands of invaders. The heart of the empire would be pierced, the palsy of death would come upon the empire itself, and in a holocaust of blood and fire the country which has stood up for freedom and civilization would fall forever.

Those who are demanding violent measures have not counted the cost. Great are the privileges of the press; splendid is the work which it has done for freedom and humanity; honorable are its traditions in England. But terrible is its responsibility when it presumes to urge a nation to war against the will of the nation's chosen statesmen. To these alone belongs the right to draw the sword and to send their countrymen to the slaughter. They know all; they move behind the scenes and they must judge. We can but bow and execute their will. They are not cruel by nature, nor are they vowed to a policy of inhumanity, but they feel the risks and do not, in Bismarck's words, "meddle with the calling of Nemesis or aspire to exercise the Divine Judge's office." They, not the irresponsible press, must decide the issue.—London Mail.

From Linen Suits to Overcoats.

"A person who has never made the trip from Port Limon to San Jose, Costa Rica," said Engineer Mapo, of the B. D. Wood, the other evening, "cannot even form an estimate of the wonderful beauty of the journey, save by a comparison with the ascent of the 'Great Divide' in Colorado. When I was in Central America, a few years ago I accompanied the constructing engineer of the Nicaraugua canal, who happened to be in Port Limon at the same time, over the line, and although I was foolish enough to make the trip in a suit of summer flannels I enjoyed it hugely. The railroad to San Jose is only about 120 miles in length, but the steep grades, windings and turnings compel the trainmen to be careful, and on rainy days, when the wheels slip, the journey takes as long as 14 hours. The road crosses a divide and you pass from banana plantations on the coast to coffee farms on the hills, and then up and up until an altitude of 9,000 feet is reached. You change climates, and from linen suits emerge into overcoats."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Where Women Choose Husbands.

Between the mountains of India and Persia is a powerful tribe among whom an extraordinary custom prevails. Women's rights apparently have received full recognition, for the ladies of the tribe can choose their own husbands. All a single woman has to do when she wishes to change her state is to send a servant to pin a handkerchief to the hat of the man on whom her fancy lights, and he is obliged to marry her, unless he can show that he is too poor to purchase her at the price her father requires.—Chicago Tribune.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

GOOD ROAD MAKERS.

Wide Tires on Wagons Serve as the Best of Rollers.

It has been truly said that no other single element, except ignorant road-making, adds so much to the heavy burden of supporting the highways as the use of narrow tires, which cut up the roads instead of ironing them smoothly down.

Look at the beautiful, glossy path which the bicyclists make for themselves at the edge of the road before the puddles are fairly dried up, and then at the bottomless abysses plowed by loaded wagons, and you will have the whole thing in a nutshell.

The horses' hoofs, of course, chop up the road somewhat, but it is mere surface irritation compared with the deep and fatal wounds made by the narrow-tired wheels when once a rut is started.

THE TIRES THAT SPOIL ROADS.

Build a reasonably good road and equip the vehicles with tires with something the same proportion to weight as the tires of a bicycle, with the tread of the rear wheels different from that of the front wheels, so as not to follow in the same path, and the surface will not be rutted at all. The wheels serve as rollers, and instead of cutting up the roads they make them better.

Fine philosophy we show, to be sure. We tax ourselves poor to keep steam rollers at work on our highways, and then carefully select wagons which will undo the work of the roller as quickly as possible.—Milford (Mass.) Gazette.

AMERICAN HORSES.

Well-Bred Animals Find a Ready Sale in the German Market.

An influential German illustrated journal notices the report of the American consul at Bremen, and states that Germany furnishes a good market for American horses. This is a significant fact and a suggestive one, also. It has not been long since the idea of sending American horses to Europe would have been ridiculed. The advance in this branch of live stock industry in this country has been wonderful.

The best blood of American English (which includes Scotland) and French horses has been used to improve American horses. And the result is that these horses are now going abroad in considerable numbers. Since 1895 it appears that 10,000 horses have been shipped from America to German ports, the chief ports being Hamburg and Bremen. They bring on an average about $175 each, and are often resold for $350 at Leipsic and other inland cities. It is stated also by the same paper that purchasers for these American horses have gone from Sweden and Denmark to Hamburg to obtain them, which shows that there is a market in those countries for American horses.

But it is well to note the fact that poor stock fails to find purchasers at remunerative figures, and German newspapers warn American shippers that it is useless to send such inferior animals to Germany. The fact is also emphasized that great care should be taken in handling and feeding the horses on shipboard.—Farmers' Voice.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES.

If apples that are stored in a cool place are headed up in a barrel, they will keep better.

The land for the sugar beet should be plowed in the fall, and after plowing, unless the land is very rich, apply plenty of well-rotted manure.

The potato blight is on the increase. Bordeaux mixture for blight and paris green for bugs will have to be kept in stock by the potato grower.

It is not much trouble or expense to construct a hothouse for forcing early vegetables or growing vegetables in winter. The farmer can do this.

The apple grower who does not regard the apple as he would any other crop, and furnish the trees with food, as he does other crops, will not succeed.

If the farmer would go at the work of producing early vegetables, he could laugh at the low prices for grain, if they should continue. Early vegetables always pay.

If fruit trees grow too rapidly they will not bear well. The force goes into the wood. When young trees grow too rapidly, it is a good plan to put the orchard in grass. This will check the growth.

If house plants become frozen, darken the room and sprinkle with water from the well, with a few drops of spirits of camphor in it. Keep the temperature at 45 degrees for 24 hours.—Western Plowman.

Unsuccessful Spraying.

On the subject of unsuccessful spraying, the Missouri experiment station bulletin says: "We sometimes hear of unsuccessful results from spraying, but these experiments show, while all diseases cannot be immediately and totally eradicated, that continued spraying will cause the fungous diseases mentioned to grow less each year. One intelligent fruit grower sent word to the station that he had carefully sprayed according to directions, but that there was more scab on his sprayed than on his unsprayed trees. A careful examination of apples from his orchard revealed the fact that they were badly burned (probably by impure chemicals or too strong a mixture), but there was no trace of fungous disease in his fruit

THE HAND SEPARATOR.

What the Machine Is, How It Works and What It Saves.

Prof. C. S. Plumb, Maryland Experimental Station: "The hand separator consists of a small metal bowl, which is revolved with great rapidity by means of cogwheel connections. Milk turned into the bowl separates into skim milk, which accumulates in the outer portion of the bowl, and cream, which gathers near the center. After the separation in the bowl the cream and skim milk escape from it through outlets into separate tubes, from which they are conducted into cans. This action of separation is continuous so long as the bowl is revolving at suitable speed.

"Separators are now commonly sold on the market that do satisfactory work, practically removing all the butter fat from the milk. On the average farm probably every 100 pounds of skim milk secured by the old-fashioned methods contains from one-fourth to one-half pound of fat. More is left in the milk than farmers are often aware of. The properly-run separator removes nearly all, if not all of this.

"The writer believes that every person who keeps five or more cows, with the object of making as much butter from them as possible, who makes gilt-edged butter and who is interested in progressive dairying would find in the hand separator a money-making machine. Other people are likely to be disappointed if they buy a hand separator."

APPLES FOR COWS.

They Have All the Properties Which Make Linseed So Valuable.

Apples are abundant this year, and in many cases it is an open question whether it will pay to ship them. We would advise that only the very best quality be shipped and the rest be fed to the cows. Where markets are so depressed as at this time it often happens that common stock will not pay any profit at all, while really choice fruit will bring a fair price. If, therefore, we ship only the best we have a better chance of making something on our apples, and at the same time have a lot of good feed for the cows, or, in fact, almost any kind of stock.

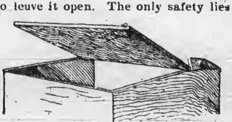
Begin gradually, as should be done with any new kind of feed, and work up until you reach the desired limit, which will be found to be about ten pounds per day for a cow. Apples contain a greater proportion of carbohydrates to protein than most feeds; consequently they need to be supplemented by some feed rich in protein, such as linseed meal or bran, and in this case we would prefer the bran, as the apples themselves have all the medicinal properties that make the linseed valuable.

If it is possible the apples should be run through a root cutter, as there is danger of the cows choking themselves. This danger is, we think, rather remote, as we have seen lots of apples eaten by cows, and have yet to see the first cow choke.—National Stockman.

HANDY SAFETY DEVICE.

How to Protect Barn Grain Bins from Hungry Animals.

Hundreds of horses and cattle have been ruined by getting loose from their stalls and finding the stable grain bin open, when they would proceed to eat inordinately. It is the most natural thing in the world to open the lid of the ordinary grain box, or bin, and then to leave it open. The only safety lies in some device that will not let the covers open past the perpendicular line—compelling one to hold it open while he dips out the grain. Such a device is shown in the sketch. Such a "stop" should be nailed upon either end of the box. The same end can be secured, if the cover opens back against a wall, by nailing a piece of board to the wall that will keep the cover from coming back past the perpendicular.—Orange Judd Farmer.



PROTECTION FOR GRAIN BINS.

Finding the Best Markets.

If you have a good lamb market close to home, patronize it, says a writer in an exchange. The writer puts his lambs in the wagon at five or six o'clock in the morning, and in two hours he can unload them in his own market and save the shrinkage of shipping. If distant from any good market, ship to Chicago, if you live in the west; if in the east, ship to New York or Philadelphia, unless you have a good market closer home. Each shipper can determine the best place to ship to from his locality, by distance and freight charges, compared with the probable price for them when placed on the market.

Unthreshed Oats for Cows.

Unthreshed oats, if cut at the right stage, properly cured and stood under shelter, makes a first-class milk feed in winter. Good, well-cured and well-cured for fodder makes a good feed especially to use as a change to make up a good variety. With the grain ration, wheat bran can nearly always be made a part. It needs to be fed in connection with other material, in order to make the most of it. Cornmeal ground oats, oil meal and middlings can all be used to good advantage.—Rural World.

A Commercial Man's Opinion.

A traveling salesman gives it as his opinion that 50 per cent. of the traveling salesmen ride wheels, and he thinks the other 50 will soon do likewise. He adds: "We are all good roads advocates. When we get good roads in this country our winter sales will improve in the west, where trade is dull in the cold season because farmers cannot get to town."

TOLD OF TWO OWLS.

When One Was Killed for Revenge the Other Committed Suicide.

A pair of big horned owls were nightly visitors to Shreveport, La., during the past summer, and for six or eight weeks made things lively in electric circles. Their favorite haunts seemed to be down in the lower streets near the Bayou, and during the evenings they might have been seen perched on the swinging electric light lamps, catching the big electric light bugs that congregate in great numbers nightly.

Down at the big cottonseed oil mills these owls caused some trouble that might have resulted seriously for one of the employes had not the birds' instrumentality in the matter been discovered. The affair happened thus:

The night watchman at the mills, who supervises the big yards and buildings, is required to make ten different stations during the night, 40 minutes of time being allowed between each, and must signal his presence at these various points by touching an electric button which registers the time and the station upon a dial-plate in the office. It transpired that the clerk whose business it is to inspect this dial plate each morning found repeatedly during the summer irregularities in the register that led him to believe the watchman had slept at his post and afterwards sent false signals. The clerk did not at first report the matter to the manager, however, as the watchman had always been a trusty servant, but he did remonstrate with the man himself, receiving the assurance that nothing had been wrong with his signals. Something was decidedly wrong, however, and, after one or two nights, the clerk informed the manager, and they concluded to remain in the office over night to investigate the matter. Taking up their station at the window where they could, unseen, command a good view of the well-lighted yard, they awaited developments, which were pretty slow in coming, however, as the watchman seemed to be faithfully making his rounds, and the first and second signals came all right.

Presently there was a scratching and scrambling over the big scales and upon the weighing shed just without the office window, and three great gray rats clambered up to the big insulated electric wire and set out with the agility of the most accomplished tight-rope walker across the yard.

"Rats!" said the manager, facetiously, as he turned to examine the register. But no; it was all straight: the rodents were going rapidly but too lightly to twang the wire.

"There they are!" cried the clerk, and on the moment a couple of big owls swooped down out of the darkness, each seizing a rat and twanging the wire lustily with its big wings. "Click! click!" went the register, and the owls stood accused and the watchman was cleared.

The manager told him of the episode the next morning, and the old man laughed about it and seemed to feel that somehow the birds had impeached his honor. So that night, arming himself with a gun, and choosing an auspicious moment, he shot one of the owls.

For a whole week thereafter the other bird haunted the mill yard, by some chance eluding the watchman's rifle, but making the night hideous with his plaints. Finally one night the old man saw the owl flapping and flying about in a frantic manner, beating his wings against every wire in the yard. Suddenly he struck a live electric light wire and dropped dead at the watchman's feet. The old man declares that the bird committed suicide in desperation at the loss of his mate.—Philadelphia Times.

Color and Aroma of Coffee.

There are two things which people imagine are guides to the goodness of coffee which are really of no consequence whatever. They are the color of the decoction and the aroma of the coffee when ground, or as it escapes from the pot in drawing. The color is due almost entirely to the roasting. This is true also of tea. The finest coffees and teas when properly roasted and prepared to give out the finest flavors will color the water but little. The real essences which give the flavor have practically no color.—St. Louis Republic.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16

LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	2 25	@	3 00
Select butchers	3 75	@	4 10
CALVES—Fair to good light	5 50	@	6 25
HOGS—Common	2 65	@	3 15
Mixed packers	3 20	@	3 30
Light shippers	3 35	@	3 55
SHEEP—Choice	2 75	@	3 25
LAMBS—Good to choice	3 75	@	4 25
FLOUR—Winter family	3 35	@	3 65
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	90
No. 3 red		@	87
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	23
Oats—No. 2		@	21
Rye—No. 2		@	37
HAY—Prime to choice	11 00	@	11 25
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@	8 87½
Lard—Prime steam		@	4 10
BUTTER—Choice dairy	15	@	17
Prime to choice creamery		@	21
APPLES—Per bbl	1 50	@	1 75
POTATOES—New, per bbl	75	@	1 00
NEW YORK
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 75	@	4 90
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@	93¾
No. 2 red	87½	@	89¼
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@	31¾
OATS—Mixed		@	23¼
PORK—New mess	8 50	@	9 00
LARD—Western		@	4 50
CHICAGO
FLOUR—Winter patents	4 40	@	4 60
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	85	@	87
No. 2 Chicago spring	78¼	@	79
CORN—No. 2	25½	@	25¾
OATS—No. 2		@	19
PORK—Mess	6 90	@	6 95
LARD—Steam		@	4 00
BALTIMORE
FLOUR—Family	4 25	@	4 65
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2		@	[illegible]
Corn—Mixed	29¾	@	29⅞
Oats—Mixed	26	@	26½
LARD—Refined		@	11 00
PORK—Mess		@	16 85
CATTLE—First quality	4 00	@	4 25
HOGS—Western	4 00	@	4 20
INDIANAPOLIS
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@	87
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	24¼
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@	17½
LOUISVILLE
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@	4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	90
Corn—Mixed	[illegible]	@	29¼
Oats—Mixed		@	25
PORK—Mess	[illegible]	@	8 00
LARD—Steam	[illegible]	@	4 50

STOPPING A TRAIN.

Important Discovery That Has Just Been Made in Europe.

Some important discoveries have just been made in Europe, says the New York Herald.

How to stop a train when an accident is impending has long been a problem. Many plans have been suggested, but almost all have been considered faulty for the reason that they call for a quick stoppage. In such a case the shock would be so great that the carriages between the engine and the rear of the train would be smashed to atoms and their occupants crushed to death. Evidently, therefore, a gradual stoppage is imperative.

An admirable plan, which enables a train to slow down gradually, has recently been tested at the railroad station in Dresden. It is extremely simple and has been found to work well. No intricate machinery is required, and the cost must be small. A track is laid, the rails of which sink or slope gradually into a bed of sand. As the train passes over this sand its wheels meet with an ever-increasing resistance, which soon becomes so great that they are obliged to stop. The stoppage, however, is so gradual that there is no rough shock. The greater the swiftness of the train and the heavier the load the more immediate is the stoppage. No damage then is possible either as regards the train or the passengers. An experiment which was recently tried with a freight train showed clearly the usefulness of this very practical and simple plan.

DANIEL BOONE.

A Descendant of the Pioneer "Pathfinder" of Tennessee Interviewed by a Reporter.

He Is a Firm Believer in the Efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. His Friends Also Have Used Them With Benefit. Recommends Them to Others.

From the Journal, Cleveland, Tenn.

Six miles south of Cleveland, Tenn., live the descendents of Daniel Boone, the pioneer "pathfinder" of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Probably the oldest descendant of the immortal Daniel is Mr. Jack Boone, of Black Fox Station, who is now an old man, seventy-six years of age. He is held in great esteem in his vicinity, having held at various times offices of trust in the county, which he has filled with honor.

Two years ago Mr. Boone was reported very ill, and his familiar figure was no longer seen in our streets. To the surprise of many, a few weeks ago Mr. Boone came to town looking as well as ever, and then it became reported that he owed his recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

To verify this a reporter of the Journal was sent to interview Mr. Boone, and after a ride of six miles the Journal man found him sitting on his porch looking extremely well for a man of his years. With a quick, firm step the descendant of the pioneer descended the step to greet his visitor, and after a few preliminary remarks the reporter came to the point by saying:

"Mr. Boone, I was told by Druggist Phillips and also by your brother, that you attribute your recovered health and strength to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I would like to hear your version of the tale."

"Well, young man," said Mr. Boone, "I don't usually have much to say about medicines, but this is one that I feel I can't praise too highly. If you could have seen me twelve months ago, and look at me now, it would not be necessary for me to say anything. Just ask the neighbors about the difference. And yet I don't feel that I have given the pills a thorough test. That is, I am still taking them, and feel that I am being benefited every day. And while you are down here, you might go by and see one of my neighbors, Mr. Daniel Atchley, he is also taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and has been greatly benefited by them."

"Yes, said Mr. Atchley, "I am now taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as is also my daughter. I heard them so favorably spoken of, and being in very bad health, suffering from general debility and rheumatism, that I thought I would give them a test. I have only taken a portion of one box, but I can see that they are all that is claimed for them. If my daughter was at home she could speak even more highly than I can."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are sold in boxes (never in loose form, by the dozen or hundred) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or directly by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

OLD BULLION—"What! You wish to marry my daughter? She is a mere school-girl yet." Suitor—"Yes, sir. I came early to avoid the rush."—Modes and Fabrics.

Cupid, the Beggar.

How Love goes a begging for a little kindly treatment! How many women turn their backs on the little fellow! They give freely of their time and attention to fashion or social pleasures, but seem to regard happy wifehood and motherhood as a mere secondary consideration.

They take no end of trouble over the fit of a gown or the success of a dinner party, but think they have no time to bestow upon the health and physical soundness which are absolutely necessary to happy wifehood and motherhood.

Any weakness or disease of the delicate special organs of her sex totally unfits a woman to be a wife or mother. It is a woman's primary duty to be strong and healthy in a womanly way. Careful living and judicious treatment will certainly and completely eradicate these delicate complaints.

A complete and practical treatise on this subject with careful professional advice and suggestions for self-treatment are contained in "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M. D., chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. This 1000-page illustrated book will be sent paper-bound absolutely free for cost of mailing only: 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce, as above.

Dr. Pierce has given a life-time to the study of women's diseases, and has had as wide a practical experience in this particular field as any living physician. His "Favorite Prescription" is a perfect and scientific remedy for diseases of the feminine organs.

It is the only medicine devised for this particular purpose by an educated and skilled physician. It is a positive and permanent cure as attested by more than ninety thousand grateful women.

THANKSGIVING PUDDING.

Chop half a pound of beef suet fine, mix with half a teacup of stale bread crumbs, half a pound of sugar, a teacup of flour, two teaspoonsful of Cleveland's baking powder, a gill each of molasses and thick cream, a pound of seeded raisins, a teaspoonful each of ground mace and cinnamon, and five beaten eggs. Stir all together. Put in a pudding bag, and boil for four hours. When done take up, turn out on a large dish, and serve with plum pudding sauce.

ELIZA R. PARKER.

MR. CRIMSONBEAK—"Do you think, my dear, that the time will ever come when the men will do the cooking?" Mrs. Crimsonbeak—"Not in this world, John."—Yonkers Statesman.

Home-Seekers Excursions.

On November 17 and December 1 and 15, 1896, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway will sell round trip excursion tickets from Chicago to a great many points in the Western and Southwestern states both on its own line and elsewhere, at greatly reduced rates. Details as to rates, routes, etc., may be obtained on application to any coupon ticket agent or by addressing GEO. H. HEAFFORD, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

A NUMBER of youngsters of this town engaged in a battle the other day. Not a stone was left unturned to make the affair a success.—West Union Gazette.

That Joyful Feeling

With the exhilarating sense of renewed health and strength and internal cleanliness, which follows the use of Syrup of Figs, is unknown to the few who have not progressed beyond the old-time medicines and the cheap substitutes sometimes offered but never accepted by the well-informed.

"I WENT to two receptions last night and lost my umbrella at the last." "It's a wonder you didn't lose it at the first one." "That's where I got it."—Ex.

I COULD not get along without Piso's Cure for Consumption. It always cures. MRS. E. C. MOULTON, Needham, Mass., Oct. 22, '94.

"I THOUGHT you said Tearem was given to the most lofty flights of fancy." "I did. He honestly thinks he is an actor."—Detroit Free Press.

DON'T Neglect a Cough. Take Some Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar instanter. Pike's Toothache Drops Cure in one minute.

A DISCOVERY.—"I've discovered something the most fractious broncho can't throw." "What's that?" "Kisses."—Chat.

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe.

THE best of us owe more to chance than we are willing to admit.

JUST try a 10c box of Cascarets, the finest liver and bowel regulator ever made.

CENTER shots are what tell, one bullet in the bull's-eye is worth ten that just miss it.

A BOTTLE OF

WARNER'S Safe Cure

Might have Changed the Map of Europe.

AT the Battle of Waterloo the great Napoleon.. was so prostrated from Nephritis.. (Inflammation of the Kidneys).. that for more than an hour the battle was left to his subordinates, with the result that the fortunes of war went against him. Had been known at the time, Napoleon need not have been ill at such a supreme moment, nor his star suffered eclipse.

WARNER'S Safe Cure

While all cannot be Napoleons, all can be spared the illness which resulted in his downfall.

Large bottle, or new style, smaller one, at your druggists.

A Man in OHIO who had barely made expenses with a cheap Well Drilling Outfit took our advice and bought one of our modern and first-class..... Well Machines, and did $7,000 worth of drilling with it last year. There are men who refuse to take good advice when it is offered them on a silver platter! Circulars free. LOOMIS & NYMAN, - TIFFIN, OHIO.

Are the boys to pump water and cut feed by hand this winter, or have an Aermotor, oiled with Aermotor OIL IT NEVER FREEZES NOR THICKENS. Sold in 1 & 5 gal cans by impl. dealers. 20 branch houses. One near you. AERMOTOR CO., Chicago

TOP SNAP, Extension Rib DOUBLE Breech Loader $9.00 GUNS BUY-CYCLES Pistols, Sporting Goods, Fishing Tackle, cheaper than elsewhere. Send 2c. for 60-page catalogue. POWELL & CLEMENT CO. 166 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

IT IS THE BEST. YUCATAN.

A. N. K.—E. 1631

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

AYER'S ARGUMENT.

If there is any reason why you should use any sarsaparilla, there is every reason why you should use Ayer's. When you take sarsaparilla you take it to cure disease; you want to be cured as quickly as possible and as cheaply as possible. That is why you should use Ayer's: it cures quickly and cheaply—and it cures to stay. Many people write us: "I would sooner have one bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla than three of any other kind." A druggist writes that "one bottle of Ayer's will give more benefit than six of any other kind." If one bottle of Ayer's will do the work of three it must have the strength of three at the cost of one. There's the point in a nutshell. It pays every way to use

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

180,000 Copies of Demorest's Magazine

THE increasing popularity of Demorest's Family Magazine, a popularity extending over thirty years, is ample proof that each succeeding year finds it improved in its vitality, beauty and attractiveness. There must be something in a magazine that increases its subscription list from 80,000 to 180,000 names (a clear gain of 100,000) in less than a year. Don't you think so?

READ THIS.

"Demorest's Magazine is a literary conservator of the artistic and the useful. Got up in America, where it has enormous sales, it is the most remarkable work of the class that has ever been published, and combines the attractions of several English magazines."—London Times.

"We have received another number of this delightful Magazine, and we find ourselves bound to reiterate with greater earnestness the high encomiums we have already pronounced on preceding numbers. We are not given to disparage unduly the literary and artistic publications which emanate from the London press, but we are bound, in simple fairness, to assert that we have not yet met with any publication pretending to a similar scope and purpose which can at all compare with this marvelous shilling's worth."—London Budget.

The American Bookseller says: "There are none of our monthlies in which the beautiful and the useful, pleasure and profit, fashion and literature are so fully presented as in Demorest's."

ABSOLUTELY FREE TO YOU!

Upon receipt of a remittance of $2.00 from you for one year's subscription to Demorest's Magazine we will send you FREE this beautiful Silver Sugar Shell as a premium and, in addition, you will receive a copy of Van Vredenburgh's exquisite oil painting, "Our Bench Show," representing a "yard" of playful puppies—shown above. The picture is 10x36 inches, and it is printed in 14 colors in the highest style of the plate-printers' art. You will say it is the cutest picture you have ever seen when it reaches you. It will be issued with the December number of the magazine.

This premium offer is only available to subscribers sending their subscriptions at once to us direct, using the Order Blank below, accompanied by a remittance of $2.

CUT HERE AND RETURN COUPON PROPERLY FILLED OUT.

Demorest Publishing Co., 110 Fifth Avenue, N. Y.

For the enclosed $2.00 please send Demorest's Family Magazine for one year. Also the Silver Sugar Shell and Van Vredenburgh's oil-color, "Our Bench Show," picture offered by you as premiums.

Name..........

Post Office..........

Date.......... State..........

BOONE : COUNTY : RECORDER.

Wednesday, Nov. 18, 1896.

Rates of Subscription:
One year.......... $1 50.
Six months.......... 75.
Three months.......... 40.
☞Payable invariably in advance.

THE RECORDER
SOLICITS YOUR
Job Work,
NOTE HEADS,
LETTER HEADS,
ENVELOPES,
CARDS,
BILL HEADS,
STATEMENTS,
SALE BILLS,
AND HORSE BILLS,
Printed at the Lowest Prices consistent with neat work.
Send your order by mail and it will be attended promptly.

STATE NEWS.

The Covington police force will be reorganized.

The Frankfort electric street railway has suspended.

A band of robbers is terrorizing the West Liberty people.

The Mormon Elders have been frightened out of Elliott county.

A Lancaster firm expects to slaughter 30,000 turkeys this fall.

Arch Horner, aged 70, of Greenup, was indicted, last week, for murder.

Jim Adams fell from a horse near McKinney. McCracken county, and was killed.

Breathitt county has a mad dog scare, and the people on Red river are terrorized.

Typhoid fever is prevailing with peculiarly deadly effect in parts of Barren county.

Louis Robards, of Wilmore, Jessamine county, died of apoplexy in his pew at church.

S. G. Boyle, proprietor of the Lexington Herald, has a $25,000 damage suit on his hands.

Jeff Hardin and his son killed with sticks in Montgomery county 763 squirrels in one morning.

The handsome residence of William Chanler, of Mason county, was destroyed by fire. Loss, $5,000.

Judge Pryor has written more opinions than any man ever connected with the Court of Appeals.

A three year old child in Russellville went too close to the grate, her clothing took fire and she was burned to a crisp.

Whit Roark, a Hart county desperado, wanted for a murder committed ten years ago, is at last behind the bars.

The Harrison county grand jury will investigate charges of election coercion. One negro is now in jail charged with perjury.

Free turnpikes got a majority of the votes cast nearly everywhere in the State it was submitted to a vote at the recent election.

Judge Hazelrigg has been assigned the duty of preparing the opinion of the Court of Appeals in the Jackson and Walling cases.

Nick Roy, who killed Attorney Scott in Metcalfe county, was taken to Bowling Green for safe keeping. His life was threatened by a mob.

It is said that Gov. Bradley will call a meeting of the Sinking Fund Commissioners to draft a revenue bill for the legislature to act upon at the special session.

A family with $15,000 in money went from Madison county to the Indian Territory, 12 years ago. They returned to their old home, last week, penniless.

Mrs. George Whittaker, a widow of Madison county, was horribly burned. She was standing in front of the fire-place when she was overcome by an epileptic fit.

The hotel and other buildings belonging to W. C. Binns, at Peedee, Ky., were robbed and then burned. Loss $7,000; no insurance. No clue to the incendiary robbers.

At Rich, Christian county, Ben Carter, who is badly afflicted with palsy, was holding a block of wood for a negro to split, his hands got caught and both were cut off with an ax.

It is said that the southern railroad is preparing to lay heavier rails between Cincinnati and Lexington in order that schedule time between these two points may be shortened.

P. A. Tate, former treasurer of Friendship Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Lexington, has been sued for $500, which he is said to have failed to turn over to the lodge upon going out of office.

Near Gray's Charley Bolton, a young man, was found dead in the woods, having accidentally killed himself while squirrel hunting; had been dead several days, and buzzards preying on his flesh.

At a Republican ratification meeting at Livermore, Ky., an improvised cannon exploded. One man's leg was broken, another's hand was blown off and another lost a finger. Others were seriously hurt.

The trial of Wm Trusty and John Seward, charged with perjury, and subornation of testimony, in the Scott Jackson trial, is set for hearing on the 27th inst. in the Campbell Circuit Court.

A young couple in Mt. Olivet were married last January and kept their marriage a secret until last week, and it would not have been told then but the groom became dangerously ill, and the wife went to nurse him.

Near Greenup a calf bitten by a mad dog developed signs of hydrophobia. It was killed, after driving men and boys from a field. William Archy, who was bitten by the dog, was sent to the Pasteur Institute at Chicago.

The State Canvassing Board will meet at Frankfort November 30 whether the returns are all in or not and certify to the returns of Tuesday's election. There is a possibility however, that the board may meet earlier than the 30th if the returns are all in before that date.

James Arden Walfenberger, 101, and his wife Dolly, 107, are living in Knott county, after 80 years of married life. They have 20 grandchildren, 50 great-grandchildren and 75 great-great-grandchildren, most of them within a radius of 50 miles. Their 11 children are dead.

The population of Kentucky in 1890 was 1,858,635. In 1896, six years thereafter, if the number of voters voting in Kentucky are correctly reported, the population in Kentucky is 2,125,000, an increase in six years of 266,365 human beings. From this Kentucky is entitled to an additional Congressman.

At Versailles the trial of Newton Lane for the murder of Colonel Henry Rodenbaugh, was brought to an abrupt standstill by the sudden and serious illness of Hon. Edward H. Wallace, one of Lane's attorneys. On motion of the defense Judge Cantrill discharged the jury and continued the case until February.

Two of Owsley county's most prominent young men are in jail charged with burglary. Matthew Morrison and W. B. Harvey went to the residence of Presley B. Moore, an old Union soldier, who draws a pension of $75 per month, and robbed him of $125, which he had left in a table drawer. The young men were suspected, and confessed when arrested.

The City Fathers propose to take a crack at creation in the way of placing a special license. A proposed ordinance puts an annual license of $10 on college professors, principals of public schools, lawyers and physicians; $5 to $15 on retail merchants; $25 for wholesale merchants; $3 each on lecturers, concerts, games, &c.; shows, each performance $5; agents of all kinds of insurance, $15; milk wagons and ice wagons, $10; carriers of passengers or freight, each vehicle $10; sewing machine agents, $10; agents of laundries, $10; livery stables, $10; Electric Light or Water Supply Companies, $25; Telegraph or Telephone Companies, $25; Street Railway Co., $25; coal or lumber dealers, $25; eating houses or restaurants, $10; hotels and boarding houses $5 to $15; lunch stands, $10; fish venders, $10; fresh meat, $10; public halls, $50; public dance halls, $25; dances, per night, $5.—Georgetown Times.

CROP AND STOCK.

Turkeys bring 5½ cents a pound on foot, in Scott county.

It cost the owner $1 per day license to keep a hog in Georgetown.

50,000 pounds of tobacco was sold in Bath county last week at prices ranging from 3 to 5 cents.

The west of Ireland is said to be face to face with famine, owing to the failure of crops, especially the potato crop.

In some localities in Marion county the farmers are giving away corn to persons who will shuck and haul it out of the field.

In his last report, issued on the 12th inst., the Commissioner of agriculture says: "The rapid rise in price and favorable weather has increased the acreage of wheat. The acreage is now 96 per cent., as compared with 1895. The stand is almost perfect. The corn crop is smaller than usual. The condition of hogs is only 84 per cent., because of cholera. The low price of wool has caused a falling off in sheep. There are 813,625 in the State now; there were 903,615 in 1895. Other livestock is in good condition. Apples show a 41 per cent. crop."

A dispatch from Circleville, Ohio, says:

"A disease commonly supposed to be cholera, but which resembles that dreaded contagion only in its malignancy, is destroying the hogs in this county by the hundreds. It has all the symtoms of typhoid fever, but as yet no one has been able to discover a cause for the strange malady. It appears unexpectedly in one part of the county, where it reigns with unwonted virulence until the hogs are nearly wiped out, when it will suddenly shift to another part of the county remote from its last ravages and begin its dreadful slaughter in droves that have always been isolated and in no wise exposed. The flesh becomes putrid, which appears in excrescences on the surface, and the flesh sloughs off, leaving a ghastly-looking object. So far nothing has been found to allay the suffering or mitigate the malignancy, and the hog product of this county will be almost a total failure."

POLITICAL.

A majority, if not all, of the Silver Clubs in Carroll will continue their organization.—News.

Next year Kentucky will elect a Clerk of the Court of Appeals. It is the only State officer to elect.

The Lexington Board of Aldermen, for the first time in the history of the city, has a Republican majority.

Mr. Carlisle is reported as saying that he is tired of official life, and hopes he will not be made Senator by the Kentucky legislature.

The President has pardoned a horse thief. But for Treasury clerks who supported Mr. Bryan there is no forgiveness.—N. Y. Journal.

Tom Reed has a manner of doing his own thinking and talking which renders him ineligible for a position in the McKinley Cabinet. —N. Y. Journal.

An effort will be made in the East to prevent Congress making any concession to silver, and to this end President Cleveland is expected to lend his influence even after his retirement.

J. Soule Smith, free-silver man, is contesting R. P. Stoll's election to the Legislature from Lexington. Illegal votes are alleged, besides Stoll was an asylum Director at the time of his election.

It would be well for President McKinley to put a gold Democrat in his cabinet. The aid which this element rendered to the Republican party suggests this recognition. —Lawrenceburg Press.

The Covington Bimetallic Club, which is being organized by well-known Democrats, including Alex Davezac, Ed. Hickey and others, is meeting with considerable success. It is claimed that a membership of 800 is now assured.

T. Sanders Orr has sold his interest in the Carrollton News to his partner, Geo. S. Lee. Mr. Orr is too good a newspaper man to be out of the business long.

Judge W. B. Fleming, of Louisville, chief of the law and record division of the supervising architect's office, was dismissed because he took an active part for Bryan. Why not fire Republican politicians who lent their assistance to McKinley, and begin with John G. Carlisle, the fellow whose "rot was answered with rot?"—Augusta Chronicle.

If the position taken by Breckinridge is correct that the holding of a primary on the same day as the general election, invalidates the latter, we may never have another President or Congressman. All that our Republican friends will have to do will be to hold a primary in all the Democratic counties on the day of the election, and thus throw out the votes.—Owen News.

The 2,000,000 Democrats who elected McKinley had no thought of office or other spoils. Don't insult their patriotism with such a suggestion. All the reward they ask is good government. They don't want another McKinley bill, nor another Wall-street President, nor another Secretary of the Treasury who can be bamboozled by bond syndicates, nor another Attorney-General who will sneer at the laws against trusts and monopolies. They want simply sound money and just government.—New York World.

Kentucky's delegation in the next Congress will be divided as follows:

First District—C. K. Wheeler, Dem.

Second District—J. D. Clardy, Dem.

Third District—John J. Rhea, Dem.

Fourth District—David H. Smith, Dem.

Fifth District—Walter Evans, Rep.

Sixth District—A. S. Berry, Dem.

Seventh District—Evan E. Settle, Dem.

Eighth District—G. M. Davidson, Rep.

Ninth District—Sam J. Pugh, Rep.

Tenth District—T. Y. Fitzpatrick, Dem.

Eleventh District—David G. Colson, Rep.

Mathews Has the Lead in Campbell County.

The Newport correspondent of the Covington Commonwealth says:

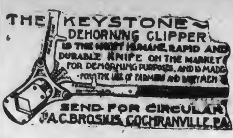
"If the friends of Tom Mathews are as numerous and as active in other parts of the District as they are in this county, then the fellow in opposition to him for the Collectorship had better take warning. There is undoubtedly a strong pull being made from this county to secure for him the collectorship, and his friends are pushing his claims for all there's in them, making most of the fact that he ran a splendid race against Congressman Berry in 1894, and claim that thereby he paved the way to ultimate victory of the party in the State.

"So far as Campbell County is concerned it may be set down right now that she expects to have the naming of the next collector by virtue of the fact that she did best for the party and the further fact that for years her Democratic sister Kenton, has been receiving all the juicy parts of the Federal pie."

Rev. J. Willis, of Palmyra, tells the Greenup Democrat of a pumpkin vine in his garden from which he gathered sixty-four pumpkins, all good-sized and in good condition. He left two on the vine because they would not do to use. After they had been gathered and piled up it took two bed quilts to cover them. Who can beat this?

Henry Blankinship, who claimed to be the oldest man in Kentucky, died at his home near Fairview, of a complication of diseases, aged 120 years. He was born in Virginia in 1776, he said, and moved to Kentucky and married years before the War of 1812. He was the father of 15 children, 11 of whom are still living, the oldest being past 80 years of age.

The friends of Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, are very much concerned about his health, which appears to be gradually growing worse.

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
OF UP TO DATE
CHESTER WHITE HOGS.


THE KEYSTONE
DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
A.C.BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.
Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.

AEROMETER
EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.
COME AND SEE IT.
Write for circulars.
T. J. HUGHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

1896.

Your County Paper
Is the One to
Subscribe for,
It Gives all the
Neighborhood News,
Court News and
General News.

The Recorder

$1.50 will Pay for it
Until Jan. 1st, 1898.

Give It a Trial and Help
Along Home EnterPrise.

E. H. RIGGS,
Dealer in
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
CEMENT, ETC.
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

NOTICE.

All persons holding claims against J. R. Clutterbuck must present them to me at my office in Burlington, Ky., proven as by law required and persons indebted to the said Clutterbuck must settle with me at once.

S. W. TOLIN, Assignee.
Sept. 10th, 1896.

Wm. F. GOETZE

Scientific Optician.
Headquarters at Hornberger's Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.
Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

Subscribe for the Recorder.

THE QUEEN & CRESCENT
ROUTE
Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain.
The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.
Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.
Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.
Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1896. NO. 5.

ON which platform will McKinley finally plant himself—the one adopted at St. Louis or the one adopted at Indianapolis? If he stands by the St. Louis platform he is pledged to work for bimetallism on an international basis, which is objectionable to gold monometallist, a very strong element in his party. If he goes over to the Indianapolis platform he deserts the money plank in the St. Louis platform—the plank to which Hanna ascribes the credit of holding in line thousands of Republicans in the Central West. The gold monometallists in the East, who contributed so liberally to the Republican campaign fund, expect to have a great deal to say as to the policy of the next administration, and if they fail to get the financial plank of the Indianpolis platform substituted for the financial plank adopted by the Republicans at St. Louis, they will be badly disappointed and make more trouble for McKinley than can now be imagined. The men who contributed the larger portion of the Republican campaign fund expect the next administration to bow the knee to them as has been done in the past, and their great wealth, the usefulness of which in a campaign can not be denied, is a great and powerful inducer along that line.

* * *

THE Courier-Journal claims that the gold standard Democrats hold the balance of power in this State, basing its claim on the assertion that 40,000 or 50,000 of them voted for McKinley. The returns show that Palmer and Buckner received between 5,000 and 6,000 votes in Kentucky, and those who cast them are the only gold Democrats of which there is any record, and the Courier-Journal could have placed the figures at 100,000 as well as at 50,000, and would have equally as good evidence to sustain them.

* * *

COME to think about it sixteen million dollars is a handsome campaign fund. That is the amount Mr. Hanna raised for the last campaign—not quite one dollar for each voter in the United States. Mr. Hanna was so economical with the funds that he had two million dollars left over, and with that he proposes to keep employed at fat salaries a lot of clerks at Republican headquarters, which are to kept open as long as the money lasts.

* * *

THIS year's raw sugar supply of the world surpasses that of 1895, notwithstanding the enormous Cuban deficit, according to official statistics received at the Department of State from Consul General Karel, of St. Petersburg. Mr. Karel reports that the Russian wheat and rye shortage will be more than made up by the increased beet sugar production and adds that this increase is common to other European countries.

* * *

AT Yonkers, New York, a carpet mill which gave employment to 7,000 persons, has shut down. It did not hold up a lot of orders previous to the election for political purposes, and, thereby, had no material for manufacturing a wave of prosperity as was done by many concerns immediately after the election.

* * *

WHILE seated around your bountifully laden table to-morrow, think of the thousands of poor persons who have not a morsel with which to satisfy their hunger. Are you contributing in any way to relieve distressed humanity?

* * *

THE Cubans have proven themselves good fighters, and have the sympathy of this country in their heroic struggle for independence, and they would appreciate it greater were it in a more tangible form.

* * *

THE canvass for county and district offices will be on in good shape now in a few weeks. The woods are full of prospective candidates, and a lively campaign it will be. May the best men win.

EAT and be happy to-morrow.

* * *

EAT your turkey to-morrow and be thankful that you have it to eat.

* * *

THE Trimble Banner has reduced its size and now goes at fifty cents a year.

* * *

THE gold Democrats in this State have made their organization permanent.

* * *

ABOUT all the Republicans in Owenton want the postoffice at that place.

* * *

THE crop of candidates for county offices as compared with the last crop, is 100—condition, good.

* * *

THE electoral vote stands 272 for McKinley and 175 for Bryan. Of the 45 States 23 were carried by McKinley and 22 by Bryan.

* * *

IF reports are true the country is flooded with gold. Let the flood continue to increase, the farmers are in a condition to enjoy it.

* * *

BY means of the X rays scientists expect to be able to make the blind see. Recent experiments on that line have proven very satisfactory.

* * *

THE legislature will be called as soon as the Republicans and the gold Democrats can perfect a fusion. That is all that is in the way.

* * *

MARK HANNA is the greatest political manipulator of the age, and Major McKinley will need him very close at hand during his administration.

* * *

IT is claimed that Hon. George Leiberth, of Newport, has received from Mr. Hanna his commission as pie dispenser of this Congressional district.

* * *

SOME of the leading Republicans think Bryan ought to have gone into obscurity after the election, but they should bear in mind that intellect will shine until death.

* * *

THAT people may know what he has, or rather has not done in his office, J, Sterling Morton, Secretary of Agriculture, will publish a book, the only way for him to obtain favorable mention.

* * *

THE New York sun says: "It is indeed doubtful if any Democrat nominated on Mr. Cleveland's platfrom and indorsing his administration. could have carried half the states or received half the popular vote recorded in favor of Bryan."

* * *

THE Williamstown Courier devoted a large portion of its space, last week, to the pictures and "write-ups" of several good Grant county Democrats, who want county offices. Among the announcements is that of editor Westover, who wants to be judge of the county court.

* * *

ENGLAND is strengthening her military posts in Canada, but just why she is so active in that territory is a puzzle to the military bosses in this country. It may be that England anticipates trouble over the Alaska bounadry line. But if reports are true she need have no fear of trouble on that account, as this country appears inclined to permit her to do as she pleases in that region.

* * *

THE election laws should be rigously enforced, and if there were half as many frauds committed in the Eleventh district as the Democrats claim, they ought to be able to materially increase the number of occupants of felons' cells in this State, and unless they do succeed in showing to the world that their charges of fraud are sustained by facts, they become subjects of derision. The prosecution and conviction of those guilty of election frauds is the only way to protect the ballot box, and with all the frauds claimed in the Eleventh, the Democrats have an opportunity to show their hands in an effort to protect the ballot box and purify elections.

* * *

In all there are 767 Kentuckians connected with the Treasury Department.

HON. WM. LYONS, of Newport, is noted as a person who talks freely, but his most voluble moments are those spent in considering some matter in which Gov. Bradley has some personal interest. He is not particularly in love with the Governor, although a Republican, and will not turn a wheel to assist in advancing his Senatorial aspirations. Lyons says that a Cincinnati paper, at the instance of the Governor, sent a circular to each Republican member of the legislature in Kentucky for the purpose of ascertaining their views on the Senatorial situation, and that when the returns were all in the Governor was shown not to be in the race for Senator even a little bit, and about that time the urgent necessity for an extra session of the Legislature seems to have vanished from the Executive mind, and Mr. Lyons is of the opinion that there will be no extra session because Bradley cannot be elected Senator.

* * *

"No doubt," says Word and Works, "those who, in the heat of political excitement, called their fellow citizens 'revolutionists, anarchists, incendiaries and repudiationists,' now have perfect confidence in the loyalty and patriotism of those who differed with them. Whether or not they are ashamed of such unwarranted and unkind accusations and epithets, or whether they would have shown immediate and perfect acquiescence in the voice of the majority if it had been against them—we will not presume to decide. When honest, loyal, free American citizens cannot hold manly and independent convictions on all great, national questions, without having such hateful accusations flung in their faces, by concerted arrangement and action of political managers, the glory of our free, republican America is sadly in decline. Shame upon the man or party perpetrating such an outrage! In an hour when our country's safety depends upon burning powder and shedding blood, these rash partisan slanderers of their fellow-countrymen are the men to watch."

* * *

A MEETING of farmers was held in the Longview neighborhood to consider the labor problem and other kindred subjects, says the Hopkinsville Kentuckian. The farmers will next year reduce their labor expenses about one-third. Schedules of prices will be adopted. and all will adhere to it. The best hand will be paid $8 a month and board. Cheaper hands will be paid $6 and $7 a month. Contracts will not be made for the year, as it will be cheaper to hire by the month and reduce or increase the number of hands as it becomes necessary. In this way the farmers expect to save at least a third in their labor accounts. Another new departure will be to charge interest on money or provisions advanced to share hands. Some say they will try this plan, while others have quit giving orders altogether, but will divide the proceeds of the crops when they are sold, and not run open accounts through the year, which always gives dissatisfaction to the tenants when settled, and frequently results in expensive lawsuits. One of the best farmers in the Longview neighborhood says he will give the "no order" plan a trial from now on. Still other farmers will quit the expensive and uncertain negro labor altogether. A prominent Casky farmer has made arrangements to work white share hands next year, and one of the largest planters near Beverly has nailed up six cabins, and will put most of his land in wheat and grass, which can be harvested with day hands.

* * *

BRYAN received more votes than any man ever received for the presidency prior to November 3d, 1896, and a greater electoral vote than any candidate that was ever defeated. A $16,000,000 campaign fund was a necessity with the Republicans in the last contest.

THE Twenty-third Ohio regiment in the late war has had two Presidents of the United States chosen from its membership—Hayes and McKinley.

* * *

IT having been suggested to Mr. Carlisle that he might be tendered the treasury portfolio in the McKinley cabinet, he said he would not accept it—that he is as good a Democrat as he ever was.

* * *

THE Ohio Department of Agriculture reports that the area of wheat sown in that State this fall for the harvest of next year is estimated to be 6 per cent. less in amount than the area seeded in the fall of 1895, but the total acres are more than was actually harvested the present year, for the reason that about 11 per cent. of the wheat seeded in the fall of 1895 was plowed up the following spring.

* * *

In view of the big majority given by the free silver men in this Senatorial District, it is but right and proper that our Senator, Hon. R. H. Elliston, should voice their sentiments and vote for Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn for U. S. Senator should there be a called session of the Legislature this winter. In England, when the people declare against the Legislature, it dissolves or resigns, ordering a new election. Will our Senator vote as the people have so clearly declared their wishes or will he resign? Good taste would dictate one or the other.—Bracken Chronicle.

* * *

"A conference of nations," says the Washington Post, "on the subject of the world's wheat market is understood to be desired by at least one of the great foreign wheat-growing empires. It is stated in official circles here that Russia is particularly friendly to such an idea, and is believed to be making overtures, not only to the United States but to England, the Argentine Republic and Australia, which are the principal wheat growing nations of the world. The idea suggested, as outlined here, is that these nations, should they see fit to unite in an agreement upon the subject, could fix a price for wheat, to be maintained uniformly through various seasons of overproduction and unsatisfactory crops caused by drought or continual rains, and thus make the principal grain staple upon which the millions of consumers depend for food almost as unchangeable in value as gold itself has become. This would enable the producer, in the event of an unusually large crop, to store his wheat and obtain thereon a loan that would tide him over until the wheat was in demand in the world's markets, when he would receive a full and fair price for it."

* * *

T. B. Baker, a well known farmer, of Graves county, shot and killed his wife, and then shot himself twice through the heart. A divorce suit was pending between Baker and his wife.

John W. Bass, of Paducah, died last Friday under peculiar circumstances. His nose began to bleed, and so continued until he bled to death. His case baffled the physicians.

Jere Caldwell, of Boyle, has bought 3,000 barrels of corn at from 75c to $1 shucked, and in the field, at the latter price the fodder has been thrown in.

There is not a criminal case on the docket of the Letcher county circuit court. It is the first time the docket has been clear for 60 years.

A gospel car that is touring the State is now at Hopkinsville. It is well fitted up for the comfort of the traveling ministers.

The Warren county grand jury returned four indictments charging bribery in the recent election.

Breathitt county's defaulting sheriff has been captured.

A wave of spiritualism has struck Lexington.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson.
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup'nt of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, Sam S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M. Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W Lester.
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill. Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George; Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; J. F. Dempsey, H. S. Irwin. Secretary-Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday; Add Ridnell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896,
AT WALTON, KY.

Three Courses of Study to choose from:
English, Scientific or Classical,

Tuition per month for Higher Branches.............. $3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches.............. 2.50

We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2 00 for five days.

Teachers. { Mrs. S. H. MYERS. CHAS. F. PRIOR. Rev. S. H. MYERS.

Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.

J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky.
OSCAR GAINES Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. COWEN, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administratrix Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of L. E. Clore, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

ANNIE L. CLORE, Adm'rx.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDEL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON,
DENTIST,
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
MAIN OFFICE—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

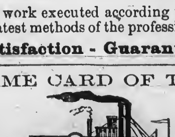
W. E. VEST. B. L. RICE.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL.............................. $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 17,000
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN.................. $50,000
SURPLUS.............................. $ 2.600
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE



STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:50 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 2:50 pm; 4:30 pm;
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 8:30 am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm. Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5:15 pm.
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:10 am; 10:00 am; 12:40 pm; 3:00 pm; 4:45 pm.
ELIHU ALDEN, Master.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON. : : : KY.

CURRENT TOPICS.

THE south has 500 cotton mills.

GREEN snow is found in Iceland, South America, and near the mouth of the Obi.

HOPKINSON SMITH, the artist, asserts that the only good Armenian is a dead Armenian.

THE pressure of atmosphere on a man's body is nearly fourteen and a half tons.

ALL Leadville letter carriers struck because the department refused to entertain a grievance.

EYES that are wide apart are said by physiognomists to indicate great intelligence and tenacious memory.

IT is said that in London alone over 100,000 men, women and children gain their daily bread by pocket picking.

THE geysers of the Yellowstone national park are failing. Their force has fallen off 50 per cent. in 16 years.

MRS. ROSA SONNMNSCHEIN edits the only publication in the world devoted to the interests of the Jewish women.

LLOYD OSBOURNE, a stepson of the late Robert Louis Stevenson, has been appointed United States consul at Samoa.

CHESTER A. ARTHUR, a son of President Arthur, is making a tour of the far west with his sister, Miss Nellie Arthnr.

NEARLY five hundred men have been added this year to the New York police force, and 485 more are to be appointed.

IN Melbourne a woman gets two pence half-penny for making a shirt, while a Chinaman gets five pence for washing it.

AN organized movement is on foot in New York to change the national election date from November to some time in the summer.

DURING his entire career Stradivarius made from 6,000 to 7,000 violins. Few of these were sold for more than £5 during his life. Now some of them command £2,000 each.

A CATERPILLAR in the course of one month will devour 6,000 times its weight in food. It takes a man nearly three months to eat a quantity of food equal to his own weight.

A PRINCESS, a countess, a duchess and the daughter of a reigning prince were among the 4,000 thieves, professsional and unprofessional, arrested in Paris during the first six months of this year.

CALIFORNIA, in the recent election, defeated a constitutional amendment which would have granted woman's suffrage by only 15,000 majority, and over 85,000 votes were cast by men in its favor.

MISS HELEN GOULD is making great preparations to receive and entertain her sister, the Countess Castellane. It is understood that Miss Gould, who has hitherto kept quite secluded, will give a number of large entertainments this winter.

CONTRARY to general belief, the Sahara is not a barren and worthless waste. Some time ago there were 9,000,000 sheep in the Algerian Sahara alone, besides 2,000,000 goats and 260,-thousand camels. On the oases there are 1,500,000 date palms.

THOMAS J. BRADLEY, who defeated Timothy J. Campbell in the Ninth New York congressional district, will not only be the youngest member of the Fifty-fifth congresa, but claims to be the youngest man ever elected to the house. Mr. Bradley is 26.

CIRCUS rings always are uniform in size. Circus horses are trained to perform in a standard ring 42 feet in diameter. In a larger or a smaller ring their pace becomes uneven, irregular and unreliable, and the riders in turning somersaults are liable to miscalculate the curve and miss their footing.

A VERY beautiful work of art, a Christ in ivory, now on view in Paris, is to be presented to the czar by the clergy of France. It weighs 75 pounds, is composed of a single piece of ivory, is exquisite in design and perfect in workmanship. It is valued at $40,-000, and was once the property of the unfortunate Queen Marie Antoinette.

The prince of Monaco is not at all a society man. He is intensely shy, and devotes himself to study and science. He spends a great deal of his time in yachting, and the regions he selects for his cruises are those in which seaweeds abound in the greatest quantity and variety. Ocean botany is his hobby, and he has the finest collection of seaweeds in existence.

THEY say that those spoons which Gen. Butler was accused of stealing from the St. Charles hotel in New Orleans, or at least two of them, are yet in the hands of the man who really did take them—Capt. John Budd, tollhouse keeper at Wiscasset, Me. He showed them recently to two New Orleana young men, one of whom is grandson to the then owner of the St. Charles.

A CLAIM is put forth that the czar is to some extent a Scotaman. Czar Paul, when in London, is said to have fallen in love with a Miss MacGregor, a young lady noted for her beauty, who happened to be riding her Shetland pony in Hyde park. He married her privately, so the story goes, and she was the mother of Nicholas I. The present czar would, therefore, be her great grandson.

QUEEN MARGHERITA, of Italy, resides in a palace 765 feet long. The grounds are a marvel of landscape gardening. One hundred and forty horses are at her command, and there are over one hundred conveyances, two of the state carriages being upholstered in brocaded satin.

THE French president travels free on the railways during his official tours in France; but when the return journey is concluded, it is said that his secretary calculates what it would have cost if paid for at regular rates, and this sum is handed over to be distributed among the poorest paid of the railway men.

FORTIFYING.

Report of the Board of Ordnance and Fortifications.

The Principal Ports Will Present a Formidable Front to an Attacking Fleet—Guns and Carriages That Are Equal to Any in the World.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The annual report of the board of ordnance and fortifications, composed of Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Col. Royal T. Frank, first artillery; Col. Peter C. Haines, corps of engineers; Maj. F. H. Phipps, ordnance department; Capt. J. C. Ayres and ex-Representative J. H. Outhwaite was made public Tuesday. It says:

"Under the increased appropriations of the present fiscal year the work of placing our harbors in a proper state of defense is making good progress and if only the same sums are appropriated annually for a few years, our principal ports will present a formidable front to an attacking fleet. It is hoped, however, that even more liberal appropriations will be made in order that we may sooner be ready for an emergency that may arise at any time. In view of the present serious aspect of European politics, it is only common prudence for this nation to be on its guard, for should a conflict arise we are liable to be embroiled with some power whose navy, in the present defenseless condition of our coasts, might destroy or exact enormous ransoma from our chief cities.

A war, if it comes at all, will come with no warning and no time for preparation. China, with undefended ports and an inadequate navy, was defeated in a few months. In the last war between the great military powers of Germany and France, the surrender at Sedan occurred only forty days after the declaration of war.

The wars of nations occur in cycles of varying length but seldom does a general convention pass without a great conflict. Already more than thirty years have elapsed since our last great war and another may soon, if the past be a guide to the future, terminate one of the longest intervals of peace we have ever enjoyed.

Our engineer department is ready with the most modern plans for fortifications, and our ordnance department is prepared with designs for guns and carriages that are equal to any in the world. If congress will but increase the appropriations to the capacity of those departments for useful and economical work, it will not be long before our coasts are secure against the attack of foreign powers. An effective preparation for war is the best safeguard against war.

The board is more than ever convinced of the wisdom of the recommendation it made in its last annual report that regular annual appropriations be made for seacoaat defenses and their armament.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

Of President Cleveland Severely Censured by the Hebrews of Cleveland, O.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 18.—President Cleveland is being severely censured in Hebrew circles. In his last Thanksgiving day proclamation Mr. Cleveland did what no other president ever did—mentioned Christ. Rabbi Machol, of the Scoville Avenue temple, said Tuesday:

"I believe the president exceeded the prerogatives of his office and all precedent by making reference to a mediating influence in religious affairs. The Jews recognize no mediator between man and God. I do not believe that the president was influenced by biased motives, bnt his proclamation could be constrned as a secular declaration. I intend to make a public declaration of my views on this matter next Sunday. I do not think the matter is so serious as to reqnire a lengthy comment but its serious possibilities can not be overlooked. The president tells us to implore forgiveness of our sins and a continuation of Heavenly favor through the mediation of Him who taught us how to pray. I vould be inclined to let the matter pass unnoticed if it did not interfere with one of the principle tenets of the Jewish faith which recognizes no medium between man and God."

ARMY OF THE TENNESSEE.

Twenty-Third Annual Meeting of Survivors at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.—The Twenty-third annual meeting of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee will be held here Wednesday and Thursday. Gen. Granville M. Dodge, of Iowa, president of the society, arrived Tuesday evening from New York with a party consisting of Gen. D. S. Stanley, Gen. O. O. Howard, Gen. J. S. Fullerton, Gen. J. A. Williamson, Col. Frederick D. Grant, P. T. Sherman, son of the late Gen. Sherman, and Capt. G. Howard, of the regular army, a son of Gen. Howard. These gentlemen are quartered at the Southern hotel, which will be headquarters for the sooiety. An elaborate programme for the entertainment of the visitors is prepared.

Agricultural Books in Schools.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—At the meeting of the National Grange, Patrona of Husbandry, Tuesday, a resolution introduced by Mr. Cox, of New Jersey, was adopted urging the use of agriculture text books iu the public schools. The remainder of the session waa devoted to reporta of masters of atate granges, which were generally of an encouraging nature.

A. S. Clay Elected Senator.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 18.—The general assembly Tuesday elected Alexander Stephens Clay United States senator for the term commencing March 4, 1897. The republicans voted for J. F. Hanaon, of Macon, and the populiats cast their ballots for Gen. Phillips, of Marietta.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The gold reserve at the close of business Tuesday stood at $126,181,088. There was withdrawn from the New York sub-treasury $44,200 in gold and $29,700 in bara leaving a net gain in gold of $383,000.

THE MEXICANS

Believe That Spain, in the Event of a War With the United States, Would Attempt to Seize That Country and Use It as a Base of Supplies.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—J. W. Grace, agent for the Mexican government, bought 116 gun wagons of a Chicago firm for use in the Mexican army. Grace has placed orders for uniforms, ambulances, ammunition and war supplies in Europe and the United States. In Cincinnati he contracted for 6,000 overcoats for officers. In Paris he contracted for arms.

The contract made was for heavy artillery with the Krupp Co. All supplies are to be delivered within 60 days, some within 30 days. Mexico is quietly preparing for war between Spain and the United States. She has increased her army to 50,000 men. She is negotiating a loan in New York and buying vessela in that city. Mexico believes that Spain, in the event of war, would try to seize Mexico and hold the country as a base of supplies. She could also use the Mexican harbors for naval rendesvouz.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—A special cable dispatch from Havana says: No interest is manifested here in the minor skirmishes in the island. All eyes are on Gen. Weyler's movements.

Gen. Castellano's official report of the actions in Puerto Principe has been received. It does not add materially to the story sent Monday.

Gen. Echague was seen at the hospital Tuesday. He was sleeping after a bad night. W. J. Brown, the Englishman now in prison here, has been ordered to leave the island and never come back. He goes to England. He is well known in Havana.

William G. Fitzgerald, who said he was a "West Point graduate, and a lieutenant in the Seventh cavalry," who came here last week to join the patriots has disappeared. He had not made any financial arrangements with the Junta, and was unarmed. He is believed to have returned to New York by the Ward line steamer on Saturday.

Two thousand troops paraded in honor of the fete of the patron saint of Havana Monday.

HAVANA, Nov. 19.—The reticence maintained by Capt. Gen. Weyler, who is supposed to be chasing the Cubans, is construed here to mean that the Spanish forces have suffered a reverse. No news from Weyler means good news for the patriots. It is construed here that had he encountered and repulsed Maceo's army the cables would have been burdened with the news to Madrid and Washington.

PRELIMINARY STEPS

Taken for Calling a Conference of Representatives of Commercial Bodies of the Middle West.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 19.—At a special meeting of the governing committee of the board of trade held Wednesday night, preliminary steps were taken for calling a conference to be held in this city of representatives of the commercial bodies of the middle west. The conference is called for December 1, and will consider the advisability of calling a national convention of boards of trade and commercial organizations which shall in turn consider the advisability of appointing a commission to take suggestions to congresa on currency reform.

B. H. Hama, a member of the board of trade, is one of the leaders in the movement. He was present and by invitation delivered an address, in which he explained the objects hoped to be accomplished by the preliminary steps taken by the committee.

The preliminary convention of boards of trade from the middle west, he said, was for the purpoae of considering the advisability of calling a national convention of commercial organizations to discuss needed improvements in the financial system of the country. He said the western states would not take the initiative in such a movement, and the east could not do it effectively. Therefore, he believed the duty for the states of the middle weat, the states that had been the battleground in the recent struggle, to start the movement. His notion, as embodied in the resolution adopted later, was that a national convention should ultimately be held, which should thoroughly discuss the problem and appoint a commission to digest the ideas advanced and present recommendations to congress upon the subject. The resolution, also offered by Judge E. B. Martindale, and adopted by the board, invited a conference to be held here December 1, of three delegates from each of 40 boards of trade, including thoae of Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo, Columbus, Springfield, O., Dayton, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, St. Louia, Des Moines, Omaha, Peoria, Evansville, Louisville—in fact all the cities of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Nebraska, Kentucky, Tennessee, Iowa, Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Trade Schools for Indian and Colored Youths.

FT. MONROE, Va., Nov. 19.—The Hampton Normal and Agricultural institute haa added another important factor in the education of the Indian and colored youth by the opening of the Armstrong and Slater Trade School building, which took place with impressive ceremonics. A large party of distinguished visitors arrived from the North Wednesday morning to assist in the ceremony, among them President Gilman, of Johns Hopkins university.

Li Hung Chang to Retire.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Times Thursday printed a Singapore dispatch saying it is rumored there that Li Hung Chang has become disgusted at the treatment he has received at the hands of his government since his return to China from his foreign tour and has consequently decided to retire to private life.

Eight Jurors Selected.

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 19.—Eight jurors were selected Wednesday morning to try W. E. Burt, charged with the slaughter of his wife and two children in this city last July.

GEN. DODGE

Re-Elected President of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee.

Andrew Hickenlooper, of Cincinnati, Elected Corresponding Secretary—Milwaukee Selected for the Reunion in 1897—Important Amendment.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20.—At Thursday morning's session of the twenty-eighth reunion of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Gen. G. M. Dodge, Iowa, (re-elected.)

Vice Presidents—F. H. Madgeburg, Milwaukee; Capt. W. B. Leach, Minneapolis; Maj. Wm. Warner, Kansas City; Col. W. P. Hepburn, Clarindon, Ia.; Gen. Theo. Jones, Columbus, O.; Col. C. G. Warner and Maj. H. L. Morrill, St. Louis; Lieut. D. A. Mulvane, Topeka, Kaa; Capt. W. T. Rigby, Mt. Vernon, Ia.; Col. W. A. Jenkins and Capt. J. Leroy Bennett, Chicago; Capt. C. C. Chadwick, Detroit.

Corresponding Secretary—Gen. Andrew Hickenlooper, Cincinnati, O.

Treasurer—Gen. M. F. Force, State Soldiers' home, Erie county, O.

Recording Secretary—Col. Cornelius Cadle, Cincinnati, O.

Maj. Wm. Warner, of Kansas City, was selected as orator for 1897.

Milwaukee was selected as the city in which the next annual reunion in 1897 will be held, and a vote of thanks was tendered to the mayor, chamber of commerce and city officials for their invitation. The date of the reunion will be decided upon by the president and local committee.

Col. Fred D. Grant, of New York, presented an amendmeent to the constitution, admitting to membership the sons of members of the society as soon as they reach the age of 21 years. The resolution will be voted upon at the next annual reunion.

The report of the committee accepting the contract of Carl Rohl-Smith, of Chicago, to erect a statue of Gen. W. T. Sherman, in Washington, was approved. It calls for an equestrian figure of Gen. Sherman and the statue will be erected on a plot of ground nearly opposite the south end of the treasury building, at Washington.

A DRAMATIC END

To the Trial of Rev. James C. Hull, for Poisoning His Wife.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 20.—The trial of Rev. James C. Hull, for the poisoning of his wife, came to a dramatic end Thursday afternoon. Mr. Hull changing his plea to guilty. A few minutes before noon Prosecuting Attorney Butler placed in evidence a letter which Hull wrote last February to a pastor in California, saying his wife was slowly dying of a cancer and that she could not live the year out. This letter contradicted Hull's previous testimony, and especially as it had been shown that Mrs. Hull did not have a cancer and that Hull was aware of the fact, having been told so by Dr. Hawkins, his family physician. At the opening of the afternoon session, S. L. Pierce, Hull's attorney, advised Hull that the California letter in effect convicted him and counselled a plea of guilty. This Hull did, and Judge Egan sentenced him to six years in state prison in Stillwater. Hull had insured his wife's life for $2,000 and spent several weeks trying to poison her with arsenic.

THE ANNUAL BALL

Of the Daughters of the Confederacy—Mrs. Jefferson Davis and Daughter and Several Union Generals Present.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20.—For six successive years the annual ball of the Daughters of the Confederacy has been the society event of the season in this city, and Thursday night the immense hall of the Merchants' exchange was crowded with "the children of the lost cause" and their guests.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis, the venerable widow of the leader of the confederacy, and daughter Winnie, were guests of honor. It is Mrs. Davis' first visit to St. Louis since here husband was a union soldier and stationed at Jefferson barracks fifty years ago.

A notable incident of the evening was the visit to the ball room of a number of union generals in attendance at the reunion of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee and their presentation to Mrs. Davis and the wives and daughters of those who wore the gray.

Big Failure in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20.—Receivers have been appointed for Johnson, Omobundro & company, one of the largest dealers in dry goods, notions and shoes in Baltimore. The petition was filed by a member of the firm. It is alleged that the firm has assets of $189,000 against liabilities of $133,000, but collections can not be made to meet pressing obligations. Two receivers were named to wind up the affairs of the company, being bonded for $350,000.

One Hundred Thousand Rifles.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 20.—The Register Thursday afternoon printed a story that the government "Before noon to-morrow" would place an order with the Winchester Arms Co. for one hundred thousand rifles of the Lee pattern—the standard small arms of the American navy. This announcement is made on the authority of a statement by a commercial agent who had it from an official of the Winchester Co.

Goebel May Be Ousted.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 20.—A sound-money democrat in the interior of the state is authority for the statement that if Blackburn's friends show a disposition to resort to the tacitcs employe: last year sound-money members of the state senate, democrats and republicans together, will re-organize the senate and elect a national democrat as a successor to President pro tem Goebel. "It is believed," said the sound-money democrat, "that the republicans would join us. We have nothing against Goebel in particular but we want to show the Bryan men a trick or two."

THREE MEN

Under Arrest Charged With Being the Assailants of Hon. Frank P. Arbuckle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The central office detectives have arrested three men on suspicion of being the assailants of Hon. Frank P. Arbuckle, of Denver, Col., who was found unconscious and dying at Eighth avenue and 152d street early Thursday morning. Capt. O'Brien detailed Detectives Vallely, Mannion, Murphy, Cale and Thompson to investigate the case. They learned that on Wednesday night Arbuckle was seen in the company of a gambler named George Stevens, in Luchow's restaurant on 140th street, near Union square, with two other men. The detectives arrested Stevena Thursday night. He is 53 years old. Stevens at first denied all knowledge of Arbucklo or having been in his company. After being locked up for awhile, Joseph Davidson, 20 years old, who said he was a stenographer, was confronted with Stevena in his cell. When Davidson saw Stevens in the lockup, he said: "Well, I see you are in trouble, too, about Arbuckle." Stevens made no reply. When Davidson was searched one of Arbuckle's cards was found in his pocket. The detectives also arrested Fred Menger, 22 years old, a bartender.

Menger says they were all together in Luchow's restaurant and that Stevens was trying to induce Arbuckle to go up town and play cards. Menger had a row in front of the restaurant, when he puched Davidson. He says he does not know what became of Arbuckle after that. On the card found in Davidson's pocket was an appointment to meet Arbuckle some time Thursday.

Chalses Butler, a Negro night watchman, arrested late Thursday night on suspicion of having some knowledge of the death and supposed robbery of Mr. Arbuckle, was discharged from custody Friday morning. The police have become satisfied that Butler knew nothing about the case.

It is now the belief of the police that Arbucle was first drugged, then placed in a cab somewhere downtown, taken to Bradhurst avenue and 152d street and robbed and then carried to the sidewalk on Eighth avenue and left to die.

The best sleuths on the police force are now engaged on this case and surprising developments may be made public at any moment.

A COLLUSION

Between Gamblers and Certain Jacksonville Authorities—One Firm Pays Between $250 and $500 a Month for Police Protection.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 21.—During an investigation by the Jacksonville city council Friday night of charges of collusion between the police department of the city and the keepers of gambling houses, W. C. Feinbach, one of the proprietors of the Duval Social and Athletic club, declared that his house had paid ont from $250 to $500 per month for police protection. He declared that the money had been paid to [illegible] Smith, a notorious gambler, as agent, and Smith was instructed to pay Mayor Bostwick $100 per month; Deputy Sheriff W. D. Vanzant $100 per month; Police Commissioner George Burbridge $50 and Chief of Police Jack Keefe $50 per month. The officials all deny that they have ever received one cent of hush money but three gamblers declare the money has been paid regularly. The investigation is still in progress and has developed the fact that after a gambling house was raided last fall, the implementa were secretly restored to the gamblers and have been used ever since in the gambling house from where they were taken.

Councilman J. E. T. Bowden, president of the club that pulled off the Corbett-Mitchell fight, is pushing the investigation. Bowden asserts the city officials have collected thousands of dollars out of the gamblers.

AN ANGRY MOB

Surrounds the House of Detective Bevins—They Will Wreak Vengeance Upon His Return.

CEREDO, W. Va., Nov. 21.—Detectives Clark and Bevins have not been arrested for the murder of the Mounts. The latest news received from Thacker and Delorme Friday morning was to the effect that the house of Detective Bevins was surrounded the entire night by an angry mob of the Mounts, who hope to kill the officer if he shall return there.

Officer Clark, who was shot, is said to be in a critical condition. The Mounts are members of the notorious Wolford and Phillips faction.

The excitement is great. It is feared that many lives will be lost before the foud is ended.

Will be Tried for Wife-Murder.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 21.—Charles O. Kaiser will have to stand trial for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Emma P. Kaiser, who was ahot and killed on the night of October 28. Kaiser was also wounded at the time, and claimed that he had been robbed by highwaymen who shot him and his wife. Some of the alleged stolen articles were afterwards found and Kaiser was arrested, charged with the murder of his wife. The inquest took place Friday morning, and the evidence produced was decidedly against Kaiser. The jury rendered a verdict that she came to her death as the result of a conspiracy entered upon by Kaiser and others.

Bishop Keane's Successor.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21.—The announcement is made here that the holy father has appointed Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Conaty, rector of the church of the Sacred Heart, Worcester, Mass., to succeed Bishop John J. Keane as rector of the Catholic university at Washington, D. C.

Death of Prince Otto.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Prince Otto, of Stolberg-Wernigerode, died Thursday night at Wernigerode. He was born at Gedern, October 30, 1837. He was a general in the Prussian cavalry and president of the Prussian diet.

Eyes

Ears, nose are more or less affected by catarrh, which is caused by impure blood. Cure catarrh by purifying the blood. Remember

Hood's

Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier

Hood's Pills are tasteless, mild, effective. All druggists. 25c.

PERIWINKLE FAD.

Cockney Shellfish Delicacy Grown in the Waters of the Sound.

One of the chief dishes in the cockney bill of fare in England is the periwinkle, a shellfish resembling in shape the small snail, says the New York Journal. It has hitherto been practically unknown to American epicures and is said to be greatly inferior to the species of shellfish eaten in this country.

Of late periwinkles have been offered for sale in a number of stores patronized by the New York colony of cockneys. It is said that all of the periwinkles sold in New York come from New Rochelle. An Englishman living there was in the habit of importing them for his own use. One consignment was much larger than he expected or wanted, and he concluded to try an experiment and see if they could be grown in this country.

He dumped about a bushel in the sound, and, to his surprise and pleasure, they seemed to thrive as well there as in their native English waters. They multiplied rapidly, and he not only found it unnecessary to import any more but had more than he could possibly use. So he has placed them on sale and is deriving a considerable revenue from them.

Don't Start for California

Or Puget Sound until you have written to the undersigned for the Burlington's Sheet of Tourist Rates, Variable Routes and Side Trips. It gives attractions en route, describes train service and personally conducted tourist sleeper excursions to California. L. W. WAKELEY, G. P. A., St. Louis, Mo.

DR. KURNIT (writing a prescription)—"Take this every morning." Pat—"Divil a bit I will. Do yez t'ink Oi'm a dumbed billy-goat, that yez kin fade mo on a bit o' paper?"—Up-to-Date.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

HE—"You're worth 16 of any other of the girls I know." She—"That's the same old compliment. You mean, dear, that I'm worth my weight in gold."—Detroit Free Press.

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe.

CONVICT—"I'm in here for having five wives." Visitor—"How are you enjoying your liberty?"—London Figaro.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

What organ shall I buy?

Why not buy the one which holds the world's record for largest sales—the

ESTEY

Write for Illustrated Catalogue with prices, to Estey Organ Company, Brattleboro, Vt.

Yucatan, It is perfection.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

A REWARD

Of Five Thousand Dollars for Gen. Weyler Dead or Alive.

A Company of Texas Rangers, Armed With Sharp's Needle Rifles, Doing Sharpshooter's Duty—Insurgents Spare Soldiers But Not the Officers.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 20.—A man who gives his name as Carroll, representing a western manufacturer of dynamite, passed through here Thursday on his way home from Cuba. He went over on the last trip the filibustering tug Dauntless made. He says that she transferred her cargo to a fishing smack not far from the Cuban coast. Carroll went on board the smack and was landed at a point within 60 miles of Havana. He made his way through the country to the capital, seeking some of the insurgent leaders in the interior.

Carroll states that the insurgents have a standing offer of $1,000 for every Spanish officer killed and $5,000 for Gen. Weyler, dead or alive. A company of sixty Texas rangers, armed with Sharp's needle rifles, carrying wind gauges and telescopic sights, are in the field doing sharp shooters' duty. Each ranger is accompanied by a native with a field glass. The natives scan the country for officers and wherever one is found the ranger tries to drop him. The rifle weighs 28 pounds and will kill a man five miles away. The rewards account for the high death rate among the officers. The insurgents spare the Spanish soldier as much as possible, believing the privates have no feeling against them. But the rebels have determined to give no quarter to officers.

Carroll said his information has been corroborated from another source that the seat of filibustering operations will be transferred from the south Atlantic coast to the gulf coast.

RESOLUTIONS

Adopted by the National Grange Patrons of Husbandry.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—At the meeting of the National Grange Patrons of Husbandry, Thursday, the report of the committee on resolutions, which was adopted, recommended a stable currency; that United States senators be elected by the people; equal protection for the farmers; pure food legislation; rural mail delivery and referred to the value of the experiment stations and agricultural colleges; expressed sympathy with Cuba and stated that the grange would receive with joy the settlement of the vexed question between England and America. It favored arbitration whenever it can be resorted to without sacrifice of honor.

A lengthy report from the committee on railroads was made by Chairman Mersick, recommending several amendments to the inter-state commerce law to more fully carry out a purpose, the chief one being that the commission have power to make rates.

A resolution, calling upon the incoming administration to give suitable protection to agriculture, so that our national burdens shall be more equitably distributed, after some discussion, was defeated by a small majority.

GROCER SPUTE.

His Arrest on a Sensational Charge at Denver Said to Be Blackmail.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 20.—Intense indignation has been aroused over the arrest of Andrew J. Spute, a grocer, on the charge of murdering his wife and five children, all of whom were drowned by the capsizing of a boat in Smith's lake, October 25. Four eye witnesses of the drowning assert that it was purely accidental, and Spute's friends claim that the arrest is either a subterfuge of the insurance company to avoid payment of a $10,000 accident policy on the life of Mrs. Spute or an attempt by a local detective agency to blackmail the husband. It is alleged that Spute is the victim of a conspiracy between a lawyer and the detective agency. Miss Nellie Davis, Spute's alleged paramour, who was arrested with him, was released on bonds.

Three Dashed Into Eternity.

CONCORD, Ky., Nov. 20.—A frightful accident occurred in this city at 11:17 Thursday night, in which three young people were dashed into eternity in the twinkling of an eye at the railway crossing. The unfortunate victims were the Misses Lulu and Lizzie Lind, daughters of the proprietors of the Lind hotel in this town, and Al Pollick, a young attorney, who was returning in a buggy with the young ladies from a party given some miles west of town.

No Reduction in Wages.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—George F. Brown, general manager of the Pullman Palace Car Co., denies the report that the company has made a general cut of 15 per cent in wages and laid off a number of employes. "There has been no reduction of wages, nor has one been contemplated," he said. "On the other hand, since the election we have increased our force by 300 men."

Secretary Francis' Private Secretary.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Secretary of the Interior Francis Thursday appointed Price Lane, of St. Louis, Mo., as his private secretary. He is the fifth person serving in that capacity during this administration.

Mrs. Scott-Siddons Dead.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—Mrs. Scott-Siddons, the celebrated actress, died here Thursday.

Traveling Salesman Robbed.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—M. Klippart, traveling salesman for Hipp, Didisheim & Co., 83 Nassau street, New York, was robbed at the Union passenger station here Thursday evening of a valise containing $5,000 worth of gold watches. Klippart had boarded a Big Four train for Cincinnati carrying two satchels, which he placed in the seat beside him. Seeing an acquaintance outside he left the car for a moment and when he came back the valise with the valuable contents was gone. Though the car was full of people no one could give the slightest clue to the robbery.

ENCOURAGING.

An Unprecedented Gain in the Volume of Business—Nearly 400 Firms have Started Work During the Month of November.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co say Saturday in their weekly review of trade:

"The gain in volume of business continues entirely without precedent. More than 390 establishments have started work since the election, which were idle, and at least 800 have increased their working force. Every day thus adds thousands to the number of those who are able to buy a week's supplies and then make up gradually for many months of enforced economy. Already this brings great increase in the volume of business and the clearing house exchanges, for the first time in several years, not only exceed those of last year by ten per cent., but also exceed those of the same week in 1892 by nine per cent. Business men are all anxious to prevent anything like the excitement of last summer, and in nearly all branches an excessive rise in prices is prevented. But with more hands at work there is inevitably a greater demand for supplies, materials and products.

The speculative markets have been reacting, which is almost natural. Wheat had risen with wonderful rapidity, so that exports had been checked by the higher prices and realizing started a break which made the close 3⅞ lower for the week.

The demand for freight room, both here and on the Pacific coast, is still so large as to disclose an extraordinary foreign demand.

Cotton has declined from 8 to 7.62 cents in spite of the starting of many cotton mills, and the controlling fact moment is that reports of a yield smaller than eight million bales are now entirely discredited. The quantity coming into sight has exceeded last year's by 820,000 bales, and it is not expected that the decrease in the remaining months of the year will bring the aggregate below 8,500,000. The export demand does not abate, although temporarily checked while prices were above eight cents and the increase of $9,400,000 in value of cotton exported in October contributed more than any other single item to make the aggregate exceed that of the same month in any previous year.

In a transition period industries record gains slowly, but the slight decline in prices of Bessemer pig iron and of finished products of iron and steel is partly due to realizing on speculative purposes before the election, and partly to the selling of nails by jobbers below the combination price. For most offered products of iron there is a better demand and a slow advance in prices. Shipments of boots and shoes for three weeks of November, have been 184,027 cases against 175,176 last year, but while the works have orders for some time ahead, neither mines or dealers are disposed to do much because of the uncertainty about finances, those of boots and shoes being about 13 per cent. above the lowest point; leather 16.3 per cent. and hides 51.4 per cent., the latter again rising at Chicago. In cotton and woolen goods no serious change appears though there is continued weakness in cottons and print cloths are a sixteenth lower. Stocks of wool purchased before and immediately after the election now prevent a further advance, but to November 15 wool had risen 10 per cent. on the average of 104 quotations by Coates Bros. since September 1 and much more at the west.

Failures for the week have been 344 in the United States against 320 last year, and 40 in Canada against 42 last year.

PENSACOLA, FLA.,

Being Strongly Fortified by the United States Government.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Nov. 21.—Since the recent visit of Gen. Craighill, chief of engineers of the United States army, a large force of workmen has been engaged night and day in pushing the work of modern fortifications on Santa Rosa island to completion. Immense disappearing batteries of modern guns are being put in. The fortifications at Forts Pickens and Barrancas are also being strengthened. In a very short while this work will have progressed to a point where it would be impossible for the war vessels of any foreign enemy to come close enough to do any damage to the city. Entrance to the harbor is protected by electrically operated sunken torpedoes.

Joe Patchen Establishes a New Record.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—The great pacing stallion, Joe Patchen 2:03, established a new record for Pennsylvania for half-mile tracks Friday by making the double circuit of the track at Holmesburg Junction in 2:06¾. With the temperature at 40 degrees, a bleak wind blowing across the park and a track slightly cuppy, the conditions were not considered at all favorable for a fast mile.

A Chicago Saloon Held Up.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Three men entered the saloon of Michael Simon, at Harrison and Fifth avenue, about 6:30 o'clock Friday morning, and at the point of revolvers compelled the bar-keeper to permit them to help themselves to $13 in the cash drawer and $[illegible] in his pockets. The men then withdrew and have not been captured. The saloon is only a block away from the Harrison street police station.

Movements of the Marblehead.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Marblehead on her way home from the Mediterranean squadron has left Bermuda for New York where she is expected to arrive next Monday evening. The Marblehead is the only vessel of Adm. Selfridge's fleet which has moved for nearly six weeks.

Corbett Accepts.

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—Corbett Friday night accepted the offer made by Warren Lewis, president of the Greater New York Athletic club, of a purse of $26,000 for a glove contest with Fitzsimmons in New York on January 1

HARROWING TALES

Of Suffering, Devastation and Destruction by Storms and Snowslides in Washington State.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 19.—Residents of Seattle and vicinity, who by reason of the floods and snow have been virtually prisoners in the fastnesses of the Cascade mountains since Friday last, are coming in, some on trains, some afoot and others by boat. They tell harrowing tales of suffering, devastation and destruction.

There has been human suffering, and no doubt many miners and prospectors in the Cascades have been either drowned or have met death from snowslides. Four prospectors, headed by Joseph Nicholson, operating a claim on the Snoqualmie pass, arrived Wednesday afternoon. One of the men is a raving maniac by reason of the suffering and hardships endured in efforts to get out of the mountains. Saturday night to prevent being swept down the mountains by snowslides, they lashed themselves to trees, where they remained in the drenching rain for six or eight hours. Meanwhile great bowlders of earth and huge sections of snow kept sliding down into the canyons and gulches below. Trees were torn up by the roots and carried away by the avalanche, and the noise was indescribable horrifying. At daybreak on Sunday the prospectors tore away the lashings and began their perilous journey out of the mountains. They followed Gold creek to Lake Keechsler, tramping through snow four and five feet deep, crossing small streams on logs and drifted finally finding their way to the point where the Northern Pacific crosses the Cascades and thence they proceed down the railroad track to this city.

Two Seattle business men were caught at Index Thursday. They were three days walking 35 miles to Snohomish, crossing small streams by means of driftwood and the larger ones in row boats. They report that the Great Northern west bound overland passenger train, with 41 passengers, due here last Friday morning, is stalled between Wellington and Madison, owing to great washouts on both sides.

When last heard from 12 first-class passengers on the train were being supplied with half rations from the dining car, while the day coach and second-class passengers, including 24 children, managed to procure scant food supplies from Wellington. The gentlemen giving this information say that there are ten washouts on the Great Northern between Index and Sultan, a distance of 14 miles; that on the upper falls of the Skyhomish river two bridges are gone, together with 1,200 feet of track.

When the flood was at its height the Great Northern line between Monroe and Skyhomish, a distance of 7 miles, was inundated to a depth of from 6 to 15 feet. Wednesday's advices, however, are to the effect that the waters of all rivers have receded except at Snohomish. In the flats and bottoms waters covered thousands of acres of rich farm land, leaving nothing but wreck and ruin behind.

The Great Northern is making no attempt to run trains, save on the coast line north to Stanwood. Large forces of men are now at work on the coast and main line, but there is little prospect of early resumption of traffic.

On Sunday night, three minutes after the Northern Pacific passenger train from Portland had passed Ainslie, half a mile of track and roadbed near that place slid into the Cowlitz river. The eastern mails due here Saturday and Sunday were received Wednesday, but there has been none from San Francisco and the south since last Friday night. The Northern Pacific by transferring is now running overland trains east from Tacoma, and is also making steamer connections from this city to Portland.

CAMPAIGN A FAILURE.

The Only Real Battle Results in Defeat, and Capt. Gen. Weyler Resigns—Gen. Prando Said to Be His Successor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—A private dispatch was received in this city Wednesday night from Madrid to the effect that Gen. Weyler had resigned as captain general of the Spanish army in Cuba, and that Gen. Prando had been named by the government as his successor.

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 19.—Capt. Gen. Weyler's campaign against Maceo in Pinar del Rio has failed, according to advices received from Havana Wednesday night by the steamer Olivette.

Weyler has done absolutely nothing since taking the field save to fall back when attacked at night by the insurgents, Diaz and Delgado.

The only real fighting was when Gens. Munoz and Echague attempted to storm the insurgent intrenchments near Lomas Rubi and were repulsed with loss.

MADRID, Nov. 19.—It is known that Spain has been feeling the pulse of every chancellor in Europe to find hearts that beat with hers. There is none. France is tied up with Russia, and Russia is America's friend. Germany's commercial interests and England's policy keep both from siding with Spain. Italy goes with England, and Spain is left alone.

The Next Grange Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The national grange Wednesday night decided to hold the next annual convention at some point in Pennsylvania (not yet agreed upon) on the first Wednesday after the second Tuesday of November 1897.

Death of Ex-Gov. Murray.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Nov. 19.—Hon. Eli H. Murray, ex-governor of Utah, died Wednesday afternoon at the residence of his father-in-law, E. P. Neale. He arrived here three weeks ago from his home, San Diego, Cal., a physical wreck with no hope of his recovery. He was born in Kentucky and was for years a member of a state legislature.

Bishop Ormanian Elected Patriarch.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The morning Post Thursday publishes a dispatch from Constantinople saying that Bishop Ormanian has been elected Armenian patriarch.

THE CHICAGO FRAUD.

Corruption of the Goldbugs Shown in the Illinois Returns.

The Chicago goldite press is boasting that 50,000 more votes were polled in Chicago than in New York. This is strong evidence of what the State Register has claimed, that the goldites carried the election in this state and in the country by fraud.

Everybody knows that Chicago is not as large a city as New York, and that the proportion of votes to the population should not be as large in the former as in the latter city. When, therefore, the returns show that the smaller city cast a vote altogether out of proportion to its inhabitants, and 50,000 more than the larger city, there must be behind these returns a fraudulent scheme that has been worked out successfully.

There is no doubt in the minds of those who have studied the returns that the colonization of voters in Illinois was carried on by the wholesale. Every congressional district in the state where there was a chance to work the scheme, the Seventeenth not excepted, was colonized and the vote inflated by repeaters.

The vote in Sangamon county, for instance, was over 3,000 greater than in 1892. The total vote of Sangamon county was 17,912. This would signify that this county had over 80,000 population. Everybody knows that there is no such number of people in Sangamon county. The increase of democratic votes in this county since 1892 is not more than normal, the democrats having polled 7,664 in 1892, and 8,566 in 1896, or nearly 3,000 more than four years ago! If we add the populist vote of 1892 (181 and two-thirds of the prohibitionist (about 500) to the democratic vote of 1892 the total is 8,346, which is a democratic increase of 652. This is a fair conclusion, allowing that the free silver republicans who voted the democratic ticket this year offset the gold democrats who voted for McKinley. If the republican voters had increased in the same proportion as the democratic voters, they would have polled less than 7,000 votes. Where did the other 2,000 republican voters come from? That they were furnished either by colonizing or repeating is becoming more and more evident as the vote is studied precinct by precinct. There was a gigantic fraud perpetrated on the genuine electorate of Illinois at the recent election. It is shown by the vote in Chicago more clearly than anywhere else, and is more or less manifest in all the cities of the state.

Add the 7,000 votes the republicans might honestly have polled in Sangamon county to the 8,566 polled for the democratic ticket and the total is 15,566, indicating a population of nearly 70,000, which it is probable a census would show the county really has.

The tens of millions of dollars of corruption fund raised by Hanna and his associates, it is becoming more and more evident was used for colonizing and repeating purposes. Let the free-silver forces of Sangamon county bear the above facts and figures in mind. They have 8,566 voters who form a solid phalanx. It is doubtful, if the republicans could count noses to-day, that they could find their 8,998. Where did they get them?—Illinois State Register.

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

——It is explained that Tom Reed went all the way to California to avoid voting for McKinley.—Kansas City Times.

——Hanna is still managing McKinley. When will the president-elect be trusted to talk for himself?—St. Louis Republic.

——Mark Hanna will probably succeed in getting "forced" to accept a cabinet position or something more lucrative.—Kansas City Times.

——It would be an awful joke on somebody if Maj. McKinley should rebel, now that the election is over, and decide to be president himself.—Detroit News.

——William Jennings Bryan is a shining example of American grit and spunk. No matter how much one may differ from him, his courage is to be admired.—Washington Post.

——The public will not be fully informed as to the plans of Maj. McKinley until Pierpont Morgan has added his views of what will be done to those expressed by Hanna and Sherman.—St. Louis Republic.

——The republicans were very grateful and magnanimous to the "sound money" democrats the day after election, but they are already realizing how hard it is to be generous with so much spoils in sight.—Chicago Chronicle.

——The business revival is good, but it remains to be seen whether it will be a business survival; as to which, much depends on the nation's success in reconciling McKinley to the abandonment of McKinleyism.—Albany Argus.

——The New York Evening Post says that New York shared with Massachusetts the credit of being the first state to use voting machines in a presidential election. This is a mistake. The republicans have been using the negro as a voting machine ever since the war.—Richmond Dispatch.

——It is to be borne in mind that what the country needs is not "protection" for favored industries, but revenue to meet the largely increased expenses saddled upon the country by the republican congress. Under the present tariff manufacture and trade have started up and are going ahead at a brisk pace. They have not waited for "protection;" all they wanted was the confidence given by a "sound money" basis, and this they have got. But the country is running behind every day in its income as compared with its expenses, and this has got to be stopped. Now, if the republican leaders are honest in their declaration that the purpose of legislation should be the provision of revenue, let them go ahead and provide it.—Boston Post.

REPORTED FROM CANTON.

The Talk of Trusts Between McKinley and Pingree.

Gov.-elect Pingree, of Michigan, has been visiting Maj. McKinley and talking with him about trusts and corporations. "I found," says Mr. Pingree, "that he knows as well as anybody that they are rotten to the core. He recognizes that they are one of the greatest evils in this country, and knows that something has got to be done. He's all right." The further information is given that it was Maj. McKinley who wrote the anti-trust plank of the republican platform in 1892. "They may talk all they want to about Mark Hanna being president," adds Mr. Pingree, "but they'll find that William McKinley is going to be president himself."

All this would be cheering if Gov. Pingree could be relied upon to read Maj. McKinley's mind and to estimate at their worth Maj. McKinley's words. The major as a politician has acquired the habit of agreeing with the adversary while he is in the way with him, and of seeming to acquiesce in the views of enthusiastic persons who do the talking. Gov. Pingree is not noted for taciturnity, and he is honorably known as a detester of rapacious wealth. Is it not quite thinkable that when trusts and corporations were being declared rotten to the core it was he and not the president-elect who spoke? What though Maj. McKinley did write the anti-trust plank in 1892? He was as good a silver man then as Gov. Pingree himself, yet he changed his mind.

It helps to reduce to almost nothing the value of this surprising retort from Canton that Gov. Pingree should preface it with the statement which follows:

> "If ever a candidate realized that he owes his election to the people and not to the gang, the major is that man."

If the trusts and corporations that are "rotten to the core" are included in "the gang," what would have become of Maj. McKinley without them? It is true that millions of the people believed they were doing their patriotic duty when they voted for the republican candidate, but it is also so true as to forbid dispute that every trust and corporation in the United States which takes a corrupting hand in politics worked with frantic and conscienceless energy for McKinley's election, and that he could not have been elected without them.

It may be that as president the major will disappoint the natural expectation of reward of the trusts and corporations Enthroned in the white house and clothed with power, ambition may come to him to do what is right even at the cost of consistency and the forgetting of service. Maj. McKinley is not a stickler for consistency, as his course on the money question exemplifies, and he has lived long enough to know that the trusts and corporations supported him for their own and not for his sake. It is possible, therefore, just barely possible, that President McKinley will decline to be the servant of the money power, which has made him Cleveland's successor. But there are not many Pingrees about. The governor-elect of Michigan is a singularly sanguine man.—N. Y. Journal.

AS TO AN EXTRA SESSION.

A Republican Scheme for Agitating Protection.

In an interview predicting and favoring an extra session of congress Senator Sherman has said: "We have plenty of money and plenty of gold in the treasury and I do not think that congress is called upon to take up the consideration of any radical change in our present financial system."

This is a practical admission by the Ohio senator, who is the chief counselor in financial matters of the republican party, that no necessity exists for an extra session.

The only substantial reason urged for the calling of an extra session was the need of revenue to protect the gold reserve and prevent the issue of bonds. If there is plenty of money in the treasury and the gold reserve is in no danger this reason is removed.

The only object of an extra session, therefore, would be to pass a tariff bill, not for revenue, but for protection; in other words, to keep pledges of benefits made to the bounty interests in return for support in the campaign.

In doing this the republican administration will not only offend the great body of voters who oppose high protection and supported McKinley on account of his financial policy, but will give a color of proof to the charges that the Hanna syndicate have a mortgage on the McKinley administration.

More than this, an extra session will again bring a disturbing factor into business. What the business interests need more than anything else now is complete relief from all political agitation and menace. The prosperity of the country depends upon the business men getting ample time to establish renewed activity without the fear of political tinkering.

If the republicans care for the good will of the country they will drop the subject of an extra session.—St. Louis Republic.

——The republicans have come into power on the pledge that their success would guarantee a return to prosperity. This being the pledge on which they won, it is to be hoped that it will materialize. They have promised to restore bimetallism by international agreement, and the people will now have an opportunity to test their sincerity. In the meantime there is but one thing to do, and that is to accept the result and watch developments.—Atlanta Constitution.

——If the American congress will heed the voice of the American people, if it will give us a currency based upon gold and a tariff for revenue only, these two enactments will make it difficult if not impossible for the formation of trusts to corner products which the American citizens are compelled to buy.—Louisville Post.

HUMOROUS.

—Clara—"Do you call Bertha a beauty?" Maudie—"To her face, yes."—Boston Transcript.

—"You mustn't put needles in your mouth, dear," said Mrs. Tyte-Phist to her little daughter. "It rusts them."

—Customer—"Is the proprietor in? I want to get some screen doors." Clerk: "He's in; but he's out o' doors."—Exchange.

—Angry Father—"What do you mean by being engaged to half a dozen men at once?" She—"Nothing."—Detroit Free Press.

—Mother—"Johnny, why did you not tell me that you were naughty at school?" Johnny—"'Tisn't best to tell women everything."—Boston Transcript.

—"It seems to me these tandem wheels might be vastly improved," said the fair Miss Fadlet to her robust companion. "What would you suggest?" he inquired. "I'd make the front seat reversible."—Up-to-Date.

—"Oh, Maud, I've something to tell you. You know how I've longed to go to Paris; and now I'm going with father. It's so jolly." "Isn't this rather sudden, Ethel?" "Yes; but you see he's been bitten by a mad dog, and there is no time for him to lose in getting to the Pasteur hospital."—Judy.

—Editor's Wife—"Oh, John, the baby has swallowed a button!" Editor—"Well, let's hope it won't hurt the poor little chap; but should it happen to kill him, what a splendid alliterative headline it will make: 'A Baby Bolts a Button and Becomes Breathless!'" Editor's Wife—"Oh, you brute!"—Fun.

DANISH GIRLS.

The Old-Fashioned Prejudice Against Old Maids.

From what one hears of the Danish girl she has all the privileges open to one of ourselves. If she wishes to study at the university she finds herself free to take up any branch she may choose, and medical, mathematical and scientific honors fall to her share quite as frequently as to her brothers. As among us, too, teaching seems to be the most universal employment for women who wish to earn their own living. Yet there are so many daughters of rich families who teach simply as a pastime, with no remuneration, that the pay is very small and not at all in proportion to the services they give. They are well up in the English literature of the day, distinguish themselves as artists, authors and musicians, found schools and asylums for various charities and manage them as successfully as the women in other countries. Designing and painting pottery, wood carving and burnt woodwork are among other accomplishments, and many women have taken up photography and started out as professionals. But in spite of all their professional work, Danish women do not degenerate in the art of housekeeping and good cooking.

Within the past few years they have become interested in the outdoor games so popular in England, and tennis, golf, cricket and football are fast gaining ground. The craze for bicycling seized them some time ago and they are already expert riders, for the level country favors this sport. Some of the Danish girls are accomplished horsewomen and they are never quite so pretty and graceful as when they are skating, which is a general amusement for fully three months in the year. Unfortunately for the picturesqueness of the national Danish costume, English fashion has invaded nearly all classes of society, and the high-pointed cap, bright-colored skirt, embroidered apron and corselet are very seldom seen now. In the arrangement of their hair, however, they remain constant to their old custom of brushing it smoothly back and then twisting it into a tight knot at the back of the head. A Danish girl in good society makes her debut at 16, when she is confirmed. If she is not married at 23 she is left out of all parties and amusements, thus showing that the old-fashioned prejudice against old maids still obtains among these otherwise enlightened people.—N. Y. Ledger.

The Tumbleweed.

Tumbleweeds spread themselves in a wholesale fashion. Instead of sending the separate seeds out into the world with the wings or hairs to carry them the whole plant breaks off near the root, when these are ripe, and goes rolling along the ground before the wind. The bare sun-scorched deserts of the great west produce tumbleweeds, and there are some in the prairie region. It is natural that they should be most abundant where there are no hills nor trees to stop them in their course. But we have one tumbleweed in the east—the old witch grass, so-called, maybe, because it rides the wind like an old beldame. In September this grass spreads its head, or panicle, with hair-like, purple branches, in every sandy field. When the seeds are ripe the plants are blown across the field, often piling up in masses along the fences and hedgerows. As might be expected the hair grass, which has so effective a way of spreading itself, is found throughout the United States, from ocean to ocean.—Thomas H. Kearney, Jr., in St. Nicholas.

Bright Boy.

A newsboy saw a dime lying on the ground in the City Hall park. A tramp sitting on a bench near by saw the boy pick up the piece and claimed it at once as his own.

"Your dime did not have a hole in it, did it?" asked the boy.

"Yes, it did," said the tramp; "give it up!"

"Well, this one has not got any hole in it, so I guess I'll keep it."—Harper's Young People.

Expedition Needed.

"John, the baby has swallowed one of your pearl studs."

"Well, for goodness sake, send for the doctor right away. I've got to wear that stud to-night."—Harlem Life.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Nov. 25, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time......$1.00
Each additional time...... .25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50
☞Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered......$5.00.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

Neighborhood News.

Richwood.

Frank Robinson's family is improving.

Uncle Will Smith spent several days last week, among his friends and relatives.

A prominent farmer in this neighborhood purchased a large quantity of corn to feed sheep anticipating a rise in wool under the McKinley administration.

Miss Lucy Alberti Soden, daughter of John Soden, died of typhoid fever on the 17th inst., on the 18th her body was followed by a large concourse of friends and relatives to the Richwood church, where the funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. H. Davis, after which it was interred in the cemetery at this place.

Gunpowder.

Miss Emily Beemon has returned from a very delightful visit at Mr. John Tanner's, of Frogtown.

Mr. Clarence Tanner and sister, of Frogtown, were visiting Linnie and Irwin Tanner, last Sunday.

The young folks of this community spent a very pleasant evening at Mr. W. H. Garnett's, last Tuesday.

Mr. Lou Acra and Miss Emily Beemon, were the guests of Miss Linnie Tanner, Sunday evening.

Mr. Wm Senior and Miss Lillie Rouse, the accomplished daughter of Ollie Rouse, were married by Elder E. Stephens, last Wednesday. They returned to Mr. Rouse's, where about 100 of their friends assembled to congratulate them. They were serenaded by two tin horn bands that night. The bride and groom have the best wishes of many friends.

Limaburg.

William Davis now occupies Adam Heist's house.

Grass is growing as though it was spring time.

Off of 32 ears Legrand Utz got half a bushel of shelled corn.

Thanksgiving is at hand, and everybody wants a piece of turkey.

Mrs. T. B. Aylor is suffering very much with a carbuncle on her neck.

Boys keep your charivari outfit in order to use at short notice. There are more weddings near at hand.

W. R. Rouse delivered to a Cincinnati firm, last week, an oak log that was 48 inches in diameter at the small end.

William Garnett, of Kidville, and Miss Nettie Utz, of this place, were married last Wednesday by Elder Stephens. That night the bride and groom were treated to an old time charivari.

Verona.

Several fat turkeys will be slayed at this place on Thanksgiving.

The graded school here is progressing nicely, with thirty students.

Quite a nice lot of hogs were shipped by Roberts & Kennedy, last week.

Killing hogs is now in order, and we have spare-ribs and backbones on the bill of fare.

Rev. Myers, of Walton, filled Bro. Lafe Johnson's appointment at New Bethel, last Sunday.

James W. Bagby and Miss Pattie Hume attended the Walton entertainment, last Saturday night.

Miss Lulu Powers was the pleasant guest of friends and relatives near Walton, the past two weeks.

Small grain looks splendid for this time of year. A large acreage of wheat has been sown in this vicinity.

Remember the teachers' meeting on the 28th at this place. Bring well filled baskets. Dinner will be served at the public school house.

The Baptist Sunday School here will give an oyster supper at the residence of Scott Myers, on Thanksgiving evening. Doors open at 7 p. m.; supper, 25c. One and all are cordially invited.

Beaver.

Mrs. Betty Grubbs has been down several days with pneumonia.

The protracted meeting at Hughes' Chapel closed last Sunday night.

Mrs. Rebecca A. Johnson, of Lewisport, is visiting her son, Squire W. C. Johnson.

Well, well! Peter's vision on the housetop, when he saw Heaven opened and a certain vessel descending unto him as it had been a great sheet knit at the four corners and let down to the earth, wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts and creeping things, and fowls of the air, was as nothing compared with the game killed here, last week, by B. W. Adams, J. F. Blyth and Eddie McKim. They began their work of devastation at Beaver and journeyed toward Verona, destroying everything off the face of the earth from a ground-squirrel to a hoot-owl, leaving the boys here very indignant, as they expect to be old men before hunting will be any good in this country again.

Bellevue.

Farmers are busy gathering corn.

Our public schools are progressing nicely.

A. B. Acra, of Middle creek, was visiting your scribe, last Sunday.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley, of Bullittsburg, attended church here last Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Dr. Grant and daughter, of Petersburg, were visiting Mrs. Michael Clore, last Friday.

The protracted meeting is in progress at the Baptist church yet. There have been seventeen additions.

Mrs. Michael Clore is improving slowly. It is hoped that she will be about again in a short time.

Arnold Bros. and sisters, Col. John Moody and James Rogers, entertained the preachers and others with elegant dinners, last week.

The 7th day of next January will be the 50th anniversary of the marriage of Reuben and Permelia Acra. They will be in their 72d and 67th years, respectively.

Democrats, do not let your Democratic clubs disband. Keep organized and meet as often as is convenient. Keep posted on the political issues, and be ready for the fight in 1900, which we will surely win with William Jennings Bryan as our leader.

Petersburg.

Mrs. Bolan is improving.

John W. Berkshire was in Louisville last Tuesday.

Levi Spencer returned from Chicago, last Monday.

Mr. Andy Leonard returned to Louisville, last Wednesday night.

Hon. T. B. Mathews has been under the weather the past few days.

Dr. Tilly is billed for Cuba to fight the Spaniards, acting as surgeon on the staff.

The Epworth League will give an entertainment Thanksgiving night at the M. E. Church.

Football and shinny and "old sow" are the games th[illegible] boys here now.

The Christian Endeavor will probably give a social Christmas eve. at the Christian church.

The Str. Workum made her trip to Vevay, Thursday, after being laid up for repairs just a week.

The "shoo fly" at the distillery was put in operation, last Monday, giving Fred McCool and Arthur Alloway employment.

Mrs. Simpson, of Connersville, Ind., and Mrs. Eudrington, of Florence, Ind., the mother of M. S. Hardin, have been the guests of the latter the past week.

Everett Helms and Earl Whiting will continue with Prof. Goete's band this winter and assist in the famous "Pops," the first of which will begin at Lawrenceburg, Dec. 21st.

Squire Mack Sebree, of Owen county, was on his way to this place to visit his only remaining uncle, and hearing of his death, stopped at his sister-in-law's, Mrs. Rebeccr Sebree, on Gunpowder.

Your scribe was mistaken just one week in regard to that sale of the Noah Sebree property. It should have been Saturday, Nov. 28th instead of the 21st. The property was appraised, last Thursday by Henry Wingate, James Barnett and Steven McWethy.

Tom Willis was in town, Thursday, shaking hands with the boys. He is a gentleman and will make a strong pull in these parts for the office he seeks. Lafe Helms and Bob Hoffman have put their shoulders to the wheel and will do all they can for his election.

A jammed up woman's hat,
Beauty all the more,
A jammed up man's hat—
A drunk the night before.

Erlanger.

The K. of P. lodge has made their nominations and if the election is as exciting there will be lots of fun in a friendly way, which only K. of P.'s can do.

Several good reports have been heard the last week about the Electric Road, which means business. One of them is that the Company is sending out their own surveyor at their own expense, and said engineer has cut out another route which saves over a quarter of a mile.

Lafayette Lodge gave one of their delightful receptions, last Friday night, at their hall with Morelli's Orchestra in attendance, where the light fantastic was enjoyed till the 'wee sma' hours, and those who did not dance enjoyed themselves playing progressive euchre. Among those present were Misses Lizzie and Hattie Dulaney, Lucy Lancaster, Jenia Bracht, Susie Grant, Susie Coe, L. Twohy, Mr. and Mrs. John Zumbiel, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sexton, Mr. and Mrs. August Burkhardt, Mr. and Mrs. John Kersting, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Fickel, Mr. and Mrs. A. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. J. Rost, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Haag, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Myers; Messrs. Dr. Corey, C F. Coe, Morgan Mitchell, Chester Souther, Chas. Zumbiel, and a host of others.

The Improvement Association met last Thursday evening, with a large attendance to hear the report of the directors, which was to the effect that there were only three out of ninety who were against incorporation. They also recommended that a small sum per month (15c) as dues, which was adopted. A committee was then appointed to select what portion of the town was to be incorporated as the law requires. The committee is composed of the following named gentlemen: L Morelli, Matt Heuerkamp, N. Flemming, Geo. Menday, Wm. Bollin, A. Victor, Geo. C. Bloss, I. Broughton, John Zumbiel, J. Hagen, H. Henderson and J. A. Wyss, who will report on Friday evening a week.

Walton.

Miss Allice Wilson, of Bank Lick, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Judge Botts.

Mrs. V. A. Miller, of Palm Springs, Fla., leaves to-day to visit her married daughters in St. Louis, Mo.

Judge Botts and W. H. Metcalfe went hunting on Saturday. The Judge shot one whole rabbit and Metcalfe one quail—really, this wholesale slaughter of game by such noted experts should be stopped.

Preparations are being made by the pupils of Walton Academy for the annual Christmas Entertainment. The exercises will consist in part of elocutionary selections and calisthenic drills, interspersed with vocal and instrumental music from the pupils.

Both the L. & N. and the Southern railways paid their men off in gold. It would be interesting to know how much light gold was paid out. It is not unfair to presume that these great promoters of "sound money" have selected all the light weight coins to be hoarded by the farmers and laborers during the hard times which are down upon us, and which promise to be increased as time progresses. It is a fair presumption because men who took the means to foist the "sound money" candidates upon the country, which notoriously they did; are not a bit too good to scatter the light coins (which the government will not receive at face value) all over the land.

The entertainment given by Mr. Joe Reed on Friday night was a complete success. Long before the time set the Opera House was filled to its utmost capacity. The performances were greeted with rounds on rounds of applause, and the commendations bestowed on the performers must have made them all feel immensely proud. It is but just to say that the recitations were given in the most approved style: in particular, Prof. Pryor's "Light from Over the Ridge" was rendered so pathetically as to bring tears into the eyes of the sympathetic audience. Mr. Ransom succeeded also in causing the Lachrymose fountain to bedew many a fair and not a few manly one's cheeks. Joe Reed, versatile as he is, was, however, the great success of the evening. He can impersonate and delineate more funny characters, male and female, than anybody.

Several April showers visited this section last Monday.

W. F. Hart, who is said to have 14 wives, was sent to the pen from Paducah, last week.

We are having gloomy weather, but at this writing the temperature is that of the first of May.

Will legislator Lyons, of Newport, and Gov. Bradley resort to the code to settle their differences?

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c

Quite a number of the young people of the town enjoyed a cotillion party at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hughes, last Friday night.

Rev. Hoover's congregation at this place, sent him a large thanksgiving box of provisions, such as cabbage, potatoes, turkeys, &c., &c.

Prof. Collins requests us to announce that there will be no school in Miss Fannie Finch's room at the public school until next Monday.

W. G. Ferris, who conceived and built the Ferris wheel operated at Chicago during the World's Fair, died of typhoid fever at Pittsburg, last Sunday.

Harvey F. Utz, aged 26, son of Thos. Utz, and Miss Arminta M. Surface, aged 17, the handsome daughter of Ben C. Surface, all of the Gunpowder neighborhood, marry to-day at the residence of the bride's parents.

The contingent of Burlington hunters who visited the southern part of the county, last week, are at home again. They report a most hospitable reception by the citizens in the neighborhoods visited, and say they killed over 100 quails and rabbits.

In the death of Gene Riley, Union lost one of her good citizens. Mr. Riley was in his 47th year, and left a wife and five children. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Lafe Johnson and S. M. Adams, in the presence of a very large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Davidson is receiving requests from County School Superintendents urging that an official communication be addressed to Governor Bradley. They want him to incorporate in his call for a special session matter relative to an act that will enable counties to vote for an extension of the present five months' school session, where a tax is levied.

B. F. Buchanan is reciving his Holieay Stock at the Corner Drug Store in Rising Sun, Ind. Friday and Saturday, November 27 and 28 will be first opening days, but any day until Christmas will be exhibited the best selected line ever seen in Rising Sun. Early callers however get best selections. Be sure to call the first time you are over.

Incomparable Service.—The Queen & Crescent trains are the finest run in the State of Kentucky. Four daily trains to Cincinnati connect with the main highways of the great Trunk Lines of the North, West and East. This is the line par-excellent to Washington, New York, Boston and the East. The Queen & Crescent connects with every line out of Cincinnati.

FROM GALLATIN COUNTY.

A New Gasoline Boat—Death of An Old Citizen—James Albro Acquitted of Murder.

[Independent]

McDaneil & Sons contemplate the building of a fine gasoline boat of good size with which to transport the lumber orders along the shores of the river.

Gallatin county lost one of its best citizens, last Saturday morning in the death of Henry Gullion, of the Sparta neighborhood. The Sunday before he was stricken with paralysis, while at his dinner, and fell to the floor.

The case of the Commonwealth of Kentucky against James W. Albro, for shooting and killing John Lee at a picnic near Glencoe, last 4th of July, occupied Tuesday and Wednesday of the court and after the jury had the case about an hour brought in a verdict of acquittal on the grounds of self defense. The circumstances of the killing are as follows: Lee's daughter was dancing, and objected to a young man swinging her on the corner. Someone told Lee his daughter had been insulted, and he being under the influence of liquor started to whip the man. He mistook Albro for the man and and assaulted him when Albro drew a pistol and shot him Lee was a man about 51 years of age, and lingered about five days, dying from the effects of his wound. Albro is a young man, not yet 21 years old. The unfortunate affair is greatly deplored by everybody.

Charlie Brenton, a foolish looking young man, claiming Trimble county as his home, was brought to town Monday charged with attempting to set fire to the barn on Mrs. Kate Carver's farm in the Drury Chapel neighborhood. He went to Mrs. Carver's house that morning and demanded something to eat, and on being refused went to the barn and set fire to the grass near it which would have ignited the barn but for the intervention of Chas. Carver and some friends. Brenton had left the premises and went to the house of Sam Ray, where he made an entrance and searched about for something to eat, taking a couple of pairs of socks. He was caught on the roadside and brought to town and after an examination was lodged in jail. Brenton stated that his parents were dead, and that he had been living with his sister, Mrs. Martin, at Milton. He had been working at English Station, and came from there to Benj. Mylor's in the lower part of Gallatin county, where he left Monday, taking Wm. Levill's overcoat and Mr. Mylor's shoes. He gave as his reason for setting fire to the grass that his feelings were hurt by the ladies refusing him something to eat, and wanted to get even. Brenton is about 20 years old, and has a foolish look, though he converses with considerable intelligence.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

Two Hotels Instead of One—Drunken Rowdies Break up a Dance, Several Wounded—Many Other Items of News.

[News]

There may be two new brick hotels going up in Owenton instead of one. One is a certainty and the other more than probable.

Tan Jump lives near town on the Owenton & Big Twin turnpike. His home was the scene of festivities last Friday night, rendered in honor of the marriage of Willard Noel and Miss Lydia Swango, the afternoon previous. The dance was the ruling pleasure of the hour, joy was reigning supreme, when in walked Bill Keif, Bee Gilbert and Bill Furnish full of bad whisky and h—ll. They had been there but a short time when they turned loose attacking the groom in the kitchen. A general fight ensued. Axes, knives, billets and pistols rendered the scene a wild one. The three visitors, having the better equipments for battle, a retreat began on the part of the guests and it was not long before they had a clear field. They then amused themselves by breaking out windows and attacking other houses in the vicinity. The wounded and maimed were Noel, cut across the arm in two places. Mrs. Noel cut across the hand, and Mrs. Jump slashed across the hand. Young Swango collided with a small locust tree, bruising his head considerably. Robt. Locker and Jo Ciger collided in a desperate effort to escape and were badly bruised. The cause leading to the affray was jealousy. Mrs. Noel had been a former sweetheart of one of the trio, and they were bent on doing up Noel. Writs have been issued for them and placed in the hands of Sheriff Gayle and it will likely go hard with them if caught.

[Herald]

The game law has expired and a number of our mighty nimrods have taken to the fields and woods.

Some of the best apples we have seen in many a day were brought to town by W. S. McCord, of Gratz, and are of the Ben Davis variety. Mr. McCord has 7,000 trees.

W. K. Roberts has a crab apple tree that has yielded the second crop this season. Unlike the usual second crop of apples, the fruit of the last yield was as good as the first.

Mules went off like hot cakes the day of the election. Democratic mules seemed to be the most desirable ones, as they are generally looked upon as thoroughbreds. One man sold his mule for ten dollars and a physician's receipt for services rendered. He went into the booth, voted, came out, made a display of his booty before the crowd and remarked that he had voted as he pleased.

FROM CARROLL COUNTY.

Mumps Among the Children—Corn 75 Cents a Barrel—Injured by the Bursting of a Gun—A Very Cold Winter Predicted.

[News]

Many school children are suffering with the mumps.

The finishing touches are being put on the interior of the opera house.

Smith, Gaines & Ramey have purchased about 300 barrels of corn at 75 cents per barrel.

Mrs. Kennedy, of Big Bone, Boone county, was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. O. M. Huey, last week.

The Democratic committe is called together for Saturday, the 28th inst., by Chairman Gaunt, to fix a time for a primary to select nominees for county offices.

While out hunting on Wednesday of last week, Frank Wiemiller had a gun to burst, mangling his thumb and blowing his wrist and hand full of powder.

Wild ducks are flocking into the Ohio river by the thousands; large numbers in numerous flocks are often seen, and old river men predict very cold weather this winter.

KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.

[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A. M.			A. M.	P. M.
d 4:50	z9:13	Ar Walton	Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8.52	Ar Williamstown	Lv	8:32
3:48	8.28	Ar Corinth	Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar Sadieville	Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar Georgetown	Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv Frankfort	Ar	11:30	7:25

z Daily. d Except Sunday.

C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Isn't It Reasonable?
We maintain that GOOD CLOTHING CAN BE BOUGHT BOR LESS MONEY at Our Store than elsewhere in this vicinity. Why do we say so? Because we know it to be a fact that
Our EXPENSES ARE THE LOWEST. BUYING IS THE CLOSEST. And
WE ARE SATISFIED WITH THE SMALLEST PROFITS.
You can not get something for nothing anyanywhere, but you can get get value for your money at
ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS
S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

STEPHENS & SCALES,
—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN—
Hardware, Cutlery, and Agricultural Implements,
Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Steel Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,
BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE
AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.
No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.

BEST GOODS! LIVING PRICES!
Hardware,
Farm Machinery,
Fine Vehicles,
Harness.
HARRIS FITCH, Corner HIGH AND SHORT STREETS,
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.
Prices Reasonable.
F. PIEPER,
Optician and Jeweler,
Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to
We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.
616 Madison Ave., - - COVINGTON, KY.

A SPECIAL INVITATION TO
Our Boone County Neighbors!
When in LAWRENCEBURG, IND., Stop at the Old Reliable
ADLES'R BARGAIN STORE.
Where you can pick up a bargain in the line of
Dry Goods, Shoes, Etc., also Holiday Attractions.
Here are a few Sample Bargains:
Ladies' Beaver Capes—all colors, $2 real value $3.50. Child's Long Cloaks—$1.75 real value $3. Beautiful Novelty Dress Goods—10c worth 15c. Best Calicoes & Ginghams, 5c. Best Yarns (all colors,) 5c skein. Wool Fascinators, Hoods or Shawls, 25c worth 50c. Blankets (heavy 10-4) 50c each worth 75c. Heavy Comforts, 75c worth $1.25. Men's Working Pants, only 50c worth 75c. Men's Underwear, 50c suit worth 90c
OUR LEADERS—Men's Cong. or Lace Shoes (all style toes) $1 actually worth $1.50. Ladies' Button or Lace, calf or kid (tips or without) $1 actually worth $1.50. Misses' School Shoes, sizes 1½, 75c actually worth $1.25. Infants' Tip Button, 25c actually worth 40 cents.
Adler's BARGAIN STORE,
27 Walnut St., LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

SNAPS.
Leather SNAPS! Boot & Shoe SNAPS!
We have a Store full of Genuine Snaps in
Boots, Shoes, Hats and Gloves,
And we cordially invite our Boone County friends to call and partake of same.
PAUL A. DAVIS, Manager.
Sign of Big Red Boot. Rising Sun, Indiana.

FALL AND WINTER.
CLOTHING AND OVERCOATS,
Gent's Furnishing Goods, Hats and Caps,
Underwear, Umbrellas,
Trunks and Valises.
COME AND SEE US,
MARSHALL & STAHL,
MASONIC BUILDING
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA

Local News.

Turkey and oysters to-morrow.

Cornhuskings are the fad with the farmers now.

If you havn't got a turkey for to-morrow, get a rabbit.

There has been very little good weather for butchering.

A lazy man does his hardest work looking for an easy job.

The Burlington syndicate of butchers commenced operation Monday.

Ezra Rouse, of Limaburg, has a good Alderney cow and calf for sale.

W. C. Brown has renewed a portion of the roof on his livery stable.

Signs of the approaching term of Circuit Court are being manifested.

A gang of wild ducks passed over town Thursday morning going North.

A great many persons are waiting for cooler weather in which to kill their hogs.

There are several new advertisements in this issue to which we call your attention.

There were lively times in Florence Sunday. Several parties were on the war path.

The farmer who is not done gathering corn is not keeping up with the procession.

For the latest and most stylish millinery, go to Somerfield's store, Aurora, Indiana.

James L. Clore desires to rent his farm of 140 acres on Woolper Creek. Terms good.

When you have an item of news send it to this office. Such a favor is always appreciated.

Uncle Alfred Cason delivered nine nice cattle to a buyer here last Saturday morning.

The river is at a good boating stage and the boats are doing a very satisfactory business.

Sanks & Stier furnish a house complete. Nos. 69, 70 and 71 Second street Aurora, Indiana.

After such pleasant weather so far this fall, a moderately low temperature pinches petty strong.

Veiling, Baby Caps, Baby Cloaks, Boots and Baby Sacques at Somerfield's store, Aurora, Indiana.

The county will be full of hunters from the city to-morrow if the weather is favorable to out door sport.

A woman may doubt a man's sincerity when he pays her a compliment, but she doesn't doubt the compliment.

Sanks & Stier, undertakers and embalmers. Satisfaction guaranteed. Nos. 69, 70 & 71, Second street, Aurora, Ind.

An interesting protracted meeting closed, last Thursday evening, at the East Bend M. E. Church, with five additions.

Rev. J. W. Harris will preach at Taylorsport on the fifth Sunday in this month, at the usual hour in the morning and evening.

Town dogs made a raid on Mr. W. T. Smith's sheep, last Sunday morning. They were discovered before they killed any of the flock.

The first Quarterly Meeting of the Petersburg Circuit will be held with the M. E. Church at Petersburg on the 4th day of January, 1897.

Prof. C. N. Curry, J. W. Kennedy, M. T. Garnett and F. Riddell find the answer to the hog problem published last week to be 82¦ pounds.

Geo. Willis, colored, is an applicant for the Lawrenceburg, Ind., post-office. Willis was formerly a resident of this county, and in slave times belonged to Armstead Willis.

The five fat hogs sold at the Clore sale last Thursday, averaged exactly 232 pounds, when weighed a few hours after the sale. They were guessed as high as 250 pounds.

Miss Louise B. Coraniel, formerly milliner with leading Chicago and Indianapolis millinery houses, has charge of Somerfield's millinery department, at Aurora, Indiana.

Our solicitor, Mr. J. B. Tolin, is under many obligations to Mr. Jude Marshall, of the firm of Marshall & Stahl, for courtesies shown him while in Lawrenceburg, one day last week.

The egg business is not a small business by any means, as the following figures go to show: It is estimated that there are 400,000,000 fowls in the United States valued at $200,000,000. The egg product of last year was 1,200,000,000 dozen netting $150,000,000.

This is going to be a terrible, terrible winter. This prediction is based on the very unusual activity displayed by our farmer friend, James L. Clore, in getting his corn gathered and other out door work done. He refuses to lose time enough to go to an afternoon sale.

Hiram Long, of Florence, sold three hogsheads of tobacco at the Boddman warehouse, last week, 1 at $13 75, 1 at $15 75, 1 at $10 50, the average being $13 33.

Mr. Henry Riley, father of E. L. Riley, of Union, who died week before last, has been appointed postmaster to fill the vacancy in that office occasioned by the death of his son.

Sidney Blankenbaker, of Louisville, and Miss Lutie Watts, the handsome and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wash Watts, of Bullittsville, were married last Wednesday.

The remains of Mrs. David Shotwell, who was buried thirty-years ago in the James A. Wilson cemetery, near Rabbit Hash, were removed to the Petersburg cemetery a few days since. Only a few bones were exhumed.

Two darkies had a lively shooting scrape at Union, one day last week. The weapons used were shot guns, but the range was so long that neither of the parties were hurt. The trial of the offenders was set for yesterday.

After making a thorough investigation, the authorities at Independence, attribute the origin of the destructive fire at that place last Sunday morning a week, to sparks from the bonfires at the parade the night before. The claim that it was started by firebugs could not be sustained.

In a letter received at this office, last week, from J. D. Gaines, of Texarkana, Texas, he asked to be remembered to his many old friends and acquaintances here. He seems to have lost the run of Dr. Blanton entirely, but a letter will reach the Doctor at Harrodsburg, this State.

The growth of rag-weed in the fields throughout the country revives the old saying that the blanket of snow which will cover mother earth this winter will be as deep as the weeds are high. The average height of the weeds range from two to three feet, and we may accordingly look for snow as deep.

At a cornhusking out in the country a few nights since, the younger huskers amused themselves by throwing corn at eachother, and when the fun ended there were black eyes, bleeding noses and cracked heads in profusion. Strange to say good humor prevailed throughout the period of roughness.

Green Bros., of Rising Sun, are selling goods to correspond with the time. They handle first-class goods, sell at one price to all, and have established a good trade. They show a handsome line of Dry Goods, Hats and Shoes, including a nice line of Ladies' Capes and Jackets, and invite all to call and see them.

Quite a good sized crowd attended the sale of the personal estate of the late L. E. Clore, last Thursday afternoon. The bidding was brisk, and property brought good prices. One horse brought $41 and another $34; sheep, $4.50 per head; sow and 8 pigs, $23; 8 fat hogs, $37; corn, $1.31 per barrel in the crib; cows sold cheap, the highest price being $15.

George Hall, a young farmer of Carroll county, met with a horrible accident that resulted in his death. Hall was visiting John Carter, a relative at Claryville, Campbell county, and Wednesday went hunting. Hall leaned on his gun, and, taking a flask from his pocket, invited his friend to drink. In some manner the gun was discharged, the entire load entering Hall's right breast, passing through his body. He suffered for three hours when be died.

A dispatch from Cincinnati to daily papers on the 19th said that George Hall, aged 27 years, of Carroll county, shot and accidently killed himself Wednesday in Campbell county while hunting. We know of two George Halls in the county, but they are at home and alive. We cannot hear of any other man of that name and hope therefore, that the report is a mistake. George Hall, of Ghent, James Pryor's brother-in-law, is all right, and clever as ever.—Carrollton News.

Now all you fellows who don't want the Aurora post office hold up your hands.

What? None?

Now all you fellows who do want it hold up your hands. Geeminy! Look at 'em!

☝ ☝ ☝ ☝ ☝ ☝ ☝ ☝ ☝ ☝

☝ ☝ ☝ ☝ ☝ ☝ ☝ —Aurora Independent.

As not a single hand went up on the first request, we presume Bro. Cobb is one of the number who wants the post-office.

J. F. Beard, who is a candidate for Assessor in Carroll county, says:

"Believing the work can be done for less money than the law allows, if elected I will obligate myself to donate to the county $100 each year out of my salary for the benefit of the people. Therefore, I make this race in the interest of the people."

Mr. Beard will not be nominated, unless the people of Carroll county are different from those in other counties. Such an offer on the part of a candidate is always resented, as it should be. Mr. Beard ought to become a candidate for the legislature, and if successful offer a bill to reduce salaries where too high.

The following is from a Moberly, Mo., paper, and the Mrs. Eliza Terrill mentioned was Miss Eliza Crisler, a native of this county, and a sister of our worthy county men, Messrs. H. P. and T. P. Crisler:

"The sons and daughters of Mrs. Eliza Terrill had arranged a surprise for that estimable old lady on Saturday, Sept. 5th, 1896, and it was carried out with unbounded success at her home just east of this city. Mrs. Terrill was induced early in the morning to visit a neighbor and while away from her home, her children came in with well filled baskets of provisions and delicacies. They also brought many elegant and useful presents. After the table was spread and the presents displayed, they sent for Mrs. Terrill to return home as she had company. Words failed to express her surprise and joy, on finding about fifty of her descendants filling her home and door-yard and literally making themselves 'At Home.' For once in life she was a guest at home, and those whom she so often welcomed 'home,' were there to bid her a joyous welcome and heap presents and blessings upon her. Sixty years ago she and her husband, Judge James Terrill, now deceased, moved to Randolph county and started in life. The little log house in which they lived marked one of the earliest settlements, and like many others was the sacred spot around which were entwined the love, hope and fears of frontier life. In that home was the sturdy integrity of christian manhood, nobly backed up, encouraged and assisted by loving devotion of christian womanhood. Thus the foundation of substantial integrity was laid broad enough to sustain generations to follow which they fondly hoped would arise and call them blessed. How well they have succeeded; how fruition of their hopes, the result of the reunion Saturday will show. Eighty-three years of noble, self-sacrificing life with never a stain upon family escutcheon, and her last days her best days, is surely a justification of the modest pride with which she points to ten children, forty-eight grand children and fifty-two great grand-children.

Mrs. Terrill's children are Rev. J. R. Terrill, B. F. Terrill, W. W. Terrill, T. J. Terrill, Mrs. G. W. Grimes, Mrs. G. N. Ratcliff, all residents of this county, and W. H. Terrill, Mrs. Lon Christian, Mrs. Annie Terrill and Mrs. Henrietta Martin all residents of Texas. Seven of the children were present, while the other three celebrated mother's birthday in far away Texas and sent the fond greeting that 'distance lends enchantment to mother's love.' Those present send back the greeting with the earnest assurance that mother's face is as bright, joyous and lovely as when we saw it."

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. Louise Southgate, of Walton, has returned home, after two years study in Paris, France and Vienna and some delightful months in travel in England, Switzerland, Italy and Germany. Her sister, Miss Virginia, during her summer vacation was her companion. Miss Lillie McKinzie, daughter of Dr. I. R. McKenzie, formerly of Burlington, remains in Paris to continue her art studies.

T. D. Goodridge returned home last Thursday from the hospital in Cincinnati, where he had been for six weeks. He was well pleased with the treatment he received, but said he was glad to get back home where he could get good, country eating again.

Rev. J. W. Harris called on us last Monday morning and gave us several church items for publication. We are always glad to publish such items for the ministers.

D. E. Castleman returned from the Gallatin Circuit Court, last Saturday. He defended young Albro, who was acquitted of the murder of John Lee.

Rev. J. B. Crouch has resigned the pastorate of the Ludlow Baptist church to take charge of the Newport Baptist church.

Mrs. Dr. Smith returned home, last Thursday, after a very pleasant visit of several weeks in Jacksonville, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Kelley, of East Bend, were visiting W. T. German and wife, last Sunday and Monday.

Sidney Gaines has been wrestling with the grip for several days, but has gotten the best of it now.

Our young friend Hubert Clore, of Bellevue, says the answer to the hog problem is 70 pounds.

Wm. Casey and Charles Grant, of Petersburg, have gone to Mexico in search of health.

J. M. Lassing was selling tobacco on the brakes in Cincinnati, last Friday.

E. B. H. Owens, of Indiana, is visiting his wife's relatives in this county.

James Casey and Sam Houston, of Bullittsville, were in town Sunday.

J. B. Tolin, of Utzinger, was among the visitors to town, last Saturday.

R. Lee Huey, of Waterloo, was in town last Saturday.

John Dixon, of Richwood, was in town yesterday.

Miss Fannie Finch has been quite ill for several days.

Al W. Smith, of Louisville, was in town Monday.

R. S. Cowen is visiting friends in Missouri.

J. O. Revill is on the sick list.

Wm. F. GOETZE

Scientific Optician.

Headquarters at Hornberger's Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.

Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

ANNOUCEMENT!

I wish to announce to my friends that I have accepted the agency for
C. ROSS LODWICK,
Undertaker & Embalmer,
3035 W. 6th St. CINCINNATI, O.,
And am prepared to furnish all articles for
FUNERAL PURPOSES
on short notice.

Prompt attention will be paid to FUNERAL ORDERS and strict attention given to the care of the dead.

Respectfully,
GEO. BLYTH, Burlington, Ky.

DR. A. B. HARRYMAN,
DENTIST.

Will be in Lawrenceburg, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

At Aurora, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Practiced for 30 years.

No Poisonous Gasses Used.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court.
James H. Lawell, Plaintiff,
vs
J. H. Walton's adm'r, heirs, &c., defts.

This cause is now referred to J. B. Berkshire, Master Commissioner of said court, under section 431 Civil Code of Practice, with the following instructions. First—The Commissioner will audit and settle the accounts of the administrators. Second—The Master will hear proof, ascertain and report the amount of the debts found against decedent's estate, and how secured if at all. Third—The Master will hear proof and determine the number of acres of land owned by decedent at the time of his death, where located and the probable value thereof. He will give due notice of his sittings by written or printed notices posted up at the Court House door in Burlington, Ky., 5 days preceeding his sittings and also publish said notices in the Boone Co. Recorder. He will report at the next term of this court.

Given under my hand as clerk of said court, this Nov. 16th, 1896.

J. W. DUNCAN, Clerk.

Notice is hereby given that I will begin my sittings at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., on the 23rd day of Nov., 1896, to hear proof of claims, under the order of reference in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 10th day of Dec., 1896. All persons having claims against J. H. Walton's estate will present them to me proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.
Christopher Barlow's Executor, Plff.
vs
Matilda J. Barlow, &c., Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against Christopher Barlow's estate will present them to me properly proven according to law.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, Master Com.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.
E. M. Gaines' Assignee, Plff.
vs.
Farmers & Traders Nat. Bank, Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against E. M. Gaines' estate will present them to me properly proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

Administrat's Notice.

Those indebted to the estate of J. V. West, dec'd., must come forward and settle at once, and those having claims against said estate must present the same at once proven according to law.

E. S. WEST, Adm'r.

NOTICE.

All persons holding claims against J. R. Clutterbuck must present them to me at my office in Burlington, Ky., proven as by law required and persons indebted to the said Clutterbuck must settle with me at once.

S. W. TOLIN, Assignee.

Sept. 10th, 1896.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

NEW STOCK! LOW PRICES!

We invite attention to our newly arrived Stock of Fall and Winter Goods
—SUCH AS—
Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps, Jeans, Yarns, Woolens, Etc., at
LOWER PRICES
THAN EVER BEFORE.
Large Line of FRESH GROCERIES always on Hand.
Give us a Call W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,
—DEALERS IN—
PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,
—63 and 65 Pike Street,—
Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.
ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.
CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.
27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.
Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDERTAKER EMBALMER,
—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,
Undertakers AND Embalmers,
OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,
COVINGTON, KY.
CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.
Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL,
WHOLESALE AND
RETAIL GROCER,
GRASS SEED.
Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.
Tom Wilson, Salesman.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.

☞We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office
And FEED STORE from
708 Madison Avenue
To the Large and more Commodious Quarters
15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.
Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with
GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED
At the Lowest Market Values.
Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,
W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANTS,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.

A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.

UNDERTAKING.
is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. HANKINS.
Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

CHRISTMAS AND THANKSGIVIN'.

THERE'S two days in the year I like,
They're better than
all others.
One day belongs to
Santa Claus
An' one day is gran'- mother's.
Of course, you know the days I mean?
They're Christmas an' Thanksgivin',
An' on those days I'm very glad
That I have kept on livin'.

I don't know which day is the best;
But s'posen I did know it?
I wouldn't dare to tell my choice
Nor anyway to show it;
For Santa Claus or gran'ma would
Be jealous in a minit;
If I should say that either had
More fun than t'other in it.

But when I go to gran'ma's house
An' smell the turkey cookin',
An' see the yellow punkin pies
'Till I'm most tired a-lookin';
An' when the dinner comes at last
An' gran'pa asks the blessin',
I think Thanksgivin's awful nice—
An' pass my plate for dressin'.

An' when my gran'ma cuts the pie,
I get a great big quarter;
Ma says: "She ought'ent have so much."
But gran'ma says: "She'd orter."
An' as my ma is gran'ma's girl
She has to just keep quiet,
While gran'ma laughs an' says to me:
"I guess I want my pie et."

There's one thing, though, that makes me sad.
I've got a little brother;
He's only five months old, an' can't
Tell one day from the t'other;
Thanksgivin' dinner doesn't mean
A thing, for he can't eat it,
So I'll just take one meal for him,
Then for myself repeat it.

There's two days in the year I like,
They're better than all others,
That's when old Santa comes to me,
An' I go to gran'mother's.
One day I'm served by Santa Claus,
An' one by gran'ma tended;
I can't tell which day is the best
Because they're both just splendid.
—Stanley Wood, in Chicago Times-Herald.

HER NEIGHBORS' BLESSINGS.

"WHY, Edith."

"What is it?" Mrs. Matthews asked, as she resugared the oatmeal of Maude, the larger one of the twins.

"The day after to-morrow is Thanksgiving. Had you forgotten it?"

Edith Matthews paused before replying to her husband's question. The pause might have been accounted for by the fact that Mabel, the other twin, insisted that her oatmeal should likewise be resugared.

After attending to this, Mrs. Matthews said, listlessly: "No, I had not forgotten it. But it doesn't make any difference anyway."

"What, Thanksgiving not make any difference? Why, Edith, what is the matter?" and Hiram Matthews set down his coffee cup and stared at his wife.

She shrugged her shoulders. "Is it the dinner you mean? Well, send up anything you like. As to the real spirit of Thanksgiving, I've nothing to be especially thankful for. Oh, dear! The baby is crying," and leaving her breakfast, Mrs. Matthews hurried away.

"Poor little woman," thought her husband. "She has to work too hard. I wish I could afford to keep a girl for her. But nothing to be thankful for, that doesn't sound like Edith."

When baby Faye had been hushed to sleep it was time for Hiram to start for the store. He had lifted the twins from their high chairs and untied their bibs. He had also thoughtfully put the coffee pot on the stove and the steak in the oven, that Edith might not find her breakfast cold when she had time to finish it.

"Good-by, little wife," he said, drawing her to him. "I'll send up something for Thanksgiving, and see Mrs. Murphy about coming to help you to-morrow. Don't do much extra work, for there will be just ourselves. How I wish we could have gone to the old home. Still I feel like giving thanks, Edith, for my home, my babies and you."

Words like these are usually sweet to a wife. But Edith had been kept awake the greater part of the night by a teething baby, so she replied, wearily: "Get whatever you like. Perhaps I should feel thankful if we were rich."

"I hope we may be some day," Hiram began, but she interrupted him, impatiently:

"Some day! When I am old and gray. It is now I want the things money can buy, luxuries for my babies, leisure for you and me, time to develop my nature. Well, I'll postpone my thanksgiving till I have something to give thanks for."

In spite of her flippant words, Edith clung for a moment to her husband. His face was grave, but he whispered, tenderly: "My darling," and going out attempted to close the door softly behind him.

But the sharp November wind caught it from his hand and it slammed so loudly that Faye started up with a fretful cry. At the same moment Maude managed to upset a glass of water for which she had been reaching, and added her cries to Faye's.

"Thankful indeed," Edith said, as after a few moments of alternate soothing and scolding she succeeded in quieting both children. She sat down at the sitting-room window with Faye in her arms and looking at the house across the way.

"The nurse is dressing little Bernice Ashley," she thought. "I can see her. And there is the cook at the door giving the grocer boy his orders. Mrs. Ashley was at the ball last night. She is sleeping this morning, undisturbed by work or children. Plenty of money, three servants, the entrance into cultivated society, yes, I'm sure Mrs. Ashley can truly observe Thanksgiving."

"Oh, I fear I'm wicked," she went on as Faye nestled her curly head on her mother's shoulder. "But I'm so tired of being poor. Of course, I appreciate my husband, my babies, and my cozy home. These are just common blessings, though, everyone has them and some so many others."

The next day Edith was sitting by the window waiting for her husband's coming. Mrs. Murphy had just gone home, and in the pantry was the turkey all ready for the oven, mince and pumpkin pies, cranberry tarts, and a dainty rose cake.

The table was laid for tea in the dining-room. When Hiram came there would only be the oysters to cook. Little Faye was asleep while Maude and Mabel were building an imposing block house on the rug in front of the open fire.

"How happy they are" the young mother thought. "If I could have a nurse to care for them and leisure to teach them! As it is I've hardly time to listen to their prayers."

Just then a loud cry reached her. The hall door of the house opposite was dashed open and a woman came flying down the steps shrieking for help. It was Mrs. Ashley, and close behind her came the half-clothed figure of a man. Edith could see his clenched fist uplifted while dreadful oaths reached her ears.

In a moment the scene was one of confusion. The servants rushed out screaming. Edith hurried to the door in time to see a policeman trip up the frantic man and to hear the nurse girl, who had the Ashley child in her arms, say:

"Oh, he'll be all right in the morning. I wish they'd hurry up and get things quiet. This baby is shivering with the cold."

"Will you bring the little girl in by the fire?" Edith asked.

"I'll be glad to, ma'am, for a minute. Was you scared, or did you know?" the girl continued, as she followed Mrs. Matthews into the sitting-room.

"Know what?" Edith asked, lighting a lamp. "Who was that man?"

"Land! It was the master, Mr. Ashley," and Norah proceeded to rub little Bernice's hands in hers. "I don't believe you understand," she went on. "Is it possible we have lived so near for three months and you never knew that Mr. Ashley had them times whenever he went on a spree? The mistress was watching for him, too, but he most caught her."

PROCEEDED TO RUB LITTLE BERNICE'S HANDS.

"Oh, how terrible!" Edith cried. "He might have killed her."

"He come precious near it when this baby was three months old. He knocked her downstairs. There, there, dear," for little Bernice was crying.

"Let me get her a glass of warm milk," and Edith hurried away.

When she returned she had regained her composure. She noticed Norah's tenderness with the child and also noticed what a wan little face it was that turned away from the milk to watch Maude and Mabel.

The child was dressed in a pink cashmere trimmed with costly lace. There were a couple of rings on her tiny hand. But Edith turned from these details to study the peculiar look in the dull blue eyes.

"Is she ill?" she asked, gently. "Her eyes are so heavy."

"They're always so," Norah answered, with a sigh. "I've nursed her since she was born, and I love her better than the mother who bore her does. But, ma'am, it's easy to see Bernice isn't just right. The doctor says she can't live long. There was two babies before her and they both went sudden-like. No constitutions, you see."

An exclamation of horror broke from Mrs. Matthews' lips. "The poor mother! How can she bear it!"

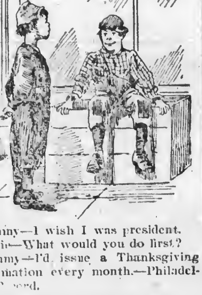
Norah shrugged her shoulders and rose. "I must be going. You've been very kind, ma'am. As to the mistress, she has society and fine clothes. Don't blame her too much. I think that brute killed her woman's soul years ago. We give a big dinner to-morrow night. The master will be sobered by that time. Giving thanks, you know. Now, Bernice, pet, Norah will take you home and put you to bed."

Edith accompanied her caller to the door. As she stood watching her cross the street a brisk step came up the walk.

"I'm late, little wife," and Hiram Matthews stooped for the kiss which he never forgot. "Why, Edith, you are crying."

"Oh, Hiram, I am so glad to-morrow is Thanksgiving; so glad. May the dear Father in Heaven forgive me for my wicked words and thoughts. I've so much to be thankful for. Come in by the fire and I'll tell you all about it."—Hope Daring, in Womankind.

WHAT HE WOULD DO.



Tommy—I wish I was president.

Willie—What would you do first?

Tommy—I'd issue a Thanksgiving proclamation every month.—Philadelphia Record.

The Spirit of Thanksgiving.

If there were nothing more to Thanksgiving than the cynics would have people believe the day would soon disappear from the calendar. Nineteenth century business methods will not tolerate the loss of any time for trifling reasons. The fact is that the atmosphere and spirit of this peculiarly American holiday are still felt deeply by the mass of people. The customs of an extremely practical age have not deprived the day either of its significance or of the sentiment which it awakens. There are thousands upon thousands who either in action or in thought accord to the period its original meaning as a day on which to return thanks for manifold blessings received. If this is true in the city it is far more so in the country, where the sentiment is fresher and old memories are kept green long after they have withered in the stale air of metropolitan life.

Let the people enjoy Thanksgiving in its fullness and they will not be ignoring its spirit or its traditional significance. The nation as a nation has much to be thankful for. And if there be any individual who thinks that he himself has little reason to give thanks, let him reflect that his vision pierces but a little way. No man living knows what enters into the making up of the whole account, or whether a seeming ill is not the forerunner of lasting good.—Chicago Record.

A Thanksgiving Hymn.

We thank Thee, Lord, for daily food,
For all received of daily good;
For sunshine and the songs of birds
And melody of loving words.

We thank Thee for the books we read,
And for the Book of books we need;
For hopes of earth so sweetly given.
And for the higher hopes of Heaven.

For children's voices full of love;
For the bright clouds that float above;
And for the tears we've sometimes known
For sorrows other than our own.

For loved ones here and loved ones gone,
Who still, with Thee, keep loving on;
For spirit tones that softly call,
And for the cross that's over all.
—Rev. J. P. Hutchinson.

An Excellent Sentiment.

You will have to travel far and search diligently to find a better Thanksgiving sentiment than that of an old Franklin county patriarch, now long since passed to his reward. His annual—aye and his daily—prayer was: "O Lord, we thank Thee that it is as well with us as it is."—Lewiston Journal.

Can We Do So?

We ought to thank God, if we have had grace to make other people thankful.—United Presbyterian.

WOMAN DOES MANY THINGS.

But There Is at Least One That Baffles Her.

Something may be conceded to women. They prepare shooting lunches with admirable care and a lavish expenditure of jam—an excellent thing in woman and one much appreciated by the wearied bringer-down of grouse.

They can pour out tea at breakfast and toward the end of a week's visit may be counted upon to remember that you take or do not take sugar. They can leave cards on friends who have left cards on you; they can easily spend an hour on dressing or adorning themselves, a feat of which few men in these degenerate days are capable.

They can organize picnics and actually take pleasure in them when wasps are not too numerous.

They can, as young girls, manufacture a secret out of nothing and then talk it over with other girls in corners to an accompaniment of mysterious gigglings and to the exclusion of rude, intrusive boys.

They can run long hatpins apparently through the very middle of their heads without doing themselves the least harm, and they can coax a five-pound note or a bicycle or a photographic camera out of an indulgent parent in less time than it takes a son to obtain ten shillings. All this and many other things they can do—but they cannot steer a pleasure boat on the Thames.

Observe her as she gets into the boat. Her attendant swains are in their places at stroke and bow; another girl has been wedged into the bows. The steerer installs herself and thus addresses her crew as they push off:

"Now, on which side ought I to sit? I think I could see better on the right side. There! Will that do? Oh, but if I sit in the middle I can't see anything!

"Ought I to pull both strings very hard like? Why, they won't move at all. But if I pull the left string we go to the left and I'm sure that's wrong, because I've always heard that you ought to pull the other string.

"Well, never mind; we're getting along very nicely and catching up with the other boat. Oh, oh, there's a boat coming the other way—which side ought we to go? They're rowing right into us. Oh, do stop!

"There! I knew the silly man would run into us. He needn't have looked so angry about getting a ridiculous little bit of wood broken off his oar.

"Why didn't he look around and watch where he was going? I do love this rocking about, don't you, Mr. Harrison? Do try and keep close to the steam launch.

"What? It makes rowing so uncomfortable? Well, you men are funny. I don't think it was my fault we ran into the bank, for I was puling the left string as hard as I could. That was the reason, was it? Of course. I forgot.

"Now, let me see. What ought you to do when you come to a rock? I know you do something with boathooks or whistles. Alice, can you whistle? No? I dare say it doesn't matter. The man will have to open all the same.

"Why did that woman glare at me so? She didn't think it makes her look pretty, because it doesn't.

"Oh, do take care! Please do! Why is all that water pouring into the lock? There! I knew we should get crushed. They oughtn't to be in such a hurry. Besides, it would be very much simpler to open both sets of gates at each end together and then we could slip through without all this fuss and bother.

"No, thank you, Mr. Harrison; I'm not a bit tired. I could go on steering all day in this delightful weather. Now, why did we stick to the bank that time? Why, I've dropped the string! Well, I suppose one can't always do things perfectly."—London Punch.

WHEN GIRLS SHOULD MARRY.

Not Until They Are Cooks and Housekeepers.

A girl should marry when she is capable of understanding and fulfilling the duties of a true wife and thorough housekeeper, and never before. No matter how old she may be, if she is not capable of managing a house in every department of it she is not old enough to get married. When she promises to take the position of wife and homemaker, the man who holds her promise has every right to suppose that she knows herself competent to fulfill it. If she proves to be incompetent or unwilling he has good reason to consider himself cheated. No matter how plain the home may be, if it is in accordance with the husband's means and he finds it neatly kept and the meals (no matter how simple) served from shining dishes and clean table linen, that husband will leave his home with loving words and thoughts and look ahead with eagerness to the time when he can return.

Let a girl play the piano and acquire every accomplishment within her power, the more the better, for every one will be that much more power to be used in making a happy home. At the same time, if she cannot go into the kitchen, if necessary, and cheerfully prepare just as good a meal as anyone could with the same material, and serve it neatly after it is prepared, she would better defer her marriage until she learns. If girls would thoroughly fit themselves for the position of intelligent housekeepers before they marry there would be fewer discontented, unhappy wives and more happy homes.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Stewed Mushrooms.

Peel fresh mushrooms, cut off the stalks, put them in a saucepan; to every pint add an ounce of butter, mixed with half a teaspoonful of cornstarch. Set over the fire and let cook 15 minutes. Season with salt and pepper and serve immediately.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Honey Popcorn Balls.

One pint of honey. Put it in a frying pan and boil until very thick, then stir in freshly-parched corn, and mold into balls when nearly cold.—Ladies' Home Journal.

NISHAPUR TURQUOISE MINES.

Lazy Methods by Which the Stones Are Gotten Out—Jewels That Fade.

The famous turquoise mines of Nishapur, in northern Persia, are believed to be the only turquoise mines in the world which have been worked extensively or which have produced the turquoise of perfect shape and color. On approaching the mines from Nishapur, after entering the low hills and gradually ascending, one arrives first at the villages inhabited by the miners, which are on undulating ground about 5,000 feet above sea level. After another gradual ascent for about a mile by a very good road the foot of a hill about 1,000 feet in height is reached. All the mines are on the south face of this hill, and from the first to the last the distance as the crow flies is not more than half a mile. The Reish mine, which is the only one worked on a large scale or with vigor, produces the greater part of the turquoises at present sent to market. It is near the top of one of the highest ridges, at an altitude of about 6,000 feet above sea level. The entrance is a hollowed-out cave, about 12 yards across, with a vertical shaft some five yards in diameter. Two men were reclining at the mouth of this shaft with their backs against the wall of the cave, and turning with their bare feet a rickety wooden wheel, which brought up the debris from below in a small sheepskin bag holding no more than a peck, perhaps. This was received by a third man, who unhooked, emptied and reattached it. The other two men removed their feet, and the bag went down with a run some 40 feet, where three other men were similarly engaged on a ledge in the shaft. The mine itself is 80 or 90 feet from the surface. The miners first descend by means of a narrow diagonal tunnel, and then scramble down the rough sides of the shaft.

At the mouth of the cave, which is on the precipitous hillside, half a dozen men were seated close together on a ledge, breaking with small hammers the fragments of rock as they were brought up from below. When a turquoise was discovered it was placed on one side in its rough state, encased in rock, and sent to Meshed. Unfortunately, though the mine is very productive, and the turquoises of good shape, their color soon goes. Since the Abdur Rezai mine fell in it may be said that the stones of perfect shape and color are very rarely found. But, though really good turquoises are rare, there is abundance of imperfect and bad stones, which are eagerly bought, for all orientals prize them, and the very poorest like to possess even a green and spotted one set in a tin ring. It is more than likely, however, that the hill contains an abundance of good stones. Some of these now found look excellent at first, but the color in most cases soon fades, or a green tinge is developed, or spots appear on them. Some of these white spots can only be detected at first with a glass, and then as a mere speck, but in time they may expand and spread right across the stone. The color of most faded turquoises can be temporarily revived by dampness. In Meshed no one would dream of buying a turquoise of good color without possessing it first for some days, for it is the most treacherous of all precious stones. The turquoises, as soon as they are cut in Meshed, are nearly all sold at once for export, and their price in the town rises at least 1,000 per cent. Some years ago one could obtain in Meshed good turquoises of perfect shape, fine color, fair size, and without a flaw for a few shillings each. Turquoises are at present far cheaper at Tiflis and Constantinople than at Meshed, and at those towns one might perhaps find some of good color which have been in stock for years.—London Times.

ALASKA ONLY HALF MADE.

Country Where Mountains Smoke and Coal Is as Soft as Soap.

Prof. L. L. Dyche, of the University of Kansas, returned recently from Alaska to Seattle on the City of Topeka, and left by way of California for his home. Prof. Dyche went to Cook's inlet especially in search of natural history specimens. He ascended to the source of the Knik river with an organized expedition that was a success, although the obstacles to be overcome were appalling. The native boatmen stripped naked, and with ropes pulled the boat up the turbulent river. Prof. Dyche got specimens of a new mountain sheep, 12 immense moose heads, caribou, sea otter, birds and many small animals. July 17 Prof. Dyche saw eight inches of snow fall, and August 11 six inches fall. He saw three smoking mountains, and experienced an earthquake of such strength that a man could not remain standing during the quake. He found large coal lodges but the coal was so soft that it could be whittled with a knife. Prof. Dyche says that the country is only half made and adds:

"It will be a good country some day when it is finished. The glaciers are slowly doing their work, the mountains are smoking and the rivers are vomiting out quantities of quicksand. Let it alone, and some day it will be a good country."

Prof. Dyche met Princess Tom, a famous Yakutat princess, wealthy beyond all other Alaska Indians. She has $15,000 in gold twenties on her right arm. She wears five bracelets, each hammered out of a gold 20, and on her left arm she wears ten bracelets each made of a ten-dollar gold piece. She has hundreds of blankets, sea-otter skins, etc., and she owns a schooner and two sloops. She is 65 years old, and has just bought her fifth husband, a young man, 29 years old, for whom she paid 500 blankets.

The Thinklet women manage the household and hold the purse. The relationships are traced back through the mother's side. It is in fact almost a savage realization of Lytton's "Coming Race."—Portland Oregonian.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

—A free school for teaching the Russian language has been established at Seoul, the capital of Corea. It has 46 pupils, ranging in age from 20 to 40 years.

—On leaving Madagascar the Anglican bishop of Antananarivo informed his flock that after all his labors the men were greater thieves than ever and the women more immoral.

—English clergymen in poor parishes have to turn their hands to all kinds of work. A Sunderland vicar who acted also as dentist for his parishioners hauled out 25,000 teeth during a long ministry.

—A dictionary of Australian English is being prepared by Prof. Morris, of the University of Melbourne. Among the words whose origin he is seeking are "larrikin," meaning a street rough; "brumby," the Australian wild horse, and "brickfielder," a windstorm accompanied by dust.

—In Syria people never take off their caps or turbans when entering the house or visiting a friend, but they always leave their shoes at the door. There are no mats or scrapes outside, and the floors inside are covered with expensive rugs, which, in Moslem houses, are kept very clean, and used to kneel upon while saying prayers.

—Rochdale Churches and Chapels.—The town in England best provided with places of worship is the ancient one of Rochdale, where there are 145 churches and chapels. Fifty belong to the Church of England and 95 to the Nonconformists. The Church of England accommodates 24,449 and the Nonconformists 61,850 persons in sittings.

CATS AND WILDCATS.

Ferocious Felines That Make Havoc Among Weaker Animals.

It has taken about 20 years to produce the wild cats of Goat Island, the degenerating process commencing soon after the lighthouse was established there in 1875. It seems that the first keepers brought a number of cats with them, but with unrestrained liberty the animals gradually forsook the comforts of civilization. Goat Island is the home of thousands of birds and squirrels, and to this is probably due the temptation of the cats to forsake the keepers' fireside. At first the cats would absent themselves for days at a time, but the kittens were born at home. In time, however, they got over this, and lived altogether in the underbrush. After a few years the descendants of the first cats were so wild that they were afraid of human beings and made their dens in the crevices of the rocks.

From that time the cats became wilder, until now they are as ferocious as the terrible creatures of the mountains. They have increased in size and changed altogether in disposition. They are always seen in pairs and appear to mate, as all species of the cat tribe do in the wild state. The cats live on squirrels, quail and sparrows, as well as such other small animals as they can catch. They are supplied with water from a dozen springs in different parts of the island.

In addition to other changes the wild cats have become hostile to such tame cats as are brought to the island from time to time. They will attack them on sight and never stop till they have killed their victims.

The chief destruction wrought by the wild cats is on the quail that inhabit the island. The "artful drummers" used to be there in abundance, but are now pretty well thinned out. The cats are constantly on the alert, and not only kill every quail they can catch, but often destroy whole nests full of young. To prevent this the lightkeepers are always on the lookout for wild cats and shoot every one that comes anywhere near the house. As a consequence the cats keep some distance away, and the quail seem to think they are safe in that locality, for there are more nests there than in any other part of the island.

Many plans have been tried within the last few years to rid the island of the hungry, carnivorous pests, but the more they are persecuted with shot, trap and poison, the more rapidly they seem to multiply.—San Francisco Call.

Chinese Trust One Another

I have said that a Chinaman trusts his friends to an extent that we would consider almost imbecile. Among them money is loaned without written acknowledgment or witnesses. If a man is "short" and appeals to his cousin or his friend to help him, that friend will divide up without specifying a time for its repayment. If the man is sick or poor, the creditor, in all probability, will never mention the matter again, and will certainly not ask for its return while the debtor refrains from gambling or opium-smoking, and honestly does his best. I have known men to be for a time without employment, and while they were trying to obtain it, if they conformed to the strict moral code of Chinese law, they were helped by various cousins with gifts of money sufficient to support them until work was obtained; and not only to support themselves, but their families also. And then, as "turn about is fair play," they were expected to be equally generous with some one else.—Helen F. Clark, in Century.

Novel Farming.

Muggins—We got beautifully deceived in our entertaining friend, Goodfellow. It turns out that he is a professional crook.

Guggins—Great Scott! I can't believe it. What is his specialty?

"He's a security farmer."

"What on earth is that?"

"He makes a business of raising notes."—Buffalo Express.

Unfeeling.

First Cyclist—I always get nervous when I see a woman crossing the street in front of me.

Second Cylist—So do I. They have so many pins in their clothes that if a fellow collides with them he is almost sure to puncture a tire. — Pearson's Weekly.

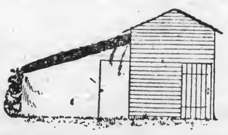
AGRICULTURAL HINTS

KEEP THEM SCRATCHING.

It Is the Best Way to Exercise Poultry in the Winter.

The sketch herewith shows the "second-best" scratch room for my fowls this winter, which proved so useful last season. A frame 12x16 feet of posts, poles and brush, and upon the brush roof, fodder piled deep will be the style of it. The north and west will be banked with bound bundles of the fodder, the east end will be against the west end of the main poultry house, and the south, which is the front, will be muslin covered. The muslin breaks the wind and cold from them, and allows the sun to shine in across the whole floor. The muslin-covered door opens into the room from the yard. This for my make-shift scratch-room.

Besides this I have a permanent scratch-room, which is a very necessary part of the poultry plant. This is upon the east end of the poultry house, is 12x15 feet, 6 feet high in front and slopes to 4 feet high at the back. The roof is shingled and the front that was once muslin-covered, is now of boarding and windows, for throughout the year it is in use for different purposes. This room is divided into two compartments by wire fence netting, for summer use as rooms for breeding stock or for hens and chicks. But when used for a winter scratch-room, the door is left open and they have all the room to work in. The floor is deep covered with straw, and the fowls are kept sufficiently hungry to keep them scratching. Small doors, less than a foot square, open into either room from the roosting, or main house.



SCRATCH ROOM ADDITION TO POULTRY HOUSE.

When the weather is dry and the corn fodder palace (?) perfectly dry, they are divided into two flocks. But should the fodder-built room become damp, they all go to the room that is dry and warm. Sometimes they are a little crowded. But as soon as their house is cleaned in the morning, they have that room also to exercise in.

The cost of such a permanent scratch-room is not great. And the one constructed of fodder costs nothing at all except the work, for the refuse brush, poles, etc., are found upon almost any farm. If you have not the fodder in available shape, you have surely plenty of straw. Many farmers have their supply of straw baled every year. Such material as baled straw to bank the sides of such a room could scarce be surpassed. Once the scratch-room theory is put into practice in one's poultry yards, the practice will never be abandoned, for the birds must have exercise.—Orange Judd Farmer.

FOODS FOR POULTRY.

Why It Is More Advantageous to Feed Everything Dry.

The natural food of fowls is composed of seeds, insects and grass. In the domestic condition we allow grain, grass and meat. Turkeys and chickens drink very little water when feeding, and even ducks and geese resort to water when feeding sometimes, in order to wash their bills more than to drink, says the Poultry Keeper.

This brings up the question of the propriety of feeding soft food. It is known that ground grain absorbs a large volume of water, and when the mixture is apparently dry, quite a large proportion of water exists in it, though more so when the mixture is very moist and sloppy. It is not beneficial water, as the results are sometimes injurious, bowel disease and indigestion prevailing.

It is better to feed all food dry, if possible, and keep a trough full of water where the fowls can take what quantity they desire. Even ground food may be given in a dry condition, the different substances used being thoroughly mixed and placed in a trough. When chicks are fed they have cornmeal moistened several times a day, and bowel disease results simply because too much water is forced upon them in the food. The fowls never resort to wet food when they can get dry kinds, and this is a matter that deserves attention.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

A "stunted" fowl better be killed at once. They are useless.

Feed but one kind of grain at a time, and cover up with light litter.

If living near a market, try turkeys. Ducks are also profitable.

Both nesting and dusting material should be renewed at least monthly.

Keep fresh water continually before the fowls, warmed a trifle on the colder mornings.

Select the best layers for breeding stock, keeping size and color of plumage as uniform as possible.

Keep grit of some kind accessible to the poultry at all times. This is indispensable to their well-being.

Corn is probably the best cold-weather food. Feed the kitchen scraps in the morning in a clean place.

Clean out the litter from under perches once a week. Pack in barrels with frequent layers of earth—dry, if possible.

Thoroughbred poultry pay best. Select your breed, basing judgment upon their characteristics and surroundings, and then keep them pure; introduce new blood every other year.

It is a good policy on general principles to give the hens a dusting over frequently with Persian insect powder; hold the fowl up side down, and ruffle the feathers the "wrong way."—Rural World.

VACCINATING LAND.

The Principle of Inoculation in the Domain of Agriculture.

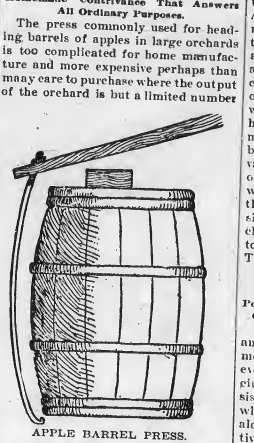
Research has demonstrated that the soil of our fields is literally teeming with bacteria, which, according to some recent experiments, may be present to the extent of 45,000,000 per gramme (the one-twenty-sixth part of an ounce) of soil; and that these bacteria are largely instrumental in conducing to the successful growth of vegetation by preparing, in forms suitable for assimilation by the plant, the different food substances it derives from the soil, says the Quarterly Review. The latest application, in the domain of agriculture, of the great principle of inoculation, is in many respects of a more striking nature than anything yet accomplished by this line of research, and consists of the inoculation of the soil with pure cultures of bacteria for the purpose of promoting plant growth.

Inoculation of a soil with these cultures, on a practical scale, may be affected in either of two ways. First, the seed of the crop it is desired to inoculate may be inoculated before it is sown. This is effected by making a watery solution of the pure cultivation, immersing the seed in it, and subsequently drying it; or, secondly, it may be effected by inoculating a quantity of fine sand or earth in the same way, and then spreading it over the field and subsequently working it into the soil to a depth of about three inches. Naturally, a point of considerable interest is the economic question of the cost of such treatment. It is interesting to learn that this is extremely moderate. as the expense of inoculating a field in this way amounts to the very moderate sum of five shillings per acre. This cannot be regarded as expensive, and contrasts favorably with the expense of nitrogenous fertilizers.

APPLE BARREL PRESS.

Homemade Contrivance That Answers All Ordinary Purposes.

The press commonly used for heading barrels of apples in large orchards is too complicated for home manufacture and more expensive perhaps than many care to purchase where the output of the orchard is but a limited number of barrels. We find in American Gardening a sketch of a homemade press which hardly needs to be described. An iron rod is bent to the curve of the barrel and its lower end turned over a hook under the lower edge of the barrel. The lever at the top and a block of wood, to be used first flatwise and then edgewise, complete the outfit. The lever can be raised or lowered by the nut on the end of the iron rod.



APPLE BARREL PRESS.

ART IN AGRICULTURE.

It Is Coming to Be Quite an Important Elevating Factor.

Art in agriculture is coming to be more and more noticeable every day. With the advent of new methods, improved implements and a wider knowledge of the field, the agriculturist is rising higher in the field of useful or ornamental art as the years go by. We may say that sharp competition is no small factor in this progressive movement, says the agricultural student. Take, for example, the manner in which certain products are prepared for the open market. The improvement in the condition of certain dairy products and fruit on market in the last few years is truly wonderful. The reason, of course, is that people always buy that article which is put up in the most tasteful and attractive style, and are willing to pay a little more for it. With this change comes a more wholesome effect upon the article itself, and disease is much less disseminated through food at the present time than formerly. Greater precautions are taken now than ever before in preventing the spread of contagious diseases in this manner, and with the increase in the size of the cities and the greater liability to ill-health, these precautions cannot be observed too carefully. Thus the agriculturist, to be successful, must keep right up to date in his readings and methods.—Mirror and Farmer.

American Horses in England.

During the last year no less than 10,000 American horses have been sold in London alone. A large number are used for the omnibuses and street cars. The cabmaster and smaller dealer profess not to touch them, the former believing, and possibly rightly, that the majority of foreign horses are somewhat soft, while, as a rule, he declares that at his price he can get plenty of well-bred English horses, and that they do his work very well. The fact is, however, that there are almost as many American horses drawing cabs as American subjects riding in them. After American and Canadian horses have changed hands under the hammer they are resold without anything being said about their nationality. They get into the country and add to the difficulties and perplexities of the breeder.—London Field.

It costs almost as much to keep an idle horse as one that works in winter.

RECOVERY OF A BICYCLE.

It Had Been Sunk in the Harbor for Revenge.

Among the residents of Bermuda are two brothers, one of whom, besides being an enthusiastic yachtsman, is also a swift and skillful rider of the bicycle. Some years ago, shortly before the date set for a bicycle race in which he was to be one of the contestants his wheel mysteriously disappeared and all efforts to find a trace of it proved fruitless.

One day, about 14 months after the bicycle had been presumably stolen, a fisherman who was angling out in the middle of St. George's harbor for floating fish, hooked a large one, which instantly plunged into the depths of the harbor in a vain endeavor to escape. The angler played with him for awhile, and then feeling the line tightening in his hand and the strain become steady began to haul up. He soon realized that he had at the end of his line one of the heaviest catches which he had ever made, and (what he could not understand about it) that it was almost apparently a dead weight. He hauled away, however, until there appeared above the water not only the fish that he had hooked, but a bicycle, around the handles of which the fish, in his efforts to escape, had wound the rope a number of times.

When the astonished fisherman had sufficiently recovered from his amazement at the curious catch he took the bicycle ashore. There it was identified as the one which had so inexplicably disappeared. Strange to say the machine, in spite of the fact that it had been at the bottom of the harbor for 14 months, was but little damaged and was easily put in running order again.

For some time no clew as to how it found its way to its watery hiding place could be discovered. Eventually, however, several circumstances came to light that pointed to a man with whom the bicycle rider had once had trouble. At one time whenever he rode past this man's place the dogs which were kept there would run out and bark and snap at the rider, causing him considerable annoyance and trouble. At first he contented himself with simply driving off the brutes as best he could, but when he found that they were set upon him by their master he took prompt measures to have the man arrested brought into court and fined. From various circumstances that were found out regarding the disappearance of the wheel there seemed to be no doubt that the owner of the ugly dogs was responsible for it and that he stole the machine and sunk it in the harbor in order to be revenged on its owner.—Boston Transcript.

CRAFTSMEN WHO WANDER.

Peripatetic Shoemakers, Tinkers and Grinders Who Work Outlying Districts.

In the outlying portions of Chicago, and especially where its foreign elements abound, there are many features even of street life that recall the older cities of Europe. One of these consists in that class of roving tradesmen who carry their tools and workshops along with them and ply their respective callings wherever they can pick up a job. Various are their methods of advertising themselves and attracting custom.

One aristocrat of a shoemaker drives about in a closed vehicle as white and garish as a circus wagon. Within it are his work bench and stool, a cupboard full of leather scraps and a small heating stove. He has the knack of restoring to usefulness footwear that seemed to be hopelessly disabled. When he gets a job at any house in a block he draws up his wagon to the sidewalk and there "sticks to his last" as long as custom may come.

The tinsmith, or tinker, is usually less imposing than the cobbler. He carries his tools and a small stock of tin in a leathern budget slung over one shoulder. He proclaims his coming in the street by a musical cry of "Old tins—tins to mend!" When employed to repair a leaking wash boiler or a spoutless teakettle, he sits down to his task in some convenient porch or entry.

Another useful craftsman is the one who has an ambulant grindstone for sharpening knives and scissors. As he trundles it along by the sidewalk it clangs an iron bell that makes piteous appeal to be silenced. The grinder gets numerous jobs, too, for in many drudging households there would be no work for the carving knife if the scissors were long out of order. One knife grinder was met lately who has no grindstone, but does his work with a set of very hard files. These he carries in his hand rolled up in a piece of canvas, and as he makes no clang or cry, but has all the modest seeming of an opulent plumber, he is enabled to call unterrified at the better class of residences. All these worthy craftsmen fill a useful role and form a link between American civilization and the lands in which it was cradled.—Chicago Chronicle.

His Method.

"You are charged with knocking the complainant down with a club and taking all his valuables," said the judge.

"He tole me to," said the prisoner.

"Eh?"

"He tole me to do it. I stops him on the corner to get a light—see? An' of course, we got to talkin' about de money question. Den he says to me, 'De on'y right way to git at de money question is to start right in on first principles,' he says. 'Is dat de way youse wants to do?' I says. 'It is,' says he. 'All right,' I says, an' sonks 'im an' takes wot belongs to me by rights of first principles."—Indianapolis Journal.

His Hard Lines.

"Poor man!" exclaimed the prison missionary, to whom the sheriff's guest had been relating a tale of woe. "Your life seems to have been one unbroken series of misfortunes."

"Yes," sighed the fallen one. "I hav had many trials."—Buffalo Courier.

AN ARIZONA MUMMY.

Once a Very Rich Person of the Ancient Aztec Nation.

An Indian mummy has been found in Arizona, near Prescott, that is believed to have once been one of the great men of the Aztecs, says the New York Journal. It was found by John F. Blundy, who communicated the facts to George F. Kunz, the New York diamond expert, says the Chicago News.

Beside the mummy was a basket filled with a half peck of torquoises. With the Aztecs green was a sacred stone and wealth was gauged generally by the number of green stones the person owned. Every man's treasure in those days was buried with his bones, and neglect to do this was regarded as highly sacrilegious. For the nourishment of the departed soul a few ears of corn were added.

The torquoises Mr. Bundy found were in the form of beads. These the Aztecs firmly believed saved the wearer from fevers, serpents' bites and diseases.

The mummy is a singular specimen, altogether unlike the Egyptian variety. The skin is dried firmly over the bones, giving it a withered appearance. This is due to the rare air in Arizona, which dries but seldom has the decomposing effect of our atmosphere.

Cheap Excursions to the West, North and Northwest.

On December 1 and 15, 1896, the North Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets to a large number of points in the west, north and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. KNISKERN, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, C. & N. W. R'y, Chicago, Ill.

SECRET SOCIETIES—"My pa's an odd fellow," boasted a little boy. "My pa's a freemason," replied the other, "an' that's higher, for the hod fellows wait on the masons!"—Tit-Bits.

Home-Seekers Excursions.

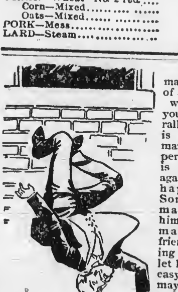
On November 17 and December 1 and 15, 1896, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway will sell round trip excursion tickets from Chicago to a great many points in the Western and Southwestern states both on its own line and elsewhere, at greatly reduced rates. Details as to rates, routes, etc., may be obtained on application to any coupon ticket agent or by addressing GEO. H. HEAFFORD, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

THIS sorrow, which has cut down to the root, has come, not as a spoiling of your life, but as a preparation for it.—George Eliot.

PISO'S Cure is a wonderful Cough medicine.—MRS. W. PICKERT, Van Siclen and Blake Aves., Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 26, '94.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	2 25	@ 3 00
Select butchers	3 75	@ 4 00
CALVES—Fair to good light	4 50	@ 5 25
HOGS—Common	2 50	@ 3 10
Mixed packers	3 15	@ 3 25
Light shippers	3 20	@ 3 35
SHEEP—Choice	3 60	@ 3 00
LAMBS—Good to choice	3 60	@ 4 00
FLOUR—Winter family	3 35	@ 3 65
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 89
No. 3 red		@ 85
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 23
Oats—No. 2		@ 20½
Rye—No. 2		@ 37
HAY—Prime to choice	11 00	@ 11 50
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@ 8 37½
Lard—Prime steam		@ 3 65
BUTTER—Choice dairy	15	@ 17
Prime to choice creamery		@ 22
APPLES—Per bbl	1 50	@ 1 75
POTATOES—New, per bbl	85	@ 1 10
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 80	@ 5 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@ 90⅞
No. 2 red		@ 84½
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@ 28⅜
OATS—Mixed		@ 22¾
PORK—New mess	8 50	@ 9 00
LARD—Western		@ 4 10
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patents	4 40	@ 4 60
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	81⅝	@ 83⅛
No. 2 Chicago spring		@ 75¼
CORN—No. 2	22¾	@ [illegible]
OATS—No. 2		@ 18⅛
PORK—Mess	6 40	@ 6 45
LARD—Steam	3 70	@ 3 75
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	4 25	@ 4 65
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2		@ 90
Corn—Mixed	28	@ 28¼
Oats—Mixed	25	@ 28¼
LARD—Refined		@ 11 00
PORK—Mess		@ 16 85
CATTLE—First quality	4 00	@ 4 25
HOGS—Western	4 00	@ 4 20
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@ 87
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 24½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 17½
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 90
Corn—Mixed		@ 21½
Oats—Mixed		@ 25
PORK—Mess		@ 8 00
LARD—Steam		@ 4 50



When a man falls out of a ten-story window you'd naturally say he is a dead man. Well, perhaps he is and then again, perhaps not. Something may save him. There may be a friendly awning that will let him down easy, so he may be sound and well tomorrow. You never know what may save a man who seems to be as good as dead.

Many a man who seemed to be dying of consumption, and whom the doctors pronounced just as good as dead, has got well and strong and hearty again by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This wonderful medicine has shown the doctors that consumption isn't always a fatal disease. It can be cured if you get at the germs of it in the blood and clear them out thoroughly. That is what this "Discovery" does. It makes new blood,—healthy blood.

The germs of consumption can't exist in healthy blood. They simply let go their hold and are carried out of the system; then the new blood builds up new tissue, new flesh, new power, new life. It carries vitality to the lungs, the bronchial tubes and every other part of the body.

It cures people after cod liver oil has failed, because their digestive organs are too weak to digest fat-foods. The "Discovery" makes the digestion strong.

For thin and pale and emaciated people there is no flesh-builder in the world to compare with it. It doesn't make flabby fat, but hard, healthy flesh. It builds nerve-power and force and endurance. It is never safe to pronounce any one "dying of consumption," or any other wasting disease, until this marvelous "Discovery" has been given a fair trial.

Dr. Pierce's thousand-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser" will be sent free paper-bound for the cost of mailing only, 21 one-cent stamps. Cloth-bound, 10 stamps extra. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

MISS SHARPE—"I celebrate my 24th birthday to-morrow." Miss Oldage—"Indeed! And isn't it singular! So do I!" Miss Sharpe—"Oh, but I celebrate mine for the first time!"—Tit-Bits.

An Appeal for Assistance.

The man who is charitable to himself will listen to the mute appeal for assistance made by his stomach, or his liver, in the shape of divers dyspeptic qualms and uneasy sensations in the regions of the gland that secretes his bile. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, my dear sir, or madam—as the case may be—is what you require. Hasten to use it you are troubled with heartburn, wind in the stomach, or note that your skin or the whites of your eyes are taking a sallow hue.

"WELL, Jacky, did you enjoy the horse show?" "Pretty good. Thought it was kind of queer they didn't have any hobby-horses there, though."—Harper's Bazar.

WHEN bilious or costive, eat a Cascaret, candy cathartic, cure guaranteed, 10c, 25c.

TAGLEIGH (facetiously)—"A man can always dictate to his stenographer, you know." Wagleigh—"Yes; but she takes him down, just the same."—Vogue.

JUST try a 10c box of Cascarets, the finest liver and bowel regulator ever made.

HICKS—"Are you fond of children?" Wicks—"Immoderately. A house is so restful after the little dears have been put to bed."—Boston Transcript.

HIS IS THE TIME of year .. .. when men .. and women .. become weakened by .. the weather, and run down generally. .. .. The first parts that the weather affects are the kidneys. The urea is not thrown off, but is forced back upon the lungs, and disease results —caused by weakness of the kidneys.

Large bottle, or new style, smaller one at your druggist's.

HERE IS ONLY ONE SURE WAY known to medical men for promptly checking troubles of the kidneys and restoring these great organs to health and strength, and that is by the use of

Warner's Safe Cure

It has stood the test of time; it has saved thousands of lives; it has restored millions of sufferers to health; it has done what was never done, never attempted before; it has made men stronger and healthier; it has made .. women brighter and happier; .. it stands alone in all these qualities. Do you not think it would be wise for you to use it and thus avoid the dangers of the season? Insist upon having it.

TOP SNAP, Extension Rib DOUBLE Breech Loader $9.00 GUNS BUY-CYCLES Pistols, Sporting Goods, Fishing Tackle, cheaper than elsewhere. Send 2c. for 60-page catalogue. POWELL & CLEMENT CO. 166 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

A. N. K.—E. 1632

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Important Notice!

The only genuine "Baker's Chocolate," celebrated for more than a century as a delicious, nutritious, and flesh-forming beverage, is put up in Blue Wrappers and Yellow Labels. Be sure that the Yellow Label and our Trade-Mark are on every package.

TRADE-MARK.

WALTER BAKER & CO. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass.

The cleaning of carpets without taking them up. That is a specialty with Pearline (use without soap). After a thorough sweeping, you simply scrub them with Pearline (use no soap) and water. Then you wipe them off with clean water, and sit down and enjoy their newness and freshness. You ought to be able to do a good deal of sitting down, if in all your washing and cleaning you use Pearline (use without soap), and so save time and work. Use it alone—no soap with it.

Millions now use Pearline

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets CURE CONSTIPATION

REGULATE THE LIVER

10¢ 25¢ 50¢

ALL DRUGGISTS

ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED to cure any case of constipation. Cascarets are the Ideal Laxative, never grip or gripe, but cause easy natural results. Sample and booklet free. Ad. STERLING REMEDY CO., Chicago, Montreal, Can., or New York. 217.

MRS. BURTON HARRISON, ONE OF THE POPULAR WRITERS FOR 1897.

Celebrating in 1897 its seventy-first birthday. THE COMPANION offers its readers many exceptionally brilliant features. The two hemispheres have been explored in search of attractive matter.

The Youth's Companion

For the Whole Family.

In addition to twenty-five staff writers fully two hundred of the most famous men and women of both the Old and the New World, including the most popular writers of fiction and some of the most eminent statesmen, scientists, travellers and musicians, are contributors to The Companion.

A delightful supply of fascinating Stories, Adventures, Serial Stories, Humorous and Travel Sketches, etc., are announced for the Volume for 1897. The timely Editorials, the "Current Events," the "Current Topics" and "Nature and Science" Departments give much valuable information every week. Send for Full Prospectus.

FREE to Jan. 1, 1897, with Beautiful Calendar.

As a special offer The Youth's Companion will be sent free, for the remainder of the year 1896, to all new subscribers. One of the most beautiful Calendars issued this year will also be given to each new subscriber. It is made up of Four Charming Pictures in color, beautifully executed. Its size is 10 by 24 inches. The subjects are delightfully attractive. This Calendar is published exclusively by The Youth's Companion and could not be sold in Art Stores for less than one dollar.

Distinguished Writers

IAN MACLAREN.
RUDYARD KIPLING.
HALL CAINE.
FRANK R. STOCKTON.
HAROLD FREDERIC.
MADAME LILLIAN NORDICA.
CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER.
STEPHEN CRANE.
HAMLIN GARLAND.
MAX O'RELL.
W. CLARK RUSSELL.
ALICE LONGFELLOW.
HON. THOMAS B. REED.
ANDREW CARNEGIE.
LIEUT. R. E. PEARY, U. S. N.
DR. CYRUS EDSON.
DR. EDWARD EVERETT HALE.
DR. LYMAN ABBOTT.
And One Hundred Others.

700 Large Pages in Each Volume. 52 Weeks for $1.75.

12-Color Calendar FREE.

New Subscribers who will cut out this slip and send it at once with name and address and $1.75 (the subscription price) will receive:
FREE—The Youth's Companion every week from time subscription is received to January 1, 1897;
FREE—Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Double Numbers;
FREE—The Companion 4-page Calendar for 1897. The most costly gift of its kind The Companion has ever offered; 39
And The Youth's Companion 52 Weeks, a full year, to January 1, 1898.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, Boston, Mass.

BOONE : COUNTY : RECORDER.

Wednesday, Nov. 25, 1896.

Rates of Subscription:
One year.............. .... $1 50.
Six months.................................. 75.
Three months................................ 40.
☞Payable invariably in advance.

THE RECORDER
SOLICITS YOUR
Job Work,
NOTE HEADS,
LETTER HEADS,
ENVELOPES,
CARDS,
BILL HEADS,
STATEMENTS,
SALE BILLS,
AND HORSE BILLS,
Printed at the Lowest Prices consistent with neat work.
Send your order by mail and it will be attended promptly.

STATE NEWS.

Five assignments in one day at Millersburg.

The Gertison distillery, ten miles above Owensboro, burned.

Bardstown is to have a new bank with a capital of $50,000.

Several farmers have left Lincoln county for the West, recently.

Many of the best crops of tobacco in Hancock county have been sold.

Pike county sent seven prisoners to the penitentiary for life, last week.

Judge Pryor will practice law in Frankfort at the expiration of his term of office.

There is no hog cholera in Boone county, and the reports to the contrary are untrue.

In Graves county White Caps beat a young man named Mangrum until he died.

Living with Hearst Witt, near Irvin, are his wife's father and mother, each 93 years old.

The weather prophets have laid out a very extensive snow program for Kentucky this winter.

The Owensvillians are growing fat—the coon and 'possum crops in the mountains are very large this fall.

An attempt was made to burn the business portion of Danville, one night last week. The fire bugs escaped.

Hon. John W. Yerkes has declared himself an applicant for the Internal Revenue Collectorship in his district.

Al Politt and two young ladies were killed by a C. & O. train near Vanceburg. They were crossing the rail road in a buggy.

It is estimated that at least $20,000 belonging to persons who bet on the Kentucky election is held by Louisville stakeholders.

The Franklin Fiscal Court is of the opinion that the county has no constitutional right to buy the turnpikes within its limits.

John Henry Wren is in jail at Cynthiana for three months. He could not give a $2,000 bond to keep the peace towards his wife.

A negro school tax collector is in jail at Stanford for shooting and fatally wounding a negro who was unable to pay his assessment.

Anton Bueger, deputy assessor in Campbell county committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. No cause for the act can be assigned.

A mob of 50 white men broke up a lumber camp that was being operated by negroes on the Tennessee river. Several of the negroes were badly wounded.

The people of Berry, Pendleton county, are having a big scare on account of maddogs, a number of their canines having had hydrophobia in the last two weeks.

Dudley Trimble delivered to Simon Wiehl 116 export cattle, averaging 1,550 pounds, at 4½ cents. When shipped they made a train of eight cars.—Richmond Register.

Another petition is being circulated at Lexington, asking the Governor to pardon Frank Searce, now in the penitentiary for felonies connected with real estate transactions.

Lawyers are requesting Governor Bradley to recommend to the legislature the enactment of a law providing for a commission to assist the Court of Appeals with its work.

Hon. James A. McKenzie, Minister to Peru, is at his home in Bowling Green. He has been very ill for some time, among several diseases with which he was annoyed being small pox.

The Carter county grand jury failed to indict Jack Marcum, charged with the murder of an old man named Fletcher near Denton last spring, and he was released from jail.

Near Clay's ferry Charles Atkinson found his wife at a neighbor's, in conversation with Samuel Young, of Madison county. Young will get no older—he carried two bullets to his grave.

The Lexington quarterly conference of the Methodist Church has forbidden Rev. H. C. Morrison to preach until an investigation has been made into certain doctrinal teachings of his.

A Graves county girl swapped a kiss for a chew of tobacco. She failed to come up with her part of the bargain, but the young fellow took it anyhow, and now he is in jail serving out a $75 fine for breach of the peace.

Tom Day, an old man living in Elliott county, was burned to death Saturday morning. He was sitting in front of the fire and fell over in it. He was too feeble to get up and was terribly burned, dying shortly afterward.

In Breathitt county robbers went in on Johnson Neace, his nephew, Alex Farler, and their wives, and hung the men until they told where $80 was, which they took. Mrs. Neace had $200 hid which was not found.

The five year-old son of W. J. East, a farmer near Shady Grove, Ky., fell in a tub of boiling water, which his father was using to scald hogs. The child's hair and skin fell off when he was rescued and his blistered, sightless eyes protruded from their sockets. This boy lived several hours.

Towboatmen between Cincinnati and Pomeroy claim that business has become so dull and competition so sharp between the points named, that the regular 10,000 bushel coal barges are towed the round trip from the mouth of Kanawha, 408 miles, for $35. At the close of the war towboats got $200 for what they receive but $35 for now.

The question of bank taxation is to be fought over again in the Court of Appeals in January. This time it is to decide whether or not banks organized since the passage of the Hewitt act may claim exemption from all taxation save the seventy-five cents paid the State under the law in question.

John Dugan a conductor on the Illinois Central road, who was dismissed on the complaint of Governor Bradley, will be reinstated. Governor Bradley put his feet on a seat in a coach while he was traveling from Louisville to Central City. This is contrary to the road's rules, and the conductor told the Governor to remove his feet. The Governor disregarded the order, it is said, and Dugan, catching hold of the gubernatorial trousers, pulled the objectionable legs from their elevation. His discharge followed.

Rev. W. S. Grinstead says the Baptist Recorder is in error when it states that Rev. H. C. Morrison has been expelled from the ministry for preaching sanctification. He is, however, to be tried by the Lexington quarterly conference, to which he is attached as a local preacher, on charges preferred by a presiding elder and pastor in Texas. Hearing his advanced views on sanctification and fearing its effect on their membership, they notified Mr. Morrison not to preach at certain campmeetings. He persisted and they "arrested his character," to use a Methodist church term, and filed specifications with the Lexington presiding elder as stated. The trial will likely attract attention since it is to pass on an important point in church polity and perhaps have something to say about sanctification.—Stanford Journal.

POLITICAL.

In Kentucky the electoral vote is 12 for McKinley and 1 for Bryan.

Georgia and Alabama have each chosen a free silver United States Senator.

Hon. W. J. Bryan gets a great deal of mail since the election. He is now receiving 3,000 letters a day.

The Republican national campaign committee alone spent $2,500,000 in the last Presidential election.

Johnson county has 50 Republican candidates for jailer. That office certainly pays well in Republican counties.

The gold Democrats are preparing in Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana and New York to perpetuate their organizations.

President elect McKinley hopes the coming session of Congress will pass the Dingley Tariff Bill which was passed in the lower house last spring.

Langley, the late Republican candidate for Congress in the Tenth district threatens to contest on account of fraudulent votes that were cast against him.

The gold Democrats are in a position to cause considerable trouble in the next session of the legislature, and as in the past the Republicans will receive all the favors they have to bestow.

Ex-Congressman Forman, of Illinois, the bolting Democratic candidate for Governor in that State in the late election, has been appointed Commissioner of Internal Revenue by President Cleveland.

The returns of the election in Kentucky show that the Democrats carried 64 out of the 100 Legislative districts. Had a Legislature been chosen on the 3d of November the Democrats would have elected a maiority of 28 in the House of Representatives.

The Capital is urging the Republicans and sound money Democrats to come to an understanding before the extra session of the legislature is called. Of course the Capital wants the understanding to redound to the interest of the Republicans entirely.

The leading negroes of Washington urge that their race should be recognized in the McKinley Cabinet. They have not yet agreed on the man. The papers there and in other Eastern cities have a number of communications on the subject. Several of them claim that McKinley owes this recognition to the negro voters.

It's real funny to hear the Courier-Journal talk about the majority Democratic party in Kentucky "coming back" to the little old five thousand "true blue" Democrats represented by it. If we had lost our state, county, city, public printing, and everything else, by our leadership, like the Courier-Journal has done, we would keep quiet about leading people.—Carlisle Mercury.

If Col. Breckinridge has Owen county's vote thrown out because of the holding of the Democratic primary election on the same day of the regular election, Mr. Settle's friends will have Fayette, Bourbon and Woodford counties thrown out because in each of these counties a free turnpike election was held, and Breckinridge will be left out in the cold again. Breck. can't get there. It is not in the cards.

The New York papers are talking about the reorganization of the Democratic party as though it were a railway company or a joint stock concern, requiring merely the introduction of a few new rules and a change of directors. In this they display an ignorance as gross as their estimate of the strength of the silver movement in the South and West. We do not believe it possible to reunite the warring factions of the Democracy. It can not be done in this State to a certainty. The Gold element in Kentucky is in a minority and surely the Silver advocates will not turn over the leadership and management to them. On the other hand the Gold element will not submit to the leadership of the Silver advocates and they are already preparing to set up for themselves. For the next four years the Silver agitation is to be kept up, according to the leaders of that side, so there will be no affiliation for that period. After another campaign of vituperation and slander like the last, the chasm will be so wide that all the political engineers in the world could not bridge it. There may be some reorganization done but its effect will not be to solidify the Democratic party. The breach is permanent and accessions to either side must come from Republicans or Populists.—Commonwealth.

Kentucky Crop Report.

Report on condition of crops and stocks on November 1st, is taken from replies from 151 correspondents, representing 101 counties.

WHEAT.

Early in the season the tendency was toward a decreased acreage of wheat. This was materially checked both by favorable seeding conditions existing late in the season, and by the rapid rise in the price of this ceral. The scarcity of good seed wheat has, to some extent, favored a decreased acreage. The acreage seeded this season, as compared with the fall of 1895, is 96 per cent. Taking the figures as returned by the county assessors, and allowing for the percentage of the crop plowed up last spring on account of winter-killing, gives the total of acreage seeded this year 948,024 acres. The condition of the growing plant especially the early sown, is excellent. The growing weather during October resulted in perfect germination, and the stand is almost perfect, the only exception being where inferior seed was sown. Some cases of this kind are reported where resowing was necessary. Another favorable feature is the thorough preparation of the soil for the crop. Weather conditions favored this to a remarkable degree, and, combined with the stimulation of advancing prices, the result is the best cultivated crop for years.

OTHER CROPS.

Reports still show a decrease in former estimates of yield of corn. Much complaint, too, is made of quality, dry rotting and chafly being the principal defects given. A complete report on yield and quality can not be had until next month, when it is anticipated from the progress now made that husking will be completed.

HOGS.

The condition of feeding hogs averages 84, which is a falling off from last month. The decrease is due to the increased prevalence of cholera. The fear of this disease has caused many farmers to rush hogs on the market before they were matured. Many correspondents express the belief that this will have decided effect on the number of hogs to be marketed during the packing season The number of hogs other than those being fattened, as compared with 1895, is 89 per cent. In view of the fatality of disease with young hogs the outlook for a supply for spring feeding is not bright.

SHEEP.

All reports point to a decrease in the number of breeding ewes in the hands of farmers. The low price of lambs for a series of years coupled with the extreme low price of wool, has caused a gradual curtailment of flocks. The number of sheep of all kinds Sept. 15th, 1896, is shown by reports of county assessors, is 813,629, as against 903,615 for same date of 1895. Sheep are very generally reported in good condition and healthy.

OTHER LIVE STOCK.

No report of disease among other classes of live stock is received. Pastures are phenomenally good for the season of the year, and it is expected that the approaching winter will find all stock in a thrifty condition.

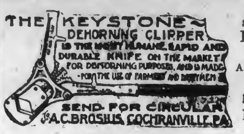
APPLES.

The crop of winter apples is very short. The reports range from 5 to 50 per cent. of the crop of 1895, which was an enormously large one. The average for the State is 41 per cent., as compared with the crop of 1895.

LUCAS MOORE,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

The date of execution of Laughlin, the Bracken county wife murderer, has been fixed by Gov. Bradley for January 9th.

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
—OF UP TO DATE—
CHESTER

WHITE HOGS.


THE KEYSTONE
DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
A. C. BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.
Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.
Write for circulars.
AEROMETER

EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.
COME AND SEE IT.
T. J. HUGHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

GRAEFENHAN'S
POPULAR
Dry GOODS STORE.
Calicoes, Muslins, Canton Flannels, Wool Flannels, Dress Goods, Stockings, Mitts, Underwear, Comforts, Blankets and
PRETTY HOLIDAY GOODS.
By doing a strictly Cash Business it has been very easy to under sell all others. Come and see us.
H. F. GRAEFENHAN,
21 Walnut St., - - - - Lawrenceburg, Ind.

HOLIDAY GOODS
—CONSISTING OF—
Watches, Clocks, Jewelery, Silverware & Spectacles
Of all kinds and a large Assortment of Novelties. See us before buying as we can save you money.
J. D. WARD, 2 doors above bank in Clark Building, Rising Sun, Ind.

J. J. GEISEN,
HATTER AND GENT'S
FURNISHING GOODS,
615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.
Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

E. H. RIGGS,
—Dealer in—
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
—CEMENT, ETC.—
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVERY COMPANY.
62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,
E. H. BAKER, Proprietor
Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.
Telephone 580.

1896.
Your County Paper
Is the One to
Subscribe for,
It Gives all the
Neighborhood News,
Court News and
General News.
$1.50 will Pay for it
Until Jan. 1st, 1898.
Give It a Trial and Help
Along Home EnterPrise.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1896. NO. 6.

CONGRESS meets again next Monday.

◆

NEW YORK is to have a seventy-two story building.

◆

NOW is the time to plant your advertisements of holiday goods.

◆

THE sentiment in favor of Cuba is on the increase in this country.

◆

THE official count gives McKinley a plurality of 281 in this State.

◆

PEOPLE began learning last Sunday for what they laid in a supply of coal.

◆

IT is said Hon. W. J. Bryan has been engaged for 50 lectures at $1,000 a piece.

◆

MAJOR MCKINLEY will go south in January to go into training for the inauguration.

◆

IT is estimated by competent authorities that 620,000 tons of water tumble over Niagara every minute, day and night.

◆

A BILL has been introduced in the Alabama legislature to allow men to carry concealed revolvers on the payment of $20.

◆

IT appears that Gen. Weyler has some "git up and git" qualities, and he emphasizes them when the Cubans are pursuing him.

◆

THE papers that fought Bryan are now engaged trying to make people believe he ran a very poor race. They are laboring in vain.

◆

IT has been nearly a week since Mr. Lyons, the Newport statesman, was interviewed. Is he preparing a dynamite mine for Gov. Bradley?

◆

IF the later accounts of the battles in Cuba are correct the Insurgents are able to take care of themselves, and are doing it in a very satisfactory manner.

◆

THE official count made at Frankfort, last week, shows that Berry received 21,177 and Ernst, 17,422 votes for Congress in this district. Berry's majority, 3,755.

◆

LONA BARRISON has sued the Horse Show Association of America for $3,000 because she was not allowed to ride at the recent show in New York in man's attire.

◆

THE Consular reports for November show that the world's crop of wheat, in the countries which furnish a surplus for consumption, was something over 185,000,000 bushels less in 1896 than in 1895.

◆

MANY sections of Indiana are greatly alarmed because of the prevalence of diphtheria. In many counties schools have been dismissed, and religious gatherings and all kind of entertainments are dispensed with.

◆

BRO. COBB, of the Aurora Independent is a sure enough candidate for the Aurora Postoffice, and here is hoping he may win the prize. He has been a ceaseless and untiring party worker and is entitled to recognition when it comes to passing around the fruits of victory.

◆

IF those who are so anxious for an extra session of the legislature will convince Gov. Bradley that he will be elected United States Senator, the call for the session will be forthcoming. If the Governor can not be elected he is at least in a position to prevent the election of anyone else, for a while.

◆

AT the last election Owen county voted largely infavor of free turnpikes, but the owners of the roads have fixed prices on the stock that puts it out of the county's reach. The last issue of the Owen News says:

"Many of the pikes that never declared a dividend and their reports show only very limited receipts ask from fifty cents to one dollar per share. To proceed on that basis is an utter impossibility. and as the county can not listen to any such figures the directors had as well put back the gates and ask Bradley to call out the militia."

THE following is from the Willismtown Courier, whose editor was chairman of the Democratic campaign committee in this Congressional district during the last campaign.

"The Courier has been asked by quite a number of people as to who would be entitled to vote in the Democratic primary which will shortly be called to nominate candidates for county and district offices: The Courier can not speak for the Executive Committee of the Democratic party, who, in their call, will prescribe the qualifications of the voters who may participate in the primary. However, of one thing we may be sure, every voter who cast his ballot for Bryan will be entitled to participate in the primary without regard to past party affiliations, and there were 1852 such voters in Grant county. In our opinion every man who has in the past been a Democrat should be allowed to vote in the primary election. The 'goldbug Democrats' in this county are not numerous enough to be dangerous, and we think if they wish to participate in the primary election they should be allowed to do so without question or hindrance. On the fundamental principles of Democracy the 'silver Democrats' and the 'goldbug Democrats' are agreed. On the single question of the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 they are divided. This question will probably be settled in the near future one way or the other. The Courier would not advise that the doors of the Democratic party should be closed against any man. It would prefer that the doors of the party might be wide open for those of our erring brothers who have strayed from the fold and worshipped at the feet of the 'golden calf."

◆

A dispatch from Vancbury says: "There is considerable excitement in this country over the turnpike question. A large number of men perhaps as many as 200, have organized for the purpose of removing the obnoxious toll-gates, and have set to work for that purpose. It is claimed by them that they have been woefully deceived by designing politicians and certain officials and although the people of this county voted for free turnpikes by a large majority, no steps have been taken by the officials toward removing the gates. The propose to do as some have done in other parts of the State, except that they have decided to operate in broad daylight. Serious trouble is anticipated if they attempt to carry out their designs. Many of the best citizens are numbered with the band."

◆

AND Ambassador Bayard was "commanded" to dine with the Queen at Windsor Castle, on Thanksgiving day. About a year ago Bayard entertained the English with scurrilous remarks concerning nearly half the American people who differed from him on the tariff question, and, more recently, he denounced, in the presence of an English audience, as anarchists, repudiationists and destructionists, the other half of the Americans who do not agree with him on the financial question. He has prepared himself, thoroughly, to be "commanded" by royalty, and ought never to tread his foot on American soil again.

◆

THE Democratic State Central Executive Committees met in Lexington Tuesday and decided that "only those voters who supported the nominees of the Chicago convention at the late national election should be permitted to take part in any Democratic convention, primary election or precinct meeting to be held in the various counties for the purpose of nominating candidates for county offices."

◆

RICHARD CROKER, upon his return, a few days since, from the other side of the pond, where he had been looking for 20 to 1 shots, asked, "who is Mark Hanna?" Richard will spend but a short time in this country until he will learn that Mark is the slickest "all-round" politician the United States has developed in many years. Mark's capacity is limited only by the field in which he has to work.

Some Slices of the Pie.

Below are some of the fat jobs held by Kentuckians under Cleveland, whose places are longed for by thousands of Republicans:

Consul at Marseilles—Claude M. Thomas, $2,500. A beautiful city in Southern France, and a place worth trying for.

Consul at Aden, Arabia—Wm. W. Masterson, fees only, but the office pays.

Consul at Port Stanley, Fiji Islands—John H. Miller, $1,500.

Consul at Quebec—Philip B. Spence, $1,500 and fees.

Consul at Southampton—Warner S. Kinkead, $2,500.

Commercial Agent at Vancouver—William F. Peterson, fees.

Minister to Hawaii—Albert S. Willis, $7,500. This will be a good post during the next Administration, for Hawaii is bound to again become prominent.

Minister to Peru—James A. McKenzie, $10,000.

Consul at Funchat, Madeira—Thomas C. Jones, $1,500.

Consul General at Apia, Samoa—James H. Mulligan, $3,000.

Consul at Geneva—Benjamin H. Ridgley, $1,500.

Secretary of the Treasury—John G. Carlisle, $8,000. Kentucky, however, will not get the office this time.

Private Secretary to the Secretary—H. W. Vansended, $2,400.

Chief of the Mail and Files Division—Samuel M. Gaines, $2,500.

Special Agent of the Treasury—E. Polk Johnson, $8 a day. This is a fat job clean through.

Special employe to prevent and detect fraud at $4 a day, Thomas F. Berry, Jefferson county.

Inspector to Enforce Chinese Exclusion Act at $5 a day with a nice station away off on the Pacific Coast—Richard W. Creal, Larue County.

Same for F. W. Berkshire, with headquarters in Chicago.

Chief Clerk, Secret Service—Andrew McWilliams, Jefferson County, $2,000.

Chief Clerk, Controller's office—C. M. Fover, Shelby County, $2,700.

Chief of Division, office of Auditor for the Treasury Department—Chester E. Rees, Clark County, $2,000.

Chief of Division, Internal Revenue Bureau—Henry C. Boyd, Hancock County, $2,500.

Superintendent of Stamp Vault—Henry L. Gadsey, Wolf County, $2,000.

Internal Revenue Agent—Wm. H. H. Bowen, Kenton County; $7 a day.

Chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing—Claude M. Johnson; $4,500. One of the best offices that has been given to the state.

Chief of Division—John M. McGill; $1,900.

Disbursing Agent, Bureau of Engraving and Printing—Alexander G. Morgan, $2,000.

Adjuster of Accounts, mint bureau—Frank P. Gross, Campbell County, $2,000.

Immigrant Inspector at $4 a day—W. W. Stamper, Jefferson County.

Commissioner, Shiloh Battlefield—Don Carlos Buel, Muhlenberg County; $3,000. This is one of the gifts that requires but little work and brings good pay.

Chief Clerk Foreign Mails Division, Postoffice Department—Robert Lee Maddox, Jefferson County, $2,000.

Chief of Finance Division, Postoffice Department—Wm. D. Griffith, Daviess County, $2,000.

Chief of Lands and Railroads Interior Department—Wm. H. Alderson, Shelby County, $2,000.

Principal Examiner in the Pension Office—Walter B. Pettus, Pulaski County, $2,000.

Kentucky has a fairly good apportionment of special Pension Examiners at work in the field. This means a salary of $1,300 a year and $3 a day for traveling expenses. Out of this enough can be saved by prudent living to make a neat surplus. Those now enjoying this berth are Daniel L. Redinger and Charles D. Pank, Jefferson County; Frank H. Reppert, Rockcastle; Wm V. Reppert, Casey; Wm. M. Ragsdale, Marion and Samuel Fischer, Hardin County.

Pension Agent at Louisville—George M. Adams, $4,000; chief clerk, Hugh R. Manning, Clay County, $1,800.

Special Indian Agent in the Field—Wm. H. Abbe, $2,000.

Chief Inspector Division, Bureau of Animal Industry—Daniel G. Hatch, Kenton County, $2,000.

Member of Civil Service Commission—John R. Procter, Franklin County, $3,500. A good place for some Kentucky "sound money" reformer who wants his reward in the shape of a place that pays fairly well.

Foreman in Government Printing Office at $5,75 per day, with 30 days leave each year with full pay—J. D. Kehoe, Mason county.

Suveyor at Paducah—Felix G. Rudolph, $350 and fees.

Suveyor of Customs at Louisville—Benjamin F. Alford, $350 and fees aggregating $5,000 last year.

United States District Attorney Wm. M. Smith, Louisville, $5,000. Term expires Janurry 23, 1898.

United States Marshal—James Blackburn, Louisville, salary $5,000.

Collector of Internal Revenue at Owensboro District—Joseph D. Powers, confirmed and commissioned September 13, 1893, salary $4,500.

Collector of Louisville District—Ben Johnson, $4,500. Commissioned September 13, 1893.

Collector, Covington District—Alexander Dayezac, $4,500. Commissioned September 13, 1893.

Collector, Richmond District—Charles B. Rodes, $4,500. Commissioned September 13, 1893.

Collector, Lexington District—Wallace M. Shelby $4,500. Thos. M. Shelby was commissioned as Collector September 13, 1893, but died, and the present incumbent assumed charge under a temporary appointment February 20, 1895, and was commissioned after confirmation April 1, 1895. The effort will be made to have this appointment date from the 1893 commission.

Such of these Collectors as supported the regular Democratic ticket in the recent election might as well prepare their offices for delivery at once. There is a Bond of sympathy between outgoing Democratic and the incoming Republican Administration, and Secretary Carlisle will, no doubt, ask that short shift be made of all silver Democrats holding office in his state.

◆

As the question of settling election bets is now the paramount and burning issue in Kentucky, it may be pertinent and parliamentary to give the Kentucky law in such case made and provided. Here it is;

"It any person shall wager or bet any sum of money or anything of value upon any election under the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth or the Constitution and laws of the United States, he shall be fined one hundred dollars, to be recovered in any county where the party so offending may be found, or where the bet is made, and, in addition to the fine if the person winning shall receive the sum of money or other things so bet, or its value, or any thing therefor, the sum of money so received, or the value of anything else so received, shall be forfeited to the Commonwealth, and may be recovered by any appropriate action in the name of the Commonwealth before the Circuit Court or the presiding Judge of the county court, wherever the offending party may be found."

◆

Several articles that came in this week had to be held over for the next issue.

◆

This is excellent winter weather.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson.
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup'nt of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, Sam S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M. Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W Lester.
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill. Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George: Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry: Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; I. F. Dempsey. H. S. Irwin. Secretary-Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attoroey—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday alter second Monday; Add Riddell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
~~MONDAY, SEPTEMBER~~ 21st, 1896
AT WALTON, KY.
Three Courses of Study to choose from:
English, Scientific or Classical,
Tuition per month for Higher Branches............ $3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches............ 2.50
We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2.00 for five days.
Teachers { Mrs. S. H. MYERS. CHAS. F. PRIOR. Rev. S. H. MYERS.
Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. COWEN, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky,
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administratrix Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of L. E. Clore, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

ANNIE L. CLORE, Adm'rx.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
—o—
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON.
DENTIST,
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
MAIN OFFICE—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

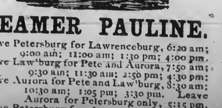
W. E. VEST. B. L. RICE.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL,............ $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 17,000
—)o(—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN............ $50,000
SURPLUS,............ $ 2.600
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE



STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:50 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 2:50 pm; 4:30 pm:
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 8:30 am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm. Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5:15 pm.
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:10 am; 10:00 am; 12:40 pm; 3:00 pm; 4:45 pm.
ELIHU ALDEN, Master.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher

BURLINGTON, : : : KY.

DECEMBER—1896.

Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
....	....	1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
13	14	15	16	17	18	19
20	21	22	23	24	25	26
27	28	29	30	31	....	....

CURRENT TOPICS.

FEDERATION of Labor has gained 68,300 members in a year.

ONE colored man was elected to the next congress, and his name is White.

OVER one hundred gold mines have been started in California within a year.

FIVE hundred and seventy-four thousand children daily attend school in London.

A CONSTITUTIONAL amendment has been carried in Idaho allowing woman suffrage.

HAMILTON (Ont.) street-car employes now get from 12½ cents to 13½ cents per hour.

THE widowed queen of Naples has been presented with the Russian Order of St. George.

THE anti-convict contract labor law goes into force in New York at the end of next month.

IT is estimated that $10,000,000 worth of gold will be dug in Cripple Creek the coming year.

WHISTLING is very injurious in the cold weather, as it dries the lips and finally cracks them.

A GREAT strike of miners both in Germany and England is apprehended by the mine owners.

FOR odors on the hands, dash a little sugar on the hot stove lid and hold the hands over the smoke.

IN one respect Archbishop Temple differs from all his predecessors. He is the first teetotaler to sit on the throne of Canterbury.

AFTER passing the house of representatives, an eight-hour bill has been rejected by the New Zealand house of lords, by a vote of 15 to 13.

POTASIUMORTHODINITROCRESCOLATE is the latest acquisition to the vocabulary of science. It is the name applied to an antiseptic lately discovered.

ILLINOIS' factory inspector suggests a compulsory education law. Women are displacing men, and children women; new machines displacing all three.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, has the champion toboggan slide of the world. It is three-quarters of a mile long, and has been descended in a whiz of 71 seconds.

MISS MARION DAWSON has taken the degree of Bachelor of Science at the University of Wales, and is the first lady who has attained the degree by examination.

THE statistics of life insurance people show that in the last 25 years the average of man's life has increased 5 per cent., or two whole years—from 41.9 to 43.9 years.

IT is related of a Durham cattle man that he went to Kansas City, Kan., and while drunk bought a block of town lots which a few days afterward he sold at $6,000 profit.

THE copper mines of the whole world are being taxed to their utmost to supply the demand for copper wire and the other apparatus used in the application of electricity.

A NOVEL fair given in New York showed the unique idea of each booth representing a book, and the maidens were gowned after the manner of the characters in the books.

PRINCE HILKOFF, the Russian minister of ways and commerce, has recently placed an order for 18,000 American railroad watches, to be used by employes on Russian railroads.

FOR a cold in the head, snuffing dry borax as one would snuff will often give instant relief. A tablespoonful of borax in a pint of hot water, snuffed when at blood heat, is also good.

MISS LILLIAN BELL, whose "Love Affairs of an Old Maid" and "The Under Side of Things" have been decided successes, has now adopted the platform and reads from her own works.

ONE of the very latest cures for insomnia is three teaspoonfuls of sugar in a cup of boiling water. Some people can't take hot water "straight," but can take it with a teaspoonful of milk or the sugar.

PARIS policemen have been supplied with electric dark lanterns, by means of which they can see 150 feet away. They were employed successfully in a recent rain in the Bois de Boulogne on the homeless persons who sleep there at night.

A GERMAN physician says that Stanley owes the fact that he has survived the most dangerous of his African trips to his having submitted five times to a transfusion of African blood into his veins, which is believed in Africa to be a great aid to acclimatization.

THE strike of London cabmen is spreading rapidly. There are now 1,500 cabdrivers out, and the number is fast increasing. The drivers struck against the operation of a system by which only privileged cabs are allowed to solicit passengers at the railroad stations.

ALBERT EDWARD of Wales is the greatest spendthrift in the world, according to the London Figaro, which asserts that he has spent $50,000,000 in 33 years. He has received $25,000,000 from the English nation, $5,000,000 more for traveling expenses and special allowances, and has private debts amounting to $2,000,000.

THE MOUNTAIN BATTLE

Dynamite Mine Exploded and Whole Companies Blown to Atoms.

Weyler's Loss in Killed Estimated at Over 3,000—Spaniards Forced to Retreat in a Panic—His Campaign Against Maceo Was a Complete Failure.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 27.—Col. Jose Reyes, who is on the staff of Antonio Maceo, the Cuban chief, passed through Jacksonville Thursday en route to New York.

Col. Reyes is just from the Province of Pinar del Rio, and took part in the recent engagements between Maceo's forces and those of Capt.-Gen. Weyler.

In describing the battle of Rubia mountain Col. Reyes was most graphic.

"Weyler," said the colonel, "planned his attack carefully. He divided his forces into three columns. One under Gen. Munoz, of 1,000 men; one under Gen. Echague, of 1,000 men, and the captain general himself commanded the third column of 15,000 men. Maceo was aware of Weyler's plans and prepared to meet the attack. He had about 8,000 men, and occupied a strong position. In front of our entrenchment there were a number of dynamite mines. These dynamite mines were in charge of John Lind, a Jacksonville boy, who is chief electrician of Maceo's army. The Spanish column under Munoz advanced first to the attack. When the Spaniards got in good range we opened fire and cut great gaps in their ranks. Urged on by Munoz, however, the Spaniards still advanced, and it seemed likely we would have to fight them hand to hand, when there was an awful explosion that shook the mountain and entire companies of the Spanish column shot up in the air. In a moment we realized that John Lind had exploded the dynamite mines. More than 700 Spaniards were killed outright and twice that number were wounded. Nearly every man killed was almost literally torn to pieces, and hundreds of the wounded were frightfully mangled. The Spaniards who were unhurt fled back down the mountain in a panic. I am sure that in the attempt to carry the mountain the Spaniards lost 1,200 men in killed alone.

"At night Maceo learning that Weyler would again attempt to storm the position, decided to withdraw to entrenchments further west. Two days later this second line of entrenchments was attacked by Gen. Echague with 10,000 men. The Spaniards made repeated charges, but in every case were repulsed with terrible loss. In this battle John Lind used the dynamite gun which the Three Friends recently delivered to Maceo with terrible effect. At one discharge I am certain more than 100 Spaniards were killed. After the battle had lasted nearly three hours Gen. Echague's leg was nearly torn off by a shell, and then the Spaniards fell back. In this second attempt to crush Maceo the Spaniards lost 900 killed and 1,300 wounded. During this desperate fighting Weyler was in the rear with 15,000 of the best troops in the Spanish army. The captain general never once made an attempt to support the attacking columns. Maceo's losses in these engagements were insignificant. We had 232 killed and about 400 wounded. Our losses were small, because we fought behind cover, and when one of our men was hit it was largely by chance. Since these battles there has been no fighting in Pinar del Rio, and Weyler's return to Havana was the direct result of the Spanish defeat."

"When I left Maceo he was thinking of retiring to his secret retreat in the mountains in order to allow his men to recuperate. This stronghold is absolutely impregnable. It can be reached by only one route, and that route is sown with dynamite mines. I know that Maceo is very anxious for Weyler to attempt to reach the stronghold. Maceo is confident that if Weyler should do so the world would hear no more of the captain general."

Col. Reyes says that the Spaniards have offered $5,000 for John Lind, dead or alive.

THE CLEVELANDS

Listened to Dr. Talmage's Sermon Thanksgiving Day Morning.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—President and Mrs. Cleveland occupied their pew at the First Presbyterian church and listened to Dr. Talmage's sermon Thursday morning. They had no guests at the white house Thanksgiving dinner, which was altogether a family affair. All the members of the cabinet observed the holiday in similar manner at their residences. In the afternoon the president and Private Secretary Thurber accomplished considerable executive work. All the departments were closed for the day, the trades were generally suspended and the fine weather drew thousands to the surrounding country, the football fields and the races.

Mrs. Castle Arrives in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Mrs. Ella Castle, the wealthy California woman who was recently convicted in London of shoplifting, arrived here Thursday on the steamship Havel. Accompanying her were her husband, Walter Mitchell Castle, and their ten-year-old son, Frederick. Mrs. Castle was greatly improved by the voyage. She had not, however, entirely recovered from the effects of the terrible ordeal.

Havana Is Threatened.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The officers of the steamer City of Washington, which arrived Wednesday from Havana, say that Havana residents are momentarily expecting an attack by the insurgents. The prisons are full, business is at a standstill, and merchants of Spanish ideas are preparing to leave the country.

More Troops for Cuba.

BARCELONA, Nov. 27.—The steamer Alicante and Buenos Ayres, sailed hence Thursday for Havana, having on board 3,800 troops and a quantity of ammunition and arms.

MUCH TIME

Devoted by the President to His Last Message—It is Expected to Be One of Mr. Cleveland's Ablest Documents.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—A Herald special from Washington says:

President Cleveland has been devoting a great deal of time to his annual message during the last week and now has it well in hand, so that it can be finished in a couple of days.

The message is expected to be one of the ablest public documents Mr. Cleveland has written during his two terms. It will be, in a sense, his farewell to the American people as their chief executive, and there is little doubt that he will embrace the opportunity to mark out the course he believes ought to be followed by the national government for the maintainance and advancement of the honor and prosperity of the country.

Foreign affairs will naturally claim considerable attention and the president will have an opportunity to congratulate congress and the country upon the solution of the Venezuelan boundary controversy in a manner honorable and satisfactory alike to the United States and to Great Britain and Venezuela. The condition of affairs in Turkey will be discussed in detail and the president will be able to show that the ordinary diplomatic agencies have sufficed for the protection of American life and property in the Turkish empire.

The last paragraphs of the message to be written will be those dealing with the situation in Cuba. He will avail himself of the latest possible information as to the military situation in the island, and the prospects for the early success or failure of the insurgents may have much to do with shaping his policy. Present indications are that he will make no radical recommendations on this subject.

Although there is no prospect for enactment of any revenue or financial legislation during the rest of his term, Mr. Cleveland is understood to be preparing for an elaborate discussion of these subjects, and will recommend legislation which he believes, if carried out, will put the treasury and the financial system of the country on a sound basis.

The president will doubtless express his approval of recommendations for increasing the revenue by imposing revenue duties on tea and coffee and increasing the internal revenue tax on beer.

The financial reform recommendations of the message will be along the lines of Mr. Cleveland's former recommendations and will have as their basis the advocacy of the single gold standard as the foundation of the monetary system of the country.

The retirement of the greenbacks and the Sherman notes will be recommended, so as to take the government entirely out of the business of issuing promissory notes. Banking reform will be recommended at the same time, to enable the banks of the country to issue circulating notes which will be safe and which can be expanded or contracted in volume to meet the needs of the business of the country. Mr. Cleveland is alive to the necessity of continuing the expansion of the navy and of constructing coast defenses to put the country in a condition to resist foreign aggression and the recommendations of these lines made by Secretaries Lamont and Herbert in their annual reports will be seconded in the message.

FLOOD IN GREECE.

Eighty Lives Lost and Much Property Destroyed.

ATHENS, Nov. 28.—The loss of life by the floods is much larger than was at first reported. Forty bodies have been recovered at the Piraeus and boats are searching for persons who are missing and who are supposed to have perished. The cemetery at the Piraeus was inundated. The water swept across the burial place with such violence that a number of bodies and skeletons were washed out of their resting places and carried for a considerable distance. No reliable estimate of the total damage to property can yet be made, but it is known that the loss will amount to a large sum.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Daily News Saturday publishes a dispatch from the Pireaus saying that 80 persons are missing and it is believed that they were drowned.

Receiver for the St. L., K. & S. Road.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 28.—In the United States court here late Friday evening a petition was filed by Charles Blood Smith, representing the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., of New York, praying for the appointment of a receiver for the St. Louis, Kansas & Southwestern railway, and Judge Foster appointed Dwight Breman, of Boston, who is now here, receiver.

Havana Menaced.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 28.—News came from Havana that orders have been issued doubling the guards at the fortifications around the city, and that news has reached the captain general of the presence of large guerilla forces near the city. The trocha was forced twice this week, each time large bodies of Cubans crossing with slight loss.

Appointed District Judge.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The president Friday night appointed John Henry Rogers to be United States district judge for the western district of Arkansas. Judge Rogers is an ex-representative in congress, from the Fourth Arkansas district.

Rebel Sympathizers Arrested.

HAVANA, Nov. 28.—The police here have arrested 14 persons on the charge of being rebel sympathizers. Among the prisoners are two delegates of the Cuban Junta in New York. All the men will be deported Saturday to Fernando Po and the Chafarinas.

The Gold Certificates.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The treasury department has taken no action on the matter of issuing gold certificates, and it is not believed anything will be done for several days. Meanwhile applications from the big banks for such certificates are accumulating.

WAR OFFICE.

Expenditures for 1896 Aggregated Nearly Fifty-Two Million Dollars.

By July 70 High-Power Breech-Loading Guns and 95 Breech-Loading Mortars Will Be in Position, and by July a Year 128 Guns and 153 Mortars.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Secretary Lamont's report of the operations of the war department for 1896 show total expenditures aggregating nearly fifty-two million dollars and an unexpended balance of nearly two millions turned back into the treasury at the end of the fiscal year. For the three years of Secretary Lamont's administration the surplus has amounted to more than five million dollars.

On the first of July, 1893, of our modern defense, but one high-power gun was mounted. By the first of July next we will have in position 70 high-power breech-loading guns and 95 breech-loading mortars of modern design, and by the following July, on completion of work already under way or provided for, 128 guns and 153 mortars. A battery of two or three of these guns takes the place of the former pretentions fort and is vastly more effective. An eight-inch gun weighs 14½ tons, is 23⅓ feet long, requires a powder charge of 125 pounds and throws a projectile weighing 300 pounds about nine miles. A ten-inch gun weighs 30 tons, is 30½ feet long, requires a powder charge of 250 pounds and throws a projectile of 575 pounds about 12 miles. A 12-inch gun weighs 57 tons, is 40 feet long, requires a powder charge of 520 pounds and throws a 1,000 pound projectile 13 miles. A 12-inch mortar weighs 29,120 pounds, is 13 feet long, requires a powder charge of 105 pounds and throws a filled projectile weighing 800 pounds over five miles.

The total amount appropriated for seacoast defenses, including cost of sites, fortifications and armament since the adoption of the present scheme is $26,457,000, of which more than one-third was carried by the act passed at the last session of congress.

By July there should be completed 14 12-inch, 46 10-inch, 10 8-inch and 12 rapid-fire guns and 112 mortar emplacements. And by the close of the coming year this will be increased to 21 12-inch, 66 10-inch, 25 8-inch and 16 rapid-fire guns and 156 mortar emplacements.

In the belief that the problem that a satisfactory disappearing gun carriage had been solved, the appropriation's committee were informed at the previous session of the present congress that this department proposed to spend no more money for gun-lift batteries, thus saving $20,000,000.

The construction of the carriages in as large numbers as the appropriation would permit was immediately undertaken both at the government carriage factory at the Watertown arsenal and under contract. A still more difficult problem was the designing of a disappearing all around fire carriage for the 12-inch breech loading rifle. How difficult a problem it was will appear when it is noted that such a carriage must endure, without breaking or straining any of its parts, the tremendous shock due to the ballistic force necessary to propel a 1,000-pound projectile at a velocity of 2,100 feet per second, lowering its 52-ton gun for a distance of nearly eight feet to secure position, and that it must do this rapidly, certainly and easily and by mechanism not liable to get out of order and easy to be operated by the average soldier. The technical difficulties involved will be better appreciated when it is considered that a similar case would be that of a 50-ton locomotive and tender, running at a speed of 20 miles an hour, which is required to be brought to a full stop from this speed within a distance of 16 feet, or one-third of its length, yet so easily and gently that at the end of the motion there shall not be the slightest jar.

Both these problems, it is believed, have been satisfactorily solved. One 12-inch all around traverse disappearing carriage is now under construction and carriages of similar design are about to be commenced.

The armament of troops with the new magazine arms was completed in May and the armory is turning out 125 rifles or carbines per day under the appropriation made last year. All the ammunition for small arms now made is supplied with smokeless powder of American manufacture and of satisfactory quality.

The total expenditures for river and harbor improvements ordered by congress during the year ending June 30, 1896, including those of the Mississippi and Missouri river commission, was $17,039,000. Including the amounts appropriated by the act of June 3, 1896, there was available for expenditure on river and harbors July 1, $26,020,000. The Mississippi river commission has decided to discontinue the plan to improve the river by bank protection and to adopt the plan of dredging channels in shoal places and maintaining, with state and local co-operation, an effective levee system. With this change of policy the minority believe the function of the commission is ended and the work should be turned over to the secretary of war.

The army consists of 25,426 officers and men, or 284 below the legal maximium. The effective field strength on October 31 was 23,382.

A Blizzard in the Northwest.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 27.—The snow storm which commenced Wednesday all over the northwest developed into a furious blizzard and is raging Thursday night with unabated fury At Jamestown, N. D., but one train has left there in twenty-four hours, the railroads being blocked with snow. Business is at a standstill at Bismarck. Much uneasiness is felt for cattle on the ranges west of the Missouri river. Chamberlain and Aberdeen, S. D., report traffic generally impeded on account of the heavy snow fall. A big fall in temperature is reported from all points.

GRANT AND WASHINGTON.

Two Wonderful Serials Which "The Century Magazine" Has Secured for 1897.

One of the best friends that Gen. Grant ever had was Horace Porter. There first meeting was at Chattanooga in the autumn of 1863, and soon after Gen. (then Captain) Porter became a member of Grant's staff and served with him constantly until Lee's surrender. When Grant became president Horace Porter was made his private secretary, and until Gen. Grant breathed his last at Mount McGregor the two men were close friends. Nor did Gen. Porter's love for his chief cease with his death, for to him is due the success of the movement to raise the half million of dollars which the Grant monument in Riverside park will cost. The inauguration of the tomb will take place next spring on Grant's birthday, and Gen. Porter will be the orator of the occasion.

During these years of intimacy with Grant Gen. Porter kept a diary, and in his moments of leisure he has arranged his unique stories of anecdotes and memoranda into a series of twelve articles, titled "Campaigning with Grant," and The Century Magazine has secured all rights in the series and will print it during the coming year. Since the famous "Century War Series," for which Gen. Grant himself wrote four articles (the beginning of his "Memoirs"), no magazine has had such a treat to lay before its readers.

Another great serial in The Century is a novel of the American Revolution, written by the well-known Philadelphia physician, Dr. S. Wier Mitchell, whose literary reputation is as high as his standing in his own profession. The story is supposed to be the autobiography of the hero, "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," who becomes an officer on Gen. Washington's staff. Social life in the capital, Philadelphia, is most interestingly depicted, and the characters in the story include Washington, Franklin and Lafayette. The readers of "Hugh Wynne, the Free Quaker" will obtain a clearer idea of the Revolutionary War than can be had from any other single source. It is believed that Dr. Mitchell has written "the great American novel," for which we have been waiting so many years.

These are only two of the features of The Century for the coming year—the magazine that leads the world of periodical literature. Very few of our readers will be without it in 1897. It costs $4.00 a year, not too high a price for what The Century gives, but many people are arranging to club together in groups of four, paying one dollar each, and securing the reading of the magazine one week in the month. The publishers advise the making up of clubs early. Send $4.00 to The Century Company, Union square, New York, with the name of the person to whom the magazine is to be sent. If you begin your subscription with the December (Christmas) number, the publishers will send you a copy of November free, in which the two great serials begin.

SUBSTITUTES FOR BULLETS.

Nuggets of Gold and Wooden Slugs Used by Hunters in Emergencies.

When a hunter in the old days lost all his bullets or hadn't any to shoot with he usually devised substitutes that on occasion served the purpose well. All sorts of things have been fired at game or Indians, as the case might be. Old Hank Ellison, living up in Jefferson county, N. Y., told to his dying day how he was cooped up by Indians out west once, with a little lead, lots of powder, a belt full of gold nuggets, a fine rifle and a bullet mold. It was on the top of a knoll where his log cabin had been built, and he had a barrel of water and a lot of wood for emergencies. The Indians kept just out of range, dashing in once in awhile to draw his fire. He soon used his bullets up, and then used the gold. He fired nearly half his fortune at the redskins before they left him.

Many a hunter has used a pebble in the hope of getting a close deadly shot. Jackknives and ramrods have served their time as missiles. Forest and Stream tells about a hunter who had only a single bullet, but lots of powder. The bullet shot the horn of a big buck off, and the buck charged the man, who took to a tree top. He spent half an hour whittling off two-inch lengths of branches and putting them into his rifle. Then he rammed them down on the powder and fired at the maddened deer. His partner came along after awhile with a belt full of bullets, and, making a run for the tree, gave a bullet to the shooter, who quickly killed the deer.

SOCIAL RISKS.—"Why is it considered unlucky to look at a funeral procession from under an umbrella?" "Some fellow might want to borrow it."—Chicago Record.

HOW TO CLEAN CARPETS AND RUGS.

Shave four bars of Ivory soap (which contains no rosin), and put in a kettle with one gallon of water. Let boil until dissolved. Spread the carpets or rugs on the floor. Add a quart of the mixture to a gallon of warm water. Dip a flannel cloth in it, and go over the article to be cleaned, being careful to rub the soiled spots. Then rinse in clear water, and let dry.

ELIZA R. PARKER.

It ain't changed any;
  For the sky's still blue;
It's the same old country,
  And—the house rent's due!
    Atlanta Constitution.

Lands in Wisconsin

Are now as desirable as any in the market. The lands, particularly in the northern part of Wisconsin, are being rapidly taken up by actual settlers.

The most salable are the timber and meadow lands now ranging in price from $6.00 to $12.00 per acre. A few months hence their value will be greatly increased. For a home or for investment no luckier chance in the West has ever before been offered. Now is the time to invest. No better farming land exists anywhere. No greater results can be obtained anywhere. Schools and churches abound [illegible]. Nearby markets for all farm products. Wisconsin is one of the banner states of the West.

For further information address or call upon W. E. POWELL, General Immigration Agent, 410 Old Colony Building, Chicago, Ills.

ALICE—"Oh, Edith, the honeymoon is beginning to wane. Percy called me plain Alice to-day." Edith "And yet you are not so plain, dear."—Tit-Bits.

A Superbly Appointed Train.

Undoubtedly the handsomest train between Chicago and St. Paul, Minneapolis, the Superiors and Duluth is the "North-Western Limited," which leaves Chicago at 6:30 p. m. daily via the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western R'y). Its equipment, which is entirely new throughout, and embraces Compartment Sleeping Cars, Buffet, Smoking and Library Cars, standard Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars and ladies' coaches, has every luxury which imagination can conceive or mind invent for the comfort and convenience of passengers. All agents sell tickets via the Chicago & North-Western R'y. For full information apply to agents of connecting line, or address W. B. KNISKERN, G. P. and T. A., Chicago, Ill.

TEACHER—"Who was the wisest man?" Tommy—"Noah." "Noah?" "Yes'm. He was the only man who knew enough to come in when it rained."

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

AN Atchison boy of 15 carries such a wonderful list of improbable anecdotes in his head, that his parents have decided to make an evangelist of him.—Atchison Globe.

I CANNOT speak too highly of Piso's Cure for Consumption. MRS. FRANK MOBBS, 215 W. 22d St., New York, Oct. 29, 1894.

THE next time you are tempted to buy an article on credit, remember the impudent collector who will call on you.—Atchison Globe.

FITS stopped free and permanently cured. No fits after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Free $2 trial bottle & treatise. DR. KLINE, 933 Arch st., Phila., Pa.

JUDGE—"What is the charge against this prisoner?" Policeman—"He stole a wheel, your honor." Judge—"What make?"—Philadelphia North American.

HUMPED and bent. Lame-back did it. Straight and sound. St. Jacobs Oil did it.

TIME is money, we are told, yet most money is thrown away to kill time.—Fliegende Blaetter.

SURELY. Often after 10, 15, 20 years' suffering, St. Jacobs Oil cures rheumatism.

THERE are many men living who have never received more than one telegram during their lives.—Atchison Globe.

IF you want to be cured of a cough use Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar.
Pike's Toothache Drops Cure in one minute.

FRIENDSHIP is a plant of slow growth, and must undergo and withstand the shocks of adversity before it is entitled to the appellation.—Washington.

NO MISTAKE. Thousands have been cured promptly of Neuralgia by St. Jacobs Oil.

DID you ever hear a descriptive piece of music that described anything?

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease and requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine purifies the blood and cures catarrh.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills easy to buy, easy to take, easy in effect. 25c.

Sweetness and Light.

Put a pill in the pulpit if you want practical preaching for the physical man; then put the pill in the pillory if it does not practise what it preaches. There's a whole gospel in Ayer's Sugar Coated Pills; a "gospel of sweetness and light." People used to value their physic, as they did their religion,—by its bitterness. The more bitter the dose the better the doctor. We've got over that. We take "sugar in ours"—gospel or physic—now-a-days. It's possible to please and to purge at the same time. There may be power in a pleasant pill. That is the gospel of

Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

More pill particulars in Ayer's Curebook, 100 pages. Sent free. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

DYING CENTURY.

How the Growth of Religious Sentiment Has Continued.

Show of the Waning Century Rolling Across the Stage of the World, Leaving Behind It Marvels of Civilization—Rev. Dr. Talmage's Sermon.

Dr. Talmage's subject was "The Dying Century," and the text, II. Kings xx., 1: "Thus saith the Lord, set thine house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live."

No alarm bell do I ring in the utterance of this text, for in the healthy glow of your countenances I find cause only for cheerful prophecy, but I shall apply the text as spoken in the ear of Hezekiah, down with a bad carbuncle, to the nineteenth century, now closing. It will take only four more long breaths, each year a breath, and the century will expire. My theme is "The Dying Century." I discuss it at an hour when our national legislature is about to assemble, some of the members now here present, and others soon to arrive from the north, south, east and west. All the public conveyances coming this way will bring important additions of public men, so that when on December 7, at high noon, the gavels of senate and house of representatives shall lift and fall, the destinies of this nation, and through it the destinies of all nations struggling to be free, will be put on solemn and tremendous trial. Amid such intensifying circumstances I stand by the venerable Century, and address it in the words of my text, "Thus saith the Lord, set thine house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live."

Eternity is too big a subject for us to understand. Some one has said it is a big clock, that says "Tick" in one century, and "Tack" in another. But we can better understand Old Time, who has many children, and they are the centuries, and many grandchildren, and they are the years. With the dying Nineteenth Century we shall this morning have a plain talk, telling him some of the good things he has done, and then telling him some of the things he ought to adjust before he quits this sphere and passes out to join the eternities. We generally wait until people are dead before we say much in praise of them. Funeral eulogium is generally very pathetic and eloquent with things that ought to have been said years ago. We put on cold tombstones what we ought to have put in the warm ears of the living. We curse Charles Sumner while he is living, and cudgel him into spinal meningitis, and wait until, in the rooms where I have been living the last year, he puts his hand on his heart and cries, "Oh!" and is gone, and then we make a long procession in his honor. Dr. Sunderland, chaplain of the American senate, accompanying; stopping long enough to allow the dead senator to lie in state in Independence hall, Philadelphia, and halting at Boston statehouse, where not long before damnatory resolutions had been passed in regard to him, and then moved on amid the tolling bells and the boom of minute guns, until we bury him on Mt. Auburn and cover him with flowers five feet deep. What a pity he could not have been awake at his own funeral, to hear the gratitude of the nation! What a pity that one green leaf could not have been taken from each one of the mortuary garlands and put upon his table while he was yet alive at the Arlington! What a pity that out of the great choirs who chanted at his obsequies one little girl, dressed in white, might not have sung to his living ear a complimentary solo! The post-mortem expression contradicted the ante-mortem. The nation could not have spoken the truth both times about Charles Sumner. Was it before or after his decease it lied? No such injustice shall be inflicted upon this venerable Nineteenth Century. Before he goes we recite in his hearing some of the good things he has accomplished. What an addition to the world's intelligence he has made! Look at the old schoolhouse, with the snow sifting through the roof and the filthy tin cup hanging over the water pail in the corner, and the little victims on the long bench without backs, and the illiterate schoolmaster with his hickory gad, and then look at our modern palaces of free schools, under men and women cultured and refined to the highest excellence, so that, whereas in our childhood we had to be whipped to go to school, children now cry when they can not go. Thank you, venerable century, while at the same time we thank God. What an addition to the world's invention! Within our century the cotton gin. The agricultural machines, for planting, reaping and threshing. The telegraph. The phonograph, capable of preserving a human voice from generation to generation. The typewriter, that rescues the world from worse and worse penmanship. And stenography, capturing from the lips of the swiftest speaker more than 200 words a minute. Never was I so amazed at the facilities of our time as when a few days ago I telegraphed from Washington to New York a long and elaborate manuscript, and a few minutes after, to show its accuracy, it was read to me through the long distance telephone, and it was exact down to the last semicolon and comma. What hath God wrought! Oh, I am so glad I was not born sooner. For the tallow candle the electric light. For the writhings of the surgeon's table God-given anæsthetics, and the whole physical organism explored by sharpest instrument, and giving not so much pain as the taking of a splinter from under a child's finger nail. For the lumbering stage coach the limited express train. And there is the spectroscope of Fraunhofer, by which our modern scientist feels the pulse of other worlds throbbing with light. Jenner's arrest by inoculation of one of the world's worst plagues. Dr. Keeley's emancipation for inebriety. Intimation that the virus of madened canine, and cancer, and consumption are yet to be balked by the magnificent medical treatment. The eyesight of the doctor sharpened till he can look through thick flesh and find the hiding place of the bullet. What advancement in geology, or the catechism of the mountains; chemistry, or the catechism of the elements; astronomy, or the catechism of the stars; electrology, or the catechism of the lightnings. What advancement in music. At the beginning of this century, confining itself, so far as the great masses of the people were concerned, to a few airs drawn out on accordion or massacred on church bass viol; now enchantingly dropping from thousands of fingers in Handel's concerto in B-flat, or Guilmant's Sonata in D minor. Thanks to you, oh century, before you die, for the asylums of mercy that you have founded—the blind seeing with their fingers, the deaf hearing by the motion of your lips, the born imbecile by skillful object lesson lifted to tolerable intelligence. Thanks to this century for the improved condition of most nations. The reason that Napoleon made such a successful sweep across Europe at the beginning of the century was that most of the thrones of Europe were occupied either by imbeciles or profligates. But most of the thrones of Europe are to-day occupied by kings and queens competent. France a republic, Switzerland a republic, and about 50 free constitutions, I am told, in Europe. Twenty million serfs of Russia manumitted. On this western continent I can call the roll of many republics—Mexico, Guatemala, San Salvador, Costa Rica, Paraguay, Uruguay, Honduras, New Granada, Venezuela, Peru, Ecuador, Bolivia, Chili, Argentine Republic, Brazil. The once straggling village of Washington, to which the United States government moved, its entire baggage and equipment packed up in seven boxes which got lost in the woods near this place, now the architectural glory of the continent and admiration of the world.

The money power, so much denounced and often justly criticised, has covered this continent with universities, and free libraries, and asylums of mercy. The newspaper press which, at the beginning of the century was an ink-roller, by hand moved over one sheet of paper at a time, has become the miraculous manufacturer of four or five or six hundred thousand sheets for one daily newspaper's issue. Within your memory, O Dying Century! has been the genesis of nearly all the great institutions evangelistic. At London Tavern, March 7, 1802, British and Foreign Bible Society was born. In 1816 American Bible Society was born. In 1810 American Sundar-school union was born. In 1810 American board of commissioners for foreign missions, which has put its saving hand on every nation of the round earth, was born at a haystack in Massachusetts. The National Temperance society, the Women's Temperance society, and all the other temperance movements born in this century. Africa, hidden to other centuries, by exploration in this century has been put at the feet of civilization, to be occupied by commerce and Christianity. The Chinese wall, once an impassable barrier, now is a useless pile of stone and brick. Our American nation at the opening of this century only a slice of land along the Atlantic coast, now the whole continent in possession of our schools and churches and missionary stations. Sermons and religious intelligence which in other times, if noticed at all by the newspaper press, were allowed only a paragraph of three or four lines, now find the columns of the secular press in all the cities thrown wide open, and every week for 26 years without the omission of a single week, I have been permitted to preach one entire Gospel sermon through the newspaper press. I thank God for the great opportunity. Glorious Old Century! You shall not be entombed until we have, face to face, extolled you. You were rocked in a rough cradle, and the inheritance you received was for the most part poverty, and struggle, and hardship, and poorly covered graves of heroes and heroines of whom the world had not been worthy, and atheism, and military despotism, and the wreck of the French revolution. You inherited the influences that resulted in Aaron Burr's treason, and another war with England, and Indian savagery, and Lundy's Lane, and Dartmoore massacre, and dissension, bitter and wild beyond measurement, and African slavery, which was yet to cost a national hemorrhage of four awful years and a million precious lives. Yes, dear Old Century, you had an awful start and you have done more than well, considering your parentage and your early environment. It is a wonder that you did not turn out to be the vagabond century of all time. You had a bad mother and a bad grandmother. Some of the preceding centuries were not fit to live in—their morals were so bad, their fashions were so outrageous, their ignorance was so dense, their inhumanity so terrific. O, Dying Nineteenth Century! before you go we take this opportunity of telling you that you are the best and the mightiest of all centuries of the Christian Era, except the first, which gave us the Christ, and you rival that century in the fact that you, more than all the other centuries put together, are giving the Christ to all the world. One hundred and twelve thousand dollars at one meeting a few days ago contributed for the world's evangelization. Look at what you have done, O thou abused and depreciated Century! All the Pacific isles, barred and bolted against the gospel when you began to reign, now all open, and some of them more Christianized than America. No more, as once written over the church doors in Cape Colony, "Dogs and Hottentots not admitted." The late Dr. Darwin contributed $25 to the Southern Missionary society. Cannibalism driven off the face of the earth. The gates of all nations wide open for the Gospel entrance when the church shall give up its intellectual dandyism, and quit fooling with higher criticism, and plunge into the work, as at a life-saving station the crew pull out with the lifeboat to take the sailors off a ship going to pieces in the Skerries. I thank you, old dying century, all Heaven thanks you, and surely all the nations of the earth ought to thank you. I put before your eyes, soon to be dim for the last sleep, the facts tremendous. I take your wrinkled old hand and shake it in congratulation. I bathe your fevered brow, and freshen your parched lips from the fountains of eternal victory.

But my text suggests that there are some things that this century ought to do before he leaves us. "Thus saith the Lord. Set thine house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live." We ought not to let this century go before two or three things are set in order. For one thing, this quarrel between labor and capital. The nineteenth century inherited it from the eighteenth century, but do not let this nineteenth century bequeath it to the twentieth. "What we want," says labor, "to set us right is more strikes and more vigorous work with torch and dynamite." "What we want," says capital, "is a tighter grip on the working classes and compulsion to take what wages we choose to pay, without reference to their needs." Both wrong as sin. Both defiant. Until the Day of Judgment no settlement of the quarrel, if you leave it to British, Russian or American politics. The religion of Jesus Christ ought to come in within the next four years and take the hand of capital and employe and say: "You have tried everything else, and failed; now try the Gospel of Kindness." No more oppression and no more strikes. The Gospel of Jesus Christ will sweeten this acerbity, or it will go on to the end of time, and the fires that burn the world up will crackle in the ears of wrathful prosperity and indignant toil while their hands are still clutching at each other's throats. Before this century sighs its last breath I would that swarthy labor and easy opulence would come up and let the Carpenter of Nazareth join their hands in pledge of everlasting kindness and peace. When men and women are dying they are apt to divide among their children mementoes, and one is given a watch, and another a vase, and another a picture, and another a robe. Let this veteran Century, before it dies, hand over to the human race, with an impressiveness that shall last forever, that old family keepsake, the glorious keepsake, which nearly 1,900 years ago was handed down from the black rock of the Mount of Beatitudes: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye so to them: for this is the law and the prophets."

Another thing that needs to be set in order before the veteran Century quits us is a more thorough and all-embracing plan for the world's gardenization. We have been trying to save the world from the top, and it can not be done that way. It has got to be saved from the bottom. The church ought to be only a West Point to drill soldiers for outside battle. What if a military academy should keep its students from age to age in the mess room and the barracks? No, no! They are wanted at Montezuma, and Chapultepec, and South Mountain, and Missionary Ridge, and the church is no place for a Christian to stay very long. He is wanted at the front. He is needed in the desperate charge of taking the parapets. The last great battle of God is not to be fought on the campus of a college or the lawn of a church. It is to be fought at Missionary Ridge. Before this century quits us let us establish the habit of giving the forenoon of the Sabbath to the churches and the afternoon and the evening of the Sabbath to Gospel work in the halls, and theaters, and streets, and fields, and slums, and wildernesses of sin and sorrow. Why do Christians who have stuffed themselves with "the strong meat of the Word" and all Gospel viands on Sabbath forenoons want to come up to second service and stuff themselves again? These old gormandizers at the Gospel feast need to get into outdoor work with the outdoor Gospel that was preached on the banks of the Jordan, and on the fishing-smacks of Lake Galilee, and in the bleak air of Assyrian mountains. I am told that throughout all our American cities, the second Sabbath service in the majority of churches is sparsely, yea, disgracefully attended, and is the distress of the consecrated and eloquent pastors who bring their learning and piety before pews ghastly for their inoccupancy. What is the providential meaning? The greatest of all evangelists since Bible times recently suggested that the evening services in all the churches be turned into the most popular style of evangelistic meetings for outsiders. Surely that is an experiment worth making. If that does not succeed, then it does seem to me all the churches which can not secure sufficient evening audiences ought to shut up their buildings at night and go where the people are and invite them to come to the Gospel banquet.

Let the Christian souls, bountifully fed in the morning, go forth in the afternoon and evening to feed the multitudes of outsiders starving for the bread of which if a man eat he shall never again hunger. Among those clear down the Gospel would make more rapid conquest than among those who know so much and have so much that God can not teach or help them.

It is a fact that in India butter made from the thin milk of the native cow is blue, instead of yellow. "When I came across this azure substance," says a traveled lady, "I vowed I would not touch it; but others did so, with evident enjoyment; and, curiosity getting the upper hand, I tried the butter, and, to my surprise, found it delicious. You who have been used to the golden fresh butter of England can hardly realize what it is to see bread apparently painted blue. The blue butter of India is preferable to the stuff they serve as butter in Norway and Sweden for there we had nothing but oleomargarine."

CHANGE OF TONE

In the French Press Toward the English Government.

They Now Advocate the Cultivation of an Alliance With England.

A Movement Between England, France and Germany Pointing Toward a Conference on the Sugar Bounty System—Gathering of Non-Conformists.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—There has been a singular change of late in the tone of the French newspapers toward Great Britain, notably in the cases of the Siecle, Matin and Temps. These papers, instead of attacking "Perfidious Albion," as has been their wont, have swung around and now advocate the cultivation of a French alliance with Great Britain. According to information from a high official quarter the change is due to a cementing of the relations between Great Britain and Russia. It is stated as an undoubted fact that during the recent visit of the czar at Balmoral, the queen's residence in the Highlands, the Anglo-Russian question concerning boundaries in Central Asia was absolutely settled. Both the French and German semi-official newspapers have published inspired communications on the subject, and they all concur in praising the czar for abandoning the Russian desire for conquest and for completing the division of the Asiatic continent under the single aim of the interests of civilization.

Whether either France or Germany is entirely pleased with the solution of this long-pending matter is questionable.

Communications have been re-opened between the English foreign office, the French and the [illegible]an governments pointing towa[illegible] another conference on the sugar bounty system. Without being able to state what government took the initiative, it can be affirmed that official opinion on each side favors the abolition of the bounty premium. The English colonial office is constantly receiving the worst reports of the decreasing prosperity of the sugar estates in the West Indes. It is stated by recent mail advices that the majority of the great planters put five years as the limit of the West Indian sugar industry if the bounty system among European powers continues. At present the profits are almost nil, only the working expenses being cleared, although the cost of production has been reduced from 18 pounds to 10 pounds per ton.

The largest gathering of Non-conformist churchmen ever held will take place March 9 next in the City temple, London. Although called a congress of evangelical free churches, and really a purely Non-conformist assemblage, the archbishop of Canterbury, the bishop of Rochester and other eminent English churchmen have written letters of sympathy with the movement. The elimination of all religious or polemics from the agenda of the congress accounts for the support of a section of the English prelates. The programme can not exclude all controversial matter, but all subjects are, it is understood, to be treated on a broad Christian basis.

CHAS. GATES DAWES,

Of Evanston, Ill., Will Be President-Elect McKinley's Private Secretary.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 30.—It may be regarded as settled now that President-elect McKinley's private secretary will be Charles Gates Dawes, of Evanston, Ill. Maj. Dawes was chairman of a bureau in the national republican committee, with headquarters at Chicago, during the campaign. His home was formerly at Leighton, Neb., but he recently moved to Chicago, to manage the business of a large gas plant promoting company with which he is connected. Maj. Dawes, with a number of Ohio republicans prominently connected with the campaign, was the guest on Thanksgiving day of Joseph P. Smith, ex-state librarian, McKinley's campaign secretary, at his home at Urbana, O. The statement that Dawes has been selected comes from a member of the McKinley household.

NUMBER OF GUESTS

Poisoned at the Silver Wedding Near Hollidaysburg, Pa., Increased From 40 to 60.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 30.—The number of guests who were poisoned at the silver wedding anniversary banquet at the home of A. R. Stuart, in Frankstown township Saturday, has been increased from 40 to 60. The Stuart residence was converted into a hospital Saturday night for 32 guests who were too ill to be removed to their own homes. Sunday the many victims were reported to be slowly recovering. The presence of arsenical substance in the chicken salad has been detected and a portion of the salad has been sent to Dr. C. B. Dudley, president of the American Chemical society, for an analysis.

London Times on the Cuban Question.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Times Monday prints a leader treating of the situation in Cuba. It says that owing to the incapacity of her generals there is no prospect whatever of Spain winning in the struggle in the island. Moreover Spain's resources are strained to the utmost, and it will be difficult for her purse to bear much longer the demands upon it. In conclusion the Times says: "We can not exclude the probability of intervention by the United States."

British Trade Unionists Arrive.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Samuel Woods, secretary of the Trades Union Congress of Great Britain and ex-member of parliament, accompanied by John Mallison, president of the Trades Union congress and a leader in the British labor world, arrived here Saturday on the steamer Campania. They come as delegates from the trades unions of Great Britain to the convention of the American Federation of Labor, which begins in Cincinnati on December 14.

TRADE REVIEW.

Reports From All Sections Show Enlargement of Business—Disappointment is Observed in the Iron and Steel Industry.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—R. G. Dun & Co. says Saturday in their weekly review of trade:

When the rush of orders after the election slackened many began to think business dwindling, but subsidence of deferred orders is not decrease of business. Disappointment is observed in the iron and steel industry because various combinations have been and still are retarding orders by prices which buyers believe can not be maintained, and the same is true in boots and shoes and in a few branches of textile goods. But business is on the whole improving and the employment of many more hands will extend purchasing power. The settlement of the window glass controversy, starting many thousand hands, and the collapse of some important combinations, with the same effect, give promise of more business. Broadly speaking the gain has been greater than anybody expected, and it is not surprising if a small part of it is in excess of the present consuming demand

Reports from all parts of the country show clearly the enlargement of trade, not at all points in the same branches, but everybody helped by a more confident feeling. Monetary difficulties have vanished as if by magic and banks with an uncomfortably large supply of idle money are hunting borrowers as the borrowers were recently hunting tenders. Enormous gains in bank deposits, $37,000,000 in two weeks, indicate something of the amount of funds recently hoarded.

Wheat has risen over six cents for the week without material change in foreign advices, which have been on the whole less stimulating. Corn has sympathized with wheat only a little and is coming forward freely. The most important factor in the wheat market is that the visible supplies do not gain as much as has been expected.

The collapse of the nail combination and probably of the beam combination, and considerable reduction in quotations for nails and beams give reason to look for a larger demand for products of iron and steel, but at present the sales against speculative purchases made some time ago are depressing prices and Bessemer pig has sold at $12.25, and according to some reports a little lower at Pittsburgh. The demand for such products as are not controlled by the combinations is somewhat increasing. In minor metals tin is scarcely as strong as it was a week ago, but copper and lead are stronger.

Failures for the week have been 300 in the United States against 279 last year, and 38 in Canada against 47 last year.

SICK SOLDIERS.

There Are Now 17,340 Spaniards in the Military Hospitals—Of That Number, 1,458 Are Suffering With Yellow Fever.

HAVANA, Nov. 28.—Nothing special has been received Friday concerning the operations in the field.

The official statistics show that there are now 17,340 soldiers sick in the various military hospitals. Of this number 1,458 are suffering with yellow fever. The mortality is said to be 163 per thousand.

One hundred and fifty persons who have been condemned for various political crimes and sentenced to exile will be sent to the penal settlements at Fernado Po and the Cahfinas Saturday.

The case of Julius Sangilly, the American citizen who is charged with conspiracy against the government, was called in the supreme court Friday. The judge stated that the trial would take place in public on December 21, and the witnesses have been summoned to be present on that date. Sangilly was arrested in 1895, and was convicted by a court martial which sentenced him to life imprisonment. He succeeded, however, in having a civil trial granted to him.

A train which arrived here Friday from Artemisa, province of Pinar del Rio brought 17 officers and 483 privates who are so sick that it is necessary to bring them here for hospital treatment. The steamer Bolivar brought Friday seven officers and 240 privates, all sick, from the same province.

Gen. Weyler arrived safely at Artemisa by way of Mariel, Friday, and it is stated that it is his intention to leave at once for the field.

OFFICIAL COUNT

In Kentucky Gives McKinley Twelve and Bryan One Electoral Vote—Silver Democrats Will Contest.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 28.—The state canvassing board began the count of the presidential vote Friday morning. Gov. Bradley was not present, his place being taken by Auditor Stone. The republican and democratic committees are represented by attorneys.

The official count shows that Kentucky's electoral vote stands 12 for McKinley and one for Bryan. The footings give Nash, the leading republican elector, 218,171 votes, and Smith, the leading democratic elector, 217,890, a plurality of 218 for the republican. The vote of the two hindmost republican electors is a tie and the other electors will have to decide which shall be dropped for Smith, who received more votes. The silver democrats say they will fight their contest next week.

Commissioner Forman Takes the Oath.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Hon. W. S. Forman, of Illinois, took the oath of office Friday morning and assumed his duties as commissioner of internal revenue. He held quite a levee in his office and was then taken about the building by retiring Commissioner Miller and presented to the various heads of departments.

Congressman Patterson Will Contest.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 28.—Col. Josiah Patterson, defeated candidate for re-election to congress, has served formal notice of contest on E. W. Carmack, his successful opponent.

COLD WEATHER

Causes Much Suffering in the Northwest.

Four Persons So Far Known to Have Lost Their Lives.

Ten Carloads of Sheep Frozen to Death at Grand Harbor, Devil's Lake—Great Suffering on Stock Ranges, and Thousands of Cattle May Be Killed.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 30.—The intensely cold weather which prevails in the storm-swept district of northwest, has brought on intense suffering, and the death list of four is expected to be increased unless milder weather sets in.

At Moorehead, Minn., Thomas Anderson, after helping a woman to her home, attempted to reach his own but perished, and now lies buried in the drifts. At Devil's Lake, N. D., Henry Burroughs, of St. Paul, a mail clerk, started to walk to town from a stalled train. He never reached there. At Fargo, N. D., Frank Vach, of Chicago, was frozen on the prairie a mile from town. At Church's Ferry, a trainman who attempted to get help for a trainload of cattle, was frozen stiff. Ten carloads of sheep destined for Chicago were frozen at Grand Harbor, Devil's lake. The November which is just closing is the coldest known in the northwest for 15 years. Snow fell on the fourth of the month and has not since disappeared even for a day. There is great suffering on the stock ranges and thousands of cattle may be killed if the weather continues cold.

On the ranges west of the Missouri river the temperature is from five to 20 degrees below zero, and below zero at all points in the Dakotas. At Vermillion, S. D., there is hardly a tree standing and every orchard is ruined. In many instances trees a foot in diameter were snapped off at the bottom. Every telegraph and electric wire in town was prostrated, and it will have no lights until next week.

Reports from the railways Sunday night indicate that they are running partly on time again. Farmers coming in from the ranges west of the Missouri say that the loss to stockmen so far is not great, as when the storm broke the beeves found fair shelter in the valleys. The weather, however, is still very severe, sub-zero temperatures being reported all over Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Unless there is a decided rise in the temperature in the next few days the loss among sheep and cattle will be very large, as the streams are freezing over so solidly that it will be hard for them to get water.

ROBBED AND MURDERED.

The Murderer Captured and a Lynching Narrowly Averted.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Louis Maverick, the proprietor of a boarding camp on the drainage canal near Lemont, was attacked by two colored highwaymen in a deserted portion of Summit, southwest of this city, Saturday night, robbed and stoned to death.

The crime resulted in the wildest excitement in Lemont and hundreds of citizens started out to assist the police in capturing the men. Sunday afternoon Henry Booker and John Latimer, both Negroes, were arrested on the drainage canal, not far from Summit, and lodged in jail. Booker afterward confessed, and when this was rumored about a mob collected and it was with difficulty the authorities protected the pirsoners from violence. The excited citizens threatened to force an entrance into the jail where the two men were locked up, and lynch them. The streets in the vicinity of the jail were becoming crowded with excited men, and the authorities, fearing violence would be committed, separated the two prisoners. Rooker was hurried out through a rear way and taken to the Willow Springs jail, and in order to quiet the mob, it was given out that there was no certainty of the guilt of the prisoners. By ten o'clock the crowd had disappeared.

MEAGER DETAILS

Of Two Terrible Crimes Committed Near Athens, Tenn.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 30.—Reports received at Athens, Tenn., contain meager details of two terrible crimes committed near that town, but owing to the telegraph wires being down between this city and Athens neither names or further confirmation of the stories can be obtained. In North Athens, an addition to the town, five drunken men, all white, forced their way into the home of a respectable widow woman and made a savage attack upon her. One of her assailants threw a rock which crushed her skull She will die as a result of the injuries.

A few miles from Athens a little seven-year-old girl was overtaken on her way home from Sunday school Sunday by a Negro, who outraged her in a most brutal manner. This man has been arrested and confessed his guilt. He is confined in the county jail at Athens. The facts were learned late Sunday night from the trains.

The Dock Laborers' Strike.

HAMBURG, Nov. 30.—The strike of the dock laborers and others employed in the shipping trade continues and both masters and men express themselves as confident of success. There is no sign of a break in the ranks of the strikers, nothwithstanding the importation of foreign labor.

Death of Prof. Beauregard Boaz.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 30.—Beauregard Boaz, professor of mathematics and astronomy in the college of Charleston, died Sunday afternoon after a short illness.

Death of Baron Saville.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The death is announced of Baron Saville, who for several years held high diplomatic appointments.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Dec. 2, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time.........................$1.00
Each additional time........................ .25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50
☞ Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered........$5.00.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

Neighborhood News.

Gasburg.

Considerable corn still stands in the fields ungathered.

About all of the fat hogs in this vicinity were sold last week.

Doc Houze has moved into the house recently vacated by Hump Yerkes.

Zerelda, daughter of Frank Smith, was dangerously sick with diphtheria for several days last week.

H. Lee Early and family, of Home City, Ohio, and Ben R. Johnson and family, of Dillsboro, Ind., eat Thanksgiving turkey with your correspondent.

A large crowd of fox hunters collected, last Saturday, near G. T Rue's to witness the chase of a fox that George Bachelor had captured, but reynard absolutely refused to run thereby causing a much disappointed crowd.

Hebron.

Farmers are about done gathering corn.

Health of the neighborhood generally good.

The thermometer registered 16 degrees above zero here, Sunday.

Miss Mary Riddell entertained a large number of her friends, Saturday night.

Rumor tells us there will be several weddings here in the near future.

Several of our young people enjoyed an elegant Thanksgiving dinner at Mr. Wm. Graves', of Bullittsville.

Walter Goodridge has gone to the Hygienic Hospital, Cincinnati, O., for treatment. We hope he will soon be able to be out.

A christmas entertainment will be given by the Sunday School at this place. Dr. W. O. Rouse, the Superintendent, will make an effort to have the best ever given in this part of the country.

Erlanger.

Good Faith Lodge, No. 95, F. & A. M. will entertain their wives and families with a banquet and entertainment at their hall, Saturday eve. Dec. 5th.

LaFayette K. of P. paid a visit to Burlington, last Thursday evening and enjoyed the work done by the lodge in the 2d and 3d Rank. Burlington Lodge is making quite a reputation for themselves.

Lafayette Lodge, No. 111 of K. of P, elected the following officers: Chancellor Commander, Geo. J. Rost; Vice-Chancellor, B C. McCormick; Prelate, Anton Miller; M. of Ex., Geo. Haag; M. of F., Jacob Fickel, K. of R & S, J. A. Wyss; M. at A., Chas F. Coe; trustees, Ben Dulaney and Charles W. Zumbiel.

The Improvement Association met Friday evening with a large attendance. The committee of fourteen reported that the proper location for incorporation would be the lines of Graves Ave., on the western line; Home St, on the Southern line and Clay St., the eastern line, which was unanimously adopted. A committee of L. Morelli and George Bloss was appointed to have the same surveyed. A committee of J. A. Wyss, Geo. Bloss and A. Konnerding was appointed to have the necessary papers drawn up for incorporation The next meeting will be held Thursday evening.

Pt. Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Henke spent Thanksgiving in Newport.

Mrs. Lydia Scott was the guest of Mrs. Virgil Wier, of Constance, last week.

Prof. E. N. Curry, of Union, visited Miss Flora Youell, of Hebron, last week.

Hon. J H. Walton and wife attended the Bradford Rouse wedding, of Limaburg.

Quite a number of young folks attended the theater in Cincinnati, one evening last week.

Miss Ella Biel, of Ludlow, was the guest of Miss Ora Russell, the latter part of last week.

Prof. Richmond, of Constance, will celebrate Christmas with one of his grand entertainments.

Boys, get your horns and tin pans ready. There will be two or three more weddings in the near future.

The school at this place is progressing nicely, under the efficient management of our teacher, E. S. Mathews.

Several of the young people of this vicinity attended the birthday party of Miss Mary Riddell, of near Hebron.

The C. E. Society will give an oyster supper and social at Mrs. Chas. Scott's, Saturday night, Dec. 5th. All are invited.

Thanksgiving was observed by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the C. W. B. M. An interesting program was rendered and quite a good collection was taken for the Bible Chair at Ann Arbor, Mich.

[Would be glad for you to write often.—Ed]

Gunpowder.

The marriage of Miss Arminta Surface and Mr. Harvey Utz, on the 25th ult., was a notable and handsome affair.

The marriage was solemnized at the beautiful home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Surface, Nov. 25th, at noon, by Rev. Geo. N. Buffington of the Methodist church, their pastor, Rev. Max Lentz, being called away at that time. Both the young people are representatives of prominent and highly esteemed families.

The bride, a lovely and accomplished girl, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Surface. The groom is a son of Mr. Thos. Utz, and is a very popular young man highly esteemed by all.

The decorations were of white chrysanthemums with a relief of green foliage, beneath which stood the beautiful bride with the man of her choice, to plight her troth. The little maid of honor was the bride's cousin, and the little daughter of Mr and Mrs. Eli Surface, of Crescent, Beulah, who carried a basket of flowers and marched in front so pure and so lovely, seemingly an angel had dropped down to guide their steps.

Mrs. Effie Hography, the bride's aunt, played the bridal march and other soft melodies during the ceremony. The bride looked superb in a bridal robe of cream white Henrietta trimmed in chiffon, ribbon and shinestone buckles. She wore a long veil of tulle fastened with an exquisite bunch of cream rosebuds, and carried a bouquet of roses and fern. The groom looked handsome in the conventional black. Only the near relatives and a few friends were present.

The dining room was one not to be forgotten soon The table was all in white, the wall was white, decorated with green, floor and ceiling white, the flowers were arranged by one of taste, Miss Ida Dixon, of Crescent.

One notable event was the bride's grandparents are all living, Mr. and Mas. Henry Dixon, of Richwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Noah Surface, of Crescent, who were present and set opposite the bride and groom at the table and dined sumptuously. Many beautiful and useful presents were received.

Although dark and rainy the day before, when morning came the clouds rolled away and all was sunshine. May their lives be the same is the wish of the writer. EN EYE WITNESS.

Rabbit Hash.

Ira Adams has returned from a visit to his parents in Grant county.

Several from here attended the baptizing at Bellevue, last Thursday.

Miss Myrtle O'Neal visited Miss Alice Wilson several days this week.

Lewis Stephens is home from school, spending a few days with his parents

Mrs. Harry Wingate has returned, after several weeks' visit with her mother in Covington.

B W. Nelson came down from Petersburg to spend Thanksgiving with his father and sister.

J. N. Pearson and O. M Ryle, of Florence, were visiting Rabbit Hash friends several days this week.

A number of the Rabbit-Hash Knights attended the K. of. P. Lodge at Burlington, last Thursday night.

Charles Wilson and a friend came down from Lawrenceburg Wednesday evening to attend the oyster supper.

Mrs. Agnes Calvert and daughter Hattie, of Rising Sun, visited relatives and friends in this vicinity last week.

Although there was a small attendance at the oyster supper Wednesday evening, everybody had a good time, plenty to eat and was entertained with a speech on Pithianism by Mr. Lucus, of Lawrenceburg.

Sunday, November 22nd, was the scene of quite a happy gathering at the home of Marion Stephens, where his children and grand children, twenty-five in number, with other relatives and friends, gathered with well filled baskets to celebrate Mrs. Stephens' birthday. Of their eleven children all were present but Frank, who, with his family, now lives in Colorado.

Verona.

At noon an excellent dinner was served, and most heartily enjoyed by all.

Ben Houston has a very badly mashed hand. The accident happened while coupling cars at Paris.

After a most appropriate closing address by Prof. Craven, "Home, Sweet Home," was sung, and the meeting adjourned.

Fry & Whitson's store presented a decidedly lively appearance, last Saturday, the occasion being the Thanksgiving bargains previously advertised. Each lady who visited the store that day received a present.

Notwithstanding the very inclement weather, the oyster supper at Scott Myers' was well attended last Saturday. Instead of furnishing supper for 25 cents as at first intended, oysters were served at 10 cents per dish. About $15 was realized on the supper. Misses Ida Craven and Lulu Powers presided at the organ, while Lafe Myers, played the violin and Butler Myers, the harp. J. W. Bagby and Taylor Grubbs rendered some fine vocal music. The supper was an excellent success in every particular.

The meeting of the Teachers' Association here, last Saturday, was a success in every particular. The crowd that witnessed the exercises came from far and near, and packed the spacious hall. The exercises began on time, opening with the song, "Our Public Schools." This was followed by a neat welcome address by Prof. J. H. Craven. The following programme was then rendered: Piano solo—Miss Lulu Powers Primary Work—Miss Lizzie Kipp and Miss Anna Wolfe. Calesthenics—Miss Lillie Rouse. Long composition—Miss Lizzie Rogers. Cornet solo—Bagby and Grubbs. The Teacher's Dream—Bessie Callahan. Roughf's Expiring—Prof Pryor, Song, "Our American Schools." Physiological Anatomy of the heart—Dr. B K. Menefee. Ventilation Dr. R. L. Finnell. Vocal duett—Bagby and Grubbs. Should other than common school branches be taught?—Miss Nancy Youell. Recitation on school literature—Prof. Pryor. Open exercises—Miss N. E. Hamilton. Elocution—Prof. Pryor.

Walton.

Richard Lunsford and Miss Americus Hannah Webster, of Zion Station, were married on Thanksgiving Day. Lunsford said he wanted to be thankful for something, and Hannah agreed with him—hence the nuptials.

The L & N. Ry., has delivered three car loads of rock for the macadamizing of the street leading to its depot. The town council had a called meeting last Thursday night and advertised for breaking and spreading the same immediately It begins to appear that people will be able to get to the depot without wading ankle deep in slush.

Wm. Carrier was standing out in front of the Phœnix Hotel, Friday evening, when some darky hit him a terrible blow on the side of the head with a stone, injuring him very severely. Some of the citizens speaking of the occurrence, have remarked that the negroes since the election are not conducting themselves in as quiet and orderly a manner as they did some time ago.

The citizens of North Walton having been made very tired by the dilatory movements of the Town Council, joined in and built a substantial plank sidewalk from Pike street to the L. & N. railroad crossing. But a short distance intervenes between it and the Southern's depot As it would prove a great accommodation to the commuters it is thought that road may finish it.

Roll of honor of Walton public school Principal Wm. Gaines' room:

Myrtle Jones	Bridget Coyne
Mamie Allen	Hattie Vest
Lottie Holder	Mary Plunkett
Lorena Tillman	Bertha Hoard
Mary Burk	Annie Campbell
Eddie Kipp	Chas. Rensler
Robert Baker	John DeJarnette
Estella Booth	John Ingram
Chas. Ingram	Sarah Crisler
Maud Crisler	Walter Southard

There was a spelling match in Miss Lizzie Kipp's room on last Friday afternoon. Clay Holder and Georgie Kipp carried of the honors—out lasted the others, and made a dead heat in the race. Ernest Demoisey has the name of being one of the best, if not the best boy attending the public school.

Union.

Miss Nannie Burkett is visiting relatives in Bracken county.

Geo Ossman and wife attended services here last Thursday.

H. C. Lassing and family, of Nashville, are visiting his father.

Mrs. John Garrison entertained quite a number of her friends Thursday.

O Harter, of Covington, spent several days, recently, with Burl Conner.

Miss Annie Rice, of Covington, spent last week with friends and relatives here.

Miss Mattie Talbott, of Erlanger, was the guest of Mrs. Garrison, last Sunday week.

Mrs. J. W. Kennedy has returned from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. O. M. Huey, at Carrolton.

The Baptist closed, last week, an interesting series of meetings, conducted by their pastor, Rev. Adams.

Messrs. George and Stanley Crouch spent their thanksgiving vacation at their home in Gallatin county.

We would mention that Squire Webb, of Erlanger, was in town Sunday, but it is too frequent an occurrence to note.

Miss Bertha Baker entertained in her usual delightful style, a few of her friends, Saturday evening, the 21st ult.

The union services at the Baptist church conducted by pastors Davis and Adams were enjoyed by a large congregation.

Mrs. J. A. Huey and daughter, and Miss Pearl Quisenberry, spent thanksgiving with Rev. H. N. Quisenberry, at Hamilton, Ohio.

Lawyers Castleman and Lassing were in town on Tuesday of last week. Two colored citizens disturbed the public peace by shooting with intent to kill.

The called meeting of the Union Democratic Club was very well attended, notwithstanding that the night was very dark and rainy. The boys proved that they have lost none of their enthusiasm. The next meeting will be held the first Saturday in December, at 7 o'clock p. m There will be speaking and business of importance. All members are expected to be present.

Utzinger.

The river is rising very fast.

Wm. Wilhoit is in very poor health at this writing.

Louis Sullivan has sold his tobacco for 6c per pound all round.

J. J. Ferris is feeding a fine lot of cattle. So is B. R. Gaines.

J A Duncan and Chas. A. Gaines had good horses to die, last week.

Bandy, the man that traded Geo. W. Terrill the Powell county land, has flown.

S. C. Buchanan and Miss Lou Alden are applicants for the post office at Petersburg.

Hon. S. Wintzell, of Home City, O., was calling on Miss Emma Holton, last Sunday.

Some of the farmers who killed hogs, last week, are uneasy for fear their meat will spoil.

Thieves stole two fat cattle of Mr. Sadler, near the mouth of Garrison, one night last week.

Geo. W. Walton sold his tobacco to John Hogan for 5c for all but the trash, for which he got 2½ cents.

Some persons stole seventeen turkeys from Courtney Walton and four from Laura Sebree, the other night.

Work on the new Lawrenceburg ferry is progressing rapidly, and the boat will be finished in three weeks.

Thos. Barnett, of Aurora, makes regular visits to this vicinity of late. A handsome widow is the attraction.

Miss Mary Moody, daughter of Capt. Wm. Moody, is a saleslady in Green Bros. dry goods store in Rising Sun.

The light house steamer, Lilly, passed down last Friday. She furnishes oil to all the government lights on the river.

Gaines & Cropper have put a glass front to their store, and Wm. Jones has built a corn crib. Now is the time to buy town lots.

A little child of Frank Smith's is very low with diphtheria. Drs. Grant, of Petersburg, and Henry, of Aurora, are the physicians.

Saw a street car in McVille the other day adorned with a portait of Hon. Dick Ernst. Guess he was starting on his Salt River tour

M. T. Graves is going to enclose about six acres of land and stock it with black pole-cats. He thinks it will pay as No. 1 pelts sell for $1.50.

Stealing seems to be the fad in this vicinity, lately, and nearly every night some one looses turkeys, chickens, pigs and some times cattle.

Mrs. Huff says the report that she turned the horses loose at the Lawrenceburg ferry the day of the Democratic rally, is untrue.

Krutz's is headquarters for the river men; Berkshire & McWethy, for the politicians; Vesenmeir's, for base ball; Gordon Bros. for fashion.

James and Orlando Snyder had the remains of their mother and brother, who died about 45 years ago removed from the Piatt burying ground to the Petersburg cemetery, one day last week.

C. H. Acra, of Bellevue, informs us that he is a full fledged candidate for Sheriff. He will make his announcement public in a speech at the court house in Burlington in the near future.

Ezra Aylor will move to Mrs. Terrill's farm. Henry Hoffman, to Geo. Voshell's farm on Woolper; Joe Vinson, to Frank Cason's; Price and Leonard Gibbs to the Locust Grove neighborhood.

One of the heaviest wind and rain storms that has visited this section for a long while, came up from the southwest, last Thursday night, blowing down fencing, hay stacks and scattering fodder shocks all over the fields.

Beaver.

Young grass and small grain never looked better.

Jacob Cleek, of Walton, was visiting relatives here last Thursday.

Mrs. Betty Grubbs, who has been quite sick for several days is improving slowly.

J. C. Hughes bought several crops of tobacco last week—price not learned.

Rev. Mattocks, of Williamstown preached at the Christian church, last Sunday, morning and night.

The surviving members of the Jas. West family, assisted by Mr. Cassabaum, of Aurora, Ind., have been engaged during the past week exhuming the precious bones of their beloved dead, many of whom have laid in their graves at the old Noell family cemetery, near Beaver, and the South Fork cemetery for many years, and after rearranging their dissolving forms removed them to the beautiful Beaver Lick Christian cemetery, where they were reinterred.

FROM GALLATIN COUNTY.

A Pastor Called—A Big Crop of Tobacco Sold—Damages Against the L. & N. Railroad—Shanty Boat Men in Jail.

[Independent]

The members of the Warsaw Baptist Church, at the meeting Tuesday night, unanimously called Rev. E. F. Hurd, of Glencoe, as their pastor for the ensuing year, beginning with January next.

W. R. Payne sold last Saturday to R: P. Alexander, of the firm of Alexander & Ransdell, of New Liberty, the entire crop of tobacco raised on his farm near town this year, comprising about 40,000 lbs. at 7 cents per pounds for all except the spodge and that at 2 cents per pound.

Commonwealth of Kentucky against Charles Brenton, for housebreaking. This is the young man who set fire to the grass in front of Mrs. Kate Carver's barn near Drury Chapel, and broke into Samuel Ray's house and stole a couple pair of stockings, an account of which was in the last issue of this paper. He was tried by a jury and defended by Rod Perry and Thos. Kirby. The jury concluded him to be hardly responsible for his actions, he having a foolish appearance, and acquitted him of the charge, but remanded him to the custody of the jailer until further order of the court. Brenton was afterward brought before the court on a writ of de lunatico inquirendo, and a jury rendered a verdict that he was of unsound mind. Judge Green ordered Brenton taken to the Anchorage asylum.

The case of Joseph K. Nesbit, admr. of Lee S. Taafle, deceased, vs. the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, for $25,000 for the killing of Lee S. Taafle, at Sparta, in October, 1895, was tried this week, and resulted in a verdict by a jury for $5,000 damages. It will be remembered by our readers that Mr. Taafle went out to Sparta to meet Senator Joe Blackburn, who was to speak here on that day. While awaiting the train he took a walk down the railroad track at Sparta, with his brother-in-law, Edgar S. Gibson, of Owenton, and as they heard the train whistle for the station started to walk back toward the station between the two railroad tracks. A freight train was lying on one track and the passenger train was coming in from Louisville on the other track. When the passenger train was near them, Mr. Taafle suddenly stepped upon the railroad ties in front of the train and was struck by the locomotive and instantly killed. It is supposed he became bewildered and thought the train was on the other track. The case was bitterly contested, Hon. Benj. D. Warfield, of Louisville, and Hon. R. B. Brown representing the railroad company, and Hon. John S Gaunt, of Carrollton, and Col. Robt. Wood, having charge of Mrs. Taafle's interest. All the attorneys made speeches in the case and the jury after about an hour's deliberation brought in a verdict of $5,000. Several were for $15,000 damages, and in the verdict ten jurors were for $5,000, while the other two would not sign the verdict. The case will be taken to the Court of Appeals, as the Railroad Co.'s attorneys prayed an appeal which was granted.

It was ascertained that the parties who stole the hides from Louis Gutting's slaughter house at this place, last week, were at Rising Sun, Ind., on a shanty boat, and on Monday Jailer Joseph Cassell and Harry B. Clore drove up there to arrest them. They found the parties had sailed up the river to near Aurora, and so they went to Petersburg, Ky., and secured the services of town Marshal Harry Bohn, and as the thieves were returning from Aurora, in a skiff they arrested them in mid river. The parties arrested are two men who gave their names as Frank and James Clark, and Cincinnati as their home. Frank Clark is about 35 years old, and is said to be the man that was sent from Switzerland county, Ind., to the penitentiary for stealing a shot gun and other things from the residence of James Hickman in Egypt Bottom, Ind., a number of years ago. James Clark, the other man arrested for the theft of the hides, is about 27 years old. They were brought here Monday night by Messrs. Cassell and Clore and incarcerated in jail to await trial at the March term of the Circuit Court, Judge Green believing it to be more economical to do that than to call a special grand jury and send for the Commonwealth's Attorney M. D. Gray, who resides at Williamstown. The general opinion is that the Clarks are the ones who got Mr. Gutting's property as they were seen here about the time of the robbery. An examining trial was held Thursday, before County Judge J. S. Brown, who held them over until the March term of Circuit Court in the sum of $300 each, which they being unable to give were remanded to jail to await circuit court.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Isn't It Reasonable?
We maintain that GOOD CLOTHING CAN BE BOUGHT BOR LESS MONEY at Our Store than elsewhere in this vicinity. Why do we say so? Because we know it to be a fact that
Our EXPENSES ARE THE LOWEST. BUYING IS THE CLOSEST. And
WE ARE SATISFIED WITH THE SMALLEST PROFITS.
You can not get something for nothing anyanywhere, but you can get get value for your money at
ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS
S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

STEPHENS & SCALES,
—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN—
Hardware, Cutlery, and Agricultural Implements,
Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Steel Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,
BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE
AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.
No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.

BEST GOODS! LIVING PRICES!
Hardware,
Farm Machinery,
Fine Vehicles,
Harness.
HARRIS FITCH, Corner HIGH AND SHORT STREETS,
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.
Prices Reasonable.
F. PIEPER,
Optician and Jeweler,
Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to
We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Sasisfaction.
616 Madison Ave., - - COVINGTON, KY.

A SPECIAL INVITATION TO
Our Boone County Neighbors!
When in LAWRENCEBURG, IND., Stop at the Old Reliable
ADLES'R BARGAIN STORE.
Where you can pick up a bargain in the line of
Dry Goods, Shoes, Etc., also Holiday Attractions.
Here are a few Sample Bargains:
Ladies' Beaver Capes—all colors, $2 real value $3.50. Child's Long Cloaks—$1.75 real value $3. Beautiful Novelty Dress Goods—10c worth 15c. Best Calicoes & Ginghams, 5c. Best Yarns (all colors,) 5c skein. Wool Fascinators, Hoods or Shawls, 25c worth 50c. Blankets (heavy 10-4) 50c each worth 75c. Heavy Comforts, 75c worth $1.25. Men's Working Pants, only 50c worth 75c. Men's Underwear, 50c suit worth 90c.
OUR LEADERS—Men's Cong. or Lace Shoes (all style toes) $1 actually worth $1.50. Ladies' Button or Lace, calf or kid (tips or without) $1 actually worth $1.50. Misses' School Shoes, sizes 1½, 75c actually worth $1.25. Infants' Tip Button, 25c actually worth 40 cents.
Adler's BARGAIN STORE,
27 Walnut St., LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

SNAPS.
Leather SNAPS! Boot & Shoe SNAPS!
We have a Store full of Genuine Snaps in
Boots, Shoes, Hats and Gloves,
And we cordially invite our Boone County friends to call and partake of same.
PAUL A. DAVIS, Manager.
Sign of Big Red Boot. Rising Sun, Indiana.

FALL AND WINTER.
CLOTHING AND OVERCOATS,
Gent's Furnishing Goods, Hats and Caps,
Underwear, Umbrellas,
Trunks and Valises.
COME AND SEE US,
MARSHALL & STAHL,
—MASONIC BUILDING—
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA

Local News.

NOTICE—The members of the Burlington Democratic Club are requested to meet at the Court House in Burlington at 7 p. m., Saturday, Dec. 5th, 1896. Business of importance. All members are requested to be present.

J. G. FURNISH, President.

Wild dogs are a nuisance.

Next Monday is County Court.

The fox hunt was a failure last Thursday.

Three weeks from next Friday is Christmas.

Jack Sandford was on the sick list several days last week.

W. J. Rice was delivering potatoes at 25 cents a bushel Saturday.

For Sale—3 tons nice, bright oats in in barn. James W. Kelly, Hebron.

The colored people were out in full force with guns and dogs last Thursday.

A caravan of movers passed through town Saturday morning, headed southward.

Paris B. Parker is another who says the answer to the hog problem is 82½ pounds.

If you are an adept at pronunciation suppose you try "paranitroorhosulphobenzole."

Next Monday is County Court, and on the Monday following Circuit Court will begin.

James L. Clore desires to rent his farm of 140 acres on Woolper Creek. Terms good.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c

Don't fail to see B. F. Buchanan's Holiday Stock at Corner Drug Store, Rising Sun, Ind. 3t

Sanks & Stier furnish a house complete. Nos. 69, 70 and 71 Second street Aurora, Indiana.

People were surprised to find the mercury as low as 12 degrees above zero Monday morning.

One Dearborn county, Indiana, man claims that he has lost $1,000 worth of Berkshire hogs of cholera this fall.

Eighteen birds out of twenty shots is pretty good shooting, but that was Jerry Blyth's record, one day last week.

They say that Andy Collins and Paul Hallam were trying to borrow a buggy last Thursday to go a fox hunting in.

Sanks & Stier, undertakers and embalmers. Satisfaction guaranteed. Nos. 69, 70 & 71, Second street, Aurora, Ind.

Someone set snares in the woods near the County Infirmary, and swung up some of J. F. Blyth's fine Thinrind pigs.

The first real winter put in its appearance last Friday night. Saturday morning the ground was covered with sleet.

A barn belonging to Isaac Flick, of Bellevue, burnt last Wednesday night. Cause of the fire not known, but supposed to be incendiary.

Bad colds with grippe attachments have been annoying the people here. Experience renders us competent to say they are undesirable.

The Sunday School at this place has decided to have a Christmas Bell for the benefit of the small scholars and the amusement of the larger ones.

F. A. Utz passed through town, one day last week, driving a very fine lot of cattle which he bought of John J. Walton, of the Bellevue neighborhood.

Owing to the very inclement weather last Friday, the board meeting of the Executive Board of the North Bend Association was was not largely attended.

The turkey merchants from around in this vicinity report a good price for their turkeys in the city last week, notwithstanding the warm weather—from 8 to 10 cents on foot.

A great deal of powder and shot were scattered over the fields in this part of the country Thanksgiving. Some of these days you will hear of some one discovering a lead mine in these parts.

John Lassing and Watt Brown killed hogs Monday week, and on the afternoon of Thanksgiving they had just reached the sausage grinding point of the work. They will get through this week it is thought.

The Knights had a delightful meeting last Thursday night. Besides electing officers two degrees were conferred. Visiting brethren were present from the Erlanger, Petersburg and Rabbit Hash lodges. Lunch was served in the lodge room about midnight.

Weston's Musical and Specialty Combination is at the Court House for two nights this week, Tuesday and Wednesday. Weston gives a good show and will entertain you if you will attend. The show is strictly moral and first class in all its appointments.

Green Bros., of Rising Sun, are selling goods to correspond with the time. They handle first-class goods, sell at one price to all, and have established a good trade. They show a handsome line of Dry Goods, Hats and Shoes, including a nice line of Ladies' Capes and Jackets, and invite all to call and see them.

Incomparable Service.—The Queen & Crescent trains are the finest run in the State of Kentucky. Four daily trains to Cincinnati connect with the main highways of the great Trunk Lines of the North, West and East. This is the line par-excellent to Washington, New York, Boston and the East. The Queen & Crescent connects with every line out of Cincinnati.

An exchange says a lady asked a naughty editor how to make "not enough" out of the word "enough," and he told her that it was done by transposing the letters into words like this: Take the third, second and first letters of the word 'enough' for the first word, and the sixth, fourth and fifth for the second word and you have two words that signify something that is not enough for any young lady.

Very few persons take the pains to file their town or county papers, and yet a year's file of a newspaper would prove to be almost an encyclopedia of the doings and progress of the world that year; and especially would it be a complete history of all important local happenings. To examine the files of papers published years ago is very interesting pasttime, and refreshens one's memory of events almost forgotten. Try it once.

This is the kind of an obituary that Georgia editor puts up for a man: "Poor Jim Brown slung his garments on a limb and swam the river yesterday: He didn't stand back because the water was cold, but plunged right in; rose smiling, struck out for the other shore where the angels were waiting for him with a finer suit than he ever wore in his life. Jim was a poor man but he had his subscription to his home paper paid up and he got there in great shape."

William Bradford, son of Robt. Bradford, of Hebron, and Miss Emma, daughter of Geo. E. Rouse, of Limaburg, were married by Elder E. Stephens at his residence at Erlanger, last Wednesday. The groom is a very excellent gentleman, and for the last four years, he has been engaged in general merchandising in Nashville, Tenn. Immediately after the ceremony the groom and his handsome bride departed for their future home in that city, taking with them the best wishes of an extensive circle of friends residing in this county. The RECORDER extends its congratulations.

Last Thursday J. C. Revill and B. W. Adams lead an expedition against the wild dogs that have been annoying the farmers near town. After a search of an hour or so one of the dogs was located under the public school house in the outskirts of town. The only guns in the crowd, a single barrel shot gun and a Winchester rifle, were in the hands of Rankin Revill and Tim Westbay, who had fair shots at the dog, but on account of a very severe attack of buck ague, caused by the dog's very sudden appearance from under the building, neither was able to bring him down, but fortunately they did not shoot any of their companions.

About twenty of her young friends tendered Miss Lottie Hall a surprise party Thanksgiving night, in honor of her thirteenth birthday. Among those present were Misses Edna Cowen, Susie Roberts, Jennie Blyth, Birdie and Nellie Martin, Emma Sandford, Alma Carpenter, Fannie Hogan, Anna and Lottie Garrison; Messrs. Elbert Roberts, Charlie Finch, Herbert McKim, Otto Crisler, Earl Sandford, Wilbur Westbay, Roy Clutterbuck and Willie Ryle. The young people took possession of the house about 7 o'clock and enjoyed themselves in playing all kinds of parlor games until about 12, when they departed for their homes wishing Miss Lottie many more happy birthdays.

ANOTHER BROKEN HOUSEHOLD.

Died, in her childhood's home at North Bend, Ky., on the 24th of Nov., 1896, Mrs. Bettie Montague Coleman (nee Riley) wife of Mr. Eugene Coleman, of St. Louis county, Missouri.

She left Boone county with him, a few short years ago, a young and happy bride. Life promised her much; she seemed hedged in with the holiest loves of Earth, and the sunshine of this world's prosperity shone full upon her pathway. She had reached her thirtieth year, and the pressing duties of a wife and mother were developing her character, the love for her boy, the strongest and purest passion of the human heart, flooded all the future with visions of Hope and Happiness. But "In the midst of Life we are in Death."

She sickened early in the spring of this year, and as the golden summer months stole on, each day seemed to take away more and more of her strength, and, at last, when the autumn was here, she said. Let me go home to die." She came where father, mother, husband and sisters soothed her suffering with the tenderest sympaty until she passed away in peace with God and man. Her gentle and affectionate manners, had drawn many hearts to her, and her friends are mourning her loss to-day in bitter sorrow.

M. A. T.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Jeseph Bullock, of Heborn, was in town, last Thursday.

P. P. Neal, of Hathaway, was in town, last Saturday.

J. M. Finch, of Florence, was in Burlington, one day last week.

Several friends eat turkey with Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Rouse, last Thursday.

J. S. Anderson and wife, of Kenton county, were at Judge Riddell's, last Saturday.

Gordon McKim was home from Hanover College, to spend the Thanksgiving vacation.

Judge Riddell and wife had quite a number of friends dine with them on Thanksgiving day.

Septimus Foster, who resides at Jackson, Tennessee, orders the RECORDER sent to him at that place.

J. R. Clutterbuck and wife, and R. C. Rice and wife, attended the baptizing at Bellevue, last Thursday.

Messrs. Noah Surface, L. L. Tanner and E. H. Surface, of Gunpowder, were visitors to town, last Friday.

Geo. W. Ossman and wife, of Beaver, were the guests B. W. Adams and wife, last Thursday night and Friday.

H. Clay White is a candidate for Clerk of the Grant county Circuit Court. Clay Conrad, the incumbent, is his opponent.

Mr. John Taneous, of Riverside, O., was in town, last Saturday, looking happy and prosperous. Come again, friend John.

J. Wood Riggs, of the Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, and H. W. Robinson, of Constance, were among the visitors to town Saturday.

W. M. Underhill, of Beaver, was in town one day last week. He is not a frequent visitor to this place, coming only when his business demands.

Mrs. Susan Kirkpatrick was in the Hathaway neighborhood, several days last week, attending her aunt, Mrs. Henry Rush, who was quite sick.

Rankin Revill, after a visit of several weeks at home, has returned to Washington, D. C., where he is engaged in the practice of law with his uncle, O. B. Hallam.

Miss Emma Holton returned to her home at Petersburg, Boone county, after a very pleasant visit of a week, to relatives in this county and at Owenton.—Herald.

Sheriff Roberts was in the Verona and Walton neighborhoods, two or three days the first of last week. He says Wm. Adams was awful glad to see him, and he paid his election bet like a man.

Revs. G. W. Hill, of Williamstown, and T. L. Utz, of Bellevue, called upon us last press day. Rev. Hill was enroute home from Bellevue, where he had been assisting Rev. Utz in a very successful protracted meeting at the Baptist church.

H. C. Lassing came up from Nashville, last week, to visit his relatives here and at Union. Henry is well pleased with his new home, and with his industry and qualifications we predict that he will rank well with the legal fraternity of Nashville in a few years.

Master Commissioner J. B. Berkshire entertained quite a number of his relatives at dinner Thanksgiving day. Among them were his father and mother, J. W. Berkshire and wife, William Berkshire and wife, of Petersburg; N. S. Walton and wife, F. P. Walton and wife, Mrs. Helen Walton, Mrs. George Walton, Courtney Walton and wife, of the Utzinger neighborhood.

The scholars of the McVille school having labored assiduously to be registered on the honor roll, which requires an average of 95 percent. in all branches studied and 96 in deportment and attendance, we hope to encourage them by publishing their names according to their standing:

Fifth Grade—
Frank McMullen
Everett Eggleston
Prilla Cayton
Lou Sthaley
Susie Kelley

Fourth Grade—
Carrie Louden
Lena McMullen
Josie Acra
Milton Miller
Katie Sutton
Genla Acra
Willie Rice
Charley Stewart

Third Grade—
Emma Stewart
Pearl Batchelor
Bertha Setters
Cleveland Burns
Clarence McCarty
Mary Cayton
Minnie Merrick
Fanny Sthaley
Forest Rice
Stella McCarty

Second Grade—
Minnie Acra
Julia Sthaley
Prudie LeFever
Alfred Louden
Jim Louden
Willie Stewart

First Grade—
Bess Cayton
Clara Sthaley
Rodney Ryle
Joe Presser
Grover Batchlor

ETTA MOODY, Teacher.

Limaburg.

Thanksgiving day was very spring like, and everybody enjoyed it.

Several of S. J. Rouse's friends enjoyed a thanksgiving turkey with him.

John P. Utz killed hogs, Monday.

Claude Rouse has the first spring lamb.

Hog killings are engaging the attention of our people.

The thermometer showed 18 above zero on the 29th, and 14 above on the 30th.

FOR SALE—About 700 bushels, good assorted corn, lot of old paling and fence posts, all of this property is to be found on the farm of the late J. H. Smith, north of Burlington. Apply to

W. L. AYLOR, Adm'r.

Wm. F. GOETZE
Scientific Optician.
Headquarters at Hornberger's Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.
Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

ANNOUCEMENT!

I wish to announce to my friends that I have accepted the agency for

C. ROSS LODWICK,

Undertaker & Embalmer,

3035 W. 6th St. CINCINNATI, O.,

And am prepared to furnish all articles for

FUNERAL PURPOSES

on short notice.

Prompt attention will be paid to FUNERAL ORDERS and strict attention given to the care of the dead.

Respectfully,

GEO. BLYTH, Burlington, Ky.

DR. A. B. HARRYMAN,
DENTIST.
Will be in Lawrenceburg, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.
At Aurora, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Practiced for 30 years.
No Poisonous Gasses Used.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court.
James H. Lawell, Plaintiff,
vs
J. H. Walton's adm'r, heirs, &c., defts.

This cause is now referred to J. B. Berkshire, Master Commissioner of said court, under section 431 Civil Code of Practice, with the following instructions. First—The Commissioner will audit and settle the accounts of the administrators. Second—The Master will hear proof, ascertain and report the amount of the debts found against decedent's estate, and how secured if at all. Third—The Master will hear proof and determine the number of acres of land owned by decedent at the time of his death, where located and the probable value thereof. He will give due notice of his sittings by written or printed notices posted up at the Court House door in Burlington, Ky., 5 days preceeding his sittings and also publish said notices in the Boone Co. Recorder. He will report at the next term of this court.

Given under my hand as clerk of said court, this Nov. 16th, 1896.

J. W. DUNCAN, Clerk.

Notice is hereby given that I will begin my sittings at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., on the 23rd day of Nov., 1896, to hear proof of claims, under the order of reference in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 10th day of Dec., 1896. All persons having claims against J. H. Walton's estate will present them to me proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.
Christopher Barlow's Executor, Plff.
vs
Matilda J. Barlow, &c, Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896. All persons having claims against Christopher Barlow's estate will present them to me properly proven according to law

J. B. BERKSHIRE, Master Com.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.
E. M. Gaines' Assignee, Plff.
vs.
Farmers & Traders Nat. Bank, Defts.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 1st day of Nov., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 30th day of Nov., 1896 All persons having claims against E. M. Gaines' estate will present them to me properly proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

Administrat's Notice.

Those indebted to the estate of J. V. West, dec'd., must come forward and settle at once, and those having claims against said estate must present the same at once proven according to law.

E. S. WEST, Adm'r.

NOTICE.

All persons holding claims against J. R. Clutterbuck must present them to me at my office in Burlington, Ky., proven as by law required and persons indebted to the said Clutterbuck must settle with me at once.

S. W. TOLIN, Assignee.

Sept. 10th, 1896.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

NEW STOCK! LOW PRICES!
We invite attention to our newly arrived Stock of Fall and Winter Goods
—SUCH AS—
Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps, Jeans, Yarns, Woolens, Etc., at
LOWER PRICES
THAN EVER BEFORE.
Large Line of FRESH GROCERIES always on Hand.
Give us a Call W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,
—DEALERS IN—
PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,
—63 and 65 Pike Street,—
Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.
ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.
CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.
27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.
Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDERTAKER EMBALMER,

—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,
Undertakers AND Embalmers,
OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,
COVINGTON, KY.
CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.
Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL,
WHOLESALE AND
RETAIL GROCER,
GRASS SEED.
Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.
Tom Wilson, Salesman.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.
We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office
And FEED STORE from
708 Madison Avenue
To the Large and more Commodious Quarters
15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.
Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with
GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED
At the Lowest Market Values.
Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,
W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANTS,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.
A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.
UNDERTAKING.
is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. HANKINS.
Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

THE BOTHER.

"Dear, dear! what a bothersome baby:"
The care-wearied mother sighed out,
As she looked at the books and the playthings
That were everywhere scattered about,
At the great dingy spot on the carpet,
Where he'd let grandma's medicine fall,
And the marks that the fat baby fingers
Had left on the windows and wall.

"Such a baby for getting in mischief!
I can't keep him tidy and sweet.
Though I'm busy from daylight to bedtime,
The room never seems to be neat.
I never catch up with my sewing;
I've never a moment to rest;"
And she sighed as she threaded her needle,
With life and its worries oppressed.

A slow, muffled sound on the pavement,
She looks through the mist-clouded pane
And sees, almost under her window,
A hearse going by in the rain.
There's a little white casket inside it,
And then by swift tears it is hid,
As she thinks of the household whose darling
Lies under the small coffin's lid.

She goes to the bed of her baby,
And kneels by the sleeper in tears,
And the prayer that goes up, mute and wordless,
The great loving Father-Heart hears.
No longer the child seems a bother,
As she thinks of the hearse in the rain,
And the mother-arms, aching and empty,
Where the little dead baby has lain.
—Eben E. Rexford, in Good Housekeeping.

HOW OLSON SQUARED IT.

BY DAN QUIN.

"Now I thoroughly saveys," remarked the old cattleman, reflectively, at a crisis in our last conversation when the talk turned on men of small and cowardly measure, "I thoroughly saveys that taste for battle that lurks in the defiles of folks' nature like a wolf in the hills. Which I reckons now that I, myse'f, is one of the peacefullest people who ever belted on a gun; but in my insinets—while I never jestifies or follows his example—I cl'arly apprehends the emotions of a gent who converses with another gent all similar, an' expresses his views of him with his gun, an' immediately precedes a adjournment sine die by skelpin' the opposition. Sech is human nature onrestrained, an' the same, while deplorable, is not surprisin'.

"But this yere Olson I has in my mem'ry don't have no sech manly emotions as goes with a gun play. Which Olson, I takes pleasure in sayin', is a alien an' a rank outsider, an' no more born in this home of freedom than a Mexican. Olson is so cowardly he's even furtive; an' for a low-flung measly play let me tell you what Olson does. It's shorely onery.

"It all arises years ago, back in Tennessee, an' gets its first start out of a hawg which is owned by Olson an' is downed by a gent named Hoskins—Bill Hoskins. It's this way:

"Back in Tennessee, in my dream-wreathed yooth, when anamiles goes projectin' about permiscus, a party has to build his fences 'bull strong, hawg tight, an' hoss high,' or he takes results. Which Hoskins don't make his fences to conform to this yere roole none; leastwise they ain't hawg tight as is shown by one of Olson's hawgs.

"The hawg comes pirootin' about Hoskins' fence, an' he goes through easy; an' the way that invadin' anamile turns Bill's potatoes bottom up don't bother him a bit. He shorely loots Bill's lot; that's whatever.

"But Bill, perceivin' of Olson's hawg layin' waste his crop, reaches down a Hawkins' rifle, 30 to the pound, an' stretches the hawg. Which this is where Bill falls into error. Layin' aside them deficiencies in Bill's fence, it's clear at a glance a hawg can't be held responsible. Hawgs is ignorant and tharfore innocent; an' while hawgs can be what Doc Peets calls a casus belli, they can't be regarded as a foe legitimate.

"Now what Bill oughter done, if he feels like this yere hawg's done put it all over him, is to go an' lay for Olson. Sech action by Bill would have been some excessive, some high, so to speak, but it would have been a line shot. Whereas killin' the hawgs is 'way to one side of the mark, an' under.

"However, as I states, Bill bein' hasty that away, and oncapable of perhaps refined reasonin', downs the pig, an' stands pat on it, waitin' for Olson to fill his hand, if he feels so moved.

"Now, that's where the cowardly nature of this yere Olson begins to shine. He's ugly es a wolf about Bill copperin' his hawg that away, but he don't pack the nerve to go after Bill an' make a round-up of them grievances. An' he ain't allowin' to pass it up none onrevenged neither. Now, here's what Olson does; he 'sassinates Bill's pet raccoon.

"That's right, pard; jest massacre a pore, confidin' raccoon, who don't no more stand in on that hawg killin' of Bill's than me an' you—don't even advise it.

"Now, I allow you saveys all thar is to know about a raccoon. No? Well, a raccoon's like this: In the first place he's plump ingenuous, an' ain't lookin' for no gent to hold out kyards or ring a cold deck on him. That's straight; a raccoon is simple-minded that way; an' his impressive trait is, he's meditative. Besides bein' nacherally thoughtful as to his own affairs, I might say a raccoon is a heap melancholy—he jest sets thar an' absorbs melancholy from merely bein' alive.

"But if a raccoon is melancholy or gets wrapped in thought that away, it's after all his own play. It's to his credit that once when he's tamed he's got a mountainous confidence in men, an' will curl up an' go to sleep where you be an' shet both eyes. He's plumb trustful; an' moreover, no matter how mournful a raccoon feels, or how plumb melancholy he gets, he don't pester you with no yarns.

"I reckon I converses with this yere identical raccoon of Bill's plenty frequent when he feels blue an' again when he's at his galliest, an' he never remarks nothin' to me except p'lite generalities.

"If this Olson had been a dead game party who regards himse'f wronged, he'd searched out a gun, or a knife, or mebby a club, an' pranced over an' rectified Bill a whole lot. But he's too timid and too cowardly, an' afraid of Bill. So to play even he lines out to bushwhack this he'pless, oninstructed raccoon. Olson figgers to take advantage of what's cl'arly a loophole in a raccoon's constitootion.

"Mebbe you never noticed it about a raccoon, but the fact is once he gets interested in a pursoot, he's rigged so he can't quit none ontil the project's a success. Thar's herds an' bands of folks an' anamiles who's fixed sim'lar. They can start, an' they can't let up. Thar's bulldogs; they begins a fight too easy, but the capacity to quit is left out of bulldogs entire. Same about nose paint with gents I knows. They capers up to whisky at the beginnin' like a kitten to warm milk, an' they never do cease no more. An' that's how the kyards falls to raccoons about plenty of things.

"Knowin' these yere defects in raccoons, this Olson plots to take advantage tharof; an' by playin' it low on Bill's raccoon, get even with Bill about that dead hawg. Which Bill wouldn't have took a drove of hawgs, no indeed; not the whole fall round-up of hawgs for all of West Tennessee, an' lose that raccoon.

"It's when Bill's over to Pine Knot layin' in terbacca, an' nose paint, an' cornmeal, an' sech necessaries, when Olson stands in to down Bill's raccoon. He goes injunnin' over to Bill's an' finds the camp all deserted, except the raccoon's thar settin', battin' his eyes mournful an' lonesome on the doorstep. This Olson sets down by the door an' fondles the raccoon, an' strokes his coat, an' lets the raccoon search his pockets with his black hands until he gets that friendly an' confident about Olson he'd told him anything. It's then this yere miscreant, Olson, springs his game.

"He's got a couple of crawfish which he's fresh caught at the Branch. Now, raccoons regards crawfish as onusual good eatin'. For myse'f, I can't say I deems none high of crawfish as viands, but of course raccoons is different; an' the way they looks at it crawfish is pie.

"This Olson brings out his two crawfish, an' fetchin' a jar of water from the sping he drops in a crawfish an' incites an' aggravates Zekiel—that's the name of Bill's raccoon —to feel in an' get him a whole lot.

"Zekiel ain't shy on the play. He knows crawfish like a gambler does an ace; so turnin' his eyes up to the sky, like a raccoon does when wrapped in pleasant anticipation that away, he plunges in his paw an' gets it.

"Of course once Zekiel acquires him the pore crawfish don't last as long as a drink of whisky. When Zekiel has him plumb devoured he turns his eyes on Olson, sort o' thankful, an' 'waits developments.

"Olson puts in the second crawfish, an' Zekiel takes him into camp same as the other. It's now that Olson onfurls his plot on Zekiel.

"Olson drops a dozen buckshot into the jar of water. Nacherally, Zekiel, who's got his mind all framed up touchin' crawfish, goes after the buckshot with his fore foot.

"But it's different with buckshot: Zekiel can't pick 'em up. He tries an' tries with his honest simple face turned up to heaven, but he can't make it. All Zekiel can do is feel 'em with his foot, an' roll 'em about on the bottom of the jar.

"Now, as I remarks prior, when a raccoon gets embarked that away, he can't let up. He ain't arranged so he can quit. Olson, who's plumb aware tharof, no sooner gets Zekiel started on them buckshot than knowin' that nature can be relied on to play her hand out sa'nters off to his wickeyup, leavin' Zekiel to his fate. Bill won't be home till Monday, an' Olson knows that before then, onless Zekiel is interrupted, he'll be even for that hawg Bill drops. As Olson comes to a place in the trail where he's goin' to lose sight of Bill's camp he turns an' looks back. The picture is all his revenge can ask. Thar sets Zekiel on the doorstep, with his happy countenance turned up to the dome above, with his right paw elbow deep in the jar, still rollin' an' feelin' them buckshot around, an' allowin he's due to ketch a crawfish every moment.

"Well, it works out exactly as the wretched Olson figgers. The sun goes down, an' the Sunday sun comes up an' sets agin, an' still pore Zekiel is planted by the jar, with his hopeful eyes on high, still feelin' of them buckshot. He can't quit no more'n if he was loser in a poker game, Zekiel can't.

"When Bill rides up to his door about second drink time Monday afternoon, Olson is shortly even on that hawg. Thar lays Zekiel too dead to skin. He's jest set thar with them buckshot an' felt himse'f to death."—Chicago Tribune.

Not a Rag.

The prominent citizen was rather proud of his standing in the community.

"And, do you know," he said, "when I first came to this town I had hardly a rag to my back?"

The man who was not so prominent shrugged his shoulders.

"When I first came to this town," he said, "I actually didn't have a rag to my back."

"You're joking," said the prominent citizen.

"Not at all," replied the citizen who was not so prominent, seriously. "I was born here."—Chicago Post.

The Start.

First Burglar—What led you to the profesh?

Second Burglar—Tryin' ter get pennies outter me toy bank w'en I wuz er kid.—Washington Times.

—A miscreant was originally a person who differed in religious belief from yourself. The name was first applied to the Saracens.

HOW M'KINLEY GAINED.

Evidences of Some Secret Work by Mr. Hanna.

A thorough canvass of the vote of the late election would be useful not only in Iowa, but in several other states. The silver committees could very well afford to make an exact census of some of those precincts in which an abnormal vote has been polled, because it appears that more votes have been counted than there are male persons of voting age. Let us consider some of the figures and see what they tell:

The latest returns from Iowa give McKinley 289,578 and Bryan 223,266, with about 5,000 votes for Palmer and 2,500 for the prohibition candidate. The total is about 520,000.

In 1892 the vote of Iowa was: Cleveland, 196,367; Harrison, 219,795; Weaver, 20,595, and prohibitionist, 6,402. The total vote was 443,159. In 1888 the vote was: Cleveland, 179,887; Harrison, 211,598; prohibition, 3,550; union labor, 9,105. The total vote was 404,130. In 1895 the vote for governor was: Democrat, 149,433; republican, 208,689; populist, 32,118; prohibitionist, 11,052. Total, 401,292. Mr. Bryan this year polled nearly 27,000 votes more than Mr. Cleveland did in 1892 and nearly 44,000 votes more than Cleveland did in 1888. He polled more votes than any republican candidate for the presidency ever polled before this year. Yet 70,000 heretofore unknown republicans came out of the brush and cast their votes for Mr. McKinley. The total vote shows an increase of 77,000 over 1892.

The best figures obtainable about Illinois for this year give Bryan 459,760; McKinley, 603,817; Palmer, 3,802, and about 3,000 for the two prohibition candidates. The total is about 1,070,000. In 1892 the vote for president was: Cleveland, 426,281; Harrison, 399,288; Weaver, 22,207; prohibition, 25,870. The total was 873,646. In 1888 the vote for president was: Cleveland, 348,278; Harrison, 370,473; prohibition, 21,695; union labor, 7,090; united labor, 140. The total was 747,686. In the republican landslide of 1894 the vote for state treasurer was: Democrat, 322,459; republican, 445,886; prohibition, 19,475; populist, 59,793. The vote for the republican candidate in 1894 was the largest ever given to a candidate of any party in Illinois until this year, and Mr. Bryan polled nearly 14,000 more votes than were given to that candidate. Mr. Bryan polled 33,500 more votes than Mr. Cleveland carried the state with in 1892, when Cleveland had a plurality of 27,000 over Harrison, but again that mysterious vote comes out of the brush for Mr. McKinley and gives him nearly 160,000 votes more than ever before were polled for any candidate.

In Oregon the vote was: Bryan, 46,533; McKinley, 48,679; Palmer, 833; prohibition, 817. In 1892 it was: Cleveland, 14,243; Harrison, 35,002; Weaver, 26,965; prohibition, 2,281. The democrats and populists were fused on one elector that year and he was elected. This year Mr. Bryan polled over 5,000 more votes than were ever before polled for the candidate of any party, yet the McKinley vote makes a tremendous leap, being nearly 40 per cent. greater than the vote cast for Harrison in 1892.

The complete unofficial figures for Indiana this year give McKinley 323,919; Bryan, 303,854; Palmer, 3,579; Levering, 3,658; Bentley, 4,389; socialist labor, 145. Total, 639,544.

In 1892 Cleveland carried Indiana by 7,125, the vote being: Cleveland, 262,740; Harrison, 255,615; Weaver, 22,208; prohibition, 13,050. Total vote was 554,013. In 1888 the vote was: Cleveland, 261,013; Harrison, 263,361; prohibition, 9,881; union labor, 2,694. Total vote, 536,949. In 1894 the highest vote until this year that was ever given to any candidate was given to the republican candidate for secretary of state. It was 283,405. His democratic opponent polled only 238,732 votes, the prohibitionists, 11,157, and the populist, 29,388. The total vote was 562,682. This year of grace, 1896, Mr. Bryan received 20,400 more votes than were ever before given to any candidate. He polled 41,000 votes more than Mr. Cleveland received in 1892, which would be accounted for by the addition of the populist vote and a reasonable gain. But behold, the McKinley vote leaped forward 70,000 through the appearance of an army that never before cast a ballot, and that disappeared immediately and has not since been seen.

The vote in Ohio was approximately 475,000 for Mr. Bryan and 525,000 for McKinley. Mr. Bryan polled 47,000 votes more than were ever given to any republican candidate in Ohio before this year, the vote for Bushnell for governor in 1895 being 427,141. Mr. Bryan had 70,000 votes more than Mr. Harrison received when he carried the state in 1892. The vote that year was Harrison, 405,187; Cleveland, 404,115; Weaver, 14,850; prohibition, 26,012. We may be sure that Mr. Bryan did not have any votes counted for him that he didn't get. Yet in spite of his gains there were 120,000 individuals who never voted before, yet came out of the woods long enough to vote the republican ticket and defeat him by 50,000.

The Kentucky vote is as follows: McKinley, 218,055; Bryan, 217,797; Palmer, 5,018; Levering, 3,374. Mr. Bryan received over 42,000 votes more than Mr. Cleveland received in 1892 when Mr. Cleveland had over 40,000 plurality over Mr. Harrison. Mr. Bryan received 34,000 votes more than were ever before given to any candidate. Yet there were votes enough for McKinley somewhere to overtop Bryan.

In a recent interview Mr. Hanna said he knew during the campaign there were times when "the best and bravest" of those outside of headquarters despaired of the result, but that was because they did not know the secrets of the work being done in the doubtful states. The figures quoted above, and others which might be quoted concerning other states, suggest that an explanation of the "secret work" would be most interesting.—Rocky Mountain (Denver) News.

PHILOSOPHY OF DEMOCRACY.

Opposition to the Building Up of the Moneyed Class.

Democracy, that is to say, a form of government in which sovereignty and supreme power is held by the people—the first in their individual capacity and the second collectively—has to do with ethics as well as economics. A sound basis is as essential for progressive social life as it is for building up and extending commercial and industrial enterprises. Therefore the consistent democrat is not only deeply interested in the growth of national wealth—of the people as a whole—but he is equally concerned in how it is distributed. A consistent democrat could not with satisfaction witness trade expansion and industrial growth unless the distribution of the profits accruing was somewhat in ratio to the worth of the several productive forces which participated in the operation and movement as capital, skill and labor. True democracy teaches that while the aim of the people collectively should be the promotion of the nation's welfare, the desired end is reached only through individual prosperity, and that it is the aggregate prosperity of the people which gives the nation strength and character.

It is clearly democratic to oppose the employment of any agency that is calculated to build up separate and favored classes. That is to say, it is not democratic to permit the building up of or the maintenance of a social or a commercial status with a plutocracy at the top and a proletariat at the bottom. Indeed, democracy would look upon such conditions of existence for the people as the most objectionable of all forms of aristocracy, for those at the top would be there because of their greed and avarice, and not at all because of moral or intellectual excellence or patriotic attachment to the institutions of the country, while those below might represent in themselves all the elements of true manhood—so much so, indeed, that their high sense of individual right conduct forbade them entering a struggle for property-holding supremacy which could be made to end in victory only by sacrificing the rights and appropriating the opportunities of others.

The central principle of democracy, and around which all others cluster, is that in ratio to the good reasons which producers of merchantable commodities—labor—have to be contented is the stability of the government and the liberties of the people assured. In other words, if any of the increase in national wealth is arbitrarily made to drift into the hands of a few, there is oppression in the administration of the public affairs of the people, and what should be a national blessing is a national curse.

That is an ideal or democratic system of wealth growth which broadens and elevates the manhood of each and every one who participates in the work. It is democratic principles practically applied when each producer or wage-earner receives of the profits accruing from his production the utmost of his deserving. Democracy repudiates the economic theory that there can be permanancy in a nation which permits one class of its people to accumulate wealth while another class sinks in want and misery. Democracy teaches that when a system of legislation is fastened upon the skill, the brain and the brawn of a country which is productive of such results, the time has come for the people to rise in their might and overthrow and overturn and rebuild, but upon lines of peace and good will.—Los Angeles Herald.

The Tariff Outlook.

There is observable among the republican leaders a chastened disposition to let sleeping tariff dogs lie. The country is being given assurances that only such changes will be made as are necessary to produce revenue sufficient for the government's needs. In the far west, where the tariff issue was worked by silver republicans to get votes against silver, this retreat of the McKinleyites from McKinleyism will cause disappointment, but the people as a whole would like to believe that business is to be given a rest from tariff uncertainties. However, though it is manifestly the wish of the president-elect and his advisers to avoid radical action, the trusts that want more protection for the increase of their power and profits will have to be reckoned with. The patriotic gentlemen who compose these thieving confederacies will demand all the fruit that can be gathered from the victory which they disinterestedly fought to win for the national honor. The instant the work of making changes in the tariff is begun their agents will be in Washington insisting upon "recognition." The hope of the nation is that election to the presidency may have bred a new sense of responsibility and of justice in the mind of Maj. McKinley.—N. Y. Journal.

Future of the Democracy.

A heated and in many respects bitter campaign, conducted largely on new lines, has closed with the election of McKinley by a large majority in both the electoral college and the popular vote. Under the administration of Mr. McKinley we may look for an era of trusts and high protection. His name is identified with an excessive tariff, and there is nothing in his history to show that he is unfriendly to oppressive corporations and aggregations of capital. Many of the grievances of which the people have complained, and complained justly, are likely to be increased before 1900. It therefore becomes the democrats to quit chasing rainbows and get together. The democratic party has sustained a severe defeat, but it has sustained severe defeats before and risen triumphant from its fall. It can do it again. It is now, as it has always been, the party of the people, of popular rights, and though it may wander from the path and be beaten at times, destiny and the course of civilization are with it.—N. Y. World.

——The men who said before election that Mark Hanna would not control McKinley know which one to ask for pap.—Buffalo Times.

OUR SUBLIMINAL SELVES.

How a Boy May Be Cured of the Cigarette Habit.

When a somnambulist is put into the hypnotic condition and then talks it is found that the speaker is that same personality which spoke and acted during the time of ordinary somnambulism, showing that the personality which acts during ordinary somnambulism and the personality brought into action by hypnotism are the same. This new personality has of late become a subject of great interest and persistent study. Not only does it come into activity in ordinary somnambulism and in the hypnotic condition, but also in dreams, in reverie, in abstraction and sometimes, apparently, in a normal passive condition. This second personality has been named the subconscious or subliminal self, and it possesses many curious faculties which we have not time to consider here, but whatever this subliminal self may be we have in hypnotism the means of experimentally reaching and influencing it, and this is where the great power of suggestion appears and is utilized.

Suppose, then, a physician had a patient in the deep hypnotic sleep; the patient hears nothing, perhaps feels nothing. The physician then says to him: "When you awake you will take the book which lies on the table, open it at the forty-third page and read four lines at the top of the page." He is then awakened. He had heard nothing but his subliminal self, which has been made accessible by hypnotism, has heard and influences him to carry out the suggestion. He goes to the table and takes up the book, finds the forty-third page and he reads the four lines at the top of the page; he has no thought but that he is doing it all of his own accord, and so he is—he is obeying the impulses of his own subliminal self.

Suppose the patient to be a boy with the cigarette habit, and the physician had suggested as follows: "When you awake you will no longer desire to smoke. On the contrary, the very thought of it will be disagreeable to you, and you will avoid it altogether." He awakes, he knows nothing of what has transpired, but he finds he has no longer the desire to smoke, and consequently he ceases the practice.—North American Review.

A BIG MOVING JOB.

A Freight Depot Filled with Crockery Shifted Many Feet.

The largest building ever moved in this country was a freight warehouse of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in Baltimore, which was moved September 8 to 12. The building is 440 feet long 120 feet wide and 60 feet high. It is a wood and iron structure and was moved to make room for a new dock. The work consumed five and one-half days. The building contained a great quantity of freight, among which was 3,000 cases of china and crockery, but not a dish was cracked in the moving. The men were engaged five weeks making preparations for the move. On top of the old and new foundations were placed the sills and tracks upon which the building was to run. These tracks numbered 40, each consisting of two 6x12-inch timbers. On top of these were placed the 1,000 rollers, each a piece of 5-inch pine 3 feet in length. There were 25 rollers to each of the 40 tracks. Between the top of the rollers and the floor beams of the building were arranged more of the 6x12-inch timbers. In all, 6,000 of the 6x12-inch timbers were used, each about 30 feet long. The 225 wooden pillars which supported the warehouse were then sawed away and the structure rested upon the rollers. Along one side of the building were placed 40 five-ton screw jacks. They were braced against a railroad track, an adjoining warehouse and the tracks upon which the rollers ran. Two men stood at each jack. At a given signal the men responded with military precision, and each jack was given a quarter of a turn, moving the great building a fraction of an inch. Afterward the progress averaged two feet an hour for five and one-half days. The structure arrived at its new foundation without a strained timber or a bolt. The jacks were again used in raising the warehouse enough to allow the removal of the jacks, after which it was lowered to the new foundation. The structure cost $35,000 ten years ago, and it cost $15,000 to make the removal.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How Serpents Sleep.

One of the most curious facts with regard to snakes is that their eyes are never closed. Sleeping or waking, alive or dead, they are always wide-eyed. If we take a dead snake and examine it closely we shall soon find the reason—there are no eyelids. The eye is protected only by a strong scale, which forms a part of the epidermal envelope, and is cast off in a piece with that every time the reptile molts. The eye-plate is as clear and transparent as glass, and allows the most perfect vision, while at the same time (as any close observer of the habits of the snake can easily discover) it is so hard and tough as perfectly to protect the delicate organ within from the thorns and twigs among which, in flight from enemies or in pursuit of prey, the reptile so often hurriedly glides.—Nature.

What He Needed.

"Well, my son," said the freshman's father, "I am very glad you have gone on your class football team. Have you got everything you need?"

"Everything, father, except a new set of teeth, and I may be able to get through the year without losing those that I have," replied the freshman.—Harper's Round Table.

His Library.

"Her father is not what you would call a well-read man," said one foreign gentleman to another.

"No. His library consists of only two books. But they suffice."

"What are they?"

"Bank book and check book."—Tit-Bits.

HUMOROUS.

—Editor (to comic paragraphist)—"Your jokes lack originality." Comic Paragraphist (irritably)—"So does your criticism."—Tit-Bits.

—The young man who is anxious to lay the world at the feet of the girl he adores, three months after he marries her isn't willing even to lay the carpet.—Yonkers Statesman.

—He—"So you see, Miss Faith, none of the old religions suit me. After examining them all, I am driven to agnosticism." She—"I see. You choose agnosticism simply because you don't know any better."—Harlem Life.

—Views of an Expert.—His Wife—"Johnny's teacher sends word that he is very slow in arithmetic." The Iceman—"Oh, you can't learn much arithmetic from books, anyhow! Wait till Johnny is old enough to go into business with me."—Puck.

—Father—"Wait a year, my son, and you may feel very different." Son (confidently)—"I've tested my love for Miss Higgins thoroughly, and I know it cannot change. I've played golf with her, and I still want her for my wife."—Household Words.

—Minnie—"When that odious masher tried to smile at me I just looked daggers at him." Mamie—"Was it a success?" Minnie—"I think so. I heard him whisper to the other odious wretch who was with him that he was 'stuck on that girl's looks.'"—Indianapolis Journal.

—Clara—"I wonder how Edith came to marry that horrid Mr. Kreesus, after having been waited upon by that charming Charley Dudekins. Charley was so fond of music, and Kreesus doesn't know enough about it to turn over the leaves of music for one." Aunt Susan—"Perhaps not; but Mr. Kreesus can turn over the leaves of his check book beautifully."—Boston Transcript.

WOODCOCK'S WHISTLE.

That Musical Sound Is Made by the Bird's Wings.

At various times during the past few years I have read with much interest discussions in Forest and Stream as to how the woodcock makes his whistle, that delicious ripple of melody so fascinating to the ear of the sportsman who hunts the shy and handsome game bird.

While shooting woodcock recently in company with a friend this question was discussed, my friend at once asseverating that the whistle was made by the bird's wings and not through the bill by the aid of the throat, at the same time saying to me: "When next you shoot a woodcock without injuring its wings, and without killing it, simply making a body shot sufficiently hard to bring the bird to the ground, call your dog to heel, retrieve the bird yourself, hold him by the bill suspended in the air at arm's length, and in fluttering to escape from your hand the whistle will be made by the bird's wings."

While shooting a few days later with another friend I was fortunate enough to make a body shot on a woodcock, which came to the ground with the wings unbroken. The dog caught the bird, which had attempted to fly after it struck the ground. I took it from the dog's mouth, and, seeing its wings were unbroken, I determined to make the test then and there.

After telling my friend what I was about to do I held the bird by its bill at arm's length, and the result was that it made the whistle three times, each time by executing a rotary movement of the wings and body while fluttering.

If any sportsman doubts this statement I wish he would do as I have done and all doubt will be dispelled from his mind as to how this enchanting whistle is produced.—Forest and Stream.

Finished with Him.

A young gentleman who lately left his father's house, having exhausted his credit, telegraphed the other day to his parents:

"Your son Walter was killed this morning by a falling chimney. What shall we do with the remains?"

In reply a check was sent for £20, with the request: "Bury them."

The young gentleman pocketed the money and had an elaborate spree. When in condition for writing he sent his father the following note:

"I have just learned that an infamous scoundrel named Barker sent you a fictitious account of my death and swindled you out of £20. He also borrowed £10 from me and left the country. I write to inform you that I am still alive, and long to see the parental roof again. I am in somewhat reduced circumstances, the accumulations of the last five years having been lost—a disastrous stock speculation—and if you would only spare me £20 I would be ever thankful for your favor. Give my love to all."

A few days later the cunning youth received the following dignified letter from his outraged parent:

"My Dear Son: I have buried you once, and that is the end of it. I decline to have any transactions with a ghost. Yours in the flesh, Father."—Scraps.

A Slight Mistake.

While on a visit to Glasgow recently I was witness to rather an amusing incident at Elington street station. The mother of a family had just shown the ticket collector a couple of half-fare tickets for her two children. The ticket collector, after looking at her doubtfully, said: "Hoo auld are they?"

"Just six, an' they're twins."

"Ay! an' whaur were they born?"

"This ane was born in the Gallygate (Gallowgate) an' the ither in Edinburgh," replied the mother, unthinkingly.—Scottish Nights.

Would Stay on the Safe Side.

Young Wife—I always thought you the bravest man in the world while we were courting. You wouldn't go to Canada in case of another war, would you, dear?

"Not if the war was with Canada."—Detroit Free Press.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

ROAD LEGISLATION.

Illinois Politicians Will Have to Make Good Their Promises.

The state platforms of each of the great parties of Illinois gave pledges for legislation in favor of good roads. Now that the election is over, the people will insist upon the fulfillment of the promises made to them. Inasmuch as both parties are pledged, there can be no plausible pretext for regarding the issue as partisan. It is quite probable that many bills will be presented, and herein danger may lie. Perhaps it may be well if a joint committee on roads be appointed by the house and senate, care being taken that its members represent fairly the rural and urban interests, and that one or two men experienced in road building be upon it. The committee should be as non-partisan as possible, and to it all road bills presented by individual members might be referred, the committee itself being charged with the task of preparing a bill that shall preserve the best suggestions contained in the private bills.

AN ILLINOIS ROAD OF TO-DAY.

Illinois is poorer by millions yearly because of its bad roads. In large sections of the state hauling is impracticable during at least 60 days of each year, and during 90 more much less than full loads can be hauled. The loss falls mainly on the farmers, but the townsmen participate in it.

Legislators will do well to remember that a new and remarkably well organized force has come into the political field, and that it is a force resolute for good roads. We refer, of course, to the wheelmen. There are districts in which the cycling clubs hold a balance of power, and they will be apt to make it felt against those who are not active in favor of road improvement. Less in number than the wheelmen, but nevertheless a strong and continually increasing force, are the clubs and associations of equestrians and drivers that are numerous in Chicago, and that are becoming numerous in all the cities. These demand road improvement as vehemently as the cyclers, and they, unlike the cyclers, are direct contributors to the prosperity of the farmers, for they are purchasers of horse flesh, and are ready to pay good prices for good mounts or for good drivers.

We are aware that there are a few rural districts in which the importance of the road question is underestimated; debate will enlighten the representatives of these communities. The person most and first benefited by good roads is the farmer. Indiana and Ohio now have good road laws by which paved and macadamized roads are constructed by the sale of bonds that are liens upon the lands abutting upon or neighboring to the improved roads. The consequence is that lands that sold with difficulty at $25 or $50 per acre when bounded by the old dirt roads, sell easily at $50 to $60 now that they are fronted by gravel or macadamized highways.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

Citizens of Lowell, Mass., Recognize the Value of Good Roads.

At a meeting of wheelmen and other citizens of Lowell, Mass., held for the purpose of devising plans for bettering streets and highways, the following "plank" was adopted:

"In the highways of a country, one can read the character of the people who dwell therein. In the streets of a city, one can read history. Our streets and highways tell tales to every stranger that visits us for good or evil. As citizens, we have an active interest in the welfare and prosperity of our city and state, in the honesty and integrity of our officials, in the wise and economic expenditures of our money.

"Of the internal working and management of the municipal machinery we may know nothing; but of its outward appearance, we may know everything. 'By their works ye shall know them.' We believe that the most practical, economic and beneficial method to build up a successful and prosperous city is in the practical and economic construction of good roads and streets. We believe in a road commission of trained and experienced men independent of the dictates and authority of petty politicians. We believe that good roads should be first built under the supervision and direction of this commission in the best and most thorough manner and kept in that condition; that the unlicensed and unlimited disturbance of our streets and ways should be prohibited."

This is the spirit that should prompt the people of every city and community to unite their forces and carry to a happy finish their purpose to enjoy good streets and highways. Improper roads cost too much for any community to retain. Good roads are cheapest.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

A Mistake Made by Many.

Because the whole surface of a highway has been pulverized into dust is no reason why we should call it a fine road.

There is much in the breed, much in the feed, but still more in the feeder.

TIME TO MAKE CUTTINGS.

Good Way of Increasing Small Fruits of Every Description.

During the winter months is the time to make cuttings of such trees and shrubs as it is desirable to increase. Quinces, currants, gooseberries and grapes are readily increased by cuttings. In the case of shade trees willows and poplars are easily grown from cuttings, but the great majority of trees need to be raised from seeds, layers, or by budding or grafting. But when it comes to the flowering shrubs which adorn our lawns, cuttings are the chief reliance of propagators. The time to make them is while vegetation is dormant, and it is better done at least a month or more before spring comes. The beautiful Golden Bell, Weigla, Mock Orange, Spirea, Duetzia and Athaea among many others are easily raised in this way.

The best shoots for the purpose are those of last year's growth. The exact length is not particular, so that two or three joints are included in each one. About nine inches is a good length for most sorts, though grapes having the joints far apart may be a foot in length. It is believed that when the lower part is cut just below an eye, that rooting is easily accomplished, so cuttings are usually made in that way. It is not so essential at the upper end where the cut is made, but as the buds push from the joints all wood above the highest one is useless. After the cuttings are made place them in a cellar, buried up in sand or earth, with but the tops projecting, these to remain until the time arrives for setting them out in the spring. When the work is done about February, it will be found that the cuttings are nicely healed over by the time spring comes, which is in favor of the success of the operation.

When the winter is over and the soil is in good condition for working the planting may be done, setting them so that two-thirds of their length are in the ground and one-third out. In ordinary season the most of them will be well rooted by fall. — Practical Farmer.

PROTECTION IN WINTER.

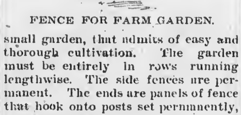
How to Care Effectively for Young Trees and Tender Shrubs.

The aim in giving any kind of winter protection is merely to preserve the gains made in root or top growth during the preceding season. At a in the illustration is shown a young tree well protected both by stake and mound. A few stones piled around the stem, as shown at b, will often do very well, at least are much better than no protection at all, but will not prevent injury from rabbits and mice, as the mound is quite liable to do. Young trees with little root, when left exposed to the sweeping winds without support, usually are swayed back and forth until a funnel-shaped cavity is formed around the base, as may be seen at c, endangering the life of the tree from the drying out of the already scant root supply, or perhaps by being entirely blown over, as seen at d. Young evergreens, with their comparatively heavy tops, are particularly subject to displacement or partial uprooting by the winter's winds, and may be held in position by stout strings fastened to the stem and to small stakes driven into the ground a few feet from the base of the tree, as shown at e. Small compact evergreens are liable to be broken down by a heavy snowfall, and the most natural protection perhaps is the one suggested at f, consisting of a sort of roof made of two pieces of board. Tender shrubs may be treated in a variety of ways. At g we have a shrub protected by an inverted barrel. To make a sure thing still surer, the other head might be taken out also, the barrel filled with dry leaves and again covered. At h we see the shrub wrapped in canvas or muslin; at i protected by straw or straw matting. A simple way of covering small, tender shrubbery is by means of sods, as illustrated at j; but ordinary soil, as at A, will do about as well.—Farm and Home.

THE FARM GARDEN.

How to Avoid Destruction and Loss from Straying Cattle.

Some kitchen gardens must be fenced, or destruction from straying cattle will follow. It is a misfortune, however, to have a garden so fenced that cultivation cannot take place. The accompanying sketch shows a way to fence a small garden, that admits of easy and thorough cultivation. The garden must be entirely in rows running lengthwise. The side fences are permanent. The ends are panels of fence that hook onto posts set permanently, each post being in line with a plant row in the garden, so that they will not be in the way of the horse and the cultivator. It is but a moment's work to take down or put up these end panels, as they can be made of light strips.—Orange Judd Farmer.



FENCE FOR FARM GARDEN.

DAIRY SUGGESTIONS.

Never touch butter with the hands.

When milking, make a business of it.

Milk the cows clean, if you would milk them long.

Good milk, that will make good butter, will make good cheese.

Raise your cows. They will cost less, quality considered, than those you buy.

To get the best prices for butter make a quantity that the best consumers want, and then manage to get your product into their hands without the intervention of too many middlemen.—Rural World.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE PENCIL.

Efforts of the Last Fifty Years to Improve This Ever Necessary Article.

There is evidently something wrong with the common lead pencil, or else inventors imagine that there is, for a great variety of new designs for making an ever-pointed pencil have been developed and put on the market within a short time.

For many years a lead pencil meant one of two things, either a stick of baked black lead and clay inclosed in a cover of wood, or a little cylinder of similar substance inserted in a handle which had a screw arrangement back of the lead to work the lead forward as it was used up. Of the wood-covered pencils there were a few grades for ordinary house and office use, artists' pencils, and big-leaded flat pencils for carpenters. All of these were made in the same general way by laying a strip of lead in a groove in one side of a piece of wood, preferably cedar, gluing another piece of wood over it, and then finishing the outside in an octagonal or oval form.

Everybody was supposed to carry a pocketknife, and a knife was needed every time a pencil had to have a new point. Women and others who did not like to soil their fingers by sharpening pencils carried the ever-pointed mechanical pencils, and for half a century or more no jeweler's stock was regarded as complete unless it had an assortment of these pencils in gold, pearl and many other precious and beautiful materials. Staff officers in the English and European armies wear such pencils to receipt orders; women use them in the ballroom, boudoir and drawing-room, and many a gentleman of the old school has his pencil always dangling on his watch chain, ready for use. For occasional use they are well enough, and probably will always hold a place.

The effort to make the use of the ordinary pencil easier began a generation ago, and one of the first inventions for that purpose was of the well-remembered cone-shaped pencil sharpener, holding a steel blade at one side, where a hole at one side to let out the shavings had been cut. While the blades were sharp they worked well enough, but this sharpness seldom lasted much beyond the time when the vender showed how nicely the sharpener worked. After that the sharpener would wring off the end of the lead every time just as the pencil seemed ready for use. Some years ago a noteworthy advance was made in mechanical pencils and the new pencil came into very general use. This was a pencil case not materially different in size from the wooden pencil, only not so long, which received a round lead about four inches long and as big as the lead in the wooden pencils. The lead was held by a split tube, which was closed by being drawn into an inclined casing by a spring. The fault with this is that the lead is apt to be forced back if one presses hard upon it in writing, and again that if the tube be opened carelessly the lead falls out and is lost. A very ingenious improvement was made upon this, in which the lead was fed forward about one-fourth of an inch each time the spring was pressed and held from falling out at all times. This still had the fault that the lead would press back. Then another case was invented in which the lead is held from pressing back, but the feeding forward is not certain. Another pencil made to compete with the wooden ones in price carries a long movable lead, which is carried forward by a holder operated by a coarse screw thread cut in the outside of the wooden casing. These pencils have been selling on the street recently for three cents each.

While the pencil case makers were busy the pencil makers were scheming also, and the result was that a little while ago one maker got out a pencil inclosed in paper. The paper is wound on in a spiral, and all that is needed to sharpen the pencil is to loosen the end of the paper and unroll a spiral or two of it disclosing the lead. The wooden pencil makers were beaten for a time, but now one of them has gone the paper pencil makers one better; he makes his casing of wood, cut into a spiral like the paper one. The wood can be torn off with the fingers. On the other end of the pencil from the point is a metal ferule in which a rubber is set. You take this ferule off when you have exposed a new bit of lead, and inside you find a spiral sharpener to bring the lead to a point.—N. Y. Sun.

Sewers of Ancient Catacombs

Of all the romance nations perhaps the Italians treat their historic monuments with the greatest degree of familiarity; a familiarity that, archaeologists sometimes complain, borders upon sacrilege. However, they never destroy what is truly beautiful, although they may sacrifice the simply antique to enhance modern utility. The latest journals from Rome tell us that the historic catacombs of that city are soon to be utilized as sewers. Not for years, if ever, have the hygienic qualities of the eternal city been what they should be, and the deadly fumes that arise from the Tiber at the close of a hot July day have sent many American tourists to their last abode in the small but famous Protestant burial ground. The Tribuna shows how easily the scanty sewers of the Porta Pia can be turned into the catacombs of that quarter, which communicate directly with those of Sainte Agnes and Santa Priscilla. And thus do the ancient chapels of the early Christians become the receptacles for the offal of the modern city of the Philistines.—N. Y. Tribune.

Depth of the Lake.

An old sailor was rowing two young ladies on a lake about the depth of which there had been many and various disputes.

Young Lady—Captain, how deep is this lake? Some say 85 feet, and others 90 feet, while others claim there is no bottom.

Captain—Wa-al, I don't jest know, but I calkerlate if this 'ere lake hadn't no bottom the water would all have run out.—Nuggets.

SHE MADE HIM HEAR.

Had Some Feelings, if the Trunk Hadn't.

He was a sharp-looking little man who was handling the baggage, and it was a rosy-cheeked little woman who was watching him handling her old trunk with ungentle haste, says the Detroit Free Press. It was not that she cared so much for the trunk, but she had come from the same part of the country and knew the baggageman's wife before he did, and here he had quite forgotten her. She did not know, either, that the roar of the city and the crash of breaking trunks had made him deaf.

Just as the lid of her trunk came asunder from the body she asked, timidly:

"How is your wife, Mr. Peters?"

"I can't help it; you ought to have a stronger trunk," answered the baggageman, instantly on the warpath.

"Oh, no matter about the trunk. How are Mary and the children?"

"Tied up with a piece of rope, ma'am, it will look as well as it ever did."

"Mary and the children," shrieked the little woman.

"It's nothing of the kind. Report me all you want to. That old trunk isn't fit for the ark," and he gave it a savage kick.

"I don't care a copper about that old trunk," screamed the now angry woman, "but if you kick it again I'll have you arrested and fined and sent to jail. I've got some feeling if that trunk hasn't, Bill Peters!"

And that time the baggageman heard.

A SCHOOL-MASTER'S TESTIMONY.

From the American, Newark, Ohio.

Mr. Fred. M. Wimple, a well-known school-teacher, of Perry, Mich., told a reporter of the Daily American of the wonderful cure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had effected in his case. Mr. Wimple has lived near Perry all his life and is highly respected. The following is his story:

"For the last twelve years I have followed the profession of school-teacher, and taught in and about Perry until 1892, when suffering from catarrh I had to resign and go south. I went to Amite City, La., where I caught jaundice, but the catarrh disappeared. On top of the jaundice came chronic diarrhœa, and a peculiar disorder of the blood. Of course I had to give up my school and every thing else. My mouth broke out into large sores, and one of the strangest things was that if I cut myself hardly any blood would flow. I was in Louisiana about one year, and then on the advice of one of the four doctors who had been attending me, on May 2, 1895, returned to my home in Perry.

"Until August, 1895, I had one physician in Owosso and one in Perry, who declared they could do nothing for me, as my case was beyond their skill.

"While in Louisiana I was recommended by a lady to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I did take two boxes, when it was discovered by the physicians and they would not let me take any more, though they certainly benefited me.

"Now that the Michigan doctors declared they could not help me, I naturally turned back to Pink Pills. At this time I weighed 1[illegible]0 pounds, was pale and emaciated, with chronic diarrhœa, blood disorder and incipient paralysis of the arms. Before I had taken two boxes the numbness in my arms was gone, and I began once more to enjoy refreshing sleep. Then the diarrhœa stopped, I began to look placid and healthy and by the time I had taken twelve boxes I was a healthy man, weighing 184 pounds. I taught my school all last winter and this spring, and now this August, 1896, I have done more work on the farm than I have done in years.

"These pills can be purchased where I obtained them at Mr. L. M. Marshall's, the Perry druggist, who is also a practising physician. If any one has doubts about this case, let him write to Dr. L. M. Marshall, Perry, Michigan.

STATE OF MICHIGAN,
COUNTY OF SHIAWSSEE, } ss.

On this 12th day of August, A. D., 1896, before me, Newton Baldwin, a Justice of the Peace, in and for the City of Owosso, in said county, personally appeared Fred M. Wimple, and who being duly sworn deposes and says that the above statements are correct to the best of his knowledge and belief.

FRED M. WIMPLE.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 12th day of August, A. D., 1896.

NEWTON BALDWIN,
Justice of the Peace.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

"THE older a man gets," said the corn-fed philosopher, "the harder he finds it to feel sorry for a woman whose pug dog has died."—Indianapolis Journal.

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI	Nov 28
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	2 25	@ 3 25
Select butchers	3 75	@ 4 10
CALVES—Fair to good light	5 25	@ 6 00
HOGS—Common	2 60	@ 3 15
Mixed packers	3 20	@ 3 30
Light shippers	3 35	@ 3 50
SHEEP—Choice	2 75	@ 3 10
LAMBS—Good to choice	3 75	@ 4 15
FLOUR—Winter family	3 35	@ 3 65
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 93
No. 3 red		@ 87
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 22¾
Oats—No. 2		@ 20
Rye—No. 2		@ 37
HAY—Prime to choice	11 00	@ 11 50
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@ 8 62½
Lard—Prime steam		@ 3 81
BUTTER—Choice dairy	16	@ 20
Prime to choice creamery		@ 24
APPLES—Per bbl	1 50	@ 1 75
POTATOES—New, per bbl	75	@ 1 00
NEW YORK
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 75	@ 4 95
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@ 96¾
No. 2 red		@ 101¼
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@ 29⅞
OATS—Mixed		@ 21
PORK—New mess	8 25	@ 8 75
LARD—Western		@ 4 25
CHICAGO
FLOUR—Winter patents	4 40	@ 4 60
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	91⅛	@ 92
No. 2 Chicago spring	81⅛	@ 82⅛
CORN—No. 2		@ 23⅞
OATS—No. 2		@ 19
PORK—Mess	6 85	@ 6 87½
LARD—Steam	3 85	@ 3 90
BALTIMORE
FLOUR—Family	4 25	@ 4 65
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2		@ 95¾
Corn—Mixed	29¼	@ 29¾
Oats—Mixed	25	@ 26
LARD—Refined		@ 11 00
PORK—Mess		@ 10 85
CATTLE—First quality	4 00	@ 4 25
HOGS—Western	4 00	@ 4 20
INDIANAPOLIS
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@ 87
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 24½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 17½
LOUISVILLE
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 90
Corn—Mixed		@ 23½
Oats—Mixed		[illegible]
PORK—Mess		[illegible]
LARD—Steam		[illegible]

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

MRS. GRUMPEY—"Why don't wives rise up and make their husbands stand around?" Grumpey—"Because men never propose to that kind of women."—Detroit Free Press.

Home-Seekers Excursions.

On November 17 and December 1 and 15, 1896, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway will sell round trip excursion tickets from Chicago to a great many points in the Western and Southwestern states both on its own line and elsewhere, at greatly reduced rates. Details as to rates, routes, etc., may be obtained on application to any coupon ticket agent or by addressing GEO. H. HEAFFORD, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

TEACHER—"Why do the geese go south in the winter?" Pupil—"Pap says they've got a lot o' big hotels down there."—Boston Transcript.

Fortune Seeking Emigrants.

Many a poor family that seeks the western wilds in the hope of winning a fortune, is preserved from that insidious foe of the emigrant and frontiersman—chills and fever—by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. So effectually does that incomparable medicinal defense fortify the system against the combined influence of a malarious atmosphere and miasma-tainted water, that protected by it the pioneer, the miner or the tourist provided with it, may safely encounter the danger.

CLARA—"Do you call Bertha a beauty?" Maddie—"To her face, yes."—Boston Transcript.

THE letter quoted below, written March 23, 1896, by the editor and manager of the Sheffield, Ala., Standard, leaves no room to doubt that a successful treatment for the cure of the liquor habit exists:

"DR. B. M. WOOLLEY, Atlanta, Ga.: Your antidote for the liquor habit will do all you claim for it. After drinking whisky for more than 20 years I find myself entirely relieved of the accursed appetite through the use of three bottles of your medicine. It is absolutely a specific for the liquor habit and leaves no bad effects. E. M. RAGLAND."

"Is IT true that Pidger is financially embarrassed?" "He is awfully in debt, but it doesn't seem to embarrass him any."—Chicago Record.

Don't Start for California

Or Puget Sound until you have written to the undersigned for the Burlington's Sheet of Tourist Rates, Variable Routes and Side Trips. It gives attractions en route, describes train service and personally conducted tourist sleeper excursions to California. L. W. WAKELEY, G. P. A., St. Louis, Mo.

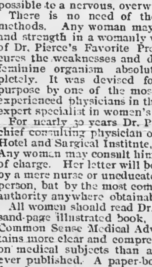
HE—"So Bullem has failed?" She—"Yes; but they only owe us a call, so thank goodness, we won't lose by it."—London Figaro

BLACK, deep bruises cured by St. Jacobs Oil. It wipes them out.

DON'T judge a man's bravery in the day time, when there are no ghosts or mad women around.—Atchison Globe.

CRIPPLED for years? Pshaw! Why St. Jacobs Oil will cure sprains right off. Sure.

IN addition to being liars, all men are gossips.—Atchison Globe.



"Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean," wrote the poet Tennyson. But tears always mean something. There are tears of melancholy, tears of joy, and of despair, and those saddest most pathetic tears of the nervous overwrought woman who has been bearing up as bravely as she may under a daily burden of weakness and dragging, torturing pain.

No wonder women weep. The wonder is that they are not oftener in tears for all they have to bear and suffer; and the saddest thing about it is how little their sufferings are understood. Even the doctor, nine times in ten says: "Oh, a little nervousness, that's all" or "neuralgia," or "insomnia," or "dyspepsia." If he suspects the real cause he insists upon examinations and local treatment,—about the very worst thing possible to a nervous, overwrought woman.

There is no need of these repugnant methods. Any woman may insure health and strength in a womanly way by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures the weaknesses and diseases of the feminine organism absolutely and completely. It was devised for this special purpose by one of the most eminent and experienced physicians in this country; an expert specialist in women's diseases.

For nearly 30 years Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Any woman may consult him by letter, free of charge. Her letter will be answered not by a mere nurse or uneducated, unscientific person, but by the most competent medical authority anywhere obtainable.

All women should read Dr. Pierce's thousand-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It contains more clear and comprehensive advice on medical subjects than any other book ever published. A paper-bound copy sent free for twenty-one one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Or cloth-bound for thirty-one stamps.

An Important Difference.

To make it apparent to thousands, who think themselves ill, that they are not afflicted with any disease, but that the system simply needs cleansing, is to bring comfort home to their hearts, as a costive condition is easily cured by using Syrup of Figs. Manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only, and sold by all druggists.

"YOU kain't set down no fixed rule o' conduct in disher life," said Uncle Eben. "Samson got inter trouble 'case he done got 'is h'ah cut, an' Ab'salom got inter trouble 'case he didn't."—Washington Star.

SORE and Stiff! Cold. St. Jacobs Oil the cure. It warms and relaxes.

"BANKLY, why is it that they call money dust?" "Because it is so easy to blow it."

1 OUT OF EVERY 3
Persons you meet every day,
WILL DIE
OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE
or some trouble of the kidneys, urinary or female organs.
THIS IS STARTLING, BUT IT IS TRUE.
WHAT CAN BE DONE?
In such a serious condition you must secure the best remedy you can find in the market
AT ONCE.
There is only one absolutely sure cure for these troubles, and that is
Warner's Safe Cure
"It has stood the test of time."

In three points—tone, action, and durability—no organ approaches the
ESTEY
Write for Illustrated Catalogue with prices, to Estey Organ Company, Brattleboro, Vt.

Webster's International Dictionary
Invaluable in Office, School, and Home.
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY
A thorough revision of the Unabridged, the purpose of which has been not display nor the provision of material for boastful and showy advertisement, but the due, judicious, scholarly, thorough perfecting of a work which in all the stages of its growth has obtained in an equal degree the favor and confidence of scholars and of the general public.
The Choicest of Gifts for Christmas.
In Various Styles of Binding.
Specimen pages sent on application to
G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, Springfield, Mass., U.S.A.

LIVE STOCK CUTS.
We will furnish duplicates of LIVE STOCK CUTS or any other Cut shown in any Specimen Book, at or below quoted prices for same.
A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO.,
429 Elm Street, Cincinnati.

LATEST AND BEST WELL DRILLING MACHINES
100 ft. to 2,000 FEET.
HORSE, STEAM AND GASOLINE POWER......
ADDRESS LOOMIS & NYMAN, TIFFIN, OHIO

TOP SNAP, Extension Rib DOUBLE Breech Loader $9.00 GUNS
BUY-CYCLES
POWELL & CLEMENT CO.
166 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM HABIT AND DRUNKENNESS
Cured in 10 to 20 Days. No Pay till Cured. DR. J. L. STEPHENS, LEBANON, OHIO.

OH, YES; WE USE IT. YUCATAN.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION
25 CTS

A. N. K.—E. 1633
WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

STOP! ....Don't Let.... Constipation Kill You!
CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
CURE CONSTIPATION
REGULATE THE LIVER
10¢ 25¢ 50¢
ALL DRUGGISTS
THE MOST WONDERFUL, RELIABLE AND EFFECTIVE
MEDICINE EVER DISCOVERED.
ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED to cure any case of constipation. Cascarets are the Ideal Laxative, never grip or gripe, but cause easy natural results. Sample and booklet free. Ad. STERLING REMEDY CO., Chicago, Montreal, Can., or New York. 213.

BOONE : COUNTY : RECORDER.

Wednesday, Dec 2. 1896.

Rates of Subscription:
One year.................................... $1 50.
Six months.. 75.
Three months.. 40.
☞Payable invariably in advance.

THE RECORDER
SOLICITS YOUR
Job Work,
NOTE HEADS,
LETTER HEADS,
ENVELOPES,
CARDS,
BILL HEADS,
STATEMENTS,
SALE BILLS,
AND HORSE BILLS,
Printed at the Lowest Prices consistent with neat work.
Send your order by mail and it will be attended promptly.

STATE NEWS.

Kentucky cast seventy thousand more votes this year than ever before.

The Franklin Co. Fiscal Court decides that it has no right to levy a higher rate of taxes to buy the turnpikes.

J. K. Raughman, of Lincoln county, has a two-year-old mule which stands 18 hands high and weighs 1,500 pounds.

Maj. W. R. Kinney, one of the oldest and most successful lawyers in Louisville, died at 3 o'clock Thanksgiving afternoon.

They have caught at Mena, Ark., one Wm. Bryant, ex-Sheriff of Breathitt county, charged with embezzling county funds.

Julia Parsons, a young girl of Union county, swallowed a lizard while drinking water from a spring. She died the following day in horrible agony.

Sandford Harris, an ex-convict, and wife were arrested in Morgan county and brought to Morehead for trial, charged with murdering their 3-weeks-old infant.

Rewards aggregating $3,000 have been offered for the capture of the people who destroyed the Woodford county toll-gates. Gov. Bradley is expected to also offer $500 on the State's part.

Gus Arnold, of Franklin county, brother of Dalton and Henry Arnold who are now fighting in the Cuban Army was accidentally shot while hunting Thanksgiving day, and his right leg had to be amputated.

Jerry Dunn, Constable, arrested George Blanton in Magoffin county, for mistreating Blanton's wife. On the way to Salyersville Blanton knocked Dunn off his horse, secured his pistol, knocked him senseless and escaped.

Near Clay's Ferry, Madison Co., Charles Atkinson shot Samuel Young, at the home of Jas. Erskine, a neighbor. Atkinson's pretty young wife had met Young, her former admirer, of whom her husband was jealous, and when the husband, who thought his wife had gone to visit her sister, found Young and Mrs. Atkinson at the same house he was furious and fired two pistol balls into him.

During a recent baptizing at Bardwell an amusing mistake occured. Rev. Maham, Baptist, immersed his converts at 2:30 and Eld. Cooke, Christian, at 3 o'clock in the same place. One of Eld. Cooke's converts got into the wrong crowd and was baptised by mistake by the Baptist brother. No inconvenience resulted, as the convert expressed himself satisfied and the ordinance was not administered to him again by his own preacher.

Mr. James B. Faulkner has had a very serious time for several days past suffering with a poisoned foot. Some time ago he used a liquid corn cure of some kind which resulted in his foot becoming very sore. An eruption followed, spreading over other parts of his body and causing him a great deal of suffering and inconvenience. Mr. Faulkner's physician thinks the lotion which was used contained arsenic, and advises persons to be a little careful about using such remedies."—Flemingsburg Gazette.

A tramp called at a residence on Bourbon street the other day, rang the bell and when the lady came to the door asked her for food. She told him she would gladly give him food if he would saw some wood for her. The tramp said certainly he would, but he preferred eating first as he had had nothing to eat for two days. The lady got him a plate of meat, bread, etc., and the tramp went to the wood pile. There he licked the platter, leaving the plate sitting on a chunk of wood, with a note in it which read: "Just tell them that you saw me, but you did not see me saw."—Georgetown News.

A Clark county man has invented what should prove a good thing now that the campaign for county offices is coming on. The Tulip correspondent of the Winchester Sun says: "Jim Botts, the genius of these parts, now comes forward with an invention in the shape of a badge to be worn in the coming county campaign which is a climax to all of his former inventions. The device is so arranged as to show the names of those one intends to vote for for the different offices. Without putting the candidate to the trouble of soliciting which at this particular time is a sore affliction, it certainly meets a long-felt want and will save a great quantity of wind."

Sometimes such pranks work to the satisfaction of the funny fellows, and then again sometimes they don't. At Harrodsburg some youths wrote a decoy letter to L. C. Hulburd, a stranger in the town, making a tryst in the public park for a lady, says the Interior Journal. He was there, but instead of a lady he met a masked party, who opened fire, expecting him to run; but he didn't and while he was covered by revolvers, one of the party stepped forward to search him. Hulburd promptly knocked the searcher down. The party set upon him to duck him in the lake, but seeing his bravery they relented, and, repairing to a restaurant, made merry with their intended victim. The joke was turned, however, when they were arrested for shooting within the city limits. Mr. Hulburd was here taking a map of the town for a New York firm, and seemed to enjoy the turn of the joke on the Harrodsburg boys.

The Stanford Interior Journal relates the following episode in the experience of a Lincoln county family: "A few days ago a farmer of the Hubble section, who is pretty fond of his tea, bought a jug of brandy and taking it home he placed it under an old table, where he thought his wife would not find it. His good wife happened to keep her coal oil in a jug and strange to say she kept it under this very table. Saturday was lamp cleaning day with her and the half dozen or more were filled out of the brandy jug. The loss of the brandy was bad enough, but the trouble did not end there. Company came that night and the lamps instead of sending forth light sent an odor of brandy so thick that you could almost cut it with a knife to the remote portions of the house. A preacher was among the guests and he demanded an explanation, which may yet cost McKendree church one or more members."

* * *

Miss Wesa Huey and Prof. Riley, who teaches at Big Bone church, attempted to cross Gunpowder creek at the ford near James H. Aylor's, last Friday. The buggy had not gone into the creek far, when, some say the horse balked, and it was impossible to get it to budge. Mr. Riley, after considerable trouble, succeeded in getting the horse out of the shafts, and was trying to take Miss Wesa from the buggy, when the hose fell, giving Mr. Riley a thorough wetting. Mr. Riley then abandoned his efforts to rescue the young lady, and went back to Walter Ryle's to dry himself out. Robt. Wilson came along and saw the buggy and its occupant, and went after Will Aylor and a horse to go to the rescue. Will responded, losing no time in taking the young lady from the buggy, where he found her sitting up on the back of the seat, to which place she was driven by the rising water. She had been sitting in the buggy for about an hour, and the creek gradually rising but she faced the impending danger most heroically.

A colored woman is conducting a protracted meeting at the colored church here.

* * *

Monday was the last day in which to pay taxes and avoid the penalty, and taxpayers from all parts of the county lined up at the Sheriff's office that day and kept him busy writing receipts. Saturday was also a busy day with the collector.

* * *

Gov. Bradley has not decided as to when to call a special session of the legislature. The members who served last winter have not received any pay, and they, as a rule, are not anxious to spend any future time in legislation and put up the money for their expenses.

* * *

The Democrats of this State would better use their money going after those who perpetrated the fraud of which they complain. There is nothing in the contest, but on the other hand, a few convictions for fraudulent voting would have a salutary effect in the future.

* * *

We are in receipt of a communication signed, "Baptist S. S. Verona, Ky.," taking our correspondent to task for announcing that 25 cts. would be charged at the oyster supper at Mr. Myers', when it was intended to charge only 10 cents. It is evident that our correspondent was misinformed as to the charge intended to be made for supper, and was not intending to detract in the least from the success of the supper.

* * *

Two anonymous letters have been sent to the county Judge of Woodford county, warning him not to put any of the toll-gate regulators in jail. Two farmers who met the raiders on Wednesday night have received letters warning them that if any arrests are made they will be lynched. No arrests have been made yet, but the people of Woodford county are more than ever determined to bring the marauders to justice.

CROP AND STOCK.

J. E. Lynn, of Lincoln county, has a 3-year-old steer which weighs 1,900.

POLITICAL.

Two sound-money Democrats and three Republicans were indicted in Warren county for offering bribes to voters.

The Prohibition party is evidently sinking into a rapid decline. In the late campaign it polled not over 100,000 votes all told.

Strange as this statement may seem, we haven't heard of an individual among our Republican brethren that is an applicant for either storekeeper or gauger. Can it be possible that no one in the Republican party in this county want any of these coveted places, or is the Civil Service clause the bugbear which is frightening them away?—Falmouth Guide.

Petersburg.

Owen Watts, candidate for assessor, was mixing hereabouts, the latter part of last week.

Peter Keim, George Hurd Mike Lafferty and J. Knipper killed hogs Monday.

The weather, the past week, was quite warm up to Friday night when there was a considerable sleet. Thursday night the wind blew like a hurricane and a great deal of fodder was blown down and was damaged by the rain that followed.

Lewis Sullivan delivered some fine cattle, Sunday morning.

Attorney Sidney Gaines, of your town, was here last Saturday.

There have been a few cases of bad sorethroats of late.

Morrison & Co. have beenat work on the new Lawrenceburg ferry boat. They are doing the work at our wharf.

The only christian entertainment at the Christian Church this season will be some songs and a few recitations by the Sunday school pupils on Sunday morning following christmas day.

Mrs. Ella Leonard intended to take the mail boat Sunday for Louisville, but the boat came earlier than was expected and she did not get away till Monday night, Jennie who had lived with her grandma Casey went with her.

Rev. Mr. Curry preached Sunday night.

The exercises at the Methodist church Thanksgiving evening, were highly interesting. Rev. Mr. Harris introduced the services by responsive reading and prayer. Then followed solos, duets, essays and recitations under the direction of the Epworth League. Taking it altogether there has not been a more pleasant occasion in our town for a long time. Only one thing to mar, and that was the misbehavior of two or three young gentlemen who ought to know better.

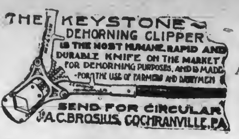
It ought to be recorded where all can see and read, that well bred people will not act as disorderly as a number did at the sale last Saturday. It is hoped that such conduct will not be allowed at public places.

Fall Plowing.

"Fall plowing aids in deepening the soil. When the work is done in the fall, the land may be plowed more deeply than if done in the spring, because the raw soil thus brought up is exposed to reducing agencies from fall to spring. These agencies tend to liberate plant food, as will be more fully described below. If such deep plowing were done in the spring, there would not be time for these reducing agencies to do their work properly; hence, in stiff soils more especially, the plants might litterally starve through the growing season, yet plant food may abound, but in non-liberated forms. Nor is there sufficient time to secure that fine pulverization which would be the outcome of fall plowing," says a writer in Farming. "Fall plowing improves the seed bed. It improves it mechanically. Suppose a stiff clay were plowed in the autumn, and that it turned up more or less cloddy. The action of the rain and frost and other influences would cause these clods to crumble. When the the harrow or cultivator is passed over such soils in the spring as soon as they are dry, they readily crumble; hence, a good tilth may usually be secured upon them. If not plowed until spring, they are much prone to turn up more or less adhesive from below; hence much labor is required to put them in a fine condition mechanically for receiving the seed. Fall plowing tends to the liberation of plant food. The agencies of nature, the sun, the frost and snow, act upon upturned soils more or less from the time that they are plowed in the fall until they are sown in the spring. This action is not only mechanical, but it is also chemical. Plant food, therefore, is continually being liberated; that is to say, it is being changed from an inert into an active form. When inert, the plants cannot feed upon it because it is not accessible to them; but when transferred to the active or soluble forms, the roots of growing plants find it and appropriate it to their own uses. Where the soil is not upturned until within a short time before sowing the seed, the time is insufficient for the agencies of nature to effect very much in thus liberating plant food. And when the soil is stirred on the surface as soon as it is dry enough, nutrification becomes more active as the air can more freely penetrate it. The soil also becomes warm near the surface through the influence of sunshine and warm rain washing down through a warm atmosphere. Vegetation therefore, under such conditions cannot be otherwise than vigorous when the weather is at all favorable. Labor is facilitated by autum plowing. Early sowing with nearly all kinds of spring grain is greatly important. But early sowing would only be possible to a limited extent if all the plowing had to be done in the spring. The autumn gives more leisure; hence, the more of the work of the following season that can be done then, the less there will be to do in the spring, which is always a time of hurry and rush with those who are going to keep up with their work. This argument in itself would be of sufficient importance to justify plowing to the greatest extent possible in the autumn, in the absence of any argument to the contrary.

Fall plowing is of great service in destroying weeds, at least in many instances. We may imagine some few conditions under which fall plowing would rather encourage the growth of weeds than tend to destroy them. This would be the case with some kinds of parennials, as, for instance, Canada thistles, when the grain is sown early in the spring. But with annuals, and even perennials, fall plowing may be made to help to destroy them greatly with crops planted late, as, for instance, crops of corn and field roots. By stirring the fall-plowed surfaces occasionally from the opening of spring until the planting of the crop, one generation after another of the seeds of annuals may be sprouted and, in turn, destroyed, and by running a cutting implement just below the surface of the soil Canada thistles and other perennials would be cut off, and thus materially checked in their growth."

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
OF UP TO DATE
CHESTER WHITE HOGS.



THE KEYSTONE DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
A. C. BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.

AEROMETER
EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.
COME AND SEE IT.

Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.
Write for circulars.

T. J. HUGHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

GRAEFENHAN'S
POPULAR
Dry GOODS STORE.
Calicoes, Muslins, Canton Flannels, Wool Flannels, Dress Goods, Stockings, Mitts, Underwear, Comforts, Blankets and
PRETTY HOLIDAY GOODS.
By doing a strictly Cash Business it has been very easy to under sell all others. Come and see us
H. F. GRAEFENHAN,
21 Walnut St., - - - - Lawrenceburg, Ind.

HOLIDAY GOODS
CONSISTING OF
Watches, Clocks, Jewelery, Silverware & Spectacles
Of all kinds and a large Assortment of Novelties. See us before buying as we can save you money.
J. D. WARD, 2 doors above bank in Clark Building, Rising Sun, Ind.

J. J. GEISEN,
HATTER AND GENT'S
FURNISHING GOODS,
615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.
Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

E. H. RIGGS,
Dealer in
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
CEMENT, ETC.
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVERY COMPANY.
62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,
E. H. BAKER, Proprietor
(o)
Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.
Telephone 580.

1896.
Your County Paper
Is the One to
Subscribe for,
It Gives all the
Neighborhood News,
Court News and
General News.
$1.50 will Pay for it
Until Jan. 1st, 1898.
Give It a Trial and Help
Along Home EnterPrise.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1896. NO. 7.

WHEN to hold the Democratic primary election in this county is being discussed.

MR. HANNA is much more in evidence in this country than the President-elect.

THE talk about a special session of the legislature has, to a considerable extent, subsided.

W. A. GAINES, colored, is an applicant for the Covington postoffice. It is a good thing, Gaines—go after it.

DR. HUNTER says he is a sound money Republican—that the pledge he made to the Populists in the last legislature was only a joke.

THE Republicans are divided as to what is the best policy in regard to the tarift. After the fourth of next March they will have to take a stand, and then the fun will begin.

MAJOR McKINLEY received something over seven million votes and the indications are that there will be between seven and eight million applicants for offices under his administration.

WEYLER has proven himself a terror to the old women and children in Cuba, and so long as he meets none of the Insurgents his expeditions are very successful. He is nothing but a butcher of the defenseless.

IN this issue you will find the announcement of T. J. Adams as a candidate for jailer. He is and old time Democrat, and this is the first time he ever asked the party for an office. If elected he will make a faithful official.

THE inauguration of Gov. Mount, of Indiana, is to be attended with no display. He desires to take the oath and enter upon the discharge of his duties without the usual inaugural demonstration. This speaks well for the Governor's good sense.

DURING the campaign it was argued that the monetary system of the country should not be disturbed, but those who were opposing any change are now leaders in a move which they claim is to secure reform in the currency. They are consistent.

CONGRESS will make an appropriation of a million or two dollars for a certain kind of work, and after the work is performed, a million or so appropriation is necessary to conduct an investigation to show the country how badly it has been swindled.

IN Casey county the Democrats and the Boltocrats have fused on the question of county offices. The Democrats get the county clerk and sheriff, and the Boltocrats get the county Judge and circuit clerk. There will be no contest for the remainder of the county offices.

IT did not take the Dearborn county, Indiana, taxpayers long to get enough of Republican rule at home. Two years ago the Republicans captured all the county offices, and this fall they were given the bounce, but the county has a $30,000 bonded debt as reminder of the Republican period.

SOME of the very men who, in the last campaign, claimed that our financial system was alright, met at Indianapolis, last week, and issued a call for the commercial organizations of the country to meet in convention there on January 12th, to consider and recommend to Congress legislation to correct defects in the currency system.

THE reception given the ticket put forth by the so-called Democratic convention held at Indianapolis was decidedly humiliating to those who assumed the leadership in that angust body of mal-contents, and they are going to desert the "National Democratic" party, and try to organize another party to be called the "Democratic-Republican party."

IN this issue appears the announcement of W. W. Grimsley, of Big Bone, as a candidate for assessor. Mr. Grimsley is too well known in this county for the RECORDER to attempt to introduce him. His Democracy is of the time tried and fire tested, and he is a hard worker for his party. If nominated and elected Mr. Grimsley will make a good assessor.

THE Democratic committee of Carroll county has called a primary election for February 25, 1897, to nominate candidates for county offices. The committee decided that the following persons shall be entitled to vote at the primary: "All voters who voted for the electors of Bryan and Sewall, the regular Democratic nominees for President and Vice-President, at the November election of 1896, and also all legal voters, who are known Democrats and would have voted for Bryan and Sewall, but were prevented from getting to the polls as well as all persons who shall have become of age since last November election and who will pledge themselves to support the nominees of said primary election."

And now comes a gentleman from Louisiana, an honorable (?) in for sooth proposing an increase of 50 per cent. in the salaries of members of Congress that is to give them $7,500 per annum, instead of $5,000. Now keeping in mind the dreadful privations and universal distress that has prevailed in all sections of our country, save in the money centers, will somebody please tell what this human jackass is after in broaching the necessity of such action? Is it possible that the wail of a suffering people is not loud enough to be heard in far off Louisiana? Or, does he belong to that class which, "having eyes see not, and having ears hear not?" Does he not know that carpet factories, shoe manufacturies and other producing industries are either closing down or cutting wages to compete with other establishments, not in pauper running factories in foreign lands but right in "the land of the free (?) and the home of the brave?" Surely the man is only given to the propensity of burlesqueing the situation; or, perhaps, and it is very probable, he has raised the question merely to draw the attention from more burning and living issues demanding the immediate consideration of wise and patriotic statesmen not the pitiful makeshifts and devices of unscrupulous party hacks.

There is now a mighty undercurrent of feeling in the minds of the people that office holders, especially federal, are far better paid than any other class of people, the amount of work performed being taken into consideration. The infamous "Salary Grab" not a quarter of century ago shows, however, the elasticity of the Republican party's conscientiousness, and it is fair to presume that anything but legislating for the good of a suffering people will meet with its prompt and undivided attention.

THE French farmers are desirous of excluding American pork from their markets. This move was inaugurated because of the very low price of French swine.

JAMES J. BELDEN, a New York candidate for Congress, has filed his account in which he states that his expenses were $13,180. His total salary will be $10,000 leaving him $3,180 shy, not counting board etc.

IN the proper column will be found J. F. Blyth's announcement as a candidate for jailer of Boone county. Mr. Blyth is the only Democrat in a family of six brothers, all voters, and his democracy has been thoroughly tested and found to be the genuine article. If given the office of jailer he will fill it to a queen's taste, and make a good official.

An Explanation.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

In reply to the article concerning the fox-hunt appearing in your issue of last week, we experience some disappointment because of its brevity, which will not admit of a lengthy discussion, but, in part, of explanation. We can only say that the contemplated adventure would have been to introduce an innovation and surprise the community. This would not only have pleased these eminent and experienced huntsmen, among which may be mentioned C. C. Roberts, Elmer Beall, J. C. Revill, B. W. Adams, Harry Blyth, A. Rouse, Cy Crisler, Dr. Furnish and R. R. Revill, the latter a famous wild-dog slayer, but would have furnished capital for an endless discussion, corroborated by ready exaggeration, in which many of them excel.

We do not blame the editor in the least, as he was not only innocently informed of the matter, but knowing the two gentlemen in question as he does, it is needless for us to assume that he would publish anything knowingly, that would cause any injury or ill will. He has already been fortunate enough to have accompanied Hallam on a horseback journey, when opportunity was offered for time to judge of the superior excellence and ability manifested by the rider, in his control over one of the finest saddle horses in the county, at the same time his skill in saddling a hoase and holding to the saddle at a fast gait; also he has by this time been informed of the bravery and relentless energy of Collins, who on last Saturday a week, dared to face the elements in undertaking a journey on horseback through blustering winds and swollen streams to be present at the teachers' meeting at Verona, where he delivered one of the finest responses to an opening address, he did not hear on record, and had it not been for a misunderstanding, and conflicting reports given by the aboved mentioned gentlemen of "teasy-fame" the other horseman would have accompanied him notwithstanding the wind and cold weather. So it can be inferred from this that we are sportsmen of no little ability, and had the adventurous journey been carried out results would have been obtained calculated to cause fresh triumphs to be added to our already crowded list.

Under the circumstances we would not have dared to go fox-hunting in the regular way along with the others on horseback, for it would only be exposing the inexperience and ability of our companions in the excitement, and so long as we were unable to secure a horse and buggy suitable for the occasion, we decided to remain at home and forego the pleasure for the sake of charity and generosity on our part—and the feelings which we hold for others.

We have felt it incumbent upon ourselves to furnish this brief explanation at this time, but would recommend in the future that we be informed of the intention of our friends in the preparation of such brilliant news and without our co-oper-ation and assistance, we will promise a better and longer article than a four line one, and one consistent with the actual facts and all circumstances taken into consideration. Respectfully Yours,

PAUL R. HALLAM,
A. C. COLLINS.

GOV. BRADLEY is about the only person who is not in possession of information concerning an extra session of the legislature.

POLITICAL.

The fellows who are looking after Collectorships are not so green after all. They pay good salaries and do not come under the bothersome Civil Service system. There are other good places of course, but most of them take a fellow too far from home.

Congressman Hendricks, it would appear, contemplates leaving the First congressional district for greener fields and pastures new. His personal organ, the Murray Ledger, says: "Congressman Hendrick leaves for Washington in a couple of weeks to sit in the last session of Congress under the Cleveland Administration. After its adjournment and Mr. Hendrick's term expires, he will probably move to Hopkinsville, Louisville or Frankfort to practice his profession."

Cincinnati Tobacco Market.

The offerings this week were larger than they have been in many weeks. They started out on Tuesday large enough to make the sales occupy nearly the whole day, and on Wednesday one of the houses, the Morris, was shut out.

In the face of these large sales the market did well enough. While there was an easier tone on Tuesday than at the close of last week, Wednesday's prices were regarded stronger again. Fine tobacco sold full up to the high figures of the past month. The lowest grades remained easier, and mediums, though stronger, did not reach last week's quotations. Thursday the market was generally better than on Wednesday, and, with light sales, closed firm on Friday. The improved market has stimulated shipments, and we would not be surprised if within a few weeks the country would be pretty well "shipped out" of old stock. This fact ought to make matters more favorable for the New crop, which has, thus far, been in market only very sparingly, not enough being offered to give quotations nor to form an opinion as to the merits of the crop.—Western Tobacco Journal.

[Cincinnati Enquirer]

The problem has been solved. The circle has been squared. Bynum found out the way. Great is Bynum. He has been to New York, and "for five days he talked over the political field with some of the Eastern 'sound money' men." So says an Indianapolis dispatch to the New York Sun, and "when you see a thing in the Sun, it is so." Think of a talk of five days' duration, and with Bynum. Well, the result is worth all the pangs endured. This result is, according to Bynum, "a movement on foot"—both feet perhaps—"to form another and a new party, to be known as the Democratic-Republican party, around which it is intended to rally the commercial interests of the country under a sound money flag, and with proper regulations selected under the advice of a commission of business men."

Bynum is like a most unattractive old maid, who must get married, no matter to whom. She will agree to let the man name all the children, and with all her worldly goods she will him endow. Any old thing of a party will do for Bynum. What he wants is a political wedding. We shall watch the wooing of the Republican party by Bynum with great interest. He makes only one request, and that is that the bride shall retain her maiden name, and have it hyphenated with that of the bridegroom. "Democratic-Republican," quotha.

By all means. When will Bynum pop the question? And what will the Republican party reply.

How excruciatingly funny it is to hear the 133,000 Palmer Demorcats in the United States telling the 6,000,000 Bryan Democrats to come on back.—Nashville American.

The silver Republicans will have a conference this week to ascertain how many men they can rely on to stand up for the white metal, regardless of other issues. Teller, Dubois, Mantle, Cannon and Squire have practically cut loose from the regular Republican organization, and Carter, Brown, Walcott, Baker, Mitchell (of Oregon), Shoup, Clarke, Wilson and Pritchard are for silver, but they will not go as far as the first named in demanding that the silver must be recognized or there shall be no tariff legislation during this or the next Congress.

CROP AND STOCK.

At Paris, Ky., November 25, C. Alexander shipped from his farm 650 head of Durham cattle to London market for Christmas beeves. They averaged 1,726 pounds. They are the heaviets lot ever shipped from Kentucky. It required fifty cars, divided into two trains, to transport them to Norfork, Va., to take the steamer for London.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson.
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup't of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, Sam S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M. Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W. Lester.
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill. Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George; Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; I. F. Dempsey, H. S. Irwin. Secretary-Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thorsday after second Monday; Add Riddell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896
AT WALTON, KY.
Three Courses of Study to choose from:
English, Scientific or Classical,
Tuition per month for Higher Branches.......... $3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches.......... 2.50
We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2 00 for five days.
Teachers { Mrs. S. H. MYERS. CHAS. F. PRIOR. Rev. S. H. MYERS.
Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky. | OSCAR GAINES Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. COWEN, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky,
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administratrix Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of L. E. Clore, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

ANNIE L. CLORE, Adm'rx.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
—o—
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON,
...... DENTIST, ...
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
MAIN OFFICE—South side Main, St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

W. E. VEST. B. L. RICE.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL,.......................... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 17,000
—)o(—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN.................. $50,000
SURPLUS,.......................... $ 2.600
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE
STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:50 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 2:50 pm; 4:30 pm;
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 8:30 am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm. Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5:15 pm.
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:10 am; 10:00 am; 12'40 pm; 3:00 pm; 4:45 pm.
ELIHU ALDEN, Master.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON. : : : KY.

DECEMBER—1896.
Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
....	....	1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
13	14	15	16	17	18	19
20	21	22	23	24	25	26
27	28	29	30	31	....	....

CURRENT TOPICS.

ZOOLOGISTS aver that in 100 years the lion will be extinct.

MANITOBA, the great wheat farm of British America, raises 19.7 bushels to the acre.

SCOTCHMEN have almost entire control of the stonecutting industries of New York.

COUCH GRASS, a very objectionable plant in wheat fields, is itself of the wheat family.

VESUVIUS is in eruption, and a large stream of lava is flowing down the side of the mountain.

A MUSICAL bicycle has been invented in England, which grinds out tunes as the wheels turn.

SINCE 1870 Victoria, Australia, has voted more than $500,000 for the destruction of rabbits.

GEORGE MEREDITH, it is said, presents a copy of his novels to every servant in his employ.

THE boo tree in the sacred city of Amarapoora, Burmah, is said to be the oldest tree in existence.

THE first post office in this country was that of New York, established by act of Parliament in 1710.

THE German imperial revenue and expenditure in the coming year balance at about $330,000,000.

A BUSHEL of potatoes equals 56 pounds in Pennsylvania and 60 in nearly all the other states.

THE value of the grounds and buildings devoted to education in the United States is $95,545,681.

THE first glass made in this country was manufactured at Jamestown by the English colonists in 1609.

A SHIP called the Mary Rose, four centuries ago, had the "fighting top" now common on all warships.

THE Industrial Aid society, of Boston, found work during the year just passed for nearly 3,700 people.

IN Hamburg a dog is taxed according to his size. A little tax for a little dog, and a big tax for a big dog.

ONE-THIRD of Kansas' population was born in the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania.

LIVERPOOL is the most densely populated city in Great Britain, having a population of 114 per acre, including the docks and quay.

AT New Augustine, Fla., the mayor, sitting as a magistrate, accepted five hogs from a Negro culprit as security for the payment of a fine.

ON the body of a notorious brigand recently killed in Turkey were found £4,000 and a notebook which showed he had murdered 192 men.

IN the British Isles during the present century seven instances have been recorded in which the bride has married the best man by mistake.

THE Pressfeeders' union of San Francisco has decided to inaugurate the following wage scale: Cylinder pressmen, $8 per week; platform pressmen, $10 per week.

THE killing of Bert Serf in a football game at Lawrence, Kas., has resulted in a petition to the legislature to make the playing of football a misdemeanor.

THE queen regent of Spain has just conferred the knighthood of Isabella upon Mr. Herbert Hamilton, controller of the household at the Spanish embassy to the vatican.

THE tail of the kangaroo is the fleshiest part of the animal. It is considered dainty food when boiled in its own skin, which afterward may be drawn off like a glove.

GRAND RAPIDS street railroad men are not organized, but Toledo men are. Toledo men gained 12 per cent. advance during the year, Grand Rapids men lost 10 per cent.

MME. CHRISTINE NILSSON has been entertaining a charming house party at her ideal home in Madrid, where the rooms are papered with leaves from the operas she has sung.

AUSTRIA, too, has the bicycle craze. Twenty large factories turn out 30,000 machines a year, which are sold for 4,500,000 florins. The exportation of Austrian bicycles is steadily increasing.

KAISER WILHELM is extending his idea of artistic collaboration. He is now said to be at work on a historical drama which a young poet of Weisbaden will put into German verse for him.

THE period of a "generation" has been lengthened; it used to be 30 years; and later increased to 34; now a scientist says the average term of human life has increased in the last 50 years from 34 to 42 years.

AFTER paying all convention expenses and bills against the organization to October 27, the International Typographical union has a balance in the general fund of over $36,000.

A FULL-RIGGED four-masted iron ship, with two years' stores and 2,500 tons of coal on board, was sold for $55 at Yarmouth, England, recently. She had just run ashore on the Scroby Sands, three miles off the town.

A CONSCIENCE-STRICKEN man in Oregon on his deathbed recently handed over to Louis Davenport the sum of $27,000, which represented the accumulations of $8,000 worth of gold dust stolen from Davenport 30 years ago.

MASSACRE

And Outrages on Armenians by Turks Near Bitilis—Two Thousand Children Made Orphans and Five Hundred Women Widowed.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Rev. Judson Smith, secretary of the American board of foreign missions, who has been in this city lecturing at the Union Park Theological seminary, received Friday a copy of a cablegram which had been sent to his office in Boston from an American resident in Constantinople. The message conveys intelligence of recent outrages and massacres of Armenians by Turks in the villages near Bitilis, and in some places remote from that city, in which 2,000 children were made orphans, and 500 women confronted with widowhood and starvation. The message, which is dated December 1, reads: "Bitilis appeals on behalf of 2,000 orphans and 500 now widows, many of them in distant homes where husbands, fathers and brothers were killed before their eyes with dreadful atrocities. They now wander in the streets begging for food and clothing. The missionaries entreat every possible influence to be used to get means to enable them to care for the unfortunate ones. Urgency is extreme. Will America sustain?"

Dr. Smith said to a reporter for the United Associated Presses, just prior to his departure Friday night for Boston on the Lake Shore limited, that he had heard of other trouble in Armenia through his Constantinople correspondent, but had no definite information. He declined to make known the name of the sender of the above dispatch because the agents of Turkey here were always eager to send such information to Constantinople for use against the American informant.

TOTAL COINAGE

Of Gold and Silver by the Different Countries During the Fiscal Year.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The report of R. E. Preston, the director of the mint shows in elaborate details the operations of the mints and assay offices during the fiscal year 1896, together with statistics of foreign countries, relative to the production, coinage and monetary conditions of each.

The total coinage of gold and silver by the various countries of the world was as follows:

Gold, $231,087,438; silver, $121,610,219; totals, $352,697,657. The total metallic stock and uncovered paper in the world was estimated on January 1, 1896, to be $10,938,600,000.

The director recommends that authority be given the secretary of the treasury to have experiments made to determine the best means of preventing the counterfeiting of silver coinage.

At the prevailing price of silver, the difference between the bullion and the nominal value of our silver coins is about 100 per cent, and this constitutes a great temptation for the stamping of such coins by unscrupulous persons, affording them an opportunity to place in circulation counterfeit silver coins at about 100 per cent profit as good as those stamped by the mints, and which can not be distinguished from them, even by experts.

GERMAN CONSULS

Making Inquiry as to the Sanitary Condition of Our Live Stock.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 5.—C. Prollier, German consul at Cincinnati, has written to the governor of Indiana asking what rules the state has for quarantine against the spread of disease among cattle. Many such communications come from German consuls in different parts of the United States, bearing indirectly on the purity of American meat. Dr. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health, is of the opinion that facts are being gathered by the German government for the purpose of excluding our meats from that country, and he would not be surprised to hear of such action being taken any day. The frequency of these inquiries from the German consuls of late seems to point toward a thorough investigation of the sanitary condition of our live stock.

POOLING BILL.

No Prospect of the Measure Passing the Coming Session of Congress.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Railroad officials who have been sounding the sentiment of United States senators on the question of a bill to legalize pooling under certain restrictions, such as defined in the Patterson bill, admit that there is no prospect of any measure of that kind passing the coming short session of congress. The railroad companies are sorely disappointed, as they had been counting on getting favorable legislation at this session. Now they will have to wait at least another year. The opposition of the senators is found in the fact that more pressing matters of public interest will engross the time of congress, and numerous senators, representing states which are apposed to the pooling idea, will have to go before their constituency for reelection.

Has Weyler Been Defeated?

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 5.—Passengers from Havana Friday night on the steamer say that a car load of wounded Spanish soldiers arrived there Friday. It was rumored that most of them came from the vicinity of San Christobal and Candelaria, there being over 500 on the train. No statement could be had as as to what battle field they had come from, hence their arrival threw Havana into a state of excitement, rumors prevailing that Weyler had sustained another defeat.

Packing Houses to Resume.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 5.—The west Lincoln packing houses which were closed down last July will resume operations on an extensive scale beginning the first of next week. The revived industry means employment for the winter for many idle men.

A Gale in the British Channel.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—A southeast gale is prevailing in the English channel and the North sea, and a tremendous sea is running. Many casualties have been reported. The historic chain pier at Brighton, which was erected in 1823, has been demolished.

GEN. WEYLER

Will Order Every Able-Bodied Man to Join the Army.

This News Causes Many Young Men to Join the Insurgents—Outside Havana Famine Is Beginning to Spread—Many Are Dying From Hunger.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The Sun Sunday morning prints the following: The Spaniards here say that General Weyler intends to issue a decree ordering every able-bodied man from 18 years to 60 to enlist in the army, and to take the field against the insurgents. This news has created such an excitement among Cuban families that the number of young men who have joined the insurgent forces within the past few days is greater than at any time since the beginning of the war. A circular has been quietly issued to the Cubans, which says: "No man of honor can doubt which side he must take if placed by the tyranny of the Spanish government in the position of choosing between Spain and Cuba libre."

El Pueblo says: "Gen. Weyler's duty is to issue that decree. We ought to know here who is a Spaniard and who is a conspirator. Havana is full of Spain's enemies masquerading under the guise of Spaniards. Let us know who is friend and who is enemy. Masks off."

But the real motive of Weyler with regard to this decree has not been mentioned above. It is a fact that the 18,000 soldiers recently sent by Spain are not enough to cover all the losses of the Spanish army within the past few weeks. More than that, it is said that high military authorities here are concealing from Spain the knowledge of more than half of the army's losses for the purpose of continuing to draw from the treasury the wages and allowances of the dead men. It is estimated that from April, 1895, to last November more than $30,000,000 have been stolen from the Spanish treasury in this way. The number of soldiers in the field is less than the central government believes, and is not sufficient for Weyler's plan of campaign, which is simply to march against the insurgents in heavy bodies.

Outside of Havana famine is beginning to spread. In Brematas, province of Pinar del Rio, more than 10,000 persons are dying of hunger. In Cardenas poverty is so great that families who were wealthy before the war are now begging in the streets. In Cienfuegos, an opulent city until 1895, the misery is also great, and here in Havana famine is expected soon, as a consequence of Weyler's methods of warfare and his destruction of all the provisions in the country districts.

MRS. MATTHEWS,

Wife of Gov. Matthews, Seized With a Fatal Hemorrhage of the Stomach.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 7.—Mrs. Matthews, wife of Gov. Matthews, was seized with a fatal hemorrhage of the stomach Sunday night. She had been indisposed for a couple of days, but was feeling so much better Sunday evening that she was up and about and she and the governor were alone in the library about 8:30 o'clock, when she started to walk across the room and fell to the floor with blood rushing from her mouth and nostrils. The governor carried her to a couch and the family physician, Dr. R. French Stone, was called at once. He saw the fatal nature of the trouble and telegrams were sent to their two daughters, Mrs. Cortez Ewing, of Greensburg, and Miss Helen Matthews, now attending the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. A consultation of physicians was called but they found that Mrs. Matthews had but a few hours to live. Mrs. Matthews was a daughter of Gov. Whitcomb, and they have been married nearly thirty years. The governor's only son, Seymour Matthews, died at Atlanta a year ago.

TWENTY-EIGHT BOYS.

Confined in the Nebraska Industrial School Escape—All But Fifteen Re-Captured.

KEARNEY, Neb., Dec. 7.—Twenty-eight of the larger boys confined in the state industrial school near here, escaped Saturday night. The break was made from the dining-room and many of them carried the knives used at the table. The plan has been brewing some time, over a hundred being implicated and all would have escaped had not an attendant drew his revolver and threatened to shoot the first boy that started. Sunday all but 15 were recaptured. Those still out are the most desperate and are believed to be headed for Kansas. "Kid" Thrasher, the leader, was captured about midnight, but his main assistant, one Yates, of Omaha, is still at large. Some of the boys are armed with butcher knives and sugar beet knives, and will resist arrest if the opportunity offers.

The Six-Days' Bicycle Race.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden was started shortly after midnight Sunday night in the presence of a big crowd of spectators. Much interest is taken in the event, owing to the international character lent by the presence of the long-distance British and French riders, of whom Tom Linton, the Welch champion, Charley Chapple, the English long-distance crack, and Jules Dubois, of Paris-Bordeaux race fame, are the stars.

Died at Initiation.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 7.—Chas. Wetter, of Winthrop, while undergoing the ceremony of initiation into the order of the Mystic Shrine, at Masonic temple, fell dead. The services were abruptly terminated, and four physicians, including the coroner, were summoned. They decided that death was due to valvular disease of the heart. He was 40 years of age, and proprietor of a hotel at Winthrop.

Legislators to Be Banqueted.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—The Illinois general assembly is to be given a banquet at Auditorium, December 22.

ANNUAL REPORT

Of the Secretary of the Interior Submitted to the President.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Secretary of the Interior David R. Francis has submitted his annual report to the president.

The appropriation for the last fiscal year amounted to $157,179,656. The estimates for the present fiscal year are about $1,000,000 more than was appropriated last year. The actual public domain is now 1,849,072,587 acres. The public lands still vacant amount to over 600,000,000 acres, not including Alaska. About 85,729,751 acres have been patented to railroads, and there are yet due railroads and wagon roads under their grants an aggregate of 114,736,639 acres. The total acreage segregated from the public domain was 946,219,160 acres. The secretary deems it desirable that our waste acreage should be taken up by actual settlers, who should be given every encouragement, and says if the rate of settlement continues in the future as in the past but little vacant land will be left in 13 years. He urges legislation for the preservation of the forests and states and a report will be submitted to congress by the foresty commission which has lately returned from a tour of inspection.

The Des Moines river land grant matter has been adjusted. About $183,854 in awards was agreed upon, of which $117,632 has been paid and the remainder will be paid at the end of this year.

Secretary Francis calls the attention of congress to the necessity of legislation looking to the reclaiming of arid lands, and says that of the 500,000,000 acres of arid lands, 100,000,000 acres might be reclaimed by the conservative use of water; but it is impossible under the laws in operation to cancel the reclaimants of the arid regions so as to prevent the improvident use of water over which the general government has no control.

No steps have been taken to make allottments to the Wichita Indians, as the act of congress left these to the discretion of the department.

Regarding the opening of what is known as the leased district of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians, which is now before the court of claims, he says that if the allotments were made and the balance of the land thrown open before a decision is rendered upon the claim of the Choctaws and Chickasaws, the government would be placing the Indians upon land under an agreement which involved the transfer of a good title and would also be throwing open the land to settlement, when in point of fact it did not have a clear title thereto. He recommends that all the Oklahoma town site boards be abolished. Secretary Francis is of the opinion that the free use of timber on public lands for commercial purposes should be discontinued.

On the pension question he says that about 970,678 persons are drawing about $140,000,000 per annum in pensions and the branch of the service should be conducted with great care and discretion. He gives a table which shows that the total amount paid out by the government in pensions and the cost of disbursing the same during the last 31 years was $2,034 817,769, which lacks only $346,712,525,96 of being equal to the high water mark of the interest bearing public debt. He suggests a number of amendments of the pension laws.

The Indians, he says, now occupy about 85,000,000 acres of land and these should be protected from the sinister machinations of unscrupulous men. He recommends that the Indian bureau should be conducted by a commission of three members, two to be civilians of different political parties and one an army officer.

He has declined to patent lands to the Union Pacific railroad or the Central Pacific railroad except in cases where it can be shown that the lands for which patents are asked have been sold to bone fide purchasers. The Central Pacific railway was on June 30, 1896, in default to the government to the extent of $288,143.66 on its "bond and interest" and its sinking fund account. He refers to the fact that the act chartering the Nicaragua Canal Co. requires the company to make a report on the first Monday in December in each year to the secretary of the Interior, to be verified on oath by its president and secretary. A preliminary statement has been submitted by the canal company showing that no work has been done on the canal since August, 1893.

The Maritime Canal Co. entered into a contract with the Nicaragua Canal Construction Co. for the construction of the canal but that the latter company became finally embarrassed in August, 1893, and subsequently made an assignment of its construction contract and all its assets to the Nicaragua Co., a corporation chartered by the state of Vermont. The latter company "has not yet found itself in a position to resume the work of construction under its contract."

The secretary wants an extension of the building accommodation for his department. He closes his report by saying: I earnestly recommend that congress take immediate steps looking to the purchase or condemnation of a block or more adjacent or antigious to the interior department building for the erection thereof of a structure to meet the present necessities of an important branch of the government which must expand and grow with the development of the country's resources.

A Price on His Head.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 5.—The famous tug Commodore, which has been lying in the river here under the guns of the revenue cutters, has received permission to clear as a newspaper dispatch boat, under certain rigid restrictions. Correspondent Scovel, who will be on the boat, has the price of $10,000 on his head.

Gen. Weyler Makes Money.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A statement is made here that Gen. Weyler has made a personal profit of $80,000 in the purchase of Texas and Kentucky mules for the use of the Spanish troops.

THE CONGRESS.

Little Business Except Congratulations and Condolences.

The President's Message Read—The House Immigration Bill in the Senate—Effort to Secure New Dates for Consideration of Special Orders Left Over.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—It is not likely that anything will be done in either house of congress Monday, except to exchange congratulations or condolence, as the case may be, over the election and to listen to the president's message. When the last session closed the house immigration bill had, and now has, the right of way in the senate. It is the unfinished business; this will be called up pro forma at the expiration of the morning hour, 2 o'clock. Although known as the house bill on the calendar as reported to the senate by Mr. Lodge, it is a materially different measure, all of the house provisions having been stricken out except the enacting clause and a new bill substituted. This bill will be called up on Tuesday by Senators Lodge and Chandler, who desire to push it to a vote as quickly as possible.

An effort will be made to secure new dates for the consideration of special orders that were not reached during last session. These measures are: Senate bill to prevent the desecration of the American flag; house bill to amend the act to prevent the extermination of fur-bearing animals of Alaska; house bill to reduce the cases in which the penalty of death may be inflicted and senate joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution providing for the election of senators by popular vote.

An important bill, over which there has developed a bitter fight, is the Detroit bridge bill, for a bridge across the Detroit river. It was postponed last session until the first Monday in December.

In addition to the appropriation bills there are several measures that will contend with others for the right of way. Prominent among these are the bills to refund the Pacific railroad debt, to admit the territories of New Mexico and Arizona, and Mr. Davis' resolution relative to the assertion and enforcement of the Monroe doctrine.

In the house of representatives the death of the late ex-Speaker Crisp will probably be announced by one of his former colleagues, and after the reading of the president's message the house will adjourn in his honor.

HOH. THOMAS F. BAYARD.

The Proposal to Present Him With a Testimonial by the People of England Withdrawn at His Request.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, the American ambassador, has written a letter to the Daily Telegraph anent that journal's proposal to take up a public subscription for the purpose of purchasing him a national Christmas gift as a token of the esteem of the British people. The letter, which is dated December 5, says in part:

"Early Sunday morning I telegraphed you not to proceed further with your kind and generous proposal for a testimonial to me from the people of this country in token of their appreciation of my efforts to establish between the two great English speaking countries relations of harmony and good will."

Mr. Bayard then proceeds to say that he was touched and gratified by the proposal and the Telegraph's generous eulogy of him, but that a few hours' reflection showed him that, holding his present office and invested with its discretion and duties, he should scrupulously obey the spirit of his country's law, which prohibits anyone holding an office of trust or profit under the American government from accepting "without the consent of congress any present from any king, prince or government."

He further says: "While I live I shall not cease to thank the people of these islands for the whole-hearted, unstinted welcome I have received at their hands and the warm hospitalities that have been showered on me and mine."

The Telegraph in a leader will Monday announce the withdrawal of its proposal. It will say there is no need to inquire whether any high official authority influenced Mr. Bayard to decline the proposed gift. The reception of the proposal has show how sincere is the good will of the English nation towards him.

LICENSE TO KILL.

The Moral Code May Become a Part of the Laws of Alabama.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 7.—Representative Pitts, one of the foremost lawyers in the assembly, introduced a bill seeking to allow the defense in cases of homicide or assault with intent to kill to produce proof tending to show cohabitation of the person assaulted with a female relative of the defendant to the third degree of consanguinity, the testimony to be evidence of justification or extenuation of the offense in the discretion of the jury.

The effect of the bill will be to license a man to kill the despoiler of his female relative. It is urged that the law making such homicide murder is a dead letter on the statute books, and that the proposed law would enable the juries of Alabama to cease ignoring the written law in order to meet the ends of justice.

Oregon Official.

SALEM, Ore., Dec. 7.—The official canvass of the vote of Oregon in the late presidential election shows that 97,341 votes were cast, divided as follows: McKinley, 48,711; Bryan, 46,739; Palmer, 979; Levering, 919. McKinley's plurality, 1,972.

Kansas Bank Closes Its Doors.

BAXTER SPRINGS, Kan., Dec. 7.—The Baxter Springs bank closed its doors Tuesday morning and is now in the hands of the deputy bank commissioner. The statement of assets and liabilities can not be obtained. The bank is hopelessly involved.

Get

Most for your money and save needless expenses now. It is true economy to build up with

Hood's

Sarsaparilla

The Best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills are prompt, efficient and easy in effect. 25 cents.

Had No Occasion to Use It.

There was recently a public sale of the effects of a deceased artist, who, though he never had any money and was always at the end of his resources, managed to accumulate a considerable amount of bric-a-brac, chiefly for use in his trade. All these things were sold for the benefit of the needy widow. Among the items on the published catalogue was the following eloquent one: "One money box, decorated, quite unused."

C. H. & D. Thousand Mile Tickets.—Only $20.00.

Are good on the following railroads: Louisville, New Albany & Chicago; Michigan Central bet. Toledo and Detroit; Terre Haute & Indianapolis; Peoria, Decatur & Evansville; Indiana, Decatur & Western; N. Y., P. & O. Div. Erie; Dayton & Union; Findlay, Ft. Wayne & Western; New York, Chicago & St. Louis; Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City; Balto & Ohio, west of Pittsburg and Benwood, and between Pittsburg and Wheeling; also between Indianapolis and Washington, D. C., via Cincinnati and Parkersburg, for continuous passage; B. & O. Southwestern; Cleveland Terminal & Valley; Pittsburgh & Western; Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo; Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling; Chicago & Southeastern; Wheeling & Lake Erie; Columbus, Sandusky & Hocking; Pittsburgh, Shenango & Lake Erie; Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw; Ohio Central Lines; Cleveland, Canton & Southern; Ohio Southern; Lima Northern; and will be accepted in payment for excess baggage, also for seats in the C., H. & D. Ry. Parlor Cars, and for Bridge Tolls into St. Louis.

THE devil can meet eloquence without trouble, but he has never been able to stand before love.—Ram's Horn.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

WHILE man is growing life is in decrease, and cradles rock us nearer to the tomb.—Young.

GENTLE treatment. St. Jacobs Oil soothes Neuralgia and cures it. It fades away.

NO METAPHYSICIAN ever felt the deficiency of language so much as the grateful.—Colton.

FOR Whooping Cough, Piso's Cure is a successful remedy. M. P. DIETER, 67 Throop Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 14, '94.

TRUE earnestness is wisdom warmed by love.—Chicago Standard.

CRUTCHES and cruel pains from Sciatica. From St. Jacobs Oil the cure of it.

NO MAN can climb higher than his own ambition.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

If you ever want to sell or exchange your Organ, remember it will be twice as valuable if the name on the front is

ESTEY

Write for Illustrated Catalogue with prices, to Estey Organ Company, Brattleboro, Vt.

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

GROVER'S LAST MESSAGE.

The President Presents His Suggestions to the Congress.

The Document Deals Chiefly With Our Relations With Foreign Countries.

Cuban Insurgents Have Not Yet Made Good Their Claim to Recognition.

Spain Should Offer the Cubans a Measure of Home Rule.

Nothing Left Undone to Protect Americans in The Ottoman Empire—The Establishment of United States Penitentiaries Recommended — Retirement of the Greenbacks Urged—Financial Question and the Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The following is a summary of President Cleveland's message to congress. Of affairs in Turkey the president says:

Affairs in Turkey.

At the outset of a reference to the more important matters affecting our relations with foreign powers, it would afford me satisfaction if I could assure the congress that the disturbed condition in Asiatic Turkey had during the past year assumed a less hideous and bloody aspect, and that either as a consequence of the awakening of the Turkish government to the demands of humane civilization, or as the result of decisive action on the part of the great nations having the right by treaty to interfere for the protection of those exposed to the rage of mad bigotry and cruel fanaticism, the shocking features of the situation had been mitigated.

Instead, however, of welcoming a softened disposition or protective intervention, we have been afflicted by continued and not unfrequent reports of the

Wanton Destruction of Homes

and the bloody butchery of men, women and children, made martyrs to their profession of Christian faith.

While none of our citizens in Turkey have thus far been killed or wounded, though often in the midst of dreadful scenes of danger, their safety in the future is by no means assured. Our government at home and our minister at Constantinople have left nothing undone to protect our missionaries in Ottoman territory, who constitute nearly all the individuals residing there who have a right to claim our protection on the score of American citizenship.

Our efforts in this direction will not be relaxed; but the deep feeling and sympathy that have been aroused among our people ought not to so far blind their reason and judgment as to lead them to demand impossible things. The outbreaks of blind fury which led to murder and pillage in Turkey occur suddenly and without notice, and an attempt on our part to force such a hostile presence there as might be effective for prevention or protection would not only be resisted by the Ottoman government, but would be regarded as an interruption of their plans to the great nations who assert their exclusive right to intervene in their own time and method for the security of life and property in Turkey.

Several naval vessels are stationed in the Mediterranean as a measure of caution and to furnish all possible relief and refuge in case of emergency.

We have made claims against the Turkish government for the pillage and destruction of missionary property at Harpoot and Marash during uprisings at those places. Thus far the validity of these demands has not been admitted, though our minister, prior to such outrages and in anticipation of danger, demanded protection for the person and property of our missionary citizens in the localities mentioned and notwithstanding that strong evidence exists of actual complicity of Turkish soldiers in the work of destruction and robbery.

Insurrection in Cuba.

The insurrection in Cuba still continues with all its perplexities. It is difficult to perceive that any progress has thus far been made towards the pacification of the island or that the situation of affairs as depicted in my last annual message has in the least improved. If Spain still holds Havana and the seaports and all the considerable towns, the insurgents still roam at will over at least two-thirds of the inland country. If the determination of Spain to put down the insurrection seems but to strengthen with the lapse of time and is evidenced by her unhesitating devotion of largely increased military and naval forces to the task, there is much reason to believe that the insurgents have gained in point of numbers, and character, and resources, and are none the less inflexible in their resolve not to succumb without practically securing the great objects for which they took up arms. If Spain has not yet re-established her authority, neither have the insurgents yet made good their title to be regarded

As an Independent State.

Indeed, as the contest has gone on, the pretense that civil government exists on the island, except so far as Spain is able to maintain it, has been practically abandoned.

Spain does keep on foot such a government, more or less imperfectly, in the large towns and their immediate suburbs. But, that exception being made, the entire country is either given over to anarchy or is subject to the military occupation of one or the other party. It is reported, indeed, on reliable authority, that, at the demand of the commander-in-chief of the insurgent army, the has now given up all attempt to exercise its functions leaving that government confessedly (what there is the best reason for supposing it always to have been in fact) a government merely on paper.

Putative Cuban Government

Were the Spanish army able to meet their antagonists in the open, or in pitched battle, prompt and decisive results might be looked for, and the immense superiority of the Spanish forces in numbers, discipline and equipment, could hardly fail to tell greatly to their advantage. But they are called upon to face a foe that

Shuns General Engagements,

That can choose and does choose its own ground, that from the nature of the country is visible or invisible at pleasure and that fights only from ambuscade, and when all the advantages of position and numbers are on its side. In a country where all that is indispensable to life in the way of food, clothing, and shelter is so easily obtainable, especially by those born and bred on the soil, it is obvious that there is hardly a limit to the time during which hostilities of this sort may be prolonged. Meanwhile, as in all cases of protracted civil strife, the passions of the combatants grow more and more inflamed and excesses on both sides become more frequent and more deplorable. They are also participated in by bands of marauders, who, now in the name of one party and now in the name of the other, as may best suit the occasion, harry the country at will and plunder its wretched inhabitants for their own advantage. Such a condition of things would inevitably entail immense destruction of property even if it were the policy of both parties to prevent it as far as practicable. But while such seemed to be the original policy of the Spanish government, it has now apparently abandoned it and is acting upon the same theory as the insurgents, namely, that the exigencies of the contest require the wholesale annihilation of property, that it may not prove of use and advantage to the enemy.

American Interests in Cuba.

The spectacle of the utter ruin of an adjoining country, by nature one of the most fertile and charming on the globe, would engage the serious attention of the government and the people of the United States under any circumstances. In point of fact, they have a concern with it which is by no means of a wholly philanthropical or sentimental character. It lies so near to us as to be hardly separated from our territory.

Our actual pecuniary interest in it is second only to that of the people and government of Spain. It is reasonably estimated that at least $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 of American capital are invested in plantations and in railroad, mining and other business enterprises on the island. The volume of trade between the United States and Cuba, which in 1889 amounted to about $64,000,000, rose in 1893 to about $103,000,000 and in 1894, the year before the present insurrection broke out, amounted to nearly $96,000,000. Besides this large pecuniary stake in the fortunes of Cuba, the United States finds itself inextricably involved in the present contest in other ways both vexatious and costly.

Many Cubans reside in this country and indirectly promote the insurrection through the press, by public meetings, by the purchase and shipment of arms, by the raising of funds and by other means, which the spirit of our institutions and the tenor of

Our Laws Do Not Permit

To be made the subject of criminal prosecutions.

Some of them, though Cubans at heart and in all their feelings and interests, have taken out papers as naturalized citizens of the United States, a proceeding resorted to with a view to possible protection by this government, and not unnaturally regarded with much indignation by the country of their origin. The insurgents are undoubtedly encouraged and supported by the widespread sympathy the people of this country always and instinctively feel for every struggle for better and freer government, and which, in the case of the more adventurous and restless elements of our population, leads in only too many instances to active and personal participation in the contest.

The result is that this government is constantly called upon to protect American citizens, to claim damages for injuries to persons and property, now estimated at many millions of dollars and to ask explanations and apologies for the acts of Spanish officials, whose zeal for the repression of rebellion sometimes blinds them to the immunities belonging to the unoffending citizens of a friendly power. It follows from the same causes that the United States is compelled to actively police a long line of sea coast against

Unlawful Expeditions,

The escape of which the utmost vigilance will not always suffice to prevent.

These inevitable entanglements of the United States, with the rebellion in Cuba, the large American property interests affected, and considerations of philanthropy and humanity in general, have led to a vehement demand in various quarters, for some sort of positive intervention on the part of the United States.

It was at first proposed that belligerent rights should be accorded to the insurgents, a proposition no longer urged because untimely and in practical operation clearly perilous and injurious to our own interests. It has since been and is now sometimes contended that the independence of the insurgents should be recognized. But imperfect and restricted as the Spanish government of the island may be, no other exists there—unless the will of the military officer in temporary command of a particular district can be dignified as a species of government. It is now also suggested that the United States should buy the island—a suggestion possibly worthy of consideration if there were any evidence of a desire or willingness on the part of Spain to entertain such a proposal. It is urged, finally, all other methods failing, the existing internecine strife in Cuba should be even at the cost of a war between the United States and Spain—a war which its advocates confidently prophesy could be neither large in its proportions nor doubtful in its issue. The correctness of this forecast need be neither affirmed nor denied. The United States has, nevertheless, a character to maintain as a nation, which plainly dictates that right, and not might, should be the rule of its conduct. Further, though the United States is not a nation to which peace is a necessity, it is in truth the most pacific of powers and desires nothing so much as to live in amity with all the world. Its own ample and diversified domains satisfy all possible longings for territory, preclude all dreams of conquest and prevent any casting of covetous eyes upon neighboring regions, however attractive. That our conduct toward Spain and her dominions has constituted no exception to this national disposition is made manifest by the course of our government, not only thus far during the present insurrection, but during the ten years that followed the rising at Yara in 1868.

Terminated By Our Intervention,

Spain Should Offer Autonomy.

It would seem that if Spain should offer to Cuba genuine autonomy—a measure of home rule which, while preserving the sovereignty of Spain, would satisfy all rational requirements of her Spanish subjects—there would be no just reason why the pacification of the island might not be effected on that basis. Such a result would appear to be in the true interest of all concerned. It would at once stop the conflict, which is now consuming the resources of the island and making it worthless for whichever party may ultimately prevail. It would keep intact the possessions of Spain without touching her honor, which will be consulted rather than impugned by the adequate redress of admitted grievances. It would put the prosperity of the island and the fortunes of its inhabitants within their own control, without severing the natural and ancient ties which bind them to the mother country, and would yet enable them to test their capacity for self government under the most favorable conditions.

It has been objected on the one side that Spain should not promise autonomy until her insurgent subjects lay down their arms. On the other side, that promised autonomy, however liberal, is insufficient, because, without assurance of the promise being fulfilled. But the reasonableness of a requirement by Spain, of unconditional surrender on the part of the insurgent Cubans before their autonomy is conceded is not altogether apparent. It ignores important features of the situation—the stability two years duration has given to the insurrection: the feasibility of its indefinite prolongation in the nature of things, and as shown by past experience; the utter and imminent ruin of the island, unless the present strife is speedily composed: above all, the rank abuses which all parties in Spain, all branches of her government and all her leading public men concede to exist and profess a desire to remove.

Facing such circumstances, to withhold the proffer of needed reforms until the parties demanding them put themselves at their mercy by throwing down their arms, has the appearance of neglecting the gravest of perils and inviting suspicion as to the sincerity of any Professed Willingness to Grant Reforms.

The objection on behalf of the insurgents—that promised reforms can not be relied upon—must, of course, be considered, though we have no right to assume, and no reason for assuming, that anything Spain undertakes to do for the relief of Cuba will not be done according to both the spirit and the letter of the undertaking.

Nevertheless, realizing that suspicions and precautions on the part of the weaker of two combatants are always natural and not always unjustifiable—being sincerely desirous in the interest of both as well as on its own account that the Cuban problem should be solved with the least, possible delay—it was intimated by this government to the government of Spain some months ago that, if a satisfactory measure of home rule were tendered the Cuban insurgents and would be accepted by them upon a guaranty of its execution, the United States would endeavor to find a way not objectionable to Spain of furnishing such guaranty.

While no definite response to this intimation has yet been received from the Spanish government, it is believed to be not altogether unwelcome, while, as already suggested, no reason is perceived why it should not be approved by the insurgents. Neither party can fail to see the Importance of Early Action

and both must realize that to prolong the present state of things for even a short period will add enormously to the time and labor and expenditure necessary to bring about the industrial recuperation of the island. It is therefore fervently hoped on all grounds that earnest efforts for healing the breach between Spain and the insurgent Cubans, on the lines above indicated, may be at once inaugurated and pushed to a successful issue. The friendly offices of the United States, either in the manner above outlined, or in any other way consistent with our constitution and laws, will always be at the disposal of either party.

When the inability of Spain to deal successfully with the insurrection has become manifest, and it is demonstrated that her for all purposes of its rightful existence, and when a hopeless struggle for its re-establishment has degenerated into a strife which means nothing more than the useless sacrifice of human life and the utter destruction of the very subject-matter of the conflict, a situation will be presented in which our obligations to the sovereignty of Spain will be superseded by the higher obligations, which we can hardly hesitate to recognize and discharge.

Sovereignty is Extinct in Cuba

Deferring the choice of ways and methods until the time for action arrives, we should make them depend upon the precise conditions then existing: and they should not be determined upon without giving careful heed to every consideration involving our honor and interest, or the international duty we owe to Spain. Until we face the contingencies suggested or the situation is by other incidents imperatively changed, we should continue in the line of conduct heretofore pursued, thus in all circumstances exhibiting our obedience to the requirements of public law and our regard for the duty enjoined upon us by the position we occupy in the family of nations.

Venezuela Boundary Question.

The Venezuelan boundary question has ceased to be a matter of difference between Great Britain and the United States, their respective governments having agreed upon the substantial provisions of a treaty between Great Britain and Venezuela submitting the whole controversy to arbitration. The provisions of the treaty are so eminently just and fair that the assent of Venezuela thereto may confidently be anticipated.

Negotiations for a treaty of general arbitration for all differences between Great Britain and the United State are far advanced and promise to reach a successful consummation at an early date.

Examination of Consular Applicants.

The scheme of examining applicants for certain consular positions, to test their competency and fitness, was adopted under an executive order issued on the 20th of September, 1895, has fully demonstrated the usefulness of this innovation. In connection with this plan of examination, promotions and transfers of deserving incumbents have been quite extensively made, with excellent results.

The inspection of consular offices provided for by an appropriation for that purpose at the last session of the congress, has been productive of such wholesome effects, that I hope this important work will in the future be continued.

I desire to repeat the recommendation contained in my last annual message, in favor of providing at public expense official residences for our ambassadors and ministers at foreign capitals.

Preservation of Seal Life.

We have, during the last year, labored faithfully against unfavorable conditions, to secure better preservation of seal life in the Behring sea. Both the United States and Great Britain have lately dispatched commissioners to these waters to study the habits and condition of the seal herd and the causes of their rapid decrease. Upon the reports of these commissioners, soon to be submitted, and with the exercise of patience and good sense on the part of all interested parties, it is earnestly hoped that hearty co-operation may be secured for the protection against threatened extinction of seal life in the Northern Pacific and Behring seas.

Receipts and Expenditures.

The secretary of the treasury reports that during the fiscal year, ended June 30, 1896, the receipts of the government from all sources amounted to $409,475,408.78. During the same period, its expenditures were $434,678,654.48. The excess of expenditures over receipts thus amounting to $25,203,245.70. The ordinary expenditures during the year were $4,015,852.21 less than during the preceding fiscal year. Of the receipts mentioned there was derived from customs the sum of $160,021,751.67, and from internal revenue $146,830,615.66.

The receipts from customs show an increase of $7,863,134.22 over those from the same source for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1895, and the receipts from internal revenue an increase of $8,584,537.91.

The value of imported dutiable merchandise during the last fiscal year was $369,757,470 and the value of free goods imported $409,967,470, being an increase of $6,523,675 in the value of dutiable goods and $41,231,034 in the value of free goods over the preceding year. Our exports of merchandise, foreign and domestic, amounted in value to $882,606,938, being an increase over the preceding year of $75,068,773. The average ad valorem duty paid on dutiable goods imported during the year was 39.94 per cent and on free and dutiable goods taken together 20.55 per cent.

The cost of collecting our internal revenue was 2.78 per cent., as against 2.81 per cent. for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895.

The total production of distilled spirits, exclusive of fruit brandies, was 85,588,703 taxable gallons, being an increase of 6,639,108 gallons over the preceding year. There was also an increase of 1,444,676 gallons of spirits, produced from fruit, as compared with the preceding year. The number of barrels of beer produced was 35,859,250, as against 33,589,784 produced in the preceding fiscal year, being an increase of 2,269,466 barrels.

The total amount of gold exported during the last fiscal year was $112,409,947, and of silver $60,541,670, being an increase of $45,941,466 of gold and $13,246,384 of silver over the exportations of the preceding fiscal year. The imports of gold were $33,525,065 and of silver $28,777,186, being $2,859,695 less of gold and $8,566,007 more of silver than during the preceding year.

The total stock of metallic money in the United States at the close of the last fiscal year ended on the 30th day of June, 1896, was $1,228,326,035 of which $599,597,964 was in gold and $628,728,071 in silver.

On the 1st day of November, 1896, the total stock of money of all kinds in the country was $2,285,410,590, and the amount of circulation, not including that in the treasury holdings, was $1,627,055,641, being $22.63 per capita upon an estimated population of 71,902,000.

The total outstanding circulating notes of all national banks on the 31st day of October, 1896, amounted to $234,553,807, including unredeemed but fully secured notes of banks insolvent and in process of liquidation. The increase in national bank circulation during the year ending on that day was $21,099,429. On October 6, 1896, when the condition of national banks was last reported the total resources of the 3,679 active institutions was $3,263,685,313.83, which included $1,893,268,839.31 in loans and discounts and $362,165,733.85 in money of all kinds on hand. Of their liabilities $1,597,891,058 was due to individual depositors and $209,944,019 consisted of outstanding circulating notes.

Life Saving Service.

From the life saving service it is reported that the number of disasters to documented vessels within the limits of its operations during the year was 437. These vessels had on board 4,608 persons, of whom 4,595 were saved and 13 lost. The value of such vessels is estimated at $8,880,140 and of their cargoes $3,846,380, making the total value of property imperiled $12,726,520. Of this amount $11,292,707 was saved and $1,432,750 was lost. Sixty-seven of the vessels were totally wrecked. There were besides 243 casualties to small undocumented draft, on board of which there were 594 persons, of whom 587 were saved and 7 were lost.

Marine Hospital Service.

The operations of the marine hospital service, the revenue cutter service, the steamboat inspection service, the light house service, the bureau of navigation and branches of public work attached to the treasury department, together with the various recommendations concerning their support and improvement, are fully stated in the report of the secretary of the treasury, to which the attention of congress is especially invited.

Immigration.

The number of immigrants arriving in the United States during the fiscal year was 343,267, of whom 340,468 were permitted to land, and 2,799 were debarred, on various grounds prescribed by law, and returned to the countries whence they came, at the expense of the steamship companies by which they were brought in.

The increase in immigration over the preceding year amounted to 82,731. It is reported that with some exceptions, that the immigrants of the past year were of a hardy laboring class, accustomed and able to earn a support for themselves, and it is estimated that the money brought with them amounted to at least $5,000,000.

Our Army.

The report of the secretary of war exhibits satisfactory conditions in the several branches of the public service intrusted to his charge. The limit of our military force, as fixed by law, is constantly and readily maintained. The present discipline and morals of our army are excellent, and marked progress and efficiency are apparent throughout its entire organization.

With the exception of delicate duties in the suppression of slight Indian disturbances along our southwestern boundary, in which the Mexican troops co-operated, and the compulsory but peaceful return, with the consent of Great Britain, of a band of Cree Indians from Montana to the British possessions, no active operations have been required of the army during the year past.

During the past year the work of constructing permanent infantry and cavalry posts has been continued at the places heretofore designated. The secretary of war, repeats his recommendation, that appropriations for barracks and quarters should more strictly conform to the needs of the service as judged by the department rather than respond to the wishes and importunities of localities.

Organized State Militia.

The organized militia numbers 112,879 men. The appropriations for its support by the several states approximate 2,800,000 annually, and $400,000 is contributed by the general government. Investigation shows these troops to be usually well drilled and inspired with much military interest, but in many instances they are so deficient in proper arms and equipment that a sudden call to active duty would find them inadequately prepared for field service. I therefore recommend that prompt measures be taken to remedy this condition, and that every encouragement be given to this deserving body of unpaid and voluntary citizen soldiers, upon whose assistance we must largely rely in time of trouble.

Erection and Armament of Fortification.

During the past year rapid progress has been made toward the completion of the scheme adopted for the erection and armament of fortifications along our sea coast, while equal progress has been made in providing the material for submarine defense in connection with these works.

It is peculiarly gratifying at this time to note the great advance that has been made in this important undertaking since the date of my annual message to the fifty-third congress at the opening of its second session, in December, 1893. At that time I informed the congress of the approaching completion of nine 12 inch, 20 10 inch and 34 eight inch high power steel guns, and 75 12 inch rifled mortars.

Big Guns.

Since that time the number of guns actually completed has been increased to a total of 21 21-inch, 56 10-inch, 61 8-inch high power breech-loading steel guns, 10 rapid-fire guns and 80 12-inch rifled mortars. In addition there are in process of construction one 16-inch type gun, 50 12-inch, 56 10-inch, 27 8-inch high power guns, and 66 12-inch rifled mortars; in all 428 guns and mortars. During the same year, immediately preceding the message referred to, the first modern gun carriage had been completed and 11 more were in process of construction.

All but one were of the non-disappearing type. These, however, were not such as to secure necessary cover for the artillery gunners against the intense fire of modern machine rapid fire and high power guns.

The inventive genius of ordnance and civilian experts has been taxed in designing carriages that would obviate this fault, resulting, it is believed, in the solution of this difficult problem. Since 1893 the number of gun carriages constructed or building has been raised to a total of 129, of which 90 are on the disappearing principle, and the number of mortar carriages to 152, while the 95 emplacements which were provided for prior to that time have been increased to 280 built and building.

United States Penitentiaries.

The attorney general presents a detailed and interesting statement of the important work done under his supervision during the last fiscal year. The ownership and management by the government of penitentiaries for the confinement of the convicted in United States courts of violation of federal laws, which for many years has been a subject of executive recommendation, has at last to a slight extent been realized by the utilization of the abandoned military prison at Fort Leavenworth as a United States penitentiary.

This is certainly a movement in the right direction; but it ought to be at once supplemented by the rebuilding or extensive enlargement of this improvised prison and the construction of at least one more, to be located in the southern states. The capacity of the Leavenworth penitentiary is so limited that the expense of its maintenance, calculated at a per capita rate upon the number of prisoners it can accommodate, does not make as economical an exhibit as it would if it were larger and better adapted to prison purposes; but I am thoroughly convinced that economy, humanity and a proper sense of responsibility and duty toward those whom we punish for violations of federal law, dictate that the federal government should have the entire control and management of the penitentiaries where convicted violators are confined.

It appears that since the transfer of the Fort Leavenworth military prison to its new uses, the work previously done by prisoners confined there, and for which expensive machinery has been provided, has been discontinued. This work consisted of the manufacture of articles for army use, now done elsewhere. On all grounds it is exceedingly desirable that the convicts confined in this penitentiary be allowed to resume work of this description.

The Post Office Department.

Our post office department is in good condition and the exhibit made of its operations during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, if allowance is made for imperfections in the laws applicable to it, is very satisfactory. The total receipts during the year were $82,499,208.40. The total expenditures were $90,626,296.84, exclusive of $1,559,898.27, which was earned by the Pacific railroad for transportation and credited on their debt to the government. There was an increase of receipts over the previous year of $5,516,080.21, or 7.1 per cent. and an increase of expenditures of $3,836,124.02, or 4.42 per cent.

The deficit was $1,679,956.19 less than that of the preceding year. The chief expenditures of the postal service are regulated by law and are not in the control of the postmaster general. All that he can accomplish by the most watchful administration and economy is to enforce prompt and thorough collection and accounting for public moneys and such minor savings in small expenditures and in letting those contracts for post office supplies and star service, which are not regulated by statute.

Mail Service.

The year's report shows large extensions of both star route service and railway mail service, with increased postal facilities. Much higher accuracy in handling mail has also been reached, as appears by the decrease of errors in the railway mail service and the reduction of mail matter returned to the dead letter office. The deficit of the last year, although much less than that of the last and preceding years, emphasizes the necessity for legislation to correct the growing abuse of second class rates, to which the deficiency is mainly attributed.

The transmission at the rate of one-cent a pound of serial libraries, advertising sheets, "house organs (periodicals advertising some particular "house" or institution), sample copies and the like, ought certainly to be discontinued. A glance at the revenues received for the work done last year will show more plainly than any other statement the gross abuse of the postal service and the growing waste of its earnings:

The free matter carried in the mails for the departments, offices, etc., of the government and for congress in pounds amount to 94,480,189.

The entire expenditures of the department, including pay for transportation credited to the Pacific railroads was $92,186,105.11, which may be considered as the cost of receiving, carrying and delivering mail matter, though the second-class matter constituted more than two-thirds of the total that was carried, the revenue derived from it was less than one-thirtieth of the total expense. The average revenue from each pound of first-class matter was 93 cents.

Salaries Instead of Fees.

It is most gratifying to note the satisfactory results that have followed the inauguration of the new system provided for by the act of May 28, 1896, under which certain federal officials are compensated by salaries instead of fees.

The new plan was put in operation on the first day of July, 1896, and already the great economy it enforces, its prevention of abuses and its tendency to a better enforcement of the laws, are strikingly apparent. Detailed evidence of the usefulness of this long-delayed but now happily accomplished reform will be found clearly set forth in the attorney general's report.

The growth in weight of second class matter has been from 299,000,000 pounds in 1894 to 312,000,000 in 1895, and to almost $349,000,000 in 1896, and it is quite evident this increasing drawback is far outstripping any possible growth of postal revenues.

Abuses Should be Corrected.

Our mail service should, of course, be such as to meet the wants and even the conveniences of our people, at a direct charge upon them so light as perhaps to exclude the idea of our post office department being a money-making concern: but in the face of a constantly recurring deficiency in its revenues, and in view of the fact that we supply the best mail service in the world, it seems to me it is quite time to correct the abuses that swell enormously our annual deficit. If we concede the public policy of carrying weekly newspapers free in the county of publication, and even the policy of carrying at less than one-tenth of their cost, other bona fide newspapers and periodicals there can be no excuse for subjecting the service to the further immense and increasing loss involved in carrying at the nominal rate of one cent a pound the serial libraries, sometimes including trashy and even harmful literature, and other matter which, under the loose interpretation of a loose statute, has been gradually given second class rates, thus absorbing all profitable returns derived from first class matter, which pays three or four times more than its cost, and producing a large annual loss to be paid by general taxation.

If such second class matter paid merely the cost of its handling, our deficit would disappear and a surplus result which might be used to give the people or cheaper rates of letter postage. I recommend that legislation be at once enacted to correct these abuses and introduce better business ideas in the regulation of our postal rates. Experience and observation have demonstrated that certain improvements in the organization of the post office department must be served before we can gain the full benefit of the immense sums expended in its administration.

Still Better Mail Facilities

I especially recommend such a recasting of the appropriations by congress for the post office department as will permit the postmaster general to proceed with the work of consolidating post offices. This work has already been entered upon sufficiently to fully demonstrate, by experiment and experience, that such consolidation is productive of better service, larger revenues, and less expenditures to say nothing of the further advantage of gradually withdrawing post offices from the spoils system.

The Work of the Navy.

The work of the navy department and its present conditions are fully exhibited in the report of the secretary.

The construction of vessels for our new navy has been energetically prosecuted by the present administration upon the general lines previously adopted, the department having seen no necessity for radical changes in prior methods under which the work was found to be progressing in a manner, highly satisfactory. It has been decided, however, to provide in every ship building contract that, the builder should pay all trial expenses, and it has also been determined to pay no speed premiums in future contracts.

On March 4, 1893, there were in commission but two armored vessels, the double turreted monitors Miantonomoh and Monterey. Since that date, of vessels theretofore authorized, there have been placed in their first commission three first class and two second class battle ships, two armored cruisers, one harbor defense ram, and five doubled turreted monitors, including the Maine and the Puritan, just completed.

Eight new unarmored cruisers and two new gunboats have also been commissioned. The Iowa, another battleship, will be completed about March 1, and at least four more gunboats will be ready for sea in the early spring. It is gratifying to state that our ships and their outfits are believed to be equal to the best that can be manufactured elsewhere, and that such notable reductions have been made in their cost, as to justify the statement that quite a number of vessels are now being constructed at rates as low as those that prevail in European shipyards.

The Government Navy Yards.

Our manufacturing facilities are at this time ample for all possible naval contingencies. Three of our government navy yards, those at Mare Island, Cal., Norfolk, Va., and Brooklyn, N. Y., are equipped for ship building, our ordnance plant in Washington is equal to any in the world and at the torpedo station we are successfully making the highest grades of smokeless powder. Three first class private ship yards at Newport News, Philadelphia and San Francisco are building battle ships; eleven contractors, situated in the states of Maine, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia and state of Washington are constructing gunboats or torpedo boats.

Two plants are manufacturing large quantities of first class armor, and American factories are producing automobile torpedoes, powder, projectiles, rapid-fire guns, and everything else necessary for the complete outfit of naval vessels.

There have been authorized by congress since March, 1893, five battle ships, six light draft gunboats, sixteen torpedo boats and one submarine boat. Contracts for the building of all of them have been let. The secretary expressed the opinion that we have for the present a sufficient supply of cruisers and gunboats and that hereafter the construction of battle ships and torpedo boats will supply our needs.

The Interior Department.

The report of the secretary of the interior presents a comprehensive and interesting exhibit of the numerous and important affairs committed to his supervision.

The money appropriated on account of this department for its disbursement for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, amounted to more than $137,000,000, or a greater sum than was appropriated for the entire maintenance of the government for the two fiscal years ended June 30, 1861.

Our public lands, originally amounting to 1,840,000,000 acres have been so reduced that only about 600,000,000 acres still remain in government control, excluding Alaska. The balance, being by far the most valuable portion, has been given away to settlers, to new states and to railroads, or sold at a comparatively nominal sum.

I agree with the secretary that the remainder of our public lands should be more carefully dealt with and their alienation guarded by better economy and greater prudence.

The commission appointed from the membership of the national academy of sciences, provided for by an act of congress to formulate plans for a national forestry system, will, it is hoped, soon be prepared to present the result of thorough and intelligent examination of this important subject.

The Pensioners.

The diminution of our enormous pension roll and the decrease of pension expenditure which have been so often confidently foretold, still fail in material realization. The number of pensioners on the rolls at the close of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, was 970,678. This is the largest number ever reported. The amount paid exclusively for pensions during the year was $138,214,761.94, a slight decrease from that of the preceding year, while the total expenditures on account of pensions, including the cost of maintaining the department and the expenses attending pension distribution amounted to $142,206,550.59, or within a very small fraction of one-third of the entire expense of supporting the government during the same year. The number of new pension certificates issued was 90,640. Of these 40,374 represent original allowance of claims and 15,878, increases of existing pensions.

The number of persons receiving pensions from the United States but residing in foreign countries at the close of the late fiscal year was 3,781, and the amount paid to them during the year $582,735.38.

The sum appropriated for the payment of pensions for the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1879, is $140,000,000, and for the succeeding year it is estimated that the same amount will be necessary.

The commissioner of pensions reports that during the last fiscal year 3.9 indictments were found against violators of the pension laws. Upon these indictments 167 convictions resulted.

In my opinion, based upon such statements as these and such other information and observations, the abuses which have been allowed to creep into our pension system have done incalculable harm in demoralizing our people and undermining good citizenship. I have endeavored within my sphere of official duty to protect our pension roll and make it what it should be, a roll of honor, containing the names of those disabled in our country's service and worthy of their country's affectionate remembrance.

Agricultural Department.

The department of agriculture is so intimately related to the welfare of our people and the prosperity of our nation that it should constantly receive the care and encouragement of the government. Large sums of money are annually appropriated for the maintenance of this department, and it must be confessed that the legislation relating to it has not always been directly in the interest of practical farming or properly guarded against waste and extravagance. So far, however, as public money has been appropriated fairly and sensibly to help those who actually till the soil, no expenditure has been more profitably made or more generally approved by the people.

Under the present management of the department its usefulness has been enhanced in every direction, and at the same time strict economy has been enforced to the utmost extent permitted by congressional action. From the report of the secretary it appears that through careful and prudent financial management he has annually saved a large sum from his appropriations, aggregating during his incumbency and up to the close of the present fiscal year one-fifth of the entire amount appropriated.

Farm Products Export.

The secretary reports that the value of our exports during the fiscal year amounted to $570,000,000, an increase of $17,000,000 over the year immediately preceding.

This statement is not the less welcome because of the fact that, notwithstanding such increase, the proportion of exported agricultural products to our total exports of all descriptions fell off during the year. The benefits of an increase in agricultural exports being assured, the decrease in its proportion to our total exports is the more gratifying when we consider that it is owing to the fact that such total exports for the year increased more than 175,000,000.

The large and increasing exportation of our agricultural products suggests the great usefulness of the organization lately established in the department for the purpose of giving to those engaged in farming pursuits reliable information concerning the condition, needs and advantages of different foreign markets.

The Present Tariff Law.

I desire to recur to the statements elsewhere made concerning the government's receipts and expenditures for the purpose of venturing upon some suggestions touching our present tariff law and its operation.

This statute took effect on the 28th day of August, 1894. Whatever may be its shortcomings as a complete measure of tariff reform, it must be conceded that it has opened the way to a freer and greater exchange of commodities between us and other countries, and thus furnished a wider market for our products and manufactures.

The only entire fiscal year during which this law has been in force ended on the 30th day of June, 1896. In that year our imports increased over those of the previous year more than $6,500,000, while the value of the domestic products we exported and which found markets abroad, was nearly $70,000,000 more than during the preceding year.

Those who insist that the cost to our people of articles coming to them from abroad for their needful use should only be increased through tariff charges to an extent necessary to meet the expenses of the government, as well as those who claim that tariff charges may be laid upon such articles beyond the necessities of government revenue, and with the additional purpose of so increasing their price in our markets as to give American manufacturers and producers better and more profitable opportunities, must agree that our tariff laws are primarily justified as sources of revenue to enable the government to meet the necessary expenses of its maintenance. Considered as to its sufficiency in this aspect the present law can by no means fail under just condemnation.

I believe our present tariff law, if allowed a fair opportunity, will in the near future yield a revenue, which, with reasonably economical expenditures, will overcome all deficiencies.

The Deficit Need Not Disturb Us.

In the meantime no deficit that has occurred or may occur need excite or disturb us.

To meet any such deficit we have in the treasury, in addition to a gold reserve of one hundred millions, a surplus of more than one hundred and twenty-eight millions of dollars applicable to the payment of the expenses of the government, and which must, unless expended for that purpose, remain a useless hoard, or, if not extravagantly wasted, must in any event be perverted from the purpose of its exaction from our people.

Monetary Reform.

I am more convinced than ever that we can have no assured financial peace and safety until the government currency obligations upon which gold may be demanded from the treasury are withdrawn from circulation and cancelled. This might be done, as has been heretofore recommended, by their exchange for long-term bonds bearing a low rate of interest or by their redemption with the proceeds of such bonds.

Even if the United States notes known as greenbacks were thus retired, it is probably that the treasury notes issued in payment of silver purchases under the act of July 14, 1890, now paid in gold when demanded, would not create much disturbances, as they might, from time to time, when received in the treasury by redemption in gold or otherwise, be gradually and prudently replaced by silver coin.

This plan of issuing bonds for the purpose of redemption certainly appears to be the most effective and direct path to the needed reform.

In default of this, however, it would be a step in the right direction if currency obligations redeemable in gold, whenever so redeemed, should be cancelled instead of being re-issued. This operation would be a slow remedy, but it would improve present conditions.

National banks should redeem their own notes. They should be allowed to issue circulation to the par value of bonds deposited as security for its redemption and the tax on their circulation should be reduced to one-fourth of one per cent.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Dec. 9, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time……………………$1.00
Each additional time……………… .25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL, - - - Publisher.

☞Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered……..$5.00.

For Assessor.

We are authorized to announce W. W. GRIMSLEY, of Big Bone, as a candidate for Assessor, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For Jailer.

We are authorized to announce J. F. BLYTH, of Burlington, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce T. J. ADAMS, of Burlington precinct, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Richwood.

Mrs. John Soden is able to be out.

Spencer Tanner was visiting J. J. Tanuer, last Suuday.

Several of the candidates for Assessor have been in this neighborhood.

Frank Norman and family were visiting his father, last Sunday.

We are informed that there will be transfers of realty in this vicinity in a few months.

The railroad accommodations at this place are very poor since the 9:35 train going to Cincinnati does not stop.

Limaburg.

Stock hogs are scarce and bring four cents.

O. W. Rouse and wife were guests of of W. C. C. Rouse, last Sunday

Mrs. Theodore Crigler, of Ludlow, is very low with a tumor cancer on her face.

A majority of the farmers will be through killing hogs by the close of this week.

Mrs. T. B. Aylor, who has been suffering with a carbuncle, we are glad to report improving.

Everett Dixon's children have the whooping cough very badly. The disease has attacked several of the school children, and there is talk of closing the school for a few weeks.

Erlanger.

Regular meeting of Good Faith lodge F. & A. M., Saturday at 7:45 p. m.

Mr. Ackline Riggs, an old pioneer citizen, of Kenton county, died Sunday morning.

The Improvement Association met last Thursday evening and accepted the report of committee on survey. The committee on law reported having engaged Mr. Sam Adams, the attorney, who had drawn the papers for incorporation. Next meeting, Thursday evening, when the election of officers will take place.

The Masonic Lodge entertainment to their wives and families proved one of the most enjoyable affairs ever given in this town, and all who had the good fortune to be there will remember it for years. Those who took part, were The Ludlow Double Quartett; Miss C. Williams, song; Mr. and Mrs. George Schoeppel, duett; Morgan Mitchell and Geo. Schoeppel, duett; Mr. John Burbank, recitation; Mr. Geo. Buchanan and Mrs. Thos Buchanan, duett; Miss Anna Bedinger, piano solo; Chester Souther and a trio of piano, flute and violin by Miss Anna Bedinger, John Kerstiug and L. Morelli. After the entertainment an elegant banquet was served to 150 invited guests by the Stewards, John Westerman and Morgan Mitchell.

Bullittsville.

Mrs. Chas. Helm died at her home near this place, Nov. 30th.

Rev. Curry will preach at the Christian church, next Sunday.

Mr. Jas. A. Blanton passed through town, last Sunday morning.

Miss Lizzie Stephens has returned from a two weeks visit in Delhi, O.

"Cousin Temp" has a very bad cold, almost pneumonia we are sorry to say.

Our republican friend, W. C. Watts, continues in good health and better spirits.

Miss Etta Graves entertained a dozen of her friends very delightfully Thanksgiving day.

Elder Archibald Brown occupied the pulpit at Mt. Pleasant, Thanksgiving day and night.

Miss Bessie Kirtley and brother, of Covington, spent Sunday with W. P. Cropper and family.

Dr. Clore has been ill treating himself in attending his patients while he is on the sick list himself.

Euchre parties are the order, of the day, or rather of the night. Miss Mary Gaines entertained a number of friends with one of this sort, Saturday night.

Misses Zayda Gaines, Bernice Duncan and Messrs T. G. Graves and Edwin Gaines, went to see Joe Jefferson in Rip Van Winkle at the Walnut St., Theater, last Saturday night.

Names of pupils on roll of honor in Hedge Grove academy: Alberta Gaines 97; Donald Gaines, 94; Bertha Gaines, 94½; Liman Gaines, 95½; Mary Gaines, 94; Beula Gaines, 93¾; Omer Henry, 95; Bernard Gaines, 93½ Nellie Duncan, 95; George Riley, 93; Edgar Riley, 93; Bert Jones, 93½; Everett Jones, 93; Kenneth Balsly, 93¾; Sophia Ackemyer, 94; Euna Willis, 94; Mabel Kirtley, 93; Lacy Kirtley, 94½; Bessie Cropper, 95; Holman Hayes, 93; Howard Hays, 90½ Edna Riley, 91½; Edgar Graves, 94.

Bellevue.

Corn is selling at $1 per barrel, delivered.

Mrs James Connor, of Walnut Hills, Ohio, is with her mother.

Elder Curry preached his farewell sermon here, last Sunday.

Mrs. Michael Clore is getting along as well as can be expected.

The Clore boys sold and delivered to Huey & C., 53 hogs at $3.05 per cwt.

Mr. Stoups, of Indiana, gave our people quite an interesting "phonographic concert."

Johnson & Willis, two of Boone's candidates, were canvassing our district last week.

Nicholas Swatz, of Aurora, Ind., was in our burg, last week, selling brooms of his own manufacture.

Chas. Acra tried the Cincinnati market for horses, the past week, and returned with no sale, market n. g.

Richard White, of near Burlington, delidered to A. Corbin & Son, Monday, seven hogs that weighed 350 pounds. E. L. Grant, Jr., delivered same day, 40 hogs to Mrs. Selmes, weighing 175 pounds each.

Mrs. Selmes has begun the pork business at Miss Julia Dinsmore's, where she expects to butcher 100 or more hogs during the season. This is the third firm in that line in this section; and they are all at work.

One of our townsmen heard the baying of his dogs, one night not long ago, and out with his fire-arms and gave the thief four rounds as he thought, but on further investigation found he had been shooting his wife's dress swinging on a limb in the yard.

Joseph Maurer & Sons have bought of Andy Grosser, Jno. Deck and others, of Woolper, near 12,000 lbs. of the osier willow at 4c. Mr. Maurer and his four sons are all manufacturers of willowware, hence the necessity for the quantity of material.

Petersburg.

Your Utzinger writer drove through town Sunday, with a wreath of smiles on his face.

Ben Jarrell and wife drove out on Woolper Sunday to see his mother, aunt Mildred Jarrell.

Frank Cox, clerk in Lamar's store in Aurora, was seen on our streets Sunday, looking unusually well.

Robt. Day and Lizzie Kelly and others, visited Ben Jarrell's and James Hensley's, Sunday week.

George Olds killed hogs Monday the 23 ult, Reuben Akins, Monday the 23d Steve Burns, Dr. Tilley and Mr. Isaac Brown, killed a large number together.

The widow of Mr. B. F. Blyth joined the Methodist church Sunday morning, and at night. Rev. Mr. Early, of the Christian church, took part in the exercises with the Methodist pastor, Rev. Mr. Harris.

Mr. Thomas Johnson and wife, of Delaware, Ind., stopped here last Tuesday on their way home from Covington, where they spent two weeks with their son, Furman, and family. Their daughter, Stella, died a short time ago. Out of a large family of children they now have only a son and daughter left.

The owner of the tow boat, Gate City, who had employed a number of laborers from this place in loading a stone boat just below the mouth of Garrison creek, undertook to "bully" Irvin Theetge, but was fearfully mistaken in his man. Some of boys offered to put up their wages in favor of Theetge, but the Gate City man gave in.

Hathaway.

Several from here attended the baptizing at Bellevue.

Miss Carrie Woods has been quite poorly for several days.

Ask Mac Neal how he likes to go cart riding on Sunday and drive a young horse.

Milt Weldon has never heard anything of his fine mare that was stolen about a month ago.

Boys, get your tin pans ready. I think you will need them about xmas from the way Pat is acting.

F. J. Rue and family and B. F. Rue and family intend to spend the holidays at Lexington this year.

Mrs. Ida Rue, of Lexington, who has been visiting friends and relatives here for the past two weeks, has returned home.

Wood Stephens and his handsome wife have gone to house keeping in their home near Waterloo. May their path be strewn with roses.

A little child of Leon Baker, colored, caught fire, Wednesday, while its parents were away, and was burnt so badly it died the next morning.

Last week was just lovely winter weather, and nearly every one took advantage of it and killed hogs. There were two or three killings every day.

The rain last Thursday night week brought Gunpowder down in full force and caught a good many on the other side that did not get over until Saturday evening, and then run great risk in crossing.

Verona.

Farmers are about through gathering corn.

Boys, get your tin pans ready. A wedding to report next week.

W. B. O'Neal, of Foster, is spending a vacation with his parents here.

A pleasant social was tendered at the residence of Mr. J. Calahan, in honor of his daughter, Miss Bessie, last Saturday night. It was an enjoyable occasion.

All who firmly believe in the principles of Bimetallism as embodied in the Chicago platform that nominated W. J. Bryan for president, and who desire to support and perpetuate said principles, are requested to meet at 6:30 o'clk. p. m. Saturday, Dec. 12th, 1896.

I'm very sorry your writer was misinformed as to the charges at Mr. Myers oyster supper, as I am one of the Baptist Sunday School, and was anxious for the success of the supper. Hoping to restore good feeling, I offer this apology.

Mr. editor the programme of the Teachers Educational Association was considerably mixed up in last weeks' communication. Was it the author's fault or was it the oversight of the type setter?—[It was caused by sizing up the items in the make up.—ED.]

Constance.

Mrs. Celia Rust is on the sick list.

Mr. Taylor Fox is on the sick list.

Barny Brink gave his home a coat of paint.

Cal Cowen, our night ferryman, is on the sick list.

A new ceiling has been put in the Constance Christian church.

The Constance public school will give an entertainment at the school house christmas eve.

The Constance Sunday school will give there usual christmas treat to the scholars Sunday after christmas.

There is some talk of Proctor & Gambel purchasing the old desicating site and starting a soap and starch factory.

L. H. Voshell, Supt. of public school, was here Dec. 3d visiting the schools. Mr. Voshells views as to running public schools are excellent.

An oyster supper was given at Mr. Chas. Scott's last Saturday. The proceeds were donated to Master Ranning to assist him in finishing his theological course of study.

We understand Mr. McCoy, president of the Dry Creek & Covington pike, has been offered a fabulous price by the Cincinnati Consolidated R. R. Co. for one mile of the pike from Dry creek up, to keep the Covington R. R. Co. from building an electric line down to this point.

Taylorsport.

Mrs. Lizzie Souther is on the sick list.

John Popham is the happiest man in these parts—it is a girl.

The nice fall weather gave the farmers a chance to do their work, and they are now all out of a job.

The Democrats in the Constance precinct ought to organize a club.

We are glad to report that Nick Miller is recovering from a severe attack of typhoid fever.

Florence

Mrs. Drusilla Overhilman, died at her home in Florence, Ky., after an illness of almost three years. She passed quietly away on Nov. 23d, 1896. She was the last of five children of Jonas and Mary Yager, and would have been 67 years of age had she lived until the 11th of next July. Her husband preceded her more than five years. In her the Florence Baptist Church looses one of its faithful workers. Services were conducted at the house, after which her remains were interred in the Florence cemetery. She leaves no children, but many relatives and friends to mourn her death.
SARAH YAGER.

FOR SALE—About 700 bushels, good assorted corn, lot of oak paling and fence posts and a lot of sheaf oats. All of this property is to be found on the farm of the late J. H. Smith, north of Burlington. Apply to
W. L. AYLOR, Adm'r.

The darkies got into a row at Beaver, one night last week, and made considerable display of their pistols, but Constable Ad. Riddell succeeded in quieting them before anyone was hurt.

Green Bros. keep the most reliable stock of Shoes in Rising Sun. They make a special effort to give full value for the money.

Rev. Howe, Christian minister, will preach at Verona, M. E. Church, Monday and Tuesday night Dec. 14 and 15.

2100 good 4 ft. red oak pickets for $8 cash, if sold within three weeks.
JOHN SEBREE, Petersburg, Ky.

FROM GALLATIN COUNTY.

[Independent]

Sheriff Everett E. Winn took Chas. Brenton to the insane asylum at Anchorage, Wednesday, under order of Circuit Court. The young man was received by the authorities though they were of the opinion that the young man had no business there as he was of sound mind.

During the recent session of that august body, the grand jury, a young colored boy was called before them, and he was closely interrogated as to various misdemeanors that might have been committed under his observation. As usual he "didn't know nuthin." They struck oil when they asked the final question as to whether he had ever noticed minors drinking intoxicants. "Yes sir" was the prompt reply. "Who was it and when was it?" was quickly asked by the expectant foreman." "I seed Os Minor take a drink the other day" was the laconic reply, referring to a man of legal age taking a friendly glass, and the jurymen could hardly resist throwing the young wag down the stairs.

FROM CARROLL COUNTY.

Tobacco on the Move—Primary Called—A Flood Predicted.

[News]

The deliveries of tobacco at the Barker warehouse the past week have been heavy.

The primary election to select Democratic candidates for county offices has been set for Thursday, Feb., 25th.

A lady who is very observant says we may look out for another flood this winter, as every feature observable in 1883-4 have been present this fall.

For the first time that the piscatorial editor of the News can recall, bass and calicoe perch were caught here with rod and line on Thanksgiving day.

[Democrat.]

Mrs. Bert Gaines and little babe, of Boone county, are guests of Mrs. O. M. Huey.

The Little Sandy, with full head on, went under the Kentucky river ferry boat rope Tuesday, and tore off her smoke stack.

Nash-Taylor! It was the greatest surprise of the year. Clarence T. Nash and Miss Laura D. Taylor were married as long ago as May 25, but their friends were in blissful ignorance of the fact until Thanksgiving day.

Let the government work on the Kentucky river improvement proceed with no unnecessary delay, and it will only be a year or so until we shall have navigation the year round to the Kentucky coal fields. The continuous appropriation plan ought to keep the work moving right along, it would seem to an outsider.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

Candidates by the Score—Corn 85 Cents per Barrel—A Bold Robbery.

[Courier]

Seven new candidates are announced this week.

Corn is being delivered in Williamstown at 85 cents per barrel. Dr. R. H. O'Hara is filling a one hundred barrel crib at that price.

Oh my! What a day Saturday was for candidates. They litterally swarmed in Williamstown. If a country man who "hit" the town on that day got away with a well arm and sober he was indeed a lucky individual. The fun too has only commenced.

The Executive Committee of the Democratic party of Grant county has been called to meet in Williamstown on Monday, December 14, 1896, for the purpose of fixing the time and manner of nominating candidates for county officers.

One night last week some bold bad thief entered the premises of Dr. J. T. Scott, and almost in the presence of the family and of passers-by stole the doctor's buggy. At the same time they took the buggy cushion of W. G. O'Hara. It was scarcely nine o'clock when the thief got in his work and it was late next morning before the loss was discovered and pursuit could be made. Diligent search and inquiry has been made but no trace of the stolen goods has been found.

Andy Scheben,
DEALER IN ALL KINDS OF
Wines, AND Liquors BRANDY.
Old Bourbon $2.00 Per Gallon.
LEXINGTON PIKE.
ERLANGER, - - - KY.
Near Town Hall.

KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.
[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A.M.				A.M.	P. M
d 4:50	z9:13	Ar	Walton	Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8:52	Ar	Williamstown	Lv	8:32
3:48	8:28	Ar	Corinth	Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar	Sadieville	Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar	Georgetown	Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv	Frankfort	Ar	11:30	7:25

z Daily. d Except Sunday.
C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent?
Protect your ideas: they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

THE QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE
Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain.
The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.
Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.
Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.
Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.

Scientific American Agency for
PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the
Scientific American

Isn't It Reasonable?
We maintain that GOOD CLOTHING CAN BE BOUGHT BOR LESS MONEY at Our Store than elsewhere in this vicinity. Why do we say so? Because we know it to be a fact that
Our EXPENSES ARE THE LOWEST. BUYING IS THE CLOSEST. And
WE ARE SATISFIED WITH THE SMALLEST PROFITS.
You can not get something for nothing anyanywhere, but you can get get value for your money at
ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS
S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

STEPHENS & SCALES,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Hardware, Cutlery, and Agricultural Implements,
Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Steel Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,
BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE
AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.
No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.

BEST GOODS! LIVING PRICES!
Hardware,
Farm Machinery,
Fine Vehicles,
Harness.
HARRIS FITCH, Corner HIGH AND SHORT STREETS,
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.
Prices Reasonable.
F. PIEPER,
Optician and Jeweler,
Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to
We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.
616 Madison Ave., - - COVINGTON, KY.

A SPECIAL INVITATION TO
Our Boone County Neighbors!
When in LAWRENCEBURG, IND., Stop at the Old Reliable
ADLES'R BARGAIN STORE.
Where you can pick up a bargain in the line of
Dry Goods, Shoes, Etc., also Holiday Attractions.
Here are a few Sample Bargains:
Ladies' Beaver Capes—all colors, $2 real value $3.50. Child's Long Cloaks—$1.75 real value $3. Beautiful Novelty Dress Goods—10c worth 15c. Best Calicoes & Ginghams, 5c. Best Yarns (all colors,) 5c skein. Wool Fascinators, Hoods or Shawls, 25c worth 50c. Blankets (heavy 10-4) 50c each worth 75c. Heavy Comforts, 75c worth $1.25 Men's Working Pants, only 50c worth 75c. Men's Underwear, 50c suit worth 90c
OUR LEADERS—Men's Cong. or Lace Shoes (all style toes) $1 actually worth $1.50. Ladies' Button or Lace, calf or kid (tips or without) $1 actually worth $1.50. Misses' School Shoes, sizes 1½, 75c actually worth $1.25. Infants' Tip Button, 25c actually worth 40 cents.
Adler's BARGAIN STORE,
27 Walnut St., LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

SNAPS.
Leather SNAPS! Boot & Shoe SNAPS!
We have a Store full of Genuine Snaps in
Boots, Shoes, Hats and Gloves,
And we cordially invite our Boone County friends to call and partake of same.
PAUL A. DAVIS, Manager.
Sign of Big Red Boot. Rising Sun, Indiana.

FALL AND WINTER.
CLOTHING AND OVERCOATS,
Gent's Furnishing Goods, Hats and Caps,
Underwear, Umbrellas,
Trunks and Valises.
COME AND SEE US,
MARSHALL & STAHL,
MASONIC BUILDING
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - INDIANA

Local News.

A very small at court Monday.

A great many hogs were butchered last week.

The grand jury will be on duty again next week.

The fall of snow expected here last week, did not show up.

B. W. Adams tried for several days last week to have lagrippe.

Any time during the past week was a good time for butchering.

Some of the boys want to know how Jim Clore can hold two offices at once.

John Lassing had a pet on his neck, last week, that gave him some trouble.

The candidates for county offices were more plentiful in town last Monday than voters.

Sanks & Stier furnish a house complete. Nos. 69, 70 and 71 Second street Aurora, Indiana.

Don't fail to see B. F. Buchanan's Holiday Stock at Corner Drug Store, Rising Sun, Ind. 3t

There are several contested cases on the docket for the term of the Circuit Court beginning next Monday.

Sanks & Stier, undertakers and embalmers. Satisfaction guaranteed. Nos. 69, 70 & 71, Second street, Aurora, Ind.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c

Robert E. Tanner obtained license, last Saturday, to marry Miss Jane Afterkirk. They were married yesterday at Florence.

If you want a pair of Ladies' nice Kid Gloves, be sure to go to Green Bros., Rising Sun, Ind. They keep the best line in the town.

The most complete line of Corsets in Rising Sun, is at Green Bros. They give special attention to this department. Prices, 50c to $1.50

Those grand and petit jurors at the last April and August terms of the Circuit Court, who have not received their pay, will please call and get their money.

The Von Boken Hotel building, an old land mark in Florence, is being torn down, and in the spring a nice, modern building will be erected on the site.

Those owing school taxes in the Union School District No. 35, must come forward and pay same at once, or I will add the penalty.

J. W. CONNER, Treasurer.

MONEY—There was some money found on the Covington & Lexington pike, near Erlanger and same is in our possession. Owner can have same by proving ownership. S. L. WEBB,
Cashier Erlanger Deposit Bank.

We desire to extend our thanks to the good people of Hebron and vicinity who so kindly administered to us in the death of our loved one, during his long illness.

MRS MOLLIE QUICK & CHILDREN.

Weston's Combination Show gave a good exhibition here, one night last week. The show struck the town at a very bad time on account of the cold weather, and the attendance was not as large as it otherwise would have been.

The County Judge has appointed the following as supervisors of tax for this year: W. M. Rogers, of Walton; M. S. Rouse, of Florence; N. S. Walton, of Petersburg; J. R. Clutterbuck, of Burlington, and J. J. Stephens, of Rabbit Hash.

The County Democratic Executive Committee should meet and decide upon a date for holding the primary election. If it is to be held at a late date the candidates ought to be so informed that they may govern themselves accordingly.

The toll pole out on the Petersburg pike was wrecked one night last week. Some negroes, who supposed the pole was not down, drove their horse against it under a good rate of speed, and knocked it off of its pins. No other damage was done.

J. J. Ferris, Geo. C. Voshell and two or three others came near being run over by the Str. Buckeye State, as they were crossing the river in the Aurora ferry boat Monday morning. The steamer came very close to them, and gave them a bad scare.

The injuries received by H. G. Buckner from a fall through the hatchway of the steamer on which he had started South, were not as bad as first reported. Instead of being broken his knee and ankle were badly sprained, and he will soon be able to be out again.

There was a husking bee at Uncle Yancy Clore's, one night last week. About ten o'clock a large pile of very fine corn was rounded up, and the hands were invited to the house, where an old time supper was served, and was enjoyed by those who had sharpened their appetites at the corn pile.

The report reaches here that Daniel Bedinger, of the Richwood neighborhood, stored about 100 bushels of wheat in one of his barns last fall, and one day last week he went to look after it, and was surprised to find that the entire lot had been stolen. When and by whom Mr. Bedinger has not the slightest idea

Green Bros., of Rising Sun, are selling goods to correspond with the time. They handle first-class goods, sell at one price to all, and have established a good trade. They show a handsome line of Dry Goods, Hats and Shoes, including a nice line of Ladies' Capes and Jackets, and invite all to call and see them.

Incomparable Service.—The Queen & Crescent trains are the finest run in the State of Kentucky. Four daily trains to Cincinnati connect with the main highways of the great Trunk Lines of the North, West and East. This is the line par-excellent to Washington, New York, Boston and the East. The Queen & Crescent connects with every line out of Cincinnati.

Irl Hicks prognosticates as follows: The winter of 1896-97 will be very long and cold, with much snow in all localities where snow is a factor. Blizzards will be numerous, highways will be blockaded, to be followed by much rainfall and high water most of the year. Do not be in haste to get in spring crops. Plant large and late varieties of corn. Wet weather will be your trouble. Provide good shelter for your stock and do not forget the suffering, hungry poor of the land.

PUBLIC SALE—I will offer for sale to the highest bidder, at my residence, near Locust Grove school house, Thursday, Dec., 17th, 1896, the following property to wit: 3 horses, 1 cow and calf, 9 fat hogs, 1 buggy and harness, slide, plows, harness, &c., 1 set of work harness, about 30 bbls. of corn, 75 shocks of fodder, household and kitchen furniture.

Terms—All sums of $5.00 and under, cash; sums over that amount a credit of 12 months will be given, purchaser to give note with approved security.

Sale to begin at 9 a. m.

JAS. A. RILEY.

Programme for the Teachers' Association to be held at Constance, Saturday, December 19th, 1896:

Welcome Address—C. C. Richmond.

Response—L. H. Voshell.

Possessive Pronoun as treated by Harvey—Ed Mathews, Hallie Loring.

Square and Cube Root—Maggie C. Ryle, Sam Orem.

NOON.

Teachers' Aid and how Applied?—A. C. Collins. Grace Stewart.

School Announcements—Ella Norman, Maud Ryle, Oliver N. Orem.

L. H. VOSHELL, Supt.

Local Tammany held a convention at the shoeshop one night last week, and had unanimously endorsed one of its members for the office of County Judge, and he was just about to send out for the cigars for the meeting, when one of the braves moved that the nomination be reconsidered, giving as his reason for his motion that he held the position of road overseer, an office he very much desired to continue to administer, and in the event the nominee was elected was liable to give the office to another. The nomination was reconsidered and set aside, and after endorsing candidates for the other county offices, the meeting adjourned to meet upon call of Tammany's Chief.

Mr. Davidson, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, thinks the school census takers have reported hundreds and perhaps thousands more children of school age than the State really contains. He has been in correspondence with the officials and staticians of other States securing figures for comparison. It develops that Indiana, with more population and many more voters than Kentucky, has less children between 5 and 20 years than Kentucky has between 6 and 20 years. Michigan shows a similar discrepency of thousands. Missouri, with a population and a vote a third bigger than Kentucky, shows a school census of but few more than this State. The indications will convince the most casual investigator that Mr. Davidson has good grounds for his suspicion.

The law requires those who become 20 years of age before July not to be counted as school children for the ensuing year: and to count only those who become 6 years of age before the July preceding the beginning of the school year. Mr. Davidson thinks it has been the habit of the census takers to count those who were less than 20 at any time during the year and those who became 6 at any time during the year in which the census is taken. If this is really where the trouble lies, he is preparing to remedy it by a change in the blanks furnished the census takers. This change consists in providing a blank for taking the date of birth of the pupil.

No loss results to the State from any excessive report of pupils. The loss to the district that report correctly and fairly their quota of pupils, and again to the districts that report more pupils than they have, and consequently get more than their share of the school fund.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. B. W. Adams has lagrippe.

Miss Mary Thompson returned home last Monday.

S. W. Tolin is suffering from a severe attack of lagrippe.

Miss Carrie Senour, of Erlanger, is a guest at J. R. Clutterbuck's.

Miss Mattie Whitson is the guest of Mrs. W. E. Vest, at this place.

Misses Fannie Willis and Euna Duncan were visiting friends in Burlington one day last week.

Hon. John S. Gaunt, of Carrollton, was one of the early arrivals at county court, last week.

A. W. Smith and wife, of Crescent, were visiting his father, Dr. Smith, at this place Sunday.

Mr. Bernard O'Neal, of Verona, was the guest of Sheriff Roberts and family last Saturday and Sunday.

B. W. Adams says if he has not been fighting the grip for a week past, he does not know what ailed him.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Corbin, of Kenton county, were visiting J. R. Clutterbuck and family, last Saturday.

S. W. Tolin visited Petersburg, last Saturday, to look after his new ferry-boat being built at that ship yard.

James N. Pearson, of Florence, spent last Thursday in Burlington. He was laying a rail on his political fence occasionally.

Mrs. Jane Sutton and son, of Bellevue, were transacting business with County Judge Stephens at his office, last Thursday.

Dr. L. C. Cowen, of Rabbit Hash, was in town Thursday, giving his deposition in the suit to settle the estate of James L. Henderson.

Our young friend, Jack Sandford, it is said, took a few lessons in legerdemaine and ventriloquism, of Professor Weston while here last week.

Sam C. Johnson, Walton's candidate for Assessor, was in town Friday night. Sam is acknowledged to be the most hustling candidate in the field.

Owen Watts passed through town, one day last week, headed towards the South end of the county, to devote some time to looking after his political fences.

J. L. Clore was acting deputy sheriff a day or two last week. He was sent down on Woolper, where it is said he knows everybody and everything even to the pig tracks.

R. Lee Huey, of Hamilton, was in town last Saturday, and reported the larders in his neighborhood as laden with all the good things resulting from the hog-killing season.

Dr. Lassing, of Union, and Henry C. Lassing, of Nashville. Tenn., were the guests of J. M. Lassing and family, last Sunday. Henry and his family left for home Monday morning, after a week's pleasant visit with his parents.

J. D. Acra, whose residence occupies one of the greatest elevations on the Burlington and East Bend road, says he was sure the wind last Thursday night week would carry it away. He was badly scared during the gale.

R S. Cowen returned from Chariden county, Missouri, last week. He spent some time with John J. Piatt, who moved there from the Rabbit Hash neighborhood several years ago, and says Mr. Piatt owns a fine body of land, and is doing well. He visited Charles Allen and William Riddell, whom he says are leading men in their section. At Rothville he found old man Lee, who lived in Burlington years ago and was a great friend to his father's family. The old man is now in poor health.

MISSOURI LETTER.

OSBORN, MO., Nov. 26th, 1896.

Dear Sir:—I have thought of writing to the RECORDER ever since I came to Missouri, but have put it off from time to time until this week, and the paper came so full of good things I feel like I must write and renew my subscription as next week my time is out and I hate to miss one paper. How anxiously we look for the familiar names and news from "home."

Poor Kentucky has certainly fallen into the hands of the Philistines for I am certain she never would have gone Republican without some pressure was brought to bear upon her that she could not resist. Our county (Clinton) as well as State ticket went straight Democratic from President to Coroner. We were so sure of Bryan being elected, are thankful we still have him if he isn't President.

What has become of "Cal." and Dr. Cowen? Poor Mr. Riddell did not even have apples to barrel this fall, his sometime resort in times of such anguish as has just overtaken him. I take it for granted he was for Bryan.

We have the prettiest country here I ever saw for all purposes. It is rolling enough to drain itself without tiling, timbered enough not to seem bare like so much of the prairie. We had a large crop of apples and pears. Apples sell from 30 to 50 cents per barrel; potatoes sell at 30 cents per bushel, and corn, only a very moderate crop, at 15 and 20 cents per bushel. Altogether the farmers are not expecting to grow rich nor pay off many mortgages with a continuation of the present single gold standard.

MRS. E. P. STEPHENS.

Wm. F. GOETZE
Scientific Optician.

Headquarters at Hornberger's Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.

Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

ANNOUCEMENT!

I wish to announce to my friends that I have accepted the agency for
C. ROSS LODWICK,
Undertaker & Embalmer,
3035 W. 6th St. CINCINNATI, O.,
And am prepared to furnish all articles for
FUNERAL PURPOSES
on short notice.

Prompt attention will be paid to FUNERAL ORDERS and strict attention given to the care of the dead.
Respectfully,
GEO. BLYTH, Burlington, Ky.

DR. A. B. HARRYMAN,
DENTIST.

Will be in Lawrenceburg, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.
At Aurora, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Practiced for 30 years.
No Poisonous Gasses Used.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court.
James H. Lawell, Plaintiff,
vs
J. H. Walton's adm'r, ~~heirs~~, &c.. defts.

This cause is now referred to J. B. Berkshire, Master Commissioner of said court, under section 431 Civil Code of Practice, with the following instructions. First—The Commissioner will audit and settle the accounts of the administrators. Second—The Master will hear proof, ascertain and report the amount of the debts found against decedent's estate, and how secured if at all. Third—The Master will hear proof and determine the number of acres of land owned by decedent at the time of his death, where located and the probable value thereof. He will give due notice of his sittings by written or printed notices posted up at the Court House door in Burlington, Ky., 5 days preceeding his sittings and also publish said notices in the Boone Co. Recorder. He will report at the next term of this court.

Given under my hand as clerk of said court, this Nov. 16th, 1896.

J. W. DUNCAN, Clerk.

Notice is hereby given that I will begin my sittings at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., on the 23rd day of Nov., 1896, to hear proof of claims, under the order of reference in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 10th day of Dec., 1896. All persons having claims against J. H. Walton's estate will present them to me proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.
J. R. Clutterbuck's Assignee, Plff.
vs.
J. R. Clutterbuck, &c. Defts.

This cause is now referred to J. B. Berkshire Master Commissioner of said court under Sec. 431 Civil Code of practice, with the following instructions:

First—The Commissioner will audit and settle the accounts of the assignee.

Second—The Master will hear proof ascertain and report the amount of the debts against the Assignors estate, and how secured if at all.

Third—The Master will hear proof and determine the number of acres of land owned by the Assignor, where located, and the probable value thereof. He will give due notice of his sittings by written or printed notices posted up at the court house door in Burlington, Ky., at least 5 days preceding his sitting and also publish said notices in the Boone County RECORDER.

Given under my hand as clerk of said court, this Dec. 4th, 1896.

J. W. DUNCAN, Clerk.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 12th day of Dec., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 16th day of Dec., 1896. All persons having claims against J. R. Clutterbuck will present them to me properly proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

Administrat's Notice.

Those indebted to the estate of J. V. West, dec'd., must come forward and settle at once, and those having claims against said estate must present the same at once proven according to law.

E. S. WEST, Adm'r.

NOTICE.

All persons holding claims against J. R. Clutterbuck must present them to me at my office in Burlington, Ky., proven as by law required and persons indebted to the said Clutterbuck must settle with me at once.

S. W. TOLIN, Assignee.
Sept. 10th, 1896.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

NEW STOCK! LOW PRICES!

We invite attention to our newly arrived Stock of Fall and Winter Goods
—SUCH AS—
Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps, Jeans, Yarns,
Woolens, Etc., at
LOWER PRICES
THAN EVER BEFORE.
Large Line of FRESH GROCERIES always on Hand.
Give us a Call W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,
—DEALERS IN—
PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,
—63 and 65 Pike Street,—
Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.
ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.
CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.
27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.
Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDERTAKER EMBALMER,
—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,
Undertakers AND Embalmers,
OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,
COVINGTON, KY.
CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.
Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL
WHOLESALE AND
RETAIL GROCER;
GRASS SEED.
Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.
Tom Wilson, Salesman.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.

☞We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office
And FEED STORE from
708 Madison Avenue
To the Large and more Commodious Quarters
15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.
Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with
GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED
At the Lowest Market Values.
Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,
W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANTS,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.

A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.

UNDERTAKING.
is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. HANKINS.
Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

CELESTIAL WORLD.

Dr. Talmage Throws New Light on an Oft-Disputed Point.

The Doings of Those Who Have Gone Before—Their Life a Continuation of This—The Height of Greater Perfection Makes the Christian Soul Homesick for Heaven.

Dr. Talmage's sermon gives a very unusual view of the celestial world, and is one of the most unique discourses of the great preacher. The text was Ezekiel i., 1: "Now it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I was among the captives by the river of Chebar, that the heavens were opened."

Ezekiel, with others, had been expatriated and, while in foreign slavery, was standing on the banks of the royal canal which he and other serfs had been condemned to dig by the order of Nebuchadnezzar—this royal canal in the text called the River of Chebar—the illustrious exile had visions of Heaven. Indeed, it is almost always so, that the brightest visions of Heaven come not to those who are on mountain-top of prosperity, but to some John on desolate Patmos, or to some Paul in Mamertine dungeon, or to some Ezekiel standing on the banks of a ditch he had been compelled to dig—yea, to the weary, to the heart broken, to those whom sorrow has banished. The text is very particular to give us the exact time of this vision. It was in the thirtieth year, and in the fourth month, and in the fifth day of the month. So you have had visions of earth you shall never forget. You remember the year, you remember the month, you remember the day, you remember the hour. Why may we not have some such vision now, and it be in the twelfth month, and in the sixth day of the month?

The question is often silently asked, though perhaps never audibly propounded, "What are our departed Christian friends doing now." The question is more easily answered than you might perhaps suppose. Though there has come no recent intelligence from the heavenly city, and we seem dependent upon the story of 18 centuries ago, still I think we may from strongest inference decide what are the present occupations of our transferred kinsfolk. After God has made a nature he never eradicates the chief characteristic of its temperament. You never knew a man phlegmatic in temperament to become sanguine in temperament. You never new a man sanguine in temperament to become phlegmatic in temperament. Conversion plants new principles in the soul, but Paul and John are just as different from each other after conversion as they were different from each other before conversion. If conversion does not eradicate the prominent characteristics of temperament, neither will death eradicate them. Paul and John are as different from each other in Heaven as they were different from each other in Asia Minor.

You have then only by a sum in subtraction and a sum in addition to decide what are the employments of your departed friends in the better world. You are to subtract from them all earthly grossness and add all earthly goodness, and then you are to come to the conclusion that they are doing now in Heaven what in their best moment they did here on earth. The reason why so many people never start for Heaven is because they could not stand it if they got there if it should turn out to be the rigid and formal place some people photograph it. We like to come to church, but we would not like to stay here till next summer. We like to hear the "Hallelujah Chorus," but we would not want to hear it all the time for 50 centuries. It might be on some great occasion it would be possibly comfortable to wear a crown of gold weighing several pounds, but it would be an affliction to wear such a crown forever. In other words, we run the descriptions of heaven into the ground while we make that which was intended as especial and celebrative to be the exclusive employment in heaven. You might as well, if asked to describe the habits of American society, describe a Decoration day or a Fourth of July, or an autumnal Thanksgiving, as though it were all the time that way.

I am not going to speculate in regard to the future world, but I must, by inevitable laws of inference and deduction and common sense, conclude that in Heaven we will be just as different from each other as we are now different, and hence that there will be at least as many different employments in the celestial world as there are employments here. Christ is to be the great love, the great joy, the great rapture, the great worship of Heaven, but will that abolish employments? No more than love on earth—paternal, filial, fraternal, conjugal love abolishes earthly occupation.

In the first place, I remark that all those of our departed Christian friends, who on earth found great joy in the fine arts, are now indulging their tastes in the same direction. On earth they had their greatest pleasures amid pictures and statuary, and in the study of the laws of light and shade and perspective. Have you any idea that that affluence of faculty at death collapsed and perished? Why so, when there is more for them to look at and they have keener appreciation of the beautiful, and they stand amid the very looms where the sunsets and the rainbows and the spring mornings are woven? Are you so obtuse as to suppose that because the painter drops his easel, and the sculptor his chisel, and the engraver his knife, that therefore that taste, which he was enlarging and intensifying for forty or fifty years, is entirely obliterated? These artists, or these friends of art, on earth worked in coarse material and with imperfect brain and with frail hand. Now they have carried their art into larger liberties and into wider circumference. They are at their old business, but without the fatigues, without the limitations, without the hindrances of the terrestrial studio. Raphael could improve upon his masterpiece of "Midhael the Archangel," now that he has seen him, and could improve upon his masterpiece of the "Holy Trinity," now that he has visited them. Michael Angelo could better present the "Last Judgment" after he had seen its flash and heard the rumbling battering rams of its thunder. Exquisite colors here, graceful lines here, powerful chiaroscuro here, but I am persuaded that the grander studies and the brighter galleries are higher up, by the winding marble stairs of the sepulcher, and that Turner and Holman Hunt, and Rembrant, and Titan, and Paul Veronese, if they exercised saving faith in the Christ whom they have portrayed upon the canvas, are painting yet, but their strength of faculty multiplied 10,000 fold. Their hand has forgotten its cunning, but the spirit has faculties as far superior to four fingers and a thumb as the supernatural is superior to the human. The reason that God took away their eye and their hand and their brain was that He might give them something more limber more wieldy, more skillful, more multiplant. Do not, therefore, be melancholy among the tapestries, and the bric-a-brac, and the embroideries, and the water colors, and the works of art which your departed friends used to admire. Do not say, "I am so sorry they had to leave all these things." Rather say, "I am glad they have gone up to higher artistic opportunity and appreciation." Our friends who found so much joy in the fine arts on earth are now luxuriating in Louvres and Luxembourgs celestial.

I remark again, that all our departed Christian friends who in this world were passionately fond of music are still regaling that taste in the world celestial. The Bible says so much about the music of Heaven that it can not all be figurative. Why all this talk about hallelujahs and choirs on the glass and trumpets and harps and oratorios and organs? The Bible over and over again speaks of the songs of Heaven. If Heaven had no songs of its own a vast number of those on earth would have been taken up by the earthly emigrants. Surely the Christian at death does not lose his memory. Then there must be millions of souls in Heaven who know "Coronation" and "Antioch" and "Mount Pisgah" and "Old Hundred." The leader of the eternal orchestra need only once tap his baton and all Heaven will be ready for the hallelujah. If Heaven should ever get out of music Thomas Hastings and Lowell Mason and Bradbury would start up a hundred old magnificent chorals. But what with the new song that John mentions, and the various doxologies alluded to, and the importation of sub-lunar harmonies, a Christian fond of music, dying, will have an abundance of regalement. What though the voice be gone in death, what though the ear be fallen, in dissolution, are you therefore to conclude that the spirit will have no power to make or catch sweet sounds? Can not the soul sing? How often we compliment some exquisite singing by saying: "There was so much soul in her music." In Heaven it will be all soul until the body after awhile comes up in the resurrection, and then there will be an additional Heaven. Can not the soul hear? If it can hear, then it can hear music. Do not, therefore, let it be in your household when some member leaves for Heaven, as it is in some households, that you close the piano and unstring the harp for two years because the fingers that used to play on them are still. You must remember, that they have better instruments of music where they are. You ask me, "Do they have real harps and real trumpets and real organs?" I do not know. Some wiseacres say positively there are no such things in Heaven. I do not know, but I should not be surprised if God, who made all the mountains, and all the hills, and all the forests, and all the mines of the earth, and all the growths of the universe, I should not be surprised if He could, if he had a mind to, make a few harps and trumpets and organs. Grand old Haydn, sick and worn out, was carried for the last time into the music hall; there he heard his oratorio of the "Creation." History says that as the orchestra came to that famous passage, "Let there be light," the whole audience rose and cheered, and Haydn waved his hand toward Heaven and said: "It comes from there." Overwhelmed with his own music, he was carried out in his chair, and as he came to the door he spread his hand toward the orchestra as in benediction. Haydn was right when he waved his hand toward Heaven and said. "It comes from there." Music was born in Heaven, and it will ever have the highest throne in Heaven, and I want you to understand that our departed friends who were passionately fond of music here are now at the headquarters of harmony. I think that the grand old church tunes that died when your grandfathers died have gone with them to Heaven. When those tunes died they did dot stay on earth, and they could not have been banished to perdition, and so I think they must be in the corridors of alabaster and Lebanon cedar.

Again I remark that those of our departed Christian friends, who in this world had very strong military spirit, are now in armies celestial and out in bloodless battle. There are hundreds of people born soldiers. They can not help it. They belong to regiments in time of peace. They can not hear a drum or fife without trying to keep step to the music. They are Christian, and, when they fight, they fight on the right side. Now, when these, our Christian friends who had natural and powerful military spirit, entered Heaven, they entered the celestial army. The door of Heaven scarcely opens but you hear a military demonstration. David cried out, "The chariots of God are 20,000." Elisha saw the mountains filled with celestial cavalry. St. John said, "The armies which are in heaven followed him on white horses." Now, when those who had the military spirit on earth sanctified entered glory, I suppose they right away enlisted in some heavenly campaign; they volunteered right away. There must needs be in heaven soldiers with a soldierly spirit. There are grand parade days, when the king reviews the troops. There must be armed escort sent out to bring up from earth to heaven those who were more than conquerors. There must be crusades ever being fitted out for some part of God's domain—battles, bloodless, groanless, painless. Angels of evil to be fought down and fought out. Other rebellious worlds to be conquered. Worlds to be put to the torch. Worlds to be saved. Worlds to be demolished. Worlds to be sunk. Worlds to be hoisted. Besides that, in our own world there are battles for the right and against the wrong where we must have the heavenly military. That is what keeps us Christian reformers so buoyant. So few good men against so many bad men, so few churches against so many grogshops, so many pure printing presses against so many polluted printing presses, and yet we are buoyant and courageous, because while we know that the armies of evil in the world are larger in number than the army of truth, there are celestial cohorts in the air fighting on our side. I have not so much faith in the army on the ground as I have in the army in the air. O God, open our eyes, that we may see them: The military spirits that went up from earth to join the military spirits before the throne—Joshua and Caleb, and Gideon, and David, and Samson, and the hundreds of Christian warriors who on earth fought with fleshly arm, and now having gone up on high are coming down the hills of Heaven ready to fight among the invisibles. Our departed Christian friends, who had the military spirit in them sanctified, are in the celestial army. Whether belonging to the artillery, or the cavalry, or the infantry, I know not. I only know that they have started out for fleet service, and courageous service, and everlasting service. Perhaps they may come this way to fight on our side, and drive sin and meanness, and Satan from all our hearts. Yonder they are coming. Did you hear them as they swept by?

But what are our mathematical friends to do in the next world? They found their joy and delight in mathematics. There was more poetry to them in Euclid than in John Milton. They were as passionately fond of mathematics as Plato, who wrote over his door, "let no one enter here who is not acquainted with geometry." What are they doing now? They are busy with figures yet. No place in all the universe like Heaven for figures. Numbers infinite, distances infinite, calculations infinite. If they want them, arithmetics and algebras, and geometries, and trigonometrics for all eternity. What fields of space to be surveyed! What magnitudes to measure! What diameters, what circumferences, what triangles, quaternions, what epicycloids, what parallelograms, what conic sections! The didactic Dr. Dick said that he really thought that the redeemed in Heaven spent some of their time with the higher branches of mathematics. So of our transferred and transported metaphysicians. What are they doing now? Studying the human mind, only under better circumstances then they used to study it. They used to study the mind sheathed in the dull human body. Now the spirit unsheathed—now they are studying the sword outside the scabbard. Have you any doubt about what Sir William Hamilton is doing in Heaven, or what Jonathan Edwards is doing in Heaven, or the multitudes on earth who had a passion for metaphysics sanctified by the grace of God? No difficulty in guessing. Metaphysics, glorious metaphysics, everlasting metaphysics.

What are our departed Christian friends who are explorers doing now? Exploring yet, but with lightning locomotion, with vision microscopic and telescopic at the same time. A continent at a glance. A world in a second. A planetary system in a day. Christian John Franklin, no more in disabled Erebus, pushing toward the North Pole; Christian De Long no more trying to free blockaded Jeanette from the ice; Christian Livingston no more, amid African malaria, trying to make revelation of a dark continent, but all of them in the twinkling of an eye in that which was once unapproachable. Mont Blanc scaled without alpenstock. The coral depths of the ocean explored without a diving bell. The mountains unbarred and opened without Sir Humphrey Davy's safety lamp.

What are our departed friends who found their chief joy in study doing now? Studying yet, but instead of a few thousand volumes on a few shelves, all the volumes of the universe open before them—geologic, ornithologic, conchologic, botanic, astronomic, philosophic. No more need of Leyden jars, or voltaic piles, or electric batteries, standing as they do face to face with the facts of the universe.

What are the historians doing now? Studying history yet, but not the history of a few centuries of our planet only, but the history of the eternities—whole milleniums before Xenophon, or Herodotus, or Moses, or Adam was born. History of one world. History of all worlds. What are our departed astronomers doing? Studying astronomy yet, but not through the dull lens of earthly observatory, but with one stroke of wing going right out to Jupiter, and Mars, and Mercury, and Saturn, and Orion, and the Pleiades—overtaking and passing the swiftest comet in their flight. Herschel died a Christian. Have you any doubt about what Herschel is doing? Isaac Newton died a Christian. Have you any doubt about what Isaac Newton is doing? Joseph Henry died a Christian. Have you any doubt about what Joseph Henry is doing? They were in discussion, all these astronomers of earth, about what the aurora borealis was, and none of them could guess. They know now; they have been out there to see for themselves.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC GOVERNOR.

He Evidently Believes in the Natural Advantages of His Own State.

"Nowhere in all the republic can more prolific response be had from the soil to the intelligent cultivation of man. Nowhere can purer water, a more genial climate, or summer skies be found to bless contented homes."

These words were spoken of Alabama by her enthusiastic governor, Joseph F. Johnston, in his recent inaugural address, and one not living there, is tempted to believe it all when that one follows Gov. Johnston as he enumerates the resources and capabilities of his state:

"With an area of but little more than 50,000 square miles," says Mr. Johnston, "there is no territory of like size in the known world so prolific in the variety of its resources; were a wall erected around our state, cutting off all access, we could produce within our borders everything necessary for the comfort or convenience of man. Great veins of iron ore and seams of coal put at our command almost boundless resources in fuel, iron and steel. Splendid forests of yellow pine here stand ready to build homes for millions of people. Building stone and marble, fire clay, kaolin and lime exist in great abundance; walnut, maple, oak, cherry, ash and other hard woods, await the hand of man for manufacture or the adornment of our homes.

"In the production of pig iron we take rank as the fourth state in the union; in iron ore, third; in coal we stand fifth; in the production of cotton, fourth, and in its manufacture, fourth.

"In lumber we are near the head of the list.

"It would be unjust should I fail to include in our minerals copper, lead, graphite, marl and gold; indeed the only mineral that we seem to be without and to want most is silver.

"Leaving forest and mine and coming to our fields we find that they produce generously cotton, corn, wheat, rye, oats, tobacco, rice and the grasses, and here is the home of the pear, the peach, the grape and all small fruits. Vegetables are grown with great success, and this industry is steadily developing. Our splendid rivers, the Alabama, Cossa, Tallapoosa, Warrior, Cahaba, Bigbee and the Tennessee are the liquid arteries of the commonwealth, fed by innumerable creeks, all fruitful in power to convert our raw products into articles of merchandise.

"Over 3,000 miles of railroads traverse our state from north to south, and east to west, furnishing quick transportation to market for our products.

"When we come to our climate we find that the Giver of all good things has not stayed His hand, and that He has blessed us with opportunity to labor 12 months in the year without detriment to health or comfort. Indeed, we can scarcely appreciate the blessings we enjoy in this respect when compared with less favored regions, for even now we are seemingly unconscious that roses are blooming in our gardens, and the fragrant air is sweet with their perfume.

"The Piedmont region of our state shows that its average thermometer in summer and winter corresponds almost exactly with that of Berlin and Hamburg, whilst Mobile and the lower part of the state correspond largely with the climate of Frankfort-on-the-Main, and Carlsruhe. The average temperature for the whole state shows about 40 degrees Fahrenheit for January, 75 for July, and 60 degrees for April and October.

"Our streams abound in fish, our woods are fragrant with flowers, and our beautiful seaport supplies an abundance of fish and oysters for all our people. Nowhere in all the republic can more prolific response be had from the soil to the intelligent cultivation of man. Nowhere can purer water, a more genial climate or sunnier skies be found to bless contented homes.

"These are our opportunities, these the substantial groundwork upon which a great commonwealth can be erected."

Of course all of this was not said without a direct object, and continuing he pointed the way in which his dream of a great commonwealth could be realized. This for citizens of the state both actual and prospective. We wonder if the same, or similar, wise things might not be said of many another state, highly favored by natural resources and dormant wealth, of our great union.

"This is the age of industrial development, and to that task the legislator and citizen should bend their energies and weary not in well doing. When we consider that we are now cultivating and utilizing less than one-third of these resources, and that the other two-thirds produce taxes only, it behooves us to invite to our borders and give generous welcome to men and money to aid in awakening these dormant resources.

"Our pig iron should be melted and our cotton spun and woven at home, thus giving greater employment to labor and establishing home markets for our agricultural products.

"The smoke of our factories should be found rising in every county, and our furnaces, like pillars of fire, should light the night.

"The production of grasses and the raising of cattle should be stimulated until we become one of the great beef raising states of the union.

"There seems to be no good reason why our productive lands should not become a great center for the manufacture of beet sugar, and by its exportation to sister states and further store to an increasing income; canning establishments should utilize fruits and vegetables that now too often rot on our farms.

"Behind these splendid resources we have a patriotic and hospitable people, equal laws and an incorruptible judiciary securing to those who may come amongst us generous welcome and ample protection to life, liberty and property."

LEGISLATION NEEDED.

A Thorough Test of the Revenue Raising Power Should Be Given.

Secretary Carlisle's discovery that revenue legislation is absolutely necessary to put the national finances in sound condition is rather belated. Throughout the last session of congress, when bonds were being sold to the prodigious profit of millionaire bankers for the maintenance of a gold reserve which was systematically depleted to provide funds for the current expenses of government, the secretary stoutly insisted that no deficit in the revenue existed, nor need any be feared. Rev. John Jasper has not more pertinaciously preached his theory "the sun do move" than did Secretary Carlisle proclaim the solvency of the treasury despite its apparent bankruptcy. In the face of this record, the secretary's admission now that additional internal revenue taxes will be necessary to provide for the expenses of the government is tantamount to admission of systematic misrepresentation by him in the past.

Seemingly it was a mistaken idea that to admit the failure of the Wilson bill would be a form of party disloyalty which actuated Carlisle in his extraordinary course. The condition of the treasury was so patent to all that his repeated denials of any lack of money were received with general incredulity at the time, and are now made ridiculous by his tardy confession. If, as seems probable, the administration feared the political effect of any supplementary tariff legislation, it was singularly ill-advised. Nothing in the course of the past four years did more to develop that great force within the democratic party which thrust out Cleveland and Carlisle than the repeated bond issues which the policy of inaction compelled.

It is not probable that Mr. Carlisle's suggestion now for providing more revenue by laying more taxes on tea and other articles of general consumption will be heeded. An expiring congress is little apt to take up burdens which can be left to its successor. That the new administration and the new congress recently chosen cannot at once take charge of the government is unfortunate. The species of interregnum which follows every presidential election is invariably hurtful to business.

When the new congress shall assemble—particularly if McKinley should summon it immediately upon his inauguration—it will be the part of patriotism for democrats to refrain from merely factious opposition to revenue measures. Suggestion has been made that the silver senators repeat the exploit of last winter, and defeat any tariff measure which is not accompanied by a silver bill. Public sentiment would infallibly condemn such a course. The republican party, having gained complete control of the government, is entitled to put its policy—which in this year is definitely high protection and gold monometallism—to the test. If it succeeds in reestablishing prosperity through its administration of the state, it will merit and receive the gratitude of the citizens without distinction of party. If it fails the people will turn elsewhere for leaders. Meanwhile it should be the policy of those in house or senate who may disagree with the majority to confine their opposition to the usual parliamentary forms, disregarding wholly those devices which only impede instead of directing legislation. The verdict of November 3 should be given its fullest effect.—N. Y. Journal.

Voters Who Were Fooled.

The Pennsylvania coal miners who helped to roll up the 350,000 majority for McKinley are now kicking themselves for believing the stories told them by their bosses that prosperity would follow his election. The operators of western Pennsylvania have decided to shut down the mines for two months this winter, as they claim the markets are overstocked. The miners claim, however, that the reason for the shut down is to compel consumers to pay higher prices for coal. They say a shut down of two months will be a terrible hardship to them as they have been working irregularly for months at a rate that gave them a bare subsistence. The suspension in general will make 6,000 men idle. Wakeworkers may learn after awhile to take no stock in the preelection statements of the political spellbinders and bosses whose loud professions of friendship before an election are, like pie crust, made to be broken.—Illinois State Register.

The Congress Going Out.

The short session of the Fifty-fourth "do nothing" congress is almost upon us. In a few days that bicameral body will meet in Washington to close up its affairs, and it is expected that it will equal the achievement of its first session in all except the matter of appropriations, which is grateful work in the republican congressional mind. It is not expected that the Dingley bill will pass the senate, where it was left when congress adjourned last summer. It is to be noted, too, that good republicans are opposed to its enactment, and it is not likely that it will reach the president. So, the Fifty-fourth congress can continue its do nothing policy during the approaching session, and thereby escape credit for those sins of commission that republican congresses are deservedly charged with at times.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

——The republican party has amply warning from men whose voices command respect that it must heed the signs of discontent and yield to the demand for political reform in governmental policy. What is the first step of the policy of winning the confidence of the people proposed for the new administration? An extraordinary session of congress is to be called for the purpose of tinkering with the tariff in such a way that the discrimination in favor of the chosen few is to be increased instead of being diminished.—St. Louis Republic.

THE CUNNING CUCKOOS.

How the Clevelandites Are Working the People.

There have been big bluffs made in the game of poker and the game of politics since these two methods, devised for the entertainment of mankind, had their first inning. But the hugest bluff ever attempted is the one Grover Cleveland has been trying of late to play on the American people. He has given it out cold and his cuckoos are crowing it from the housetops that "the trusts must and shall be 'busted.'"

This is almost as logical as was the deadbeat, who, after he had been thrown into the street, yelled out to the barroom bouncer: "Come out here, dodbing you, and I'll throw you out."

Cleveland and his cuckoo army, having metaphorically "fought, bled and died" to assist the trusts to entrench themselves in every branch of the national government, now mount the breastworks and shout to the country: "We're going to annihilate these McKinley fellows just as soon as they give up their guns and let us do it."

Our own domesticated little cuckoo, Davie Francis, was guilty of as absurd a declaration as the one just suggested, in that letter he wrote to the two-pronged sound money banqueters who locally and boisterously glorified over the Cleveland and McKinley victory a few nights ago.

He warned the 15 or 16 members of the "You-tickle-me-and-I'll-tickle-you" society present on the occasion that there was yet a grave danger ahead of the country in the vast aggregations of wealth in the hands of combinations known as trusts. What a funny little two-for-a-cent each His Corpulency, Cleveland, little Mr. Francis is, to be sure! How gullible they both must think the American people. Even their own deluded followers, whose votes achieved the triumph for the trusts in the election of McKinley, will hardly be fooled by such a transparent bunco game as they are trying to rope them into. If the trusts are to be "busted," Cleveland, Francis & Co. are not the persons who can be trusted to do the busting. Servants who leave the fastenings undone so that burglars may enter and loot the house will scarcely do to commission as thief-takers.

The democratic party is the sworn foe of the trusts. It can crush them with ease when the father of them all, the sustainer and feeder of them all—the gold trust—is deprived of its power to levy its legalized blackmail upon all the others, and, through them, upon the people.

It is the devilfish in the ocean of our commerce, and Mr. Cleveland and his trust-busting warriors are doing all they can to prevent its depredations from being interfered with. As the finances of the country are now adjusted, the gold trust occupies the place of the king in feudal times, the manufacuring and other trust being the nobility, while the people who embrace the trading, carrying and producing classes are in the position of the vassals, who pay tribute to both.

Havnig turned the hogs into the people's corn, Cleveland and his Hessians are swearing that the weevils have been destroying the crops, and declares doughtily his determination to destroy every last one of the vermin, if he has to take a sledgehammer to do it with. Some of the people of these United States need "gumption powerful bad," as Uncle Jerry Rusk used to say, but none of them are such fools as to believe any such flub-dub as the ex-sheriff of Erie county and his cuckoos are trying to stuff down the throats of the public.—Kansas City Times.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

——Mark Hanna as United States senator would be a great aid to himself in a business way.—Buffalo Times.

——The negro vote elected McKinley, but the cabinet positions are all bespoke. The negroes will be put off with spittoon-cleaning jobs.—Illinois States Register.

——If Hanna is made secretary of the treasury will any intelligent American need a diagram to understand the meaning of the policy he stands for?—N. Y. World.

——It will be strange, indeed, if Ohio does not get a cabinet portfolio. Did not Hanna furnish the funds, Grosvenor the figures and Foraker the silence?—Dayton Times.

——The news that McKinley and Hanna have decided upon an extra session is not in correct form; Hanna has decided that one should be called and McKinley will call it.—St. Louis Republic.

——Wall street will not object to a western man for secretary of the treasury provided he is of the Carlisle caliber. Western men of that sort can have their financial views remodeled without a vast amount of inconvenience.—N. Y. Journal.

——The enormously wealthy sugar trust, which enjoys the protection of a differential duty, is criticised because it has thrown 4,000 men out of employment for a fortnight just as cold weather has come. But it is part of the business of trusts to throw men out of employment.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

——The protectionists who talk of a renewal of the reciprocity policy of the McKinley law forget that it requires the consent of both parties to the agreement, and information which has reached Secretary Olney from Brazil goes to show that that country, having once been caught in the reciprocity trap, will not be so easily beguiled into entering it a second time.—Philadelphia Record.

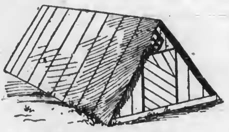
——As one of the results of the unholy alliance between the boltocrats and the republicans, it is announced that five of the democratic (?) senators in the next congress will support the McKinley tariff policy, whatever that may be. And yet these five men claim to be democrats, and will possibly desecrate January 8 by professing to observe it in the interests of democracy.—Illinois State Register.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

PORTABLE HOG PENS.

Those Who Have Tried Them Pronounce Them a Great Success.

In order to be successful in wintering swine, both old and young, it becomes necessary for many hog raisers to give the question of sleeping quarters more serious attention. Many a lot of nice, thrifty shoats go into winter quarters only to come out in the spring having barely held their own in weight and growth, and perhaps are somewhat stunted. Wintering hogs in large droves and around strawstacks is not conducive to best results. One great objection to the practice of many farmers in allowing large numbers to nest together is that they pile up in cold weather, in which condition they generate a good deal of moisture. What farmer but what has seen the steam rising from a nest of swine? When they come forth from such a condition on a cold winter morning they are very apt to take cold. When they leave the nest wet and warm and go out into exactly the other extreme without protection they soon become chilled through and may leave their food to again seek warmth in the nest. Hogs that are subjected to such conditions soon begin to cough and suffer from lung trouble. They become gaunt, with arched backs, and have every evidence of a "humped up" and unthrifty condition. Many farmers allow their hogs to work in straw stacks for shelter from the cold. I consider such a place a regular death trap for swine in large numbers. Another bedroom that is bad is the hog house with a floor two or three feet from the ground. Many such buildings are open on one or more sides, so that a cold draft can get under the floor. And again, I would not allow hogs to lie against a stone wall. The earth itself, with a little straw, makes the best bed in the world for a hog if it is dry. In that one word, dry, is the great secret of successfully wintering swine. Divide the herd into small lots of not more than ten each; and in the case of matured brood sows five or six together are better than more. Keep them as warm as possible, and have them dry. I would much prefer to have my hogs to sleep in cold and dry than in warm and wet. I am not going to advise anyone who has a nice permanent hog house to abandon its use, but I certainly do advise any farmer who contemplates building one not to do so. I have a hog house and make but little use of it, and will eventually tear it down.



PORTABLE HOG PEN.

It is difficult to get sunlight and warmth into large houses, and, more than that, they are likely to become a hotbed of disease germs, and much fertility is wasted about them. Hogs should be changed about from lot to lot. We want a rotation of hog pens, so to speak, turning up each lot in turn to the sun and air, cropping it a season or two and putting it back to grass. In this way the fertility is scattered where it will be of use and the swine are much healthier. The man who always confines his hogs to one small yard and building can never attain great success in swine husbandry. The rough drawing herewith submitted will convey an idea of a portable sleeping and breeding pen that I have used for a number of years. They not only give me splendid satisfaction, but greatly please every man who tries them. Swine are, of course, never fed in these pens. I feed outdoors the year round, either on dry earth or on portable feeding floors. These pens are eight feet square. To make them, construct a platform eight feet square, using 2x4 scantlings for sills and inch stuff for floors. Next take eight boards 16 feet long, one inch thick and 12 inches wide; saw them in the center and use them for the roof, as shown in the drawing. Use half-inch battens to cover cracks. A ventilator should be placed in the roof, and a small window over the door. When completed a man can stand upright in the pen nicely. They stand right on the ground, so that no cold air can get under them. A door is not necessary, as they are very warm without. They make a splendid breeding pen for one sow, by placing a 2x4 or 2x6 across the end opposite the door and six to eight inches from the floor. The pen is completely fendered, as the sow cannot lie close to the eaves, and the pigs can get out of the way. This style of pen costs about five dollars to build; it is very durable. Two men will easily raise up one end of it, when a stone boat may be placed under for the purpose of changing its location. I have several of these pens. In the summer they are moved to the pasture for shelter against storms, and in the fall they are moved to the yards. I attribute much of my success with fall pigs to the use of these pens, and warm food. The bedding is changed twice a week, and the pigs are always warm and dry.—C. H. Everett, in Prairie Farmer.

Scrub Stock Means Loss.

If there ever was a time, says an exchange, when the farmer who is hard pressed financially could not afford to keep poor stock, it is at present. The poorer the farmer is the more necessity there is for keeping only the best stock, because it is the only kind in which there is any profit. Only rich men can afford to keep scrubs. It requires a bank account to maintain a farm on which scrub stock is kept, and if the farmer does not have a balance to his credit, he will have to borrow from those who have.

MARKETING TURKEYS.

Birds of Medium Size and Weight Are the Best Sellers.

We can offer a pointer on marketing turkeys that we discovered while buying Christmas turkeys in the city market, and that is the superiority of medium-sized turkeys over 20 to 24 pounders, as sellers. People, as a rule, do not want enough turkey at one time to lay a banquet spread, and consequently they pick for something small, or not exceeding medium in size.

The hen turkeys always sell first, simply because they are more suited in size to the wants of the ordinary family. Then the smaller gobblers go, and lastly the pride of the flock—the biggest tom in the lot—and he usually goes at a discount of two or three cents a pound less than the lesser weights.

A turkey that weighs from ten to fifteen pounds dressed is plenty large enough. The people don't want a turkey as big as a hog, but they do want a fat turkey.

It seems to us that there is a good deal of room for improvement in breeding turkeys for the market. That a bird shorter in legs and neck, and very full in the breast, would be more desirable. One that would be meaty and plump, and capable of taking on a great deal of fat.

The heavy weight, tall, rawboned toms that weigh 25 to 40 pounds may be suited to a barbecue feast, but they are not the kind that the man with an ordinary size market basket looks for when he goes to the city market.

There would be more demand, and better sale for turkeys all the year through, if they were grown more with a view to compact body, meat and fat, than for large size and coarse structure.—H. B. Geer, in Midland Poultry Journal.

WINTER HATCHING.

Everthing Considered, There Is Not Much Money In It.

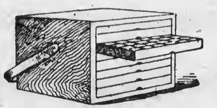
Eggs are too valuable in winter to be used for hatching purposes unless one is confident of securing good hatches and of raising the chick, says the Mirror and Farmer. To use a dozen eggs from which only six chicks come, and then lose three of them, means an expenditure of four eggs for one chick, and no one can afford the cost in that respect. The heaviest loss of chicks is with hens—not with incubators and brooders—and this fact should not be overlooked. It is admitted that in the spring and summer when the hen has everything in her favor she will be more serviceable than the brooder, but in the winter, when cold winds, ice, snow and rains prevail, the hen has a difficult undertaking to care for herself instead of attempting to raise a brood, and as a rule, the hens are fortunate if they raise one-half of the chicks hatched.

When a hen becomes broody make her nest in a warm place, and when she brings off her brood have a place prepared for her, under shelter and where the sunlight can come. Be careful that the chicks are not exposed or become chilled, and aim to raise everyone of them. In that case the chicks will pay because the expense of the eggs used will be reduced by reason of the larger number of chicks marketed.

CONVENIENT EGG BOX.

Good Things Where Private Consumers Are Supplied.

Where one markets his eggs to private consumers or at the stores even, the egg box shown herewith will be found very serviceable. It is a box about half the length of a 30-dozen egg carrier, with a handle and fitted drawers, each drawer being fitted with pasteboard egg fillers. A drawer of eggs can thus be taken from the box and carried into the customer's house, the box itself being left in the wagon. The bottom of each drawer may be covered with coarse bran, and the pasteboard fitters placed on this, thus providing a soft resting place for each egg.—Prairie Farmer.



BOX FOR MARKETING EGGS.

How to Tell Fresh Eggs.

A correspondent of the Dakota Farmer asks "Is there any sure way of distinguishing perfectly fresh eggs from tainted ones, or those that have been set upon by hens for several days? Candling is quite a sure method, but if there is any other I would be glad to know it." The following reply is given: "To the experienced eye the roughish or granulated surface of the perfectly fresh egg distinguishes it at once from the more shiny or polished surface of the one that has been under the hen a day or two. We can pick out every fresh egg among a nestful of those that have been sat on two days, even in the dark. The secret is very simple. Just scratch over the surface with the finger nail, if it grates the egg is fresh, but if the nail slides smoothly the egg is old. A little practice makes this a sure test."

Wonderful Work of Bees.

Bees must, in order to collect a pound of clover honey, deprive 62,000 clover blossoms of their nectar. To do this the 62,000 flowers must be visited by an aggregate of 3,750,000 bees. Or, in other words, to collect its pound of honey one bee must make 3,750,000 trips from and to the hive. The enormous amount of work here involved precludes the idea of anyone that one bee ever lived long enough to gather more than a fraction of a pound of nectarine sweets. As bees are known to fly for miles in quest of suitable fields of operation, it is clear that a single ounce of honey represents millions of miles of travel. It is no wonder that these industrious little insects have earned the reputation of being "busy" bees

OLDEST INHABITANT'S OXEN.

Wherein They Excel Mules and the Joys of a "Stone Boat."

The oldest inhabitant just admires to work with oxen. "They do beat all." He is willing that them that favors mules should keep to mules, but for his part give him oxen. You don't see 'em now. But then you don't see such work 'z ust ter be dene. A man with a yoke of middlin' oxen an' nuthin' ter eat ust ter start out before light 'n' work 'n' work till plum night. That is, he did when he could catch his oxen. They're the cureuin'est critters, though you wouldn't think it ter look at 'em. A nox has more tricks. Well, the tricks a nox has would just surprise you. He met his match, however, in the oldest inhabitant. When he was a boy there was a nox in the neighborhood that ust ter hide out, reglar. All winter thet ox would stuff an' stuff. Dinged ef you'd b'leeve a critter could stuff ez thet critter did. But when it come time to plow in the spring, thet critter would hide in the timber, an' nary a sign of his hide would show. 'Twas the bell ox, too. Sho! now, you don't know what a bell ox is?

The oldest inhabitant fegits thet a timber kentry is different from flat prairie. Hez different ways, more'n you'd s'pose. When they turn out oxen ter feed, they bell one on 'em, so's ter find the critters. That bell ox gits ter be jest as smart, never makes no sound ter show where they be. The cutest ox the oldest inhabitant ever see was named Ball. The yoke was Ball and Brandy. Ball never did a stroke o' work. Ust ter keep one eye on the barn, thet critter did, an' when th' plow come out Ball jest disappeared, like's ef he'd been swallered up. They hunted him far and near in the timber, an' offered rewards. The oldest inhabitant hadn't put his mind on the matter, thought likely th' critter would turn up when least expected. But the thing got exciting, every man you see'd pass th' time o' day an' ask: "Heerd anythin' o' Ol' Man Pettigrew's ox?"

Finally the oldest inhabitant got mad. Seemed like th' dum critter was smarter'n th' hull neighborhood. He didn't tell that he was going into the search, not he, but jest took ter santerin' round easy like in the timber. He even went up to the bars where Ball had stood to keep an eye on the forthcoming plow. "An'," by jinks! there come an idee" in his head thet th' blamed critter was watchin' him. He never said a word, sly fellow that he is, the oldest inhabitant, but jest naterally santered down ter the crick. There was some marshy land with some little thin willers growin' on it, between th' crick an' th' house. 'Fore he knew it, the oldest inhabitant stepped plump into soft mud, an' while he was flounderin' round an' swearin' low, 'cause 'twas Sunday an' he hed on his meetin' close, he jest happened ter look inter a clump o' them willers, an' dinged! ef there wasn't ol' Ball. "He looked kind er foolish, too." The oldest inhabitant jest roared. Then he floundered over an' got on the critter's back, an' rode right up inter th' farmyard. "My! you ought ter heerd th' fellers laugh." Th' critter never offered no resistance, but jest seemed ter think he wuz cornered an' so give up. Thet's th' way with a nox, he knows enough ter know when he's beat.

Speaking of riding the ox reminds the oldest inhabitant that now nobody uses a stone boat. Yet fer pleasure ridin' a stone boat drawed by oxen 'z better'n a wagon—a sight. Jest slips along easy, 'stid of bumpin' on th' infernal ruts in a road. Talk about yer bisickle ridin', why ev'ry dum fool looks worrited an' tuckered out. You can't fall off'n a stone boat, an' ef you did, you c'n ketch up an' git on. Onless th' oxen 'z runnin' away. Never heerd of oxen's runnin' away? Well, now, it does beat all how little people see nowadays. Oxen run away like all fired possessed. Thet Ball now, when they put him ter the plow, jes' started an' run an' run, draggin' Brandy an' the plow right with him. Went straight over everything in sight, an' never stopped till they was all stuck fast in the mud by the crick. But they made him onderstan' 'twas his trick ter work, an' th' critter finally come to it, same's human bein's. The oldest inhabitant s'poses its all fer the best, but land! lookin' at things 'z they are, 'n' 'z they ust ter be is awful discouragin'.—Chicago Times-Herald.

The Game of Numbers.

Very interesting is the game of "Numbers." Each participant writes a number on a scrap of paper. All the papers are gathered, folded, shaken into a basket and drawn or distributed. Each player reads aloud the number received and instantly gives some fact introducing the number—as, for example, seven—"the seven sleepers;" there are seven days in the week, seven colors of the rainbow, seven wonders of the world, seven sciences, seven wise men, seven virtues. Twelve—a dozen; there are twelve months in the year; there were twelve apostles; twelve "Knights of the Round Table." Four—the Fourth of July; the four seasons; the four sons of Aymon. Ten—the council of ten. Two—it takes two to make a bargain; two is company, three's a crowd. Fifty—jubilee; "Better 50 years of Europe than a cycle of Cathay." One hundred—Napoleon's 100 days. Thirty—"Thirty days hath September, April, June and November."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Cocoanut and Almond Cake.

Take 2½ cupfuls of powdered sugar, a cupful of butter, four cupfuls of prepared flour, the whites of seven eggs beaten stiff, a small cupful of milk, a pinch of soda, a grated cocoanut, half a teaspoonful of nutmeg, the juice and half the grated peel of a lemon. Cream together the butter and sugar, add the lemon, the nutmeg and the milk, mingling perfectly; then the whites of eggs and flour, a little of each alternately, and finally the grated cocoanut, stirred in quickly and thoroughly. Bake in four layers, as for jelly cake.—Good Housekeeping.

HOW TO GET UP A "CENTURY" CLUB.

And Secure the Reading of the Greatest of Four Dollar Magazines for One Dollar.

Everybody wants to take The Century during the coming year on account of its serials, "Campaigning with Grant," written by Grant's friend and staff officer, Gen. Horace Porter, and the novel of the American revolution. "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," in which Washington is one of the characters. The Century costs $4.00 a year, and many people are clubbing together in groups of four, each one securing the reading of the magazine one week in the month.

If you want The Century in 1897 (and who does not?) a little work among your friends will result in finding three others who want it too. Get one dollar from each of them, and send $4.00 to The Century Company, Union square, New York, for a year's subscription. Begin with December, and the publishers will send you the November number free, in which these serials begin. There are many dollar magazines, but there is nothing like The Century, and by this arrangement it will cost you no more than a cheap magazine.

Young Medical Student (to charity patient)—"I think you must have a—a—some kind of a—a fever, but our class has only gone as far as convulsions. I'll come in a week when we get to fevers."

The Crop Outlook in South Dakota for 1897.

It requires but a small amount of rainfall in South Dakota to mature the crop. During 1896 South Dakota had, up to September 30th, three and seven tenths inches more of rain-fall than for any of the previous sixteen years. Since September 30th there has been added at least three or four inches to the excess, making a gain of nearly eight inches more than the average. Early in November there were heavy rains, depositing over two inches, and since then there have been heavy snows, and about a foot of snow covered the ground on November 25th. Dakota farmers have abundance of hay and great supplies of oats, barley and corn. Wheat has advanced to about seventy cents a bushel in the local market, and prospects for further advance are good. The ground will come out in the spring better soaked than ever before. The prospect for better prices next year is good. There are thousands of people in the East who could do no better than to go to South Dakota now and buy their seed and feed for next year, and move out in the spring. First-class farming land in South Dakota, along the lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, can now be bought at from 10 to $15 an acre. The creamery industry and stock-raising in South Dakota will greatly increase during 1897. For further information address W. E. Powell, General Immigration Agent, 410 Old Colony Building, Chicago, or H. F. Hunter, Immigration Agent for South Dakota, 295 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

Bambury—"I hear that Stimpton is dead. Did he leave his wife much?" Mispah—"I suppose so. He always left her as much as he could while was alive."—Boston Transcript.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

The setting of a great hope is like the setting of the sun. The brightness of our life is gone, shadows of the evening fall around us, and the world seems but a broader shadow.—Longfellow.

We have received from Warner's Safe Cure Co., of Rochester, N. Y., whose advertisement may be found in another column, their attractive pamphlet for 1897, of which five million copies, it is stated, are being distributed free by mail and through druggists. It contains besides advertising matter, biographical sketches and portraits of the Presidents of the United States including President-elect McKinley. The perusal of the pamphlet affords abundant proof that Warner's Safe Cure Co., which has twenty years of success back of it, is as active and enterprising as ever.

One Matron—"Since I have been married I have taught my husband good taste." Another—"Really? It is a good thing for you that you did not teach him before you were married."—Tit-Bits.

How to cure Rheumatism? Use St. Jacobs Oil. It subdues. It cures.

It is brave to overcome; it is saintly to endure.

Good times. Happy state. St. Jacobs Oil cures pain right up to date.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI. Dec. 7.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	2 00	@	2 75
Select butchers	3 85	@	4 25
CALVES—Fair to good light	4 00	@	4 25
HOGS—Common	2 40	@	3 00
Mixed packers	3 05	@	3 15
Light shippers	3 25	@	3 40
SHEEP—Choice	2 00	@	3 00
LAMBS—Good to choice	3 65	@	4 15
FLOUR—Winter family	3 60	@	3 90
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	96
No. 3 red		@	93
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	22
Oats—No. 2		@	20¼
Rye—No. 2		@	41
HAY—Prime to choice	11 00	@	11 25
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@	8 62½
Lard—Prime steam		@	3 60
BUTTER—Choice dairy	16	@	20
Prime to choice creamery		@	25
APPLES—Per bbl	1 50	@	1 75
POTATOES—New, per bbl	75	@	1 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 90	@	5 10
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@	95¼
No. 2 red	88½	@	89¼
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@	29¼
OATS—Mixed		@	25½
PORK—New mess	9 75	@	10 50
LARD—Western		@	4 20
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patents	4 50	@	4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	90¼	@	91¼
No. 2 Chicago spring		@	79½
CORN—No. 2	23½	@	23¼
OATS—No. 2		@	18½
PORK—Mess	6 85	@	6 90
LARD—Steam		@	3 75
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	4 35	@	4 75
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2		@	91½
Corn—Mixed	29¼	@	29¼
Oats—Mixed	25	@	26
LARD—Refined		@	11 00
PORK—Mess		@	16 85
CATTLE—First quality	3 90	@	4 20
HOGS—Western	3 60	@	3 80
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@	89
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	19¼
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@	18½
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@	4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	95
Corn—Mixed		@	25½
Oats—Mixed		@	21
PORK—Mess	[illegible]	@	8 00
LARD—Steam		@	5 25

False Witnesses.

There are knaves now and then met with who represent certain local bitters and poisonous stimuli as identical with or possessing properties akin to those of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. These scamps only succeed in foisting their trashy compounds upon people unacquainted with the genuine article, which is as much their opposite as day is to night. Ask and take no substitute for the grand remedy for malaria, dyspepsia, constipation, rheumatism and kidney trouble.

Doctor—"Now, what did your father and mother die of?" Applicant for Life Insurance—"Well, sir, I can't say as I exactly remember; but it wasn't anything serious."

Cheap Excursions to the West, North and Northwest.

On December 1 and 15, 1896, the North Western Line (Chicago & North-Western Railway) will sell excursion tickets to a large number of points in the west, north and northwest. For full information apply to ticket agents of connecting lines, or address W. B. Kniskern, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, C. & N. W. R'y, Chicago, Ill.

A right state of heart cannot be maintained, without keeping a close watch on the tongue.—Ram's Horn.

Fits stopped free and permanently cured. No fits after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Free $2 trial bottle & treatise. Dr. Kline, 933 Arch st., Phila., Pa.

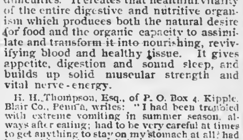
Boil down many a man's religion, and it will be found to have been nothing but froth.—Ram's Horn.

Better times come to all cured of aches and pains by St. Jacobs Oil.

Don't go with the crowd simply because it is a crowd.—Ram's Horn.

When pain ceases, no sufferer ever regrets the price he paid for St. Jacobs Oil.

Our lives are the open volume the world reads.



When the appetite fails there is no use in trying to tempt the palate with delicate food. No matter how good and well-cooked and "appetizing" the food may be, it cannot give any nourishment unless the stomach is able to digest it. Nature indicates the state of the constitution by the loss of appetite. This is an unfailing indicator. It shows that something is fundamentally wrong with the nutritive functions.

The only true natural relief must be as searching and fundamental as the trouble it aims to overcome. It is the thorough deep-searching character of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which causes the marvelous efficacy in all bilious and digestive difficulties. It creates that healthful vitality of the entire digestive and nutritive organism which produces both the natural desire for food and the organic capacity to assimilate and transform it into nourishing, revivifying blood and healthy tissue. It gives appetite, digestion and sound sleep, and builds up solid muscular strength and vital nerve-energy.

H. H. Thompson, Esq., of P. O. Box 4, Kipple, Blair Co., Penn'a, writes: "I had been troubled with extreme vomiting in summer season, always after eating; had to be very careful at times to get anything to stay on my stomach at all; had been taking other medicines, but without effect. I heard a friend speak of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and thought I would give it a trial. I used about five bottles of it and think it is the only medicine that did me any good, as I have a splendid appetite now, and am not using any medicine at all and don't think I need any more."

A man who is suffering from the evil effects of constipation doesn't feel like work, and can't even enjoy his leisure hours. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a sure, swift, safe, and permanent cure for constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Dishonest druggists try to get you to take a substitute for the sake of the added profit.

Constipation

is a disease which afflicts over 75 per cent. of the American people. It is a dangerous disease because it not only poisons the blood but causes heaviness, oppression, and dulls the intellect. Then follow chronic headache, loss of appetite, slow digestion, nervousness, bad breath, dingy complexion and low spirits. It will eventually bring on liver and kidney disease in some incurable form. But sufferers from this dreaded malady are speedily

Cured by

Warner's SAFE Cure and Warner's SAFE Pills. Leading physicians the world over, have acknowledged this fact, and thousands of people throughout the land have testified to it.

Warner's

SAFE Cure puts a stop to backaches, headaches, constipation, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, tired feelings and sleeplessness. It builds up the exhausted system. It is a sure cure for liver and kidney complaint in any form, and the only remedy that has ever been able to cure Bright's disease.

If you are feeling the need of such a remedy, you cannot do better than try this king of remedies, the great

Safe Cure

JOB

ELECTROTYPING

—AND—

STEREOTYPING

OF THE HIGHEST GRADE

PROMPTLY EXECUTED BY

A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co.

We offer to our Customers and The Trade generally the most satisfactory work possible in these branches. Our facilities enable us to turn out work very rapidly. If you desire to release your type on some large job, send it to us for either stereotyping or electrotyping, and it will be returned to you promptly and in good order.

We make a specialty of Newspaper Headings and Cuts, and have the largest assortment in these lines to be found anywhere in the country from which to select.

A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO.,
29 Elm Street, Cincinnati.

TOP SNAP, Extension Rib DOUBLE Breech $9.00 Loader GUNS BUY-CYCLES Pistols, Sporting Goods, Fishing Tackle, cheaper than elsewhere. Send 2c. for 60-page catalogue. POWELL & CLEMENT CO., 166 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM HABIT AND DRUNKENNESS Cured in 10 to 20 Days. No Pay till Cured. DR. J. L. STEPHENS, LEBANON, OHIO.

USE NO OTHER THAN YUCATAN.

A. N. K.—E. 1634

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Important Notice!

The only genuine "Baker's Chocolate," celebrated for more than a century as a delicious, nutritious, and flesh-forming beverage, is put up in Blue Wrappers and Yellow Labels. Be sure that the Yellow Label and our Trade-Mark are on every package.

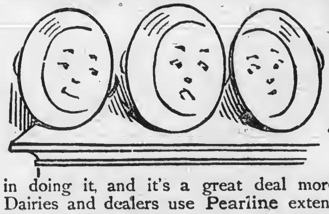
TRADE-MARK.

WALTER BAKER & CO. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass.



Milk Pans,

and pails, and cans, and bottles (even baby's)—or anything that you want particularly clean, ought to be washed with Pearline. You'll save work in doing it, and it's a great deal more thoroughly done. Dairies and dealers use Pearline extensively. Just try it once, on your milk-ware or butter-ware—and then say if it isn't the most satisfactory way of cleaning. Pearline is the most economical thing you can use, too. You get so much more out of it.

A LIVER STIMULANT THAT WORKS WHILE YOU SLEEP WITHOUT A GRIP OR GRIPE CCC
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC CURE CHRONIC CONSTIPATION.
LIGHTEN THE ILLS OF HUMANITY.
PLEASE BUY & TRY A BOX OF CASCARETS TO-DAY
10-25-50¢ ALL DRUGGISTS
SENT BY MAIL FOR PRICE. SAMPLE & BOOKLET FREE.
The Sterling Remedy Co. CHICAGO NEW YORK.

BOONE : COUNTY : RECORDER.

Wednesday, Dec 9, 1896.

Rates of Subscription:
One year............ .... $1 50.
Six months............................... 75.
Three months............................ 40.
☞Payable invariably in advance.

THE RECORDER
SOLICITS YOUR
Job Work,
NOTE HEADS,
LETTER HEADS,
ENVELOPES,
CARDS,
BILL HEADS,
STATEMENTS,
SALE BILLS,
AND HORSE BILLS,
Printed at the Lowest Prices consistent with neat work.
Send your order by mail and it will be attended promptly.

STATE NEWS.

Ghosts are annoying the inmates of the Nicholasville work-house.

Jessamine county had a lot of lively grasshoppers up to the cold snap.

Gov. Bradley will recommend that the Eddyville branch penitentiary be abolished.

E. J. Simpson, of Wayne county, is the father of 37 living children, 25 of whom are boys and 12 girls.

The new Christian Church in Flemingsburg is to be lighted by electricity and an electric motor will also pump the organ.

The proposition to divide Kentucky into two Federal Court districts will bob up again at the next session of Congress. Mr. Pugh will push the bill.

By the first of January Bourbon county will have about 300 miles of free turnpikes. The county has invested in $5,000 worth of machinery for keeping them in repair.

Alf Thomas, a Trigg county farmer, was forced to sell his hogs to keep theives from getting them. He had thirty stolen from him, one after another, within a few weeks.

Four hundred barrels of corn in the Wade's Mill neighborhood, Clark county, sold at 85 to 88 cts. per barrel in the field, the purchaser to shuck the corn and have the fodder.

A Warren county farmer proved to be more than a match for two smooth "gold-brick" swindlers, recently. He not only kept his money but dined and traveled hundreds of miles at their expense. As a memento of a delightful trip he kept the scale with which they were to weigh the gold.

The toll-gate troubles will come before the next legislature. The state constitution, while providing that the counties may vote for free pikes, limits the debt which any county may incur. Many counties which have voted for free pikes are in this way prevented from carrying out their wishes.

At Lexington, Nelson Jackson, colored, was arrested for stealing a mahogony washstand from James B. Clay, grandson of Henry Clay. The washstand was owned and used many years by the great commoner. At his death when his furniture was divided among his children, it went to James and by him was handed down to its present owner.

One of our young ladies was coming along Railroad street just as a freight train came in Monday, and being close to the track was astonished to hear a brigandish looking brakeman yell to another: 'Jump onto her as she comes by; run her down beyond the mill and cut her in two, and bring the head end up to the depot.' It is said the young lady jumped up and down and yelled murder as loud as she could.'—Greenup Democrat.

A marriage license was issued by County Clerk Graham yesterday to Peter Willis and Lucy Rhodes, colored. The groom is fifty-four years of age and the bride fifty-eight. They entered into common-law marriage about thirty years ago, and only on Sunday found out that they were not legally married. They have saved considerable property and wanted to be legally wedded so that their children could have the benefit of it.—Richmond Register.

H. K. Staples, Postmaster and railroad station agent at Oil City, in this county, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded while alone in his office engaged in putting up mail for the Glasgow train. Two men, Arthur Crump and Raymond Jackson, rushed in on him and commenced shooting at him, Crump who is Staple's brother-in law, using a double-barrel shotgun. But for the timely arrival of the railroad bridge master, Staples would have been killed.

J. W. A. Meyers, of Vine Grove, is one of the six men in the world who has had his neck broken and still lives, says the Cloverport News. About three years ago Mr. Meyers was caught in a railroad accident, and his neck was broken, though the spinal cord was not parted. His neck was reset, and he lived, though, until recently, it was necessary for him to wear his head in a brace. Last summer he was in New York City, under the care of physicians there and he is now able to go without Acting Governor Worthington was presented, one day last week with a petition containing the names of over a thousand ladies, asking him to pardon Jas. W. Tate, Kentucky's absconding Treasurer. The petition was quietly gotten up, and was as quietly presented. The Acting Governor told the fair committee that waited on him that he would investigate the case and pass on it later. The names of many prominent Republicans and Democrats are also on the petition with the ladies, and it is said that not a solitary man or woman who was asked to sign it refused.

An alarming and terribly fatal outbreak of black or malignant erysipelas has developed in the Coral Hill community, in Barren county, says the Glasgow Times. So far, there have been five victims of the disease, with several more dangerously ill and a number sick. Messrs W. J. Parrish, Lewis Parrish, Willie Wood and Thomas Arnold and Mrs. Fannie Vaughan have all died in the past week or ten days. The disease has proven terribly fatal, has been declared highly contagious by physicians, and there is much alarm in the section in which it has made its appearance.

For the past eighteen months a number of Mormon preachers have been proselyting in the mountain counties. Lewis county, in particular, has been well supplied, but recently several of the evangelists have abandoned the field. The Greenup Democrat says: "Out of eight or ten elders who have been located there, only two remain. They received a great many additions to their church during the first six months and then the converts began to show lack of interest in their new paths and went out of the church. In order to regain their members and make them better acquainted with the workings of their church, they held the West Virginia Conference in Vanceburg last August, which was attended by high officials of the church from Utah. The conference had its effect and new life was injected into the backsliders, but of late they have again shown lack of interest, and it seems now the elders have abandoned their work in that county and quit the field."

There is not as great a necessity now for an extra session of the General Assembly of Kentucky as there was on the 18th day of last March. The original holders of claims against the State have sold them to the brokers or bankers at large discount, and interest cannot be paid on them. The election of a U. S. Senator is a political necessity, and this alone will produce an extra session at the proper time. The Republicans have the Legislature on joint ballot, and they have never done so foolish a thing as to fall out and not secure an office when they have the power. The air is filled with rumors that Democratic members will vote for and elect Gov. Bradley, but that is talked by persons who are not members. The Democrat that would vote for Bradley would be in as bad a condition for vindication as the one that voted for Carlisle. Two wrongs never would be indorsed, and they will come from it.—Western Argus.

TRAITORS

Lead by the Louisville Courier-Journal Show Who Are the Anarchists.

True Democracy Did Not Repudiate Clevelandism Soon Enough.

WATCH US IN 1900.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I am somewhat short on my obligations to you for certain kind nesses which you will doubtless feel is not met by my grumblings. Politically there be very little to say, only it should not be forgotten that while Mark Hanna was elected and will liberally provide for McKinley and those who were especially faithful and also not failing to throw a sop to the boltocrats, who are coyly waiting, and, at the same time, clamoring for recognition in the coming Democratic primaries, and breathing dire vengance if refused, it may be well to say that it is barely possible that some uninformed politicians may make ship-wreck of his chances by being too previous.

The Louisville Courier-Journal, the leader of the traitors in Kentucky is, if anything, more vindictive and uncompromising than before the election, showing plainly that if Bryan had been elected, they would and their ilk have given us a manifestation of what anarchists would do, when brought to judgment. Not one advocate of Bryan has given one utterance that did not breathe patriotism, and no act but what was in graceful submission to the majority; and that too in the face of charges whether true or not, that the result was accomplished by other means than fair.

When the result was known every Silver champion was disarmed and all marched one way to meet the prosperity promised so confidently by Mr. Hanna. Any anarchy showing itself? That is where anarchy shows itself, in defeat. But our opponents not satisfied with the arbitrament of the court of last resort are plainly disappointed. Why? There were too many who refused to bow the knee to Bael.

Reenforced by a contingent that are self-confessed political monstrosities, the Republican incoming administration is confronted with an awful responsibility. Bimetallism by international agreement, an "ignis fatuis" that is followed now by no one, is promised with no hope of fulfillment, and a task greater than all is rendered inocuous the worse than stupid mistakes of the present administration, who so far from being discouraged by evident disgust of the people, are with insistance urging a continuance of their ruinous policy. Cleveland takes it for granted that as his perfidy made it possible for Republicans to win, it was a victory for him, and an endorsement of his methods. No graver mistake was ever made. Mr. McKinley can do no greater service to the country than by ignoring at the first opportunity such a baseless claim.

In the first place, both Democrats and Republicans were tired and disgusted with Clevelandism. Cleveland was supposed to represent true democracy. All a partisan Republican had to say, do you want this thing to continue? and the answer from the hill-top and out of the valley was an emphatic no! True democracy it must be confessed did not repudiate Clevelandism soon enough. Politicians and office-holders waited too long to see which way the cat would jump. And then there was such a scramble to get into the band-wagon that the best material was too often overlooked. We were not in training long enough. Had not the time to arrange a line of battle to successfully meet the enemy in front and at the same time, cover our rear from bushwhackers and deserters. If in the next four years Clevelandism is wiped out and a revenue equitably assessed to meet current expenses is arranged, it will be the next best thing the Electoral College could have done. In the mean time if these things are not approximately accomplished watch us in 1900.

Locally the reason why Walton gave an increased Republican gain of 55 and a Democratic gain of only one vote, the causes already mentioned partly accounts for it, but mainly it is due to the unceasing persistent and unreasonable methods of one W. H. Metcalf. If his party's gratitude for his services is in any measure to keep pace with our resentment and political disgust, it will take him out of our midst by making him a Minister or something to the uttermost end of the earth. God may forgive him. Its doubtful.

The status of the boltocrats must be determined. It is safe to predict that a vigorous system of disciplin will be used. It is an efficacious remedy I have tried recently with marked success (more properly speaking it was tried on me and a slow but sure convalescence was established at once.) They certainly should not be allowed in any manner the policy of the party they so recently betrayed. But it cannot be denied that we need help from some source. The unlimited possibilities the Republicans have in the Eleventh, shows that. In the mean time we can resort to policy of Fabius.

G. F. Gaines.

Walton, Ky.

INTELLIGENT PREJUDICE.

American Conservatism in Opposition to the Metric System.

As Mr. Spencer begins by declaring that the "advocates of the metric system allege that all opposition to it results from ignorant prejudice," which he very properly declares is far from true, it may be well to say that, in the opinion of the writer, there is relatively little of that sort of thing to contend with in the United States. What is far more dangerous as an obstacle to human progress, and often far more common, is what may be called "intelligent prejudice," meaning thereby an obstinate conservatism which makes people cling to what is or has been, merely because it is or has been, not being willing to take the trouble to do better, because already doing well, all the while knowing that doing better is not only the easier, but is more in harmony with existing conditions. Such conservatism is highly developed among English-speaking people on both sides of the Atlantic, and is likely to turn up in the most unexpected places. It is often a phase of ancestral or national pride, and finds its expression in the feeling that whatever pertains to one's own race or country is, on the whole, better than anything else of its kind. Those who are under its influence are adepts in finding ingenious reasons and excuses in defense of an attitude toward reform which they must know to be founded on neither logic nor fact. These people are numerous among opponents of reform in coinage, weights and measures, and, as already noted, it is with this class that the most serious difficulty is encountered. "Ignorant prejudice" generally disappears when ignorance disappears, and fortunately in the present instance the system which it is proposed to substitute for that already in use is so extremely simple that it can be learned and understood in a few minutes.—From the Metric System, by Prof. T. C. Mendenhall, in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly.

BLENHEIM CASTLE.

Everything About It Is on a Large Scale—348 Feet Long.

The late duke of Marlborough, in alluding to the size of Blenheim palace, used to say, by way of a joke, that it was the only residence in Europe which required $4,000 worth of putty a year to keep the window panes in order. Money went a good deal further in the last century than it does now; consequently when the house of commons voted $1,500,000 to build the first duke a residence there presently sprang up an edifice 348 feet long, and with an interior so vast that, when a government messenger once came post-haste there to the late Lord Randolph Churchill, during one of his visits, with a dispatch, it was over half an hour before his lordship, who for exercise had been exploring the place, with its 15 staircases, was found. The last time it was repaired the late duke was obliged to apply to parliament for permission to sell the pictures and library to pay the bills, which amounted to more than a million and a half. It is therefore not surprising that, although the estate yielded $200,000 a year, the expenses of keeping up this preposterous residence kept the duke a poor man. Altogether everything about Blenheim is grotesquely large. Some of the pictures are 70 feet square. The statue of the great duke, near the big lake of 260 acres, is 132 feet high and cost $150,000.

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
—OF UP TO DATE—
CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
THE KEYSTONE DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN.
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
A. C. BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.
Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.
Write for circulars.
AEROMETER
EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.
COME AND SEE IT.
T. J. HUCHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

GRAEFENHAN'S
POPULAR
Dry GOODS STORE.
Calicoes, Muslins, Canton Flannels, Wool Flannels, Dress Goods, Stockings, Mitts, Underwear, Comforts, Blankets and
PRETTY HOLIDAY GOODS.
By doing a strictly Cash Business it has been very easy to under sell all others. Come and see us
H. F. GRAEFENHAN,
21 Walnut St., - - - - Lawrenceburg, Ind.

HOLIDAY GOODS
—CONSISTING OF—
Watches, Clocks, Jewelery, Silverware & Spectacles
Of all kinds and a large Assortment of Novelties. See us before buying as we can save you money.
J. D. WARD, 2 doors above bank in Clark Building, Rising Sun, Ind.

J. J. GEISEN,
HATTER AND GENT'S
FURNISHING GOODS,
615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.
Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

E. H. RIGGS,
—Dealer in—
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
—CEMENT, ETC.—
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVERY COMPANY.
62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,
E. H. BAKER, Proprietor
Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.
Telephone 580.

1896.
Your County Paper
Is the One to
Subscribe for,
It Gives all the
Neighborhood News,
Court News and
General News.
$1.50 will Pay for it
Until Jan. 1st, 1898.
Give It a Trial and Help
Along Home EnterPrise.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1896. NO. 8.

IT now seems that Mr. McKinley will have the Cuban question to interest him as soon as he enters the White House.

IT now looks like Sheriff Plummer, of Campbell county, will officiate at a double hanging about the first of the new year.

WATTERSON is going to attend the monetary convention to be held at Indianapolis on the 12th of next month. Things will be done correctly.

NEITHER Spain nor the Cuban Insurgents got much consolation from the President's message. He made a successful straddle of the subject.

THE House has passed the pension bill which appropriates $141,263,880, a little above one-third of the whole cost of administering the government.

THE Tennessee Centennial Exposition will be opened at Nashville on the first day of next May. It will be an exhibition of considerable magnitude.

COL. ED MCGRATH has been appointed meter inspector for the Covington Water Co. What does he know about water or anything pertaining thereto?

GOV. BRADLEY gave Billy Beckner, of Clark county, a genteel skining in public print last week. The Governor gave Beckner just what he needed, and he will, doubtless, steer clear of Bradley hereafter.

AT its meeting at Indianapolis the National Executive Committee ot the National Democratic party decided to maintain permanent head-quarters at New York and extend and perfect the organization of the party.

GOV. BRADLEY says no body but the claim-shavers, Senatorial candidates and screech-owls want a special session of the Legislature called. Guess he classes Beckner, of Clark county, among the schreech owls, which is nearly a correct classification.

FROM the conclusion of the opinion of the Court of Appeals in the Scott Jackson case, it looks very much like the court could have affirmed the judgment of the lower court on Jackson's testimony, there being no errors in the instructions to the jury.

GOV. BRADLEY is of the opinion that a United States Senator cannot be elected in this State until after the fourth of March, 1897, at which the vacancy will occur. The failure of the Legislature to elect last winter takes the matter out of its hands until the vacancy does occur.

OLD bachelors will soon become a scarce article in Argentine, where, after January 1, 1897, every unmarried male over twenty must pay a monthly tax to the State, and should a celibate of either sex refuse an offer of marriage, without good cause, he or she shall pay to the person refused, the sum of $500.

SENATOR Mitchell, of Oregon, says he intends to push his bill to amend the constitution so as to permit the election of United States Senators by popular vote. It is claimed that a majority of the Senate favors the bill, but to carry it requires a two-thirds vote in its favor, which it is not at all likely to receive.

SENATOR CHANDLER has introduced a bill in the Senate for a 10 per cent. reduction of the salaries of all Federal employes. The reduction shall begin on the 30th of June, 1897, and continue for three years, and shall include all officers and employes of the United States whose salaries are paid from the Treasury either annually, quarterly, monthly or semi-monthly, except those whose compensation can not be diminished during their continuance in office.

NEITHER wing of the Democratic party in the State is showing any disposition to indulge in the olive branch business, and there is no prospect of any reconciliation for the present, at least. The next State campaign will be as interesting as the one just closed.

GOV. ALTGELD, before his term of office expires, ought to clean out the Illinois prisons by pardoning the remaining convicts. That will at once give the universal pardoning process a fair trial.—Louisville Commercial.

And by the time Governor Bradley's term expires the universal pardoning process may have a second trial.

THE tomb of General William Henry Harrison near North Bend, on the Ohio river, is soon to be remodeled. The cost of the improvement is estimated at $5,000 and only Indiana marble is to be used. The old tomb, which was built in the latter part of the forties, has for some years been the subject of much comment.

O. S. WATTS, of Bullittsville, is announced as a candidate for assessor. He is a young man who has done considerable party service, and this is the first time he has asked the party to favor him with an office. He is a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, and if he is nominated and elected he will discharge the duties of the office with honor to himself and credit to his party.

Farmers should keep an "eye peeled" for the fakirs who have been swindling the farmers of neighboring counties. They sell the farmers 20 bars of soap for $1.00, giving them a coupon entitling them to a fine Russian rug. The men promise that another agent will be along in a week, take the coupon and deliver the rug. The agent and rugs fail to appear.

PEOPLE were told during the campaign this fall that there was nothing serious the matter with our currency system, but the President in his message tells you there is. He says:

I Cannot refrain from again earnestly presenting the necessity of the prompt reform of a system opposed to every rule of sound finances and shown by experience to be fraught with the gravest peril and perplexity. I am more convinced than ever that we can have no assured financial peace and safety until the Government currency obligations upon which gold may be demanded from the Treasury are withdrawn from circulation and cancelled."

GOV. BRADLEY has been annoyed very much about the special session of the Legislature, and numerous statements in regard thereto have been given out as coming from him, when, in fact he knew nothing of them until he discovered them in print. That his position may be understood he publishes the following:

"There will certainly be a special session called. It will be called at such a time as I consistently believe proper. Not one day before nor one day after. The responsibility is mine, and hence I have the right to and will exercise my discretion."

THE destruction of turnpike property continues without interruption in some counties. It does seem that some of the guilty parties could have been apprehended by this time had an earnest effort been made, but as the unlawful work progresses those engaged therein become the more determined to destroy all the toll-gates in their section because of no interruption on the part of the law. The spirit that prompts such proceedings should be subdued, and the good citizens of the counties in which these outrages are being perpetrated should band themselves together and use all means at their command to bring the guilty parties to face the penalties for their unlawful acts.

THE silver Republican Senators flock to themselves.

ATTENTION!

Saturday, August 7th, 1897, the Time Set for the

PRIMARY ELECTION.

Pursuant to the call of the Chairman of the county Democratic Executive committee, the committee met in D. E. Castleman's law office in Burlington, last Monday afternoon. The following members were present: D. E. Castleman, chairman; B. L. Rice, Secretary' Elijah Parker, Reuben Conner, C. H. Acra, Robt. McGlasson, C. C. Roberts and Geo. W. Sleet, proxy for J. C. Hughes. It was agreed by the committee to hold a primary election to nominate candidates for the various county offices to be filled at the regular election in November, 1897. It was further agreed that said primary election be held on the first Saturday in August, 1897.

The committee adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That all persons who voted for Bryan and Sewall at the last November election, and all persons who did not vote but would have voted for Bryan and Sewall had they voted, and all young men who will be legal voters at the next November election, and all persons who will be legal voters at said November election, and will pledge themselves to support the Democratic party and the nominees of said primary election, shall be allowed to vote.

Resolved, That all persons who desire to be candidates before said primary election shall, on or before the 1st day of June, 1897, record their names with the chairman of the county committee, and pay their assessments to him.

Resolved, That only such candidates who pay their assessments to defray the expenses of said primary election, on or before the first day of June, 1897, shall be entitled to have their name placed upon the ballots to be voted for.

Resolved, That all candidates for precinct offices, who wish their names to appear upon the ballots for said primary, shall pay to the chairman of the county committee one dollar, to help pay the expenses of said primary election.

D. E. CASTLEMAN Chairman,
B. L. RICE, Secretary.

IN this issue O. J. Ryle announces as a candidate for jailer. He is an old time Democrat and as clever a gentleman as you will meet. It is his first appearance as a candidate, and he pledges a faithful performance of official duties if elected.

IN this issue E. L. Clements is announced as a Democratic candidate for County Superintendent of Public Schools. Mr. Clements is a teacher of considerable experience, and a consistent Democrat. If elected he will administer the affairs of the office to the best interest of all concerned.

LAST Saturday the Court of Appeals handed down on opinion affirming the judgment of the Campbell Circuit Court fixing Alonzo Walling's punishment at death for the murder of Pearl Bryan, and it now remains for Gov. Bradley to fix a day for the execution of Scott Jackson and his companion in crime, Alonzo Walling. Pearl Bryan was murdered on the night of January 31, 1896, and her headless body left in a secluded spot near Ft. Thomas, Campbell county. Jackson and Walling were arrested, charged with the crime, and no time was lost in bringing them to a trial, which resulted in their conviction. An appeal was taken to the Court of Appeals, where the cases were passed upon and affirmed without delay, and, unless the Governor should commute the sentences, the principals in one of the most famous murders in the annals of Kentucky will have to pay the penalty of their crime on the gallows in just about one year from the time of the commission of the awful crime with which they are charged.

Pith of the Press.

In case of doubt be sure of your referee.—New York Journal.

The Joke of 1896—The President's denunciation of trusts.—Philadelphia Item.

Will Governor Mount raise his own garden truck in Indianapolis?—Wabash (Ind.) Tribune.

In addition to a President-elect Mark Hanna now has Congress on his hands.—New York Journal.

The only thing settled by Mr. Hanna so far is that McKinley will be in the Cabinet.—Hamilton Democrat.

The country isn't worrying over Mr. Cleveland's future nearly as much as over his past.—Salt Lake Herald.

The Treasury Department has found a Denver engineer who is guilty of Democracy. He is now an ex-official.—Washington Post.

Another of the industries which have revived perceptibly since the election is the decapitation of Bryanite postmasters.—Detroit Tribune.

Perhaps Mr. McKinley will have less trouble in arranging his Cabinet when he ascertains just what Mr. Hanna doesn't want.—N. Y. Journal.

Some of the experiences of pedestrians go far to create the impression that Helen Kellar is not the only blind person who rides a wheel.—Detroit News.

A good deal of criticism is indulged upon the length of President Cleveland's message. That is about the only thing of weight about it.—Louisville Commercial.

Some of the propositions for saving the country brought forward at Washington go far to prove that McKinley's election has indeed set the wheels going.—Detroit News.

All this talk about succeeding Senator Sherman is pure buncombe. There was nothing in the late Republican platform declaring against life tenure in office.—Fostoria Times.

Among other signs of reviving industries we note with pleasure that our esteemed contemporary, the Congressional Record, resumes publication.—Lafayette (Ind.) Courier.

It is reported that Senator Hill declined to be interviewed on his arrival in Washington on Monday on account of the fatigue incident to the Presidential campaign.—Enquirer.

Two years ago Cleveland had Congress on his hands. This year Congress has Cleveland on its hands. Turn about may be fair play, but it is hard luck—on Congress.—New York Sun.

In selecting a wife he would not be a wise man who would choose a female who at theaters or other public entertainments keeps on her high hat and spreading feathers to the annoyance of others.—Louisville Commercial.

Those who knew President Cleveland best were not disappointed in his message on Cuba. It was Cleveland that pulled down the flag in Hawaii, and tried his best to reinstate the Queen. He has not changed.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

From the profound comfort and joviality which Mr. Cleveland is said to evince during these days some Republicans will begin to suspect that Grover somehow has planned to put a bent pin in the Presidential chair before William sits down—Chicago Record.

Six years ago, in his message to Congress, Mr. Cleveland, in speaking of the financial condition, said that it was a "condition, not a theory,' which confronted us. In his message yesterday he discussed the "condition" in Cuba and then advances several "theories." Times change and we change with them.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Governor Bradley's stay in Cincinnati for throat treatment, affords him a fine opportunity for getting a few points from Geo. B. Cox and Senator Foraker on how to run a Senatorial legislature. He need not talk much, just look and listen, and if he is not well up in tactics in a few days it will not be the fault of his instructors.—Commonwealth.

Things have changed since Betsy left. To read the Courier-Journal nowadays' with its fuming and fretting about election frauds and outrages on the ballot box in Tennessee and other Southern States, without looking at the heading, one would think he held before him a copy of the old Cincinnati Commercial of years ago.—Critic.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup'nt of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, Sam S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W Lester.
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Gufty, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill, Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George; Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; I. F. Dempsey, H. S. Irwin, Secretary-Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday; Add Ridnell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN.
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the Corner Drug Store.

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896
AT WALTON, KY.
Three Courses of Study to choose from: English, Scientific or Classical,
Tuition per month for Higher Branches.............. $3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches.............. 2.50
We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2 00 for five days.
Teachers { Mrs. S. H. MYERS. CHAS. F. PRIOR. Rev. S. H. MYERS.
Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky. | OSCAR GAINES Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. COWEN, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky,
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administratrix Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of L. E. Clore, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

ANNIE L. CLORE, Adm'rx.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON,
DENTIST,
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
MAIN OFFICE—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

W. E. VEST. B. L. RICE.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL, ... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 17,000
—)o(—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN.............. $50,000
SURPLUS,.............. $ 2.600
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE
STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:50 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 2:50 pm; 4:30 pm;
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 8:30 am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm. Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5:15 pm.
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:10 am; 10:00 am; 12:40 pm; 3:00 pm; 4:45 pm.
ELIHU ALDEN, Master.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher

BURLINGTON, : : : KY

CURRENT TOPICS.

THERE are 27,445 miles of railway in Germany.

IN Germany the census is taken every five years.

THE Manitoba census shows a population of 193,425.

SCARLET flowers stand drought better than any other.

THE Australian dog and the Egyptian shepherd dog never bark.

MANY families in Ounchita parish, La., are on the verge of starvation.

THERE is an unprecedented rush of foreign orders for Alabama pig iron.

IN Australia the growing of wheat on the share system is rapidly extending.

OVER 5,000 barrels of apples have been shipped from Montreal so far this season.

A FAMILY of five persons perished in the recent blizzard in Emmons county, North Dakota.

ON account of short crops Australia will order 100,000 tons of wheat and flour from America.

BISHOP TAYLOR considered three hours' and Richard Baxter four hours' sleep enough for any man.

THE salmon fishing in both the Restigouch and Miramachi has been good upon the whole this season.

IT is believed that the French government will consent to naval credits to the amount of $30,000,000.

MRS. SIDNEY LANIER is giving readings from her late husband's works, and is meeting with great success.

ALABAMA iron men are unable to secure transportation for iron wanted for European and Mexican markets.

THE first number of a new paper entitled the German Industrial Advertiser, in the Japanese language, has appeared.

OF the 673 who rode into the "valley of death" at Balaclava only 195 came back, and the survivors, all told, do not exceed 40.

THE date for the national monetary conference of commercial bodies, to be held at Indianapolis, has been changed to January 12.

THE Imperial bank of Germany has existed 20 years. Its system is by no means as simple or as perfect as in the United States.

The meeting of the British association in Toronto next year promises to develop a great international gathering of scientists.

THE Chinese condemn criminals to death by preventing sleep. Sufferers last from 12 to 20 days, when death comes to their relief.

THE late Mrs. Scott Siddons, the celebrated actress and elocutionist, had lived in retirement for 15 years previous to her death in Paris.

THE increase in the population of France from 1890 to 1895 was but 124,000, or only an annual average of .07 per cent. of its population.

THE results of the census in 1895 in Germany give a population of 52,244,503, an increase since 1890 of 2,816,027, or 1.14 per cent. increase per year.

THE London Daily Mail reports that the Queen has been a total abstainer from alcohol for three years past on account of intense pain in her legs.

THE bill offered in the Alabama legislature to prohibit the making of gold contracts was overwhelmingly defeated, populists alone voting for it in the senate.

MISS JULIA RICHMAN, a grammar school principal of New York city, has undertaken the task of teaching mothers to look after their children. Cleanliness is her hobby.

AT the funeral of an unmarried woman in Brazil scarlet is the mourning hue. The coffin, the hearse, the trappings of the horses and the livery of the driver must be scarlet.

THE word "dun" is said to owe its origin to one Joe Dun, a famous bailiff about 1500. He is said to have been so shrewd and dexterous in the collection of dues that his name became proverbial.

BY an Italian law, any circus which does not perform every act promised in the printed programme, or which misleads the public by means of pictures, is liable to a fine of $500 for each offense.

DURING the last fiscal year 240,000 immigrants arrived in this country, an increase of 60,000 over the number in 1894. Of the number coming last year 78,000 over 14 years of age could neither write nor read.

GREAT BRITAIN'S new cruiser Talbot, which is to replace the Magicienne on the North American station, will greatly strengthen the fleet, as she is twice the size of the vessel she replaced and has a much more powerful armament.

A BIDDLEFORD (Me.) pastor offers his parish three alternatives: he will take what he can get in the contribution box and run things as he pleases; or they may pay him a fixed salary and run things as they please; or, thirdly, he will resign.

THE Austrian Countess Hohenau wears a novel riding costume. It consists of wide corduroy knickerbockers, with leather leggings, a silk skirt waist and a morocco belt, with long frock coat of cloth and a jockey cap. Thus equipped, she sits astride of her horse.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER proposes to compete with Andrew Carnegie as an iron king. The Standard Oil Co. has purchased property in South Chicago, and, will at once, it is said, erect a $10-000 rolling mill to be operated in connection with the immense mines in the Mesaba region.

NANSEN has sold the English rights of the work in which he will describe his latest experience in the Polar seas to Messrs. Constable, and the sum he will receive in consideration thereof is unusually large—$50,000 being mentioned as the price of this book. The firm paying the price is a comparatively new one.

IS MACEO DEAD?

His Physician Says the Noted Cuban Leader Was Killed in Battle

On December 7 Between the Insurgents and the Spanish Troops Under Maj. Cirujedas—But Others Deny the Story—Patriots' Army's Condition.

HAVANA, Dec. 11.—Dr. Maximo Zertucha, who was formerly Gen. Antonio Maceo's physician, has surrendered to Col. Tort, at San Felipe, and confirms the reports of the patriot leader's death, which occurred at 2 p. m. on December 7, in the engagement between the patriots under Maceo and the Spanish troops under Maj. Cirujedas.

GEN. ANTONIO MACEO.

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 11.—All reports from Havana Thursday from patriot friends are to the effect that the reports of the death of Maceo and Gomez's son are fakes of the usual Spanish kind.

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—Capt. G. H. Lane, of the Cuban army, was in Cambridge Thursday, and he characterized the report of Maceo's death as false and a Spanish trick to offset the effect of the message of President Cleveland. While it was possible, he said, that Maceo had been killed, yet it was altogether improbable that he would have been found by the Spaniards at the head of so small a detachment of men as it is reported he was leading.

Capt. Lane says it will be impossible for Weyler to drive the patriots from the hills of Pinar del Rio. The Cubans can remain in the hills for an indefinite time. The valleys there are as fertile as any ground on earth, and within a year three crops of sweet potatoes have been raised by the Cuban army. Vegetables have been planted, and there are men regularly appointed as herders to care for the beef. The Cuban army, he claims, has much better food and of greater quantity than the Spanish soldiers.

While Capt. Lane would not speak of the number of men in the Cuban army, he stated that they were numerous enough to meet Gen. Weyler and his soldiers in open battle if Gomez and Maceo so determined, with the result that the Spanish would be driven to Havana in disorder.

ATTORNEY GENERAL HARMON

Gives an Opinion Adverse to Allowances of Claims Arising From Filibustering Organizations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Attorney General Harmon, responding to a request from the secretary of state concerning the question of damages accruing from filibustering operations organized in this country, has in a memorandum sent to the state department, given an opinion adverse to the allowance of any claim arising from filibustering organizations. The opinion declares that the mere sale or shipment of arms by persons in the United States to persons in Cuba is not a violation of the international law. Individuals in the United States have a right to sell and ship such articles to whomsoever may choose to buy them, but if the persons supplying such munitions of war from a place in the United States are in anywise parties to a design that force shall be employed against Spanish authority, then the enterprise is not commercial and is a violation of international law and the United States.

The opinion further substantially declares that while the president may employ military and naval force to disperse or prevent a departure from our territory of expeditions, it is plain that such means are practical only when there has been defiance of the government by an organized body of men.

Our constitution forbids the arbitrary exercise of power where the liberty of property of individual citizens is involved.

Member of the Buffalo Family Killed.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Dec. 11.—One of the last members of the Buffalo family was killed on Antelope island, in Great Salt Lake, the hunting party killing it arriving in this city Thursday. The animal was an old bull who has for some years lived on the island undisturbed, but recently, on account of his becoming savage it was decided to shoot him. He was brought to this city Thursday and is now on exhibition. He weighs 2,345 pounds. This is one of the last full blood buffalo in the country.

Dingley for the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The Washington Times says: Hon. Nelson Dingley, jr., of Maine, is to be the next secretary of the treasury. This statement is not official, but comes from such a source that there can be no doubting that the portfolio will be tendered Mr. Dingley and accepted.

Marie Barberi Acquitted.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Marie Barberi, who has been on trial in this city for several days charged with the murder of her lover, Dominio Cataldo, was Thursday evening acquitted. This was her second trial. The jury in the first trial returned a verdict of guilty.

Noted Swedish Chemist Dead.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—A dispatch to a news agency here announces the death at San Remo, Italy, of Alfred Nobel, a Swedish engineer and chemist. He was the first to recognize the value of nitro-glycerine, and was the inventor of a number of explosives.

SAFE RETURN.

Gen. Weyler Rides Into the City of Havana on Horseback—Given a Popular Ovation by the Loyal Inhabitants.

HAVANA, Dec. 12.—Gen. Weyler arrived here at half past five o'clock Friday evening. He rode into the city on horseback accompanied by two squadrons of cavalry. His coming had been made known to the public and large crowds gathered to welcome him. He was given a popular ovation from the time he reached the city till he arrived at the palace. At some places along his route girls strewed flowers in his pathway and he was in other ways treated as a popular hero.

Calle Obispo, Calleo O'Reilly and the other streets in the vicinity of the palace and the Plaza de Armas were jammed with people, who enthusiastically cheered the captain general as he rode along. When he arrived near the palace the enthusiastic crowd surrounded him, despite the military, and he was compelled to stop his horse in order not to ride down his admirers, who greeted him with all manner of loyal cries. A passageway was finally opened and Gen. Weyler proceeded to the palace. Shortly after he had entered the building he appeared upon a balcony and was greeted with the most tumultuous cheering. The scene was reminiscent of the time when Martinez Campos arrived in Havana near Sago after pacifying the island.

When Gen. Weyler called upon his audience to cheer for the king, for Spain and for the army, a roar went up that could be heard across the bay in Morro castle and the fortress of Cabannas.

When silence had been restored Gen. Weyler made an address from the tenor of which it would be supposed that the suppression of the rebellion was an accomplished fact. He said among other things that everything that had been done had been accomplished by the army, which had been entrusted with the pacification of the island and the maintenance of Spain's sovereignty. He was continually interrupted by cheering, which was continued after he had left the balcony.

Later Gen. Weyler gave a reception that was attended by the members of the municipal corporation, delegations from various societies and prominent residents of the city. All congratulated him upon the success that has attended the Spanish arms and complimented him upon the effectiveness of his campaign in Pinar del Rio.

The city Friday night presented a most animated aspect, reflecting the joy felt by the Spaniards because of Maceo's death and Gen. Weyler's triumph over the insurgents in the western provinces.

Casablanca, the little village under the walls of the Cabana fortress, and Regla, on the southern side of the bay, also held demonstrations in honor of the victorious return of the general.

GEN. COXEY

Issues an Open Letter to Senator Marion Butler Denouncing the Disgraced People's Party.

MASSILLON, O., Dec. 12.—J. S. Coxey issued an open letter Friday to Senator Marion Butler denouncing the "disgraced people's party," sold out to an "issue so insignificant as silver." He adds: "I decline to help chase rainbows of election frauds in Ohio, but hereby announce my resignation as a member of the national committee. I once left the democratic party and now find, in order to be out of it for sure, I must leave the once grand but now disgraced people's party. This is done in deep sorrow and with the hope to join a party soon to which the hope of the republic must look for succor from financial and industrial ills."

BUILDING COLLAPSES.

Eleven Dead and Forty-Six Injured so Far Taken From the Ruins.

CADIZ, Dec. 12.—A terrible disaster occurred at Peres, in the province of Andalusia and 16 miles from this city, Friday morning, through the collapse of a building. A house containing 25 persons collapsed without warning, burying all of its inmates in the debris. The house fell upon an adjoining tenement building, which also gave way. The tenement house was inhabited by 85 persons, all of whom were buried by the wreckage. Eleven dead bodies and 46 seriously injured persons have already been taken from the ruins and the work of excavation for the purpose of recovering the others is proceeding as rapidly as possible.

A Great Hurdler.

CONNERSVILLE, Ind., Dec. 12.—A horse belonging to W. J. Cain, the hardware dealer, leads a charmed life. It got out of the stable, climbed the railroad embankment and started westward. In attempting to cross a high trestle the horse slipped through the ties and fell. In is struggles it rolled off the bridge, falling 60 feet to the road below. It was captured later and not a bone was broken. The animal is as sound as ever.

Tramp Arrested Suspected of Murder.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 12.—Marshal Resselt, of Delaware, arrested there Friday evening a tramp who exactly answers the description of the man who shot Brakeman Nelson Snigel, of Huntington, Ind., when he ejected him from a Big Four train at Galion Thursday. A movement to lynch the man was thwarted by the marshal hurrying the prisoner out of the city. He is now locked up at Galion.

West Virginia's Vote.

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 12.—Unofficial footings of the presidential vote in this state were made at midnight Friday night as follows: McKinley, 104,-914; Bryan, 92,927; Levering, 1,207; Palmer, 677; McKinley's plurality, 11,-487; total vote, 199,221.

Steam Yacht Under Suspicion.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 12.—The steam yacht Advance, of New York, which arrived in this port Friday, is being closely watched by the government authorities. There is no positive evidence that she is a filibuster, but a very vigilant eye is kept on her.

WALLING TO HANG.

Scott Jackson's Companion in Crime Must Die on the Scaffold.

No Grounds of Error Found Sufficient to Warrant a New Trial—A Double Execution Will Probably Be Ordered by the Chief Executive.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 14.—Alonzo Walling will be hanged. His appeal to the highest court in Kentucky has been refused. The decision was among those rendered by the court of appeals Saturday morning.

The opinion in the case was written by Judge Hazelrigg, to whom both the Jackson and Walling cases were submitted for a careful examination.

The evidence and lawyers' briefs were read by Judge Hazelrigg a fortnight ago, but Saturdays decision was not written until after the Jackson appeal was out of the way.

The points of law in the decision Saturday are different from those in the other appeal, and this accounts for the fact that they were rendered separately.

In all points, however, the court holds that the exceptions of Walling's lawyers are not backed by sufficient legal usage, and Judge Helm's rulings are affirmed.

The decision of the Walling case makes it probable that Jackson and Walling will be hanged together. The final records in the cases may go to the governor's office together, and both death warrants will likely be sent to Newport by the same messenger.

The news of the Walling verdict was followed by the arrest of a newspaper correspondent, who was caught in an attempt at eavesdropping while the court of appeals was in its consultation room.

This arrest has caused more talk about the capital than the decision itself.

The court of appeals became aware that an attempt was being made to eavesdrop by someone in a room above the consultation room, and officers were sent to the floor above.

There it was found that holes had been bored in the floor by some one, the carpet having been turned back while the work was done.

Tipstaff Turner and Deputy Sergeant Coon went to the Capitol hotel at 11 o'clock and arrested Frank Robinson, of Cincinnati, a correspondent for the Times-Star. He was in his room at the Capitol hotel, where he had gone from the statehouse.

Robinson was taken back to the statehouse by the officers, and arraigned before the court of appeals, He was fined $5 and sentenced to 30 days' imprisonment.

It was reported that Attorney Crawford, Scott Jackson's lawyer, was in town; but no motion for a rehearing has been filed, nor has Gov. Bradley been seen by Crawford. Several letters have been received, some of which were signed, while others were anonymous, asking Gov. Bradley to use executive clemency in Scott Jackson's case. One letter asked that he be sent to the penitentiary for life, "because he is too wicked to die."

NEWPORT, Ky., Dec. 14.—The affirming of the lower court will in all probability lead to a double hanging. Such has been the expectation of Sheriff Plummer and the other county officials all along. When the death warrants shall finally reach Newport orders will be given by the sheriff or county commissioners for a double scaffold in the jail yard. The trap for both men will be sprung at the same instant.

COVINGTON, Ky., Dec. 14.—Turnkey Maurer, of the Covington jail, notified Walling of the decision, and probably a less affected man, under the circumstances, was never before met.

Walling was at the time playing cards with Jackson.

"You get no new trial, Walling," said Maurer.

"All right," were Walling's only words.

He did not even look up, but went on dealing his hand, as though nothing unusual had happened.

Border Robbers in Custody.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Dec. 14.—Deputy Sheriff Seaz arrived here, having in custody John Crosby, Will Twist, Ike Twist, Bill Handricks and Felix Spear, a noted gang of border robbers, operating along the line of the Cherokee nation. Several days ago they entered the store of C. W. Jones, at Salem, and presented their Winchesters and demanded "hands up." The proprietor, O. F. Bey, was relieved of $100. The officers pursued the bandits, capturing them in the Indian territory.

Power House Burned.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 14.—At 4 o'clock Saturday morning the power house of the new Inclined Plane company on Lookout mountain was burned. The car at the top caught fire and was released from the cables and went whizzing down the track at lightning speed like a fiery demon. At a quarter of a mile down it jumped the trestle and was smashed in pieces in the gorge. No one was aboard. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Theological Student Suicides.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 14.—Sterling W. Turner, a theological student at the Vanderbilt university, was found dead in his room at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, having cut his throat from ear to ear. Turner was president of the University Y. M. C. A. He was a close student and a most exemplary man.

Dr. Johnson Insane.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 14.—Dr. S. S. Johnson, well-known local dentist, was adjudged insane and sent to the asylum. Dr. Johnson, it will be remembered, lost his mind at an Ohio summer resort, and spent several weeks in the Cincinnati hospital during August.

Equal Suffrage Amendment Adopted.

BOISE, Ida., Dec. 14.—The supreme court handed down an opinion in which it is held that the equal suffrage amendment voted on at the recent election was adopted and hereafter women will vote in this state.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—SENATE—The first day of the second session of the 54th congress presented no remarkable features. There were 71 senators in their seats and 18 absentees. The president's annual message was read without apparently evoking any special interest. The only exception to that rule was as to the portions of the message devoted to Armenian outrages and to the revolution in Cuba. On the first of these subjects the president states his belief: "That the present somber prospect in Turkey will not be long permitted to offend the sight of christendom."

HOUSE—The house devoted the first day of the session principally to hearing the president's message. Mr. W. D. Stokes, from the Seventh South Carolina district, was sworn in. The first of the general appropriation bills for the coming fiscal year—the pensions—was reported from the appropriation committee and placed on the calendar. The death of Ex-Speaker Crisp was announced by Mr. Turner (dem., Ga.), and the house, as a mark of respect to his memory, adjourned until Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—SENATE—The senate spent less than half an hour in session Tuesday and then adjourned until Wednesday as a mark of respect to the memory of the late Speaker Crisp. The only business transacted during the half hour was the presentation of communications from several of the departments and of petitions—some of them favoring the passage of the Dingley bill. An effort was made by Mr. Call (dem., Fla.) to get in a resolution on the subject of Cuba, but as that stage of morning business had not been reached, he was forced to wait for another day. Notice was given by Mr. Cullom (rep., Ill.) that he would next Thursday submit some remarks on that subject.

HOUSE—The house promptly got down to business, resuming the call of committees where it left off at the close of last session. Under the call the committee on post offices and post roads occupied nearly three hours of the session, in that period securing the passage of three bills. These were: (1) Authorizing the use of private postal cards; (2) authorizing the postmaster general to allow an indemnity not exceeding $10 in any one case for the loss of registered packages or letters; (3) authorizing the appointment of letter carriers at offices where the free delivery system is not established, the cost thereof to be borne by the patrons. The general pension appropriation bill was then taken up and passed without amendment. The documents in the contest of Thomas E. Watson vs. J. C. C. Black for a seat in the Fifty-fourth congress from the Tenth Georgia district, were received from the clerk of the house by the speaker, referred to the committee on elections No. 1. At 4:20 the house adjourned until Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—SENATE—The independence of Cuba was the subject of three joint resolutions introduced by Senators Cameron (rep., Pa.), Mills (dem., Tex.) and Call (dem., Fla.). Something of a political sensation was produced by a motion made by the populist senator from Nebraska, Mr. Allen, to take up the Dingley bill for action, so, as he stated, to preclude the necessity for an extra session. At first objection was made by Mr. Aldrich (rep., R. I.), but after few minutes' reflection Mr. Aldrich withdrew the objection which was thereupon renewed by Mr. Palmer (dem., Ill.). The motion, however, was carried by a yea and nay vote—35 to 21. A very interesting colloquy followed and was still in progress when the morning hour expired. The matter then went over without further action, but may be taken up at any time that a similar motion is made by any senator. The immigration bill came up as the unfinished business, but no action was taken upon it, and the senate at 2:30 p. m. adjourned until Thursday.

HOUSE—Bills Passed: Extending until July 1, 1904, the period within which the University of Utah may occupy certain public lands granted to it; authorizing the secretary of the interior to use the abandoned military reservation at Fort Bidwell, Cal., for an Indian training school authorizing the joint entry and equitable division of lands when two or more settlers locate homestead entries upon the same tract of agricultural land before survey; authorizing Flagstaff, Ariz., to issue $750,000 of bonds for a water works system; abolishing the arbitrary power of the secretary of the territory of New Mexico to organize the legislature. A senate bill was also passed authorizing associations of farmers and stock raisers to locate and purchase public lands for reservoir sites, irrespective of the homestead or pre-emption acts. The senate's increase of the pension granted to Mrs. Mary Gould Carr, widow of Gen. J. B. Carr, formerly secretary of the state of New York, from $50 to $75 per month, was agreed to by a vote of 146 to 89. The usual resolution distributing the topics of the president's message to the appropriate committees was reported from the ways and means committee, and agreed to.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The independence of Cuba and the recognition of the insurgents as a regularly organized government had two advocates in the senate Thursday in the persons of Senators Cullom (rep., Ill.), and Call (dem., Fla.). Mr. Cullom delivered a carefully prepared speech in support of his views, while Mr. Call contented himself with a brief discussion statement. The bill to restrict immigration was taken up as unfinished business—a motion by Mr. Gibson (dem., Md.) to postpone its consideration till the first Monday in January having been defeated. Various amendments to the text of the bill were offered or suggested, but no action was taken. Adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE—The bill amending the law prohibiting alien ownership of lands in the territories, so as to permit aliens to acquire possession under foreclosure of mortgage and hold the land for ten years, within which period they must dispose of it, was taken up and discussed. Under call of committees, bills were passed prohibiting the sale of liquors in the capital building and protecting the rights of dramatic authors and musical composers in their productions. The bill to define the rights of purchasers of the Atlantic and Pacific railroad under foreclosure of the mortgage authorized by act of April 20, 1871, was laid over until Monday next, after having been amended so as to forbid the issue of capital stock by the new corporation for full value at par, on account of money paid in, or labor or material furnished, until approved by the secretary of the interior. Hon. C. J. Boatner, elected from the Fifth district of Louisiana to fill the vacancy occasioned by the action of the house at the last session, declaring his seat vacant, appeared and took the oath of office.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—SENATE.—Not in session.

HOUSE—In the prayer at Friday's session of the house, Chaplain Couden referred directly to the bill passed Thursday, forbidding the sale of liquor at the capital, and asked that the bill might speedily become a law to be never repealed. The resolution extending until the end of the session the investigation by the joint committee of the use of free alcohol in the arts was agreed to.

This being private pension day nine bills were reported and two passed; two pension bills also got through. At 5 o'clock the house took a recess until 8 o'clock, the evening session being devoted to the consideration of private pension bills, and at the expiration of that session the house adjourned until Monday next.

Rather Hang Than Go Back.

ASHLAND, O., Dec. 11.—The grand jury indicted Elias Kiester Thursday afternoon, charging him with the first degree murder of Horace Stearns, at Perrysville, November 29. Kiester says: "I am innocent, but would rather be hanged than return to Perrysville." His trial will begin January 5.

Toledo Franchise Sold.

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 11.—J. W. Gunnells, of this city, Thursday purchased of C. J. Strobel, of Findlay, his former team and franchise of this city in the Interstate league. Strobel will take charge of the Dayton, O., team.

Hope

Returns to the heart of the victim bound in the chains of rheumatism, dyspepsia, scrofula, catarrh, when the blood is enriched and purified by

Hood's

Sarsaparilla

The One True Blood Purifier. All druggists. $1.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, aid digestion. 25c.

Mushroom Society.

A society for the study of mushrooms has been organized in Philadelphia. It will meet every two weeks, and members will read papers on such topics as "Mushrooms That Have Helped Me." The organizers say that there are about 235 edible kinds of mushrooms to be found around Philadelphia, and that tons of the delicious food go to waste, simply because people have a horror of what are known as toadstools, only four kinds of which are really poisonous.

A Superbly Appointed Train.

Undoubtedly the handsomest train between Chicago and St. Paul, Minneapolis, the Superiors and Duluth is the "North-Western Limited," which leaves Chicago at 6:30 p. m. daily via the North-Western Line (Chicago & North-Western R'y). Its equipment, which is entirely new throughout, and embraces Compartment Sleeping Cars, Buffet, Smoking and Library Cars, standard Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars and ladies' coaches, has every luxury which imagination can conceive or mind invent for the comfort and convenience of passengers. All agents sell tickets via the Chicago & North-Western R'y. For full information apply to agents of connecting line, or address W. B. KNISKERN, G. P. and T. A., Chicago, Ill.

THERE are people who think that if a fellow doesn't like olives, it is a sign that he hasn't been moving in the best society.—Washington (Ia.) Democrat.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

"Do you think, Mr. Gruffly, that Callow has lost his mind?" "There is no reason to hope that he has, madam."—Detroit Free Press.

I USE Piso's Cure for Consumption both in my family and practice. DR. G. W. PATTERSON, Inkster, Mich., Nov. 5, 1894.

AS SOON as thought finds a body, it begins trying to move the world.—Ram's Horn.

TIME counts, health gains. A quick, sure cure—St. Jacobs Oil for sprains.

THE wise form right judgment of the present from the past.

FEEBLE nerves—severe weather—neuralgia. Soothing cure—St. Jacobs Oil.

SENSE shines with a double luster when set in humility.—Penn.

Love is the sun of woman's life. Its dawning is the maiden's tender sentiment; it brightens into the steady affection of the contented wife, and reaches its glorious noontide in the happy mother. Happy motherhood is a true woman's loftiest ambition. Her highest pride is in her fitness to fulfill this grand and sacred destiny. Nothing so clouds and darkens her existence as to be incapacitated for this noblest of womanly functions by weakness or disease.

A woman who suffers from any ailment of the delicate special organism of her sex, feels something more than pain and physical wretchedness. She is mortified with a sense of womanly incompleteness.

But no woman need remain under this cloud of misery and dissatisfaction. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription positively cures all diseased conditions and weaknesses, and restores complete health and strength to the feminine organs.

It is the only medicine of its kind devised for this one purpose by an educated and experienced physician, and eminent specialist in this particular field of practice.

It is the only medicine which can be relied upon to make the ordeal of motherhood absolutely safe and almost painless.

"I cannot say too much for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Miss Clara Baird, of Bridgeport, Montgomery Co., Penn'a. "I feel it my duty to say to all women who may be suffering from any disease of the womb that it is the best medicine on earth for them to use. I cannot praise it too highly for the good it did me. If any one doubts this give them my name and address."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the stomach, liver and bowels. Of all medicine dealers.

Why have more

ESTEY

Organs been sold than any other kind? Because, although higher in price, the Estey gives far better value than any other.

Write for Illustrated Catalogue with prices, to Estey Organ Company, Brattleboro, Vt.

There's MONEY in it!

No business pays as well on amount invested as DRILLING WELLS with our modern machinery! "IT SUCCEEDS! THAT'S the Reason!" LOOMIS & NYMAN, TIFFIN, OHIO.

PISO'S CURE FOR

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

CONSUMPTION

URGES REFORM.

Postmaster-General Wilson on the Big Annual Deficit.

Says It Is Due to Abuses of Cheap Rates and the Franking Privilege—Comptroller Eckels Suggests New Banking Legislation.

Washington, Dec. 9.—A vigorous protest against the abuse of the postal service is made in the annual report of Postmaster-General Wilson. He quotes figures which show an excess of expenditures over receipts of $8,127,088 for the last fiscal year, which, however, is a decrease in the deficiency of $1,679,956, as compared with the previous fiscal year. This satisfactory exhibit for the last year has been made possible, the postmaster-general sets forth, by a vigorous policy of bringing suit or pushing collection on bonds immediately after default, which is the only safe practice for the interests of the government and those of the obligers.

The postmaster-general argues that there is no necessity for the annual deficit in the revenues of the department, and that but a few lines of amendment by congress to the postal laws will wipe it out and give in its place a steady surplus. It has its chief source, he says, in the transmission at second-class rates of a large and rapidly-increasing volume of matter never in the contemplation of the law, which gives the nominal rate of one cent a pound on such matter, and assuredly outside of the policy of the law as to newspapers and periodicals.

The report recites the strenuous efforts in the past to secure legislation designed to protect the postal service from this waste of its earnings and the taxpayers from the large burden imposed on them by the regular deficits. But, it says, up to now the combinations and active efforts of the beneficiaries of this abuse have parried all appeals of the department.

One Cent Postage.

Postmaster-General Wilson discusses the proposed one-cent letter rate, the cheapest postage in the world. He says it would yield a great profit, but it is idle to talk of such reduction while two-thirds of our mail matter is handled at a small fraction of its cost, and the deficits of the department in consequence have aggregated in 11 years, since the act of March 3, 1885, (one-cent-a-pound rate) the enormous sum of $71,377,480. This is made up from the avails of general taxations, and there is the further sum of $15,010,962 earned by the Pacific railroads for transporting the mails, which was certified to the secretary of the treasury for credit upon their indebtedness to the government, an ascertained deficit of $86,388,442. This, in fact, should be further increased by the unascertained overtime letter-carrier claims and the unliquidated indebtedness of the department for telegraph service, left over from the last administration. These would make the actual deficit over $90,000,000.

Loss Through Franking.

He characterizes the loss sustained by the franking privilege in transmitting serial libraries, etc., as indefensible, shows that of 318,980,648 pounds of second-class matter handled during the year over 52,348,000 pounds were "county free" matter, and urges the adoption of the Loud bill, now pending in the house, as the remedy. He says the passage of this bill will not only wipe out the postal deficit and insure in ordinary years a surplus which may be used to cheapen postage on letters or to increase the mail facilities of the people, but will really carry out the one-cent-a-pound law of 1885.

The postmaster-general estimates a deficiency in the revenues of the department for 1897 of $3,472,119, and for 1898 of $1,288,334.

Discussing the merits of the postal system, the postmaster-general says the people of the United States may felicitate themselves that in no important respect are they behind any other country in their postal facilities, and in many things they are in the van.

Consolidation of Offices.

Touching the consolidation of small offices with the nearest money order offices, the hope is expressed that the limitation imposed by the last congress on the authority of the postmaster-general to consolidate offices will be repealed, and that the appropriation bill for the coming fiscal year will permit this reform to be carried forward as rapidly as public interests will allow, as once fairly started its demonstrated success will finally place its benefit beyond controversy. The postmaster-general thinks it the most feasible method for bringing post offices into the classified service.

Free Rural Delivery.

The results of the free rural delivery experiments are yet incomplete. Time is required to familiarize the people with the innovation and develop its benefits or failures. The thorough working of such a system involves some redistribution of post offices and some discontinuances which cannot now be safely attempted.

Twelve thousand and ninety appointments of postmasters were made during the year, of which 1,341 were due to removals. There were 193 fraud orders issued during the year.

Lotteries.

The headquarters of all or nearly all of the avowed lottery concerns have been removed to foreign shores, but it is thought much matter sent by them reaches addresses in this country through the mails, which the department practically has no power to prevent, and that express companies carry large sums of money from our people to them.

The postmaster-general concludes his report with two significant recommendations, which he says are necessary to complete the civil service reforms. The first is to secure fixity of tenure during efficiency and good behavior to the three assistant postmasters-general, whose work is entirely non-political, whose capacity to deal with the large machinery and great expenditures of their respective bureaus must come in great measure from experience, and who preserve the continuity of the department, not in the mere desk or division work, but in the general administration.

Regarding Partisan Activity.

The second is to cover into the civil service as many as possible of the postmasters themselves.

"The 70,000 or more postmasters are now the chief spoils of an incoming administration. Under the present system these officials are too apt to think that their obligation to party is higher than their duty to the public, and that the zeal and activity with which they meet that obligation is a surer guaranty of continuance in office than any like zeal and activity for the public service.

"To this belief I am sure is traceable the excessive and occasionally reprehensible partisan activity exhibited by many postmasters during the late and during preceding presidential campaigns."

The report says that if the two items of second-class matter at one cent per pound and of county free distribution paid their proportionate share of the cost it is figured that it would create an apparent surplus in the revenues of $21,440,669, instead of the deficiency of over $8,000,000.

REFORMS IN BANKING.

They Are Recommended in Comptroller Eckels' Report.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Comptroller of the Currency Eckels has considerable to say in his annual report about financial stringency and congestion, and he makes remedial suggestions of interest. Various amendments to the national bank act looking to giving relief are proposed by the comptroller, among them the following:

That in places having a population of less than 2,000 inhabitants national banks shall be permitted, under regulations to be made by the comptroller of the currency and approved by the secretary of the treasury, to be organized with a capital stock of not less than $25,000, and with a corresponding reduction in the amount of bonds required to be deposited with the treasurer of the United States.

That national banks shall be permitted, under such regulations and restrictions as shall be made by the comptroller of the currency and approved by the secretary of the treasury, to establish branch banks in towns and villages where no national banks are established and where the population does not exceed 1,000 inhabitants; such branch banks to have the right to receive deposits, make loans and discounts and buy and sell exchange, but in no case to be permitted to issue circulating notes other than of the parent bank.

In support of his recommendation for the establishment of branch banks the comptroller says: "The construction placed upon the national bank act as now in force by the supreme court precludes the establishing and maintaining of branch banks under it:" and he continues: "The permitting of branch banks would be the forming of agencies through which a better trade distribution of currency could and would be made;" and further on in his report he remarks that "the time must come when the banks shall be such agencies of distribution of loanable capital as will make credit everywhere equally available to the extent to which those seeking it are justly entitled. So, too, must a point be finally reached when banks shall issue all of the credit currency of the country and stand wholly responsible, instead of the government, for its redemption in gold coin whenever and in whatever quantities presented."

Further on in his report the comptroller remarks. "A policy in finance wrong in principle never becomes right in practice. The truth of the statement is fully illustrated by the course of the legal tender treasury issues of the United States. They have always been a disturbing element in business, and their current redemption a continuing weakness and anxiety to the treasury." He recommends "that legislation by congress, based upon safe and prudent lines, having in view the gradual payment and cancellation of the credit currency now maintained by the government and the issuance hereafter of all of such currency through the banks, with full responsibility therefor placed upon them, should be had at the very earliest practicable moment. The results which would follow such enactments would be beneficial, and neither would monopoly be created nor favor shown thereby."

THEY STAY AWAY.

Silver Senators Decline to Take Part in Republican Caucus.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The republican senatorial caucus did not accomplish much Tuesday except to uncover the unpleasant fact that the free silver contingent is for the present determined to flock by itself. Senator Dubois emphasized this point by resigning from the secretaryship of the caucus and from the steering committee, and his colleagues, Senators Cannon, of Utah; Mantle, of Montana, and Squire, of Washington, stayed away. Teller not being in the city could not attend. Senator Pettigrew was also absent.

Senator Dubois, through a note addressed to Senator Sherman, chairman of the caucus, resigned the secretaryship of the caucus and his membership on the steering committee. This may be an indication of the proposed policy of the free silver men to refrain from hereafter affiliating with their old-time colleagues.

Senator Wilson, of Washington, was elected secretary in place of Senator Dubois. There was a friendly rivalry between Senators Shoup, of Idaho, and Hansbrough, of North Dakota, for the vacancy on the steering committee caused by the resignation of Senator Dubois. The question was settled satisfactorily by putting both men on the committee, and to that extent increasing its membership.

The chief topic for discussion was the Dingley bill, with the result that the matter was referred without action to the steering committee. That committee will consider the advisability of taking up the Dingley bill and the possibility of passing it if wisdom suggests that such an effort should be made. Senator Sherman, who has hitherto been one of the chief advocates for this measure, refrained from discussing it. The consensus of opinion gathered from the short speeches made was that it would not be wise to take up the bill, owing to the entanglements that were sure to arise, and the more potent fact that it would be impossible to get the votes wherewith to pass it. The republicans who attended the caucus say they are firm in the conviction that the Dingley bill is now without hope of passage.

Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, introduced a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, authorizing the chairman of the caucus to appoint a special committee of five senators, whose duty it should be to devise such legislation for action by this session of congress as will secure an international monetary conference with the leading commercial nations of the world.

Senator Gear brought up the Pacific railroad question, as did Senator Lodge the immigration bill. The Pacific road bill was referred to the steering committee, but after Senator Lodge had explained the status of the immigration bill the caucus desired to stand by that as a party measure and to press for its early consideration.

SCOTT JACKSON TO HANG.

Kentucky Court of Appeals Refuses Him a New Trial.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 9.—The court of appeals has refused a new trial to Scott Jackson, convicted of the murder of Pearl Bryan. The opinion of the court covers also the appeal of the attorneys for Alonzo Walling. The grounds for the appeal were that the judge erred in instructing, the sheriff erred in not allowing admission except by ticket, and that the evidence was insufficient. The opinion was prepared by Judge Hazelrigg. It now devolves on Gov. Bradley to fix the day and hour for the execution. There is said to be no ground for carrying the case to the United States court, and the governor's warrant for the execution of Scott Jackson must issue. The law requires a judge, in sentencing a criminal, to allow not more than 90 nor less than 20 days after sentence. The only restriction upon the governor is that he shall not appoint a day earlier than was appointed by the court. The day has already passed.

Big Deal in Coal Lands.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 9.—About 25,000 acres of coal and timber land in Fayette county, W. Va., owned by Baltimoreans, have been sold to Messrs. Abram S. Hewitt and George Bliss, of New York city, and Mr. Page, of West Virginia, for $15 an acre. The transaction aggregates about $35,000. The purchasers will build a railroad and develop the coal and timber on the property.

GEN. MACEO

Turned the Captain General's Left Flank on December 1,

Capturing More Than 12,000 Stands of Arms and an Immense Quantity of Ammunition, Medicines and Supplies—Francisco Gomez Safe.

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 11.—The head of the local Cuban committees Thursday received dispatches from Key West making absolute denial of the Spanish report from Havana of the alleged killing of Gen. Antonio Maceo. The dispatches state that at 9 o'clock Wednesday night Maceo was safe in Pinar del Rio province, and his army was making successful operations against Weyler's forces; that by the turning of Weyler's left flank on December 1, Maceo had captured more than 12,000 stands of arms and an immense quantity of ammunition, medicine and commissary supplies.

The dispatches also stated that within the next three days the Cubans are likely to turn Weyler's other flank and win a decisive victory. Francisco Gomez has not been with Maceo in any of his recent movements, and is safe in Matanzas province. The head of the local committee said: "We know positively that the most sensational and glorious news for the patriots will come from Cuba on or about December 15. Texas is doing more to help the patriots than any other state in the union just now and is favorably located for effective aid. Dallas and Galveston will be in closer confidential relations with Key West than will any point in the east for some time to come."

The Dallas Cuban committee, through O. Paget, Thursday night issued a call for a public mass meeting to be held in auditorium of the city hall at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon. Col. J. T. Trezevant, president of the Texas state fair and Dallas exposition, and a confederate officer of prominence, has consented to preside.

An effort will be made to have a large representation of ex-confederate and ex-federal soldiers in the meeting. One object of the meeting is to give moral support to Senator Mills in pressing his Cuban resolution in congress.

Luis Peniz, official head of the Texas State Cuban Junta at Galveston, and other Cubans have been invited to be present.

NEW TARIFF BILL.

The Ways and Means Committee Will Go to Work at Once to Prepare One.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The committee on ways and means will go to work at once to prepare a tariff bill. This was the conclusion reached by the republican members of the committee at a conference held Thursday night in the rooms of Representative Grosvenor, called by Chairman Dingley, at which all the republicans were present, except Maj. Steele, of Indiana, who was unavoidably detained. The conclusion reached was the unanimous expression of the members present. In the preparation of the bill the committee will give hearings to all persons who are interested, and they will be conducted by the full committee. The first meeting of the committee will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning at which time if all the democratic members are present, the details of the hearings, the time when they shall begin, etc., will be agreed upon. In case Judge Turner, of Georgia, the ranking member of the minority of the committee should not be able to be present on Saturday, the meeting of the full committee will be postponed until such time as he can attend.

BANK TAX TEST CASE.

Torrens Land Law Will Also Have a Supreme Court Ruling.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 11.—The supreme court of Ohio some time ago decided that national bank stock was not a credit as against indebtedness in tax appraisement. This conflicts, it is believed, with a decision of the United States court. It has been decided to carry the case in which the Ohio decision was given to the United States supreme court for a more direct final ruling on the subject.

The United States supreme court will also be asked to decide as to the constitutionality of the Torrens or Australian law, now in force in Ohio. It is claimed that it is objected to by nearly all the state and county officers, and the secretary of state will start the ball rolling with a friendly law suit

Idle Miners Will Go to Work.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 11.—Within a week about 1,000 idle coal miners along the Monongahela river will go to work as a result of the amicable adjustment of the wage scale between the operators and their employes. The wages of the coming six months will be 62 cents per ton in the first pool, and 48 cents per ton in the second, third and fourth pools. Work will resume as soon as the mines can be put in condition.

Civil Service Reforms.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—The annual meeting of the National Civil Service Reform league began here Thursday in the Hotel Walton and will conclude Saturday night when a banquet will be tendered the visiting delegates by the Pennsylvania association. Prominent representatives from various parts of the country are in attendance.

Appointments by the President.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The president Thursday sent to the senate the following nominations:

John W. Ostrander, of Alaska, to be commissioner in and for the district of Alaska, to reside at Kuneau.

Benjamin K. Kimberly, receiver of public moneys at Denver, Col.

Also recess appointments of receivers of public moneys, Indian agents, collectors of internal revenues and promotions in the revenue cutter and marine hospital service.

The nomination of Wm. St. John Forman, of Illinois, to be commissioner of internal revenue, is included.

NEW TARIFF.

A Moderate Measure is the Desire of Leading Republicans—Provision for a Sufficient Revenue to Cover the Existing Deficit.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—"A moderate measure" is the characterization which leading republicans of the house gives to the new tariff bill, which it is proposed to frame this winter in anticipation of an extra session of congress. It is explained that what is desired is a bill which will provide sufficient revenue to cover the deficit now existing, furnishing proper protection to industries, and also that conditions have considerably changed since what is known as the McKinley bill became a law, and that rates of duty that were justified then are unnecessary at present.

The sugar schedule promises to cause more embarrassment than any other in the bill. The agricultural schedule will probably be fixed at the former rate of duty, while the woolen schedule, it is said, will receive a sufficient protection to satisfy the manufacturers. The cotton and steel and iron schedules are not likely to be changed.

The bill, it is said, will contain a provision that goods in bond will when taken out on a rate of duty in force and not the lower rate at which they were originally brought to this country. An arrangement will be made whereby dates will be assigned to certain interests to be heard so that there may be some systematic method of giving the hearings without embarrassment. The date upon which the hearings will begin will be made public when the full committee meets.

The Venezuelan Boundary Settlement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Neither Secretary Olney nor the British ambassador anticipate any serious embarrassment in the negotiations in regard to Venezuela arising from delay in Minister Andreade's return to the United States and the somewhat venomous attack made upon the proposed treaty by Senor Thomas Mychelena, the discarded Venezuelan minister to London. So many personal intrigues enter into all matters of South American diplomacy that speedy action upon any subject is never looked for. As a rule, however, the congress of each of these states is absolutely under control of the administration. The cabled dispatches received here on Saturday last stating that Crespo approved the treaty, are regarded as practically closing the controversy. It has been stated that the Venezuelan legislature could not be convened except in extra session until February, and that the constitution of that country required all treaties to be approved by both legislative bodies—house and senate.

In well informed diplomatic circles it is believed that that there is nothing but political intrigue in Michelena's pronunciamento against the treaty and that when the Venezuelan congress convenes President Crespo will take such action as will either force a ratification of the treaty or precipitate another revolution.

A Minority Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Representative Bell (dem., Tex.) Friday submitted to the house a minority report on the Pacific railroad funding bill, favorably reported at the last session by the committee on Pacific railroads. He recommended that the bill reported be amended so as to provide that the debts due by the roads be extended at three per cent. instead of two per cent. per annum, and that the extension be granted only on condition that the companies arrange to secure the government's debt by a first mortgage upon which it is proposed in the bill it shall have a second mortgage.

He also recommends that a provision be inserted requiring the law officers of the government to institute proceedings looking to a foreclosure of its lien and the sale of the property in the event that the terms of settlement are not accepted by the respective companies. If the bill is amended as recommended he will favor its passage. House adjourned until Monday.

Cleveland to Go Hunting.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—President Cleveland will leave the city soon for a few days' shooting in South Carolina waters. After the hard work and close attention incident to the Venezuelan question and the preparation of his annual message to congress, the president feels the need of rest and a change of air, and accordingly an outing in southern waters has been arranged for him.

A Duluth Bank Fails.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The controller of the currency is informed by telegraph of the failure of the National Bank of Commerce of Duluth, Minn. He has sent Examiner Brush to take charge.

Bank to Resume Business.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Controller Eckels Friday decided to allow the American national bank of Denver, Col., which failed about seven months ago, to resume business.

Wants the Protocol Modified.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The Chronicle publishes a special dispatch from Washington saying that Mr. Storrow, counsel for the United States government in the Venezuelan dispute, who is now in Caracas, has asked Secretary of State Olney whether the protocol can be modified. The writer of the dispatch asserts that Mr. Olney will not consent to any modification, and adds that if Venezuela obstructs a settlement of the boundary question the United States will withdraw its support.

Killed by a Splinter.

ELKINS, W. Va., Dec. 12.—On Files creek, near here Friday afternoon, while G. W. Daniels and Vincent Louk were cutting a tree, the splinter rebounded as the trunk broke from the stump, striking Louk and killing him instantly. He was aged 20, and had been married six months.

To Increase Salaries.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Representative Boatner, of Louisiana, has introduced a bill increasing the salary of the speaker of the house from $8,000 to $10,000 and senators and representatives from $5,000 to $7,500.

MACEO'S DEATH.

Led Into a Trap and Murdered Under a Flag of Truce.

Maceo Trusted to the Honor of a Spanish General and His Physician—Intense Indignation Aroused in This Country—May Result in Cuba's Freedom.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 14.—The Constitution's Key West special gives the following accounts of Maceo's death, indicating his betrayal and implicating Dr. Zertucha:

Your correspondent is now enabled to state upon the most undoubted authority that the death of Gen. Maceo was a premeditated assassination, and that the failure to produce his body is because it is mutilated and would shock even Spanish officials sensibilities. It seems that Gen. Maceo had planned a successful crossing of the trocha and that taking the sea route with a body guard, he was to rejoin his forces east of Mariel. This was accomplished in safety and while standing alone, within sight of a line of skirmishers, the general was shot down by men in hiding who were awaiting their victim. His body was then hacked up by the assassins.

It has been well known for a year past that there was a price set upon Maceo's head, and that Capt. Gen. Weyler's first official act upon reaching the island was to give recognition to the platеodos bands of freebooters. These men, following in the wake of both armies, would murder and plunder, and when chased down by the indignant Cubans, would find protection within Spanish lines, while the latter would officially deny all knowledge of the murders.

A few weeks ago a band of these men attacked a convent in the province of Puerto Principe, which was filled with young girls who were most shamefully abused. Some of these men were caught by Gen. Lacret, the insurgent leader, and executed, while the greater part of them found protection within Spanish lines. Although the enormity of their crime was known and their victims were convent school girls, the criminals were protected from molestation and are to-day free.

These are the men whom Gen. Weyler has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to attach to his cause, and through them he has ordered the killing of foreigners whom he dared not call up in court. To them he has made offers of reward for the assassination of innocent leaders. For three weeks it has been known in Havana that a clever bribe was out for the surrender of Gen. Maceo. It was to the effect that he held the ticket which called for the grand prize of $50,000 in the Havana lottery, and upon writers Weyler's departure for the hills several days ago it was bruited about that the man who killed Maceo could have the prize.

The story of Maceo's death, as told from official sources, sustains fully the theory of assassination. Gen. Maceo, instead of crossing the trocha directly with his men, was, through some covert influence, induced to pass Mariel on boat, and to reach his forces on the east side of the death line. There everything was in readiness by the conspirators and the brave leader fell a victim to the trap in which he had walked. It is considered very singular that Maceo's physician.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—The circumstances attending the death of Commander Maceo, of the Cuban army, have aroused a feeling of intense indignation in this city. The stories published in the morning papers were discussed at the various clubs and hotels, and the opinion was almost unanimous that congress would take summary action during the coming week. All agreed that the assassination of Maceo would do Spain more harm than good.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—The report that Gen. Antonio Maceo had been assassinated by the Spanish officials was received in this city with profound indignation. The staff of the Cuban commander was largely recruited from California where the opening of the rebellion found a large number of restless spirits eager to take up arms for Cuban independence. A nephew of Maceo, a youth of 19, left Oakland on Wednesday last to join his uncle's command, and, although the facts are suppressed, it is generally understood that a considerable party of volunteers will follow him. In clubs and on the streets Sunday the reported assassination was discussed with exceptional warmth, and there is a remarkable unanimity of opinion that the report should be thoroughly investigated by the federal authorities.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 14.—Upon the receipt of the news in this city by the United Associated Press of the circumstances of Maceo's death, a wave of public indignation arose that increases daily. It is the absorbing topic of discussion wherever men gathered, and the treachery of the Spanish general is condemned in the strongest language. The newspapers are giving it editorial attention in which such terms as "savagery," "murder" and "assassination," do double duty, and the Virginius affair is given a new airing. It is well known that St. Louis is the western depot of the Cuban Junta, and inquiries pour in upon every one connected with the Cuban cause as to the means of enlisting in the Cuban army. Within ten days an army of 10,000 men could be assembled here to march upon the Dons.

The Steamer Paris.

SOUTHAMPTON, Dec. 14.—The American line steamer Paris sailed for New York Saturday on her first voyage since her arrival here on October 18 with her starboard shaft broken in the tube. Since her arrival the Paris has undergone extensive internal and external repairs. In addition to the replacement of her broken shaft, part of her machinery has been renewed, her boilers have been overhauled and her funnels lengthened. The alterations which the ship has undergone are calculated to greatly increase her speed.

BLOODY REIGN

Of the Sultan of Turkey Ended by the Six Powers—The Obdurate Abdul Hamid II, to Be Brought to Terms.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Turkey is to be coerced. The sultan is to be reduced, in fact, if not actually in name, to vassalage. His fate will be made known to him probably before the end of the present week.

Russia, France and Great Britain has decreed it. Should he resist or fail to bow at once to the inevitable, then the combined fleets of those three powers will enforce their behest.

Such, in brief, is the infinitely welcome news which will bring relief and a sense of restored self-respect to the whole Christian world. It is not officially announced yet. It may even be discredited in certain quarters for a few hours as premature. But it can be affirmed, nevertheless, without reservation.

It was not until Tuesday that the full consummation was reached. Russia, France and Great Britain arrived at a substantial agreement on a plan of action last week. There remained the necessity of getting the consent of the other three powers which were signatories of the Berlin convention, Italy and Germany agreed without much demur. Austria hesitated long, and it was not until after Tuesday's emergency cabinet council in London, which discussed and approved the whole plan, that the Austrian ambassador notified Lord Salisbury of the rather unwilling assent of the government that the Russian, French and British fleets shall force the Dardanelles, if necessary, in the execution of the new policy.

The solution of the Turkish problem provides nothing so radical as a division of the Turkish empire. Such a project has not been for a moment considered. The integrity of Turkey will be substantially maintained.

The terms of the new policy have practically been dictated by Russia.

There are two or three versions in diplomatic circles of the policy at last decided upon. This is one:

That Russia shall occupy the northeastern corner formed by the Bosporus and the Black sea and extending to a point about half way down the Bosporus; that Constantinople and the Dardanelles shall be placed under European protection, but shall remain under the rule of the sultan, the forts at the Dardanelles being dismantled and the passage becoming entirely free. No further change is suggested in regard to the integrity of the Turkish empire.

This includes also European supervision of some of the sultan's appointments.

HOUSE COMMITTEE

On Banking and Currency Holds an Important Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The house committee on banking and currency at their meeting Wednesday unanimously adopted the two resolutions which follow. The first was introduced by Mr. Brosius (rep., Pa.) and reads thus:

"Resolved, That with a view to obtaining the latest and best thought on the subject of our financial and banking system, this committee invite suggestions and communications from financial, commercial and industrial organizations which may have any definite plan to present on the subject."

The second was offered by Mr. Johnson (rep., Ind.):

"Resolved, That all general bills now before this committee contemplating a revision of the banking and currency system, be submitted to the controller of the currency with the request that he analyze the same in writing and come before this committee and state the effect of each bill if enacted into law, and also that he formulate and submit to this committee his views of a proper measure for the revision of the financial and banking system of the country."

The committee do not expect to reach a conclusion regarding a proper banking bill in time to present to the house at this session, but it is confidently expected that one will be ready for the called session of congress which is generally anticipated.

The committee adjourned until one week from Wednesday.

IMMIGRATION BILL.

Little Doubt That It Will Pass the Present Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Senator Lodge, who has determined to pass the immigration bill this session, says it will be amended.

The clause which excludes illiterates between the ages of 16 and 60 years will be changed to include all over 14 years and under 60. The senate bill now provides that immigrants shall be able to read and write "some language." This is believed to be a faulty provision and the wording will be changed so as to compel aspirants for a residence in America to read and write either "their native language or the English language." There seems to be little doubt that the immigration bill will pass.

Ex-Congressman Williams Dead.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Benjamin H. Williams, a prominent attorney of this city, and an ex-congressman, is dead. He was born in Preston, Ct., in 1830. He served as city attorney, district attorney, state senator and congressman. He was a republican in politics. His wife, who survives him, is a sister of the late Gen. Stedman, of California.

Gen. Maceo Not Dead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The World's Key West special says: Private Havana advices flatly deny the Spanish report that Maceo had been killed. The story was concocted at the palace to counteract the bad effect of Maceo's success in crossing the trocha between two Spanish forts near Canas without losing a man.

Favors the Dingley Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A delegation of 50 members of the Manufacturers' club, of Philadelphia, arrived here Wednesday night to urge upon the senate the passage of the Dingley bill.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Dec. 16, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time.........................$1.00
Each additional time........................ .25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL. - - Publisher.

☞Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered........$5.00.

For Assessor.

We are authorized to announce W. W. GRIMSLEY, of Big Bone, as a candidate for Assessor, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce O. S. WATTS, of Bullittsville, as a candidate for Assessor, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For Jailer.

We are authorized to announce J. F. BLYTH, of Burlington, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce T. J. ADAMS, of Burlington precinct, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce OSCAR J. RYLE, of Burlington, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For School Superintendent.

We are authorized to announce E. L. CLEMENTS, of Rabbit Hash, as a candidate for Superintendent of Schools, of Boone county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Richwood.

Rev. Davis is conducting a protracted meeting at the P. E. Church.

Frank Youell, jr., and wife will go to housekeeping at Kensington.

D. B. Dobbins is spoken of for sheriff. If Dan should come to the front for a county office he has a host of friends that would flock to his assistance.

Hebron.

Prof. Hann was called home, Friday, on account of the illness of his sister.

Mrs. Emma Crigler, of Ludlow, died last Wednesday, after a lingering illness. The funeral was preached by Rev. H. Max Lentz, after which the remains were placed in the vault at this place to await final interment. She was formerly a resident of this place, and the bereaved have the sympathy of a host of friends.

The remains of Benj. Quick were interred at this place, Saturday.

The Christmas Exercises at this place will consist of a "Grand Christmas Potpourri." It will be one of the best exercises ever given by the school. The entertainment will begin at 1 o'clock p.m., Christmas day.

Walter Goodridge, who is under treatment at the Hygenic Hospital in Cincinnati, is improving.

Beaver.

Andrew Ellis has been assigned to Cynthiana.

Edw. Slayback, of Crescent Springs, lost a valuable silver watch, last week, while hunting near Beaver.

G. M. Slayback, of Pulaski county, has been mingling with his friends here for several days. He reports crops good but money and work scarce.

Rev W. J. Howe preached his farewell sermon at the Christian Church, last Sunday night.

John Cleck, who has been sick for several weeks, is not improving as rapidly as his friends would like to see.

The protracted meeting at the Baptist church is progressing nicely. Four additions up to Sunday night.

Mrs. J. C. Hughes was called to Indianapolis, Ind., last week, to the bedside of her brother-in-law, Mr. Garvey, who has typhoid fever.

Waterloo.

Lewis Clore is slowly improving from a sprained ankle.

We understand that Newton McGuire will take charge of the blacksmith shop at this place in the spring.

Little Bessie, the daughter of Oscar Sullivan, who has lingered at death's door for several days, is some better at this writing.

While returning from church, last Sunday night, Gid Kite's buggy capsized, throwing him and a lady friend out. They escaped with slight injuries.

Your Bellevue correspondent was mistaken about Eld Curry preaching his farewell sermon at Bellevue the first Sunday in this month. He will preach at that place the first Sunday in January.

It is rumored that J. A. Riley, who will have his sale on the 17th inst. will move to Lexington

Three of Dave Williamson's friends from the city came out last Tuesday, and with Dave as a guide, they found all the rabbits in the neighborhood.

Union.

Mr. and Mrs John Cropper, of Bullittsville, are visiting friends here.

Rev. Reed, of the Old Baptist Faith, preached to the faithful Sunday night.

Mr Phil Senior, of Owenton, a former resident of this county, who has been away for about 20 years, is visiting his old friends here.

The many friends of Mr. Nick Talbott are glad to see him out again. He does look natural about Union, and was calling on some of his old friends.

Rev. Myers, of Walton, filled the Union Baptist pulpit Sunday morning and evening, Rev. Adams being absent in a meeting at Beaver Lick.

Dr. Chas. C. Violette, of Napolean, Gallatin conuty, and mother, made his sisters, Mrs. Wallace and John Garrison a short visit. The Doctor was on his way to attend the Medical Association at Erlanger.

A very sad accident occurred in the family of Leon Baker, colored, last week, their five-year old daughter burning to death during the absence of the family. Her brother saw her running from the house in flames.

Erlanger.

Carl Price has returned home greatly improved in health.

The young men of Erlanger will give a select dance at the K. of P. town hall this Friday evening.

The "Koffee Klatch" at Mrs. Fred Ficke's was a success. The picture raffled off was won by Mrs. Louis Morelli.

Misses Jennie and Mary Rohan planned a very successful surprise party on their brother, Mr. M. Rohan, in honor of his 21st birthday. A large number of guests were present and enjoyed themselves dancing, after which a luncheon was served.

The citizens of this place held their meeting last Thursday evening at Konnerding's Hall, to elect city officers for the city of Erlanger, the same to be recommended to the Circuit Court to be appointed. For Police Judge, Louis Morelli; Assessor, P. T. Zinn; Marshal, K. Conrad; Trustees, Henry Mussman, Matt Huerkamp, Isadore Hagen, Harry Nussbaum and B. C. McCormick. The town has 38 legal voters and 150 population.

The Improvement Association has decided to hold their annual election of officers on Thursday, January 1st. A spirited contest will be had in a friendly way, as all are interested in the wellfare of the town.

Petersburg.

The Workum was crowded with hogs Monday morning.

Ed Pease has moved to Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

There are more vacant buildings in town now than ever before.

Miss Georgie Comer and mother are here on a visit.

Mr. Henry Jarrell was in town last Friday night.

Charley Ruth has diphtheria. There are several cases of sore throat, but none very serious.

Mrs. Richard McWethy has very fine life size pictures of her deceased father and mother, Mr. & Mrs. Jno. Weindel.

Miss Emma Holton and Mr. Winsel, of Delhi, Ohio, were married at the bride's home, near this place, last Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and left immediately for the city.

It so happens in every man's life, at some time or other, that a little sympathy—a few kind words of encouragement, some sort of substantial help will be worth a great deal, but more to to the person helped than to the helper. There's a wonderful reflection in kind deeds.

Died—Friday, Dec. 11th, 1896, Mrs. Bolen, aged 73 years, 8 months and 7 days. Funeral services were conducted at 2 o'clock Sunday at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Wm. Snyder, where she made her home. A very large assembly of relatives and friends testified to the high esteem in which she was held. She was a sister of Mr. John Loder, who was a butcher here several years ago, and a near relative of Louis Loder.

Hathaway.

Sam Stephens says he had a saddle stolen from him about the time of the election, but the report through the country is that he bet it on the election and lost and is afraid to own it.

Frank Rue delivered his crop to Mr. Long, last week, for $5 per 100.

Mrs Laura Head, of Long Branch, was visiting her aunt, Mrs. A. J. Utz, last Thursday.

People are preparing for a big time during christmas.

David Clements has been very sick for several days, and is no better at this writing.

The little daughter of Plum Gulley attempted to swallow a grain of corn and it lodged in her windpipe. She is in a very critical condition at this time.

Samuel Stephens and wife gave a big corn shucking and quilting last Monday week, and all enjoyed it, and a large lot of work was done.

Mrs. Myrtle Clements spent several days visiting relatives in our burg last week.

Rabbit Hash.

Married, on the 8th inst:, Mr. Ira Hodges and Miss Mattie Siggs. Rumor says there will be others to report soon.

Will McConnell left, a few days ago, for California to be gone some weeks.

O. W. Adams was this week called to Lebanon, O., on account of the illness of his brother, who is attending school there.

The K. of P. Lodge at this place is in a flourishing condition and the boys are zealous in the cause, and ambitious to have the best equipped hall in the country. They have just completed the ceiling of the lower room.

Born, to Will Hankinson and wife, a bouncing boy baby.

Ed Parsons is complaining that his supply of turnips is running a little short, and he has taken his departure for parts unknown, perhaps Cuba, as he was bending his steps in that direction when last seen

Nathan Smith was in the city this week with a nice bunch of fat hogs, his own feeding, for which he received $3.10 per cwt.

The new school house at Maple Hill is nearing completion and the first levy will be due and payable Saturday, Dec 19th, so we have been informed by J. J. Stephens, district treasurer.

We are informed that Joe Reed, of Walton, is expected to carry on an entainment here during the holidays.

Several of the candidates for assessor were with us last week.

There seems to be a kind of throat trouble prevalent with the children in our neighborhood.

Mrs. E. P. Stephens "Missouri letter" was read with much interest, and was very highly appreciated by her host of friends here. Write again, aunt Lide.

We have an excellent opening here for some enterprising mill man, who could do a good business in grinding and crushing grain and even in sawing, as the lot is very convenient to the river.

Walton.

The tomato crop in the neighborhood of this place deserves more than a passing notice. Our farmers have been only raising them about three seasons and have cultivated and handled them in a somewhat perfunctory manner, yet the Walton tomato has gained already an enviable reputation in the market. There is something in the soil that gives them a degree of perfection in form, size and flavor that is not attained in other localities. As proof of this it is only necessary to state that the product of this region is highly esteemed by the manufacturer of the most celebrated tomato catsup in the country (T. A. Snyder of Cincinnati), who has taken the overplus that our small cannery does not consume. It is here grown by almost inexperienced producers. The price paid at the cannery was 20 cents a bushel. From two of the growers has been obtained the yield, per acre; Fletcher Johnson raised 375 bushels and John Ransler raised 356 bushel, each cultivating five acres. It will be seen that tobacco is not in it with the tomato.

At the show given here on Monday night Mr. Orlando Hicks won the gold watch given as a premium to the gentleman who was accompanied by the greatest number of ladies. He brought 10 under the wire, S. G. Tomlin was second with 9 and J. W. Sanders third with 7.

Mr. Livingston, foreman of the T. A. Snyder & Co., has been out to see about a location for the plant. The proposition made to the farmers is that if they will furnish the product of 250 acres at 16 cts. per bushel for the first year, it will put up a plant and appropriate $30,000, for the adventure, $6,000 of which will go for buildings, &c.

Mr. Leon Northcutt laid to rest his faithful friend and life long worker, "old Tom," who departed this life on Thursday last aged 32 years. A good age for a horse.

Miss Nannie E. Hamiton will give her school exhibition at Verona on the night of the 19th inst. having secured the cooperation of our own famous humorist Mr. Joe Reed, who of himself can amuse any audience that witnesses his incomparable represeutations.

The Walton Academy will also give an exhibition Tuesday night the 22 inst. at the Opera House. Many new features in school exercises, vocal, mental and exercises in calisthenics, will be introduced and no pains will be omitted to give an interesting entertainment.

Instrumental music—Anna Hudson, Iva Vanlandingham.
Recitation—Ernest McEroi.
Ring Drill,——
Recitation—Watson Dyas.
Recitation—Anna Hudson.
Policemen's Drill——
Recitation—Mary Percival.
Sailor's Chorus——
Recitation—Emma Hance.
Recitation—Lena Hedges.
Instrumental Duet—Anna Hudson, Iva Vanlandingham.
Recitation—Lida Percival.
Wand Drill—Primary Class.
Piano Solo—Emma Hance.
Recitation—Lydia Taylor.
Cookoo Song—Primary Class.
Recitation—Thomas Stevens.
Sword Drill——
Bugle Song——
Recitation—Robert Byland.
Good Night—School.

Verona.

F. L. Gordon, of Beaver, our jovial candidate for assessor of this county, was shaking hands and telling jokes to the boys here, last Friday. Mr. Gordon will enter the contest to a finish.

The Baptist Sunday School will give an entertainment and oyster supper at the Hall on the night of Wednesday, Dec. 23d. Many preparations are being made and nothing will be spared to make this occasion one of the most pleasant and enjoyable affairs of the season.

George Spead's little daughter, who was so unfortunate as to fall into a kettle of hot lard, a few days since, is slowly recovering.

Our town and vicinity were greatly surprised when it was made known that our popular druggist, J. H. Marshall, and Miss Lulu Aames, of Glencoe, were married two weeks ago, in Cincinnati, but it had been kept a profound secret, and was only told by Mr. Marshall's landlady after he had started to Glencoe for his handsome bride. Mr. Marshall and his bride arrived at Verona on Monday, and that night the boys tendered them a serenade. We wish them a happy and prosperous journey through life.

Limaburg.

Whooping cough prevails in many families in this neighborhood.

About all the corn is in the crib.

Hogs are nearly all killed.

Miss Hallie Loring has closed her school until after the holidays, on account of the whooping cough.

Boys, be ready with your serenade instruments. More weddings near at hand.

Rev. Ezra Keller and wife were guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Rouse, last Monday night.

Mrs. Thomas B. Aylor is quite ill.

Leap year is drawing to a close, and the lady who has made up her mind to marry during a leap year, will have to hurry up, or wait eight years longer.

The contest for the Collectorship in this district has reached that point where endorsements by county committees are in order, and Leiberth, the Campbell county aspirant is the first to receive an endorsement of that kind. The fight for the Collectorship in this district is going to be a very warm and interesting one, and it is very uncertain who the lucky man will be.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[News]

It is reported that Jim Burk, the negro sentenced at the last term of the Owen Circuit Court for the murder of Peter Shea, died in the penitentiary of pneumonia last week.

Kirby Smith and Dr. R. E. Carlton have obtained a patent on a reversible or hillside mowing machine. The knife can be reversed so that it obviates uphill draft. It will doubtless prove a great and profitable invention.

FROM CARROLL COUNTY.

[News]

The new furnace has been put in at the Baptist church.

The candidates are out "in the bushes" doing valiant service for their respective causes. The sheriff and assessor's races are the warmest.

An expert electrician, of Cincinnati, was here Tuesday consulting with Chas. Barker about an electric plant, which Mr. Barker is thinking of putting in for Carrollton if he can get a franchise for a sufficent length of time.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier]

There are fourteen entries in the race for jailer.

James Combs, a young man of the Lawrenceville neighborhood, was struck and instantly killed by a limb from a falling tree.

The jail is full of horse thieves. The gentleman who stole John Layle's horse several months ago is one of the lads who have at last been landed. He says he is guilty and wants a short term.

Robt. Ranton, who was released from the State prison, where he served a year for cutting W. B. Robinson, of Crittenden, returned last week, and went after Robinson again. Ranton was arrested, and is now in jail at Williamstown in default of $1,000 bail.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby gived to the stockholders of the Burlington Mercantile Company that the annual election of directors of said company, will be held at the store of Blyth & Clutterbuck, in Burlington, Ky., the former business house of said company. Said election will be held at the place stated on Monday, Jan. 4th, 1897, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m, and 2 o'clock p. m. I, as president of said company hereby appoint W. F. Grant, J. W. Cloud and H. W. Blyth officers to hold said election. Given under my hand as president of said company, this 16th day of December, 1896. N. E. RIDDELL,
President Burlington Mer. Co.

For sale—Fresh Jersey cow.
O. W. Gaines, Bullittsville.

FOR SALE—About 700 bushels, good assorted corn, lot of oak paling and fence posts and a lot of sheaf oats. All of this property is to be found on the farm of the late J. H. Smith, north of Burlington. Apply to
W. L. AYLOR, Adm'r.

KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.

[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A.M.			A.M.	P. M
d 4:50	z9:13	Ar Walton	Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8:52	Ar Williamstown	Lv	8:32
3:48	8:28	Ar Corinth	Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar Sadieville	Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar Georgetown	Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv Frankfort	Ar	11:30	7:25

z Daily. d Except Sunday.
C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.

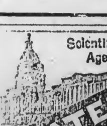
Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

THE QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain.
The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.
Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.

Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.

Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.



Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to [illegible] & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. [illegible] bureau for securing patents in America. [illegible] patent taken out by us is brought before [illegible] by a notice given free of charge in the [illegible] American [illegible] New York City.

Overcoats Ulsters

In inticipation of a Long and Severe Winter we bought heavily of Overcoats and Ulsters. The continued warm weather has Frightened us—we may have some of these goods left over next Spring—that is what we must avoid—and we will avoid it by offering special inducements for the next THIRTY DAYS.

We bought these goods cheap, and discounted every bill. Our expenses are low, and we are always satisfied with small profits. We invite inspection of these garments—comparison with any other dealer's will not be necessary—You can See where Ours Excel at a Glance.

Yours For Reliable Business,

ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS
S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

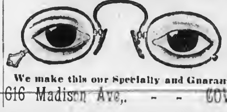
STEPHENS & SCALES,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Hardware, Cutlery, and Agricultural Implements,
Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Steel Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,
BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE
AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.
No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.

BEST GOODS! LIVING PRICES!
Hardware,
Farm Machinery,
Fine Vehicles,
Harness.
HARRIS FITCH, Corner HIGH AND SHORT STREETS,
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.

Prices Reasonable.

F. PIEPER,
Optician and Jeweler,



Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to

We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.
616 Madison Ave., - - COVINGTON, KY.

A SPECIAL INVITATION TO
Our Boone County Neighbors!
When in LAWRENCEBURG, IND., Stop at the Old Reliable
ADLES'R BARGAIN STORE.
Where you can pick up a bargain in the line of
Dry Goods, Shoes, Etc., also Holiday Attractions.
Here are a few Sample Bargains:
Ladies' Beaver Capes—all colors, $2 real value $3.50. Child's Long Cloaks—$1.75 real value $3. Beautiful Novelty Dress Goods—10c worth 15c. Best Calicoes & Ginghams, 5c. Best Yarns (all colors,) 5c skein. Wool Fascinators, Hoods or Shawls, 25c worth 50c. Blankets (heavy 10-4) 50c each worth 75c. Heavy Comforts, 75c worth $1.25. Men's Working Pants, only 50c worth 75c. Men's Underwear, 50c suit worth 90c
OUR LEADERS—Men's Cong. or Lace Shoes (all style toes) $1 actually worth $1.50. Ladies' Button or Lace, calf or kid (tips or without) $1 actually worth $1.50. Misses' School Shoes, sizes 1½, 75c actually worth $1.25. Infants' Tip Button, 25c actually worth 40 cents.
Adler's BARGAIN STORE,
27 Walnut St., LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

SNAPS.
Leather SNAPS! Boot & Shoe SNAPS!
We have a Store full of Genuine Snaps in
Boots, Shoes, Hats and Gloves,
And we cordially invite our Boone County friends to call and partake of same.
PAUL A. DAVIS, Manager.
Sign of Big Red Boot. Rising Sun, Indiana.

FALL AND WINTER.
CLOTHING AND OVERCOATS,
Gent's Furnishing Goods, Hats and Caps,
Underwear, Umbrellas,
Trunks and Valises.
COME AND SEE US,
MARSHALL & STAHL,
MASONIC BUILDING
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA

Local News.

The roads are getting bad.

Friday week is Christmas.

A lady aged 111 died in Covington, last Saturday.

Have you seen the Flannels at Blyth & Clutterbuck's?

Good weather disappeared upon the coming of Circuit Court.

Buy your Christmas candies, &c., at Blyth & Clutterbuck's.

The grand jury found two men in jail awaiting investigation.

The Sunday School will have a very nice Christmas entertainment.

The people are beginning to discuss the candidates for various county offices.

You can get Fresh Oysters, Cranberries, &c., at Blyth & Clutterbuck's dur the holidays.

About 15 cents a pound is what the wool-growers are expecting for their 1897 wool clip.

Sanks & Stier furnish a house complete. Nos. 69, 70 and 71 Second street Aurora, Indiana.

Don't fail to see B. F. Buchanan's Holiday Stock at Corner Drug Store, Rising Sun, Ind. 3t

The damage suit of Adams vs Ryle will be called in the United States Court to-day at Covington.

The grand jury is in session this week, and some of the boys have gone to visit relations in adjoining counties.

The crowd came in very slowly Monday. The weather kept many at home who otherwise would have attended.

Sanks & Stier, undertakers and embalmers. Satisfaction guaranteed. Nos. 69, 70 & 71, Second street, Aurora, Ind.

Our shoemaker, J. C. Schmidt, shipped a pair of very fine shoes to one of his customers in Washington, D. C., last week.

Green Bros. keep the most reliable stock of Shoes in Rising Sun. They make a special effort to give full value for the money.

There are not many new cases on the docket for this term of court, but very likely there will be work enough for a two week's term.

The first crowd that collected on the street corner Monday morning was composed of seven voters, five of whom were candidates.

If you want a pair of Ladies' nice Kid Gloves, be sure to go to Green Bros., Rising Sun, Ind. They keep the best line in the town.

Don't fail to call on Davis when in Rising Sun and take advantage of the numerous snaps in Boots and Shoes he is offering to his customers.

Montgomery Williamson says there are a great many grass-hoppers hopping around in the Lick Creek neighborhood. Last Sunday they were thick in the pastures down there.

The colored school at this place closed last Friday, and Saturday night the scholars gave an entertainment, which was witnessed by quite a number of white people who were highly entertained.

An entertainment will be given at the court house in Burlington during Christmas for the public school. The entertainment will consist of recitations by Prof. Prior,—vocal and instrumental music.

Capt. Hartman, of the Bedbug slipped and fell Monday while clearing the drift from his boat and struck his head on a rock, rendering him unconscious for a half hour.—Lawrenceburg Press.

A call at Davis' Shoe Store, Rising Sun, Ind, will convince a person in very short order, who has the most reliable stock, largest assortment and lowest prices to be found in this section.

The Chairman of the County Democratic Ex[illegible]tive Committee intended to publis[illegible] in last week's issue, a call for the committee's meeting last Monday, but failed to get it in the hands of the printer in time.

Davis & Rhodes, who own and have been operating the flouring mill at Normansville, this county, made an assignment, one day last week. Assets, $7,751 98; liabilities, $5,036 82. George L. Miller, of Big Bone, is the assignee.

Holiday rates Queen and Crescent Route—1⅓ fare round trip from all Queen & Crescent points selling December 22nd to 25th, and December 30th to January 1st. All tickets good till January 4th to return. On sale to points within 300 miles radius. Ask ticket agent for particulars.

William Sebree, who lives down on Woolper, was tried before Judge Stephens and a jury, last Thursday, and adjudged of unsound mind. His mind is unbalanced on religion, has been for some time. His brother, John C. Sebree, was appointed a committee to convey the unfortunate man to the Lakeland Asylum.

Incomparable Service.—The Queen & Crescent trains are the finest run in the State of Kentucky. Four daily trains to Cincinnati connect with the main highways of the great Trunk Lines of the North, West and East. This is the line par-excellent to Washington, New York, Boston and the East. The Queen & Crescent connects with every line out of Cincinnati.

Supt. Voshell says, at first the Compulsory Educational law seemed to have some effect on the attendance at the schools this fall, but it has lost its efficacy, and the attendance now is about what it was before the law went into operation. He says there are too many ways in which to evade the law, and as so many excuses are recognized, the law will amount to little.

Harrison Minor and Stant Kirtley, both colored, were hunting, one day last week. Minor's dogs started a rabbit, and he ordered Kirtley not to shoot it, but he disobeyed orders, when Minor started for him, but was stopped by Kirtley, who cocked both barrels of his gun and leveled them on him. A collision was avoided, and that night Kirtley left for parts unknown.

Mine host of the Boone House has been investing in hog brains rather extensively this fall. He considers them the daintiest of dishes, when properly served; but the first installment he received from James Clore's, last week, did not come up to specifications and were rejected. Cy did not know before that there is a difference between the brains of hogs raised on Woolper and those raised on Gunpowder.

In renewing his subscription S. W. Bruce directs his paper changed from Osborn to Liberty, Clay county, Mo., where his son, Richard, has been attending school for two years, and to which place he has moved to give his little girl the advantage of good schools. He says his family is well, although they came very near losing their little girl of diphtheria a few weeks since. He sends his regards to all his old friends here.

The fourth annual meeting of the American Thin Rind Record Association will be held at Erlanger, Ky., on Saturday, Dec., 26th, 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the election of officers and the transaction of any other business which may come before it. The presence of all members is greatly desired, but if there are any that can not attend send your proxy and it will receive prompt attention.

J. E. Rouse, Sec., Limaburg, Ky.

Rev. Ezra Keller, of Hillsboro, Ill., and Miss Lena Tanner, of Florence, were married at Hopeful Lutheran Church, last Thursday, by Rev. Lentz. Mr. Keller is a son of Rev. Keller, who several years ago was pastor of the Hebron and Hopeful Lutheran churches. He is a prepossessing young man, and the fact that he came to Kentucky for a bride is a strong evidence that he is a man of excellent judgment. May a long and happy life be the lot of Mr. Keller and his handsome bride.

COUNTY COURT.

Amanda B. Tanner's will probated, and Levi L. Tanner qualified as executor.

John M. Finch and Thos. H. Nead granted license to keep tavern in Florence.

C. P. Robinson released from working on public road.

G. L. Miller qualified as assignee of Davis & Rhodes. John A. Kite, G. W. Baker and F. M. Howlett appointed to view and appraise the partnership effects.

Programme for the Teachers' Association to be held at Constance, Saturday, December 19th, 1896:

Welcome Address—C. C. Richmond.
Response—L. H. Voshell.
Possessive Pronoun as treated by Harvey—Ed Mathews, Hallie Loring.
Square and Cube Root—Maggie C. Ryle, Sam Orem.

NOON.

Teachers' Aid and how Applied?—A. C. Collins, Grace Stewart.
School Amusements—Ella Norman, Maud Ryle, Olive N. Orem.

L. H. Voshell, Supt.

The criminal branch of Judge Stephen's court was in session, last Thursday, and disposed of several cases. In the case of the Commonwealth against Ben Northcutt for shooting at James L. Carpenter, the defendant Northcutt was acquitted. Northcutt and Carpenter live in the Richwood neighborhood and fell out on Monday morning of last week about hauling corn out of a field while the ground was soft. Carpenter struck Northcutt across the neck with the butt end of a wagon whip dazing him, when Northcutt drew his pistol and fired, and at the first shot, and in his own language, Carpenter began "to carry the mail." Northcutt says he shot twice, and the witnesses for the Commonwealth say three shots were fired. None of the shots struck Carpenter. At the conclusion of the above trial Northcutt was fined $25 for carrying a pistol, and Carpenter was fined $5 for assault and battery. Lassing for the Commonwealth and Castleman for the defense.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c

PERSONAL MENTION.

Judge Riddell has been quite ill for about a week.

Don't ask sheriff Roberts anything about that cap.

Mrs. Bennie Kelly has been quite sick for several days

Mrs. Mary Runyan has been quite sick for several days.

Prof. Curry made a brief call at this office Saturday afternoon.

Hon. W. H. Baker, of Erlanger, attended court here Monday.

Fred Pfalzgraf, of Utzinger, was in town, last Friday afternoon.

Mr. J. W. Duncan was visiting his son, Dr. Duncan, at Walton, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gaines have been quite sick, for several days, with grippe.

Judge Riddell and wife both had a severe attack of the grippe, last week.

Deputy Sheriff Elmer Beall was down among the Petersburgers, last Thursday.

Mrs. Georgia Ellis, of Covington, is at the bedside of her sick mother, Mrs. Runyan, of this place.

Eliza Harper, wife and daughter, of Hebron, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cowen, Sunday.

Messrs. Vessenmier, Wingate and Fenton, of Petersburg, visited Burlington, Sunday, on their wheels.

Leslie Clutterbuck came out last Sunday to get a breath of pure country air, and mingle with his rural friends.

Wallace Garrison was in town, last Friday. Wallace is a younger looking man than he was a few years ago.

Supt. Voshell was busy last Saturday issuing checks to the teachers who called at his office for the salary due them.

Thos. Stephens, of Hathaway, was among the visitors to town Friday. He reports everybody in his neighborhood as well equipped for the winter.

Deputy U. S. Marshal, Thos. Ellis was in town Monday, summoning witnesses for the Adams-Ryle suit which will be called in Covington, this week.

Peter Hager, of East Bend, shipped a Poland China hog, last week, that weighed 700 pounds.

The most complete line of Corsets in Rising Sun, is at Green Bros. They give special attention to this department. Prices, 50c to $1.50

The Sabbath School entertainment, with a treat for the scholars, will begin at 7:30 p. m., sun time, at the court-house in Burlington, Dec. 24th.

The Ladies' Mite Society of Burlington will give an Oyster Supper at the Court House, December 24th, 1896, from 5½ to 11 o'clock p. m. Supper, 25 cents. Everybody invited.

Our friend, James Hogan, now takes his dinner up in town on Sunday. He inaugurated this new departure last Sunday, and the boys had the laugh on him when the meal, nicely done up in a basket, was sent up to him.

The ladies of the Big Bone Rebeka Lodge will give an oyster supper at their hall on the night of January 1st, 1896, the proceeds to be used to purchase an organ for the hall. Speaking by good orators, and music by a good string band.

Our bachelor friend, A. C. Collins, says as Major McKinley was elected president by standing on his door step and receiving delegations from the different parts of the country, he does not see why he can not be elected Surveyor of Boone County by receiving and addressing delegations from his door step at the hotel, provided he can get Cy's consent. He says he is sure the souvenir fiends will carry the hotel away by pieces, but if elected he will build a new one on the site.

Circuit Court.

The December term of the Boone Circuit Court convened Monday, and the wheels of justice were started about eleven o'clock with Judge Green on the bench; Circuit Clerk Duncan and his assistant, J. S. Clutterbuck, ready to do the ink-slinging; Sheriff Roberts and his deputy, Elmer Beall on hand ready to keep order and bring in lawyers, clients and witnesses, while Jailer Crisler was there to furnish the fuel, lights and water at the regular per diem.

The grand jury was organized before noon and adjourned until 1 p. m, when the court reconvened and charged the jury in regard to a long list of offenses. The charge consumed considerable time and was delivered in the Judge's characteristic clear style.

The following is the grand jury: Jas. T. Gaines, foreman; E. S. West, B. H. Snyder, J. H. Aylor, Ed Holder, John Ransler, W. A. Gaines, John Smith, jr., Wm. Clore, J. E Ransom, Thos. Whitaker, J. H. Clore.

It is composed of young men, Mr. Ransom and Whitaker being the exceptions.

Hon. M. D. Gray, Commonwealth's Attorney, arrived Tuesday morning, and he and county attorney Lassing began looking after the violators of the law heretofore indicted.

The court began business in earnest Tuesday, but at the time of closing these columns the petit juries had not been completed. A synopsis of the business will be given next week.

DAY AND NIGHT.

[BY E. K. WALTON.]

When languid night awakening with a yawn,
Leaps down the star-lit star-way of the dawn,
In trailing disarray,
Sweeping the dews away,
'Tis day.

When Sol leaps up the zenith of the sky,
And quickly plants his blazing torch on high,
And all the dews are gone,
From flowery meads and lawn—
'Tis noon.

When mellow evening her robes unfold,
Puts on her ample garb of shining gold,
So beautiful and bright,
'Luminating the western light—
'Tis night.

When fabled ghosts and shadows creep about,
And all is wierdly dark and still without,
And nothing greets the sight—
Save an owl flits by in fright—
'Midnight

About twenty candidates were doing business on the streets Monday, and the small crowd at court was thoroughly worked. Each aspirant appeared well satisfied with his outlook for success.

Wm. F. GOETZE
Scientific Optician.
Headquarters at Hornberger's Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.
Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

ANNOUCEMENT!
I wish to announce to my friends that I have accepted the agency for
C. ROSS LODWICK,
Undertaker & Embalmer,
3035 W. 6th St. CINCINNATI, O.,
And am prepared to furnish all articles for
FUNERAL PURPOSES
on short notice.
Prompt attention will be paid to FUNNERAL ORDERS and strict attention given to the care of the dead.
Respectfully,
GEO. BLYTH, Burlington, Ky.

DR. A. B. HARRYMAN,
DENTIST.
Will be in Lawrenceburg, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.
At Aurora, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Practiced for 30 years.
No Poisonous Gasses Used.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

J. R. Clutterbuck's Assignee, Plff.
vs.
J. R. Clutterbuck, &c. Defts.

This cause is now referred to J. B. Berkshire Master Commissioner of said court under Sec. 431 Civil Code of practice, with the following instructions:

First—The Commissioner will audit and settle the accounts of the assignee.

Second—The Master will hear proof ascertain and report the amount of the debts against the Assignors estate, and how secured if at all.

Third—The Master will hear proof and determine the number of acres of land owned by the Assignor, where located, and the probable value thereof. He will give due notice of his sittings by written or printed notices posted up at the court house door in Burlington, Ky., at least 5 days preceding his sitting and also publish said notices in the Boone County Recorder.

Given under my hand as clerk of said court, this Dec. 4th, 1896.

J. W. Duncan, Clerk.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will begin his sittings on the 12th day of Dec., 1896, at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., to hear proof in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 16th day of Dec., 1896. All persons having claims against J. R. Clutterbuck will present them to me properly proven as by law required.

J. B. BERKSHIRE, M. C. B. C.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Andy Scheben,
DEALER IN ALL KINDS OF Wines, Liquors
AND BRANDY.
FOR THE HOLIDAYS.
Old Rocky Fork, Silver Wedding, Old Crow, McBrayer, Oscar Pepper and other brands
Will sell at 20 to 25 Cents less per bottle than the regular price.
SPECIAL BARGAINS:
Old Quaker Rye, 80 cts. per bottle.
Regular Price, $1.00.
Pennsylvania Rye, $1.25 per bottle.
Regular Price, $1.50.
LEXINGTON PIKE,
ERLANGER, - - - KY.
Near Town Hall.

NEW STOCK! LOW PRICES!
We invite attention to our newly arrived Stock of Fall and Winter Goods
—SUCH AS—
Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps, Jeans, Yarns,
Woolens, Etc., at
LOWER PRICES
THAN EVER BEFORE.
Large Line of FRESH GROCERIES always on Hand.
Give us a Call W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

GET YOUR CHRISTMAS SUPPLIES
—AT THE—
CHEAP CASH GROCERY of
J. P. CARTER,
Cor. High & Short Sts., - LAWRENCEBURG, IND.
Notice the Following Low Prices:

White Coffee Sugar, 21 lbs.	$1.00	New crop N. O. Molasses,	40c gal.
Stand. Gran. Sugar, 20 lbs.	1.00	Hominy Flake,	3c lb.
Rio Coffee	15c lb.	Broken Stick Candy,	6c lb.
Santos Coffee,	25c lb.	Hard Mixed Taffy,	7c lb.
Best Mocha & Java,	30c lb.	Pure French Creams,	10c lb.
Green Coffee,	20c lb.	Chocolate Creams,	15c lb.
Pure Leaf Lard,	6c lb.	Assorted Creams,	15c lb.
Best California Prunes,	10c lb.	Mixed Nuts (fancy)	12c lb.
Fine Evaporated Peaches,	10c lb.	New Citron,	25c lb.
4 pkgs. Polar Bear Tobacco,	15c.	All kinds Brooms,	9c up.
3 qts. Country Dried Beans,	10c.	Family Flour,	45c sack.
Best hand picked Beans,	5c qt.	Straight Fancy,	65c sack.
Golden Syrup Molasses,	20c gal.

Fresh Oysters Every Day.
Prize Given With Cash Purchases.
Ask for Card.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,
DEALERS IN
PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,
63 and 65 Pike Street,
Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.
ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.
CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.
27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.
Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDER-TAKER EMBAL-MER,
Corner Pike & Russell Streets,
COVINGTON, - - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,
Undertakers AND Embalmers,
OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,
COVINGTON, KY.
CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.
Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL
WHOLESALE AND
RETAIL GROCER,
GRASS SEED.
Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.
Tom Wilson, Salesman.

MASK OF DECEIT.

It Covered the Features of the Queen While Pleading for Her Son.

But the Prophet Saw Through Her Disguise—Prayers and Pleadings Were All in Vain—Talmage Sees the Hand of God in Every Happening.

Dr. Talmage draws som startling lessons and tears off the mask of deceit Sunday. The text is I. Kings xiv., 3: "Why feignest thou thyself to be another?"

In the palace of wicked Jeroboam there is a sick child. Medicines have failed; skill is exhausted. Young Abijah, the prince, has lived long enough to become very popular, and yet he must die unless some supernatural aid be afforded. Death comes up the broad stairs of the palace and swings back the door of the sick room of royalty, and stands looking at the dying prince with the dart uplifted. Wicked Jeroboam knows that he has no right to ask anything of the Lord in the way of kindness. He knows that his prayers would not be answered, and so he sends his wife on the delicate and tender mission to the prophet of the Lord in Shiloh. Putting aside her royal attire, she puts on the garb of a peasant woman, and starts on the road. Instead of carrying gold and gems, as she might have carried from the palace, she carries only those gifts which seem to indicate that she belongs to the peassutry—a few loaves of bread and a few cracknels, and a cruse of honey. Yonder she goes, hooded and veiled, the greatest lady in all the kingdom, yet passing unobserved. No one that meets her on the highway has any idea that she is the first lady in all the land. She is a queen in disguise. The fact is that Peter the Great, working in the dry docks of Saardam, the sailor's hat and the shipwright's ax gave him no more thorough disguise than the garb of the peasant woman gave to the Queen of Tirzah. But the prophet of the Lord saw the deceit. Although his physical eyesight had failed he was divinely illumined, and at one glance looked through the imposition, and he cried out: "Come in, though wife of Jeroboam. Why feignest thou thyself to be another? I have evil tidings for thee. Get thee back to thy house, and when thy feet touch the gate of the city, the child shall die." She had a right to ask for the recovery of her son; she had no right to practice imposition. Broken-hearted now, she started on the way, the tears falling on the dust of the road all the way from Shiloh to Tirzah. Broken-hearted now, she is not careful any more to hide her queenly gait and manner. True to the prophecy, the moment her feet touch the gate of the city the child dies. As she goes in the soul of the child goes out. The cry in the palace is joined by the lamentation of a nation, and as they carry good Abijah to his grave the air is filled with the voice of eulogy for the departed youth, and the groan of an afflicted kingdom.

It is for no insignificant purpose that I present you the thrilling story of the text. In the first place I learn that wickedness involves others, trying to make them its dupes, its allies and its scapegoats. Jeroboam proposed to hoodwink the Lord's prophet. How did he do it? Did he go and do the work himself? No. He sent his wife to do it. Hers the peril of exposure, hers the fatigue of the way, hers the execution of the plot. His, nothing. Iniquity is a brag, but is a great coward. It lays the plan, gets some one else to execute it—puts down the gunpowder train, gets some one else to touch it off—contrives mischief, gets some one else to work it—starts a lie, gets some one else to circulate it. In nearly all the great crimes of the world it is found out that those who planned the arson, the murder, the theft, the fraud, go free, while those who were decoyed and cheated and hoodwinked into the conspiracy clank the chain and mount the gallows. Aaron Burr, with heart filled with impurity and ambition, plots for the overthrow of the United States government and gets off with a few threats and a little censure, while Blennerhassett, the learned Blennerhassett, the sweet-tempered Blennerhassett, is decoyed by him from the orchards, and the laboratories, and the gardens, and the home on the banks of the Ohio river, and his fortunes are scattered, and he is thrown into prison, and his family, brought up in luxury, is turned out to die. Abominable Aaron Burr has it comparatively easy; sweet-tempered Blennerhassett has it hard. Benedict Arnold proposed to sell out the forts of the United States: to surrender the revolutionary army and to destroy the United States government. He gets off with his pockets full of pounds sterling, while Maj. Andre, the brave and the brilliant, is decoyed into the conspiracy, and suffers on the gibbet on the banks of the Hudson, so that even the literature, the marble tablature that commemorated that event, has been blasted by midnight desperadoes. Benedict Arnold has it easy; Maj. Andre has it hard. I have noticed that nine-tenths of those who suffer for crimes are merely the satellites of some great villains. Ignominious fraud is a juggler which by sleight of hand and legerdemain makes the gold that it stole appear in somebody else's pocket. Jeroboam plots the lie, contrives the imposition and gets his wife to execute it. Stand off from all imposition and chicanery. Do not consent to be anybody's dupe, anybody's ally in wickedness, anybody's scapegoat.

The story of the text also impresses me with the fact that royalty sometimes passes in disguise. The frock, the veil, the hood of the peasant woman hid the queenly character of this woman of Tirzah. Nobody suspected that she was a queen or a princess as she passed by, but she was just as much a queen as though she stood in the palace, her robes incrusted with diamonds. And so all around about us there are princesses and queens whom the world does not recognize. They sit on no throne of royalty, they ride in no chariot, they elicit no huzza, they make no pretense, but by the grace of God they are princesses and they are queens. Sometimes in their poverty, sometimes in their self-denial, sometimes in their hard struggles of Christian service—God knows they are queens; the world does not recognize them. Royalty passing in disguise. Kings without the crown, conquerors without the palm, empresses without the jewel. You saw her yesterday on the street. You saw nothing important in her appearance, but she is regnant over a vast realm of virtue and goodness—a realm vaster than Jeroboam ever looked at. You went down into the house of destitution and want and suffering. You saw the story of trial written on the wasted hand of the mother, on the pale cheeks of the children, on the empty bread tray, on the fireless hearth, on the broken chair. You would not have given a dollar for all the furniture in the house. But by the grace of God she is a princess. The overseers of the poor come there and discuss the case and say, "It's a pauper." They do not realize that God has burnished for her a crown, and that after she has got through the fatiguing journey from Tirzah to Shiloh and from Shiloh back to Tirzah, there will be a throne of royalty on which she shall rest forever. Glory vailed. Affluence hidden. Eternal raptures hushed up. A queen in mask. A princess in disguise.

When you think of a queen you do not think of Catharine of Russia, or Maria Theresa of Germany, or Mary Queen of Scots. When you think of a queen you think of a plain woman who sat opposite your father at the table, or walked arm-in-arm—sometimes to the Thanksgiving banquet, sometimes to the grave, but always side by side, soothing your little sorrows and adjusting your little quarrels, listening to your evening prayer, toiling with the needle or at the spinning-wheel, and on cold nights tucking you up snug and warm. And then on that dark day when she lay a-dying, putting those thin hands that had toiled for you so long, putting them together in a dying prayer commending you to that God in which she had taught you to trust. O, she was the queen—she was the queen! You can not think of her now without having the deepest emotions of your soul stirred, and you feel as if you could cry as though you were now sitting in infancy on her lap, and if you could call her back to speak your name with the tenderness with which she once spoke, you would be willing now to throw yourself on the sod that covers her grave, crying "Mother, mother!" Ah! she was the queen. Your father knew it. You knew it. She was the queen, but the queen in disguise. The world did not recognize it.

But there was a grander disguising. The favorite of a great house looked out of the window of his palace and saw that the people were carrying heavy burdens, and that some of them were hobbling on crutches, and he saw some lying at the gate exhibiting their sores, and then he heard their lamentation: and he said: "I will just put on the clothes of those poor people, and I will go down and see what their sorrows are, and I will sympathize with them, and I will be one of them, and I will help them." Well, the day came for him to start. The lords of the land came to see him off. All who could sing joined in the parting song, which shook the hills and woke up the shepherds. The first few nights he has been sleeping with the hostler and the camel-drivers, for no one knew there was a king in town. He went among the doctors of the law, astounding them; for without any doctor's gown, He he knew more law than the doctors. fried fish on the banks of Gennesaret. He was howled at by crazy people in the tombs. He was splashed of the surf of the sea. A pilgrim without any pillow. A sick man without any medicament. A mourner with no sympathetic bosom in which he could pour His tears. Disguise complete, I know that occasionally His divine royalty flashed out, as when in the storm on Galilee, as in the red wine at the wedding banquet, as when He freed the shackled demoniac of Gadara, as when He turned a whole school of fish into the net of the discouraged boatmen, as when He throbbed life into the shriveled arm of the paralytic; but for the most part He was in disguise. No one saw the King's jewels in his sandal. No one saw the royal robe in His plain coat. No one knew that that shelterless Christ owned all the mansions in which the hierarchs of Heaven had their habitation. None knew that that hungered Christ owned all the olive groves, and all the harvests which shook their gold on the hills of Palestine. No one knew that He who said "I thirst" poured the Euphrates out of his own chalice. No one knew that the ocean lay in the palm of His hand like a dewdrop in the vase of a lily. No one knew that the stars, and moons, and suns, and galaxies, and constellations that marched on age after age, were as compared with his lifetime, the sparkle of a firefly on a summer night. No one knew that the sun in midheaven was only the shadow of his throne. No one knew that his crown of universal dominion was covered with a bunch of thorns. Omnipotence sheathed in a human body. Omniscience hidden in a human heart. Everlasting harmonies subdued into a human voice. Royalty en masque. Grandeurs of Heaven in earthly disguise.

My subject also impresses me with how people put on masks, and how the Lord tears them off. It was a terrible moment in the history of this woman of Tirzah when the prophet accosted her, practically saying: "I know who you are; you can not cheat me; you can not impose upon me; why feignest thyself to be another?" She had a right to ask for the restoration of her son; she had no right to practice that falsehood. It is never right to do wrong. Sometimes you may be able to conceal an affair; it is not necessary to tell everything. There is a natural pressure to the lips which seem to indicate that silence sometimes is right; but, for double dealing, for moral shuffling, for counterfeit, and for sham, God has nothing but anathema and exposure. He will tear off the lie. He will rip up the empiricism. He will scatter the ambuscade. There are people who are just ready to be duped. They seem to be waiting to be deceived. They believe in ghosts; they saw one themselves once. They heard something strange in an uninhabited house. Going along the road one night, something approached them in white and crossed the road. They would think it very disastrous to count the number of carriages at a funeral. They heard in a neighbor's house something that portended death in the family. They say it is a sure sign of evil if a bat fly into the room on a summer night, or they see the moon over the left shoulder. They would not for the world undertake any enterprise on Friday, forgetful of the fact that if they look over the calendar of the world they will see that Friday has been the most fortunate day in all the history of the world.

As near as I can tell, looking over the calendar of the world's history, more grand, bright, beautiful things have happened on Friday than any other day of the week. They would not begin anything on Friday. They would not for the world go back to the house for anything after they had once started. Such people are ready to be duped. Ignorance comes along, perhaps in the disguise of medical science, and carries them captive; for there are always men who have found some strange and mysterious weed in some strange place, and plucked it in the moonshine, and then they cover the board fence with the advertisements of "elixir," and "panaceas," and "Indian mixtures," and "ineffable cataplasms," and "unfailing disinfectants," and "lightning salves," and "instantaneous ointments," enough to stun and scarify and poultice and kill half the race. They are all ready to be wrought upon by such impositions. Ah! my friends, do not be among such dupes. Do not act the part of such persons as I have been describing. Stand back from all chicanery, from all imposition. They who practice such imposition shall be exposed in the day of God's indignation. They may rear great fortunes, but their dapple grays will be arrested on the road some day, as was the ass by the angel of God with drawn sword. The light of the last day will shine through all such subterfuges, and with a voice louder than that which accosted this imposition of the text: "Come in, thou wife of Jeroboam, why feignest thou to be another?"—with a voice louder than that, God will thunder down into midnight darkness and doom and death all two-faced men, and all jockeys, and all swindlers. Behold how the people put on the masks, and behold how the Lord tears them off!

My subject also impresses me with how precise and accurate and particular are God's providences. Just at the moment that woman entered the city the child died. Just as it was prophesied, so it turned out, so it always turns out. The event occurs, the death takes place, the nation is born, the despotism is overthrown at the appointed time. God drives the universe with a stiff rein. Events do not just happen so. Things do not go slipshod. In all the book of God's providences there is not one "if." God's providences are never caught in dishabille. To God there are no surprises, no disappointments and no accidents. The most insignificant event flung out in the ages is this connecting link between two great chains—the chain of eternity past and the chain of eternity to come. I am no fatalist, but I should be completely wretched if I did not feel that all the affairs of my life are in God's hand, and all that pertains to me and mine, just as certainly as all the affairs of this woman of the text, as this child of the text, as this king of the text, were in God's hand. You may ask me a hundred questions I can not answer, but I shall until the day of my death believe that I am under the unerring care of God; and the Heavens may fall, and the world may burn, and the judgment may thunder, and eternal ages may roll, but not a hair shall fall from my head, not a shadow shall drop on my path, not a sorrow shall transfix my heart without being divinely arranged—arranged by a loving, sympathetic Father. He bottles our tears, he catches our sorrows, and to the orphan He will be a Father and to the widow He will be a husband, and to the outcast He will be a home, and to the most miserable wretch that this day crawls up out of the ditch of his abomination crying for mercy. He will be an all-pardoning God. The rocks shall turn gray with age, and the forests shall be unmoored in the last hurricane, and the sun shall shut its fiery eyelid, and the stars shall drop like blasted figs, and the continents shall go down like anchors in the deep, and the ocean shall heave its last groan and lash itself with expiring agony, and the world shall wrap itself in a winding sheet of flame and leap on the funeral pyre of the judgment day; but God's love shall not die. It will kindle its suns after all other lights have gone out. It will be a billowy sea after the last ocean has swept itself away. It will warm itself by the fire of a consuming world. It will sing while the archangel's trumpet is pealing forth and the air is filled with the crash of broken sepulchers and the rush of the wings of the rising dead. Oh, may God comfort all this people with this Christian sentiment.

The statue of Harriet Beecher Stowe, to be erected in Hartford, will be the third statue to women in this country. The first one is in New Orleans, to a woman who was a heroine during a fearful epidemic there. The other is of Emma Willard, and stands in Troy, N. Y.

Miss Florence Beckwith died at Mt. Pleasant, Ia., five minutes after she had been treated with antitoxin for diphtheria.

HANNA'S CAMPAIGN.

How McKinley's Manager Manipulated His Man.

No less respectable a paper than the Philadelphia Press says of the president-elect and his campaign manager:

"There is every reason why Maj. McKinley would naturally turn to Mr. Hanna as one of the main props of the cabinet. In the very nature of the case Mr. Hanna will be a close, trusted and confidential adviser, and it is entirely reasonable on the part of the president-elect to desire that he shall be constantly at hand in the circle of official advisers. The relations between few public men have been such as exist between these two conspicuous figures on the national arena."

If Hanna is to be "a close, trusted and confidential adviser" of the next president, it would on some accounts be better that he should be in the official rather than in the "kitchen" cabinet. At the head of a department the country could at least have its eye on him. Publicity is better than secrecy in this matter of "props" to a president.

The "relations" between Hanna and McKinley, as the former understands them, have been sufficiently indicated in his speeches and interviews. He evidently regards himself as the "manager" of the president-to-be, as he was of the candidate. He is to "attend to the inauguration" and boss the administration. Hanna's view of himself and his mission was indicated in the effusive speech that he made at the glorification dinner given to him in Cleveland. In this deliverance he confided to the country the fact that two years ago Mr. McKinley said to him: "My friend, I trust you with my future and leave my honor in your hands." Considering what Gov. McKinley had been and was and what he hoped to be, this was one of the queerest trusts and most remarkable confidences on record.

"From that day," said the confided-in and confiding Hanna, "began this campaign. It was rather quiet at first—what the boys are likely to call 'a still hunt'—but it is true that it had its birthday nearly two years ago." And he proceeded to gloat over the result of his delegate hunt, and boasted that he had returned the major's honor unsullied. How his own honor fared he did not think it worth while to say.

Imagine a confession like this concerning any man who was elected to the presidency in the first half century of the republic! Not the people's call, not preeminent public service, not exalted character or conspicuous ability in statesmanship, but Mark Hanna's "still hunt" for two years, is what elevated William McKinley to the presidency, according to the man who boasts of it and who is put forward as "one of the main props" of the incoming administration!

Well may Mr. McKinley cry: "Heaven save me from my friends!"—N. Y. World.

TARIFF VIEWS OF REPUBLICANS.

Grasping Beneficiaries Who Want Protection.

"We want protection for our American industries," assert high tariff republicans.

"What the country needs is a revenue tariff law—one that will prevent a deficit," says Thomas B. Reed.

A petition has been presented to the finance committee of the senate by 55 out of 59 of the wool firms of Boston asking for the immediate passage of the Dingley bill as a measure of temporary relief, to "prevent the flooding of this country with foreign woolens."

This coterie of patriots wants protection, not revenue. The relief it asks is for themselves, not for the nation. Senator Wilson, of Washington, is opposed to the Dingley bill. He says:

"We do not want a horizontal increase of the Wilson tariff rates. That would benefit eastern interests, which already have protection, but would do very little good for us in the west. We in that section want protection for wool, lumber, coal and lead."

With the general disagreement among republicans as to what kind of a tariff bill should be enacted, there appears to be a lovely fight ahead on the matter of duties on importations. The patriotism of the late campaign is already displaying itself in the grasping efforts of tariff beneficiaries to keep out all goods which would come in competition with their own regardless of the effect on the government.

This is patriotism with a vengeance.—Buffalo Times.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

——The McKinley administration will need an "ample revenue" to keep its ample promises.—St. Louis Republic.

——The thousands who turn out to see Mr. Bryan every day indicate that his defeat did not lose to him his popularity.—Buffalo Times.

——A return to the McKinley bill will be not only revolution but reaction. And it will be reaction against what is now the rapid extension of our foreign trade.—N. Y. World.

——Public sentiment is setting in strongly against any tinkering with the tariff. The revival of business everywhere is pretty good evidence that the present tariff law is about right, except that it is too high in spots.—Los Angeles Herald.

——Hanna knows nothing of the higher politics or of the moral and intellectual influences which move the people. Without money he could not carry his own precinct. The only thing he does know in politics is boodle, boodle, boodle! And no cabinet can represent him or his methods without being a boodle cabinet.—N. Y. World.

——The organs of protection are continually harping on the "undervaluation" that is being practiced under the ad valorem duties that generally apply in the Wilson tariff law. Our protectionist friends are strong advocates of specific duties, because under a system of specific duties, high-priced goods pay a lower rate of taxation than low-priced goods. Specific duties put the burden of tariff taxation on the consumers of low-priced goods.—Utica Observer.

IT LOOKS VERY STRANGE.

McKinley Elected by the People to Wipe Out McKinleyism.

"There is a most welcome moderation in the tone of leading republicans in congress regarding revenue legislation. If their present temper holds there would seem to be reason to hope that a substantially unanimous agreement may be reached as to the proper means of immediate relief. It is perhaps too early to predict the action of the republican majority in congress. The "protected" monopolies will soon be clamoring for the equivalent of their campaign contributions, and an extra session may be forced upon the country. But there is growing a strong public sentiment against the revival of McKinleyism and against the disturbance of trade."—Boston Post.

It seems strange to read about a "strong public sentiment against the revival of McKinleyism" just after McKinley's triumphant election to the presidency, and yet there appears to be substantial justification for the sentiment. Still more strange does McKinley's case become in the New York Times' view of it when it says that he was, at the close of the campaign, "the champion of a policy which he had opposed for years, the only agent by whom abhorrent tendencies caused or stimulated by himself or the policies associated with his name could be met and overcome." That is, McKinley was elected by the people to wipe out McKinleyism and ward off threatening influences with which McKinley was for years in sympathy. This result was achieved, in the Times' opinion, through "a most curious sequence of events, the influence of delusions and the force of circumstances."

"It was, indeed, a "most curious sequence of events" that operated to the selection, for the promotion of certain reforms, of a man utterly opposed to those reforms. Strange indeed is the combination of circumstances that conspired to this result. It is not to be wondered at if some apprehension is rife as to the possible failure of the plan to enforce certain policies through the agency of a president not in sympathy with those policies. A man who has been placed in a most important position in government through the "influence of delusions" may, not unreasonably, be expected to startle the victims of those delusions. On the whole, it may be said that the McKinley administration promises to be full of interest for the students of government.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

POLITICAL IGNORANCE.

One of the More Prominent Features of Republicanism.

The republican press has had much to say of late about the debasing effect of ignorance on politics. Its express purpose is to make shallow people believe that ignorance is responsible for the millions of votes cast for the democratic party.

The Republic showed from the statistics of the census that, state for state, except in the south, the disadvantage of illiteracy was on the side of McKinley. It pointed out that in the southern states, where the percentage of illiteracy is enormous, the illiterate negro element belongs to the republican party. It called attention to the fact that the great cities, which the republican press itself has charged were hitherto democratic because of the large proportion of vicious voters, this year gave great republican majorities.

But now comes Senator Bill Chandler vociferously voicing a demand for the annexation of Hawaii, with its population of half and whole savages, and many republican organs are insisting that there shall be no restriction of immigration, because the foreign element is favorable to the gold standard and other republican policies and saved the day for the party in the recent contest.

This hypocritical policy is in keeping with the republican party's record. It denounced the foreign voters as ignorant paupers and anarchists as long as it thought the democratic party got their votes. The ignorant voters are the voters who do not vote the republican ticket. The favorite republican dictum is that the intelligence of the country ought to control, but, from its standpoint, intelligence is the ability to make and control millions, and hence the intelligence which ought to control the country is the money interests that can purchase the votes of the ignorant and depraved.

The republican party added millions of ignorant votes to the voting population solely because it believed they would perpetuate and extend the power of the party, and it is willing to do it again whenever the chance offers.—St. Louis Republic.

M'KINLEY GOOD TIMES.

Some of the First Fruits of Republican Victory.

The much-talked-of and highly-vaunted McKinley prosperity has begun already. Two striking instances of the effect of the election were to be noted last week. The Williamsburg Sugar Refining company closed down its works and threw 5,000 people out of employment. Over in Yonkers they had another taste of republican good times. The Smith carpet factory of that place shut down, casting out 7,000 people, who are now looking for something to do.

At the most conservative estimate, figuring that each of these employes cares for a family of three, this is a pleasing total of 36,000, who, within a few weeks after a great republican victory, are left penniless.

This is the first effect of McKinley prosperity. While we are ready to receive all the prosperity we can get, it is a little discouraging to have it begin in this fashion. The capitalists evidently have not much faith in McKinleyism, or they would hardly start their long-expected prosperity at the wrong end.—Tammany Times.

——The fact is noted by the Rocky Mountain News that "English subsidies" added McKinley in the late campaign. There is scant doubt about it. It was an English subsidy that secured the passage of the act of 1873 by which silver was demonetized.—Kansas City Times.

HUMOROUS.

Teacher—"Who is that whistling in school?" New Boy—"Me. Didn't you know I could whistle?"—London Figaro.

Dukane—"Spiffins has refused to honor that sight draft." Gaswell—"Perhaps he regarded it as on oversight draft."—Pittsburgh Cronicle.

Hicks—"By the way, they have triplets up at Quiver's." Wicks—"Isn't that rather poor management for a family living in a flat?"—Boston Transcript.

Broker (to his valet)—"John, I have lost a lot of money, and have had to get an inferior brand of cigars. Do you intend to remain with me?"—Fliegende Blaetter.

Bingo—"How is the new cook doing?" Mrs. Bingo—"Splendidly. Why, she has only been here three days, and she can already ride my wheel quite nicely."—N. Y. Herald.

Smith—"I wish I had studied boxing when I was a boy. You see, I need it so much in my profession." Jones (surprised)—"What! as a lawyer?" Smith—"No. As a father."—Harper's Bazar.

"So you feel ill, my little lad?" asked the kind minister. "You should go and tell your mother. She will give you sage advice." "That's jest it," said the boy. "I'm doggone sick o' sage."—N. Y. Press.

"The age of chivalry is entirely past," she said. "I don't know about that," the young man answered. "Men can't engage in duels to settle affairs of the heart." "No. But they can join rival football teams."—Washington Star.

VOICES TO SUIT.

A French Scientist Claims They May Be Easily Acquired.

Are you a soprano, and have you a difficulty in reaching and emitting the high "c?" Are you a tenor, and, if not, do you want to be? Are you a dissatisfied barrytone, and wish to become a basso profundo?

If so there is no reason why you should not. These questions and the answer one Dr. Sandras, a medical luminary of Paris, makes the burden of a song that is just now interesting Parisians, and especially embryo Pattis, De Reszkes and Plancons.

These latter naturally reply that they do, and the disciple of Esculapius forthwith buttonholes them and proceeds to explain the means by which they are to accomplish the feat. He is quite sure about his discovery being one of the wonders of the age. He claims that in order to modify the sounds of the human voice one has only to inhale the vapors of certain liquids and essences. Thus, inhalations of curacoa, according to Dr. Sandras, will raise the voice two notes, the aspiration of absinthe will add one high and two low notes, and essence extracted from pines will give two low notes. A dissolution of coffee beans in rum, he claims, will strengthen the medium notes.

There are other odors that are said to be even more efficacious, though they have the disadvantage of not tickling the olfactory nerves so agreeably. But no singer would stick at such a trifle as this, if he or she desired to reach a much coveted and hitherto unattainable note.

For instance, there are kerosene and turpentine, and—yes—even strychnine. The effect of the latter, according to the doctor, is positively marvelous. He claims that it raises the voice no fewer than five notes, and will enable almost anybody to deliver with ease Tamberlick's famous chest C, that never failed to bring down the house.

But, declare jealous rivals of Dr. Sandras, there are other vapors that have a contrary effect—that of aniseed, for instance, which occasions hoarseness, and herein lies a danger to singers. Imagine the consequences to the great Signora Uppersee if, when about to "go on" for the mad scene in "Lucia di Lammermoor," she inhaled aniseed surreptitiously substituted for strychnine by her jealous rival, Mme. Semibreve di Minim.

But just as there is no rose without a thorn, so there is no great discovery that has not its drawbacks, and as the contretemps referred to can be generally guarded against, Dr. Sandras' theory may soon be put into widespread practice. Then, when the lovesick Juliette is seen ecstatically burying her nose in a bouquet thoughtfully flung to her balcony by Romeo, the unpoetical Philistine in the audience will surmise that she is only inhaling kerosene fumes from a bottle artfully concealed among the flowers.—Chicago Tribune.

The Intelligent Jury.

"I don't believe everything I hear about the ignorance of the average jury," said an old lawyer in reminiscent mood, "but once, when I visited a backwoods court in the mountains of North Carolina, I did happen on an incident that shook my faith for a time. The case was up for hog-stealing. It was the rudest court and surroundings I ever got into, and I should not have been surprised at anything, but I was. After a couple of jackleg lawyers had gotten in what they had to say, the court turned the case over to the jury, and it adjourned to a barn to decide the innocence or guilt of the prisoner. And such a jury! I can never forget what a motley gang that jury was. In half an hour it came back and resumed its place in court.

"'Have you found a verdict?' asked the squire.

"'What's that?' responded the foreman.

"'Have you found a verdict, that's what,' replied the squire.

"'Why, squire,' hesitated the foreman with a foolish grin, 'we didn't know thar wuz one lost; did we boys?' and even that court couldn't stand it, but got up and swore."—Detroit Free Press.

Had Him There.

"They say your father used to drive a mule."

"Who told you?"

"One of my ancestors."

"Just what I expected. I always told father that mule was smart enough to talk."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

INTERESTING FACTS.

Maintaining Good Roads Costs Less Than Keeping Up Poor Ones.

In one of his famous speeches on good roads and the improvement of city streets, Col. Albert A. Pope, president of the Pope Manufacturing company, of Hartford, Conn., stated the following interesting facts:

"As a result of elaborate experiment, made to ascertain the relative resistance or friction of different pavements, it has been established that while 200 pounds' force is required to draw one ton over an ordinary dirt road, 100 pounds will do the same work on macadam, 33 pounds on best granite blocks and 15 pounds on asphalt. As a particular instance of this, it is estimated that in the city of New York there are 12,000 trucks, carrying an average load of 1½ tons, for 12 miles on each of 300 days in the year at an average daily cost of $4 for each truck. The result is about 65,000,000 tons transported one mile in every year at a total cost of $14,000,000, or at the rate of over 22 cents per ton-mile. The excessive nature of this charge is seen when it is remembered that the same goods are now carried by rail at six-tenths of one cent per mile. On asphalt road pavements the same horses could transport a load three times as heavy as on the present rough stone pavements. If a saving in transportation is proportional to the load carried, it would amount to nearly $10,000,000 per annum. It is safe to say that at least one-half this amount could be saved by substituting smooth pavements for those now in use in New York; and in any city where the pavements are on an average poorer and rougher than those in New York, it is clear that the proportionate saving by the introduction of the best street surfaces will be even greater. Good roads are comparatively cheaper to maintain and to use than poor ones."

A ROAD LIKE THIS IS A COSTLY LUXURY.

WORK FOR CONVICTS.

Road Building Would Prevent Competition with Free Labor.

In a good many of the states the inmates of penitentiaries are already employed, to a greater or less extent, in improving the highways, and everywhere the verdict is, that good roads have been secured where they would not have been built for a century to come if the taxpayers had been obliged to initiate the work and bear the whole cost of it. Curiously enough, this most excellent scheme has made most progress in the communities where it is connected with a prison system that is strongly and justly reprehended. In those states of the south where they have what is known as the "chain gang system," the idea of putting the prisoners at work on the highways suggested itself naturally. The convicts were kept in open-air camps with guards furnished by the state, and nothing was more natural than to engage them in road repair in the vicinity.

Where convicts are housed in great buildings of stone and iron, and where they have been put to labor at mechanical employment, the transition is not so simple and natural. Still it can be made to a certain extent, and that without destroying or impeding the work of prison reform. In South Carolina there are now said to be about 600 convicts at work on the highways, and the value of what they have done has produced such an effect upon the people of the rural sections of that particularly progressive state that county commissioners everywhere are stirring up the subject of systematic road construction. Tennessee has a law that permits it, and New York has authorized a similar experiment. It seems to us that the New York law might very profitably be adopted in Minnesota at the next session of the legislature. This contemplates the employment of only a portion of the state's convicts, to be selected by the prison warden, probably with the assistance and approval of the state board of charities and corrections, who should be put to work on road improvement under the direction of experts in road construction engaged by the state.

It is unquestionably true that the work of reforming the criminal, of which we must never lose sight by exalting the commercial motive, is entirely consistent with utilizing convict labor on the highways. There is a very large percentage of prison population for whom this would be the most desirable form of labor. By judicious selection of men, and by engaging them in small gangs upon the highways, it is probable that more wholesome influence might be brought to bear upon them even than in a well-conducted prison itself. At any rate, here is an occupation which does not compete with honest labor, which is available for a great number of convicts to whom mechanical pursuits are not naturally adapted, and whose results would be in the highest degree beneficial to the state. We believe that further experiment, along this line should be made at once, and that our own community should attempt it.—St. Paul (Minn.) Globe.

Potato blight seems to be on the increase. Bordeaux mixture is the remedy.

HE LIKES THE WORK.

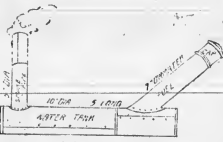
A Michigan Man Explains Why He Is a Horticulturist.

As I have not land enough to depend wholly upon the sale of farm products, then some of my land is adapted to nothing better than the culture of certain kinds of fruit; also, the prices of farm products have been so exceedingly low and the yield accordingly, that I have turned my attention to fruit culture. In this vocation I have found excellent opportunities for the development of mind and body, as well as purse. There is less labor, physically, though success at fruit culture requires industry and punctuality. There is a greater diversity of labor than is found in most any other occupation which will tend to prevent excessive fatigue and build up a vigorous and healthy body. Being a great lover of fruit, which we should all know is healthy, I find it a great enjoyment to work among the trees and plants, training their growth, watching the buds develop into blossoms, the blossoms into fruit, and greater yet is the pleasure of gathering it for market and home use. I never enjoy better health than through the fruiting season, and I try to plan it so as to have fruit the whole year around, either fresh or preserved. I think there are great opportunities for the development of the mind in this vocation; in fact, it is an utter impossibility to attain any marked degree of success without the knowledge of some of the sciences, such as chemistry, botany, geology and entomology. From chemistry we learn how the simple elements of the soil are used in plant formation, and when and what we must apply to the soil to supply any deficiencies; also, to fight the destructive insects of fruit we must seek its aid. Botany teaches us the parts and functions, together with the generic and specific characters of each plant and how best we can further plant development. A knowledge of geology will aid us in selecting the proper soil for the different kinds of fruit. But from entomology we learn the most, which is essential to horticulture and is increasing in importance each year. To distinguish between a friend and foe of the insect world, and how best to successfully assist or destroy them, and to know their life habits, require extended information upon this subject. Fruit culture is a vocation which requires constant study, as there are new varieties, methods and difficulties arising each year. —B. A. Wood, in Farmers' Review.

ECONOMICAL HEATER.

A Copy of It Can Be Made at a Cost Not Exceeding Four Dollars.

The heater is made of galvanized sheet iron, is 5 feet long and 10 feet in diameter. The pipe at the left for carrying off the smoke is 5 inches in diameter—ordinary stove pipe; its height will be governed by the depth of the tank. The pipe at the right is slanting, 7 inches in diameter, and is provided with a cap for covering the opening. Through this the fuel is put. The cap must contain two holes which will permit of a proper draft. At night, fill the water tank, and the last thing before going to bed put the fire and the fuel in the heater. In spring remove it from the tank and store in some dry place. If properly taken care of, so that it will not rust, it will last for several years. Any kind of fuel can be used, and it is surprising how little it takes. For removing the ashes, an old dipper is just the thing. The original, from which a drawing was made and is produced above, cost $3.75.—Farm and Home.



CHEAP HEATER.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES.

Apples should be barreled up before putting into the pit.

An eastern fruit man says the pear tree will thrive better after being mistreated than almost any other kind of tree.

Root or crown galls attack apple, cherry, peach and other trees, and the raspberry. It is spread from affected nurseries. It is believed there is no cure for it. The trees should be dug out and burned.

If house plants become frozen, darken the room and sprinkle with water from the well, with a few drops of spirits of camphor in it. Keep the temperature at 45 degrees for 24 hours. This is the advice given by a flower grower.

Black-knot occurs in every state of this union. The remedy is to cut out and burn the knots as fast as formed, and when the foliage is all gone in winter go over them carefully to cut out and burn any that may have been hid by the leaves.

Prof. Lodeman, who has been experimenting with old and new Bordeaux mixtures, says, in the Rural New Yorker, that only fresh made is safe to use, because it is difficult to keep old agitated sufficiently to accomplish its work properly in the case of fungous diseases.

Advantage of Large Herds.

Farmers who have large herds of cattle are most successful because the cattle are consumers of much that is grown on the farm, and, therefore, assist in creating a home market. Every pound of food that can be utilized on the farm to produce something is so much saved in the cost of transportation, hauling, etc. It is the conversion of substances into articles that the market demands that enables farmers to secure profits. Corn, oats and hay are sold to advantage when used for producing beef, butter and milk.

WOMEN TAILORS IN ICELAND.

Wife of an English Professor Establishes a Novel School.

Outside of the capital Reykjavik, there has not been a tailor on Iceland in the memory of man. So the women have always had to make the men's clothes, for the Iceland men, when they are not occupied afield wringing a hard living out of the reluctant soil, are too busy telling stories of the great deeds of their fathers, the Erik Brighteyeses and Skallagrim Lambtails of a heroic past, to bother with trousers and such things.

As all the things in the world which the men neglect have to be done by the women—good reason why their work never ends—and as they have never been taught tailoring, it comes about that the population of Iceland, outside of the capital, is one huge, preposterous misfit. Hence tailoring is put at the very head of the curriculum in the girls' high school which Mrs. Sigridr Magnussen has built for the better education of the Iceland girls.

The Iceland mother is, in fact, the universal schoolmistress of the land, and it was so that she might be fitted for the place that Mrs. Magnussen built her school.

It stands, or stood, on a patch of ground in Reykjavik, upon which the builder was born. Just now she is very much troubled by the news of the great earthquakes up there, and by the dread that the school may have fallen down; in which case she will have to do it all over again. Icelanders, men or women, never give up a task once begun. Some of their hero tales are running yet, after 900 years, with the end not yet in sight. Even if it still stands, it has to be braced up. The funds have run out, which is the reason why Mrs. Magnussen came to this country, advised by Miss Frances E. Willard, whom she met in England, to try to sell a collection of antique bangles and ornaments gathered in Iceland, so as to provide an endowment fund for her school.

The collection is now in the Metropolitan museum on exhibition. It has a more than pathetic interest, for it is almost wholly made up of heirlooms surrendered by the women of the bleak island in the Arctic sea in the years of distress that followed the dreadful volcanic eruption of 1875, and the "three winters" of 1882-83. Those were the years when they had no summer and the sun never shone. The arctic ice came down and closed every ford and harbor.

The people froze in July and not a blade of grass grew. There had never been such a season since anybody could remember. Men and cattle starved, and it was then that the women, to keep life in themselves, and those dear to them, surrendered the heirlooms jealously guarded for ages, to buy bread. This is the treasure that Mrs. Magnussen has brought to New York. She will part with the tears of her countrywomen, she says, only to dry them. A better day shall dawn for Iceland when she returns with the money of the wealthy Americans.

It is not true, according to Mrs. Magnussen, that the people of Iceland are habitually flocking about the shore, waiting to be taken off. They stay there because it is the best place for them. It is all lava further in. Just now they are afraid of going into the country for fear the mountains will open on them, literally and figuratively, but they have not the least notion of deserting. The only considerable emigration from Iceland was during the hard years between the eruption and the "three winters." Then 10,000 of the people went to Canada, leaving 60 000 there; but there are to-day over 72,000 left. In spite of this growth there is elbow room yet in Iceland. It is just the size of Ohio, with 40,000 square miles of chiefly rock and lava, consequently it has a population something less than two to the square mile.—N. Y. Sun.

PARISIANS TAKING TO SKIRTS.

Bloomers Are Not the Smart Thing Any More.

Bloomers are not the smart thing any more. Since the smart houses refuse to make this unbecoming garment, the better class of French ladies has taken to wearing skirts; at least, apologies for skirts, such as we see attached to a bathing suit and barely reaching to the knee. The middle-class women still cling to the masculine attire, however. As to the difference in the wheels themselves, the tin or metal rims, instead of our wooden ones, are the most notable feature. A police regulation demands a name plate, with the owner's name and address on every wheel, so that stolen or lost property may be identified or returned. In many many cases the bells, which are also a necessity, are replaced by large-sized rattles which swing from the handle-bars and jingle along the streets until one feels as though the seasons were reversed and the sound was that of diminutive sleighs spinning past. At night there is a picturesque change from our regulations. Instead of oil lamps, gay-colored Chinese lanterns hang on the handle-bars and sway with every motion of the wheel. They do not cast as good a light on the road for the benefit of the rider as do our favorite lamps, but they are certainly immensely effective for the lookeron, and suggest at once the idea of a "feast of lanterns" on wheels. The more practical part of French bicycling is seen in the militia. Gendarmes riding by in their red uniforms is a common occurrence, while the sight of an officer booted and spurred, with shoulder cape and sword, receiving and returning the salutes of his regiment, all on wheels, is something quite unique.—Paris Cor. N. Y. Journal.

Following Instructions.

Master—McFlynn. I told you I wanted hot water, and the first thing in the morning, too; this is as cold as ice.

McFlynn—Shure, it was hot when O brought it up, and didn't Oi lave it at the dure lhst noight so as to be in toime sor?—Washington Times.

BIG ORDER FOR BEER.

Japanese Merchants Surprised by the King of Corea.

Japanese merchants of Chemulpo, in the kingdom of Corea, were very much surprised recently when the king ordered 30,000 bottles of beer in one lot, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The entire Japanese colony was not prepared for such a sudden and extensive order of beer and they put their heads together, wondering whether it was the court or the body guard of the king which had suddenly developed such a gigantic thirst. A cable was immediately dispatched to Japan and the beer ordered to be shipped at once, so that it might be delivered to the royal master of the house in due time. The beer arrived promptly, and at the same time the explanation of the conundrum was given to the Japanese, for almost on the same day a Russian man-of-war arrived there and the entire crew was invited to be guests of the king of Corea, who thus showed his gratitude to the Russians for the shelter accorded him at the Russian embassy during the recent revolutionary disturbances.

The 300 marines on board were very agreeably surprised when his royal highness sent 30,000 bottles of good Japanese beer on board—that is, 100 bottles per man—enough liquor to thoroughly celebrate the Russo-Corean alliance.

Seneca's Medal.

In the possession of the Red Jacket club of Canandaigua is a medal which, the members of the club believe, was given the famous Seneca chief by George Washington. Other folks have frequently questioned the authenticity of this relic, much to the indignation of the Canandaiguans, who assert that its claims to respect are beyond doubt. Medals almost exact duplicates of Red Jacket's, they admit, were presented to other Indians of note about the time when Red Jacket received his, but this one is distinguished from all the rest because on its reverse there are 14 stars instead of 15, and remained in the hands of a single family from the time of the chief's death until it became the property of its present owners.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Props., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

JOHNNIE FEWSCADS—"I tell you frankly that I shall not be able to pay for this suit until next year." Tailor—"All right, sir." "When will you have it ready?" "Next year."

Borne Down with Infirmities,

Age finds its surest solace in the benignant tonic aid afforded by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which counteracts rheumatic and malarial tendencies, relieves growing inactivity of the kidneys, and is the finest remedy extant for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. Nervousness, too, with which old people are very apt to be afflicted, is promptly relieved by it.

THE SAFEST WAY.—Borax (reflectively)—"I wish I knew how to tell a woman's age." Samjones—"The best way is to tell it is in a soft and gentle whisper."—Truth.

The Modern Mother

Has found that her little ones are improved more by the pleasant Syrup of Figs, when in need of the laxative effect of a gentle remedy than by any other, and that it is more acceptable to them. Children enjoy it and it benefits them. The true remedy, Syrup of Figs, is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only.

WHEN love gives, it enriches itself, but what covetousness keeps it takes from itself.—Ram's Horn.

CHECK Colds and Bronchitis with Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar.
Pike's Toothache Drops Cure in one minute.

DO WHAT you can do well, and you will soon be able to do much better.—Ram's Horn.

PUT a pain to sleep! St. Jacob's Oil does this with sciatica. Torment cure.

KINDNESS is wisdom; there is none in life but needs it, and may learn.—Bailey.

DON'T snap in two. Limber up. St. Jacobs Oil will cure lumbago sure.

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI, Dec. 14.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	$2 25	@ 3 00
Select butchers	4 00	@ 4 40
CALVES—Fair to good light	4 00	@ 4 75
HOGS—Common	2 35	@ 3 00
Mixed packers	2 95	@ 3 00
Light shippers	3 15	@ 3 30
SHEEP—Choice	2 75	@ 3 15
LAMBS—Good to choice	3 85	@ 4 25
FLOUR—Winter family	3 60	@ 3 90
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 94
No. 3 red		@ 88½
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 22¼
Oats—No. 2		@ 19½
Rye—No. 2		@ 39
HAY—Prime to choice	10 75	@ 11 00
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@ 8 75
Lard—Prime steam		@ 3 65
BUTTER—Choice dairy	16	@ 20
Prime to choice creamery		@ 26
APPLES—Per bbl	1 50	@ 1 75
POTATOES—New, per bbl	90	@ 1 00
	NEW YORK
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 90	@ 5 15
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@ 95⅝
No. 2 red	86¼	@ 87
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@ 29
OATS—Mixed		@ 22½
PORK—New mess	9 75	@ 10 50
LARD—Western		@ 4 15
	CHICAGO
FLOUR—Winter patents	4 50	@ 4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	[illegible]	@ 91⅞
No. 2 Chicago spring	76⅛	@ 77⅛
CORN—No. 2		@ 23
OATS—No. 2		@ 17¾
PORK—Mess	6 87½	@ 6 90
LARD—Steam	3 80	@ 3 82
	BALTIMORE
FLOUR—Family	4 35	@ 4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2	91	@ 92
Corn—Mixed	28⅛	@ 28⅝
Oats—Mixed	22½	@ 23
LARD—Refined		@ 11 00
PORK—Mess		@ 8 85
CATTLE—First quality	3 90	@ 4 20
HOGS—Western	3 60	@ 3 80
	INDIANAPOLIS
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@ 88
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 20
OATS—No. 2 mixed		@ 18
	LOUISVILLE
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 95
Corn—Mixed		@ 23½
Oats—Mixed		@ 23
PORK—Mess		@ 8 00
LARD—Steam		@ 5 25

The Crop Outlook in South Dakota for 1897.

It requires but a small amount of rainfall in South Dakota to mature the crop. During 1896 South Dakota had, up to September 30th, three and seven tenths inches more of rain-fall than for any of the previous sixteen years. Since September 30th there has been added at least three or four inches to the excess, making a gain of nearly eight inches more than the average. Early in November there were heavy rains, depositing over two inches, and since then there have been heavy snows, and about a foot of snow covered the ground on November 25th. Dakota farmers have abundance of hay and great supplies of oats, barley and corn. Wheat has advanced to about seventy cents a bushel in the local market, and prospects for further advance are good. The ground will come out in the spring better soaked than ever before. The prospect for better prices next year is good. There are thousands of people in the East who could do no better than to go to South Dakota now and buy their seed and feed for next year, and move out in the spring. First-class farming land in South Dakota, along the lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, can now be bought at from $10 to $15 an acre. The creamery industry and stock-raising in South Dakota will greatly increase during 1897. For further information address W. E. POWELL, General Immigration Agent, 410 Old Colony Building, Chicago, or H. F. HUNTER, Immigration Agent for South Dakota, 295 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

ONE thing a woman can't do is to drive a horse and use a muff at the same time.—Washington (Ia.) Democrat.

SHOWING our best side to others will cause them to show their best side to us.—Ram's Horn.

FITS stopped free and permanently cured. No fits after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Free $2 trial bottle & treatise. DR. KLINE, 933 Arch st., Phila., Pa.

NOT ANSWERED YET.—Tommy—"O, paw!" Mr. Figg—"Well?" "How can a solid fact leak out?"—Indianapolis Journal.

SUDDEN weather changes bring rheumatism. St. Jacobs Oil makes prompt cure.

LAWLESS are they that make their wills their law.—William Shakespeare.

BLACKER the spot, surer the cure. Use St. Jacobs Oil for bruises.

EVERYONE has a fair turn to be as great as he pleases.—Jeremy Collier.

Suffering Women.

Alas! women do suffer. Why, we often cannot tell, but we know there is one great cause, and that is weakness. The headaches, the depressed feelings, the pains, the discouragements, indeed, almost all the misery has a common cause—weakness. At such times a woman always needs a friend that can be relied upon, and such a friend, for more than twenty years, has been that greatest of all remedies,

Warner's Safe Cure

By its purity and its power it furnishes a prompt relief for women in their hours of need, and if the grateful expressions which come up from the homes of the land about what SAFE CURE has done were printed, they would fill volumes. If you, reader, are a sufferer, can you not take hope from this suggestion?

Large bottle, or new style, smaller one, at your druggists.

TOP SNAP, Extension Rib DOUBLE Breech Loader $9.00 GUNS BUY-CYCLES Pistols, Sporting Goods, Fishing Tackle, cheaper than elsewhere. Send 2c. for 60-page catalogue. POWELL & CLEMENT CO. 166 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM HABIT AND DRUNKENNESS Cured in 10 to 20 Days. No Pay till Cured. DR. J. L. STEPHENS, LEBANON, OHIO.

YUCATAN, KING OF GUMS.

A. N. K.—E. 1635

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

The Same Old Sarsaparilla.

That's Ayer's. The same old sarsaparilla as it was made and sold 50 years ago. In the laboratory it is different. There modern appliances lend speed to skill and experience. But the sarsaparilla is the same old sarsaparilla that made the record—50 years of cures. Why don't we better it? Well, we're much in the condition of the Bishop and the raspberry: "Doubtless," he said, "God might have made a better berry. But doubtless, also, He never did." Why don't we better the sarsaparilla? We can't. We are using the same old plant that cured the Indians and the Spaniards. It has not been bettered. And since we make sarsaparilla compound out of sarsaparilla plant, we see no way of improvement. Of course, if we were making some secret chemical compound, we might.... But we're not. We're making the same old sarsaparilla to cure the same old diseases. You can tell it's the same old sarsaparilla because it works the same old cures. It's the sovereign blood purifier, and—it's Ayer's.

CCC LOOK TIRED THIS MORNING.

WAS it your own baby or your neighbor's that drove sweet sleep away? It's all unnecessary. Cascarets Candy Cathartic, sweet to the taste, mild but effective, stop sour stomach and colic in babies, and make papa's liver lively, tone his intestines and purify his blood.

EAT CASCARETS LIKE CANDY

They perfume the breath and make things all right all around. At your druggist's 10c., 25c., 50c., or mailed for price. Address

STERLING REMEDY COMPANY, CHICAGO OR NEW YORK.

Cascarets TRADE MARK CANDY CATHARTIC CURE CONSTIPATION.

221

MADAME LILLIAN NORDICA, who has written a practical article, "How to Train the Voice," for The Companion for 1897.

Celebrating in 1897 its seventy-first birthday THE COMPANION offers its readers many exceptionally brilliant features. The two hemispheres have been explored in search of attractive matter.

The Youth's Companion

In addition to the 25 staff writers THE COMPANION Contributors number fully 200 of the most famous men and women of both continents, including the most popular writers of fiction and some of the most eminent statesmen, scientists, travellers and musicians.

For the Whole Family.

THE COMPANION also announces for 1897, Four Absorbing Serials, Adventure Stories on Land and Sea, Stories for Boys, Stories for Girls, Reporters' Stories, Doctors' Stories, Lawyers' Stories, Stories for Everybody—all profusely illustrated by popular artists. Six Double Holiday Numbers. More than two thousand Articles of Miscellany—Anecdote, Humor, Travel. Timely Editorials, "Current Events," "Current Topics" and "Nature and Science" Departments every week, etc.

One of the most beautiful CALENDARS issued this year will be given to each New Subscriber to The Companion.

It is made up of Four Charming Pictures in color, beautifully executed. Its size is 10 by 24 inches. The subjects are delightfully attractive. This Calendar is published exclusively by THE YOUTH'S COMPANION and could not be sold in Art Stores for less than One Dollar.

Subscription Price of The Companion $1.75 a Year.

12-Color Calendar FREE.

New Subscribers who will cut out this slip and send it at once with name and address and $1.75 will receive
FREE The Youth's Companion every week from the time subscription is received till January 1, 1897;
FREE Christmas, New Year's and Easter Double Numbers;
FREE The Companion's 4-page Calendar for 1897, a beautifully colored souvenir. The most costly gift of its kind The Companion has ever offered; 43
And The Companion Fifty-two Weeks, a full year, to Jan. 1, 1898.

The Youth's Companion, 201 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

BOONE : COUNTY : RECORDER.

Wednesday, Dec 16, 1896.

Rates of Subscription:
One year............... .... $1 50.
Six months.......................... 75.
Three months.......................... 40.
☞Payable invariably in advance.

THE RECORDER
SOLICITS YOUR
Job Work,
NOTE HEADS,
LETTER HEADS,
ENVELOPES,
CARDS,
BILL HEADS,
STATEMENTS,
SALE BILLS,
AND HORSE BILLS,
Printed at the Lowest Prices consistent with neat work.
Send your order by mail and it will be attended promptly.

STATE NEWS.

There are 233,000 Sunday School children in Kentucky.

Wesley Often, colored, charged with murder, escaped from the Ohio county jail.

A good many of Jessamine farmers sustained losses of meat put up during the warm spell.

A man named Andy Roark died at Middleburg, Ky., last week whose age is said to be 130 years.

A child was born to the wife of Bob Dodson, colored, at Hickory Grove, weighing 19¾ pounds.

Mrs. Polly Jones, aged 88, walks eight miles to Brownsville every quarter to draw her pension.

T. H. Garrett & Co., Louisville snuff manufacturers, owe $20,000 which they can't pay. Assigned.

Garfield Webb shot at a preacher who reprimanded him for bad behavior in a church in Whitley county.

A gentleman near Clear Creek, Rockcastle county, is the father of 27 children. Some of them are now grandfathers themselves.

A bill will be presented to the next Legislature asking that it be made unlawful to kill a quail in Kentucky for five years.

The eleven-year old son of E. B. Warden, a farmer living near Hopkinsville, strangled to death while in a violent fit of coughing.

A prisoner in the Falmouth jail stole a key out of the jailer's pocket, and after the jailer left the jail he unlocked the door and escaped.

Charles Adkerson, of Clays Ferry, was acquitted for shooting Sam Young. Adkerson's wife has been nursing Young since he was wounded.

Hon. A. S. Berry is pressing his bill for an appropriation for a public building in Newport and it will doubtless be the first bill of the kind considered.

Hard year on newspapers. Last week three Republican daily papers in Kentucky suspended, one at Ashland, one at Frankfort and one at Bowling Green.

Rebecca Williams, a white woman, convicted in Leslie county of house breaking, was pardoned by Acting Governor Worthington before she reached the prison gate.

Louisville lawyers are getting up a petition to Governor Bradley for an extra session of the Legislature at once. Frankfort Republicans are also opposed to waiting until Congress adjourns.

Rev. Dr. W. H. Felix has resigned as pastor of the First Baptist Church at Lexington, after serving it for nearly ten years. His only reason for the step is that the field has become too large for one of his age.

The toll-gate marauders are getting bolder in their acts of lawlessness. One night last week they burned the toll-house on the Owenton pike, near Frankfort, after assisting the keeper to get his plunder safely out. Where is the strong arm of the law?—Owen Herald.

Press Mullens, of Pike county, started to West Virginia with $1,100 in his pocket to buy stock. In a few days his son found his body covered up with leaves not far from home. The head was crushed and the money gone. There is no clue to the murderer.

Investigation of the work of turnpike raiders in Kentucky shows that fifteen hundred miles of turnpike owned by corporations have been practically confiscated and are being traveled free of toll. It is estimated that the destruction of tollgates in the Blue Grass have affected $4,000,000 worth of property.

The temperance people of Mercer county scored an overwhelming victory in the local option contest. Every precinct in the county gave a majority against the saloon license. Local option carried in the two precincts which Harrodsburg embraces by a majority of fifty-nine, in the Burgin precinct by thirty-seven: in Perryville precinct by one hundred and sixteen.

It is reported that State Treasurer Long will begin paying both old and new warrants in the order of presentation after Jan. 1 and continue that policy as long as there is any money in the Treasury. He has been paying only the current expenses. The only condition attached to the beginning of the new policy is that the extra session of the General Assembly is not called meanwhile.

J. N. Beck of Owenton took in a half starved and half naked tramp, gave him a suit of clothes and plenty to eat, and the tramp agreed to stay and work all winter for his board and clothes. The tramp stayed two weeks apparently well pleased when one Sunday Mr. Beck visited a sick neighbor, and upon his return, found the tramp, $3 in cash a watch and chain and various other articles were missing.

Lieutenant Governor Worthington pardoned Joe Brown, of Anderson county, for the killing of Polk Moffett on Christmas eve., 1895. The pardon is a little out of the ordinary, because of the fact that Brown has never been convicted of the charge, and is out on a $4,000 bail. He was tried last April and given ten years by the jury. Judge Carroll set the verdict aside and ordered the case continued.

If the reports of rich silver deposits in Cumberland and Adair counties are true, Kentucky will yet be found in the column of silver States. Ore of a rich character, in fact as rich as has ever been discovered, is said to have been found in the counties named and a careful assay attested their fineness and value. The veins are in a soapstone formation and extend over quite a large part of both counties. Mining the metal will be comparatively easy and much excitement prevails in that section.

Representative Owen has made application for the extradition of Arthur W. Platt, who was indicted for the murder of Jesse Tyree, an inmate of the Lexington Insane Asylum. Platt was an attendant in the asylum and in December, 1885, he brutally murdered Tyree. He made his escape and it was only recently that the Kentucky authorities were able to locate the murderer. Platt is now serving a six months' sentence in the jail at Oxford, England, for burglarizing a railroad station in that town. The State Department has taken the case in hand and the necessary papers for the extradition will be forwarded to the proper authorities.

A Frankfort special says: The State officers have begun to get in trim their recommendations to the Governor, who will recommend to the Legislature such matters as he deems proper. In anticipation they have begun to shape a bill to repair the finances of the State. They have come to the conclusion that the revenue will have to be gotton by a raise in the rate of taxation from 42½ on $100 taxable property to something like 50 to 55 cents. This is the only way to meet the issue that now confronts them. The constitution limits the amount that may be borrowed to $500,000. On November 1 outstanding State warrants issued prior to July 1, 1896, amounted to $1,184,657,56 and since July 1 current expenses of the State have been paid. And the $1,184,657 will have to be provided for. There will be about $684,000 to liquidate by increased revenue, and this will have to be done gradually.

The Courier-Journal is out in an extreme and an elaborate defense of Gov. Bradley and his administration. That the Courier-Journal is after the public printing contract for the Courier-Journal job printing office is well known, and it is pursuing the policy it found successful in the past. But rarely has it given so broad and unqualified an indorsement to any Democratic Governor as it gives to Gov. Bradley. It is ready to keep an open door to Blackburn if it can only strengthen itself in its fight for public pap. What the sound money men of Kentucky wish is the Senatorial vacancy filled, and filled promptly. As to Bradley's administration, that must stand or fall by its own acts. The Governor commends himself to the Courier-Journal, but in our judgment his first year in office has been a series of blunders, and has not strengthened, but has weakened the Republican party, though it has gained the Courier-Journal's support.—Louisville Post.

POLITICAL.

The action of the Democratic committees at Lexington in ruling out of local primaries all Democrats who did not vote for Bryan and Sewall is extremely unwise. Of course the bolting Democrats would not expect to hold the same position in the party councils as those who in the late campaign stood by Democracy through thick and thin, but to attempt to shut them out, will ruin the Democratic party in this state for years to come. It will hopelessly alienate hundreds of men who all their lives have fought the party's battles, and who made their first bolt in the recent campaign. The true way to destroy the organization styling itself the National Democratic party, and to bring the party once more together, is to receive as a brother every bolting Democrat who wishes to return to his party.—Woodford Sun.

The Mt. Washington correspondent of the Taylorsville Monitor says: The silver party in Bullitt county will put out a full ticket in the coming local races for all the offices.

* * *

The inaugural ball can not be held in the new Congressional Library building.

* * *

And Senator Allison is said to have a sure thing on the office of Secretary of State.

* * *

It is a plain proposition that Mr. Hanna thinks that the Republican party and all its appuatenances belong to him.

* * *

Maceo, the Cuban leader is no more, having been butchered by the Spanish troops, while within their lines under a flag of truce.

* * *

Congressmen generally take to the lecture stand at the expiration of their office, but Hon. E. E. Settle has changed the custom and will commence lecturing before his term begins.

* * *

There was no change in the old tobacco market, last week, although the prices remained firm. The new crop is now being put on the market in considerable quantities, but the quality so far is very poor, and the warehousemen fees that they will have another inferior crop with which to contend. The present indications are favorable to good prices the coming season.

* * *

The death of Maceo was the result of a deliberate murder, planned by the Spanish general. It is was the most villainous of the many bloody slaughters in which the Spanish soldiers have engaged in Cuba. A general who resorts to the methods that allured Maceo to his death places himself beyond the pale of civilization.

* * *

It is believed that if General Weyler is given a little more time he will certainly overcome the women and children of Cuba.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

We believe that Mr. Cleveland wrote that message all by himself. We say this in justice to others.—New York Mail.

* * *

Some think the committee put the primary off too long, but the committee whose action is the law of the case saw proper to fix the date that suited them and that is the end of it.

CROP AND STOCK.

A horse 19 hands high is owned at Chillicothe, O.

J. A. Wells, of Mt. Sterling Ill., bought a car load of jacks in Richmond.

A tenant on the farm of Hudson and Walker in Garrard county raised 8,000 pounds of fine tobacco on four acres.

Wm. Gooch has a hog which tips the scales at 850 pounds. This is a whopper and no mistake.—Stanford Commercial.

When 57 thoroughbreds averaged $1,476, as they did at Lexington, last week, it looks like the horse business is picking up.

J. W. Bales, of Richmond, bought and shipped from Boyle, Garrard and Madison counties 1,137 export cattle, paying from 4 to 4½ cents.

W. H. Talbott sold eighty-four hogs, weight 200 pounds, at 3 cents. Mr. Talbott figures that he got $1.30 per barrel for his corn by thus feeding it.—Winchester Democrat.

Horses to the number of 27 were sold at the Elmendorf & Belmont sale, Lexington, one day last week, at a total sum of $83,450. The wealthy Californian, J. B. Haggins, was the purchaser of 17 head for the enormous sum of $41,875.

There are waste table scraps enough from an average size family to feed nearly a dozen fowls, and they in turn will supply an average size family with eggs for family use. It will pay better to feed the scraps to fowls than to a worthless dog.

Last winter about ten tobacco barns along the Ohio river on the Kentucky and Indiana banks were burned by incendiaries. Unsuccessful efforts were made then to run down the guilty parties. The firebugs are again applying the torch. Two barns were burned on the Indiana side last week, and one near Derby, Ind, on this side, making a net loss of $20,000.

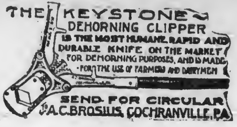
Letters from Havana received December 4th, say that 2,000 mules, purchased in the United States at an average cost, including transportation charges, of $35 a head, have been charged up to the Spanish Government at $75 per head, leaving to Gen. Weyler a profit of $80,000 to be paid out of the crippled royal treasury.

Mr. J. L. Witherspoon, of Anderson county, began feeding seven hogs the first of August, and their combined weight at that time was 1,710 pounds. He weighed the hogs again last week and they tipped the beam at 3,460, forty pounds less than an average of 500. The hogs gained 250 pounds each, or a little over two pounds per day while they were being fed.

Maj. J. A. Burnside has bought and shipped up to this writing over 300 hogsheads of tobacco averaging 1,000 pounds to the hogshead, or about 300,000 pounds altogether, which he assures us will average 8 cents per pound or about $25,000. This is rather a neat sum to go into the pockets of our farmers. The Major says the tobacco crop of Garrard is 25 per cent larger and better than for several years.—Lancaster Record.

The following crop bulletin was issued by the Agricultural Department at Washington, Dec. 10: The farm price of corn, as indicated, averages 21.4, against 25.3 cents last year. Average price of wheat 72.7 against 50.9 last year; of rye 40.3, against 44 last year; of oats 18.6, against 19.9 last year; of bucdwheat 39.1, against 45.2 last year; of Irish potatoes 28.7, against 25 6 last year; leaf tobacco, per pound, 6cts, against 6.9 cents last year. Hay, per ton, $6.54, against 8.35 last year. Cotton, per pound, 6.6 cents, against 7.6 last year. The condition of winter wheat on Dec. 1, averaged for the country 89.5 per cent, against 81.4 in 1895, 89 in 1894. In the principal winter wheat States the percentages are as follows: Ohio, 101; Michigan, 90; Indiana, 100; Illinois, 99; Missouri, 101; Kansas, 103; Nebraska, 93; California, 97. The returns make the acreage of winter wheat just sown 106.2 per cent. of the area harvested in 1896. This estimate, which is preliminary to the completed estimate of June next, makes the area sown for the harvest of 1897, 23,986,470 acres.

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
—OF UP TO DATE—
CHESTER WHITE HOGS.



THE KEYSTONE
DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
A.C. BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.

Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.
Write for circulars.

AEROMETER
EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.

COME AND SEE IT.

T. J. HUGHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

GRAEFENHAN'S
POPULAR
Dry GOODS STORE.
Calicoes, Muslins, Canton Flannels, Wool Flannels, Dress Goods, Stockings, Mitts, Underwear, Comforts, Blankets and
PRETTY HOLIDAY GOODS.
By doing a strictly Cash Business it has been very easy to under sell all others. Come and see us
H. F. GRAEFENHAN,
21 Walnut St., - - - - Lawrenceburg, Ind.

HOLIDAY GOODS
—CONSISTING OF—
Watches, Clocks, Jewelery, Silverware & Spectacles
Of all kinds and a large Assortment of Novelties. See us before buying as we can save you money.
J. D. WARD, 2 doors above bank in Clark Building, Rising Sun, Ind.

J. J. GEISEN,
HATTER AND GENT'S
FURNISHING GOODS,
615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.
Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

E. H. RIGGS,
—Dealer in—
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
—CEMENT, ETC.—
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVFRY COMPANY.
62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,
E. H. BAKER, Proprietor
Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.
Telephone 580.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.
☞We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office
And FEED STORE from
708 Madison Avenue
To the Large and more Commodious Quarters
15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.
Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with
GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED
At the Lowest Market Values.
Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,
W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANTS,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.
A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.
UNDERTAKING.
is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. HANKINS.
Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1896. NO. 9.

The year is nearing the close.

The Palmer and Buckner vote in the United States was 132,056.

New York suffered considerably from a severe blizzard, last week.

The Ohio applicants for office under Major McKinley's administration is estimated at 80,000.

The cabinet guessers will not have to wait much longer before they will know how their guesses will pan out.

It is charged that about $4,000,000 has been thrown away on the battleship, Texas, which but recently proved unseaworthy.

The Nebraska Supreme Court has decided that the law authorizing bounty on beet sugar in that State, is unconstitutional.

The Cuban sympathizers in Covington and Newport are subscribing funds to assist the insurgents in their struggle for liberty.

From the resolution on the Cuban question adopted by the United States Senate it seems there are some fighting men in that dignified body.

Three banks put up the blinds in Chicago the other day. Their supply of confidence was not sufficient to tide them over to the arrival of that wave of prosperity.

The Supreme Court of the United States has reversed the judgment of the Kentucky courts, rendered under the law reducing the tolls on the Covington and Lexington turnpike.

The Federation of Labor in session in Cincinnati, last week, endorsed the free coinage of silver. Some of the delegates who are opposed to the measure refused to vote.

And Secretary Olney gave the Senate committee some plain talk on the Cuban question. He says no matter what Congress does, President Cleveland will not recognize Cuba.

The pardon mill is kept running all the time at Frankfort, but when Gov. Worthington is in charge the throttle is thrown open and the output is only limited by the capacity of the mill.

Some of the Republicans are showing signs of growing weary of Mark Hanna. They begin to believe that Hanna thinks that he is the President-elect instead of Major McKinley.

Some of the United States Senators take issue with Gov. Bradley in regard to his official authority concerning the appointment of a Senator from this State should a vacancy occur.

The recently discovered defects in some of Uncle Sam's men-of-war, justifies the suspicion that his navy would not prove a very formidable opposition to the navies of some other countries.

Venezuela is not disposed to accept the terms for the settlement of her trouble with England, as proposed by the United States. She considers the proposed treaty very partial to England.

Before the Recorder appears again the christmas festivities will have come and gone, and it wishes all its patrons a gay time and a feast of all the good things served on holiday occasions.

No effort will be made at this session to pass the Dingley tariff bill. The Republicans will wait until the meeting of the new Congress, when they propose to pass a bill similar to the McKinley late bill.

J. J. Hetsch, postmaster in Newport, is short in his account with the government to the extent of $5,027. He was one of the most popular men in that city, and the discovery of his shortage was a shock to his numerous friends.

Henry D. Pierce, of Indiana, who has been traveling in Spain, recently, says that in every conceivable way the Spanish people are making known their hatred of the United States. He thinks they are very anxious to get into a fight with this country.

The President-elect went to Chicago to spend a few days and get a rest from those who are seeking office under his administration, but he was disappointed and has been besieged by office hunters ever since his presence in the windy city became known. There is no use for the Major to try to escape the faithful.

If that monetary convention to be held in Indianapolis next month is for the purpose of suggesting financial legislation for the benefit of the whole country, why is it that only the cities are allowed representation in the convention? No delegate will be admitted unless he goes from a city of 8,000 or more inhabitants.

The assassination of Maceo, the Cuban commander, stirred up the people in this country more than anything else that has occurred in Cuba since the war began. It is looked upon as an outrage against civilization, and those in command of the Spanish troops are regarded in the light of cold blooded murderers.

The reported murder of the Cuban General, Macco, stirred up such intense feeling in this country against the Spaniards that they are not trying to made it appear that he was killed in battle. If Maceo is dead it will be impossible to make the people of the United States believe his life was not taken while going to meet the Spanish general under a flag of truce.

The Chicago saloon keepers threaten to cut off for a period of four months the supply of exhilerating material usually kept in stock there, if the city government carries out certain proposed measures that will be a burden to them. A suspension of the saloons would cut down the city's revenue over $1,000,000 in four months, and it is claimed the city could not stand such a great reduction in her income.

The disposition of the Ohio man is giving the Republicans considerable trouble. There are Sherman, Hanna, Bushnell and three or four others who have aspirations in the same direction, and how to dispose of these gentlemen so as to satisfy each is a political problem difficult of solution. Hanna and Bushnell each wants Sherman's seat in the Senate, but he is not disposed to vacate, and here the trouble arises.

Those who favor the free and unlimited coinage of silver have been constantly reminded since the election that they should cease to advocate that measure because the voters decided, by a large majority, that the present financial system of this country shall not be disturbed. Such a proclamation on the part of the gold standard men would sound much better and carry with it some force were their actions consistent with their declarations; but they prove by their actions that they are not satisfied with the financial system which they endorsed at the polls, and are holding meetings for the purpose of originating a plan for reforming the currency. It is strange that these wise men should discover so soon after the election that the currency system of this country is badly out of kelter—so much so that they should take steps to have it reformed, notwithstanding they have been proclaiming from the house tops that financial legislation disturbs the business of the country. But what do these fellows care about the business of the country if they can procure legislation that will benefit them?

Pith of the Press.

The chances are that Jack Chinn's goatee has been dislocated.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Does anybody still love Mr. Cleveland for the enemies he has made? Don't all speak at once?—Salt Lake Herald.

Even Mr. McKinley's lawn is unable to show any signs of returning prosperity.—New York Evening Journal.

Ambassador Bayard will glimmer in history as the blue-ribbon toady of the nine-teenth century.—Buffalo Express.

We haven't heard of any delegates visiting Canton to urge Mark Hanna's appointment to anything.—Detroit News.

We infer from Governor Bradley's talk that his throat is not the only sore portion of his anatomy.—Washington Post.

The Hon. David Bennett Hill continues to act like a man who is considerably behind in his thinking.—Detroit Tribune.

Mr. Hanna will not hear to doing away with the inaugural ball. Mr. Hanna believes in giving the whole performance.—Washington Post.

The really goody-goody way to get an office is not to run on your own merits but on the rascality of the other fellow.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A meeting between Mark Hanna and Tom Reed, pulled off at Washington last week, is said to have resulted in a thaw.—Chicago Dispatch.

Mr. Sherman suspects that the promoters of his Cabinet boom are deeply interested in promoting themselves into his senatorial shoes.—Washington Post.

It must puzzle Mr. Bayard to know why so much fuss should be made over a purely family affair like receiving a Christmas gift from his own cousins.—Detroit News.

There will be no wine in the White House during McKinley's Administration. Mark Hanna is evidently jealous of the "pull" of the corkscrew.—Kansas City World.

An Italian has invented an apparatus which enables him to remain under water for eighteen hours but it may be an infringement on David B. Hill's patent.—Washington Star.

The opposition of the several Governorselect to pomp and display will give the inaugural performance in the big tent at Washington the whole field to itself.—N. Y. Journal.

The battleship Texas cost the country millions of dollars, and is practically worthless, and the same can be truthfully said of the Cleveland Administration.—Kansas City Journal.

If President Cleveland will only wait until after March 4 next he can go away on duck hunts as often as he pleases without encountering the slightest criticism of his conduct.—Omaha Bee.

People seem more anxious to know what Hanna is doing and saying than what Major McKinley is doing and saying. And all the while Mark just smiles and says nit.—Salt Lake Herald.

Mr. Hill, having awakened from his trance long enough to announce that only the Lord knows what Mr. Cleveland intends to do, is not disposed to submit to further interruptions.—Detroit Tribune.

Mark Hanna is looking about the country with a view of picking up a job lot of United States Senators who will vote for legislation that will liquidate the claims of the campaign contributors.—N. Y. Journal.

The politicians had nothing to say about McKinley's temperance principals during the campaign, but they are beginning to worry now about the chances for wine at White House receptions.—Washington Post.

Lieut. Governor Worthington's penchant for pardons caused Governor Bradley to hurry back to Frankfort, it is said. By the way, the Governor has a record of his own along the same line.—Commonwealth.

Why should there be uncertainty in Congress as to when it should adjourn? Is not the National Woolgrowers' Association already in session at Washington, ready to run both this world and the next.—Courier Journal.

Colonel Watterson is alluding to Mr. Cleveland as a continuous performance candidate for the Presidency. Is not the Louisville editor afraid that such conduct will make a dent in the credit of the nation?—New York Journal.

Those editors who are beginning to talk of nominating Mr. Cleveland in 1900 might simplify the matter by asking the people for a rain check on the White House, so that he can return whenever he feels like it.—New York Journal.

Cuba and the Philippines are many thousand miles apart, but the result of Spanish despotism in both is the same. If Yankee filibusters are to blame for the war in Cuba, who is at the bottom of the similar revolution on the other side of the earth.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

In New York state Bryan received 551,513 votes, and Palmer received 18,972. So few are the good men. Who is their leader? And on what terms would he be willing to admit the 551,513 bad Democrats "anarchists" back into fellowship with the 18,972 "sound money" Democrats of the "National" variety.—Enquirer.

Many people in this country had an idea last week that when Mr. Cleveland's message was published in Spain there would be an outburst of rage more fierce than any of the other outbursts we have heard of within the past 18 months. We have not had a report of anything of the kind. The Cuban chapter was a feeble thing, anyhow.—New York Sun.

ATTENTION!

Saturday, August 7th, 1897, the Time Set for the

PRIMARY ELECTION.

Pursuant to the call of the Chairman of the county Democratic Executive committee, the committee met in D. E. Castleman's law office in Burlington, last Monday afternoon. The following members were present: D. E. Castleman, chairman; B. L. Rice, Secretary' Elijah Parker, Reuben Conner, C. H. Acra, Robt. McGlasson, C. C. Roberts and Geo. W. Sleet, proxy for J. C. Hughes. It was agreed by the committee to hold a primary election to nominate candidates for the various county offices to be filled at the regular election in November, 1897. It was further agreed that said primary election be held on the first Saturday in August, 1897, and the Executive Committee will meet in the Court-house in Burlington, at 2 o'clock p. m., on Monday, August 9th, 1896, and count the votes cast for each candidate for the respective offices, and the candidate receiving the highest number of votes cast for any office will be declared the Democratic nominee for that office.

The committee adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That all persons who voted for Bryan and Sewall at the last November election, and all persons who did not vote but would have voted for Bryan and Sewall had they voted, and all young men who will be legal voters at the next November election, and all persons who will be legal voters at said November election, and will pledge themselves to support the Democratic party and the nominees of said primary election, shall be allowed to vote.

Resolved, That all persons who desire to be candidates before said primary election shall, on or before the 1st day of June, 1897, record their names with the chairman of the county committee, and pay their assessments to him.

Resolved, That only such candidates who pay their assessments to defray the expenses of said primary election, on or before the first day of June, 1897, shall be entitled to have their name placed upon the ballots to be voted for.

Resolved, That all candidates for precinct offices, who wish their names to appear upon the ballots for said primary, shall pay to the chairman of the county committee one dollar, to help pay the expenses of said primary election.

D. E. Castleman Chairman,
B. L. Rice, Secretary.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson.
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup'nt of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, Sam S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D. M Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W Lester
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Payater, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill. Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George; Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; I. F. Dempsey, H. S. Irwin. Secretary-Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday; Add Riddell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. F. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896
At Walton, Ky.

Three Courses of Study to choose from:
English, Scientific or Classical,

Tuition per month for Higher Branches.......... $3.00
Tuition per month for Common School Branches.......... 2.50

We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2 00 for five days.

Teachers { Mrs. S. H. Myers.
Chas. F. Prior.
Rev. S. H. Myers.

Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.

EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.

J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky. | OSCAR GAINES Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
Executive Board—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. Cowen, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. Rogers, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administratrix Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of L. E. Clore, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

Annie L. Clore, Adm'rx.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
Burlington, Ky.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON,
DENTIST,
Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
Main Office—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

W. E. Vest. B. L. Rice.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. Vest, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
Capital,.......... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 17,000
—)o(—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
Capital paid in.......... $50,000
Surplus,.......... $ 2.600
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE
STEAMER PAULINE.
Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:50 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 2:50 pm; 4:30 pm;
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 8:30 am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm. Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5:15 pm.
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:10 am; 10:00 am; 12:40 pm; 3:00 pm; 4:45 pm.
ELIHU ALDEN, Master,

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON. : : : KY.

CURRENT TOPICS.

A MISSOURI legislator has introduced a bill in the legislature making football a felony.

IN Russia people must marry before 80 or not at all, and they are also limited to five marriages.

IN some oceans, particularly to the south of Japan, islands have a way of appearing and disappearing without notice.

GOV. ATKINSON, of Georgia, says candidly that he thinks the Nashville Centennial exposition will more than equal Atlanta's big show.

MRS. ALICE BAXTER, of Wooster, O., armed only with pluck and a kerosene lamp, put to rout three masked burglars early the other morning.

ON the Augusta Southern railway, at Greenwood, eight miles from Augusta, an engine turned completely over at a switch, but the engineman and the fireman were unhurt.

IT is feared that the famine in India will be the worst ever known there in spite of the recent rains, which it was believed would in a great measure relieve the suffering.

THE pipe smoked by the new shah of Persia on state occasions is set with diamonds, rubies and emeralds of the costliest kind, and is stated to be worth as much as $400,000.

A LETTER has been discovered in the British museum which gives the origin of the game of billiards. It was invented by a London pawnbroker, whose name was Wm. Kew.

SOME English painters have left great fortunes, notably Turner and Landseer. Turner left $700,000, while the value of Sir Edwin Landseer's personality was $800,000.

A KENTUCKY woman had a man arrested the other day on the charge of kissing her, and a Pennsylvania woman is suing for divorce because her husband never kisses her.

THE Red Cross society has made its way into the Transvaal—the 39th power that has welcomed this society, which is working so earnestly to mitigate the horrors of war.

THE heredity of genius is illustrated by the Harvard senior class elections, in which the son of Carl Schurz was chosen as ivy orator and the son of Joseph H. Choate as class poet.

THERE will be held next year in honor of the sixtieth year of the reign of the queen an exhibition of 200 selected pictures illustrating Victoria's epoch. The artists are to be Englishmen.

ONE of the most prosperous farms in Kansas is owned and operated solely by women. It is located in Butler county and is owned by Mrs. Ogden. She and her daughter perform all the work.

RECENT supposed supernatural and ghostly phenomena have been explained in a very commonplace way. In Indianapolis it was an old cracked gas pipe. In New York it was the cannon in the navy yard.

THE bushmen, or low-grade Hottentots, on the plains of South Africa, have a language which has been proved to be a close approximation to that the higher apes. It consists of hissin clicking and grunting sounds.

AN eminent medical authority asserts that getting up early tends to exhaust the physical power and to shorten life, while the so-called invigorating early hours are apt to produce lassitude, and are positively dangerous to some constitutions.

A MOST interesting prodigy has been discovered in Alphonse Nelis, a blind lad who is an inmate of an asylum near Mons, in Belgium. He was given instruction in music three years ago, and now, at the age of 11, he has composed a mass that is to be publicly performed.

CHITWOOD, Ore., has a rooster which came there in the pilot of a railroad engine, and since his arrival has behaved properly; but before his advent there had made two prolonged stops in his progress along the line of the railroad, and had run with a flock of sheep, and then with a herd of cattle.

THE value of resident property in London is exemplified by the award of $1,800,000 given Lord Portman for 14 acres of ground required by the new Manchester and Sheffield railroad for a site upon which to build a station and hotel. The property adjoins 46 acres of the Eyre estate, for which the same railroad was compelled to pay over $1,500,000.

THE present royal crown of Great Britain was made especially for the coronation of Queen Victoria, who succeeded to the throne June 20, 1837, and was crowned at Westminster June 28, 1838. To manufacture the present crown a number of old crowns belonging to the preceding sovereigns were broken up and the gems extracted for use in the queen's crown.

To open parliament next year would be a physical impossibility for her majesty, Queen Vi toria, seeing that the ceremony involves a considerable amount of walking, the descent of a staircase and the ascent of several flights of steps She will never open parliament again, and the last occasion on which she presided at a ceremony of this kind was in February, 1886.

QUITE in contrast with the materialistic temper of the age was that remark once made by Prof. Agassiz, when offered a higher salary if he would remove to another position than the one he was so laboriously and faithfully filling: "I can not afford to waste my time making money."

EVER since the assassination of the Czar Alexander II., the young emperor of Russia, it is said, has carried about with him a small revolver which was given to him by his mother, the dowager empress of Russia, who exacted the promise that whenever he was away from the royal palace he would carry it with him.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

The Nicaragua Canal Bill to Be Called Up in Congress—Appropriation Bills—Fish Culture Stations on the Pacific Coast.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The friends of the Nicaraguan canal bill do not propose that it shall slumber indefinitely upon the house calendar. A petition addressed to the speaker asking that a day be set aside for its consideration was circulated Wednesday by Mr. Doolittle, of Washington. At 4 o'clock it had received the signatures of more than two hundred republicans and fifty democratic members of the house. Mr. Mahan, of Pennsylvania, who is a member of the sub-committee that drafted the measure, predicts that if it is called up it will have a practically unanimous vote in its favor.

Mr. Mitchell (rep., Ore.) Wednesday introduced a bill appropriating $16,000 for auxiliary fish culture stations in California, Oregon and Washington.

Coxey and His Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—"Gen." J. S. Coxey, of Massillon, O., was a visitor Wednesday at the capitol.

Mr. Coxey, who had with him an attractively printed pamphlet containing an elaborate argument in support of his non-interest bearing bond bill, facsimilies of the treasury notes, which it is proposed to issue under that law, and the full text of the hearing given to him in the Fifty-third congress by a sub-committee, of which Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, the late democratic candidate for the presidency, was chairman.

When the banking and currency committee finished its session Wednesday morning Coxey entered the room and introduced himself to the chairman, Mr. Walker, of Massachusetts.

Coxey was courteously received and promised that his views as presented would have proper attention.

New Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Lewis Nixon, the Elizabethport, N. J., ship builder, visited the navy department Wednesday to announce his readiness to launch the gunboat Annapolis Wednesday the 23d inst. The Annapolis will be the third of these useful vessels to be floated, her sisters, the Newport and Vicksburg, having been launched at Bath, Me., about two weeks ago. The fourth of this type with single screw and large sail area is the Princeton, which Dialogue, of Camden, hopes to launch next March. The other two gunboats of similar displacement authorized simultaneously by congress are the Wheeling and Marietta, which the Union Iron works, San Francisco, are preparing to launch in January. They have twin screws and no sails. It is expected that all these vessels will be in commission early next summer.

To Reorganize the Musical Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Mr. Johnson (rep., Cal.) introduced in the house Wednesday a bill for the reorganization and improvement of the musical service of the army, navy, marine corps and the bands of the military and naval academies. The measure increases the pay of musicians, provides for their enlistment for terms of three years and gives the chief bandmaster of all bands the rank of second lieutenant in the army and of junior lieutenant in the navy.

Pension Appropriation Bill Passes the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The pension appropriation bill was taken up in the senate Wednesday and passed without amendment. The net sum appropriated for pensions (exclusive of other expenses) is $140,000,000.

Government Clerk Suicides.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Frank B. Phister, 34 years of age, a clerk in the Indian bureau, and son of the late Congressman Phister, of Kentucky, committed suicide Wednesday morning at his boarding house by shooting himself through the right temple.

The Battleship Texas.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — Secretary Herbert has issued a very full statement as to the condition and seaworthy qualities of the battleship Texas, in which he states that she is the equal, if not the superior, of any vessel in the navy. In this he is sustained by Charles H. Cramp and naval officers who have been connected with the construction and navigation of the ship.

Considering the Cuban Question.

The senate committee on foreign relations Wednesday morning reached no conclusion on the Cuban question, but the discussion showed that the Cameron resolution favoring recognition of Cuban independence and offering the friendly offices of the United States with Spain, to bring the war to a close, met with the most favor, and may possibly be reported to the senate in the future.

Agricultural Appropriation Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The house committee on agriculture Wednesday completed the agriculture appropriation bill for the coming fiscal year. The measure will carry an appropriation of about $2,300,000—about the same as for the current year. No appropriation for seeds to be distributed by members of congress, was asked for by the secretary, but the committee inserted this item, as has been the case before. The bill contains no new legislation.

An Appropriation Bill Reported.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The military academy appropriation bill was reported in the house Wednesday. It carries an appropriation of $489,572, which is $32,241 less than the estimates and $4,047 more than the appropriation for the current year.

Jefferson Barracks Reservation.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 17.—The commission appointed to examine the reservation at Jefferson barracks and report upon its availability as a military station, convened at the barracks at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. The commission consists of Gen. Guy C. Henry, commander; Lieut. Col. Albert Hartrouff, medical director, department of Missouri; Maj. G. B. Girard, surgeon at the barracks, and Lieut. S. R. Rivers, quartermaster of Third cavalry. The commission will also consider a report on the advisability of the purchase of a target range at Arcadia, Mo.

SHAKEN UP.

An Earthquake Rocks England From End to End.

The People Became Panic-Stricken and Fled Madly From Their Homes—One Woman Dead From Fright—No Very Serious Damage to Property.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—Great Britain is in the throes of a genuine and unprecedented sensation. An earthquake, the most violent ever experienced in this country, has shaken every spire from Durham to Surrey and from London to the Welsh coast. The subterraneous disturbance was first noticed about 5:30 o'clock Thursday morning and lasted from four to 30 seconds. At many points two distinct shocks were felt.

The most severe shocks were felt at Cheltenham, Ledbury and Dean Forest. The earth shaking was accompanied by a loud, rushing sound. Buildings were violently shaken, furniture was shifted, doors were thrown open and pictures and other ornaments were upset. The inhabitants were panic-stricken and fled from their houses.

The earthquake also visited Birmingham and other points in Shropshire, and was violent in Worcester and the county surrounding that city. Houses rocked and furniture was overturned.

The shocks were followed by a tremor of the earth and were accompanied by a rumbling sound. The greatest alarm prevailed everywhere. Chimneys were overthrown, and windows, etc., were smashed. At some points persons on the country roads were thrown down and a number of people were thrown out of their beds.

Herford cathedral was injured. There the dull rumbling beneath the earth's surface was followed by two loud crashes and a terrible lifting and rocking.

The panic at Herford was so great that one woman died of fright.

People rushed wildly into the streets. Many chimneys fell, crashing into the thoroughfares, and all the pinnacles of St. Nicholas church toppled over, and part of the pinnacle of the cathedral fell to the ground.

At Liverpool the earthquake was preceded by heavy thunder and a fearful hailstorm.

In London the earthquake was only slightly felt.

A singular phenomenon occurred at Bridgenorth, near Shrewsbury, previous to the disturbance. The streets suddenly seemed to be on fire and there was a violent report, accompanied by a shaking of the earth. People who were going abroad in that vicinity say that they were, for a time, unable to walk, owing to the vibrations.

There was very great excitement among the rustics about Poole, who thought the end of the world had come.

In the mining districts it was at first thought that the shocks were the result of colliery explosions.

The disturbance was experienced with great violence at Warwick castle. The earl of Warwick was awakened and felt his bed lifted as though by some force beneath it and the furniture in his room was shifted.

THE $10,000 PURSE

Goes to Thomas Sharkey—Fitzsimmons' Complaint Thrown Out of Court.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 18.—Glove contests and prize fights are synonymous. Such is the legal decision of Judge Sanderson, and in consequence Thos. Sharkey will get the $10,000 that Fitzsimmons still believes rightfully belongs to him.

When the matter came up Thursday morning both sides announced that they had no more depositions to take.

The attorneys on both sides then made their arguments, after which Judge Sanderson gave his decision. He said that it was the first time the case had been presented to the court, as the former proceedings were to take depositions. The complaint stated that the permit was for a boxing contest.

A glance at the dictionary would show the gentlemen that boxing and fighting were synonymous words. If the men were boxing they were fighting. It was elementary law and if the complaint was true the principals might be indicted and those who witnessed it were liable to arrest for misdemeanor. The supervisors, he said, had no more right to license a boxing contest than they had to license a duel. In permitting the contest the law officers had winked at a violation of the law. The injunction, he said, would have been dissolved on the heels of the issuance of it had it been asked for. The court ordered the injunction dissolved and the complaint stricken from the files of the court.

Fitzsimmons, who was in court to hear the decision, went away very much crestfallen. Sharkey was not there.

After the court adjourned Judge Sanderson handed Gen. Barnes a letter. It was from New York and was addressed to "Thomas Sharkey, care of Judge Sanderson."

The $10,000 check is still in the possession of the bank, where it will remain until all doubt as to who owns it has been removed. Manager Lilienthal said he would not pay the money over until advised to do so by his attorneys. Unless some other impediment should present itself the money will probably change hands Friday.

Col. Coit May Be Court-Martialed.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 18.—Adj't Gen. Axline, whose report on the expenditures for the O. N. G. encampment at Cleveland last summer was, in an interview Wednesday, branded by Col. A. B. Coit, of the Fourteenth regiment as "enormously extravagant," intimates that Col. Coit may be court-martialed. He recites the army regulation prohibiting one officer from criticising another. Gen. Axline denies that there was extravagance, explaing the heavy expenditures for labor by recalling the rainy weather, which necessitated the removal of the camp four different times.

FELL TO DEATH.

A Cage With Five Miners Drops Fourteen Hundred Feet—Terribly Mangled.

OURAY, Col., Dec. 19.—A frightful accident occurred in the Virginius mine early Friday morning by which five men were instantly killed.

The dead are: Gabrial Russ, John Antrss, Charles Swanson, Charles Anderson and Louis Jackson.

The accident occurred in the shaft of the Virginus mine where the unfortunate men were at work repairing the timbering. They were working from the cage, having it raised and lowered as they progressed with their work. Just what caused the accident is not positively known. The men were several hundred feet below the shaft house at the time their last signal was given for the movement of the cage. The engineer, in answering the signal, was horrified to find the cable had become slack.

There was nothing to obstruct the descent of the cage, and it fell with lightning rapidity to the bottom of the shaft, which is 1,400 feet deep, and was broken into thousands of pieces, the men being crushed into shapeless masses in the wrecked cage, their bodies being terribly mangled.

The dead men are well known in Ouray and all leave families.

State Mine Inspector Lee, at Denver, has been notified and will leave at once to investigate the accident.

MACEO DEAD AGAIN.

Letter From an Insurgent States Positively That the Leader Was Assassinated.

TAMPA, Fla., Dec 19.—Roberto Solar, who spent 17 months in the insurgent camp of Col. Raoul Arango, in the provinces of Havana and Matanzas, arrived on the steamship Olivette Friday night.

Mr. Solar, in an interview said: "I was told before leaving Havana that the last expedition of the Three Friends had been successfully landed on Tuesday night. I believe the report to be true, as official circles in Havana were greatly agitated that night.

"There can no longer be any doubt that Maceo is dead. I saw a letter which should now be in the hands of the junta in New York, from Brigadier Adolfo Castillo, who is fighting in Havana province, stating positively that Maceo had been killed by Spanish treachery. He did not give any particulars, saying that he would forward them in a few days, or as soon as he was satisfied that he had obtained the true story. I also saw the accredited agent in Havana, and he told me that Maceo was dead, but that his death was surrounded with mystery. I can not doubt this proof."

CRIMINAL INSTINCT

Strong in Andrew Etter, a Released Convict—A Nobler Impulse, However, Seizes Him.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Andrew Etter was released from the Joliet penitentiary last Tuesday after serving a four years' sentence for burglary. He came to Chicago, and so powerful was the criminal instinct in him, although he desired to live honestly, that he purchased a revolver with the money given him when he left the prison and intended becoming a highwayman. Friday afternoon he set out on his criminal mission, but, as he was passing police headquarters, was seized with a nobler impulse. Fearing that he could not restrain himself from committing crime he went into the office of the chief of police and asked to be locked up. He handed over his revolver and explained to the official why he had purchased it. He was then taken in charge by the police.

Gen. Marin Favors Reforms.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The Standard's Madrid correspondent telegraphs that the government has informed Queen Regent Christiania that Gen. Marin, captain general of Porto Rico has, in reply to an inquiry, declared that he is in favor of administrative reforms in the Spanish West Indies. The correspondent asserts that in Spain a current is decidedly settling in the direction of granting reforms to Cuba and Porto Rico, even in conservative circles.

Cuban Meeting in Atlanta.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 19.—Two thousand citizens met in the county courthouse Friday for the purpose of expressing their sympathy for Cuba. Ex-Gov. J. W. Northen presided and spoke in favor of recognizing Cuba. Other speakers were Evan P. Howell, B. M. Blackburn and others, all favoring of Cuba. Resolutions were passed approving the action of the senate foreign relations committee in passing the Cameron resolutions.

Hog Cholera in Iowa.

OTTUMWA, Ia., Dec. 19.—Thousands of hogs are dying from cholera in the vicinity of Blakesburg, Ia., and men are going through the country buying the dead bodies of the diseased animals. It is said they are being shipped to the large cities and the packing houses. The law says that all such bodies shall be burned or buried at once. Boards of health will investigate.

Activity at Alpena, Mich.

ALPENA, Mich., Dec. 19.—The Huron Handle & Lumber Co. has just started its plant. It will make broom handles, giving employment to seventy-five or eighty men. The Alpena Hoop & Lumber Co. is rebuilding the Union Island mills, preparing for the manufacture of the various articles from hardwood.

Sharkey Gets the Money.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—As soon as the Anglo-Californian bank opened Friday morning Tom Sharkey presented the certified check for $10,000 handed him by Referee Wyatt Earp on the day of the fight with Fitzsimmons.

The cashier notified the sailor that attachments aggregating $1,500 had been filed against the certificate.

"All right then, give me the balance," remarked Sharkey in a way which indicated that he was anxious to get the $8,500 out of the reach of the collectors. The money was turned over to him.

UNEASINESS

In Havana Over the Uncertainty of Gen. Maceo's Death.

The Captain General Complimented by the Queen Regent—Indications Point to Rebel Parties Having Entered the Province of Matanzas.

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 18.—If advices from Havana received here are well founded, Antonio Maceo will prove the liveliest corpse of the century, and, according to letters received here, Maceo, instead of being dead, as the Spaniards report, and as many Cubans in the United States believe, is still alive and at the head of a large army. Not only is the famous patriot chief alive, but he has successfully crossed Weyler's much vaunted trocha, and dashed across Havana province, and is now marching through Matanzas province giving battle to Spaniards as he goes, in order to effect a junction with the insurgents under Maximo Gomez, who is supposed to be in Santa Clara province, near the Matanzas line. It is stated that the very time the Spaniards in Havana were pretending to celebrate Maceo's death the insurgent leader was giving battle to Gen. Bernal's column in Matanzas province. The engagement is said to have taken place last Sunday near the town of Cabezas. Maceo is said to have had 5,000 men, and advices received here are to the effect that he repulsed Gen. Bernal's column with heavy loss. It is significant that the authorities at Havana report that Gen. Bernal had an engagement with the insurgents in Matanzas last Sunday, but the name of the Cuban leader is not given.

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 18.—Passengers by the Olivette report great uneasiness felt in Havana on account of the uncertainty of Maceo's death. It is reported on good authority that Gen. Prats, commander of Matanzas province, has notified Gen. Weyler by telegram to cease all demonstrations on account of the death of Maceo, and that Gen. Bernal, of said province, had an engagement Tuesday week with Maceo, who had 5,000 men with him. The Spaniards report a victory as usual. Passengers state that the report of Maceo's death is well understood in Havana, and that it was made up by order of the home government to influence the congress of the United States. There was the wildest kind of excitement on the dock Wednesday night when this statement was made.

The cruiser Raleigh returned Wednesday afternoon from her chase after the Three Friends. It is reported that they did not see anything of her.

HAVANA, Dec. 18.—A correspondent at Guanajay reports that the forces under Maj. La Costa have captured at Mosquita Beach a deserter who belonged to Alfonso XIII battallion. The prisoner says that he was forced to join Maceo's forces in Pinar del Rio. He repeats the story that Maceo did not cross the trocha on land but went by sea around the northern end of it. After landing in the province of Havana Maceo met the forces of Lieut. Vasquez who was waiting at Mosquito Beach between Mariel and Banes. The prisoner complains that he was ill-treated by the rebels. His story is considered suspicious and he will be tried by a court martial.

The queen regent has sent a dispatch to Capt. Gen. Weyler complimenting him upon the result of his campaign against the insurgents.

Indications point to rebel parties having entered the province of Matanzas. Their trails show the direction in which they had gone and a Spanish column is following in their tracks. It is believed that a concentration is intended in Santa Clara province of rebels from the east and west. The government says it is watching the movement, and so far as can be gathered from outside sources it is doing little but watching to prevent the rebel from carrying out their plan.

CORBETT SIGNS

Articles of Agreement to Fight Bob Fitzsimmons to a Finish for a Purse of $15,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—James J. Corbett Thursday afternoon at Taylor's hotel, Jersey City, signed articles of agreement to fight Bob Fitzsimmons to a finish on March 17, 1897, for a purse of $15,000, to be given by Dan Stuart. The place of the battle is to be announced before February 17. Stuart is to post a forfeit of $5,000 in the hands of Richard K. Fox or Al Smith, and Corbett and Fitzsimmons must each post $2,000 as a guarantee of good faith. George Siler, of Chicago, is named as referee. Corbett signed the articles before he noticed that they reserved all privileges for Stuart, and he became somewhat excited when he thought of the kinetescope privileges. After some reflection he finally said: "I would not change the articles for a million dollars, but if I find out Julian or Fitzsimmons get any share of the privilege money I will kick for my share." Fitzsimmons was not represented at the meeting.

Highwaymen Hold Up a Train in Alabama.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 18.—Two highwaymen held up a west bound Southern railway passenger train near Bryant station, 25 miles west of here Thursday night, and succeeded in escaping with a large amount of money. Details are meager.

Hermann, the Magician, Dead.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 18.—Hermann, the magician, who gave a performance here Wednesday night at the Lyceum theater, died Thursday morning at Great Valley, while en route to Bradford, Pa. His body is now at Salamanca, N. Y. Mr. Hermann was perfectly well when he took the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh train here at 7:30 Thursday morning. As the train approached Great Valley, a few miles this side of Salamanca, he suddenly expired. The car containing the body was switched off at Salamanca.

100

Doses One Dollar is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is economy to get Hood's when you need a blood purifier and nerve tonic because

Hood's

Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills cure Liver Ills; easy to take, easy to operate. 25c.

London Needlework Guild.

The duke of York, son of the prince of Wales, has lately become vice president of the London Needlework Guild, and in this capacity has contributed as many as 107 articles to the annual exhibition of the guild, which was opened recently at the Imperial institute. Most of the workers naturally are ladies, but there are also men associates. The duchess of Teck, the general president of the guild, is responsible this year for a total of 3,633 articles, while the duchess of York sends in 4,134; Princess Edward of Saxe-Weimar, 342; Lady Vernon Harcourt, 2,088; Hon. Mrs. Halford, 1,225, and Mrs. Basil Ellis, the honorary secretary, 3,602. The grand total of articles received from the various branches of the London guild is 65,050—a considerable advance upon the number sent in last year.

A Mixed Verdict.

A London jury the other day brought in the following decidedly mixed verdict: "We find the prisoner not guilty, and that he admitted his guilt through ignorance, and we strongly recommend him to mercy."

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

THE morning of opportunity passes; the day of accountability never.—Chicago Standard.

PISO'S CURE cured me of a Throat and Lung trouble of three years' standing. E. CADY, Huntington, Ind., Nov. 12, 1894.

BEWARE of the sin whose only defense is that it is highly respectable.—Ram's Horn.

THE same old or new rheumatic pains St. Jacobs Oil will cure.

ENERGY and persistence conquer all things.—Benjamin Franklin.

BACKACHE, toothache, frost-bites, too, St. Jacobs Oil will cure—that's true.

HE climbs highest who helps another up. —Chicago Standard.

BE sure; neuralgia will cease. St. Jacobs Oil the cure. Get ease.

CHARITY is an eternal debt, and without limit. Quesnel.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

Look for the name ESTEY on the front of an Organ. That is the quickest way to tell whether it is a good organ or not.

Write for Illustrated Catalogue with prices, to Estey Organ Company, Brattleboro, Vt.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

DEFIANT.

Prime Minister Canovos del Castillo Sounds a Warning.

Spain Will Defend Its Domains Against All Foes at All Hazards.

If a Conflict Between Spain and the United States Comes Castillo Says His Country is Quite Ready—Will Not Yield an Inch by Force or Threat.

MADRID, Dec. 21.—Prime Minister Canovas del Castillo said in reference to threats of American intervention in Cuba: "I desire to say in the strongest possible manner that Spain is ready to grant local self-government to the island of Cuba as soon as the Spanish arms have triumphed over the patriot forces sufficiently to make it clear to the world that the monarchy is granting the reform of its own free will, and is not yielding either to domestic or to foreign threats.

"But this government will not yield an inch to force or to threat of force. No concession of any kind will be made until the insurrection in Cuba has been brought under control, and until Spain can give what she refuses to allow any one to take, either by armed insurrection or by treasonable intrigues with other nations.

"I can not undertake to discuss the domestic politics of the United States, but I firmly believe that a majority of the Americans, who are assisting this deplorable agitation, are opposed to the independence of Cuba, and are at heart in favor of annexation.

"Spain can not undertake to be guided in her domestic affairs by any other government, nor can she allow any foreign agitation to influence her in dealing with her rebellious colony. This government seeks peace, but she will not shrink from war in any matter touching her honor. If the United States forces war upon Spain we are ready to defend ourselves, but we are determined that Spain shall be the nation attacked, and not herself the aggressor.

"I deny that either the government or the people of Spain want war with the United States. If the war comes it will not be through our fault. The Cuban question is a question of territorial integrity, and the crown of Spain will defend its domain at all times.

"Spain is strong enough to carry on the campaigns in Cuba and Phillippine islands until peace is restored, no matter how long the struggle may last. This nation is united, the queen, the government and the people have but one mind—they are determined to continue the wars until the insurrections are crushed.

"Spain will defend herself at all hazards. She seeks no foreign war, but she fears not war."

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The Standard's Madrid correspondent telegraphs that the feeling is unanimous there that the people of the United States are treating Spain unfairly and that they want to systematically provoke her to an unequal struggle simply because the United States has obtained assurances that the European powers will only display platonic sympathies for Spain.

The Spaniards are convinced of this and hence they forbear expressing their deep resentment. Suppressed irritation pervades all classes and parties. The correspondent adds that it is reported that there has been some display of amonitsy against the United States in Barcelona and Bilbao.

MADRID, Dec. 21.—Senor Canovas does not think that the Cameron resolution need cause serious perturbance. It will only make the relations between Spain and the United States more strained, but need not cause a rupture. He will never consent to foreign interfence in what is a question of Spain's domestic politics. Spain will regulate her acts so that nobody will be able to say that she made war upon another power, yet she will always repel aggression. The tone of the newspapers generally was more moderate Sunday than it was Saturday. They contain little to excite the populace.

MADRID, Dec. 21.—The explicit announcement is made that Senor Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish minister at Washington, has telegraphed to his government here that he had a conference with Mr. Olney, the secretary of state. in the course of which the latter assured him that Spain might rest tranquil until March at least, since, despite the attitude of congress, President Cleveland would not recognize the independence of Cuba

SENATOR ALLEN

On the Cuban Question and the Cameron Joint Resolution.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 21.—Senator Wm. Allen arrived from Washington Saturday. The senator was very emphatic in his declarations upon the Cuban question and the Cameron joint resolution.

"The resolution will be taken up immediately after the holidays, I think," said the senator, "and will be discussed perhaps ten or twelve days and then passed to the president. From Secretary Olney's letter the almost certain inference is that Cleveland will veto the resolution. But it is within the limits of the power of congress to pass the bill over the veto, and that can be done, I think, without any doubt. Secretary Olney's position in claiming that the power to issue such a mandate rests solely with the executive is wrong."

"Do you think Spain would declare war?"

"I think there is no probability of it. It would be merely a bluff if she did. Spain is exhausted and poverty stricken now and it would be the sheerest folly for her to take up arms against a country like this."

"Does the passage of the resolution mean Cuban independence?"

"Nothing else, as I can see. That is the whole size of it and the sooner it is done the better."

THE HOUSE

Hears With Surprise the Action of the Senate Committee in Favorably Reporting Cameron's Resolution Recognizing Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The senate committee on foreign relations met at 10:30 o'clock a. m., Friday, to consider the Cuban resolutions now pending before it. All members were present but Mr. Gray, of Delaware, and Mr. Daniel, of Virginia. Secretary Olney, who was invited by Senator Sherman, to come before the committee Friday, appeared at the capital before several members of the committee arrived. At 11:30 the secretary was still in the committee room, and it is presumed that he gave the committee such parts of the report of Consul General Lee as it was deemed best to withhold from the general public.

Cameron's Resolutions Favorably Reported.

The senate committee on foreign relations Friday ordered a favorable report, by a practically unanimous vote, on Cameron's resolution recognizing the independence of the republic of Cuba.

The text of the resolution is as follows: Joint resolution acknowledging the independence of Cuba.

Resolved, By the senate and house of representatives of the United States of American in congress assembled, that the independence of the republic of Cuba be and the same is hereby acknowleged by the United States of America.

Section 2. That the United States will use its friendly offices with the government of Spain to bring to a close the war between Spain and Cuba.

There is an impression among some of the members of the committee that the president will veto the resolution, it being joint in its character and requiring the executive approval or disproval. If Mr. Cleveland should enter his veto, it is claimed that congress would be able to pass the resolution by the necessary two-thirds vote.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The house heard with surprise of the action of the senate foreign relations committee in recognizing the independence of Cuba, and if the opinion of the members of the foreign affairs committee and some of the democratic and republican leaders in the house is to be taken as a criterion, the popular branch of the government will not sustain the position taken by the senate committee. Mr. Hitt, of Illinois, chairman of of the house committee, is out of the city, and is not expected to return until after the holidays recess. Several other members of the committee were not in their seats Friday and have presumably left town. Of those who remain—and of this number, a United Associated Presses reporter talked with five—the entire quintet strongly opposed any action at this time. The republicans objected to any step which would in their opinion bring about a war with Spain on the ground that the McKinley administration ought not to be met at the very moment of coming into power by so serious an international problem.

A member of the house foreign affairs committee said the time for action had passed; that the island was bankrupt; that American interests in Cuba are destroyed; that our commerce with the island has practically disappeared and that recognition now would be a mere sentiment without a practical consideration behind it.

Another member of the committee expressed his belief that the United States had better attend to its own business and not go dancing through the congress of nations with a chip on its shoulder spoiling for a fight.

A prominent member, a republican, of the house pointed out that a promise of better times had been made to the American people if Mr. McKinley should be elected to the presidency. Mr. McKinley, he added, had been elected and now it was proposed by the senate to take a step which would involve us in complications with Spain and retard a return to prosperity for several years. He expresses belief that all the republican leaders, as well as the influential democrats of the house would set their face's strongly against any Cuban resolution which might properly be regarded by Spain as an unfriendly act.

Members of the foreign affairs committee expressed their surprise at the change of sentiment among their colleagues. The prediction was freely made that, notwithstanding the unanimity with which the resolution was reported by the senate committee, it was doubtful if the senate would adopt it, or at least not without a very considerable delay. Not a single member of the house, out of a score or more of leaders, could be found who believed that the senate resolution could pass the house.

Spanish Minister Makes a Statement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—In regard to the Cameron resolution in the senate the Spanish minister declares that while certain sensational papers may be relied upon to publish alleged statements from him, he is confident that all sensible people will appreciate that he has declined and will uniformly refuse to be led into any discussion or criticism whatever touching a matter under the consideration of congress. Such a matter he would not discuss privately under any circumstances, and he seizes this opportunity to warn every one against statements on the subject which might be attributed to him, however direct.

To Repair Our Ships.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Acting Secretary McAdoo, of the navy, Friday afternoon summoned the chiefs of construction, engineering and ordnance Commoderes Hichborn, Melville and Sampson, and ordered them to take necessary steps to expedite the repairs of all ships now in commission at the Atlantic coast navy yards. The chiefs were also directed to approve no changes or extensive repairs in ships for the present, as it was the desire of the department to get all the commissioned vessels away from the navy yards in order that urgent work may be prosecuted on other vessels.

THE PRESIDENT.

His Power to Act Without Consulting the Congress.

Recognition of Cuba Held to Be Clearly an Executive Function.

Congress Alone Can Declare War, But it is Within the Power of the President, by His Own Action, to Bring About a Conflict.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—There is every reason to believe that Secretary Olney's declaration that recognition is exclusively an executive function was not made until after that cautious and thorough deliberation which characterized his conduct of the negotiations with Lord Salisbury over the Venezuelan controversy, and other important official matters which have called for his decisions since he entered President Cleveland's cabinet as attorney general nearly four years ago. It is well known in the highest official circles, especially in the cabinet, that questions of presidential prerogatives were forced upon him by his colleagues among the executive advisors at the outset of this administration in connection with the perplexities that arose in the Hawaiian affair, when the executive was placed in direct antagonism with congress. The paramount mission of Commissioner Blount to Honolulu was understood to have been undertaken with the attorney general's full endorsement and all the subsequent acts of the administration with regard to the mid-ocean republic were said to had his approval if, indeed, they have had not been inaugurated at his suggestion.

In his official capacity Mr. Olney was not intimately associated with the president in the steps which were taken to suppress the great railway riots by the use of federal troops, and throughout his occupancy of the department of justice he was constantly called upon to declare the limitations of executive power under the constitution. The sharp demarkation of congressional and executive functions with respect to purely international matters was presented to him as the legal adviser of the president upon the adoption of the Hoar Turkish resolution and at that time it was understood that such instructions to the president by congress whether in the form of concurrent or joint resolutions did not require compliance. The president neither signed nor disapproved the resolutions, nor did he transmit them to the Ottoman porte.

The Cuban resolutions were similarly ignored, though at the time of their adoption it was generally understood that Secretary Olney had reached the conclusion that their effect was exclusively advisory, however mandatory their language might be.

It is pointed out by state department officials that congress has never been confirmed by the supreme court in its assertion of any powers not expressly given to it by the constitution. In the event of the recognition of either the belligerancy or independence of Cuba, the first result, it is held, would be the appearance of an accredited minister or other emissary of that stand. The contention in that, under the constitution, the president is the sole judge as to whether such emissary shall be received. Precisely this emergency has arisen in the past few weeks. The greater republic of Central America has come into existence and its accredited minister, Mr. Redugney, has been in Washington a fortnight. He has not been received by the president nor has the American charge at Managua, Nicaragua, been authorized to formally recognize the new arrangement.

The president also took his own time in recognizing the provisional government of Hawaii and also the Dole government. Frequently prompt recognition of a foreign government has taken place without any thought of the possible approval of congress, notable when President Harrison acted on the practical termination of the Chilean revolution. The same was also the case upon the establishment of the present republic of France and the republic of Brazil. Another recent case of the exercise of the president's authority in receiving and dealing with foreign ministers occurred in the dismissal of Sackville West, the British minister. While this caused no disruption of our relations with England, it is held that it showed the president's power to act altogether without consulting congress, and it was an instance of an executive action which might have led to war.

In this connection it is also pointed out that while congress can alone declare war, it is clearly within the power of the president by his own action to bring about a war which, if declared by an opponent, would create a condition he would be compelled to meet until congress could assemble and act, especially if hostilities were provoked on our coast.

All Talk and No Fight.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—While the feeling in Washington is that the action of the senate foreign relations committee Friday will cause Spain to do much talking in regard to war, the general belief here is that no such result will come about. There seems to be a sentiment here that something must be done for Cub, but that congress will not go so far as declaring war. The resolution has still a long and tortuous road to travel before it is adopted, and it now seems certain of being vetoed if congress does pass it.

Brazil Will Support the United States.

RIO JANEIRO, Dec. 21.—United States Minister Thompson had a long conference with Dr. Cerqueria, minister of foreign affairs. It is understood that Cuba was the subject of the conference. Brazil will probably follow the example of the United States should action be taken at Washington.

GEN. MACEO

Reported to Be Alive and Marshaling Troops in Matanzas—A Demand That Weyler Be Recalled and Replaced by Gen. Marin.

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 17.—Passengers arriving here Wednesday night from Havana report that Antonio Maceo is alive and well, and is in the province of Matanzas.

These passengers say that all of the festivities that were going on in Havana to celebrate his death have been ordered stopped since it has become known that he is alive.

HAVANA, Dec. 17.—Via Key West, Fla., Dec. 17.—Maceo's death is still surrounded in mystery. The body is still undiscovered and no further proofs have been adduced except the official statement which leads the Cubans to think he is still alive. In fact, the residents of Punta Brava, the vicinity in which the engagement occurred, disbelieve the story. Zertucha continues to give contradictory evidence. He now says the knife captured belonged to Gomez' son and not to Maceo. The Cubans consider it significant that the objects captured are not shown, and also the alleged written statements of Gomez's suicide. It is also significant that no Cubans have surrendered since the leader's alleged death, proving either that it will not effect the revolution or that Maceo is not dead. Many rumors are afloat in connection with Maceo's death, and all are confusing.

One story is that a major at Cabezas, Matanzas, telegraphed that Maceo passed near the town with a large force. Another is that Aguierri has written that date of the 10th, but does not mention the fact. Many couriers have been sent to investigate but have not returned. The Cubans disbelieve the story that Maceo was killed by treachery. They say Maceo was not easily trapped and would not accept a flag of truce even from Ahumada.

HAVANA, Dec. 17.—The Diario de la Marina in consequence of having received from its New York correspondent dispatches giving accounts of the exditement caused throughout the United States by the stories of the alleged treacherous manner in which Maceo was done to death prints an energetic protest against the circulation of such reports, which it characterizes as gross falsehoods and insults to Spanish chivalry and honor. In the course of its article the Diario comments in scathing terms upon the action of the American newspaper press in printing "such lies."

MADRID, Dec. 17.—For many days there have been signs of dissatisfaction with Gen. Weyler's conduct of the campaign in Cuba.

A popular demand is being made that the general be recalled, and a new man placed in charge of the island war.

Spaniards whose sons and brothers have been killed in the conflict are the principal ones to cry for a new general in Cuba.

This demand took definite shape Wednesday morning in the issue of El Correo Militar, a journal devoted to army affairs.

It demands that Gen. Weyler be recalled from Cuba and replaced by Gen. Marin, who is now in command in Pinar del Rio. Gen. Macias, now in command of the troops in the Canary islands, succeeding the marquis of Ahumada as second in command.

The marquis is charged by the patriots with having planned the death of Maceo.

The government has decided to send 15,000 soldiers to reinforce the troops now in the Philippine islands. The cabinet council, which was held Tuesday, decided to purchase the English transport steamer Prince of Wales in order to expedite the transportation of troops to Manila, and it was also decided to purchase a complete equipment of new rifles for the troops.

SOCIAL EVIL.

Judge White Introduces a Novel Plan for Its Suppression in Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 17.—In the criminal court Wednesday Judge White introduced a new plan for suppressing the social evil. Four women, who were arrested for conducting disorderly houses, were fined in the aggregate $1,100, and with the promise of discontinuing their nefarious business escaped going to the workhouse. Judge White said:

"They simply sell liquor as an incident to their business of the house. It seems with the connivance of the police, many of these sporting houses are permitted to go, and sending these women up simply puts the county to additional costs. It is no terror to them to be sent to the workhouse. By this arrangement the county will be about $1,200 better off when the costs are counted. It is better to have this money in the county treasurer's office than to let the police get it. Besides, the women promise to quit and we can send them up if they don't stop."

Marion Hatfield Hanged.

SNEEDVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 17.—Marion Hatfield, a relative of the notorious Hatfields of Kentucky and West Virginia, was hanged here Wednesday. With a woman named Haney Jordan, he waylaid and killed Jonas Trail, a dealer in illicit whisky, on March 25. The details of the murder were sickening. The woman helped Hatfield to rob their victim. The woman was never arrested.

Trade Marks.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 17.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the trade mark association of plug tobacco manufacturers called for the purpose of settling the priority of certain trade marks, it was decided to make an effort to have the long term congress pass a law requiring all trade marks to be registered and all manufacturers notified so that they can not be duplicated. A penalty will be attached to the use of another firm's trade mark after the bill has passed. It was decided to maintain the association and an assessment was levied.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—SENATE.—The reported assassination of the Cuban leader, Antonio Maceo, while under a flag of truce, was the text of a resolution offered Monday in the senate by Mr. Call (dem., Fla.), and referred to the committee on foreign relations. The resolution characterized the affair as a violation of the rules of civilized warfare and as a cowardly act of treachery. A war blast was also blown against Turkey in the shape of resolutions passed by a church congregation in New Hampshire, presented and appoved by Senator Gallinger, of that state, declaring that Armenian outrages should be suppressed by the civilized powers, even at the cost of the dismemberment of the Turkish empire. The immigration bill was taken up and went over, under an agreement that a vote shall be taken on its passage at 4 p. m. on Thursday. The resolution of the house for a holiday recess was referred to the committee on appropriations. The senate then took up and passed all the pension bills.

HOUSE—By unanimous consent the house Monday postponed consideration of District of Columbia bills until Thursday, and devoted the day to miscellaneous business. By a vote of yeas 98, and noes 85, the house refused to pass over the president's veto a bill granting a pension to the divorced wife of Lowell Taft, of the Eighteenth regiment Connecticut volunteer infantry, who died of alcoholism in a soldiers' home. A joint resolution was passed providing for a holiday recess from December 22 to January 5. Mr. Hull (rep. Ia.), chairman of the committee on military affairs, reported the army appropriation bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—SENATE—Senator Morgan (dem., Ala.) occupied more than an hour in the senate Tuesday in presenting arguments to show why the United States should at once intervene to put an end to the war in Cuba. At its conclusion the resolution offered by him Monday requesting the president to communicate papers relating to the condition of affairs in Cuba was agreed to. A resolution for an inquiry into the corrupt use of money in the late presidential election was offered by Mr. Allen (pop., Neb.), and was, under the rules, referred to the committee on contingent expenses. The pension bill of Nancy G. Allabach, passed and vetoed last session, was taken up and passed, notwithstanding the president's objection—41 to 11. The resolution for a holiday recess from Tuesday, December 22, to Tuesday, January 5, was concurred in.

HOUSE—Mr. Sherman (rep., N. Y.), chairman of the committee on Indian affairs, introduced in the house Tuesday a bill abolishing the office of commissioner of Indian affairs. In place of the commissioner the bill provides for a committee of two civilians and one army officer which is to exercise the power now given to the commissioner. Messrs. Evans (rep., Ky.), Russell (rep., Ct.), and McMillin (dem., Tenn.) were appointed house conferees on the joint resolution continuing the existence of the joint congressional committee appointed to investigate and report upon regulations for the free use of alcohol in the arts and manufactures. The house, Tuesday, rather unexpectedly entered upon the consideration of the bill of Mr. Loud (rep., Cal.) to amend the postal law relating to second class mail matter, and it was the unfinished business when adjournment occurred at 4:30 o'clock.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—SENATE—A very interesting and important discussion upon Mr. Allen's (pop., Neb.) resolution to take up the Dingley bill for consideration in the senate was started Wednesday by Mr. Vest (dem., Mo.) and was participated in by Senators Allen, Chandler and Gallinger (reps., N. H.), Fry and Hale (reps., Me.), Aldrich (rep., R. I.), Sherman (rep., O.), Teller (silver rep., Col.) and Gorman (dem., Md.) The upshot of the debate was a complete acquiescence, on both sides of the chamber, in the fact that the Dingley bill could not possibly be passed at the present session and that the enactment of a new tariff bill would have to go over to a new session of congress, to be convened as early as possible.

HOUSE—The house Wednesday devoted nearly all of a four hours' session to the army appropriation bill for the year ending June 30, 1898, in committee of the whole.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—SENATE—The bill which passed the house of representatives last session, and for which a substitute was reported by the senate committee, to amend the immigration laws of the United States occupied the attention of the senate during nearly the whole of Thursday's session. The substitute was amended in some particulars, the most notable amendment being one providing that the act shall not apply to Cuban refugees during the existing troubles in Cuba; and then it was passed by a vote of 52 to 10, and a conference asked with the house. The bill as passed excludes, in addition to those classes excluded under existing laws, all persons over 16 years of age who can not read and write the language of their native country or some other language, but it does not exclude the wife, child, parent or grandparent of an admissible immigrant, notwithstanding their inability to read and write. At 4:30 p. m. the senate adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—The house Thursday set the inaugural ball rolling by the passage of the usual bills authorizing the laying of necessary temporary railroad tracks to accommodate the increased travel, the use of streets and reservations for the erection of reviewing stands and the loan of such government flags and ensigns as can be spared for decorative purposes. The army appropriation bill, which was the unfinished business at the opening of the session, was passed, after the amendment recommended by the committee of the whole Wednesday practically abolishing the hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., by cutting off the appropriation for its maintenance had been agreed to. Half a dozen measures of local interest to the District of Columbia were passed and consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was begun in committee of the whole. Thirty-one pages, of the 110 comprising the bill were disposed of without amendment, when, at 5 o'clock, the committee and the house adjourned until Friday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—SENATE.—No session Friday.

HOUSE—Friday was private bill day under the rules, and the request of Mr. Bingham (rep., Pa.), for unanimous concent to proceed with the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill met objection. Thirty-seven private pension bills, previously reported by the committee of the whole, were passed, and the rest of the afternoon was occupied in discussing five war claim bills, one of which, for the relief of Thomas B. Reed, a Pennsylvania soldier was passed. The report of the conferees was agreed to extending until ten days after the beginning of the next session the limit within which the joint congressional committee on regulations for the free use of alcohol in the arts and manufactures, might report. At the night session 14 pension bills were considered and laid aside with a favorable recommendation. At 10:30 the house adjourned until Saturday.

The Message to Be Ignored.

MADRID, Dec. 19.—It is understood that the government has abandoned its intention to address a note to the government at Washington concerning that part of President Cleveland's message which refers to Spain and Cuba, and will ignore the document altogether.

Three Powers Will Back Spain

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—A Washington special says Senor De Lome, the Spanish minister, has unofficially informed Secretary Olney that France, Russia and Holland have instructed their representatives here that if America takes official action as to Cuba without provocation on the part of Spain, they will regard the act as hostile and unfriendly.

Dry Goods Firm Assigns.

OTTAWA, Kas., Dec. 19.—The dry goods establishment of McHenry & Co., one of the largest in this city, made a general assignment Friday.

HUMOROUS.

—"Mabel has a lot of sense." "How does she show it?" "She never permits herself to appear more intelligent than the man who is talking to her."—Chicago Record.

—Vague.—Mack—"What do you think of Scribbler's new book?" Robbins—"I haven't formed an opinion." "You must have been reading the criticisms."—Life.

—Crawford—"How is it that the janitor of the flat is such an autocrat?" Grimshaw—"I suppose it's, because wherever he goes he generally gets in on the ground floor."—Judge.

—Point of View.—"Bilker, you ought to be ashamed to wear such good clothes when you owe me so much money." "No; you ought to be proud to lend money to a man who wears such good clothes."—Chicago Record.

—"Can you support my daughter in the style to which she is accustomed?" asked her father. "Pretty nearly," replied the suitor. "Of course I can't keep up the engagement luxuries I have given her forever."—Harper's Bazar.

—"Yes," remarked Satan, firmly. "I would rather yield something to liberal theology than resign myself into the clutches of any coal trust." Accordingly he gave orders to have gasoline stoves subbstituted for the ranges hitherto employed.—Detroit Tribune.

—"Happened to see your wife on a wheel yesterday. If I remember, I heard you declare you would never allow her to ride." "Yes, I know. But she had a chance to trade off her pug dog for a wheel and I thought I would choose the least evil."—Indianapolis Journal.

—"Did you attend the big meeting at Old City Hall last night?" asked one Pittsburgher of another. "No." "Why not?" "Well, my name was not on the list of vice presidents, and I knew that if all those men were there I would not be able to get in the hall."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

TEACHING BY PHONOGRAPH.

A Curious and Clever Scheme of a New York Professor of Languages.

Many novel projects have been devised in the way of language teaching, but never until just lately has the phonograph been made part of the outfit of the linguistic professors. It is difficult at first to see how this instrument can help along teaching of any kind, but thereon hangs the tale. The man who has adapted the phonograph to this profession is R. D. Cortina, and he has been so successful that already he has sent out over 500 machines, all loaded with his instruction and primed with his voice.

Until the phonograph was applied to languages it was necessary for anyone wishing to study a foreign tongue to sit literally at the feet of the master and learn the pronunciation and the accent from his very lips. Books might be pored over and a language partially learned in that way, but the voice of the teacher had to be heard. The idea came several years ago to Mr. Cortina that through the phonograph he could practically duplicate himself in every corner of the civilized world.

His method is simple. With each phonograph there is sent his textbook, 20 loaded cylinders and 20 blank ones. Each lesson in the book is arranged in the form of questions and answers. The pupil, ready to begin, puts the cylinder of the first lesson in the machine, the tubes in his ears and starts the phonograph.

Keeping his eye on the book he hears the words and phrases repeated, with their proper accent, just as if the professor stood at his side. There is an additional advantage that the lesson can be repeated 20 or 100 times if necessary, until every sound is familiar to the pupil.

Then, having thoroughly learned these sentences, he puts one of the unused cylinders in the machine and repeats the lesson. In a little paper box the cylinder goes back to New York, and at his earliest opportunity Mr. Cortina pops it into his own machine.

At his side is the stenographer. As he listens to the lesson repeated back, now stopping the phonograph, now starting it going again, he dictates his criticism, where the pronunciation is wrong, what is right, what the mistakes are and where they have been made.

The letter and the cylinder go back to the pupil, who reads and listens to his own voice reproduced. Then, taking up the original cylinder once more, he is able to tell just where the difference lies.—N. Y. Herald.

Tombs of Ice.

A skeleton has been found in one of the fissures of the Ademello glacier, in the southern Tyral, which is thought to be that of an American tourist of the name of Ruth, who disappeared in 1890. These fissures cleave glaciers at all angles, and it is easy to slip into one of them. When once in it is hardly possible to escape without help from above, and the warmth of the body melts the ice around, so that the victim slowly descends by his own weight into the depths of the glacier, and generally starves to death. On looking into these fissures the most beautiful play of light in blue and green and rainbow colors is seen. But these are best enjoyed from the safe vantage ground of the upper, outside world, rather than down in the depths and close at hand. In some instances, it is said, bodies have been preserved in these fissures in the ice for years.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Distinctive Qualities.

Tommie Tompkins—Pa, was Senator Ducksworth who died the other day a politician or a statesman?

Tompkins—Nobody knows yet, my son; his estate hasn't been appraised.—N. Y. Truth.

Her Vague Assumption.

"She is a Daughter of the Revolution?"

"Sister I believe."—Indianapolis Journal

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Dec. 23, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time	$1.00
Each additional time	.25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch	.50

W. L. RIDDELL, - - - Publisher.

☞ Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered.......$5.00.

For Assessor.

We are authorized to announce W. W. GRIMSLEY, of Big Bone, as a candidate for Assessor, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce O. S. WATTS, of Bullittsville, as a candidate for Assessor, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For Jailer.

We are authorized to announce J. F. BLYTH, of Burlington, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce T. J. ADAMS, of Burlington precinct, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce OSCAR J. RYLE, of Burlington, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For School Superintendent.

We are authorized to announce E. L. CLEMENTS, of Rabbit Hash, as a candidate for Superintendent of Schools, of Boone county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Big Bone.

The members of Harmony Lodge I. O. O. F., of Big Bone will give themselves an elegant treat Saturday evening, Dec., 26th, at 5 o'clock, in the way of an Oyster Supper at their Hall. Their customary hospitality is extended to visiting brethren. M. C. Carroll and J. D. Moore were appointed committee on arrangements.

Richwood.

Most of the farmers are through killing hogs.

Senator Conner still keeps an open house to his many friends

Mrs. W. H. Smith was visiting in the Limaburg neighborhood, Sunday.

M. Knally, wife and daughter and Master George Scott, were visiting at this place, Sunday.

Rev. Geo. Washington, of Virginia, has been helping Rev. Davis in conducting a protracted meeting at the P. E. Church.

Bullittsville.

Prof. Voshell passed through town last Monday.

Dr. Hays made a flying visit to Union, Sunday, via Hebron.

Eld. Curry will occupy the pulpit at Mt. Pleasant next Sunday.

We hear of another wedding for next Wednesday. Hurrah for the girls!

Dr. and Mrs. Crouch, of Union, were the guests of Mr. Geo. W. Gaines and family, last Friday.

The pupils of Mrs F. E. Kirtley's private school are preparing to give an entertainment the Wednesday after Christmas. Friends and patrons are cordially invited.

Erlanger.

Good Faith Lodge, No. 95 will elect officers Saturday, Dec. 26th.

Eastern Star Lodge will have their annual election for officers on the first Saturday in January.

High mass on Christmas morning at 5 a. m., at St. Henry's Church by Rev. Father Kolbe. All invited to attend.

The young men of Florence gave a dancing reception at the K of P. Hall last Friday, in honor of Miss Bertha Hansford, of Harrodsburg.

The Christian Endeavor Cadets are meeting with good results in their drills at the rink. The young lads are improving right along under Commander Guerney.

Limaburg.

We are having nice winter weather.

Whooping cough and bad colds are prevalent.

Adam Heist had a $40 cow to die, one day last week

Sorry to report that Mrs. Thomas Aylor is no better.

George Craven is now occupying his new house.—Turkeys are selling at 7c on foot.—Mrs. Nancy Clark, who has been very ill, is some better.—R. W. Rouse claims that he has the fastest fox hound in the county.—Richard Popham had a wood sawing, last Monday.

The one-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Dixon died at 4 o'clock, last Sunday morning, of pneumonia. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of the entire community.

Constance.

H. Clore is putting metal on the pike.

B. F. Hood has built a new corn crib

Everybody and the doctor has grippe.

Mr. Hay is building an addition to his house.

Mr. Robinson's oldest boy has an ugly gash in his head. Hit with a stone.

Lewis Teeters received an ugly eye from a lick by a pulley at the Desicating factory.

The Constance boys took in a dance at Bromley, last Friday night, and some of them got into a fight.

Master Charles Vollsing's friends gave him a surprise party, last week, it being his 16th birth day.

Rev. C. C. Cline preached at Constance, last Sunday He will lecture here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

The programme for the Constance School entertainment next Thursday night will be as follows: 1s—Medica; 2d—April Fools; 3d—Jumbo Jum; 4th—The Assessor. A good string band will furnish music. Come one, come all and have a good laugh.

Hebron.

School will close on Thursday for the holidays.

There are several cases of whooping cough in this vicinity.

The party given at the residence of Henry Hater, last Friday night, was quite a success. There were nearly 100 present. Though they were crowded, each one seemed to enjoyed himself.

B. C. Whitlock, our local merchant, and Miss Lillie Balsly, of Bullittsville, were married at the Bullittsville church last Wednesday evening, after which they returned to the house which Mr. Whitlock had furnished and partook of a bountiful repast that was awaiting them. After supper they had the pleasure of listening to the music of fox-horns, cow-bells, tinpans, sleighbells and old roosters. After the music was over Mr. Whitlock came out and treated the crowd. May they have a long and happy life.

Hathaway.

Joe Love had a big woodsawing last Friday.

Tony Rue and wife were visiting B. F. Rue and wife, last Saturday.

Earnest Clements, of Union, was visiting friends here, last week.

Lagrippe is visiting almost every family in this vicinity. Some very bad cases

A good many from here attended the sale of J. A Riley, near Locust Grove, last Friday.

Robert Clements and wife have moved into the house with his father, David Clements, for the winter.

Wm. White entertained a number of the young folks at parlor games and other amusements, Tuesday night.

B. F. Rue and wife gave the young folks a party, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

About a dozen men from here were summoned to attend the trial of Adams vs Ryle in the United States Court at Covington, last week.

Bert Clore, of Waterloo, while spending the day with his best girl, Sunday week, sprained his ankle very badly, and did not get away from this vicinity until the following Tuesday evening.

Petersburg.

Aunt Mary Hensley is recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

The sad news of the death of Preston Bailey at his home near Bulllittsville last Thursday night, reached here Friday. He was buried in the cemetery here on Saturday. Mrs. Sedam, Mr. Elijah West, John Jones and a Mr. Smith, of Aurora, attended the burial

Florence Tolin has about recovered from the diphtheria.

Some of the boys say they are not making very much on the Workum as rousters.

Rev. Mr. Deering, P. E. of the M. E. Church, preached here Friday night and left on the boat immediately thereafter.

Our cemetery is filling up very rapidly.

Mr. E. Gaines killed hogs Wednesday, Mrs. Terrill killed Friday. There is a great improvement of late years in the hog killing business. It used to take 3 days to finish up everything, and now at Mr. Gaines killing, twelve hogs were finished up by a little after one o'clock.

In last week's article you should have said "but not more to the person helped than to the helper."

Does it matter if items are written on both sides of the sheet?—[Better on one side only.—ED.]

Miss Elizabeth Grant is home from Glendale, Ohio, college to spend christmas with her parents.

Hon. J. Frank Grant, of Baltimore, Md., will spend christmas with his family here.

Is Maceo dead or alive? Much interest is manifested in that question here.

Dr. Tilley has received a commission as surgeon of the first company that leaves the county for Cuba.

Customs Inspector, F. W. Berkshire, is home from Chicago, to spend the holidays.

The protracted meeting at the Methodist church closed Friday night. One addition—Mrs Blyth.

William Romines' child was badly burnt a few days since.

The infant child of Joe Wendel ran a needle through its hand when crawling on the floor the other day.

The stores have put in their holiday goods Vesenmirer has constructed a log cabin in his spacious room, and it is a picture of the child's dreams of Santa Claus.

Several will spend christmas out of town with relatives and friends.

Hon. T. B. Mathews was called to the bedside of his brother, Edward, who is very low of typhoid fever, at Chester, Pennsylvania.

The new ferry boat is ready for the machinery.

The High Teas will give a dance in Gordon's hall on christmas eve, I hear.

Five cases of diphtheria in this neighborhood.

Arthur Aloway is laid up with neuralgia.

What they expect in their socks:

Charles Hoffman—I don't know.

Harry Smith—A turkey gobbler's ham.

Ruby Hurd—What's it to you?

Ira Wingate—an old buggy.

Sam C. Buchanan—the postoffice

T. B. Mathews—Collector 6th Dis't.

Mark Gordon—good, old juicy xmas beef.

Adam Vesenmire—another walk from Burlington. P. S.—His wheel broke down.

Several—new sweethearts.

Everett Helms—the art of tripple tongueing.

Vell I guess Morrison—another ferry boat to build.

Earl Whiting—a mustache.

Utzinger.

Hon. N. S. Walton is now president of the Boone County Ins. Company.

There are several very bad cases of diphtheria in Petersburg.

Some person stole a big, fat turkey from Scott Chambers, one night last week.

Miss Rebecca Brown, the 18 year-old daughter of Wm. Brown, died one day last week, of inflammation of stomach.

Capt. Alex Hyatt, of the Str. Smoky City, was visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. M Grant, at Petersburg, last Sunday.

Mr. Harvey Loder, brother of Esq. L. A Loder, was visiting in Petersburg, last Sunday a week.

Scott Chambers will attend Dental College in Cincinnati, this winter.

Will Rector will move to the Christian church property near the cemetery in the spring.

It is said that Adam Vesenmier and Hubert Walton will start a coal yard at Petersburg.

Wingate & Thompson shipped 250 head of hogs to Cincinnati, Tuesday of last week.

Will Coyle, Bob and Chas. Bolan, of Pittsburg, were here last Sunday to attend their mother's funeral.

Rev. Harris, of the M. E. Church, is holding a very interesting protracted meeting at Petersburg.

Wayne Keeton bought a plug of Star tobacco and found a humans finger in the center of it.

B. C. Graddy and Hack Walton were smashing the hearts of Petersburg girls last Saturday night.

It is said that M. F. Wingate, of Petersburg, will make the race for Sheriff Phil is popular with the boys.

The new Lawrenceburg ferry boat will be ready for business to-day, Wednesday, so the boys can get their xmas inspiration without fear of a ducking.

Mr. Brack Whitlock, of Hebron, and Miss Lillie Balsly, were married at the Bullittsville Christian Church, last Wednesday at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. E J. Curry. May the wing of prosperity and happiness ever hover over them.

Report of Teacher's Association held at Constance, Saturday, Dec. 19th:

Meeting was called to order by Supt. Voshell, with the following teachers present: C. C. Richmond, Grace Stewart, E. S. Mathews and Wm. Gaines.

Welcome address by C. C. Richmond. Response by Supt. Voshell.

"Possessive pronoun by E. S Mathews. Discussed by Supt. Voshell and Prof. Richmond. It was shown to be erroneously used and in many cases misleading as treated by Harvey.

Mr. Voshell was requested by E. S. Mathews to explain some difficulty in regard to Participles, which he did in a way to benefit both teacher and pupils.

Adjourned at 12 o'clock for dinner. The ladies of Constance had prepared a sumptuous repast, which was enjoyed by all.

Long Division discussed by Profs. Richmond, Gaines and Supt Voshell.

Supt. Voshell having to leave, Prof. Richmond was appointed to take the chair.

Teachers' Aids discussed by Supt. Voshell, Rev Lentz and Profs. Gaines, Richmond and Mathews.

Next on program was School Amusements. Mr. Mathews suggested that Prof. Richmond discuss it in full, which he did in a way pleasing to all.

Committee appointed by Supt. Voshell, Miss Grace Stewart, E. S Mathews and Wm. Gaines. Report read by E. S. Mathews, as follows:

We, the teachers of the Sixth Magisterial District, tender a vote of thanks to the ladies of Constance neighborhood for their hospitable entertainment. The thanks of this association are also tendered to the Rev. Mr. Lentz for his entertaining and instructive talks. We further thank all friends for their cooperation and attendance.

Minutes read and approved. Adjourned. SADIE ZIMMER, Sect'y.

Holiday rates Queen and Crescent Route—1⅓ fare round trip from all Queen & Crescent points selling December 22nd to 25th, and December 30th to January 1st. All tickets good till January 4th to return. On sale to points within 300 miles radius. Ask ticket agent for particulars.

FOR SALE—Chickens—Pure barred Plymouth Rock cockerels. Cheap if taken at once. Stone house.

Mrs. R. O. Smith, Union, Ky.

The stockholders of the Erlanger Deposit Bank held their quarterly election Saturday afternoon and elected the following officers: President, W. H. Baker; Vice President, E. H. Blankenbaker; Secretary, John H. Aylor; Cashier, Squire L. Webb; Directors, W. H. Baker, W. A. Price, John Craven, E. L. Garvey, James A. Huey, F. A Utz, William Rice. The bank is in a flourishing condition.

Incomparable Service.—The Queen & Crescent trains are the finest run in the State of Kentucky. Four daily trains to Cincinnati connect with the main highways of the great Trunk Lines of the North, West and East. This is the line par-excellent to Washington, New York, Boston and the East. The Queen & Crescent connects with every line out of Cincinnati,

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[News]

The new Baptist Church about completed, is one of the prettiest and most complete church edifices in Kentucky. It has all the modern inventions for beauty and comfort.

John Ruth and Porter Holbert brought in Alvin Adams, charged with killing John Perkins, his brother-in-law, about the first of October, 1894, since which time he has been a fugitive from justice, and delivered him up to the jailer. They claim to have captured him near Hallam, but in what manner they failed to say. There is a reward of $150 offered for his apprehension, and as the main witness died a few days ago, some people say that Adams came back to his old home in order to be captured.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier]

A physician in this city has a patient so thin that when he rubbed croton oil on his breast it blistered his back.

A young gentleman from the south end of the county is in "durance vile" in the Cates bastiel on account of stealing a two-dollar saddle on last county court day night. He will remain in custody for thirty days. That two-dollar saddle will cost Grant county about $20. The law is a great institution.

During the high wind Saturday evening about 2 o'clock Mrs. Vley Rosell's house at Ellston caught fire, and both house and contents were destroyed. Those that arrived in time to have saved anything were prevented by having to restrain Mrs. Rosell or she would have certainly been burned to death. She has been living alone for some months and in poor health. Her friends are very much worried about her.

Prof. Wilbur R. Smith, Lexington, Ky.

PROF. WILBUR R. SMITH
LEXINGTON, KY.

Is the person for young men wishing to be qualified for a good position to write. Prof. Smith secures the best paying situations and his College is endorsed by State officials, bankers, business men, etc. Among his thousands of graduates in business all over America, as merchants, bankers, officials, are nearly 2,000 in Kentucky. Hon. F. B. Gray, National Bank Examiner of Texas, and J. E. Brock of a St. Louis bank, receiving $2,000 a year, are both Kentucky boys and like 100 other graduates of Prof. Smith, occupying lucrative bank positions, found their Business Course and Diploma from his College to have been a passport to their positions. Hon. J. M. Samuels says: "Prof. Wilbur R. Smith is a gentleman of character and ability, evinced by the different positions of honor and trust to which he has been called. For over 25 years he has been a successful Business Educator—20 years as President of the Commercial College of Kentucky University, of which I am a graduate. He was a World's Fair Commissioner from Kentucky; also President of the Chamber of Commerce, and Vice President of a National Bank, and for years a practical Accountant."

If you wish a Business Education, or a knowledge of Phonography, Typewriting or telegraphy at the least total cost, with Diploma from Kentucky University on graduation, address only Prof. W. R. Smith, Lexington, Ky.—[Exchange.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given to the stockholders of the Burlington Mercantile Company that the annual election of directors of said company, will be held at the store of Blyth & Clutterbuck, in Burlington, Ky., the former business house of said company. Said election will be held at the place stated on Monday, Jan. 4th, 1897, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 2 o'clock p. m. I, as president of said company hereby appoint W. F. Grant, J. W. Cloud and H. W. Blyth officers to hold said election. Given under my hand as president of said company, this 16th day of December, 1896. N. E. RIDDELL,

President Burlington Mer. Co.

FOR SALE—About 700 bushels, good assorted corn, lot of oak paling and fence posts and a lot of sheaf oats. All of this property is to be found on the farm of the late J. H. Smith, north of Burlington. Apply to

W. L. AYLOR, Adm'r.

KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.

[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A. M.			A. M.	P. M
d 4:50	z9:13	Ar Walton	Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8:52	Ar Williamstown	Lv	8:32
3:48	8:28	Ar Corinth	Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar Sadieville	Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar Georgetown	Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv Frankfort	Ar	11:30	7:25

z Daily. d Except Sunday.

C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

THE QUEEN & CRESCENT
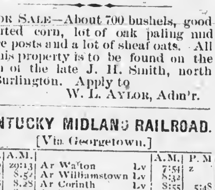
ROUTE

Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain. The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN. Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.

Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.

Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.



CAVEATS,
TRADE MARKS,
DESIGN PATENTS,
COPYRIGHTS, etc.

[illegible] free Handbook write to [illegible] Co., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. [illegible] for securing patents in America. [illegible] brought before [illegible] given free of charge in the

Scientific American

[illegible] CO., [illegible] New York City.

Overcoats Ulsters

In inticipation of a Long and Severe Winter we bought heavily of of Overcoats and Ulsters. The continued warm weather has Frightened us—we may have some of these goods left over next Spring—that is what we must avoid—and we will avoid it by offering special inducements for the next THIRTY DAYS.

We bought these goods cheap, and discounted every bill. Our expenses are low, and we are always satisfied with small profits. We invite inspection of these garments—comparison with any other dealer's will not be necessary—You can See where Ours Excel at a Glance.

Yours For Reliable Business,

ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS

S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

STEPHENS & SCALES,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN

Hardware, Cutlery, and Agricultural Implements,

Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Stee Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,

BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE
AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.

No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.

IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.

Prices Reasonable.

F. PIEPER,
Optician and Jeweler,

Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to

We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.

616 Madison Ave. - - - COVINGTON, KY.

A SPECIAL INVITATION TO

Our Boone County Neighbors!

When in LAWRENCEBURG, IND., Stop at the Old Reliable

ADLES'R BARGAIN STORE.

Where you can pick up a bargain in the line of

Dry Goods, Shoes, Etc., also Holiday ttractions.

Here are a few Sample Bargains:

Ladies' Beaver Capes—all colors, $2 real value $3.50. Child's Long Cloaks—$1 75 real value $3. Beautiful Novelty Dress Goods—10c worth 15c. Best Calicoes & Ginghams, 5c. Best Yarns (all colors,) 5c skein. Wool Fascinators, Hoods or Shawls, 25c worth 50c. Blankets (heavy 10-4) 50c each worth 75c. Heavy Comforts, 75c worth $1.25 Men's Working Pants, only 50c worth 75c. Men's Underwear, 50c suit worth 90c

OUR LEADERS—Men's Cong. or Lace Shoes (all style toes) $1 actually worth $1.50. Ladies' Button or Lace, calf or kid (tips or without) $1 actually worth $1.50. Misses' School Shoes, sizes 1½, 75c actually worth $1.25. Infants' Tip Button, 25c actually worth 40 cents.

Adler's BARGAIN STORE,
27 Walnut St., LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

A DAILY PAPER FOR $2.00 A YEAR!

The increasing demand for a daily newspaper at a price which puts it within the reach of every person in Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee, has been met by the Louisville Post. This complete afternoon daily will send the Evening Post every week day in the year to any address, by mail, postage paid, for $2. The Evening Post is the brightest and best afternoon daily in the South. It prints the full Associated Press dispatches, supplemented by correspondence from every county in Kentucky and Southern Indiana; has a special staff correspondent in Washington, and thorough and reliable men at Frankfort. Full market reports, choice miscellany, short stories, woman's page, all the sporting news. Editorially the strongest paper in the South. Neatly printed on fine paper. Send for sample copy. Address

$2.00 For the Mail Edition of the Evening Post.

THE EVENING POST, LOUISVILLE, KY.

CLUBBED WITH THIS PAPER.

SNAPS.

Leather SNAPS! Boot & Shoe SNAPS!

We have a Store full of Genuine Snaps in

Boots, Shoes, Hats and Gloves,

And we cordially invite our Boone County friends to call and partake of same.

PAUL A. DAVIS, Manager.

Sign of Big Red Boot. Rising Sun, Indiana.

FALL AND WINTER.

CLOTHING AND OVERCOATS,

Gent's Furnishing Goods, Hats and Caps,

Underwear, Umbrellas,

Trunks and Valises.

COME AND SEE US,

MARSHALL & STAHL,

MASONIC BUILDING

LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA

Local News.

Colds are prevalent.

No ice put up this winter before Christmas.

Born—To Morgan Beemon and wife, a daughter.

Eight years until we have another leap year. Only a few more days left for the girsl.

Sauks & Stier furnish a house complete. Nos. 69, 70 and 71 Second street Aurora, Indiana.

Sanks & Stier, undertakers and embalmers. Satisfaction guaranteed. Nos. 69, 70 & 71, Second street, Aurora, Ind.

At the last Presidential election 13,924,653 votes were cast. McKinley received 600,799 more votes than Brynn.

The little folks are progressing nicely learning their pieces for the entertainment, Thursday night at the court house.

Rice & Vest sold W. T. German's 14 acres of land adjoining the town of Burlington for $1,000. Tony Bentler was the purchaser.

Green Bros. keep the most reliable stock of Shoes in Rising Sun. They make a special effort to give full value for the money.

If you want a pair of Ladies' nice Kid Gloves, be sure to go to Green Bros., Rising Sun, Ind. They keep the best line in the town.

The most complete line of Corsets in Rising Sun, is at Green Bros. They give special attention to this department. Prices, 50c to $1.50

W. C. C. Rouse, of Limaburg, butchered two very large hogs, last week. One grossed 888 pounds and the other, 513 pounds, the two weighing 1,401 lbs.

The Sabbath School entertainment, with a treat for the scholars, will begin at 7:30 p. m., sun time, at the court-house in Burlington, Dec. 24th.

The members of the Burlington M. E. Church and their friends have made up a large box of provisions, &c., which they will send to Rev. Harris, at Petersburg, as a Christmas present.

Rev. J. B. Crouch, who recently resigned as pastor of the Ludlow Baptist church, has at the urgent request of the congregation, reconsidered, and will continue to preach for the Ludlow church.

Nelson Hogen, colored, who lives on J. J. Rucker's farm near Constance, has been granted a pension of $8 a month with $580 back pay. Nelson is now one of the happiest darkies in this county.

The members of Burlington Lodge, No. 264, F. & A. M., are requested to meet in their lodge room at 2:30 o'clock p. m., Monday, December 28th, 1896, for the purpose of electing officers.

EDGAR CROPPER, W. M.

The following item is from the Henry County Local: "The marriage of Mr. John Crittenden Gordon, of Eminence, to Miss Loula McKenzie, of this place, will take place in the Methodist church, Thursday, December 24, 1896, at 2 o'clock p. m. Their friends are invited.—No cards.

H. W. Harrison, dentist, will be in Burlington on the first and third Monday in each month, to do work for those who wish anything in his line. He will be here two days each visit. Mr. Harrison is a son of the late R. F. Harrison, of Carrollton, and is a graduate of the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery, at Philadelphia. He is highly recommended in his profession.

Mr. A. F. Crigler, of the Limaburg neighborhood, narrowly escaped being badly burnt, one night last week. He has been in feeble health for sometime, and his bed is near the fire, and a coal popped out onto the bed, and set the clothing on fire, which had gained considerable headway before the old gentleman awoke. One of his feet was burnt considerably before he succeeded in clearing himself of the fire.

The young business men of Lexington, Ky., have formed a Social and Literary Club and honored our old town of Burlington by naming the club after it. Several names were proposed and when J. J. Graddy, son of G. C. Graddy, proposed the name of Burlington, it was at once accepted. The club has secured three front rooms on second floor in the Leland Hotel for its present quarters. It organized with forty members.

A very distressing accident occurred in the Bullittsville neighborhood, late last Thursday afternoon. Press Bailey, who lived on James T. Grant's farm, had been hunting that afternoon, and when he came home about night, he met Lewis Jones, his half-brother, at the wood pile, and handed him the gun, a single-barrel Winchester shot gun. Jones laid the gun across his left arm, the muzzle towards Bailey, in some way, unaccountable, it was discharged, the entire load of shot taking effect in Bailey's breast, killing him instantly. Bailey was a married man and leaves a wife and three or four children.

Circuit Court.

Ben McManama, who had been in jail for some time, charged with debauching his 15 year-old daughter, was indicted on the second day of the term. He pleaded guilty to the indictment that afternoon and was given two years in the penitentiary, the punishment for the offense being not less than two nor more than twenty-one years confinement in the penitentiary. McManama was pleased to think he got off with such a light sentence.

The case of Bristow against Clinton Gaines, seeking to hold him as a partner of Chas. A. Gaines in the purchase of livestock up to the time of the latter's failure, was continued. A long array of witnesses had been summoned, and they added materially to the cost by claiming their attendance.

The following prosecutions were continued and alias process ordered to issue therein: Com'lth. vs Jno. H. Foster; same vs Bud Hensley, alias Joe Hensley; same vs Jas. Craig; same vs John Slayback, &c., 2; same vs John Horton, 2; same vs Frank Henderson; same vs Frank Stuley; same vs Burt Staley; same vs Henry Foster; same vs Wilson Warner; same vs Claud Beall, 2; same vs Laviua Warner.

Judgments for fines and costs were rendered in the following prosecutions: Com'lth vs Dennis Craig, carrying pistol, $25; same vs Col. Carrier, &c., for breach of the peace, $5; same vs Wood Sullivan, jr., carrying pistol, $25; same vs John Presser and James Louden, breach of the peace, $10.

The following prosecutions were continued: Com'lth vs Hogan Presser; same vs Laviua Waruer.

The following prosecutions were dismissed: Com'lth vs Joe West and Mart Staley; same vs John Peno.

John Satchwell, for carrying pistol, acquitted. The proof showing it was a candy pistol.

Com'lth vs Ab Slater, feloniously breaking into a dwelling house with the intent to commit a felony—verdict of not guilty.

Com'lth vs Henry Shafer and two others. Defendant Shafer came into court and was recognized for his appearance at the next term.

The Powers will case was continued again.

To the Hon. John W. Green, Circuit Judge:

The grand jury beg leave to report that we have been in session four days; that we have examined 45 witnesses and found 8 indictments; that we have examined the public buildings of the county, and find the court house, clerks' offices and jail in usual good condition.

The roof of the County Infirmary leaks, and we recommend that the County Court have some person who understands the business of roofing to examine the same and put the it in good condition.

All of which is respectfully reported.

JAS. T. GAINES, Foreman.

Three of the indictments returned were for felonies, the others being for minor offenses.

The grand jury was composed of young men, their ages being as follows: Jas. T. Gaines, E. S. West and William Clore each 48. B. H. Snyder, 34, J. D. Aylor, 32, Edward Holder, 55, John Ransler, 37, John Smith, 33, J. H. Clore, 42, Thos. Whitaker, 73, W. A. Gaines, 43, J. E. Ransom, 56. Average, 45¾ years.

The petit jurors were as follows. C. C. Hughes, W. F. Grant, Wm. Sutton, Jno. T. Aylor, John Clore, John Dennedee, T. A. Huey, C. P. Baker, John Williams, Henry Ross, Thos. Marshall, W. E. Dixon, W. T. Smith, J. H. Lawell, W. C. Brown, F. M. Callahan, W. M. Whitson, John G. Kennedy, J. E. Rouse, Marion McMullen, Lystra Aylor, Elijah Holton, J. H. Casey, J. H. Ryle.

Alice E. Hahn granted a divorce from Henry E. Hahn, and given the custody of her minor child Charles Edward Hahn.

W. H. Baker against Michael Ryan, &c. Judgment for plaintiff's debt, and land ordered sold to satisfy same.

Robert Adams vs Robert F. Adams, damage suit, dismissed without prejudice.

J. B Dixon vs the Cincinuati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific Railway—dismissed—settled.

The case of Samuel S. Morrow by his next best friend vs The Union News Co., was transferred to the United States Court.

Annie E. Snyder granted a divorce from W. J. Snyder, and given custody of her child Lora Ella Snyder.

B. F. Wainscolt vs G. M. Riley, &c., —judgment for plaintiff's debt and land ordered sold to satisfy same.

O. T. Porter vs Mary Castello—judgment for plaintiff's debt, and land ordered sold to satisfy same.

The Walton Perpetual Building and Loan Association vs John W. English —judgment for plaintiff's debt, and the mortgaged land ordered sold.

R S. Cowen vs F. J. Kassabaum—judgment for $104 75.

C. C. Sleet vs Marion Sleet—adjudged that the plaintiff is the owner of the land described in the petition.

The case of Chas. E. Stevenson vs G. B. Murphy for $5,000 damages for slander was continued.

The case of Mary A. Morrow against the Union News Co., after a two day's trial was decided Saturday afternoon, the jury giving the plaintiff a verdict for $800. Mrs. Morrow's son, Samuel, was engaged by the News Co., to sell papers, fruits. &c, on the Southern railroad, and while engaged in this business he was knocked under the train at Walton, and lost his left leg. The suit was for $1,500. The Morrow's live at Hamilton, Ohio.

The trial of Miller for the killing of his brother-in-law. Jackson, on the bar opposite Lawrenceburg, last September, was begun yesterday, the jury being obtained by noon. The trial will be completed some time to-day. Gray and Lassing represent the Commonwealth. and Ome Rogers and Sidney Gaines, the defendant.

The petit jurors, except those held by the Miller trial, were finally discharged yesterday at noon.

A TRIP THROUGH INDIANA.

What A Recorder Man Saw In The Hoosier State.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Last Saturday evening with pleasure and care, our destination we knew not where, I started on a visit to the Hoosier State. Arriving at the Aurora ferry I found the river in a very rough condition, caused by the high wind that was blowing from the West that day. Capt. House finally put on a full head of steam and started for the State where Republicans are thicker than flies around a leaky molasses barrel in August. Once or twice during our voyage the waves rolled so high that we could see the pebbles on the bottom of the river.

After shaking the water from our Sunday clothes (all we had) and the starch was taken out of them, we started for Hartford, a distance of ten miles up the beautifull Laughery Valley. While driving slowly along meditating on the sad vicissitudes and meditations of life, I was suddenly startled by a loud hurrah for Mark Hanna. I shook my head at the read-haired, wild looking disciple of McKinley and drove on.

I had gone about five miles when I came across a lot of men operating a steam corn-shucker. It is on the order of a thresher, and is fed in the same manner. It takes off all the shucks and silks and the ears of corn drop into a wagon bed. It also cuts the stalks and fodder in fine shreds, which make the finest feed for all kinds of stock. It will shuck 300 bushels a day.

The sun was going down behind Smilley's Hill, when I drove up to a friend's house, where I spent the night most pleasantly. The next morning, at nine o'clock, in company with several others, we started for Salem, a distance of eight miles over Smilley's Hill and down Thoomer's Hollow, we went till we came in sight of a church and hitching our horses, and the party repaired to the church, where Rev. Stout, of the Methodist persuasion preached an excellent sermon. After the sermon, and viewing an ancient cemetery near by, we drove to the residence of some friends about two miles further on, where we all partook of a sumptuous dinner. In our travels through Indiana we passed through as fine farming country as there is in the world. The farmers all seem to be prosperous and raise all kinds of crops, including tobacco, which grows to perfection.

WAYSIDE.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c

The Ladies' Mite Society of Burlington will give an oyster Supper at the Court House, December 24th, 1896 from 5½ to 11 o'clock p. m. Supper 25 cents. Everybody invited.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Coleman requests your presence at the marriage of their daughter
Lou,
to
Mr. W. W. Gaines,
at Bramlette Baptist Church,
Carroll County, Ky.,
Thursday, Dec., the twenty-fourth,
eighteen hundred and ninety-six,
at three o'clock p. m.

The Entertainment to be given at the Court House, Saturday evening, December 26th, promises to be quite a successful affair from all indications and reports. The program will include a Cornet Solo by J. M. Bagby, of Walton; Instrumental Music, piano and violin—Hallam and McKim. Selections upon the piano by Mr. P. R. Hallam, including an "Original March" The Erlanger Quartet. Vocal selections, Misses Beulah Gaines, Ella Duncan, Edna Cowen, Mr. E. S. McKim presenting the famous Terreador song from Carmen. Instrumental music by Herbert McKim and Miss Fannie Rice, also Prof. W. E. Cook. Recitations by Misses Fannie Willis and Euna Duncan, followed by Prof. C. F. Prior in the following selections: "At the Literary," (James Whitcomb Riley); "The Light from over the Range," (Bret Harte); "Too Late for the Train," (Anon); "Jack the Fisherman," (Elizabeth Stuart Phelps); "Haunted by a Song," (French); "Pyramue and Thisbe," (John G. Saxe); "Uphum's Heaven," (Fred E. Brooks); "The Chariot Race," (Lew Wallace); "Yankee Writ," (H. H. Ballard.) Entertainment will comence at 7:30 p. m., sharp. Admission, 15 cents.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. S. P. Brady has been quite sick of grippe for about two weeks.

Will Riddell came out from the city and spent a day or two last week.

Mr. J. H. Graves, of Covington, made the RECORDER a pleasant call last Saturday.

P. E. Cason has been confined to the house for several days with a very bad case of the grippe.

John P. Duncan, who has been in Vermont for some time, returned home last Thursday evening.

Ross Lodwick and Eddie Zinns, of Cincinnati, and Wood Riggs, of Pt. Pleasant, were guests at Judge Riddell's last Saturday.

Mrs. Alice Brown, of Pt. Pleasant, called on the RECORDER last Saturday. She is one of the paper's staunch friends and supporters.

L. W. Webb, of Home City, was in town Monday. He says the answer to the hog problem recently published is seventy pounds.

Hubert Gaines, Arthur Rouse, Geo W. Sandford and Miss Fannie Finch represented Burlington at the Erlanger ball last Friday night. They report a delightful time.

As Prof. Wm. Gaines was going down the Beemon hill on the Florence pike on his return to Walton, last Sunday, his bicycle threw him, giving him several ugly cuts and bruises on the face.

Last Wednesday about dusk, Ed Hawes was riding a young mare into town from the pasture. He was coming up Washington street at a pretty good gait and lost control of the animal, having only a haulter by which to guide her. As he approached the crossing from Blyth & Clutterbuck's store to the postoffice, he discovered Mrs. Dudley Rouse and Mrs. Charles McKim who were going south on the crossing; when he called to them to "look out," at the same time trying to prevent the unruly animal from making the turn, but all to no avail. The two ladies were struck and knocked down, but fortunately neither was seriously injured, although considerably bruised, Mrs. Rouse receiving the wrost injuries. The accident is very much regretted by the rider who did all he could to avoid it, and who at the time, was certain that one or both of the ladies had been seriously hurt.

Wm. F. GOETZE
Scientific
Optician.

Headquarters at Hornberger's Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.

Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

GEORGE BLYTH,
—REPRESENTING—
C. ROSS LODWICK,
Undertaker & Embalmer,
3035 W. 6th St. CINCINNATI, O.,

All calls promptly attended day or night, and all articles for FUNERAL PURPOSES furnished on short notice.
Burlington, Ky.

DR. A. B. HARRYMAN,
DENTIST.
Will be in Lawrenceburg, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.
At Aurora, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Practiced for 30 years.
No Poisonous Gasses Used.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent?
Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Andy Scheben,
DEALER IN ALL KINDS OF Wines, Liquors
AND BRANDY.
FOR THE HOLIDAYS.
Old Rocky Fork, Silver Wedding, Old Crow, McBrayer, Oscar Pepper and other brands
Will sell at 20 to 25 Cents less per bottle than the regular price.
SPECIAL BARGAINS:
Old Quaker Rye, 80 cts. per bottle.
Regular Price, $1.00.
Pennsylvania Rye, $1.25 per bottle.
Regular Price, $1.50.
LEXINGTON PIKE,
ERLANGER, - - - KY.
Near Town Hall.

NEW STOCK! LOW PRICES!
We invite attention to our newly arrived Stock of Fall and Winter Goods
—SUCH AS—
Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps, Jeans, Yarns, Woolens, Etc., at
LOWER PRICES
THAN EVER BEFORE.
Large Line of FRESH GROCERIES always on Hand.
Give us a Call W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

GET YOUR CHRISTMAS SUPPLIES
—AT THE—
CASH CHEAP GROCERY of
J. P. CARTER,
Cor. High & Short Sts., LAWRENCEBURG, IND.
Notice the Following Low Prices:

White Coffee Sugar, 21 lbs.	$1.00	New crop N. O. Molasses,	40c gal.
Stand. Gran. Sugar, 20 lbs...	1.00	Hominy Flake,	3c lb.
Rio Coffee	15c lb.	Broken Stick Candy,	6c lb.
Santos Coffee,	25c lb.	Hard Mixed Taffy,	7c lb.
Best Mocha & Java,	30c lb.	Pure French Creams,	10c lb.
Green Coffee,	20c lb.	Chocolate Creams,	15c lb.
Pure Leaf Lard,	6c lb.	Assorted Creams,	15c lb.
Best California Prunes,	10c lb.	Mixed Nuts (fancy)	12c lb.
Fine Evaporated Peaches,	10c lb.	New Citron,	25c lb.
4 pkgs. Polar Bear Tobacco,	15c.	All kinds Brooms,	9c up.
3 qts. Country Dried Beans,	10c.	Family Flour,	45c sack.
Best hand picked Beans,	5c qt.	Straight Fancy,	65c sack.
Golden Syrup Molasses,	20c gal.

Fresh Oysters Every Day.
Prize Given With Cash Purchases.
Ask for Card.

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,
DEALERS IN
PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,
63 and 65 Pike Street,
Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.
ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.
CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.
27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.
Covington, - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDERTAKER EMBALMER,

Corner Pike & Russell Streets,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,
Undertakers AND Embalmers,
OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,
COVINGTON, KY.
CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.
Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL
WHOLESALE AND
RETAIL GROCER,
GRASS SEED.
Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.
Tom Wilson, Salesman.

OLD PEOPLE TO SANTA CLAUS.

"What shall Santa Claus bring you?"
We say to the merry child.
"Oh, a lovely doll, with curly hair,
One that can shut its eyes,
And a new red sled, and candy, too,
And a watch that can really go."
Ah, me, it takes but little
To gladden these small hearts so.

"What do you want for Christmas?"
In turn the children cry.
But their elders only shake their heads,
With smiles that are half a sigh.
Nor dolls, nor sleds, nor sweetmeats may
Bring pleasure when the hair is gray.

Can you bring us health, good Santa,
Instead of toys, forsooth,
The buoyant steps, the sparkling eye
And the radiant dreams of youth?
The fame we've sought by patient toil
Through weary years to gain,
The fortune that has mocked us,
All we've striven for in vain?

Can you bring the love we long for,
And the faces we yearn to see?
Some are sundered by bitter thoughts
And some sleep peacefully.
Tell us quickly, Santa Claus,
Whisper it low to me,
If gifts like these we long for
Within thy store may be.
—Lillian G. Cobleigh, in Chicago Record.

THE PLUNKETTVILLE PLOT.

I'LL BE dinged to gosh!" remarked Uncle Sluman Able to his wife, Dorothy Jane, as they stood by the kitchen table of a December night paring and cutting up a great, knobby, sweet pumpkin, for pies. "I'll be dinged to gosh ef I wouldn't give a milkin' of the Jersey cow fer ther eyester stew termorrer down et the church jest ter know what's kem over thet boy Jake of ourn. He hain't seemed like hisself fer a year past; not thet I am perticalor anxious thet he should, fer ef ever a youngster hed a change of heart and manners withouten the help of a revival I believe ets him. He hessant given me a sassy word fer weeks end I a'most git lonesome and humsick to hear him saw me off shorter snatch me up sudden jest ter hev the chance ter say sunithin' aggravatin to him and call him an ongrateful scamp thet don't know when he's well off and continner riling him end not 'low him ter sass back, cos I'm his father. I reckon the boy hain't always hed a picnic and frosted cake and limming aid livin' end workin' fer me ef I am his dad, end me es should be his best friend end show him thet I love him the best next ter you. He made me ashamed o' myself end Jake's honestly greater then he thet taketh a city, es the Scripter says, fer when he ken govern his temper round me, es I see myself now, he's got the stuff in him wuth a hevin'. Somethin' 's kum over him—there's no blindin' yer eyes ter thet. He seems ter be livin' outside of hisself—fer other fokes like—fer me end you most perticulerly—es if et were a pleasure forgettin' of his own wants and notious. You've noticed, Dorothy—of course you hev—fer I've hearn you thank him a dozen times—how yer wood-box is allus filled without yer askin' end the water drawed, end the back stoop swept, and the chickens' drinkin' crocks kept full, end the aigs fetched in, end the sour milk kerried outen the cellar, end a snarl o' things done fer you what afore you allers hed ter do yerself er nag Jake and argy end coax till you'd druther ten times over do it yerself, end liker es not you'd hev ter then when alls said'n done.

"He's cheerful end chick about his work es a cat bird cheemering round her nest in a alder bush, es if he were gazin' continually onto a Christmas dinner, end he had a seat next to the turkey end brown gravy. 'Tother night I hearn him talkin' ter the cows when he didn't suspicion there was nobody aroun', end he told old Boxy thet he'd never kick her again ef she'd fergive him end said a lot o' things to the 'tother ones thet I cudn't hear, ner didn't want ter hear, fer I felt like I was stealin' list'nin'.

"Yer night I saw him end the Eaton boys end the schoolmaster settin' on the bridge over Sogger run. They was power busy talkin' about sumthin, specially the teacher, and when I kem up they looked kind of upsot like end dandered off about the crick end the crops end corn huskin', end eny gump could see et wasn't what was onter their minds.

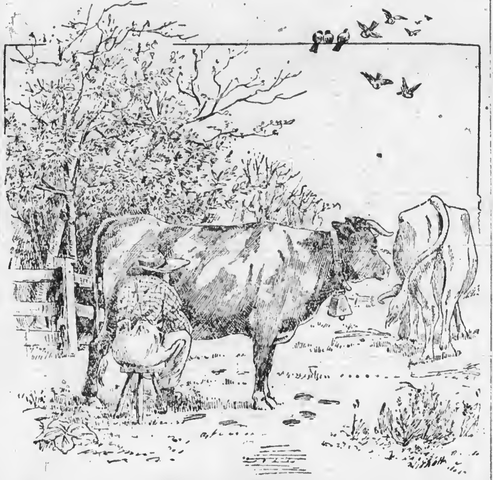
"A spell back—end not a long spell, either, I'd a sed they's a-plannin' some onruliness, some chice mischef that u'd make folks swear es air in the habit of swearin'. Some one would like es no find ther two-hoss wagin onto the top of ther barn termarrow mornin', er her smokehouse onto ther front stoop. But I hain't a-worryin' now. Them youngsters hed sumthin' onto ther minds besides larkin' end cussedness, end we shell see, mebbe, what we shell see, es some cute feller sed."

And with the last ring of pumpkin pared and cut up and put to stewing in the big pot on the kitchen stove Uncle Sluman took down the wooden bootjack, drew off his dusty, wrinkled stogies, hung up his wammus and vest and retired, leaving Aunt Dorothy Jane to undisturbed thought of her boy Jake and her pies.

Nothing very startling ever happened at Plunkettville. It was prone to deadlevelness in events. A monotony of situations was the rule. A funeral, a marriage with its attendant chivaree, a barn raising or a corn husking or a paring bee were the dizziest heights its occurrences attained, and between these events and dissipations there were likely to be long intervals of unbroken quiet, and so this recollection of mine partakes more of the pastoral than a story

It would be pleasant as well as profitable to write a good deal about this schoolmaster that Uncle Sluman Able saw on the bridge over Massogger run talking with the Eaton boys and Jake, but space forbids but one line of thought now. He was a sort of all-around prophet to the neighborhood who led the rather commonplace people into a land of better and wider living. Especially to the boys and the young men of his school hed he been of help in their present need, and it had been great. He possessed the genius of doing things instantly in season. He told them many helpful things, but not always pleasant ones. One fact he mentioned, without seeming to preach or being superior to the charge himself, was, that they were wasting a good many good opportunities for doing good. That, perhaps—and more than likely they had the idea, if they had even ever thought about it—that to do a good thing it must be a great thing—or great as the world counts it. He made them see that this was a mistake and urged them to think about it. That it was time that they were doing something worth while living for. They were big, hearty, healthy fellows, and ought to be ashamed to live just for the sake of living, with no aim or object in life higher than a husking bee or a spelling school frolic. That God might forget them just as they were forgetting their duty to Him and their neighbors. There were fair possibilities for every one of them, probably no very great ones; but no one could tell that. Every one of them had it in his power, in his reach, to do some good, and the quicker they looked around and set about it the better and the more manly they would be. He advised a bit of selfishness—that their work of well-doing, their charity, begin at home, emphatically at home—right inside their own foolish, unthinking, careless hearts, and from this starting point work out and widen and lengthen their field of usefulness and Christian labor. They would find that it would pay, and maybe in more ways than one. He would suggest that they get down to business without waiting.

And much more the schoolmaster said one time and another, but mostly along this line. There were many changes in the social and moral life of Plunkettville, and all were for the better. And the changes are still going on. The beginning was two years ago. There are things that would be profitable to speak of because of their suggestiveness in the way of help to other Plunkettvilles, but only one incident or experience will be mentioned, and that dates back to last Christmas, which with the schoolmaster as prime leader, ably assisted by Jake and the Eaton boys, and a half-dozen others, was rendered a bit dramatic, and it will be many years before this particular Christmas is forgotten.



TALKIN TER THE COWS.

Uncle Sluman Able was right in his conjecture that the boys on Sogger Run bridge were "up to sumthin'." The people were awakened at an unusually early hour that day by the rumbling of wagons over the hard, frozen ground, and scattered through the village and out into the country were a dozen teams hauling loads of something. One stopped in front of the little millinery shop over which little Miss Susie Prindle had presided for almost half a century. She, like her bonnet, was out of joint with the times; and even remote and happy-go-lucky Plunkettville had outgrown her fashions and the manner of her wares, and with old age cruelly asserting itself she was stranded in her little shop—poor, so very poor, and with a heart far oftener sad than cheerful. With her dainty nightcap still tied under her chin, she pulled the window shade aside—just a little cautious mite—to see a tub filled to its topmost hoop being handed down from a cord of hickory wood cut surely for her stove, for no other stove in the village was as small as hers, and this, when piled up neatly on her porch, was again crowned with the wash day hamper. What little Miss Prindle found under the white linen tablecloth need not be told, but, kneeling by her old chintz-covered rocking chair, the room warm and cheerful with its crackling, laughing fire, and her table with both its leaves spread to hold its bounties, she thanked God, with her grateful tears falling on the cushion, for the good friends who had so kindly remembered her and made her so thankful this Christmas.

Two wagons drove up in front of the old minister's house. One carried a load of wood which was ranked almost before he knew it in the leaky lean-to next to his leaky kitchen, and the contents of the other wagon were carried into the house through the front door. There was everything to eat—Christmas and Sunday dinners enough for a whole year almost—and while he was making a woeful failure of trying not to cry and his sweet old wife was crying outright and yearning to thank some one, the door softly closed and they were left alone with their happiness and abundance. Want had walked very close beside them for many years, and lives of cheerful, prayerful labor and sacrifice had their reward in part in neglect, but that Christmas day all bitterness and sadness were forgotten, and when the new preacher asked the old one to lead in prayer that morning it was said there had never been such a supplication as his offered before in the new church. It sanctified and rededicated it.

Three wagons almost surrounded the poor little house of Widow Green. She was the poorest of all the needy in the village, and, according to human nature judges, the least deserving. Her life had not been altogether good, but with a loveless old age, abandoned by her children and forsaken by her friends, she seemed an object too pitiful for blame or reproach. Two heaping loads of wood were piled up about her door and an abundant store of provisions carried into the house and accepted in silence.

Everywhere in the village and country good cheer was carried that day. Not one poor table was left ungarnished of some choice Christmas treat. The teams threaded their way here and there, and each new start they trotted the easier. There was never such a day in Plunkettville or Pulver township before—so much happiness and good feeling, mingled with a pleasant mystery. The new preacher heard about it and rang the bell that night himself for an extra service at half-past seven and preached without notes from the text: "Give and it shall be given unto you." He had never preached like this before, every word seeming to come right from his heart. He spoke of the good Samaritan, and of the giving with the right hand without the knowledge of the left. And this last appeared as an especially applicable text, as it was not then and is not now fully and satisfyingly known to a certainty how this peculiarly beautiful Christmas episode was brought about—who thought of it, or suggested it, or prompted it, and just who carried it out. It is referred to as the Plunkettville plot, and to the uninitiated is suggestive of something dark and tragic; but to everyone outside of those concerned in it it is more of a mystery than to Uncle Sluman Able.—Mrs. Ephraim Burdick, in Ram's Horn.

CRUEL FATE.

Landlady—Well, Mr. Hardup, what do you expect to get in your stocking this Christmas?

Hardup—Same as last Christmas—holes.—Detroit Free Press.

Simply Delighted.

He (the day before Christmas)—I saw your father this morning.

She—Indeed. How did he look?

He—Tired. Said he had been tramping all over town.

She—Blue?

He—Intensely so.

She—Cynical?

He—Very.

She—Tired of life?

He—Never saw him so much so.

She—Oh, I am so glad!

He—Glad! What, glad that he is unhappy?

She—Yes. Certainly; because now I know that he has spent all his money on my Christmas presents.—N. Y. Truth.

Why She Gave It.

He—Precious, did you give me this beautiful umbrella because you love me?

She—No, darling. I gave it to you because I am tired of lending you mine.—Exchange

WINTER HOUSE PLANTS.

How to Keep Them Fresh and Green Through Snowy Days.

Very few housekeepers, naturally ambitious to beautify their rooms in winter with foliage plants, recognize that like cats or dogs, canaries, or children, palms and ferns require a time for becoming naturalized and happy in their new homes.

A fern or palm brought in the most vigorous health from the florist's greenhouse will often droop and pine in genuine home sickness, and like young animals or birds, plants thrive most happily in each other's company. It is, therefore, advisable to begin a bit of window observatory, not with one, but let us say with three plants. The best selection is usually a sturdy India rubber tree. Fischus elasticus, is what the florists call it; a parlor palm, that is, an asidistria lurida, and a big pot of zebra plant, Eulalia japonica zebrina, which you can tell by its long lovely striped green and white leaves that grow in an elegant cascade.

All of these are recommended because they are hardy, easily kept clean, and need potting only once a year. They will live, too, in a room where gas is burned, where an occasional pipe or cigarette is smoked, and where there is a fire. In turn for so much sturdy good nature, they must have not only care, but that given regularly every day. The woman who complains that she can't raise house plants is simply negligent of them. She moves them about too much, is not always heedful of their need of water, permits the room they sit in to become very cold at night, and then very hot during the day. Probably, too, she does not cover them up at night, nor in any way protect them from dust.

Happily, where so many sins of omission and commission are committed the poor things die quickly, and so escape their wretched existence. If you intend to keep plants put them in a window that has double sashes and where the greatest amount of sunshine strikes for the longest time every day. Roll the shades high and drape the curtains back far and only for the liveliest necessity move the pots. Every day, at as nearly the same hour as you can manage, water these household pets. They will be grateful for the regularity, and unfailingly once a week give them a bath. That is, with a sponge and clear tepid water gently pass over the leaves. Use many basins of water for this, and as far as you can protect them; don't let a cold draught strike through their foliage.

A sudden chill often blasts an otherwise healthy plant, and just as important is it to protect them from superfluous dust. When cleaning day comes around throw big bags of old muslin or dimity over the green things, and as plants are usually kept in a deep window, be sure at night to draw down the shades and portieres, where the gas is lighted.

The portieres should be of some heavy dark stuff to keep out the light, heat and possibly tobacco smoke. Before leaving the room for the night one window, as distant as possible from that in which the plants sit, ought to be pulled down at the top, to let in fresh air, while the closed curtains will still keep them warm enough. Then, not until she has made her fire, cleaned the grate and done her dusting for the day, should the maid push back the portieres and pull up the window shades.

Under such circumstances the following plants will gayly flourish in a sitting or dining room, or bedroom, where every day plenty of heat is supplied during the winter.

There is the fan palm and its dwarf mate, called C. Lumilis, the Seaforthia elegans with handsome fern-like leaves, Australian cabbage palm and familia Kentia Fosleriana, silky Australian oak and Eucalyptus globules, all worthy of cultivation in one's conservatory, all willing to flourish, if their needs are considered, and wonderful beautifiers of one's home.

Another hardy foliage plant is the Centaurea ragusina, with silver frosted leaves that serve on occasions to decorate the center table, but the list is really almost endless, though those given above are enough to fill an embrasure and answer for green and refreshing decoration the year through.—St. Louis Republic.

FOR SLIM ARMS.

Sleeves That Make Thin Ones Look Plump.

In the case of a slim arm the circular trimming is the best, as it tends to add to the apparent size, while a too plump arm may be made more slender by the upright trimmings.

A favorite sleeve for the plain cloth gown, which admits of little garniture, has the arm fitted quite snugly almost to the shoulder, narrowing down to absolute tightness at the wrist, where it spreads over the hand in two deep points. The only fullness of the sleeve puffs out at the shoulder, smartly—not at all in a drooping way, but aggressively stiff, as if making up for the lack of quantity. Often this style of sleeve is made up in velvet for a cloth gown, and finished at the wrist by a soft frill of yellow lace. A far more dressy sleeve is shown in a style suitable for a handsome dinner or reception gown, where more or less elaborateness is employed. Over a tight lining of silk is puckered thin mousseline de soie in black or white from the puff which tops the shoulder to the frill finishing the wrist. The puff is made of dress material, and is made to stand out as stiffly as possible, finished oddly by a huge loop and long ends of the silk stuff caught at the top of the shoulder by a fancy button and allowed to flutter away at the back. Twists of velvet, fastened with fancy buttons, finish the bottom of the shoulder puff and the wrist.—San Francisco Chronicle.

—In Paris there are scores of restaurants where horse flesh is regularly served as an article of food, and the use of this meat has recently extended to many other cities of Europe.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

THE LAZY FARM HORSE.

How to Make Him Draw Exactly His Part of the Load.

The question is often hotly discussed whether, when two horses work on an "evener" without stay-chains, the lazy horse that lags behind thereby draws just one-half of the load, or more, or less than half. The truth is that either of the three may be true, according to how the evener and clevises are arranged.

1.—If all three clevis holes, a, b and c, are equally distant from each other and are on a straight line, and if the clevises play freely on their pins, each horse will draw exactly half of the load, no matter which one is ahead. Fig. 1 shows this. If the line of the clevis holes, a, b and c, is not at right angles with the central line of draft, m n, both horses will be nearer that line, but both will be equally distant from it, drawing in lines a p and c q, parallel with m n. Hence each will draw half of the load.

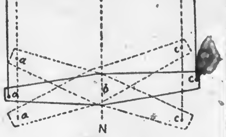


FIG. 1.

2.—But if, as in Fig. 2, the three clevises are rigid (as sometimes on mowing machines) and the central point of draft (or fulcrum), b, is behind, and the fulcrums, a and c, are in front of the evener, then when both horses are even, as in the upper position shown in Fig. 2, each draws half. But when the lazy horse at c lags behind (middle of Fig. 2), he throws his line of draft, c q, further from the middle line of draft, m n, than is a p. That is, the lazy horse has by his laziness given himself the long end of the lever.

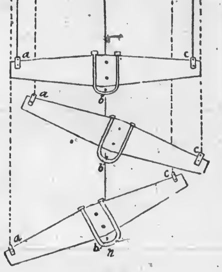

FIG. 2.

If, however, the free horse lags at a (bottom of Fig. 2), his line of draft, a r, is thrown further off from the center line, m n. That is, he gets the long end of the lever. For, in this last case (bottom of Fig. 2) a line drawn from a to b would make a right angle with the line, m n, while a line from b to c would form a sharp angle with the center line of draft, m n, and of course c would be nearer to that line.

3.—But if the center hole, b, for the main clevis, were ahead of the middle line, and the end holes, a and c, were behind, the case in Fig. 2 would be exactly reversed, and the lazy horse by lagging behind would give himself the short end of the lever and must do the most work. This can be inferred from Fig. 2 without a separate cut to illustrate it.

Of course, the only correct way is to have the three holes (fulcrums or points of draft), a b c, exactly on a line. Then each horse draws exactly his half of the load, no matter whether he forges ahead or lags behind.—Ohio Farmer.

American Corn for Mexico.

Owing to the removal by the Mexican government of import duties on corn for the two states of Vera Cruz and Tamaulipas, and owing to the scarcity of grain there, large shipments are being made from this country, chiefly via Mobile, Ala., which has facilities for shipping to Mexican ports. One steamship company has already carried 700,000 bushels, and for August and September the total reached 1,500,000 bushels. What these figures mean is shown by comparison with the total shipments to Mexico for the year ending June 30, 1896, the aggregate being 1,677,653 bushels. In the year previous the total was only 179,611 bushels. The corn sells for $2.50 a bushel in Mexican money.

Economizing with Manure.

It never pays to stint the manure dressing for any crop that requires much labor to grow it. All the labor is made more effective in proportion as the soil is made more fertile. In other words, on rich land crops that require most labor may be grown with profit, while on poor soil the balance will be on the loss side of the account. The proper idea of economizing with manure is to apply it where it will most aid in increasing soil fertility. This is in every case where a part of the benefit of the manure will be soon applied to growing a large clover crop.

Corn is the greatest of all silage crops, though sorghum is good, and clover, peas and soja beans make fine silage, and a mixture of these with corn very much improves the quality of that silage. But no other crop yields so large a crop or can be so universally and so cheaply grown as corn.

SILAGE EXPERIENCE.

Results Obtained at Various State Experiment Stations.

According to the agricultural department at Washington a compilation of experiments from various experiment stations shows the following results:

The Massachusetts station found mixed silage of corn and soja beans very fine. Vermont station made a superior silage of oats and vetch; also of oats and peas.

Silage produced more milk at the Ohio station, more butter at the Pennsylvania station, and more mutton at the Michigan station than beets. Even when there is a loss of 20 per cent. in the feeding value of silage it is a cheaper feed than roots. The Wisconsin station preserves silage at a loss of only eight per cent. of its feeding value. The loss in curing fodder is never less than 20 per cent.

The Pennsylvania station found silage and cured fodder about equally digestible. Kansas station grew 100 tons of silage on ten acres and it sustained 25 head of cattle 192 days—a result which it is thought could not be attained with ten acres of cured fodder.

Use the largest variety of corn that will mature before frost. Experiments at the Pennsylvania station show that as corn approches maturity the amount of nutriment it contains and the digestibility both increase very rapidly. The total yield of the digestible food by the matured crop was two or three times that of the same crop in the silk and 36 per cent. greater than when the ears began to glaze. The Minnesota station found that 100 pounds of silage from the northern and southern and sweet corn, all contained about the same feeding value.

Silage is distinctively a cattle feed, but the Kansas station finds it not good for feeding bulls. It may be fed in moderation to horses, pigs, poultry and sheep, but sour silage is dangerous to sheep.

There has been some complaint that silage gives milk an unpleasant flavor. This is probably due to sour and decaying silage. The Kansas station found that if the silage be fed just after milking, instead of before, this disagreeable flavor disappears.

TALK ABOUT COLTS.

Winter Is an Excellent Season to Begin Their Education.

Be sure that the colts have exercise. Standing upon a board floor cooped up in the barn all the time is very bad for both health and feet. A warm, somewhat sheltered paddock, in which the young horses (and for that matter the older ones as well that do not get exercise on the road), may frolic and frisk about is quite indispensable to every well-ordered stable.

There is no better way to get a horse badly foundered than to drive him fast enough to make him warm and then leave him in a cold draughty place without protection. But you certainly do not want your horse foundered. Therefore, see that he is well protected by a woolen blanket and not very sweaty or hot when brought to a stand.

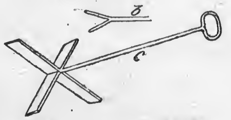
The sooner a colt's education begins the better it will be. This winter will be a good time to handle the young stock. Get them well acquainted with their trainer. Put a harness on them and walk them about, thus giving them some idea of what is to be expected of them in future. Do not persist too long at one time. Short lessons are most satisfactory to both colt and master. Never tire the pupil, especially at the beginning of training.

Kindness is of the greatest value. A lump of sugar, a small potato, or a bit of carrot will work wonders with both colts and old horses.—National Stockman.

CHEAP ROOT CUTTER.

Said to Work Just as Well as the More Expensive Implements.

A good root cutter that can be made by any country blacksmith is shown herewith. The steel for blades, a, is one-fourth by one and one-fourth by sixteen inches; the blades are drawn to an edge and split as at b. A five-eighths inch rod is welded to the blades and bound securely. A handle is made on the rod before being attached to the blades. It is three feet long. The blades can be sharpened on a grindstone. I can dump a bushel of roots in a tight wooden box and cut them fine enough for sheep in five minutes.—T. White, in Farm and Home.



EXCELLENT ROOT CUTTER.

Treatment of Frosted Combs.

When a bird becomes frosted on the comb (frozen comb), the remedy is to keep it in some place where the wind cannot reach it. Fanciers protect such tall-comb breeds as Leghorns by placing choice specimens in a barrel at night, having a block of wood in a barrel for a roost. The first thing to do is to swab the injured comb with glycerine. The next day the comb should be anointed with an ointment composed of equal parts of ichthyol and lanoline, which should be repeated every day. Healing is a slow process, and only relief from pain can be afforded, as the comb may slough off entirely. It is an advantage to keep a fowl which has been frosted and healed, as it will be less liable to be injured the succeeding winter.—Farm and Fireside.

It is estimated that rusts and smuts cause an average annual loss of $50,000 to the farmers of North Carolina.

The best packing for a chaff hive is good wheat chaff.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

The Noted Preacher Discourses on the Question of Every-Day Religion.

He Tells Some Plain Truths That Sound Harsh and Must Be True—He Spares Nothing of That Make-Believe Religion Which is All Talk

The text chosen by Dr. Talmage Sunday was James ii., 20: "Faith without works is dead."

The Roman Catholic Church has been charged with putting too much stress upon good works and not enough upon faith. I charge Protestanism with putting not enough stress upon good works as connected with salvation. Good works will never save a man, but if a man have not good works he has no real faith and no genuine religion. There are those who depend upon the fact that they are all right inside, while their conduct is wrong outside. Their religion, for the most part, is made up of talk—vigorous talk, fluent talk, boastful talk, perpetual talk. They will entertain you by the hour in telling you how good they are. They come up to such a higher life that they have no patience with ordinary Christians in the plain discharge of their duty. As near as I can tell, this ocean craft is mostly sail and very little tonnage. Foretopmast stay-sail, foretopmast studding sail, maintopsail, mizzen-top-sail—everything from flying jib to mizzen-spanker, but making no useful voyage. Now the world has got tired of this, and it wants a religion that will work into all the circumstances of life. We do not want a new religion, but the religion applied in all possible directions.

Yonder is a river with steep and rocky banks, and it roars like a young Niagara as it rolls on over its rough bed. It does nothing but talk about itself all the way from its source in the mountain to the place where it empties into the sea. The banks are so steep that the cattle can not come down to drink. It does not run one fertilizing rill into the adjoining field. It has not one grist mill or factory on either side. It sulks in wet weather with chilling fogs. No one cares when that river is born among the rocks, and no one cares when it dies into the sea. But yonder is another river and it mosses its banks with the warm tides, and it rocks with floral lullaby the water lilies asleep on its bosom. It invites herds of cattle and flocks of sheep and coveys of birds to come there and drink. It has three grist mills on one side and six cotton factories on the other. It is the wealth of 200 miles of luxuriant farms. The birds of heaven chanted when it was born in the mountains, and the ocean shipping will press in from the sea to hail it as it comes down from the Atlantic coast. The one river is a man who lives for himself. The other river is a man who lives for others.

Do you know how the site of the ancient city of Jerusalem was chosen? There were two brothers who had adjoining farms. The one brother had a large family, the other had no family. The brother with a large family said: "There is my brother with no family; he must be lonely, and I will try to cheer him up, and I will take some of the sheaves from my field in the night-time and set them over on his farm and say nothing about it." The other brother said: "My brother has a large family and it is very difficult for him to support them, and I will help him along, and I will take some of the sheaves from my farm in the night-time and set them over on his farm and say nothing about it." So the work of transference went on night after night, and night after night; but every morning things seemed to be just as they were, for though sheaves had been subtracted from each farm, sheaves had also been added, and the brothers were perplexed and could not understand. But one night the brothers happened to meet while making this generous transference, and the spot where they met was so sacred that it was chosen as the site of the city of Jerusalem. If that tradition should prove unfounded it will nevertheless stand as a beautiful allegory setting forth the idea that wherever a kindly and generous and loving act is performed, that is the spot for some temple of commemoration.

I have often spoken to you about faith, but this morning I speak to you about works, for "faith without works is dead." I think you will agree with me in the statement that the great want of this world is more practical religion. We want practical religion to go into all merchandise. It will supervise the labeling of goods. It will not allow a man to say that a thing was made in one factory when it was made in another. It will not allow the merchant to say that watch was manufactured in Geneva, Switzerland, when it was manufactured in Massachusetts. It will not allow the merchant to say that wine came from Maderia when it came from California. Practical religion will walk along by the store shelves and tear off the tags that make misrepresentation. It will not allow the merchant to say that is pure coffee, when dandelion root and chiccory and other ingredients go into it. It will not allow him to say that is pure sugar when there are in it sand and ground glass.

When practical religion gets its full swing in the world it will go down the street, and it will come to that shoe store and rip off the fictitious sole of many a fine-looking pair of shoes and show that it is pasteboard sandwiched between the sound leather. And this practical religion will go right into a grocery store and it will pull out the plugs of all the adulterated sirups, and it will dump into the ash barrel in front of the store the Cassia bark that is sold for cinnamon, and the brick that is sold for cayenne pepper, and it will shake out the Prussian blue from tea leaves, and it will sift from the flour plaster of paris and bonedust and soapstone, and it will, by chemical analysis separate the one quart of water from the few honest drops of cow's milk, and it will throw out the live animalcules from the brown sugar.

There has been so much adulteration of articles of food that it is an amazement to me that there is a healthy man or woman in America. Heaven only knows what they put into the spices and into the sugars and into the butter and into the apothecary drug. But chemical analysis and the microscope have made wonderful revelations. The board of health in Massachusetts analyzed a great amount of what was called pure coffee and found in it not one particle of coffee. In England there is a law that forbids the putting of alum in bread. The public authorities examined 51 packages of bread and found them all guilty. The honest physician, writing a prescription, does not know that it may bring death instead of health to his patient, because there may be one of the drugs weakened by a cheaper article, and another drug may be in full force, and so the prescription may have just the opposite effect intended. Oil of wormwood warranted pure from Boston was found to have 41 per cent. of resin and alcohol and chloroform. Scammony is one of the most valuable medical drugs. It is very rare, very precious. It is the sap or the gum of a tree or bush in Syria. The root of the tree is exposed, an incision is made in the root, and then shells are placed at this incision to catch the sap or the gum as it exudes. It is very precious, this scammony. But the peasant mixes it with a cheaper material; then it is taken to Aleppo, and the merchant there mixes it with a cheaper material; then it comes on to the wholesale druggist in London or New York, and he mixes it with a cheaper material; then it comes to the retail druggist, and he mixes it with cheaper material, and by the time the poor sick man gets it into his bottle it is ashes and chalk and sand, and some of what has been called pure scammony after analysis has been found to be no scammony at all.

Now, practical religion will yet rectify all this. It will go to those hypocritical professors of religion who got a "corner" in corn and wheat in Chicago and New York, sending prices up and up, until they were beyond the reach of the poor, keeping these breadstuffs in their own hands, or controlling them until the prices, going up and up, they were, after awhile, ready to sell, and they sold out, making themselves millionaires in one or two years —trying to fix the matter up with the Lord by building a church or a university or a hospital—deluding themselves with the idea that the Lord would be so pleased with the gift He would forget the swindle. Now, as such a man may not have any liturgy in which to say his prayers I will compose for him one which he is practically making: "Oh, Lord, we, by getting a 'corner' in breadstuffs, swindled the people of the United States out of $10,000,000, and made suffering all up and down the land, and we would like to compromise this matter with Thee. Thou knowest it was a scaly job, but then it was smart. Now, here we compromise it. Take one per cent. of the profits, and with that one per cent. you can build an asylum for these poor miserable ragmuffins of the street, and I will take a yacht and go to Europe, forever and ever. Amen."

Ah! my friends, if a man hath got his estate wrongfully, and he build a line of hospitals and universities from here to Alaska, he can not atone for it. After awhile this man who has been getting a "corner" in wheat dies, and then Satan gets a "corner" in him. He goes into a great, long black Friday. According to Wall street parlance he wiped others out, and now he is himself wiped out. No collaterals on which to make a spiritual loan. Eternal defalcation.

But this practical religion will not only rectify all merchandise, it will also rectify all mechanism and all toil. A time will come when a man will work as faithfully by the job as he does by the day. You say when a thing is slightingly done: "Oh, that was done by the job." You can tell by the swiftness or slowness with which a hackman drives whether he is hired by the hour or by the excursion. If he is hired by the hour he drives very slowly, so as to make as many hours as possible. If he is hired by the excursion he whips up the horses so as to get around and get another customer. All styles of [illegible] have to be inspected. Ships inspected. Horses inspected, machinery inspected. Boss to watch the journeymen. Capitalist coming down unexpectedly to watch the boss. Conductor of a city car sounding the punch bell to prove his honesty as a passenger hands to him a clipped nickel. All things must be watched and inspected. Imperfections in the wood covered with putty. Garments warranted to last until you put them on the third time. Shoddy in all kinds of clothing. Chromos. Pinchbeck. Diamonds for a dollar and a half. Bookbindery that holds on until you read the third chapter. Spavined horses, by skillful dose of jockeys, for several days made to look spry. Wagon tires poorly put on. Horses poorly shod. Plastering that cracks without any provocation and falls off. Plumbing that needs to be plumbed. Imperfect car wheel that halts the whole train with a hot box. So little practical religion in the mechanism of the world. I tell you, my friends, the law of man will never rectify these things. It will be the all-pervading influence of the practical religion of Jesus Christ that will make the change for the better.

Yes, this practical religion will also go into agriculture, which is proverbially honest, but needs to be rectified, and it will keep the farmer from sending to the city market veal that is too young to kill, and when the farmer farms on shares, it will keep the man who does the work from making his half three-fourths, and it will keep the farmer from building his post and rail fence on his neighbor's premises, and it will make him shelter his cattle in the winter storm, and it will keep the old elder from working on Sunday afternoon in the new ground where nobody sees him. And this practical religion will hover over the house, and over the barn, and over the field, and over the orchard.

Yes, this practical religion of which I speak will come into the learned professions. The lawyer will feel his responsibility in defending innocence and arraigning evil and expounding the law, and it will keep him from charging for briefs he never wrote, and for pleas he never made, and for percentages he never earned, and from robbing widow and orphan because they are defenseless. Yes, this practical religion will come into the physician's life, and he will feel his responsibility as the conservator of the public health, a profession honored by the fact that Christ Himself was a physician. And it will make him honest, and when he does not understand a case he will say so, not trying to cover up lack of diagnosis with ponderous technicalities, or send the patient to a reckless drug store because the apothecary happens to pay a percentage on the prescriptions sent. And this practical religion will come to the schoolteacher, making her feel her responsibility in preparing our youth for usefulness and for happiness and for honor, and will keep her from giving a sly box to a dull head, chastising him for what he can not help, and sending discouragement all through the after years of a lifetime. This practical religion will also come to newspaper men, and it will help them in the gathering of news, and it will help them in setting forth the best interests of society, and it will keep them from putting the sins of the world in larger type than its virtues, and its mistakes than its achiements, and it will keep them from misrepresenting interviews with public men, and from starting suspicions that never can be allayed, and will make them stanch friends of the oppressed instead of the oppressor.

Yes, this religion, this practical religion, will come and put its hand on what is called good society, elevated society, successful society, so that people will have their expenditures within their income, and they will exchange the hypocritical "not at home" for the honest explanation, "too tired," or "too busy to see you," and will keep innocent reception from becoming intoxicated conviviality.

Yea, there is great opportunity for missionary work in what are called the successful classes of society. In some of the cities it is no rare thing now to see a fashionable woman intoxicated in the street, or on the rail car, or the restaurant. The number of fine ladies who drink too much is increasing. Perhaps you may find her at the reception in most exalted company, but she has made too many visits to the wineroom, and now her eye is glassy, and after awhile her cheek is unnaturally flushed, and then she falls into fits of excruciating laughter about nothing, and then she offers sickening flatteries, telling some homely man how well he looks, and then she is helped into the carriage, and by the time the carriage gets to her home it takes the husband and the coachman to get her up the stairs. The report is, she was taken suddenly ill at a german. Ah! no. She took too much champagne and mixed liquors, and got drunk. That was all.

Yea, this practical religion will have to come in and fix up the marriage relation in America. There are members of churches who have too many wives and too many husbands. Society needs to be expurgated, and washed, and fumigated, and Christianized. We want this practical religion not only to take hold of what are called the lower classes, but to take hold of what are called the higher classes. The trouble is that people have an idea they can do all their religion on Sunday with a hymnbook, and prayer book and liturgy, and some of them sit in church rolling up their eyes as though they were ready for translation, when their Sabbath is bounded on all sides by an inconsistent life, and while you are expecting to come out from under their arms the wings of an angel, there came out from their foreheads the horns of a beast.

There has got to be a new departure in religion. I do not say a new religion. Oh, no; but the old religion brought to new appliances. In our time we have the daguerreotype, and the ambrotype, and the photograph; but it is the same old sun, and these arts are only new appliances of the old sunlight. So this glorious Gospel is just what we want to photograph the image of God on one soul, and daguerrotype it on another soul. Not a new Gospel, but the old Gospel put to new work. In our time we have had the telegraphic invention, and the telephonic invention, and the electric light invention; but they are all children of old electricity, an element that the philosophers have a long while known much about. So this electric Gospel needs to flash its light on the eyes, and ears, and souls of men, and to become a telephonic medium to make the deaf hear; a telegraphic medium to dart invitation and warning to all nations; an electric light to illumine the eastern and western hemispheres. Not a new Gospel, but the old Gospel doing a new work.

Now you say: "That is a very beautiful theory, but is it possible to take one's religion into all the avocations and businesses of life?" Yes, and I will give you some specimens. Medical doctors who took their religion into every-day life: Dr. John Abercrombie, of Aberdeen, the greatest Scottish physician of his day, his book on "Diseases of the Brain and Spinal Cord," no more wonderful than his book on "The Philosophy of the Moral Feelings," and often kneeling at the bedside of his patients to commend them to God in prayer. Dr. John Brown, of Edinburgh, immortal as an author, dying under the benediction of the sick of Edinburgh, myself remembering him as he sat in his study in Edinburgh talking to me about Christ, and his hope of Heaven. And a score of Christian family physicians in Washington just as good as they were.

GOT EVEN WITH THE CLERK.

How a Country Guest Made the Hotel Official Pay Up.

A country guest at a certain London hotel, having a dread of pickpockets, went to the clerk and handed him a £20 note to be put in the safe, says Comic Cuts. Asking for it next day he was thunderstruck when the functionary to whom he had given the money coolly denied any recollection of the matter. Whereupon the countryman went to a lawyer.

"Get another £20 note," said the lawyer, "and go, accompanied by a friend, back to the hotel. Apologize to the clerk for your mistake. Say it was a defect of memory. Attribute it to absent-mindedness. Deposit the second £20 note in the presence of your friend and come back to me."

The mystified ruralist observed instructions to the very letter.

"Now," said the lawyer, "go back alone to the clerk and ask him for your £20 note. Knowing that your friend saw him receive it he will give you back the second one. Then take yor friend with you next day, approach the clerk, ask him boldly for that £20 note and as there was no witness to your receipt of the second note he will be forced to return that also."

The ruse proved completely successful, much to the gratification of the countryman.

PRINCE BECOMES A PRIEST.

Unfortunate Attachment for Princess Fedora, of Schleswig-Holstein.

Prince Max of Saxony, who has recently taken up his abode in London as a Catholic priest at the Church of St. Boniface, Union street, Whitechapel, is the fourth son of Prince George, duke of Saxony, and nephew of the king of Saxony, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. When he became a priest he formally renounced all his rights to the throne to which his father is heir. Prince Max is only 26 years of age and he quitted the German army to enter a monastery a few years ago.

His determination to retire from the world and to enter the priesthood is said to be due to an unfortunate attachment he entertained for Princess Fedora of Schleswig-Holstein. By his modesty he has become very popular among the poor in the east end. His reply to the cheers raised in his honor upon the occasion of his first visit to the "Gesellenverein," or workingmen's club, attached to the mission, was:

"I come among you not as a prince, but simply as a priest. I am a worker myself for, to my mind, no honor is so great as that of labor."

Holiday Excursions on the C., H. & D. Ry.

For the Christmas and New Year's holidays agents of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway will sell tickets from points on their own line to points on lines in the Central Passenger Committee territory, at one and one-third fare for the round trip. Tickets will be on sale December 24, 25 and 31, 1896, and January 1, 1897, good to return until January 4, inclusive. Special arrangements will be made for students of colleges, seminaries, etc., returning home for the holidays. The lines over which the C., H. & D. Ry will sell are as follows: Ann Arbor road; Baltimore and Ohio, west of Pittsburgh; Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern; Chesapeake and Ohio, west of and including Kanawha; Chicago and Erie; Grand Trunk railway; Chicago and W. Mich.; Cincinnati, Jackson and Mackinaw; Detroit, Lansing and Northern; Evansville and Terre Haute; Findlay, Ft. Wayne and Western; Flint and Pere Marquette; Ft. Wayne, Cincinnati and Louisville; Indiana, Decatur and Western; Lake Shore and Michigan Southern; Cincinnati, Lebanon & Northern; Cincinnati, Portsmouth & Virginia; Cincinnati & Muskingum Valley; Cleveland, Akron & Columbus; Cleveland, Canton & Southern; Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis; Columbus, Sandusky & Hocking; Dayton, Lebanon & Cincinnati; Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo; Dayton & Union; Louisville, New Albany & Chicago; Lake Erie & Western; Michigan Central; New York, Chicago & St. Louis; N. Y., P. & O. Division Erie; Norfolk & Western, in Ohio; Northern Ohio; Ohio Central; Ohio Southern; Pennsylvania Lines, west of Pittsburgh; Peoria, Decatur & Evansville; Vandalia Line; Wabash Line; Wheeling & Lake Erie.

"No, MY dear, it's no use talking, I shan't give up smoking until I'm dead." His Wife (bitterly)—"What leads you to believe that you will give it up then?"—Brooklyn Life.

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI. Dec. 19.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	$ 2 25	@	2 75
Select butchers	3 75	@	4 15
CALVES—Fair to good light	4 75	@	5 50
HOGS—Common	3 15	@	3 20
Mixed packers	3 20	@	3 35
Light shippers	3 25	@	3 40
SHEEP—Choice	2 75	@	3 15
LAMBS—Good to choice	4 25	@	4 50
FLOUR—Winter family	3 60	@	3 90
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	94½
No. 3 red		@	90
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	21¾
Oats—No. 2		@	20
Rye—No. 2		@	37½
HAY—Prime to choice	10 50	@	10 75
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@	8 62½
Lard—Prime steam		@	3 65
BUTTER—Choice dairy	15	@	19
Prime to choice creamery		@	22
APPLES—Per bbl	1 50	@	1 75
POTATOES—New, per bbl	90	@	1 00
	NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 90	@	5 15
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@	92½
No. 2 red	86⅛	@	[illegible]
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@	28¼
OATS—Mixed		@	22
PORK—New mess	9 75	@	10 50
LARD—Western		@	4 12½
	CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patents	4 50	@	4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. red		@	88¼
No. 2 Chicago spring	76¼	@	76½
CORN—No. 2	22⅛	@	22⅜
OATS—No. 2		@	17
PORK—Mess	6 75	@	6 80
LARD—Steam	3 75	@	3 77½
	BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	4 50	@	4 85
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@	90¼
Corn—Mixed	27¼	@	27½
Oats—Mixed	22½	@	23
LARD—Refined		@	11 00
PORK—Mess		@	16 85
CATTLE—First quality	3 90	@	4 20
HOGS—Western	3 60	@	3 80
	INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@	88
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	20
OATS—No. 2 mixed		@	18½
	LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@	4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	93	@	94
Corn—Mixed		@	20
Oats—Mixed		@	23½
PORK—Mess		@	7 75
LARD—Steam	[illegible]	@	6 00

To Pay a Penalty for Dining

Is rather hard, isn't it! Yet how many are compelled to do this after every meal. Dyspepsia, that inexorable persecutor, never ceases to torment of its own volition, and rarely yields to ordinary medication. But tranquility of the stomach is in store for those who pursue a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This fine corrective also remedies malarial and kidney complaints, rheumatism, constipation, biliousness and nervousness.

THERE are people who would do great acts; but because they wait for great opportunities, life passes, and the acts of love are not done at all.—Chicago Standard.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

THE best way to be thankful is to so live and act that all our actions show forth our gratitude.

FITS stopped free and permanently cured. No fits after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Free $2 trial bottle & treatise. DR. KLINE, 933 Arch st., Phila., Pa.

IT is not what we have, but what we do with what we have, that proves our fitness for promotion.

WHILE asleep, cured soreness, stiffness? All right, St. Jacobs Oil did it.

UNLESS the heart first gives, what the hand bestows is not a gift.—Ram's Horn.

ALL kinds, little or big. St. Jacobs Oil surely cures aches and pains.

AN investment in knowledge always pays the best interest.—Benjamin Franklin.

BUSINESS lifts the strain. St. Jacobs Oil is master cure for pain.

THE devil has to run to keep up with the man who walks about doing good.

FOUND DEAD.

Why did he do it? He had everything to live for,—happy home, wife, friends, money; but he shot himself through the heart. Why?

He couldn't have given a good reason himself. But everything looked gloomy to him. He was in a gloomy frame of mind. It was the way he looked at life that day. He had been living in too much of a hurry, rushing and driving at business, hustling through his meals, cutting short his sleep. His nerves got on edge; his stomach and liver got out of order; he grew dyspeptic and melancholy.

When the digestion is out of order there is little use trying to look on the bright side of things, practically there isn't any bright side. This is a dangerous condition to get into. Yet it is easy to get into and mighty hard to get out of it, unless you go about it in the right way.

There is a remedy that has pulled thousands of people right out of this depth of despair. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It acts directly upon the stomach and liver. It restores their natural capacity to nourish and purify the system. It purges away bilious poisons, feeds the nerve-centres with healthy, highly vitalized blood, and drives out the "blue devils" of melancholy and nervousness.

J. L. Warner, No. 1900 O Street, Sacramento, Cal., writes: "During the last five years I have been doctoring with as many as six different doctors here and in San Francisco for diseased stomach; but none of the doctors gave me even temporary relief. Two years ago I completely collapsed, and had to give up all work. I have felt many times that I would like to leave this world. In looking over the ads in the San Francisco Examiner I ran across yours, and I now owe my life and present good health to Dr. Pierce's medicines. I have taken fourteen bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four little vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' and I am entirely well of all stomach trouble. Can sleep nine hours every night, and am now ready to go to work again."

YOUR ENEMY STOLE IN

An enemy stole into your house one day last week and touched you lightly in passing. You thought little of the matter at the time, for the enemy was only a vagrant current of air. But now you are beginning to learn what mischief the little intruder did, for your back is stiff and painful. Your head aches, and at times you feel dizzy. . What has happened? . . Simply this: the cold has settled on your kidneys. They are overcharged with blood and inflamed. Instead of passing the waste matter out of the body they are damming it up in the blood. Every minute, yes, every heart beat adds to the poison in you.

Normal action of the kidneys will purify the blood. Nothing else will.

Warner's Safe Cure

is the friend in need. It will reduce the inflammation, so that the grip on the tissues of the blood-vessels is relaxed, and the uric acid is sent on its way out of the body.

Thus You Overcome Your Enemy

Large bottle, or new style, smaller one at your druggists.

JOB

ELECTROTYPING

—AND—

STEREOTYPING

OF THE HIGHEST GRADE

PROMPTLY EXECUTED BY

A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co.

We offer to our Customers and The Trade generally the most satisfactory work possible in these branches. Our facilities enable us to turn out work very rapidly. If you desire to release your type on some large job, send it to us for either stereotyping or electrotyping, and it will be returned to you promptly and in good order.

We make a specialty of Newspaper Headings and Cuts, and have the largest assortment in these lines to be found anywhere in the country from which to select.

A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO.,
25 Elm Street, Cincinnati, O.

TOP SNAP, Extension Rib DOUBLE Breech Loader $9 00 GUNS BUY-CYCLES Pistols, Sporting Goods, Fishing Tackle, cheaper than elsewhere. Send 2c. for 60-page catalogue. POWELL & CLEMENT CO. 166 Main St. Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM HABIT AND DRUNKENNESS Cured in 10 to 20 Days. No Pay till Cured. DR. J. L. STEPHENS, LEBANON, OHIO.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Send for book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Atlanta, Ga.

IT IS THE BEST. YUCATAN.

A. N. K.—E. 1636

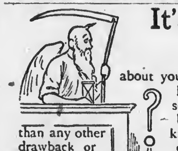
WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Important Notice!

TRADE-MARK.

The only genuine "Baker's Chocolate," celebrated for more than a century as a delicious, nutritious, and flesh-forming beverage, is put up in Blue Wrappers and Yellow Labels. Be sure that the Yellow Label and our Trade-Mark are on every package.

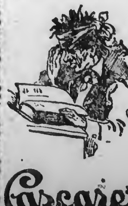
WALTER BAKER & CO. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass.



It's only a question of time about your using Pearline (use without soap). So it seems to us. It seems as if every bright woman must see, sooner or later, how much easier and quicker and better and more economical is Pearline's way than any other known way of washing. You can't think of any objection to it that hasn't been met and disproved a thousand times over. Millions of women are using Pearline now. Ask some one of them, who uses it rightly, how much she saves by it. 488 Manufactured only by James Pyle, N. Y.

Millions NOW USE Pearline

HEAD Ache this Morning.



Shows you did not take a tablet of Cascarets Candy Cathartic last evening. Cascarets prevent sour stomach, tone up the intestines, stimulate the liver, leave no chance for sick headaches in the morning. You eat them like candy, and they leave your breath sweet and fragrant. Better send out for a box right now, 10c., 25c., 50c., any drug store, or mailed for price. Write for booklet and free sample.

Cascarets CANDY CATHARTIC Cure Constipation.

ADDRESS
STERLING REMEDY COMPANY
CHICAGO;
MONTREAL, CAN.;
NEW YORK.

BOONE : COUNTY : RECORDER.

Wednesday, Dec. 23, 1896.

Rates of Subscription:
One year.............. .... $1 50.
Six months.......................... 75.
Three months........................ 40.
☞ Payable invariably in advance.

THE RECORDER
SOLICITS YOUR
Job Work,
NOTE HEADS,
LETTER HEADS,
ENVELOPES,
CARDS,
BILL HEADS,
STATEMENTS,
SALE BILLS,
AND HORSE BILLS.
Printed at the Lowest Prices consistent with neat work.
Send your order by mail and it will be attended promptly.

STATE NEWS.

Ashland Democrats will start a new paper.

The State electoral college meets January 11.

Hog thieves are very busy in Clark county.

The Cuban sympathizers have organized in Frankfort.

The grand stand at the Paris Fair Grounds burned.

There are about 3,500 miles of turnpike in Kentucky.

Mercer county voted against saloons by a majority of 500.

The Anderson county grand jury went after the toll-gate raiders.

W. J. Mitchell 72, and Rebecca Phelps, 55, were married in Woodford county.

One Mason county farmer had twenty-five turkeys stolen one night last week.

The burglars are becoming so bold in Newport as to pursue their vocation in daylight.

After a separation of 25 years W. C. Kirk and wife were married again at Hopkinsville.

The recent tide in the Kentucky River brought down thousands of logs to the lumber mills.

A Lexington negro has been sent to the penitentiary for one year for stealing blackberry jam.

Zack Ransdell, of Owen county, was accidently killed by a falling tree. He was 40 years old.

It is estimated that the whisky-tax decision will result in a loss of $50,000 annually to the State in revenue.

Robert Mosely was acquitted, last week, by the Anderson county circuit court for the murder of Ara Oliver 17 years ago.

The senatorial plum has inflamed Governor Bradley's vision to such an extent that everything he looks at is plum-colored.—Ky. Post.

At Paris Thursday night Sid Stout, a negro hogthief, was arrested, and Friday morning he was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary.

A. G. Sharpley, the guard who figured in a prison scandal, has been finally removed, and several changes have been made at the penitentiary.

Lexington's oldest drayman is William Wiles, colored. He is in his eighty-third year, and has driven a dray in Lexington for thirty-five years.

The Court of Appeals gave until Jan. 9 in the Walling case and in the Jackson case, until Jan. 14 within which to file petitions for rehearings.

While rising from his knees at the close of a family prayer Dick Major, of Hopkinsville, fell to the floor and instantly expired of heart disease. He was 52.

Measles are almost an epidemic at Chicago, in Marion county, old and young are down with the disease, and nearly every home in the place has one or more in bed with it.

Mrs. Nannie Hogan Meacham, of Christian Co., sues Rev. Calvin Meacham for a divorce. He is over 80 years old and is a prominent Baptist minister. She is about 25 and was a widow before she married him.

There is a prisoner in the Paducah jail who for breakfast eats twenty-four biscuits, seven huge pieces of beef, 4 pints of coffee and apint of molasses. For dinner he usually consumes a pan of cornbread, three pans of beans and anything else he finds handy.

Two of the Proctor brothers were taken from jail at Russellville and lynched, and another was shot to death in his cell. The Proctors—Arch, Dink and Bill—were charged with the murder of Doc and Aaron Crafton, Nov. 24. The mob came from Adairville, where the crime had been committed.

There is a movement now on foot in the city of Louisville to establish a Democratic daily paper in that city. The gentlemen at the head of the enterprise are well-known and tallented newspaper men and have the hearty support of the party organization. Democrats can now show their faith in the cause by giving it their support. The first issue will be on March 1st.

The oldest clock in Breathitt county is owned by Mrs. R. C. Hord. It is one of those old-fashioned seven-feet tall timekeepers, and was made in 1746. She has refused $500 for it. There is accurate account that the clock is 150 years old, has been running for over 100 years, and as far as is known it has never had to be repaired. It is still running and keeps good time. All the wheels except one are made of hard wood.

The Court of Appeals affirmed the decision in the case of Malcom against Malcom, refusing to grant a divorce to F. W. Malcom, of Middlesboro, Ky. Mrs. Malcom was granted a divorce in Colorado several years ago, and subsequently Malcom filed suit in this State asking for a divorce, charging infidelity. The Court upholds the validity of Mrs. Malcom's divorce. The parties were married at Zanesville, O., Oct. 2d, 1885, and are wealthy and prominent. She was Miss Kate Patwin.

A three year-old child of George Marks, colored, of Millersburg, passed through a most remarkable experience. Some "Rough on Rats" was put out to rid the house of mice, and the child found a dead mouse. Putting it in a can of water, the child cooked the mouse in the kitchen while the mother was absent. The child then ate the mouse, and in a few minutes was found almost dead lying on the porch. Doctors were summoned, and, after hard work, saved the child's life.

The smallest baby on earth, considering its age, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Corman, of Jessamine county. The child was born a year ago, and at the present time weighs only one and three-quarter pounds. He enjoys being carried around in a little lunch basket, and, although the basket is but four inches long, it could accommodate another baby of its size. The baby is not backward in any respect save as to its size. It can pronounce several words, and can walk alone. It is the funniest, cutest-looking little mite when walking that ever was seen.

December 8th Judge White of the Court of Appeals, rendered a decision holding the Kentucky State whisky tax law unconstitutional. The bonded period, under the Federal law is eight years, and the State law provides that whisky shall be exempt from taxation until it is taken out of bond. The county of Franklin filed suit against E. H. Taylor, Jr., and other distillers asking for a construction of the law and contending that the law was a discrimination and in conflict with the State constitution. The court upholds this view and decides that the tax must be paid annually.

John Baldry, of McCracken county, saw a novel sight the other day in the shape of a falling meteor. He was on horseback near Massac when the heavens suddenly darkened, and a gloom almost as dense as night prevailed for a few minutes. Suddenly he observed a large red ball of fire descending from the angry clouds. It struck the earth a short distance in the rear of him, and a terrific explosion which made the earth tremble for miles around followed. Mr. Baldry saw the fiery pieces of the substance scatter in every direction when the explosion occurred. He says the noise made by the explosion was not unlike that of a peal of thunder. Mr. Baldry did not ride back to the spot where the explosion occurred, as a rain was falling.

Samuel Smith, an ex-slave, called on the Mt. Vernon Republican the other day. That paper says: "Smith says that he was a slave for twenty-five years; is sixty-three years old; never was drunk, never swore a blasphemous oath, and 'never had a fuss' with anybady. He was put on the auction block in front of the court-house in Mt. Vernon on the very day Abraham Lincoln started to Washington City to be inaugurated. The sale was put off for six months on account of the unsettled condition of the country. At the end of six months, the condition of the country being no better, the sale was postponed another six months, but at the end of that time the would-be purchaser had left the country."

There is an old building near Pellville known as "the haunted house." All sorts of stories are in circulation about the place and the people in the neighborhood, not having lost any hobgoblins, never have any business around the old house after dark. The other night some young men gathered at a store in Pellville drifted into a conversation about the old building, and a young man named Harvey Glass agreed that for $5 he would spend the night in the haunted house. The Hawesville Clarion relates his experience; "He went with as plucky a heart beating under his vest as ever beat in the bosom of Marshall Ney. He approached the door, but stopped; there was a strange, unearthly noise inside. He heard the clanking of chains accompanied with strange groans. He listened a moment and was overcome with fear. He stood not on the order of going, but immediately went. With one bound he cleared a tall slat fence and was in the big road. To town was only a half mile, but he had confidence enough left to step it. He landed at home foot-sore and weary in three minutes after striking the road. He says he was not frightened, but just didn't want to stay there."

The case of Strass vs. Johnson, decided by the Court of Appeals involves some interesting points in the Kentucky election laws. Johnson was elected Clerk of Jefferson County in 1894 by a majority of 210, shown by the face of the returns. Strass instituted a contest on the ground that certain ballot boxes when returned to the proper office had a number of loose ballots in them that had not been counted for him. The case turns on the point as to whether the county Canvassing Board has a right to count the voted ballots found loose in the box, and Judge Paynter in his opinion says: "That part of the statute requiring the sealing of the doubtful or questioned ballots, and a statement of the officers of election as to whether they had been counted, and for whom, is mandatory, and to render said ballots admissible as evidence they must be sealed and returned with the statement of officers as required by the statute." In effect the opinion says, as the law prescribes a certain rule in regard to destroying voted or unused ballots and sealing up the doubtful and contested ones, that when voted ballots are fouud loose in the box without any certificate telling whether they had been counted or not, it is a badge of fraud, and said ballots must not be counted for any candidate. Judge Guffy, dissented from the opinion, and Judge Durrelle did not sit in the case.—Frankfort dispatch in the Cincinnati Enquirer.

THOSE who pretend to know, say that Major McKinley endorses President Cleveland's message on the Cuban question. It is altogether likely that the next President will have that question to dispose of.

Secretary Olney is making a hard fight against the Senate resolution recognizing Cuba.

CROP AND STOCK.

R. H. Starks, of Hardin county, has a sow that has given birth to thirty-two pigs within the last 12 months.

Nutwood, the famous stallion and king of Highland Stock Farm, that died last week, brought $25,000 thirteen years ago.

Fifty-two three-year old mules in Marion county sold for $75 per head The animals were very fine, and have been shipped to Atlanta.

Tobacco delivery is going on with a rush at Owensboro. Besides the Daviess county crop there is a large delivery of Southern Indiana tobacco.

Seven Points, the 3 year-old bay gelding, by Euchre, was stolen from A. R. Talbott, of Bourbon County. Seven Points has a racing record of 2:23½ and is valued at $2000.

Commissioner of Agriculture Moore, owing to the depleted condition of the Treasury, has sent out notices that the farmers institutes, which were advertised for January, would not be held.

Cincinnati Tobacco Market.

The receipts of new tobacco have been very large and a great part being sold upon arrival. The market seems to strengthen as the season advances, as some good crops have averaged from 7 to 10 cents round, the highest price obtained being $16,75. The worm eaten and house burned crops are selling low, but we see no future for these grades of tobacco, and the sooner they are disposed of the better. From present prospects there will be a good demand for all serviceable tobacco, and our shippers may depend upon a good, steady market for sound tobacco. The stock of old goods is gradually decreasing, and while prices are no higher than one month ago, the holders are disposing of the same and getting ready to handle the new, as they are aware that the manufacturers will discard the old for the new crop as soon as the shipments are sufficiently large to supply them.

SHOULD A. D. James, State Senator, who is now dangerously ill, not recover, the Kentucky legislature will again be a tie as between the Democrats and Republicans, unless some or all of the "sound money" Democrats have decided to keep in line with the Republicans.

WHAT will the President do with the Cuban resoluton, if passed by both houses is the question now annoying Congress. It is generally believed that Congress will pass it over his veto if he refuses to approve it, in which event some say he will refuse to execute it, although it will then be law as effectually as if approved by the President.

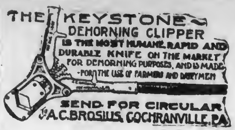
THE action of the Democratic State committee, closing the door against the return of the gold Democrats to the fold at the primary elections and conventions throughout the State, is severely criticized by many of the silver Democrats who claim that the State committee transcended its authority when it issued the order, and many of the county committees are ignoring the mandate.

THE Cubans have evidently received considerable aid from somewhere, or they could not have continued their struggle for independence until this time; and to no country can that aid be attributed but the United States, from where men, money and munitions of war have been going for many months. The sympathy of the people of the United States for the insurgents is genuine.

WHEN the Court of Appeals adjourned last Saturday for the holidays, Judge Pryor's term closed, rounding out a quarter of a century as a member of that court. He was one of the ablest judges ever on the bench in this State, and enjoyed the confidence of every lawyer in the Commonwealth. In the retirement of Judge Pryor the public loses the services of one of its most faithful and fearless officers. The Judge's associates presented him with a gold watch as a token of their esteem.

This line fills this column.

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
—OF UP TO DATE—
CHESTER WHITE HOGS.



THE KEYSTONE
DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
A.C.BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.

Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.
Write for circulars.

EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
AEROMETER

COME AND SEE IT.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.

T. J. HUGHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

GRAEFENHAN'S
POPULAR
Dry GOODS STORE.
Calicoes, Muslins, Canton Flannels, Wool Flannels, Dress Goods, Stockings, Mitts, Underwear, Comforts, Blankets and
PRETTY HOLIDAY GOODS.
By doing a strictly Cash Business it has been very easy to under sell all others. Come and see us ....
H. F. GRAEFENHAN,
21 Walnut St., - Lawrenceburg, Ind.

HOLIDAY GOODS
—CONSISTING OF—
Watches, Clocks, Jewelery, Silverware & Spectacles
Of all kinds and a large Assortment of Novelties. See us before buying as we can save you money.
J. D. WARD, 2 doors above bank in Clark Building, Rising Sun, Ind.

J. J. GEISEN,
HATTER AND GENT'S
FURNISHING GOODS,
615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.
Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

E. H. RIGGS,
—Dealer in—
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
—CEMENT, ETC.—
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVERY COMPANY.
62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,
E. H. BAKER, Proprietor
(o)
Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.
Telephone 580.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.
☞ We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office
And FEED STORE from
708 Madison Avenue
To the Large and more Commodious Quarters
15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.
Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with
GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED
At the Lowest Market Values.
Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,
W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANTS,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.
A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.
UNDERTAKING.
is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. HANKINS.
Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1896. NO. 10.

The members of the Boone County Republican Executive Committee will meet in Burlington Monday, Jany. 4th, 1897. A full attendance is requested.

T. B. MATHEWS, Chairman.

INDIANA has 71,414 paupers.

THE threatened race war at Princeton will not materialize.

GOV. BRADLEY repudiates the Frankfort Capital as his personal organ.

THE Louisville Commercial wants Congress to recognize Cuba's independence.

THOSE who are anxious for a special session of the legislature, will soon be discussing the probable date of its meeting.

THE probability is the Senate will have cooled down some as regards the Cuban affair when it reassembles after the holidays.

IT is being intimated that Gomez has sold out to the Spaniards, and will not do any more fighting of consequence for the Cubans.

MR. REED never mentioned McKinley's name in his speeches during the campaign, and up to date he appears not to know that there is such a man.

DR. HUNTER, who was defeated by John S. Rhea for Congress, has served Rhea with notice of contest, and Rhea will file a counter contest against Hunter.

CAPT. GEN. WEYLER has gone to the front to whip the Cubans some more. He prefers doing his fighting in Havana, where there are no armed insurgents.

MR. HANNA has about exhausted himself physically, and will go to his winter home in Geosgia to recuperate in time for the inaugural ceremonies March 4th.

THE sales of tobacco on the Louisville tobacco breaks this year amounted to 165,749 hogsheads, being 9,136 hogsheads less than were sold there last year. The quality of the tobacco was poor.

LAST Saturday's Enquirer contained an account of Dr. S. S. Scott's thrilling experience in behalf of Cuban liberty in 1850. The Doctor and comrades narrowly escaped being captured by the Spaniards.

BRO. ORR, of the Owen News, is a candidate for representative. He is for free silver and free turnpikes, and pledges himself to do the best he can for his constituents if elected. Here is hoping that he may win.

THE government fortifications at New York, Boston, Fortress Monroe, Sandy Hook, and along the Potomac river, are assuming a formidable shape, and it is pretty evident that no foreign warship could now reach Washington.

SOME of the Bradley Guards at Barboursville went on a christmas lark, and appeared on the streets with their guns and indulged in promiscuous shooting, causing all the business houses to close their doors. The Governor ought to have sent a company of militia down there to suppress them.

THERE are about 14,000 sick soldiers in hospitals in and about Havana. The regular hospitals speedily became over-crowded and warehouses and other large buildings are now used for the purpose. Four hundred and thirty-eight cases of yellow fever were reported in Havana during last wesk, proving that the disease is epidemic there.

ALTHOUGH the canvass for Circuit Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney is close at hand, very little is being said in regard to the apparent contest for the Judgeship. The indications are, just at this time, that M. D. Gray will have a clear field, while there will be at least three entries for the Judgeship—Greene, Cram and Gaunt.

ONE KILL D

At a Christmas Entertainment at Big Bone, While Several Others Escape With Badly Bruised Heads.

FOSTER A BAD MAN.

The Big Bone colored people had a festival last Thursday evening with a melee attachment, the net results of which were the death of one man, while several others received cracked heads and blacked eyes. The festival had not been in progress long, when trouble commenced brewing, and razors and clubs appeared on the scene. Harve Foster and a companion, up to about midnight, had been successful in their attempts to bully the crowd, and bad made it so uncomfortable for two or three of the men that they left to avoid trouble. Some time after midnight Foster approached Charles Ewalt, bent on having trouble with him. Ewalt tried to avoid the encounter but Foster crowded upon him with an ugly knife in his hand, open and ready for business. Foster did not heed Ewalt's warning not to crowd upon him, but kept approaching, ready to make a fatal stroke with his knife, when he drew a pistol and shot Foster through the heart. This brought the festivities to a close, and shortly thereafter a messenger was dispatched for 'Squire R. L. Roberts, who held the inquest.

Foster was known as a dangerous man, and was wanted by the circuit court of this county to answer an indictment charging him with shooting at another negro with intent to kill. The indictment was returned about two years ago, and he had successfully eluded the sheriff ever since.

Ewalt, although known to be a brave man, has always been quiet and peaceable, and the citizens of Big Bone are satisfied that the killing was done in self-defense. Ewalt had not been seen by any of the officers up to Monday morning, but it is believed that he will have no trouble in being acquitted by the examining court when he appears before it.

GOV. BRADLEY has made up his slate for the big, juicy plums in this State, and here it is as given out by the Louisville Commercial:

Collector Louisville District—James Buckner, of Louisville.

Collector Owensboro District—Dr. Wm. Turner, of Bowling Green.

Collector Richmond District—John W. Yerkes, of Danville.

Collector Covington District—Richard P. Ernst, of Covington.

Surveyor of the Port—Dan Collier, of Frankfort.

United States Marshal—Chas. Blanford, of Bewleyville.

Two Chicago men claim that they have discovered a vegetable powder which will revolutionize motive powers. They assert that when the powder is mixed with water it forms an electric battery, one cell of which will run a dozen incandescent lights, while two cells will furnish 110 volts. The powder is made from the roots of certain plants the names of which the discoverers will not reveal.

WHEN asked in Cincinnati, one day last week, for an opinion on the Cuban question, William Jennings Bryan, refused to give an expression, saying he had not had time to investigate it.

There is talk that McKinley may turn to Kentucky for timber for his Cabinet. The name of Hon. John W. Yerkes is mentioned in this connection.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND and Secretary Carlisle declined invitations to address the Chicago Gold Democratic Club, on Jackson's day, January 8th.

Pith of the Press.

That Vest of ours seems to be hard to keep down.—St. Paul Globe.

May be Queen Lil will be present at the inaugural ball.—Baltimore American.

It is sad to see the venerable John Sherman wabbling in this crisis.—Boston Herald.

Senator Palmer is now the recognized head of an unrecognizable party.—Salt Lake Herald.

A diagnosis of Governor Bradley's feelings indicates that his throat is all right—Philadelphia Press.

Now that Herrmann is dead, Mark Hanna is the only real magician left.—Kansas City World.

Mr. Quay is busy soaping the track for the Wanamaker senatorial boom.—Topeka State Journal.

The great volume of genuine applause for the Administration is located in Madrid.—N. Y. Journal.

Mr. Hanna will not hang up a stocking. The earth is entirely too large to go into one man's hosiery. —Omaha World-Herald.

President Cleveland and Queen Lil both went hunting. One is hunting ducks, the other hunting Cleveland.—Rochester Times.

Mr. Cleveland evidently wants Congress to let him do all the governing, especially in regard to Cuban affairs.—Kansas City Times.

When Mr. Cleveland hears a dusky female humming. "I want yer, ma honey, yes I do," he may as well prepare to face Lily.—Washington Post.

The notion that Spain intends to make a stubborn fight in Cuba is corroborated by the fact that she is buying her mules in Kansas.—New York Journal.

President Cleveland's message has received the seal of Spanish approval, but it does not take well at all with his own countrymen.—Evansville (Ind.) Courier.

Mr. Olney is unable to understand how Congress could expect to whip Spain, when it is unable to hold down Mr. Cleveland and his Secretary of State.—N. Y. Journal.

There is no more danger of war with Spain than there is that Richard Olney will put himself in relations of sympathy with the people of the United States.—New York World.

People are getting poisoned by wood alcohol, buckwheat cakes, head cheese and other articles. In the progress of civilization it is becoming dangerous to eat.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

The newspapers that are calling Mr. Hanna down for his officiousness should remember that Mr. Hanna knows who was elected President of the United States.—Kansas City Star.

Major McKinley visited a dentist the other day. Thus far that dentist seems to be the only one who feels dead certain that his pull will work with the President-elect.—Chicago Times-Herald.

The new Administration may not bring in as much prosperity as was promised, but it will at least displace Cleveland and his crew of cuckoos. This is something to rejoice in.—Milwaukee News.

Perhaps Messrs. Cleveland and Olney would take more interest in Cuba if that island would issue a few long-time, low-interest-bearing bonds and sell 'em to the Morgan syndicate.—Omaha World-Herald.

It is significant of the way the wind is expected to blow after awhile that Kentucky candidates for Postmasterships under McKinley first seek the signature of Senator "Bill" Lindsay to their petition. —St. Louis Republic.

Spain is watching with great interest the war between the Senate and the White House, and is ready to issue a proclamation announcing Mr. Cleveland's independence if it will be of any service.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A people in sight of our shores, struggling to be free, and being massacred to drive out the spirit of independence, has no claim which the stock exchange and stock gamblers of the country are bound to respect.—Columbus (O.) Post.

Mr. McKinley is looking forward to his hack ride with Mr. Cleveland with much pleasure. He expects to get a great many valuable pointers on reels, sinkers and files, as well as to find out what style of shell Grover prefers in duck hunting.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

The sound money Democrats have no programme at all. The Republican party proposes a protective tariff that will give ample revenue to meet the requirements of the Government, but the sound money Democratic papars only sit off and growl. That is not practical politics.—Louisville Commercial.

Every condition of our development is working against protection, and in the very nature of things we shall one day grow out of the protective policy. But before that result is reached it is clear that we shall have to submit to a long period of taxation for other purposes than public purposes.—Indianapolis News.

A President and Secretary of State who concocted the Venezuela incident in the hope of restoring the falling credit of their Administration—who shocked the moral sense of the world and delivered a disastrous blow to our reviving prosperity by a needless and false exploitation of the Monroe doctrine —now decline to raise voice or hand to help the cause of freedom in Cuba, and put a stop to the barbarous and inhuman warfare going on at our very gates!—New York World.

THE Republicans are contesting the election of Smith, the surviving Bryan elector in this State. Among the many frauds &c., charged, it is claimed that 1,250 illegal and fraudulent votes were cast and counted for the Bryan electors in Owen county.

ATTENTION!

Saturday, August 7th, 1897, the Time Set for the

PRIMARY ELECTION.

Pursuant to the call of the Chairman of the county Democratic Executive committee, the committee met in D. E. Castleman's law office in Burlington, last Monday afternoon. The following members were present: D. E. Castleman, chairman; B. L. Rice, Secretary' Elijah Parker, Reuben Conner, C. H. Acra, Robt. McGlasson, C. C. Roberts and Geo. W. Sleet, proxy for J. C. Hughes. It was agreed by the committee to hold a primary election to nominate candidates for the various county offices to be filled at the regular election in November, 1897. It was further agreed that said primary election be held on the first Saturday in August, 1897, and the Executive Committee will meet in the Court-house in Burlington, at 2 o'clock p. m., on Monday, August 9th, 1896, and count the votes cast for each candidate for the respective offices, and the candidate receiving the highest number of votes cast for any office will be declared the Democratic nominee for that office.

The committee adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That all persons who voted for Bryan and Sewall at the last November election, and all persons who did not vote but would have voted for Bryan and Sewall had they voted, and all young men who will be legal voters at the next November election, and all persons who will be legal voters at said November election, and will pledge themselves to support the Democratic party and the nominees of said primary election, shall be allowed to vote.

Resolved, That all persons who desire to be candidates before said primary election shall, on or before the 1st day of June, 1897, record their names with the chairman of the county committee, and pay their assessments to him.

Resolved, That only such candidates who pay their assessments to defray the expenses of said primary election, on or before the first day of June, 1897, shall be entitled to have their name placed upon the ballots to be voted for.

Resolved, That all candidates for precinct offices, who wish their names to appear upon the ballots for said primary, shall pay to the chairman of the county committee one dollar, to help pay the expenses of said primary election.

D. E. CASTLEMAN Chairman,
B. L. RICE, Secretary.

STATE DIRECTORY.

Governor—W. O. Bradley.
Lieutenant Governor—W. J. Worthington.
Secretary of State—Charles Finley.
Assistant Secretary of State—E. D. Guffy.
Attorney General—W. S. Taylor.
Auditor—Samuel H. Stone.
Assistant Auditor—Frank Johnson.
Treasurer—George W. Long.
Sup'nt of Public Instruction—Geo. M. Davidson.
Register Land Office—Charles O. Reynolds.
Deputies—Stanley D. Brown, Sam S. Shepherd.
Insurance Commissioner—D M Comingore.
Adjutant General—D. R. Collier.
Assistant—Walter Forrester.
Supt. Arsenal—Capt. David O'Connell.
State Inspector—C. W Lester
Commissioner Agriculture—Lucas Moore.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Chief Justice—W. S. Pryor. Judges—Geo. Durelle, J. R. Grace, T. H. Paynter, B. L. D. Guffy, J. H. Hazelrigg, J. H. Lewis.
Reporter—E. W. Hines. Clerk—A. Addams.
Sergeant—W. S. B. Hill, Tipstaff—C. C. Turner.
Librarian—Mrs. Mary Brown Day.
Inspector of Mines—C. J. Norwood.

STATE PRISON OFFICIALS:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, Henry George: Deputy Warden, M. A. Rooney.
Eddyville Prison—Warden, L. C. Curry; Deputy Warden, Ward Linn.

RAILROAD COMMISSION:

John C. Wood, Chairman; I. F. Dempsey, H. S. Irwin. Secretary-Samuel Brown.

COUNTY DIRECTORY.

County Judge—Benjamin Stephens.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—J. M. Lassing.
Sheriff—C. C. Roberts.
Jailer—C. L. Crisler.
Assessor—R. A. Brady.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.
Superintendent Schools—L. H. Voshell.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge—John W. Green.
Clerk—J. W. Duncan.
Commonwealth's Attorney—M. D. Gray.
Master Commissioner—J. B. Berkshire.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Courts are held in the months of March, June, September and December, as follows:

District No 1.—O. W. Gaines, fourth Saturday; J. B. Crigler, Constable.
District No. 2.—M. B. Green, first Saturday; Jake Cook, Constable.
District No. 3.—R. L. Roberts, wednesday after third Monday; T. M. Rich, Constable.
District No. 4.—H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday; Add Ridoell, Constable.
District No. 5.—T. E. Roberts, fourth Monday; J. H. watson, Constable.
District No. 6.—Joseph Wagstaff, third Saturday; Simeon Tanner, Constable.

B. F. BUCHANAN,
— DRUGGIST, —
Rising Sun, - Indiana.

Thanks his Kentucky friends for their renewed patronage and invites them to continue to call at the

✠Corner Drug Store.✠

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Associated with
HARVEY MYERS,
OF COVINGTON.

Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

THIRD YEAR
OF WALTON ACADEMY,
—opens—
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1896
AT WALTON, KY.

Three Courses of Study to choose from: English, Scientific or Classical,

Tuition per month for Higher Branches.......... $3.00
Tuition per mouth for Common School Branches.......... 2.50

We will have a fine, new building with rooms for pupils, connected.—Board only $2.50 per week, or $2 00 for five days.

Teachers { Mrs. S. H. MYERS. CHAS. F. PRIOR. Rev. S. H. MYERS.

Further information gladly given by mail or interview.

INSURE AT HOME

The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,

Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.

Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.

EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.

J. S. HUEY, President, Grant, Ky.
OSCAR GAINES Secretary, Burlington, Ky.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
R. S. COWEN, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

Administratrix Notice.

All those indebted to the estate of L. E. Clore, dec'd, are notified that they must come forward and settle, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned, proven according to law.

ANNIE L. CLORE, Adm'rx.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.

Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.

Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY,

Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.

Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.

Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by maill promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.

Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.

Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

H. S. STEVENSON.
DENTIST,

Anæsthetics used for painless operating. Plates $8 and $10; other work accordingly. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.

MAIN OFFICE—South side Main St. Rising Sun, Indiana.

R. C. RICE,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Burlington, Ky.
YOUR WORK IS SOLICITED.

W. E. VEST. B. L. RICE.
VEST & RICE,
Real Estate Agents.

Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)

CAPITAL,.......... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 17,000

—)o(—

Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY

CAPITAL PAID IN.......... $50,000
SURPLUS,.......... $ 2.600

Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.

All work executed according to the latest methods of the profession.

Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

TIME CARD OF THE

STEAMER PAULINE.

Leave Petersburg for Lawrenceburg, 6:20 am; 9:00 am; 11:00 am; 1:30 pm; 4:00 pm.
Leave Law'burg for Pete and Aurora, 7:50 am; 9:30 am; 11:30 am; 2:50 pm; 4:30 pm;
Leave Aurora for Pete and Law'burg, 8:30 am; 10:30 am; 1:05 pm; 3:30 pm. Leave Aurora for Petersburg only, 5:15 pm.
Leave Petersburg for Aurora, 8:10 am; 10:00 am; 12:40 pm; 3:00 pm; 4:45 pm.

ELIHU ALDEN, Master.

THE RECORDER.

W L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : KY.

CURRENT TOPICS.

An American syndicate is said to have purchased the Hidalgo railroad in Mexico.

More than half of the world's production of quinine is disposed of in the United States.

Representative Treloar, of Missouri, has introduced a bill extending the presidential term to eight years.

Dickens' daughter, before she died, had completed a book called, "My Father as I Knew Him," which will be published soon.

Vienna has a strange "Silence club," composed of married men, who meet, dine and spend the evening together without talking.

Queen Victoria a few days ago won the first prize for Herefords at the Smithfield cattle show and received second medals for cattle in other classes.

When the Siberian railway is completed the journey around the world will occupy not more than 40 days, and the cost of transportation will not exceed $400.

Some Brooklyn men who seem to have little to do have begun a crusade against the feminine high hat in church on the ground that it obscures the pulpit.

Prof. Percival Lowell, who is so enthusiastically writing up the canals of Mars and their wonderful constructors, is a cousin of the late James Russell Lowell.

According to a Detroit paper the 170 churches of that city pay salaries to their ministers aggregating $225,000 annually and control property valued at $5,500,000.

There is but one monarch of Europe who can show the scar of a wound received in war. It is King Humbert, who received a severe saber cut at the battle of Custozza.

Burglars at Kingston, Ont., tried to blow open a safe door which was not locked, and through faulty work only succeeded in so damaging the door that it could not be opened at all.

The greatest depth to which earthquakes are known to originate is about thirty miles. It has also been calculated that a heat sufficient to melt granite might occur at about the same depth.

The Chinese have a singularly complicated calendar. Their cycles have 60 years, each year, month and day having its own name, and by combining these the day, month and year are designated.

Steve Melton, of Jacksonville, Fla., has been hunting gophers all summer, and now has a colony of 500. He expects to sell them during the witner at $5 a dozen to visitors who want gopher stew.

Sir Edward Clark, the eminent English barrister, is said to have an income of $100,000 a year from his law practice. His fee for defending Mrs. Castle, the wealthy Californian who was accused of shoplifting, was $5,000.

One of the largest glacial bowlders lying above ground in the state of Pennsylvania is on the farm of Enos Stump, near Quakertown, in Bucks county. This monster relic of the "ice age" is 56 feet long, 46 feet wide and 14 feet thick.

A new Jewish community has been established at Buda-Pesth. Dr. J. Joseph Konder, a former chief rabbi, is at its head. While adhering to the Old Testament the congregation rejects the Talmud and mixed marriages will be solemnized.

In a certain sense elephants are still used in battle by Indian troops, but they are only used as beasts of burden and draught for artillery, but years ago they were used in the east as fighting animals, and taught to swing chains and bars of metal in their trunks

Mrs. Lynn Lynton, having asserted in a London periodical that "the prettiest woman in the world loses all her distinctive charm when 'biking,'" the countess of Malmesbury hastens to say that her sex looks well on bicycles, and vastly better than men, because "the motive power is concealed almost entirely by the skirt if the ankle action be good."

An extraordinary story of the credulity of Russian peasants comes from Slavyanzk, in southern Russia, where a woman whose little ten-year-old girl had sore eyes consulted a witch doctor and was told to apply gunpowder to the child's eyes and touch it off with a match. She obeyed, blinding the child and injuring herself.

The latest discoveries among the older rocks of the paleozoic age show the existence of dragon flies measuring over two feet in the expanse of wings. These are much larger than the reported traces of enormous insects discovered about a year ago. The whole known fauna of that luxuriant period was upon the same gigantic scale.

Du Maurier's estate, while larger than that of any other Punch artist, amounts to less than was expected, being about $250,000. It represents mostly the success of "Trilby" and the advance payments for "The Martian." Du Maurier's favorite jest during the closing years of his life was that he was "bored and paralyzed with prosperity."

From the Hawkins county (Tenn.) marble quarries an old colored man who regularly hauls the output to Whitesburg drew the other day a block weighing 25,200 pounds. He used 12 mule teams. The block contained 140 feet, and his pay, which is by the foot, amounted to $49.

A novel suit against the Pullman Palace Car Co. is on trial at St. Johns, N. B. The case, which has been before the courts since 1892, is an action for $25,000 alleged damages sustained by James J. McGaffigan through having caught cold while traveling from Boston to St. Johns in an unheated Pullman car.

OLNEY'S POSITION

The Main Feature of Discussion in Private and Public in Washington.

The Burden of the General Declaration is Antagonistic to the Views of the Secretary—Many Hold His Position to Untenable Under the Constitution.

Washington, Dec. 23.—Though congressional debates have not been forthcoming to stimulate and keep actively in discussion the interest brought out by the latest phase of the Cuban situation, the manifestations of feeling on that topic have not lessened. The positions assumed by Secretary Olney have been the main features of discussion in private and public, and so far as the opinions of members of congress go in the matter, it is evident that the burden of the general declarations is antagonistic to the views declared by the secretary of state. At the same time it is felt that the many instances wherein distinguished gentlemen, prominent in public life, in international law, scholarships and in business, have given open expressions of views, fully considering the position of the administration on the Cuban situation, have not been without a tendency to sensibly temper what some regard a too hastily formed judgment as the immediate necessity of ignoring Mr. Olney's views. In all the discussions held by Mr. Morgan of the committee on foreign relations, he has taken no backward step from his original position that Mr. Olney's attitude is beyond all proper precedent and an assertion of power for the executive that has never been delegated to that branch of the government by any decision of the supreme court in the consideration of the country's constitution.

Mr. Sherman, the chairman of the foreign affairs committee, holds as well that the position of Mr. Olney in the present particular is untenable under the constitution. Mr. Morgan says that if the president can recognize the Cuban republic independently of congress, he could deprived Mr. De Lome of his rights to represent the Spanish monarchy here. New England congressmen generally, with perhaps one or two exceptions, notably Mr. Chandler, who vigorously adheres to his heretofore expressed opinion that it would be preposterous for an executive to notify Spain not to expect until our next administration comes into power any action on the Cuban question, are disposed to be more conservative. Senator Hawley, of Connecticut, does not hesitate to say point blank that he disapproves of the Cameron resolutions. The two Maine senators differ, though very slightly, in respect to the Olney position. Senator Hale does not doubt the correctness of the stand taken by the secretary of state and his colleague Mr. Frye, who is a member of the committee on foreign relations, while he has been inclined to think Mr. Olney is right, has not freely determined what the effect would be if the Cameron resolution should pass. A sentiment that has considerable standing upon western representatives is explained by the declaration of Senator McMillan, of Michigan, who thinks the position taken by the president and the cabinet on the Cuban question is a proper one.

The secretary himself has not been content to rest quietly in the face of the repeated dissentions to his statement. He has not been slow to refer to the position of Senator Morgan as a clearly inconsistent one, and referring Tuesday to the answer made by Morgan in the senate Monday to a question by Senator Hill that it was preposterous to question the right of congress to recognize the independence of Cuba, Mr. Morgan took an almost entirely different view of the matter last February, when the concurrent resolution expressing the sympathy of congress for the insurgents and urging the president to use his good offices with Spain to bring about a termination of the struggle on the island was under discussion in the senate. His remarks on that occassion have a direct bearing upon the issue raised by the secretary of state that the power of recognizing the independence of a new government is vested exclusively in the president, regardless of the wishes of congress in the matter. According to Secretary Olney the senator from Alabama at that time coincided with the position now assumed by the executive.

President Signs Centennial Bill.

Washington, Dec. 23.—The president has signed the act providing for government participation in the centennial exposition at Nashville, Tenn., and making an appropriation of $130,000 for a government building and exhibit.

Money for Pensioners.

Washington, Dec. 23.—The secretary of the interior has drawn upon the treasury for $10,800,000 for the quarterly payment of pensions. Among the distributions are: Pittsburgh, $1,775,000; Milwaukee, $1,875,000; Des Moines, $2,100,000; Chicago, $2,750,000.

Presidential Appointments.

Washington, Dec. 23.—The president Tuesday sent to the senate the following nominations:

Col. Charles G. Sawtell, to be brigadier general and quartermaster general.

Capt. Arthur D. Wagner, Sixth infantry, to be major and assistant adjutant general.

Allison and the Cabinet.

Dubuque, Ia., Dec. 23.—Inquiry Tuesday develops that there is no truth in the story that Senator Allison has been offered the secretaryship of state. This is positive and on the very best authority. Senator Allison has not yet left his room, but expects to be able to go to Washington immediately after the holiday recess.

Drilling to Fight Spain.

Rushville, Ind., Dec. 23.—A company of 30 young men have organized and are drilling at Andersonville with a view of starting to Cuba in January.

IN BLUE CUT.

A St. L. & K. C. Express Train Held Up By Robbers—But Little Money Secured.

Kansas City, Dec. 24.—Train No. 49, the St. Louis and Kansas City express train, was held up near Blue Cut Wednesday night by train robbers. The train, in charge of Conductor Nichols and Engineer Meade, left here on time at 8:45 p. m., and when the Missouri Pacific crossing, one and one-half miles east of Independence, was reached at 9:25 o'clock three men boarded the engine and compelled the engineer and fireman to descend from their machine. The express and baggage car were then uncoupled from the remainder of the train and the robbers started eastward with the locomotive and two cars. The express car was in charge of Messenger Nichols. The conductor walked back to Independence and reported the hold-up, while the brakeman and engineer started after the stolen cars, and at this writing (1 a. m.) have just reached them at Glendale, five miles from Independence. Details are hard to obtain. A special train carrying a posse of officials has just left here for the scene of the hold up. Whether the express cars were looted has not yet been ascertained.

When the train reached the Missouri Pacific crossing a red light was swung across the track, and when the train was brought to a standstill the men covered the engineer and firemen with guns. Conductor Nichols came forward with his lantern to see what the trouble was, when he too was covered with a gun. He was asked to pass over what funds he had and he handed one of the men four dollars. Asked if it was the company's money he replied "No," and the bandit handed him back two dollars, saying he would make an even divide. Then he was marched back and compelled to cut the baggage and express cars loose from the train. Horace Matthews, gateman on the train, and Rear Brakeman Rogers, started down from the train to see what was the trouble when they were ordered back or be shot. The passengers were apprised of what the trouble was and the usual scenes followed. Some of the women became hysterical, and after the robbers had pulled out with the engine and cars, they secreted their valuables.

Express officials here say the run so far as money was concerned was light, but they have a heavy run of freight. The safe contained only three mail packages of jewelry. The baggage car was numbered 13, and contained the baggage of the "Black Crook Co." which recently stranded in this city. When the train had passed Glendale the express car was entered and a few small packages were taken. The engine was then cut from the cars and ran a mile further on where it was abandoned and killed, and the robbers took to the timber.

AT MAYFIELD.

The Alleged Race War Greatly Exaggerated—No Further Outbreak is Apprehended.

Mayfield, Ky., Dec. 24.—Will Suet, a Negro, aged 18 years, was shot and killed early Wednesday morning near the railway depot. A number of guards were watching the incoming train for Negro refugees. Three Negroes alighted, and when ordered to halt they refused. One of the deputies opened fire and Suet fell, riddled with bullets. The killing of Suet has aroused the Negroes to madness and they swear to wipe out the town Wednesday night. Wednesday morning the town council held an emergency meeting. All women and children were ordered to remain off the streets after 6 o'clock Wednesday night.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 24.—The alleged race war at Mayfield has been greatly exaggerated. There has been no trouble since the killing of Will Suett, colored, early Wednesday morning. Suett was only 18 years of age. No further outbreak is apprehended as the better class of people have determined to suppress violence.

Wednesday afternoon a mass meeting was held at the court house and resolutions were adopted denouncing the lynching of George Finley and Jim Stone, the killing of Will Suett and the burning of property. At 9 o'clock the town was quiet, with a few guards patrolling the streets and not a negro in sight. Only about 50 men came here from neighboring towns and these have returned home.

Dreyer and Berger Arrested.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—E. S. Dreyer and his partner, Robert Berger, of the banking firm of E. S. Dreyer & Co., which failed on Monday, were arrested Wednesday afternoon charged with receiving a deposit, knowing their bank to be insolvent, and taken to the Central police station. Subsequently they were released by Justice Hall in $700 bonds each, pending the hearing of their case, which will take place January 2. Adolph Kraus, the lawyer, and Charles H. Wacker, a brewer, were their bondsmen.

Death at the Crossing.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 24.—Mrs. Henry Bond and Miss Mary Tyrrell, sisters, living at Woodbourne, Pa., were driving across the Reading railroad tracks near their home Wednesday morning. Their carriage was struck by an express train and Miss Tyrrell was instantly killed. Mrs. Bond was brought to St. Francis hospital in this city. She is so badly injured that it was thought Wednesday night that she would die. Miss Tyrrell was 18 years of age.

Miss Willard Quite Ill.

Castile, N. Y., Dec. 24.—Miss Frances Willard, president of the World and National Womens' Christian Temperance union, who is at the sanitarium here, has suffered a relapse and is quite ill. Her physician has canceled all her engagements, and she will remain here for some months.

Congressman-Elect Callahan Ill.

Guthrie, Okla., Dec. 24.—Congressman-elect J. Y. Callahan is dangerously ill at his home in Kingfisher, and is not expected to live. His death may occur at any moment. He has been ill for a week.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

Second Session.

Washington, Dec 22.—Senate—Cameron's joint resolution recognizing the independence of the republic of Cuba was introduced Monday. Several substitutes and amendments were offered by various senators. There was no other business of importance. An effort was made by Mr. Gear (rep., Ia.) to have the Pacific railroad funding bill made the unfinished business, but objection was interposed and Mr. Gear gave notice that he would call up that bill after the holiday recess.

House—The house spent most of the day's session Monday afternoon in consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, and still came to no resolution thereon. Nearly all of the time was given to discussing the future control of the library, whether by the joint committee on the library, as proposed by that committee in Mr. Quigg's substitute, or by the librarian as proposed by the committee on appropriations The principal speeches in favor of the appropriations committee's plan were made by Messrs. Bingham (rep., Pa.) and Cannon (rep., Ill.), of the committee, and by Mr. Cummings (dem., N. Y.) in favor of the Quigg substitute. The latter was rejected—27 to 85. On motion by Mr. Shofroth (sil., Col.) the salary of the librarian was reduced from $6,000 to $5,000.

Washington, Dec. 23.—Senate.—Mr. Vest (dem., Mo.) did not call up, as he had given notice that he would, his resolution for an inquiry as to the constitutional question presented by the secretary of state in his press statement touching the power of the president to ignore a joint resolution of congress directing him to recognize the independence of the republic of Cuba The morning hour was occupied by Mr. Morgan (dem., Ala.) in a long speech against the Pacific railroad funding bill and in favor of the government taking possession of those roads which, he contended, it was its right and duty to do whenever a default in payment of the bonds occurred. The urgent deficiency bill was passed and was immediately returned to the house for concurrence in amendments agreed to in the senate At 3 p. m the senate adjourned until Tuesday, January 5.

House—At 3:40 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the house adjourned for the holiday recess, having then disposed of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, after four days' consideration It was passed just as reported from the committee on appropriations with the single exception that the salary of the librarian of congress was reduced from $6,000 to $5,000 and this after it had been antagonized by the joint committee on library and the opponents of civil service law in a discussion running over three days. The bill carries a total appropriation of $21,668,370 and provides for $10,065 in salaries. The house agreed to the senate amendment to the urgent deficiency bill

SERIOUS TROUBLE

Expected Between Loggers and Settlers on the Wisconsin Central Indemnity Lands.

Ashland, Wis., Dec. 24.—The settlers on the Wisconsin Central indemnity lands have declared war on the loggers who have started to log on the land. Ed. Mercier, who has charge of Steve Smith's camp, was notified Wednesday that 35 settlers would drive them away at the point of Winchesters.

The settlers lost their lands through the decision of the United States supreme court, but have not yet been evicted. They claim that the company should pay for the improvements they have made during the past five years.

Serious trouble is feared as the settlers are determined that the pine on their lands shall not be cut until they have been legally evicted and their improvements paid for.

HORRIBLE DEATH.

Aged Chicago Lady Meets Death Under a Cable Car.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Mrs. F. A. Parmalee, 75 years old and the mother-in-law of W. S. Seaverns, member of the board of trade firm of I. N. Ash & Co., met a horrible death Wednesday afternoon under a cable train on State street within sight of thousands of Christmas shoppers Mrs. Parmalee was buying Christmas presents and had several small bundles in her arms. Cable cars and vehicles were thicker than usual between Madison and Washington streets. Snow was falling and this added to the woman's inability to get across State street safely. When on the cable track a train knocked her down and life was quickly crushed out.

BY HIS FRIEND,

Merchant Shot to Death Simply Because He Interfered.

Lagrange, Ga., Dec. 26.—Claude Dunson, one of the most prominent business men of this town, was shot down and almost instantly killed on the public square here, his slayer being a man who has for years been his friend. Douglass Cooper, who manages the store for his father, quarreled with a Negro who had made some purchases and kicked upon the change he got. The Negro was drunk. Cooper followed him across the square and was about to shoot him, when Dunson remonstrated. This angered Cooper, who deliberately shot Dunson to death. Cooper made his escape.

Handsome Country Residence Burned.

New York, Dec. 28.—The handsome residence of Duncan Elliott on the grounds of the Country club, on Long Island sound, and east of West Chester village, was totally destroyed by a fire that started in the cellar Sunday morning, entailing a loss of $50,000. It was said Sunday night that Julian Potter, a nephew of Bishop Potter, had received internal injuries and broken several ribs in his jumping from the burning house.

Death of Mrs. Alden Grout.

Springfield. Mass., Dec. 28.—Mrs. Alden Grout, aged 86, widow of the late Alden Grout, died Saturday morning. Rev. and Mrs. Grout were pioneer missionaries to South Africa 60 years ago, and were familiar with the scenes written of by Haggard in "Mada the Lily." She was born in Holden and graduated at Mount Holyoke seminary in 1838. Four children survive them.

Baltimore Saloonkeeper Murdered.

Baltimore, Dec. 26.—Conrad Sommers, aged 41 years, a saloonkeeper at Gough and Third streets, Highlandtown, a suburb of this city, was shot and killed Friday by Nicholas White, 49 years old. Sommers playfully butted White with his head whereupon the latter drew a revolver and sent a bullet through his heart. White is in jail. Both men have large families.

Hand Blown Off.

Paris, Ky., Dec. 26.—Pearl Harris, aged 16, a colored jockey, had his hand blown off Friday with a cannon fire cracker.

MINE FIRE.

Big Spring Hill Coal Shaft Near Halifax, N. S., Burning—All the Miners Succeeded in Reaching the Surface in Safety.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 26.—A report has been received here Friday night that a serious fire is raging in the Big Spring Hill coal mine in Cumberland county. The fire broke out during the day and despite the efforts made to extinguish it, the flames got beyond the control of the men fighting to subdue them.

The fire started in the east slope. The miners are working desperately to keep the flames from spreading further.

The north slope is not in imminent danger. The fire originated in an 1,800-foot level and was caused by a pipeway carrying steam into the mine to operate the machinery becoming overheated. A large gang of men were at work at the time. At the first indication of danger they made a rush to escape and all reached the surface safely. The flames spread quickly to the 1,300-foot level, which is now converted into a raging furnace, the flames issuing from every opening to the slope.

Efforts were made to prevent the air from entering the mine, every opening being closed, but so far this has been ineffectual in staying the fire.

It was feared that an explosion would occur, but so far there has been none. The disaster will be a terrible one to Spring Hill town, a place of six thousand people, supported wholly by the men working in the mines, which are owned by the Cumberland Coal and Railway Co. The total loss from the fire can not be estimated at present, but it will reach very high figures. The Spring Hill mines have been the scene of several calamities, the most serious being that of February, 1891, when nearly 120 men and boys were killed by an explosion.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

What is Going on at the Seat of Government.

Washington, Dec. 26.—Chester R. Faulkner, for some years a prominent politician of Indiana, and of recent years private secretary of Senator Voorhees, died at Providence hospital Friday afternoon of injuries received Thursday night by being run over by a street car. He fell under the car which ran over and crushed his right leg above the knee. Amputation was resorted to, but the victim slowly sank under the shock and operation. Mr. Faulkner was a resident of Holton, Ripley county, Ind., where had a wife and two daughters. Two sons were killed in the war of the rebellion. He was 75 years of age.

Sues for Damages.

Washington, Dec. 26.—Ex-Priest McNamara, who has figured prominently as a lecturer, has sued the corporation of Brookland, a suburb of this city, for $200 damages, because he was refused the occupancy of the town hall, which it is alleged, he had engaged.

AGED LADY

Sat Powerless to Help a Companion Burning to Death.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 26.—Mrs. Mary Walson, aged 82, was burned to death at the home of her neice, Mrs. Patrick Reynolds, in Duquesne. She and another aged lady named Mrs. Rose Quigley occupied the same room. Both were very feeble. About 9:30 o'clock Mary Reynolds found Mrs. Walson by the side of the bed, her clothing all ablaze. Mrs. Quigley was sitting by the window powerless to help her companion.

Miss Reynolds attempted to smother the fire. This was accomplished, but not before Mrs. Walson was so badly burned that she died in 20 minutes. Mrs. Quigley said that they were fixing up their room for Christmas when Mrs. Walson, while dusting a mantel, fell against the fire.

BOY KILLED

By an Electric Car at Chicago—The Motorman Roughly Handled by a Mob, Who Sought to Lynch Him.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—George Denmark, seven years of age, was run over and killed Friday afternoon by an electric car at Eighteenth and Throop streets. Within a few minutes 1,500 people gathered on the corner, and Fred Bernier, the motorman, was roughly handled. Bernier was accused of carelessness and the frenzied mob threatened to lynch him. They dragged him from the car and handled him in such a manner that he is now nourishing several severe bruises. A riot call was sounded and patrol wagons filled with officers soon arrived. Bernier was rescued from the hands of the mob and taken to the station, where he was locked up.

NIGHT OPERATOR

Stabbed to Death by Two Drunken Men at Wasson, Miss.

New Orleans, Dec. 26.—Passengers by the Illinois Central train bring news of a tragedy at Wasson, Miss., about 3 o'clock Friday morning. Two young men named Cass, from the country, were drunk and disorderly in the passenger waiting room. The night operator there tried to quiet them but failed.

Under the laws of Mississippi the railroad agents are peace officers about their stations, and the night operator tried to exercise his authority as a peace officer in ejecting the drunken rowdies. He was set upon by them and stabbed three times, from the effects of which he died some hours later. His name was Addison.

Death of Col. Henry J. Lamar.

Macon, Ga., Dec. 26.—Col. Henry J. Lamar, aged 71, died in this city Friday morning, after being in feeble health for several years. The deceased was president of the Exchange bank, of this city, proprietor of large landed estates, and related to L. Q. C. Lamar and Gen. Mirabeau S. Lamar, of the Texas revolution.

Cooper Surrenders.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 26.—A special from LaGrange says that W. D. Cooper, who killed Claude Dunson Thursday, has surrendered. Cooper claims that the shooting was accidental.

Better

Than cure is prevention. If subject to rheumatism, ward off its attacks by purifying your blood now with a thorough course of

Hood's

Sarsaparilla

The best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills cure Liver Ills; easy to take, easy to operate 25c.

A Smart Brother.

A negro was discovered carrying a very large armful of books, which brought forth the inquiry:

"Going to school?"

"Yes, sah, boss."

"Do you study all those books?"

"No, sah; dey's my brudder's. I'se a ignorant kind er nigger side him, boss. You jest orter see dat nigger figgerin'. He done gone an' ciphered clean through addition, partition, subtraction, distraction, abomination, justification, creation, amputation and adoption."

A 50-Cent Calendar Free.

Perhaps the most beautiful Calendar issued for the year '97 is The Youth's Companion Art Calendar, which is given to each subscriber to the paper for the year '97. It is made up of four charming pictures, beautifully reproduced in twelve harmonious colors. It is in form a four-page folder which, when extended, is 10x24 inches in size. The subjects are delightfully attractive. The Calendar makes a desirable ornament for a mantel, center-table or writing-desk. It is offered for sale only by the publishers of The Youth's Companion at 50 cents per copy. Only because of the enormous number published is it possible for the publishers of The Companion to send it free to all Companion subscribers.

Nothing gets a man out of humor quicker than to have some one come in to visit, and then pick up a newspaper and go to reading.—Washington (Ia.) Democrat.

In Olden Times

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action; but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently overcome habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

Miriam—"Don't you think my new hat is a poem, Ned?" Ned (critically)—"From its height, dear, I should compare it instead to a short story!"—Spare Moments.

Dropsy treated free by Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, of Atlanta, Ga. The greatest dropsy specialists in the world. Read their advertisement in another column of this paper.

The real purpose of arbitration is to show that the other fellow is wrong.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

After physicians had given me up, I was saved by Piso's Cure. Ralph Erieg, Williamsport, Pa., Nov. 22, 1893.

Perhaps more good might be accomplished by ringing a curfew for grown people.—N. Y. Press.

Dull, gnawing pain—neuralgia. Prompt, soothing cure—St. Jacobs Oil.

We say that the good die young. As a matter of fact it is the young that die good.—Boston Transcript.

Doubled up and bent with pain—lumbago. Use St. Jacobs Oil and straighten up.

A Padlocked Heart.

How many women lock their troubles and sufferings in their own hearts and silently endure misery and pain which would cause strong men to cry out in agony.

The sufferings of women are more than half unknown and unappreciated. The refined sensitiveness of their organism lays them liable to a thousand exquisite tortures which a coarser nature can never experience or comprehend.

The least derangement or disorder of the delicate special organism of their sex overwhelms the whole physical and mental being with weakness and wretchedness.

But it is a mistake to suffer these troubles in silence. They may be cured in the perfect privacy of home, without the repugnant ordeal of examinations and "local treatment," which the family doctor is sure to insist upon.

No physician in the world has had a wider or more successful experience in the treatment of woman's diseases than Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y. His "Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most obstinate and complicated feminine difficulties.

It is the only medicine of its kind prepared by an educated, skilled physician.

Mr. J. F. Sneed, of Omen, Texas, writes: "My wife was badly afflicted with female weakness. We tried three of the best physicians in the country without benefit, but at great expense. My wife grew worse, and we gave up in despair. She could not get in and out of doors without help; was not able to stand on her feet long at a time, complained of dragging down pains in abdomen. Nothing but an untimely death seemed awaiting her, when—happy thought!—the name of Dr. Pierce came to my mind. I wrote to Dr. Pierce received his advice, followed it, my wife improved perceptibly from the first two week's treatment, continued the treatment six months, and pronounced the cure complete, at a cost of less than one month's treatment by the last physician we employed before consulting Dr. Pierce. She used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and the lotions recommended by him. It has been two years since, and the good effect is permanent."

What organ shall I buy?

Why not buy the one which holds the world's record for largest sales—the

ESTEY

Write for Illustrated Catalogue with prices, to Estey Organ Company, Brattleboro, Vt.

OPIUM HABIT AND DRUNKENNESS Cured in 10 to 20 Days. No Pay till Cured. DR. J. L. STEPHENS, LEBANON, OHIO.

PISO'S CURE FOR

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

CONSUMPTION

MINE EXPLOSION.

Six Men, Including the Treasurer and Superintendent, Killed.

One Body Still Under Ground—State Mine Inspector Has Taken Charge of the Works and Will Make a Thorough Investigation as to the Cause.

PRINCETON, Ind., Dec. 28.—A terrific mine explosion occurred in this city at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Sixteen men were in the mine at the time of the accident. Seven men had been taken out dead up to 10 o'clock Saturday evening, and five fatally injured.

The number of dead as a result of Saturday's explosion at the Maule mine is now definitely ascertained to be six. One man—Robert Poneylight—is still under ground and all hope of his being rescued alive has been given up. The names of the dead are:

Robert Maule, aged 29, treasurer and general superintendent of the Maule Coal Co.

John Holmes, married, three children, aged 53.

Theo. Fabre, married, one child, age 33.

John Ernste, married, two children, age 26.

James Ryan, married, age 21.

Carl Poneylight, single, age 24, residence Belleville, Ill.

All of their bodies have been recovered.

Eight miners were injured. Their names follow:

James Turner, David Nolan, Arthur Colegate, James Cruce, Wm. Grills, Frank Thurber, Thomas Pierce, Wm. Booker.

State Mine Inspector Robert Fisher, of Brazil, and Assistant Inspector Epperson, together with three expert deep vein miners from Hinton and Shelburn, arrived in the city Sunday morning. The mining inspector has taken charge of the mine and will make a thorough investigation.

Several attemps were made Sunday to get the body of Robert Poneylight, but the gas was too strong for the rescuers and the work was given up.

JOHN M. READ,

The Well Known American Diplomatist, Dies of Pneumonia, in Paris.

PARIS, Dec 28.—Gen. John Meridth Read died Sunday morning from pneumonia.

John Meridth Read, the well known American diplomatist, was born in Philadelphia February 27, 1827, he being a son of a former solicitor general of the United States. He received his education at a military school and at Brown academy, where he received the degree of A. M. in 1866. He was graduated at the Albany law school in 1858, studied international law in Europe, was admitted to the bar in Philadelphia and afterward removed to Albany, N. Y. He was adjutant general of New York in 1860-66 and was one of the originators of the "Wide-Awake" political clubs in 1860. He was chairman in April of the same year of the committee of three to draft a bill in behalf of New York state appropriating $100,000 for the purchase of arms and equipments, and he subsequently received the thanks of the war department for his ability and zeal in organizing, equipping and forwarding troops. He was first United States consul general for France and Algeria in 1869-73 and 1870-72 acting consul general for Germany during the Franco-German war.

After the war he was appointed by Gen. DeCissry, French minister of war, to form and preside over a commission to examine into the desirability of teaching the English language to the French troops.

In November, 1873, he was appointed United States minister resident in Greece. One of his first acts was to secure the release of the American ship Armenia and to obtain from the Greek government a revocation of the order that prohibited the sale of the Bible in Greece. During the Russo-Turkey war he discovered that only one port in Russia was still open, and he pointed out to Secretary Evarts the advantages that would accrue to the commerce of the United States were a grain fleet dispatched from New York to that port. The event justified his judgment, since the exports of cereals from the United States showed an increase within a year of $73,000,000.

While minister to Greece he received the thanks of his government for his protection of American persons and interests in the dangerous crisis of 1881. Soon afterward congress, from motives of economy, refused the appropriation for the legation at Athens and Gen. Reed, believing that the time was too critical to withdraw the mission, carried out on his own individual expense until his resignation September 23, 1889.

In 1881, when owing in part to his efforts the territory that had been adjuged to Greece had been finally transferred, King George created him a knight grand cross of the order of the Redeemer, the highest dignity in the gift of the Greek government. Gen. Read was president of the Social Science congress at Albany, N. Y., in 1868, and vice president of one at Plymouth, England, in 1872. He was the author of an "Historical Inquiry Concerning Henry Hudson," which first threw light upon his origin and the sources of the ideas that guided that navigator, and contributions to current literature.

Foul Play Suspected.

KEWANEE, Ills., Dec. 28.—Christopher O'Hirra was found early Saturday morning in a dying condition in the railroad yards. Every indication points to murder. A blood stained hickory club was found near by at 6 o'clock. The man died.

The Prime Minister Denies the Report.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—A dispatch from Madrid to the Central News says that Senor Canovas Del Castillo, the prime minister, denies that negotiations have been or will be opened with the United States looking to the pacification of Cuba.

A WARNING.

European Powers Can Not Remain Impassive Should Uncle Sam Interfere in Cuban Affairs.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—The Times Saturday publishes a dispatch from Paris saying that the United States has been confidentially informed in the most friendly terms that the European powers could not remain impassive in the event of the United States abandoning the attitude of President Cleveland and his cabinet.

Should the United States presume to exercise pressure on Spain by recognizing the Cuban insurgents or encouraging them in their resistance, it has been informed that Europe generally might become uneasy at the idea of such an extension of international action by the United States, inasmuch as it might at a given moment threaten almost all the powers whose possessions are in proximity to the United States and might tempt the spirit of enterprise and encroachment that is inspiring the senate committee on foreign relations. "If," continues the writer, "I am correctly informed the United States has been concurrently informed that Germany is already quite prepared to side with Spain in the event of the United States showing that she is disposed officially to side with the rebels. Moreover, academic conversations are proceeding in certain foreign offices anent the measures the powers should take to form a syndicate against the invasion of socialism which is now menacing all political organizations. It was during these pour parless that the friendly warning to the United States originated, Senator Cameron's resolutions for the recognition of the Cuban insurgents being regarded in some quarters as revolutionary."

PACIFIC COAST.

War Vessels Making Preparations for an Emergency—Mare Island Magazine Being Heavily Stocked With Ammunition.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—The war vessels upon this coast are preparing for an emergency. The magazines at Mare Island are being heavily stocked with ammunition, and there is a feeling of unrest among the officers of the navy.

During the week orders were received from the ordnance department at Washington, D. C., to supply Mare Island with 150,000 rounds of 38 caliber cartridges for navy revolvers. The ammunition will be landed at the navy yard, from which point it may be taken by the various war vessels among which it may be distributed.

That 150,000 rounds of revolver ammunition should be sent to Mare island at this time is considered more than a mere coincidence by men who are acquainted with the manner in which the navy department conducts its affairs. It is generally believed that it is the intention of the authorities at Washington to put all the depots of naval supplies upon what may be termed an emergency footing.

A LOCOMOTIVE

Strikes a Motor Car, Killing the Motorman and Injures Several Passengers.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Dec. 26.—A trolley car coming to this city from Bethlehem Friday afternoon was struck by a Jersey Central passenger train on a grade crossing in East Allentown. The trolley car conductor had ran ahead and signaled to the motorman to proceed. He changed the signal upon seeing the approaching train, but it was too late. Motorman Lawrence J. Ware stopped the car with the front platform on the track. The train was running at the rate of 25 miles an hour, and when the locomotive struck the car it broke the platform off, carrying it 150 feet. The motorman was dragged almost as far and killed almost instantly. The car was broken to splinters. Conductor George Gresser had his face slightly bruised, and four passengers from Bethlehem were injured: John Brink, face cut; Mrs. John Brink, back bruised; Ed. Werg, thigh and spine hurt, and P. Gehman, forehead and cheek cut and legs bruised. None of their injuries, however, are serious. Motorman Ware was 39 years old and leaves a wife and eight children.

CRUSOE'S ISLAND

Suddenly Disappears in the Sea—Submarine Earthquake.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—Robinson Crusoe's island (Juan Fernandez) has been swallowed up by the sea.

The rumor of the island's disappearance was first circulated several weeks ago by a sea captain at Lisbon, but the report was not believed at the time. The story was Friday given what is considered authentic verification by Capt. Powell, of the British ship James Kerr, now in this port. The Kerr has just arrived from Newcastle, New South Wales, and Capt. Powell avers that the story of the Spanish skipper seems to be true in every particular. The sailor stated that from the deck of his vessel he had seen the island go under, and that the sea all around was perturbed as if by a submarine earthquake.

Thousands Dying of Starvation.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 26.—Ex-Judge Goodridge has written a letter to the Englishman, a newspaper of this city, stating that every day thousands of persons are dying from starvation in the central provinces of India. He declares that the government arrangements to cope with the situation are entirely inadequate and that the famine is now beyond control.

Supposed Victim of the Mafia.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Antione Z. Zanone, an Italian barber, supposed to be a victim of the Mafia, is dying at St. Vincent's hospital with two stab wounds in his left breast, and the police are looking for Luigi Cataloue, who is accused of attacking him without provocation.

Ex-Queen Liliuokalani in Boston.

BOSTON, Dec. 26.—Ex-Queen Liliuokalani, of Hawaii, arrived in this city at 10 o'clock Friday night and was at once driven to the Parker house, which will be her headquarters during her stay in this city.

RAILWAY WRECK.

Twenty-Eight Persons Killed and Ten Injured, Two Fatally.

A Train Goes Through a Bridge 120 Feet High Into the Cahaba River—A Portion of the Bridge Goes Down With the Train and the Debris Takes Fire.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 28.—One of the most disastsous wrecks in the history of southern railroads happened 36 miles south of here Sunday morning at 7:50 o'clock in which 28 persons were killed outright and 10 others injured, two of whom will die. The ill-fated train was a Louisville and Nashville local which runs from here to Blocton, a distance of 40 miles. The train left here at 5:30 in charge of Engineer Frank White and Conductor A. P. Connell. Four miles north of Blocton the entire train, made up of an engine, baggage car and two passenger coaches, crashed through a bridge 700 feet long and 120 feet high into the Cahaba river. A rail had been removed from the track, and when the engine struck that, 300 feet of the bridge gave way and went down with the train. Immediately the wreck took fire, the water being only three feet deep, and before sufficient help could be secured, the unfortunate passengers and trainmen, who were pinioned under the debris were burned to death in sight of other unfortunate victims of the disaster. Some of the passengers, not so badly hurt, managed to crawl out and do all they could in assisting others, but with little avail.

The dead are: Frank White, engineer, of Birmingham; Geo. Carney, flagman, Birmingham; A. P. Connell, conductor, of Birmingham; Thomas Streeter, colored porter, of Birmingham; Jordon Powell, wife and eight children, of Blocton; Mrs. Henry Hanberry and two children, of Birmingham; James Boling, express messenger, of Guthrie, Ky.; L. W. Martin, Brookwood; Bruce Phillips, Blocton; S. W. Tibbs and wife, Campbelltown; Andrew Bryson, Blocton; Geo. Glendall, Helena, and four others unidentified.

The injured are: Ed Echols, slightly injured; Henry Hanbury, ribs broken; —— Powell, child, feet badly burned; Mrs. Walker, of Blocton, internally, will die; Mrs. Walker's three children, slightly injured; Miss Booth, Blocton, internally, will die; Stan Stewart, arm broken.

The bridge was a ponderous wooden structure with an iron span of 200 feet in the center, and just at the beginning of the iron work train wreckers had pulled the spikes and removed one of the rails. When the engineer discovered this as was evident from the position of his throttle and reverse lever, he immediately attempted to stop but was running at such a rate of speed as to carry down the bridge. Every evidence showed that train-wreckers had been at work.

As soon as news was received here both the Louisville and Nashville and Southern railways sent out relief trains loaded with physicians and others, and everything possible was done for those who had been fortunate enough to get away from reach of the flames, which quickly consumed all of the coaches and a part of the bridge. Many of the dead were charred completely beyond recognition. The exact number who perished will never be known but it is believed it will reach 35. To cap the climax one of the relief trains which left here ran into the rear end of the wrecking train, which was stopped about 150 feet from the bridge, and came near knocking it on top of the burning train. In this accident the following were injured: Sam Eastis, will die; Wm. Rast, will die; Wood Campbell, leg broken; Charles L Stone, legs badly hurt: John Rittenbury, ankle broken.

MACEO'S DEATH.

The Cuban General was Not Betrayed by the Spanish Under a Flag of Truce.

NEW YORK, Dec 28.—A letter received here by a member of the Cuban Junta from the secretary of the late Gen. Maceo gives the first really official information of his death. It says that Maceo was not betrayed to the Spaniards under a flag of truce. He had passed the trocha with thirty of his officers, his intention being to concentrate the forces of Havana province and probably attack the city while Weyler was away afield. His plan was betrayed to the Spaniards, and for this Dr. Zertucha is suspected.

At San Pedro, near Havana, the party had to pass along a roadway on one side of which was a stone wall. A company o Spanish sharpshooters had been stationed behind it. Gen. Maceo and young Gomez were in advance of the rest of the party. Suddenly the riflemen fired a volley, killing Maceo and Gomez. Justiz and Nodarse, who were following closely behind, were also killed instantly. The writer of the letter was wounded, but made his escape. The remaining members of Maceo's staff were allowed to escape.

Kate Field's Remains Cremated.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—The body of Kate Field, who died in the Sandwich islands last summer, was incinerated Sunday and Monday her ashes will be shipped east for interment. The services were in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Highton, assisted by the Press club of San Francisco and were held in Trinity Episcopal church. Rev. George Walk, the rector, read the burial service.

Gen. Lee Arrives in Havana.

HAVANA, Dec. 28.—Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, consul general at Havana, who has been absent in the United States on leave of absence from his post for about two months, arrived here Saturday morning. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter. Gen. Lee says he has returned to resume his duties as consul general He says he has received no special instructions from his government, but will maintain a close watch of affairs and will keep his government thoroughly posted in regard to the situation in Cuba and all further developments on the island

MANY QUARTS

Of Nitro-Glycerin Explode Near Montpelier, Ind.—The Empire Magazine and Two Men Blown to Atoms.

PORTLAND, Ind., Dec. 24.—A terrific explosion at 7:15 Wednesday morning shook every town within a radius of 50 miles.

It was at the Empire Glycerin company's magazine, near Montpelier, which contained several hundred quarts of nitroglycerin. Harry Woods and George Hicock were at the magazine at the time and both were blown to atoms.

Little remains but a great hole in the ground where the building stood. Advices from towns all over this part of the state tell of the shock being felt. In the closer ones windows were broken and chimneys knocked down.

CENTERVILLE, Ind., Dec. 24—Two distinct earth vibrations at 7:30 Wednesday morning were perceptible for several seconds.

WINCHESTER, Ind., Dec. 24.—A heavy shock was felt here Wednesday morning from the Montpelier explosion. Houses trembled and dishes rattled. There was much excitement.

ANDERSON, Ind., Dec. 24.—Many here thought that a gas explosion occurred Wednesday morning. Doors swung open and windows and dishes rattled. Reports from the country were of the earthquake order. Later, news of the Montpelier explosion was received.

ELWOOD, Ind,, Dec. 24.—Elwood citizens were startled early Wednesday morning by a shock which shook the houses to their foundations and made windows rattle. Many thought it an earthquake, but the disturbance was later learned to have been caused by the explosion, near Montpelier, 35 miles distant.

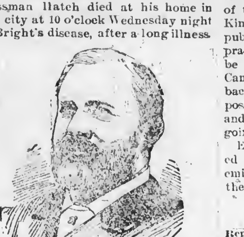
GENEVA, Ind., Dec. 24.—The shock of the big explosion near Montpelier, 20 miles east, was plainly felt here, breaking windows and rattling furniture and crockery.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 24.—News received here states that the shock of the Montpelier nitro-glycerin explosion was plainly felt in Peru, Albany and 50 gas-belt towns. In Montpelier there is scarcely a house in which glassware was not broken. A team of horses near the magazine was killed.

EX-CONGRESSMAN HATCH

Dies of Bright's Disease, After a Long Illness, at His Home in Hannibal, Mo.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Dec. 24.—Ex-Congressman Hatch died at his home in this city at 10 o'clock Wednesday night of Bright's disease, after a long illness.



Wm. Henry Hatch was born in Scott county, Ky., September 11, 1833. He was educated at Lexington, Ky., and admitted to the bar in September 1854, as a practicing lawyer He served during the civil war in the confederate army. In 1862 he was commissioned captain and assistant adjutant general, and in 1868 was assigned to duty as a street commissioner of exchange and continued in this position until the close of the war He was elected to the Forty-first. Forty-seventh. Forty-eighth. Forty-ninth. Fiftieth. Fifty-first and Fifty-third congresses. During all this time he served on the committee of agriculture. He made a strong fight for pure food, and was the author of a bill advocating purer food.

He gained most of his prominence through the anti-option bill. In 1894 he was defeated for congress by C. N. Clark.

Col. Hatch has resided in Marion county, Mo, for the past 40 years, and has a wife and two children, L. S. Hatch, of Memphis, Tenn., and Miss Sallie, who is at home.

AN OUTLINE

Of the Campaign Against the Insurgents in Cuba—A Vigorous Combined Movement.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—The Standard Thursday publishes a Madrid dispatch giving the outlines of the plan of the campaign against the insurgents in Cuba, which has been concerted by Capt. Gen Weyler and the Spanish government. The Spanish advance into the province of Pinar del Rio will be followed, according to the programme decided upon by a vigorous combined movement of ten columns of government troops comprising 30,000 men, with a view to compelling the insurgents to either surrender and lay down their arms or to cross the trocha into the Havana province. When this plan shall have been carried out in Pinar del Rio, similar tactics will be pursued in the Havana and Matanzas provinces.

If these plans are successfully carried out before March next the government will inaugurate reforms in Porto Rico, which will be followed slowly by reforms in Cuba, and the cortes will be convoked to sanction extensive concessions in the administration of the affairs of the island.

Cuban Sympathizers in Mexico.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 24.—The patriotism of Mexicans and their fervent love of liberty is shown in their strong sympathy with the Cuban insurgents. Every day during the past six months there have been encounters in the City of Mexico between Mexicans and Spaniards and the general government is taking severe measures to quell any public demonstration of hostility to Spain.

West Superior Bank Fails.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Dec. 24.—The bank of West Superior did not open its doors for business Wednesday morning, being forced into liquidation by the failure of the Bank of Minnesota. The officials of the bank say they will resume soon and pay all depositors in full. The November statement showed deposits, $79,000; loans and discounts, $106,971 and real estate assets of $43,000. The bank's capital was $70,000 and surplus $50,000. The cash on hand was $22,000 and all but $2,000 of this was tied up in outside failures. The city of Superior and board of education have nearly $14,000 in the bank.

ANOTHER M'KINLEY LAW.

The Chinese Wall of Protection Is to Be Rebuilt.

Within the past few days two of Maj. McKinley's bosom friends, Congressman Grosvenor and Mr. H. H. Kohlsaat, have given out evidently inspired information which should fill the great mass of the republican party with alarm. For it spells repudiation and defeat in 1898 and 1900. This information is that the major is still inflamed with his single and singular idea that he was elected for the sole purpose of rebuilding the Chinese wall of high tariff, and that the clique that surrounds him is going to take full advantage of his infatuation. Instead of keeping their implied pledge to the nation that there would be no immediate reopening of the question, they are apparently determined to keep their expressed pledge to the tariff robbers that the Wilson bill would not stand a month after McKinley's inauguration.

To begin with, according to inspired Prophet Grosvenor, chief of the corps of vaticination, Mr. McKinley and his friends intend to abolish ad valorem imposts, which, have in the Wilson bill approximated to honesty, and to return to the old specific duty system, which enables the tariff robbers to levy "all the traffic will bear," in the immortal words of Mr. Collis P. Huntington, without letting the people know where the wound is that is draining their blood.

Then they are going to restore high taxes on wool, lumber, coal and the products of the farm; and information is nonchalantly given that the duties on "glass, tin, pottery, chemicals and some other products will be moved up a peg or two." Not the least interesting of the proposed changes is the imposition of what is brazenly called a "reciprocity duty on sugar;" which indicates that the Havemeyers have been pretty well represented on Mr. Hanna's list of contributors to the McKinley campaign fund. It is designed to have the bill completed by March 4, so that it can be rushed through congress the first week of the extra session in March.

Meanwhile there is no hint from any source to show that the republicans have the slightest intention of giving the country relief from the present dangerous condition of the financial system. Though this was the sole issue of the campaign that resulted in McKinley's election, and though every republican leader, in speech or in print, practically promised that there would be no renewal of tariff agitation, the Canton clique are going to hurry us back to the McKinley basis as soon as possible, in order to please their friends and patrons, the mill bosses, and are going to ignore everybody else.

Evidently Mr. Mark Hanna has adopted the philosophy of one of the most eminent of his predecessors—"After me the deluge!"—N. Y. Journal.

THE TARIFF TROUBLE.

Republicans Dealing Unfairly with the People.

The Canton correspondent of the New York Tribune writes that "Maj. McKinley believes in a protective tariff, and thinks the revision of the existing revenue law the first step toward procuring a perfect restoration of confidence in the commercial world. The men who have been invited to confer with him on this subject say that his conversation is an inspiration, and that his ideas about tariff revision are so broad, so clear, so just, and at the same time so exact and so freighted with the wisdom of long practical experience, that they inevitably sink deep into the minds of the listeners and give definite form to the purposes of those whose task it is to grapple with the tariff at Washington."

It is a pity that Maj. McKinley does not say in public what he tells those who are invited to confer with him. The public needs inspiration, and the lack of knowledge as to the exact ideas of McKinley on tariff legislation is producing a feeling of anxious uncertainty in business circles. Business needs inspiration, and it cannot come too quickly. For our own part we belive that a public announcement by McKinley that he approved the suggestion of President Cleveland that the present tariff be permitted to stand a trial under the new conditions would be a real inspiration. The New York Herald says:

> "The mere suggestion that there may be an extra session of congress to again rip up the tariff has sent a chill through the country and checked the advance which started when the victory for sound money was won. The caution now displayed by industrial and commercial circles is based on good grounds."

The republicans justify the tariff ripping crusade by declaring that the St. Louis platform demanded protection, and the people voted for the St. Louis platform. This is ingenuous, because there was never a national platform so completely smothered and repudiated by the declarations of candidates, newspapers and party orators as was the republican platform of 1896. It is within the bounds of reason to say that if the republican campaign had been conducted upon its platform McKinley's election would be jeopardized. The St. Louis platform was kept in the background, and for McKinley and his party to assume that the people voted for something that was swept out of the canvass at the beginning is scarcely dealing honestly with the people.—Utica Observer.

——The thing for democrats who have faith in the future of the party to do is to be patient, watch developments and leave it to time to bring about an adjustment of the difficulties and differences that have disturbed the party. Not for nearly two years will the democracy be required to make another general demonstration of its party strength. Meanwhile many things may happen. It is by no means a reckless prediction that the radical course of the republican party will do more to solidify the democratic ranks than would 100,000 peacemakers.—Rochester Herald.

PROTECTION PRIVILEGES.

Devices of the McKinleyites for Favoring the Trusts.

A paragraph found in the news columns of the press within a few days to the effect that the fruit growers of southern Illinois are moving to establish local branches of the American Fruit Growers' union, with a view to solving the problem of securing proper distribution of fruits and vegetables among the various markets in the country, has a wider significance than appears on the surface.

When an individual has secured possession of land adapted to the growing of any crop and succeeds in producing it the problem of disposing of it seems on its face very simple. But from what has been said of it in various quarters it is far from being simple.

To go a long way from home for an illustration, there are regions in Arizona peculiarly well adapted to the production of semitropical fruits, but when certain owners lately brought these lands into cultivation and found themselves in possession of rich crops they found at the same time that certain combinations of California fruit growers—whether this American union or some other is immaterial—had virtual possession of the markets by reason of some kind of arrangement with the managers of the rail lines of access to those markets, and because of this the crops of the new would-be competitors practically went to waste on their hands.

Whether this American union has any such restricting arrangement with transportation agencies is not known. Probably it has, and if so it is only one manifestation of the constantly-widening and ramifying problem of "controlling trade," through the operation of which the general public is more or less deprived of the advantages which should naturally flow from increased production and increased facilities for intercommunication.

It may seem hardly necessary to add that all such restrictions and hamperings of what should be free commercial movement operate ultimately to restrict consumption and so chill the general prosperity. But it should surprise nobody that such clandestine and semiclandestine devices for "protecting" a favored few are thus privately resorted to among a people whose national government makes similar protection of the interests of the favored few at the expense of all its openly-avowed policy.—Chicago Chronicle.

EXPOSED THE DINGLEY BILL.

Republican Hypocrisy Revealed in the Senate.

Senator Vest did good service for the country and the democracy by exposing in the senate the hypocrisy of the republicans with regard to the Dingley bill in particular and the tariff in general.

His vigorous attack on the bill and on the republican attitude with regard to the tariff brought out the statement from the republican side of the senate that the republicans did not expect to pass the bill and regarded it as dead.

Senator Teller added to the interest and significance of the revelation by asserting that it never was the intention of the republicans to pass the bill, but that it was drawn up and introduced for political effect in the campaign. It was intended to serve as a sop and an appetite whetter to the manufacturers, from whom the republicans wanted aid in the election.

The republican talk about the Dingley bill is, therefore, pure moonshine. The leaders admit they cannot pass it, and that, if they could, would not pass it. As a matter of fact, they would regard its passage as a great party calamity, because it would take away the excuse for calling an extra session and passing a bill which would be satisfactory to the horde of bounty seekers the party has on its hands.

The debate thoroughly punctured the revenue and prosperity bluster of the republicans. It emphasized the fact that McKinleyism means less revenue for the treasury and the checking of general prosperity. It showed that the kind of revenue and prosperity the republicans are preparing to create are private, not public.—St. Louis Republic.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

——Before trying it on outsiders, might it not be well for the republican party to establish reciprocity between Billy McKinley and Tommie Reed.—Kansas City Times.

——One of the most remarkable developments of the period is the republican politician who accepts a fat office only because he wants to spite somebody.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

——There are evidences that some of the republican statesmen are beginning to grow weary of Mark Hanna, and this will bring up the old question, what are they going to do about it?—Peoria Herald.

——There is nothing startling in the announcement that the chairman of Mr. Hanna's inaugural committee has "large corporate interests." That is the kind of a man Mr. Hanna is.—N. Y. Journal.

——The Dingley bill is dead, but the corpse contains the germ of a far more fruitful measure for the bounty pickers who are getting ready to swoop on Washington when McKinley goes in.—St. Louis Republic.

——The trusts are all at work on their respective schedules now. The woolen, glass and iron and steel concerns have already made their demands public, and the rest will be heard from in good time. They are all in the saddle, and Mr. Hanna has the reins.—Charleston News and Courier.

——It is believed that by inserting attractive want advertisements in the great papers of the country the government would sell enough postage stamps to make the post office department self-sustaining. It is just as proper to swindle the people that way as by doing so by means of a trust-fostering protective tariff.—Dallas (Tex.) News.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, Dec. 30, 1896.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time	$1.00
Each additional time	.25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch	.50

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

☞Announcement of candidates for office, cash when ordered........$5.00.

For Assessor.

We are authorized to announce W. W. GRIMSLEY, of Big Bone, as a candidate for Assessor, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce O. S. WATTS, of Bullitisville, as a candidate for Assessor, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For Jailer.

We are authorized to announce J. F. BLYTH, of Burlington, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce T. J. ADAMS, of Burlington precinct, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce OSCAR J. RYLE, of Burlington, as a candidate for Jailer, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For School Superintendent.

We are authorized to announce E. L. CLEMENTS, of Rabbit Hash, as a candidate for Superintendent of Schools, of Boone county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Richwood.

Jim Delahanty did not entertain Christmas.

Mr. Henry Hill will spend a few days in Ghent, Ky.

Mr. C. N. Curry, of Big Bone, passed through here enroute to Cincinnati.

C. B. Rice is spoken of as a candidate for Justice of the Peace in this district.

Senator Conner entertained a number of guests Christmas day. Those from a distance were Dr. Louise Southgate, of Paris, France; Col. George T. Gaines, of Gainesville, Fla. The daintiest dish on the table was a fine, fat o'possum, that Dr. Louise pronounced to be a fine specimen of the Didelphys Virginiana.

Union.

Mrs. M. J. Crouch is spending a few days with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Rice spent a few days in the Bullittsville neighborhood, recently.

Miss Lou Williams has returned from quite a lengthy visit in Cincinnati.

Mrs. John Garrison was the guest of Mrs. B. L. Rice, of Covington, several days last week.

Miss Emma, the accomplished and charming daughter of R. D. Finnell, was married to Mr. Rouse, of near Gunpowder, last week, by Uncle Ed Stephens Our best wishes go with them.

I like to see our young folks have a nice time, but the way some of them were racing through the principal streets of our town Sunday afternoon, is a disgrace to all concerned. It is time our town should stop the practice. We should get a new charter and be in shape to see after these things. Of course the young folks don't think it any impropriety.

Walton.

The entertainment given by the Walton Academy was an unprecedented success. An hour before the time for beginning, the Opera House was packed as closely as sardines in a box-only the heads were all up. The pupils acquitted themselves very handsomely in each and every particular, and all deserve the highest encomiums; and the patrons of the school must have felt proud over the performances of their children and grateful to the teachers who had trained them so carefully. To those carping critics who class all school exhibitions as useless and a waste of time, there is only to be said this; anything that will tend to make children in love with their school and cause them to feel that life is not a dreary desert waste, is so much gained in stimulating them towards further intellectual and physical developments. The drills and calisthenic training to which much time has been devoted has produced in their minds an elation that cannot fail to produce very beneficial results bodily and mentally. It is unnecessary to particularize the performances of any one, where all did so well.

Limaburg.

Bad colds are numerous.

Jno. P. Utz has two fresh milch cows for sale.

The weather is fine and the roads are quite dusty.

W. R. Rouse has been spreading new metal on the pike.

Henry Quick, of Hebron, has spent a portion of the holidays here.

There is a turkey dinner somewhere in the neighborhood nearly every day.

Harvey Baker came home from school at Lexington to spend the holidays.

The thermometer registered ten degrees above zero here on Christmas morning.

Quite a number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clore enjoyed a Christmas dinner with them.

Henry Tanner, of near Florence, gave the road leading down the creek from this place a renovating last week.

Death visited this neighborhood again last week, its victim being Mrs. Thomas B. Aylor, who died at 6 p. m., on the 23d inst., after several weeks' illness. The deceased left a husband and eight children and a large circle of friends to mourn her death. The remains were interred in the family burying ground.

Bellevue.

Mrs. Micheal Clore is improving very slowly.

Dr. R. E. Ryle and J. T. Marshall have made a break, and were calling on the young ladies. Being quite young and bashful they progress very slowly. You know youths are very timid. Boys, have courage.

Esq. M. B. Green gave the young folks a social dance a few nights since, and it was highly appreciated by all who attended. They could not have been otherwise, as the Squire and his wife take great delight in having every one around them to enjoy themselves.

Mrs. L. M. Whitehead is visiting her sister, Mrs. Lucy Huey.

D. M. Snyder has converted himself into a kindling wood-dray. He passes here every morning with a load of kindling wood for the school house, and has about exhausted the supply in Bellevue.

Our local tobacco merchant, Pete Clore is ready to give you his time to look at your tobacco, whether he buys or not.

Noah West, who moved from here last summer to Indiana, has moved back into the house on James Roger's farm that he vacated. He did not find Jim when he got to Hoosier, and in fact, you do not find many such men in any place.

Miss Grace Rogers is home from Louisville, where she has been since last summer.

May the proprietor, correspondents and readers of the old Boone County RECORDER, spend a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, and may the pages of this valuable paper be read by every Boone county home the next year, is the wish of your old pencil shover.

A very quiet christmas with us. Santa Claus seemed to have forgotten us this time.

The Baptist Church Singing Society will give an entertainment next Saturday evening at the church. All are cordially invited to attend

Considerable grippe in this neighborhood.

J. J. Walton, R A. Brady and others have bought several big lots of corn at 22 and 23 cents, and are hauling it.

Boone Rogers and family, Jas. Rogers and family, Al Rogers and family, and L M. Whitehead and wife were the guests of J. J. Huey and wife, last Sunday.

E. L Grant and wife and J. R. Clutterbuck and wife spent the day Sunday with Arnold Bros and sisters.

Ask Dr. Williamson and Pete Deck how the river road is from Bellevue to the Aurora ferry.

Gasburg.

Will and Arthur Dean, of Indiana, are visiting their grandfather, Abile Dean.

Nannie Baker has returned from Indiana, after an extended visit.

Arthur Davis' children are suffering with the chickenpox.

Prof. Johnson is spending his Christmas at home in Hoosier.

Cordelia and Mary Rector gave a party to their friends, Saturday night.

Col. Wm. Appleton is confined to his room on account of cold and other complications.

G. R. Berkshire and family took dinner christmas day with J. I. McWethy and family

Dick Kittle is some better of pneumonia, but is not yet able to be out.

Say, Andy if you want to play McK. on us you will have to pay our toll, and we will come out and eat dinner with you and vote for you.

Messrs. Klopp, Hartman, Romines, Nixon, Sweeney, Aikin, Sullivan and Len were the guests of Mayor Evans, Saturday night, but on account of room Len left.

Old Pete may have a candidate yet, as the friends of Solon Early would be glad of the opportunity to vote for him for Sheriff of Boone. Pete has not had a sheriff for fifty years, but if Solon shies his castor it may not be a very long time until she does

Now, Mr. Editor we want to ask you a favor. As the city of Pete has always gobbled up the postoffice, do you not think it is just for the country to have some pie. I do not want it myself, but my friend Hon. George Bird, colored, does. We have in Kentucky 63,461 colored voters, and they are entitled to some pie.

Petersburg.

Squire McWethy has typhoid symptoms.

Our morning mail doesn't get here now until 9 o'clock.

Old Uncle James Jarrell, of Woo per Creek, is down with pneumonia.

Mr. Henry Hoffman, who lives just out of town, is quite sick at this time.

The face of our friend, Capt. Alden, wears a smile for more than one reason

Prof. Sharp gave splendid proof at Woolper school house, last Friday night, that he has the right name.

Chas. and Harry Bahn were showing some of their Hoosier friends through the country back of town xmas day.

Mr. Henry Crisler, so long noted for excellent health and strength, is considerably under the weather this season.

The friends of John Snelling favored him and his wife with their presence all day on the 25th, and Bona Brooks entertained on the 27th.

The Christian Endeavor will give an open session at the Christian church at 7 o'clock p. m., New Year's. An admission fee of 10c will be charged.

The remark of Mr. Bryan in regard to the strength of the nation depending on the farmers, is well illustrated in these parts at the present time.

Two of Mrs. Antros' children have pneumonia. Rev. Harris was seen at her door christmas morning with a good sized basket well filled. How the scene reminded one of the Scriptures—James 1:27.

A large crowd of relatives and friends assembled at Dr. J. M. Grant's Christmas day, to feast on a 30 pound turkey and other things in proportion. Tip Hensley dined several of his friends the same day.

Your versatile correspondent, of Utzinger, was a little out of it when he said there were some bad cases of diphtheria in our burg. He, no doubt, had a case in his mind that he has been treating near Hartford, Ind.

There has probably never been as little noise about town during christmas holidays as the present. As there has been no entertainment here yet, Santa Claus has been parading the streets with a crowd of small boys following.

* * *

We call your attention to the change in J. P. Carter's advertisement. He is making very low prices.

FROM GALLATIN COUNTY.

The Sad Killing of a Former Boone Man—Other Items of News.

[Independent]

Hon. Benj. F. Furnish, of Napoleon, was united in marriage to Mrs. Amanda Howard, Tuesday afternoon at Berry Station, Harrison county, Ky.

Mrs. Minnie Scott, wife of Joseph Scott, died at their home on Little Sugar Creek, Dec. 12th, after a lingering illness from consumption, aged 22.

John Smith, of Steel's Creek, in returning from Warsaw to his home Tuesday afternoon, was bruised up considerably by his horse running away and throwing him out of the buggy near Paint Lick.

Brother Josiah Ellis peacefully passed away at his home near Glencoe, Ky., Dec. 1st, after several months of severe suffering. He was born in Richmond, Va., Feb. 20th, 1815. His parents moved to Frankfort. Ky., in 1820.

Wednesday afternoon, about four o'clock, a horrible accident occurred near town by which W. L. Ryle, a well-to-do farmer, residing between here and Sugar Creek, lost his life. Mr. Ryle with his wife and little son James, had been in town purchasing some Christmas goods, and were returning home in high spirits over a prospective merry Christmas. It is sad that our hopes and anticipations in such pleasant matters are oftimes overshadowed by disappointment and distressful calamities. The poor man little dreamed that death was in his path instead of a happy holiday. As Mr. Ryle reached the residence of Capt. J. H. McDanell, his wife concluded to go into the house to see about some business matter, and as they drove into the gate a package fell from the buggy and frightened the horse and caused him to run away. He dashed down the avenue and on reaching the front of the house the buggy upset throwing out the occupants, Mr. Ryle's head striking the heavy wood post of the veranda, bruising his head in a terrible manner and fracturing his skull. Mrs. Ryle was seriously hurt, but the boy escaped injury. Friends ran to their assistance and the injured people were taken into the house. Drs. Robinson, Brown and Clark were hastily summoned and did all in their power to relieve the suffering of the unfortunate man and woman. Mr. Ryle never regained consciousness, and died about two hours after the accident. His remains were taken in charge by undertaker George Winters and conveyed to his home a short distance above. Mrs. Ryle was able to be taken home next morning and is still in a serious condition. Their daughter, Miss Katie, was in Cincinnati on a visit, and she was telegraphed to come home. Larkin Ryle was born in Boone county, and was about 55 years old. He leaves several children, some quite small. He was a good citizen. His sad and sudden death has cast a gloom over the entire community. The funeral took place from his late home Friday, Christmas day, at 9:30 o'clock. the remains being taken to Concord, in the upper part of the county, to be laid to rest alongside of those of his departed relatives. The horse that ran away was an old family horse but was fractious at times.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

One of Carroll County's Belles Captured by an Old Boone Boy.

[Democrat.]

Robert Duke, colored, who was sent to the penitentiary from this county in Sept., 1894, for killing David Brooks, colored, at a festival in the colored Baptist church in this place, was pardoned Monday by Gov. Bradley. A remarkably strong case was made out to secure the pardon. Nearly all the business men in Carrollton signed a strongly worded petition asking his release; several county officers and lawyers wrote earnest letters to the Governor.

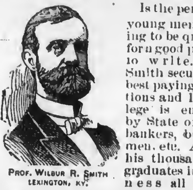
Thursday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, there occurred at Bramlette Baptist church in this county a notable wedding. Miss Zue Coleman, the eldest daughter of Col. Z. T. Coleman, was joined in the holy bonds with W. W. Gaines, Esq., of Atlanta, Ga.,—and sympathy and love and friendship joined hands to make the occasion in keeping with the rank and popularity of the beautiful and charming young bride. Loving hands had decorated the old country church in a tasteful manner, and a large assembly of kindly spirits witnessed the nuptials and poured out volumes of best wishes upon the altar of the hearts united. The ceremony by Rev. Forrest Smith, the pastor of the church, was exceedingly well phrased and most admirably said. Mr. Gaines, in a suit of black, well adapted in style to his station and intelligence, looked quite handsome while his professional mien was apparent to all. But the fair bride, so soon to depart from the scenes of her childhood, held a monopoly of attention. She wore a superb traveling dress perfect in fit and finish, with hat and gloves matching, and her magnificent beauty and graceful carriage were such as would have become an ideal queen. Mr. R. Ellis Crutcher and wife, the latter a cousin of the bride, were the attendants, both attired in a manner appropriate to their office.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaines left on the train that evening for Cincinnati. They will go on Friday out to the home of the groom's father in Boone county, Ky., thence to Atlanta.

Mr. Gaines has resided in the South several years. He is a prominent member of the Atlanta bar and has taken conspicuous parts in conventions and councils of the Baptist church. Mrs. Gaines needs no words of praise in this county as to either beauty or personal worth, for these are proverbial. She is an educated and cultured young woman, well adapted in all respects for the new and solemn relation she has just assumed.

* * *

Prof. Wilbur R. Smith, Lexington, Ky.



PROF. WILBUR R. SMITH
LEXINGTON, KY.

Is the person for young men wishing to be qualified for a good position to write. Prof. Smith secures the best paying situations and his College is endorsed by State officials, bankers, business men, etc. Among his thousands of graduates in business all over America, as merchants, bankers, officials, are nearly 2,000 in Kentucky. Hon. F. B. Gray, National Bank Examiner of Texas, and J. E. Brock of a St. Louis bank, receiving $2,000 a year, are both Kentucky boys and like 100 other graduates of Prof. Smith, occupying lucrative bank positions, found their Business Course and Diploma from his College to have been a passport to their positions. Hon. J. M. Samuels says: "Prof. Wilbur R. Smith is a gentleman of character and ability, evinced by the different positions of honor and trust to which he has been called. For over 25 years he has been a successful Business Educator—20 years as President of the Commercial College of Kentucky University, of which I am a graduate. He was a World's Fair Commissioner from Kentucky; also President of the Chamber of Commerce, and Vice President of a National Bank, and for years a practical Accountant."

If you wish a Business Education, or a knowledge of Phonography, Typewriting or telegraphy at the least total cost, with Diploma from Kentucky University on graduation, address only Prof. W. R. Smith, Lexington, Ky.—[Exchange.

* * *

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby gived to the stockholders of the Burlington Mercantile Company that the annual election of directors of said company, will be held at the store of Blyth & Clutterbuck, in Burlington, Ky., the former business house of said company. Said election will be held at the place stated on Monday, Jan. 4th, 1897, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 2 o'clock p. m. I, as president of said company hereby appoint W. F. Grant, J. W. Cloud and H. W. Blyth officers to hold said election. Given under my hand as president of said company, this 16th day of December, 1896. N. E. RIDDELL,
President Burlington Mer. Co.

* * *

FOR SALE—About 700 bushels, good assorted corn, lot of oak paling and fence posts and a lot of sheaf oats. All of this property is to be found on the farm of the late J. H. Smith, north of Burlington. Apply to
W. L. AYLOR, Adm'r.

KENTUCKY MIDLAND RAILROAD.

[Via Georgetown.]

P. M.	A.M.			A.M.	P. M
d 4:50	z9:13	Ar Walton	Lv	7:54	z
4:12	8:52	Ar Williamstown	Lv	8:32
3:48	8:28	Ar Corinth	Lv	8:55	5:48
3:30	8:13	Ar Sadieville	Lv	9:12	6:05
2:20	7:50	Ar Georgetown	Lv	9:40	6:33
1:00	6:55	Lv Frankfort	Ar	11:30	7:25

z Daily. d Except Sunday.

C. D. BERCAW, G. P. A.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent?

Protect your ideas; they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

THE QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Vestibuled Limited Trains to Southern Towns and Cities. A fine trip for summer outing through the Blue Grass region, the great Cumberland Plateau and to far famed Lookout Mountain. The historic battlefields of CHICKAMAUGA, Mission Ridge and LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN, Cool and invigorating air, unequaled scenery, good hotels.

Low reduced rates via the Queen & Crescent Route now on sale from cities and villages of the North.

Write to W. C. Rinearson, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, Cincinnati, for illustrated and descriptive matter.

Scientific American Agency for

PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

[illegible]

Overcoats
Ulsters

In inticipation of a Long and Severe Winter we bought heavily of of Overcoats and Ulsters. The continued warm weather has Frightened us—we may have some of these goods left over next Spring—that is what we must avoid—and we will avoid it by offering special inducements for the next THIRTY DAYS.

We bought these goods cheap, and discounted every bill. Our expenses are low, and we are always satisfied with small profits. We invite inspection of these garments—comparison with any other dealer's will not be necessary—You can See where Ours Excel at a Glance.

Yours For Reliable Business,

ROLFES & WACHS, RELIABLE CLOTHIERS
S. W. Cor. Pike & Madison, COVINGTON, KY.

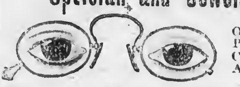
STEPHENS & SCALES,

—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN—

Hardware, Cutlery, and Agricultural Implements,

Genuine Oliver Chilled & Steel Plows,
Bissell Chilled & Stee Hillside Plows,
Walking & Riding Cultivators,
Steel & Wood Gear Farm Wagons,
Champion Mower and Binders,
Ball Bearing Disk Harrows,

BARBED AND SMOOTH WIRE
AT THE LOWEST MARKET PRICE.
No. 26 Pike Street, - - - Covington, Ky.



IF—
Your Eyes Tire.
Your Print Blurs.
Your Distant Vision is Poor.
Your Head Aches.
You should call on us and have your eyes Tested.

Prices Reasonable.

F. PIEPER,
Optician and Jeweler,

Oculists Prescriptions Carefully Attended to

We make this our Specialty and Guarantee Satisfaction.

616 Madison Ave., - - - COVINGTON, KY.

A SPECIAL INVITATION TO
Our Boone County Neighbors!
When in LAWRENCEBURG, IND., Stop at the Old Reliable
ADLES'R BARGAIN STORE.
Where you can pick up a bargain in the line of
Dry Goods, Shoes, Etc., also Holiday ttractions.
Here are a few Sample Bargains:

Ladies' Beaver Capes—all colors, $2 real value $3.50. Child's Long Cloaks—$1 75 real value $3. Beautiful Novelty Dress Goods—10c worth 15c. Best Calicoes & Ginghams, 5c. Best Yarns (all colors,) 5c skein. Wool Fascinators, Hoods or Shawls, 25c worth 50c. Blankets (heavy 10-4) 50c each worth 75c. Heavy Comforts, 75c worth $1.25 Men's Working Pants, only 50c worth 75c. Men's Underwear, 50c suit worth 90c

OUR LEADERS—Men's Cong. or Lace Shoes (all style toes) $1 actually worth $1.50. Ladies' Button or Lace, calf or kid (tips or without) $1 actually worth $1.50. Misses' School Shoes, sizes 1½, 75c actually worth $1.25. Infants' Tip Button, 25c actually worth 40 cents.

Adler's BARGAIN STORE,
27 Walnut St., LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

A DAILY PAPER FOR $2.00 A YEAR!

The increasing demand for a daily newspaper at a price which puts it within the reach of every person in Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee, has been met by the Louisville Post. This complete afternoon daily will send the Evening Post every week day in the year to any address, by mail, postage paid, for $2. The Evening Post is the brightest and best afternoon daily in the South. It prints the full Associated Press dispatches, supplemented by correspondence from every county in Kentucky and Southern Indiana; has a special staff correspondent in Washington, and thorough and reliable men at Frankfort. Full market reports, choice miscellany, short stories, woman's page, all the sporting news. Editorially the strongest paper in the South, Neatly printed on fine paper. Send for sample copy. Address

$2.00 For the Mail Edition of the Evening Post.

THE EVENING POST, LOUISVILLE, KY.
CLUBBED WITH THIS PAPER.

SNAPS.

Leather SNAPS! Boot & Shoe SNAPS!

We have a Store full of Genuine Snaps in
Boots, Shoes, Hats and Gloves,
And we cordially invite our Boone County friends to call and partake of same.
PAUL A. DAVIS, Manager.
Sign of Big Red Boot. Rising Sun, Indiana.

FALL AND WINTER.
CLOTHING AND OVERCOATS,
Gent's Furnishing Goods, Hats and Caps,
Underwear, Umbrellas,
Trunks and Valises.
COME AND SEE US,
MARSHALL & STAHL,
MASONIC BUILDING
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA

Local News.

Fine weather for the holidays.

School will commence Monday, January 4th, 1897. A. C. COLLINS.

Last Friday was a very nice Christmas day, although the wind was very chilly.

Circuit Court adjourned last Wednesday about two o'clock, having been in session nine days.

Sanks & Stier furnish a house complete. Nos. 69, 70 and 71 Second street Aurora, Indiana.

The turkey market was on a boom last week, and the local buyers made money on their purchases.

The weather for the past week or ten days has not been favorable to the wheat that was sowed late.

According to the Bulletin over $23,000 per annum is spent in Aurora for chewing tobacco and cigars.

Waller Campbell sold his crop of tobacco of 2,300 pounds to Hiram Long, of Florence, at 5 cents round.

County Clerk Adams received his Christmas present from his Cincinnati friend again this year—a nice cane.

Sanks & Stier, undertakers and embalmers. Satisfaction guaranteed. Nos. 69, 70 & 71, Second street, Aurora, Ind.

Sheriff Roberts and County Attorney Lassing took Ben McManama and Lewis Miller to the penitentiary at Frankfort last Thursday.

A great many local newspapers will not appear this week, but the RECORDER is on hand as usual, with no headaches nor red eyes.

We walked two miles and a half a few days since, to get an item, and after preparing it for type got it mislaid. The joke was on us that time.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c

Al Rogers had another good horse to die, one day last week, being the third horse he has lost since moving to his present home about a year ago.

The new ferry boat opposite Lawrenceburg, Ind., is now in the trade. Strong, rapid, safe—the best ferry boat on the river. S. W. TOLIN, Owner.

The house occupied by Henry Webb, colored, caught fire from the kitchen flue, last Saturday morning, and was getting a pretty good start when discovered. A few buckets of water put it out.

There will be an entertainment given at Petersburg Christian Church on the evening of January 1st, 1897, under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E. All are cordially invited. Doors open at seven o'clock. Admission, 10 cents.

The Boone House was the scene of considerable gayety and pleasure, last Friday night, the occasion being a Christmas hop. The Burlington string band furnished the music, and the light fantastic was tripped until after midnight.

The suit of Adams vs. Ryle, in the United States Court at Covington, was continued again, last week, after having been put off from day to day for a week to the very great inconvenience of a large number of witnesses from this county.

It is now Christmas, and there has been no winter weather of any consequence. It has been the most favorable fall and winter to the farmers they have experienced for several years, and stock of all kinds is in excellent condition, and that too with very little feeding.

When Jailer Crisler went to unlock the inside jail door, last Thursday morning, to deliver the prisoners, McManama and Miller, to Sheriff Roberts to take to Frankfort, the key broke off in the lock, which had to be cut off before the two men could be taken out of the jail.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist Church served quite a nice supper at the court house last Friday evening. The menu was oyster soup, coffee, sandwitches, ice-cream and cake. Everything was prepared in the highest order of the culinary art, and the patrons received the best of attention.

H. W. Harrison, dentist, will be in Burlington on the first and third Monday in each month, to do work for those who wish anything in his line. He will be here two days each visit. Mr. Harrison is a son of the late R. F. Harrison, of Carrollton, and is a graduate of the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery, at Philadelphia. He is highly recommended in his profession.

An account of the accident by which W. L. Ryle lost his life, appears in the Gallatin county news in this paper. He was familiarly called Lark in this county, where he was born and raised. He was a brother of David H. Ryle and Mrs. Inez Connelly, of Hathaway, and Robert Owen Ryle, of Waterloo. He went from Boone to Gallatin county many years ago, where he has made his home ever since. He had many relatives and friends in this county.

AN EVEN DOZEN.

Twelve Years in the Pen Were Given Louis Miller for Killing Jarve Jackson.

The trial of Lewis Miller for the murder of Jarvis Jackson, on the bar just above the Lawrenceburg ferry on the fourth day of last September, was concluded in the Circuit Court, last Wednesday at noon, when the jury returned a verdict finding him guilty of manslaughter and fixed his punishment at confinement in the penitentiary for a period of twelve years. Jackson was the brother-in-law of Miller. Miller, his mother and little brother and Jackson and his wife constituted a shantyboat crew which had landed at the bar where the killing occurred. On the day of the killing old Mrs. Miller and Jackson fell out about fifty cents which Jackson claimed she owed him and which she disputed. It seems that a general quarrel resulted, when Lewis Miller grabbed up a double barrel shot gun and fired at Jackson but missed him. A second shot was fired, taking effect in Jackson's head, tearing off the top of the skull and carrying the brains out. Several of the witnesses for the Commonwealth, who witnessed the killing, testified that Jackson was going from Miller when the fatal shot was fired, while Miller and his sister, Mrs. Jackson, swore he was coming towards Miller. Mrs. Jackson swore that she threw one and her husband two bolders at Miller during the progress of the quarrel, but the jury did not give much weight to her testimony nor that of the defendant, which made Jackson the aggressor by large odds.

The hearing of the testimony was concluded at the Tuesday night's session of the court, immediately after which the usual instructions in murder cases were given the jury, when the court adjourned until Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock.

The arguments were concluded Wednesday about 11:30 o'clock, there being two good speeches on each side, Ome Rodgers and Sidney Gaines speaking for the defense, and J. M. Lassing and M. D. Gray for the prosecution. The jury was out about forty-five minutes when it returned the verdict above stated. The defendant was sentenced at once. During the progress of the trial Miller was, apparently, the most unconcerned man in the court-room, and when the foreman of the jury read the verdict, he exclaimed in an under tone, "God, wasn't I lucky". The only time he weakened was when sentence was being pronounced by the court. He broke down completely, being the first time he seemed to appreciate his condition.

Miller is 21 years old, but looks more like a boy of 17, and is evidently possessed of very little mind, which, doubtless, had some weight with the jury in fixing the penalty for his crime. The jury that tried the case was as follows: F. M. Callahan, foreman; H. J. Casey. W. M. Whitson, J. E. Rouse, J. P. Tanner, John Clore, Perry Weaver, W. F. Grant, Thos. A. Marshall, Wm. Sutton, J. M. Baker, Henry Ross.

County Attorney Lassing is entitled to much credit for looking up the States witnesses so closely and having them on hand at the trial.

Quite an interesting meeting has been in progress at the colored Baptist church here for several weeks, a colored woman, who, by the way, preaches well, doing the work. There have been several additions, and on the 20th inst., fifteen converts were baptized in Woolper Creek at the iron bridge near R. H. Sandford's. A very large crowd, many of whom were whites, witnessed the ceremonies, which were conducted by the colored woman, who has been doing the preaching. Everything was conducted with a solemnity becoming such occasions.

This is how a Point Pleasant young lady describes the sensation she experienced on receiving her first kiss. She said it made her feel like a tub of butter swimming in honey, cologn, nutmeg and cranberries, and as though something were running down her nerves in feet of diamonds, escorted by several little cupids in chariots, drawn by angels, shaded by honeysuckles and canopied with melted rainbows. Now, will the young man please tell us how he felt?—Point Pleasant, (W. Va.) Register.

Thieves swiped 18 turkeys and a lot of chickens for Geo. E. Rouse, of the Limaburg neighbohood, one night last week. Mr. Rouse had sold the turkeys and had them in a pen for delivery. When Mr. Rouse went to his barn the morning after the theft he found a sack containing one chicken which the thieves left in their haste to get away. The chicken was not of Mr. Rouse's flock, and somebody else's roost had evidently been visited previous to the call upon his.

The Sunday School entertainment, last Thursday evening, was a very nice affair, pleasing the scholars and entertaining the audience. Each scholar was given a package of candy and bananas at the conclusion of the exercises, while quite a number of presents were distributed from the bell. Each child had his or her part well committed, and the program was rendered without an interruption. Elmer Beall and Miss Susie Roberts represented Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus.

The Florence comedy company is billed to appear at the court house tonight.

The new ferry boat, "Shirley," opposite Lawrenceburg, Ind., is safely managed; prompt service at all hours of the day, and all reasonable hours of the night. S. W. TOLIN, Owner.

In another column is published the annual statement of the condition of the Farmers' Insurance Company of this county. It is operated on the most economical plan possible, and is the best company that is asking the farmers for their risks.

Prof. Riley, of Big Bone, gave his pupils a spelling match on the 23d of December. Quite a number of patrons and other visitors were present. The spelling match began at half past seven and continued for several hours, Miss Anna Allen winning the prize. The school then closed until after the holidays.

Incomparable Service.—The Queen & Crescent trains are the finest run in the State of Kentucky. Four daily trains to Cincinnati connect with the main highways of the great Trunk Lines of the North, West and East. This is the line par-excellent to Washington, New York, Boston and the East. The Queen & Crescent connects with every line out of Cincinnati,

The children of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Gordon held a reunion at the old homestead near Hebron, Dec. 25th. Among those present were Prof. J. C. Gordon and wife, Miss Fannie Gordon and Mrs. Dr. Juett, of Eminence, M. H. Gordon, and son John W. Gordon, of Muncie, Ind., Malena Souther and family, of Constance, G. H Gordon and family, of Burlington. A joyful time was spent by all present.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. S. P. Brady is very sick.

Rankin Revill was at home several days last week

Mrs. G. G. Hughes, who has been very sick, is improving.

Charles Roberts was very sick last Saturday night and all day Sunday.

Quite a number of Harry Blyth's friends ate turkey with him last Friday.

John Furlong came up from Louisville to spend Christmas with his sisters.

Paul R. Hallam left here to-day to return to his home in Washington, D. C.

John J. Huey and wife, of Bellevue, spent Christmas day with his mother at this place.

Tommie Hogan came out for the city and took his Christmas dinner with his father and mother.

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, of Bellevue, were guests at John H. Ryle's last Saturday and Sunday.

Ollie Wene, of Loveland, Ohio, spent a day or two the latter part of last week, with his relatives here.

Misses Nellie and Lutie Rouse, of Limaburg, are visiting their sister, Mrs. Dr. Cole, of Columbus, Ohio.

Gordon McKim, Miss Sheba Roberts and Miss Hettie Riddell are home from their respective schools to spend their holiday vacations.

Mr. Leander Setters, of Nashville, Tennessee, is spening the holidays in this county. He is well pleased with his Tennessee home.

Quite a large crowd of young people were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Tony Beutler, Monday night. Tripping the light fantastic was the principal amusement.

Dr. William Clore, of Ballittsville, and Miss Hand, of Kenton county were married last Thursday. We wish the Doctor and his wife much happiness and prosperity in their journey on the sea of life.

Mr. Thomas Dinn, of Ballittsville, and Miss Susie Rouse, daughter of Mr. Brashier Rouse, were married at Elder E Stephen's, last Thursday. Here is wishing the young couple all the pleasure this life affords.

With the beginning of the new year J. Frank Grant and wife become citizens of Baltimore, Md., and thus Petersburg loses one of her best citizens. We are sorry to have Mr. Grant leave the county, and hope health and prosperity will continue with him in his new home.

James L. Clore's little three year old daughter got hold of some matches yesterday, and while playing with them, set her clothing on fire, and she was badly burned.

Holiday rates Queen and Crescent Route—1⅓ fare round trip from all Queen & Crescent points selling December 22nd to 25th, and December 30th to January 1st. All tickets good till January 4th to return. On sale to points within 300 miles radius. Ask ticket agent for particulars.

FOR SALE—Chickens—Pure barred Plymouth Rock cockerels. Cheap if taken at once. Stone house.
Mrs. R. O. Smith, Union, Ky.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Beaver.

W. M. Underhill had four sheep killed, one night last week, by dogs.

Joseph Turner and George Friend left here, last Tuesday, for Arkansas, where they expect to spend the winter.

Miss Emma Cleek, who has been dangerously ill for some time, is now thought to be out of danger.

There are several cases of la grippe in this neighborhood.

Miss Lou Franks, of Grant county, is visiting relatives here.

Erlanger.

The M. E. Church celebrated Christmas on Sunday, having an entertainment, at which each Sunday School scholar was given a present.

LaFayette Lodge elected John Zumbiel, M. of W., and Tony Bramlage and Edgar Riggs, trustees for the ensuing term. Visitors from Friendship lodge, Covington, were in attendance, and a jolly time was had!

A small fire on the roof of Mrs. Annie Bedinger's residence, Christmas day, damaged the building to the extent of $25. The volunteer fire brigade was on hand soon after the alarm was turned in, and did good work.

Good Faith Lodge F. & A. M., held its annual election last Saturday evening, with a large attendance. The newly elected officers are, Alonzo Victor, W. M.; Len Childress, S. W.; Louis Morelli, J. W.; T. D. Finnell, Secretary; Homer Riggs, Treasurer; Robert Baker, Tyler.

Verona.

The entertainment at the hall on the 19th inst, was a grand success Mr. Jo Reed, of Walton, in his humorous selections, is certainly a very entertaining gentleman.

Dr. Foster Wolfe, of the Louisville Medical College, is spending the holidays with his relatives here.

The number of guesses for the pair of blankets at Fry & Whitson's, last Thursday, was 356 No person guessed the correct number, but four came within one of it, and they will decide by lot who is to have the prize.

John Vest, our candidate for surveyor, has withdrawn because he is too young to be eligible.

Uncle Vardiman Finnell has been confined to his bed for several weeks

John Connelly and Thomas A. Johnson are very poorly

We wish the Recorder and its many readers a merry and happy new year.

On the 23d inst. a contest in Ancient History occurred at the League Institute, between the following pupils: Hodge Hudson, James Hudson, Butler Myers, Charles Finnell, Frank Hamilton, John McCoy, Harry Bannister, Kirby West, Harry Roberts, Misses Arrelda Hind and Edna Ransom. The entire class showed it had been over much interesting ground. The final tug came between Kirby West and Harry Roberts. West finally succeeded in laying aside his antagonist, Roberts, who received the honours in general history last term, and was unanimously declared the victor.

Wm. F. GOETZE
Scientific
Optician.
Headquarters at Hornberger's
Jewelry Store,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - INDIANA.

Your eyes tested free of charge and correct glasses fitted at moderate prices.
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
If your eyes are effected in the least, give me a call and don't run chances of ruining your vision by buying from peddlers or quacks.

GEORGE BLYTH,
—REPRESENTING—
C. ROSS LODWICK,
Undertaker & Embalmer,
3035 W. 6th St. CINCINNATI, O.,
All calls promptly attended day or night, and all articles for FUNERAL PURPOSES furnished on short notice.
Burlington, Ky.

DR. A. B. HARRYMAN,
DENTIST.
—o—
Will be in Lawrenceburg, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.
At Aurora, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Practiced for 30 years.
No Poisonous Gasses Used.

Wanted—An Idea Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas: they may bring you wealth. Write JOHN WEDDERBURN & CO., Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C., for their $1,800 prize offer and list of two hundred inventions wanted.

Andy Scheben,
DEALER IN ALL KINDS OF
Wines, AND Liquors BRANDY.
FOR THE HOLIDAYS.
Old Rocky Fork, Silver Wedding, Old Crow, McBrayer, Oscar Pepper and other brands
Will sell at 20 to 25 Cents less per bottle than the regular price.
SPECIAL BARGAINS:
Old Quaker Rye, 80 cts. per bottle.
Regular Price, $1.00.
Pennsylvania Rye, $1.25 per bottle.
Regular Price, $1.50.
LEXINGTON PIKE,
ERLANGER, - - - KY.
Near Town Hall.

NEW STOCK! LOW PRICES!
We invite attention to our newly arrived Stock of Fall and Winter Goods
—SUCH AS—
Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps, Jeans, Yarns, Woolens, Etc., at
LOWER PRICES
THAN EVER BEFORE.
Large Line of FRESH GROCERIES always on Hand.
Give us a Call. W. M. RACHAL & CO. Union, Ky.

EVERY-THING LOW.
J. P. Carter's

Notice the Following Low Prices:

Lenox Soap, 3 bars for	10c
Globe Soap, 3 bars for	5c
Jaxon Soap, 3 bars for	10c
German Soap, 3 bars for	10c
3 Lbs. Best Lump Starch for	10c
25c Rio Coffee	20c
30c Santos Coffee	25c
Mocha and Java Coffee	30c
Whole Pepper per pound,	10c
Best Axle Grease	5c box
Hominy, 2 pounds for	5c
Best Headlight Oil, per gallon	9c
6 quarts Navy Beans,	25c
Crackers—all kinds,	5c
Best Whole Tomatoes per can,	7c
Corn (Sugar) per can,	5c
California Peaches per can	12½c
Star Tobacco, per pound.	40c
Even Change, per pound,	18c
4 Polar Bears for	15c
Fine Cut, per pound,	30c
Large Prunes,	10c

Grocery always THE CHEAPEST,
Cor. High and Short Streets,
Lawrenceburg, - - Indiana,

BOEHMER, ROLF & CO.,
—DEALERS IN—
PAINTS, OILS AND GLASS,
—63 and 65 Pike Street,—
Covington, Telephone, 4212. KY.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Flour, Tea, Tobacco AND FINE Cigars.
ALSO DEALERS IN WOOL AND COUNTRY PRODUCTS.
CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO OUR RETAIL DEPARTMENT.
27 and 29 PIKE ST. 26 and 28 W. SEVENTH ST.
Covington, - - - - Kentucky.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDER-TAKER EMBAL-MER,
—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

HARBICK & ROSE,
Undertakers AND Embalmers,
OFFICE AND STABLE, 637 and 639 SCOTT STREET,
COVINGTON, KY.
CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS AND PRIVATE HIRE.
Telephone, 4146. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

GEO. G. RUSSELL
WHOLESALE AND
RETAIL GROCER,
GRASS SEED.
Corner Pike & Washington Sts. Covington, Ky.
Tom Wilson, Salesman.

THE NEW YEAR'S ADMONITION.

WE BID you welcome,
New Year!
Your joyful dawn
we sing!
And have you brought us golden gifts
Beneath your shining wing?
O, will your skies be always fair,
Your seasons always gay,
With not a single cloud to mar
The brightness of the day?

And will you tell the springtime
Her favors we bespeak,
When we in sylvan glades and glens
Her earliest trophies seek?
Will March forbear to flout us
With blustering jibes and jeers,
And April show her sunniest smiles
In place of frowns and tears?

Will summer bring her roses
To deck the woodland bowers,
With not a single cruel thorn
Concealed among her flowers?
And will she coyly linger
When harvest songs go round,
Till all the gleaming swaths are cut
And golden sheaves are bound?

O, tell us, happy New Year,
Will all our friends be true,
And will each cup o'erflow with joy
Unmixed with taste of rue?
Will every heart be joyful,
And every eye be bright,
With not a single tear to dim
The luster of their sight?

"Ah, no," the New Year answered,
"Such gifts I promise not,
For joy and sorrow mingled
Must be each mortal's lot.
But if you heed them rightly—
Life's clouds and thorns and tears—
Then not a single vain regret
Will mar your future years!"
—Helen W. Clark, in N. Y. Ledger.

TOLD BY THE VIOLIN

A New Year's Story.

I AM one of the ancients, an antique of sober hue and homely appearance. Shapely enough, for was I not formed by Amati, the master—he who astonished the world with the perfection of his work, and who has not since been approached in skill, though the moderns excel in so many things? The violins of to-day, pert and foppish in lustrous varnish and glossy as mirrors, are not valued as we are nor can they approach us in interpreting those other masters to whose grand compositions and soaring thoughts we violins give vitality and voice.

Beginning my active career in Italy, I have outlived many owners, but I now repose in a glass front cabinet in Chicago. It was at first in a very humble home, about the only thing of real value the home possessed, except my mistress and owner, sweet-faced, sweet-voiced Inez Mardatti. You should see her and know her as I do to properly estimate her worth.

Of Italian descent, small but shapely, with cheeks of the swarthy red and brown, which is my complexion, too, eyes of deeper brown through which her soul gazes, teeth of polished pearl, hair blue-black like a raven's glossy plumage, her cheap dress did not succeed in obscuring her beauty or the shapeliness of the little form which had the easy movements of a queen half disguised in beggar's garb. When she laid her cheek against mine, and charmed me into the proper mood until our voices melted into one, you would have understood in an instant how much I loved her and why.

All know that I have a voice which is a marvel, but it is shy like all real talent, and responds only to the masterly touch it loves, knows and understands. Inez had a voice as clear and clean as that of a bird, bell like in ringing tone, full of lights and shadows which broke forth in song, sometimes capering merrily as insects do in the sunlight, sometimes rippling with cheerful laughter like that of a mountain brook, sometimes vibrating with deep emotion, sometimes sobbing with unshed tears. And I? I laughed, cried, rejoiced, wailed, or broke into cataracts of jubilant praise in touch and tune with her. Our hearts and voices were twins. What wonder that they rioted in joy or sobbed in sympathy together?

Inez was poor, and lived in a locality where haggard sights and sounds were but too common; but evil did not mar this soul of noble inspiration and instinct. You may splash mud upon a diamond or dust upon the opal, but you cannot reach with it the flame in the heart of the one or the wondrous changing iridescent light of the other. Stains do not penetrate to the inner altar upon which burns the sacred flame of the really valuable gem.

And Inez had a lover, a brown-eyed youth as poor as herself and as deeply devoted to the spirit of song. He, too, played the violin, though not as she did, nor did he, like her, inherit, as the only costly gift from an otherwise poor grandfather, an heirloom like myself. He had been a true friend to the oftentimes almost friendless girl, who, since the death of her old grandmother not long before this story opens, had often needed protection, solace and advice. I think their souls first mingled in music, and ran together as do two streamlets which join hands to travel together to the vast and boundless ocean. We are all travelers to eternity; it strengthens two clear streams to unite their currents until they create a river large enough to mirror the whole earthward side of heaven, instead of small fragments thereof. What are souls but lenses, reflecting at differing angles, true or false, the light of heaven, the flashes of inspiration, the goodness of God?

He proposed to her in a palace beside which those of European kings were dull and lusterless. They had strolled to a grove some distance from the great city, crowning a hill which overlooked Lake Michigan. It was mid-October, and the grand transformation scene with which nature closes her summer dreams was at its height. Over them were the forest arches gorgeous in crimson and gold; on either hand stretched aisles festooned with drapery such as no loom ever produced, each aisle ending in a glorious vista of earth or sky. Leaves softly fell in golden gifts about them, and sunlight of rich gold sifted through traceries of branches interwoven above and wove patterns of gold lace on embossed carpets of moss. In the haze over the lake's deep blue there was royal purple, and in the sky tints innumerable, mingled with opal, amethyst, amber and pearl. They were in tune with the scene, and coaxing us violins to join them we four united in a song of jubilant praise. Their eyes met, their voices changed to a love song which we deepened and prolonged; then the lad, in simple words, declared his love and was, in as simple words, accepted. She nestled in his arms, and after they had murmured a few caressing phrases, punctuated with kisses, they invoked our aid again and we all rejoiced together as true friends should. That was a little drama and concert worth seeing and hearing. I am hollow, but it warms even my heart to think of it, though nobody is by to wave the magic wand over me and charm me into song. What do those rich only in lands and money know of such happiness as that shabbily dressed couple felt that autumn afternoon? Thank God Cupid is not a time-server or worshiper at merely gilded shrines.

"We have nothing but ourselves and our beloved violins, dear Inez," said the sturdy youth, "but we will compel happiness yet and conquer success, will we not?"

"Of course, Oscar," was her prompt reply, "and whether we have success or not, we have each other and our instruments. Poverty is an old friend of ours, too. Why need we fear that together which we have survived apart?"

We all went home in the glory of the sunset together, heaven in our hearts and hunger keeping it company for the two human members of the tuneful quartette.

SHE PLAYED AS I NEVER HEARD HER PLAY.

On New Year's eve, thanks to some kind ladies who had interested themselves, Inez was to "come out" at one of the large churches, the result to determine whether they should aid her in studies for a professional concert career, or set her aside for some more promising protege. Some of them had promised even to lend her clothing for the occasion, and were really learning to love the shy, but true-hearted girl.

The days sped, happy for the lovers, though often touched with the want which keeps poverty company in the large cities. High-toned conventionalities did not erect barriers between them, so they spent nearly every evening together, talking lovingly, or playing softly and singing in the twilight. We were always with them, and they made true confidants of us, letting us hear echoes from their hearts in addition to the intuitions which always interpreted to us the impulses of their souls. Talk of love laughing at locksmiths! It does better than that, for, when properly understood and welcomed, it laughs at poverty and sings in want, makes rags into royal robes, magnifies pennies into fortunes. Better Inez with a dowry of naught but the gift of song and of hope, than a purse-proud princess pearl-bedecked.

New Year's eve came, and with it the expected debut. The great church was crowded, Oscar in the front row of seats, that he might not lose a tone or look. There were organ preludes which shook the massive building, choral numbers by trained choirs, soloists at whose shrine the great metropolis had long worshiped, and then came the little girl who was to win or lose that night.

The great crowd frightened her, and she looked a very little frail mite as she stood there facing the multitude, dressed in some simple material, and looking pleadingly around. But her beauty pleaded for her, and the audience, though critical, was not unkind. Suddenly she began to feel faint, her eyes met those of Oscar, beacon lights of love which guided her wandering senses safely back. I was trembling myself, time-hardened antique, as she raised me to her shoulder and with her bow invoked my aid. Then she played as I had never heard her play before, until I felt myself lifted above this miserable world, and her voice a little later broke triumphantly into song. It was a revelation and a surprise. Together we soared or sobbed, rang out in heavenly harmony or murmured as softly as the rustle of dying roses. We closed with a grand, vibrant flourish, and for a moment you could have heard a thought unfold itself. Then the audience broke into tumultuous applause again and again, and the battle was won. We were recalled again and again, and each time seemed to charm them more. I heard laughter from hundreds when we laughed, and tears glistened when we sobbed. Our interpretation of the soul-song of the dead masters had awakened the souls of the living from sleep. It was a resurrection, a revelation and a victory, all combined.

Well, hard times for Inez ended then and there. She was petted, caressed, flattered, but, thank heaven, could not be spoiled. Her prosperity was shared with Oscar, and for him, too, she won the encouragement and opportunity to make the best of himself and of the divine gift of song. The strangest thing happened next evening, New Year's night. Oscar had spent the evening there, and we had helped them in a little home concert, such as we had often joined in before. They were supremely happy, for the poverty they did not fear was ended, its lessons only to remain, lessons good and wholesome, too, for hearts like theirs which had the gift of seeing and did not care to forget.

I had been placed in my old glass front cabinet, and had been listening to their rapt conversation, sharing its happiness, when suddenly the spirit moved me, as a Quaker might say, to speak. I had a secret, and did not care to conceal it any longer. So I began to murmur on my own account, and it sounded so mysterious to them, so much like a ghostly manifestation, that both stopped talking and gazed at me aghast. I kept buzzing like an inspired bumble-bee, and even tried a rap or two by way of experiment.

"How strange," said Inez, nestling close in his arms. "I do believe the Amati is bewitched. Can it be a warning of approaching ill?" I verily believe girls under such circumstances like to be frightened. It makes such an excellent excuse for snuggling closer.

"There must be a rat in the case," was the rather commonplace reply, "we will investigate and see."

Well, they both approached, opened the cover of my case, and Inez reached in for me. Much to her surprise I seemed caught in a corner of the box, and she had to pull gently to loose me. Little did she think, my brown-eyed darling, that I clung on purpose.

The case was old, one that had descended in the family with me, and as she pulled the bottom came up with me and revealed to her astonished gaze a cavity packed with papers, yellowed with age, some covered with writing. Oscar was quick to pounce upon them. And what do you think they were?

Bonds, dear reader, bonds; together with Bank of England notes and other documents representing solid values. They were counted up and amounted to nearly $9,000. With them was a document, written by the great-grandfather of Inez, willing all these to his only daughter, the grandmother who had lived and died in poverty before these things came to view. They belonged to Inez, of course, and made her quite an heiress. You should have seen the happiness in those two young people's eyes. What do you know of joy who never plunged suddenly out of the gloom of poverty into the light of what was by comparison unmeasured wealth? Heaven that evening had dingy walls and bare floors, and just two angels inhabited it as monarchs of all they surveyed. And the "golden harps" had been transmuted into antique violins. But I assure you golden harps never made happier music.

All this happened two years ago or more. The poor lover became Prof. Oscar Hammerstein, and a year ago Inez became his wife. They were married on New Year's eve, and happiness reigned supreme. Better still, it was made so warmly welcome that it has remained with them to this day. At that wedding there was sweet music in abundance, and I was chief musician among the violins. I laughed and the world laughed with me, as it is prone to do with the prosperous and independent. And mingling with the New Year's chimes which, from many a tall steeple, rang out the old and in the new, was the angelic voice of my mistress made vibrant and vital with unspeakable joy. Unspeakable in mere words, of course, but capable of interpretation in song. People said my mistress and I were inspired. Of course we were, for I was full of sunny memories voiced in music, and Inez, radiant with love, interpreted in songs sublime.

This household has been a happy one ever since, and in the place of honor outranking newer and fresher furniture in the family sitting-room is my antique case and myself. We see all that is going on, and Inez makes of me a sort of shrine, for she loves me still as in days of yore. The constancy of such natures is proof against change. Happy indeed are they who have such friends.

Near me in the sitting-room stands a crib, and the jewel in this particular casket is a pink-cheeked baby with those wonderful Italian eyes, and looks in which those of its father and mother seem strangely and mysteriously blended. But its music? Well, I do not pretend to interpret the songs of all emotions, and this little cherub's song is too much for me. I can stand its laugh and enjoy its cackle or crow, but when it lifts its voice for more vigorous musical effort I prefer a boiler factory or the filing of saws. I love it, of course, but one can love a wee sinner without loving its sins. As an antique gifted in harmonies and such, I protest against its methods of playing "bawl" or serenading.

The strangest thing of all is that its father and mother, loving and understanding harmony, seem to love even its war yells and efforts when sailing to windward in a house-made squall.

All the same, we shall have a christening this New Year, and from the plans I have overheard, it is to be a gay event. His babyship is to be saddled for life with a name, and there will be feasting and dancing galore. We violins love dancing, for at such events we rule the roost, and every merrymaker obeys us as implicitly as soldiers obey their general. Even the clumsiest feet step in time to our bidding and dare not disobey. Come out to the christening, dear reader, and see what a home made happy, hearts gladdened and faces illumed are like. On the household altar in this little home love's sacred flame burns clear, for the draughts of suspicion, envy, jealousy, hatred and uncharitableness never imperil its gladsome glow.

This is a very simple story, but it may prove to you the power of love and harmony to promote happiness, the possibilities within reach of an antique violin. We violins are generally a happy race, with no hypocrisy in our songs, no strife entangled in our strings. Would that all the world might learn from us the secret of song, the sympathy which vibrates to a loving touch, the intuition which brings two souls together along the magnetic current of memory and music, the trinity of inspiration which is represented by love enshrined in song and hallowed with the spirit of harmony.

My story is ended. Despite its simplicity despise not the voice of the observant and experienced violin. Life is made up of harmonies and discords, false notes or true. Hearts, like violins, differ in capacity, but the best of them need the master touch to interpret the music of the master. We hollow instruments know and feel this. What a pity it is that many human souls never learn so simple a truth. Surely the golden harps which angel fingers coax to anthems of untold sweetness, but elaborate and prolong the songs of earth we true interpreters, human or inanimate, launch heavenward here below; beginning sweet and low with true and loving touch what God magnifies later into music of the spheres.

I. EDGAR JONES.

THE GREAT RIDDLE.

Cobwigger—Women are incomprehensible.

Merritt—What put that into your head?

Cobwigger—My wife spent $15 for a smoking-jacket for my Christmas present, and on New Year's she was crying her eyes out because I didn't swear off smoking.—N. Y. Truth.

Her Little Sorrow.

"Of course, I shouldn't want [illegible] in the way of anything that [illegible] like doing in the way of New Year's reformation," she said. "But it does seem too bad—"

"What seems too bad, my dear?" asked her husband.

"That you should feel obliged to stop smoking just after I have given you those lovely Christmas cigars."—Washington Star.

His Thoughtless Answer.

"You didn't receive calls last New Year?" said the leap-year girl.

"Not as many as usual," replied the thoughtlessly candid young man. "The bill collectors all had a holiday."—Washington Star.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

THE FORCE OF EXAMPLE.

"There!" said Brown, with a shake of his head,
"I've painted the house and the barn and shed,
The fence has been fixed and the lawn's been mowed,
But I do wish the town would fix up that road.
It's a shame I call it, just plain and flat,
That we have to drive over roads like that!
I'll wait no longer; I'll start to-day
And fix my part of it, anyway."

Now, Brown was one of those fellows who,
When they start a thing, just "rush it through."
And a week or two after, as Neighbor Jones
Was driving home with his pair of roans,
Brown's road was dry, while his own, next door,
Was mud to the depth of a foot or more.
"By George," said Jones, "I'll let Brown see
That I can build roads as well as he."

Now, Neighbor Smith, who lived below,
Saw Jones repairing his road, and so
He fixed up his, to be "in the game,"
And Neighbor Robinson did the same;
And soon every householder in town
Was trying his best to "beat out Brown."
And now when the town committee meets
To talk of the roads, they call them "streets."

* * * * * * *

The moral this tale to the reader brings
Applies to roads and to other things.
Reforms, like snowballs, will keep on growing
If somebody only sets them going.
—Good Roads.

SMALL FRUIT CULTURE.

Famous Wisconsin Man Asks "Who Should Grow Berries?"

That is the question asked by M. A. Thayer, the famous berry raiser of Sparta, Wis., and by him answered as follows:

First of all, farmers everywhere, for family use. Farmers must grow berries or do without. No one can grow them so cheaply as he. They may be produced ready for picking, at two cents per quart. The farmer saves cost of picking, packing, boxing, crating, freight, express and profits of growers. He gets them at first cost, fresh from the vines, and to the extent of his own family has the best market in the world—a home market. He can select the best land and location on his own farm, and is sure of a profit with half a crop.

Farmers can never have ideal homes without the fruit garden. It teaches the lessons of intensified farming, and results in better tillage, larger crops, better stock and improved methods in every way. Good gardens and poor farms never keep company long.

The growing of berries for family use is easily done. The growing of berries largely, and selling them in good market, requires considerable skill and a special business tact. Only those who have good location, good market and a taste for the business should attempt it. Many small farmers so situated are making a success by commencing moderately and increasing acreage from season to season as experience warrants.

Berries should be grown by owners of all village homes, and acreage property in city and village may be profitably used for that purpose.

The market gardener selling his own products can often make an acre or two of berries very profitable. They are suitable companions for their vegetable friends, and sell well together.

The business or professional man, almost broken with care, may recover health and strength in the pleasant walk of horticulture. It is restful to both mind and body.

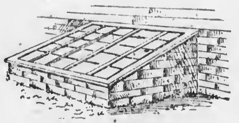
Many women dependent on their own efforts are securing substantial aid from their gardens; berries and flowers thrive best under the gentle touch of women.

Many a bright boy may receive his first incentive to business and earn his first money by growing berries or vegetables. Give them a patch of ground and encourage them in this work.

PERMANENT HOTBED.

Every Well-Managed Farm Should Have One of Them.

A permanent hotbed is shown in the accompanying illustration. It may be constructed on the sunny side of one's house, against the underpinning, or against the foundation of the stable. Excavate to the required depth, and build up a wall of stone topped with brick, going below the frost line for this purpose. Coat the bottom and sides with cement, and fix a sash with a slope at the top, as shown in the sketch. The hotbed can be made of any length desired, using two or more sashes for the top. Such a hotbed will always present an attractive appearance, will maintain a more equable temperature than one of board, and will always be in readiness to be "fired up." A hotbed can be made to do more for the family table than the starting of garden plants in spring—it can be used for the winter production of many a choice dish that will taste all the better for being out of season.—Montreal Star.



A PERMANENT HOTBED.

To Prevent Weevil in Beans.

Place the beans in an air-tight vessel, add a little bisulphide of carbon and cover the vessel for a short time. Benzine or gasoline is sometimes used for the same purpose. No light or fire must be brought near these substances, as they are very inflammable. This treatment will not injure the beans, either for seed or table use. The weevils may also be destroyed by heating the beans to 145 degrees F., but this should have been done as soon as the beans were gathered, before the insects had a chance to injure the beans.—National Stockman.

ANTIQUATED METHODS.

Pittsburgh Paper Says They Are Employed in the Making of Roads.

Now that the farmer cannot get enough for much of his products to pay cost of hauling to market, it is perhaps pertinent to remind him again that much of the cost of transportation can be reduced by a sensible repair of the roads. An immense amount of elementary knowledge on the subject has been evolved, enough to make the head swim, and we have been told enough about gradients, etc., to make some people think that highways cannot be improved, except under the direction of high-priced engineers, payment of whose services will eat up much of the tax levied by the county. The present generation will see comparatively little accomplished under the general law, unless it is supplemented by a liberal infusion of gumption furnished by taxpayers at large in the rural districts. The townships in this county have levied for many years past from four to ten times the amount of road tax levied by the county commissioners this year, and in most cases it has been a useless expenditure.

A little mixture of arithmetic and common sense will suffice a supervisor in making a grade. The Appian way is one of the best-graded roads in the world, and it antedates the Christian era, reaching back to a time when engineering, as a science, was scarcely known.

But more important than grades at present is the manner of making roadbeds. Any farmer knows that clay land, when packed by hauling heavy loads over it for a time, becomes so firm that ordinary wheeling over it has little effect to cut, even in quite wet weather, if the water is not allowed to stand it, consequently the average country road can be kept in fairly good condition if thoroughly drained on both sides and kept high in the middle. Any observant person can verify the assertion by driving a dozen miles from Pittsburgh in any direction. Whenever he strikes a well-drained piece of dirt road he will find it in good order, unless unusually heavy burdens are drawn over it. But in many places he will fail to find any drain, except, perhaps, in the middle of the road, where floods have been allowed to make their own channel.

The second measure suggested by common sense is the clearing of the roads of all stones, unless enough are put on to thoroughly macadamize. The prevalent practice is when a mud hole has been worn in a road to fill it with stones, and they are not usually broken fine, either. The result is that after the next wet spell following the filling there will be two mud holes instead of one—one on each side of the first. Even a stone but four inches in diameter allowed to lie on a road has often been the cause of a disagreeable mud hole. The average supervisor patches these holes in the objectionable way mentioned, puts in an occasional culvert, and then finds his appropriation exhausted. Frequently it does not amount to more than $60 a mile, but with the strong road plows now in use much draining might be done even on this scant appropriation. Collier township last year successfully used a traction engine to pull the road plow. Although millions of dollars have been spent patching the township roads in this county, they are not in as good condition to-day as they were in 1856.

In road-making there can be found profitable use for many free dollars, but the present system of highway management belongs to the seventeenth century, and, in addition to being enormously wasteful, is almost useless.—Pittsburgh Post.

FACTS FROM FLORIDA.

Poor Roads the Equivalent of a Tax of Ten Dollars Per Acre.

Cultivating ten acres, eight miles from the station, I buy two tons of fertilizer for $70. This quantity makes eight loads for one horse, and six hours are required for a trip. The time of myself and horse is worth 60 cents per load. I make 500 crates of vegetables, which require 71 trips to get them to the station, at a cost of $42.60. On hard roads I could haul my $70 worth of fertilizer in four trips of four hours each, at a cost of $1.60. I could haul my 500 crates of vegetables in 35 trips of four hours each, at a cost of $14. On the sand roads one horse is required 71 days to ship my crop, which is a longer time than the shipping season, hence I am compelled to keep two horses during the year, or hire from my neighbors during a busy time. The cost of keeping the second horse may be safely estimated at $25. So much of my time is used in my trips to town that during three months of the year I am compelled to hire an extra hand, which costs me about $45. The foregoing items will suffice to show that bad roads cost on my ten-acre crop $191.80, being a tax of over $10 per acre.—Cor. Leesburg (Fla.) Commercial.

GARDEN AND ORCHARD.

Cultivation in the orchard is given to keep out the weeds and make a loose mulch.

A little trimming every year is far better than a heavy trimming once in three or four years.

Walnuts, chestnuts, hickory nuts, peach seeds and all this kind of seeds should be planted before they get too dry.

Apples to be profitable must not only be suited to the locality, but must be productive, of good size, attractive appearance and a good keeper.

In storing sweet potatoes for long keeping dry earth is the best packing material. Keep them in a warm, even temperature. Pack none but sound potatoes, or they will surely rot.

When trees are set out in the fall it will be advisable to draw up a small mound of earth around the stem. This helps to hold the tree steady in storms, throws off the surplus water and largely prevents injury by field mice.—St. Louis Republic.

NOT ENOUGH RIDERS

For the Cavalry Charges of Heaven in Their Assault on Sin.

Opportunities Wait All, Saddled and Bridled, Needing Only the Hand to Guide Them Into Achievement—Interesting Sermon by Rev. Dr. Talmage.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was: II. Kings., xviii., 23: "I will deliver thee 2,000 horses, if thou be able on thy part to set riders upon them."

Up by the water works, the upper reservoir of Jerusalem, the general of the besieging army and the generals of besieged Jerusalem are in consultation. Though Gen. Rab-shakeh had been largely paid to stop the siege, he kept the money and continued the siege—the military miscreant! Rab-shakeh derides the capacity of the city to defend itself, and practically says: "You have not 2,000 men who can manage horses. Produce 2,000 cavalrymen, and I will give a present of 2,000 cavalry horses. You have not in all your besieged city of Jerusalem 2,000 men who can mount them, and by bit and bridle control a horse." Rab-shakeh realized that it is easier to find horses than skilled riders, and hence he makes the challenge of the text, "I will deliver thee 2,000 horses, if thou be able to set riders upon them."

Rab-shakeh, like many another bad man, said a very suggestive thing. The world is full of great energies and great opportunities, but few know how to bridle them and mount them and manage them. More spirited horses than competent riders! The fact is that in the church of God we have plenty of fortresses well manned, and plenty of heavy artillery, and plenty of solid columns of brave Christian soldiery, but what we need most is cavalry—mounted troops of God—for sudden charge that seems almost desperate. If Washington, if New York, if London are ever taken for God, it will not be by slow bombardment of argumentation or by regular unlimbering of great theological guns from the portholes of the churches, but a gallop of sudden assault and rush of holy energy that will astound and throw into panic the long lines of drilled opposition armed to the teeth. Nothing so scares the forces of sin as a revival that comes, they know not whence, to do that which they cannot understand. They will be overcome by flank movement. The Church of God must double up their right or left wing. If they expect us from the north we will take them from the south. If they expect us at 12 o'clock at noon we will come upon them at 12 o'clock at night. The opportunities for this assault are great and numerous, but where are the men? "I will deliver thee 2,000 horses if thou be able to set riders upon them."

The opportunities of saving America and saving the entire planet were never so many, never so urgent, never so tremendous as now. Have you not noticed the willingness of the printing press of the country to give the subject of evangelism full swing in column after column? Such work was usually confined to tract distribution and religious journals. Now the morning newspapers, by hundreds and thousands of copies, print all religious intelligence and print most awakening discourses. Never since the world has stood has such a force been offered to all engaged in the world's evangelization. Of the more than 15,000 newspapers on this continent, I do not know one that is not alert to catch and distribute all matters of religious information. Oh, now I see a mighty suggestiveness in the fact that the first book of any importance that was ever published, after Johann Gutenberg invented the art of printing, was the Bible. Well might that poor man toil on, polishing stones and manufacturing looking glasses and making experiments that brought upon him the charge of insanity, and borrowing money, now from Martin Brether and now from Johann Faust, until he set on foot the mightiest power for the evangelization of the world. The statue in bronze which Thorwaldsen erected for Gutenberg in 1837, and the statue commemorating him by David D'Angers in 1840, and unveiled amid all the pomp that military processions and German bands of best music could give the occasion, were insignificant compared with the fact, to be demonstrated before all earth and all Heaven, that Johann Gutenberg, under God, inaugurated forces which will yet accomplish the world's redemption. The newspaper press will yet announce nations born in a day. The newspaper press will report Christ's sermons yet to be delivered, and describe his personal appearance, if, as some think, He shall come again to reign on earth. The newspaper press may yet publish Christ's proclamation of the world's emancipation from sin and sorrow and death. Tens of thousands of good men in this and other lands have been ordained by the laying on of hands to preach the Gospel, but it seems to me just now, by the laying on of the hands of the Lord God Almighty, the newspaper presses are being ordained for preaching the Gospel with wider sweep and mightier resound than we have ever yet imagined. The iron horses of the printing press are all ready for the battle, but where are the men good enough and strong enough to mount them and guide them? "I will deliver thee 2,000 horses if thou be able to set riders upon them."

Go out to the Soldiers' home and talk with the men who have been in the wars, and they will give you right appreciation of what is the importance of the cavalry service in battle. You hear the clatter of the hoofs and the whirr of the arrows and the carbines as they ride up and down the centuries. Clear back in time, Osymandyas led 2[illegible]0 mounted troops in Bactriana. Josephus says that when the Israelites escaped from Egypt, 50,000 cavalrymen [illegible] through the parted Red sea. Three hundred and seventy-one years before Christ Epaminondas led his troops at full gallop. Alexander, on a horse that no other man could ride, led his mounted troops. Seven thousand horsemen decided the struggle at Arbela. Although saddles were not invented until the time of Constantine, and stirrups were unknown until about 450 years after Christ, you hear the neighing and snorting of war chargers in the greatest battles of the ages. Austerlitz, and Marengo, and Solferino were decided by the cavalry. The mounted Cossacks re-enforced the Russian snowstorms in the obliteration of the French army. Napoleon said if he had only had sufficiently cavalry at Bautzen and Lutzen his wars would have triumphatly ended. I do not wonder that the duke of Wellington had his old war horse Copenhagen, turned out in best pasture, and that the duchess of Wellinton had a bracelet made of Copenhagen's hair. Not one drop of my blood but tingles as I look at the arched neck and pawing hoof and panting nostrils of Job's cavalry horse. "Hast thou clothed his throat with thunder? He paweth in the valley; he goeth forth to meet the armed men. The quiver rattleth against him, the glistening spear and the shield. He saith among the trumpets, Ha, ha; and he smelleth the battle afar off, the thunder of the captains, and the shouting."

I think it is the cavalry of the Christian hosts, the grand men and women who, with bold dash and holy recklessness and spurned-on energies, are to take the world for God. To this army of Christian service belong the evangelists. It ought to be the business of the regular churches to multiply them, to cheer them, to clear the way for them. Some of them you like. You say some are too sensational, and some of them are not enough learned, and some of them are erratic, and some of them are too vehement, and some of them pray too loud. Oh, fold up your criticism and let them do that which we, the pastors, can never do. I like all the evangelists I have ever seen or heard. They are busy now; they are busy every day of the week. While we, the pastors, serve God by holding the fortress of righteousness and drilling the Christian soldiery, and by marshaling anthems and sermons and ordinances on the right side, they are out fighting the forces of darkness "hip and thigh, with great slaughter." All success to them! The faster they gallop, the better I like it. The keener the lances they fling, the more I admire them. We care not what conventionality they infract if they only gain the victory. Moody, and Chapman, and Mills, and Jones, and Harrison, and Munhall, and Maj. Cole, and Crittenden, and a hundred others, are now making the cavalry charge, and they are at this moment taking New York and Philadelphia and Cincinnati for God, and I wish they might take our nation's capital. Hear the tremendous facts: There are now in this country nearly 166,000 church congregations, with nearly 21,000,000 communicants, with seating capacity in church for more than 43,000,000 people; in other words, room in the churches for three fourths of the population of this country, and about one-third of the population of this country already Christian. In other words, we have only to average bringing two souls to God during the next three years and our country is redeemed. Who can not, under the power of the Holy Ghost, bring two souls to God in three years? And so many will bring hundreds and thousands to God, most of you have to bring only one soul to God and the gospel campaign for this continent will be ended. If you can not bring one soul to God, or two souls, or three souls, in three years, you are no Christian and deserve yourself to be shut out of Heaven. The religious pessimists of this country are all the time depicting the obstacles as so great and our forces as so small that we half of the time feel that we are attempting an impossibility. Take out of your prayers and preaching some of your stuffing of groans and put in something of acclamation and triumph, and the United States will be gospelized, and if the United States be gospelized America will be gospelized, and America gospelized, we will take Asia from the Pacific beach and Europe from the Atlantic beach, and not far from now the lost star we live on will take its place among the constellations that never fell. Let the more than 21,000,000 communicants, as they lift the sacramental cup to their lips, take oath that they will not rest until the other 40,000,000 are saved. The opportunities are all saddled and bridled. Where are the men and women to guide them? "I will deliver the 2,000 horses, if thou be able to set riders upon them." What two men can do for good or evil is impressed upon me by the fact that two Scotchmen, going to California, each took something that would remind him of his native country. The one took a thistle, the emblem of Scotland. The other took a hive of bees. Years went by, and the work of the two Scotchmen is widely seen. The curse of the Pacific slope is the thistle, and the blessing of the Pacific slope is the honey found everywhere in woods and fields. In your life are you responsible for honey or thistles, and if one man can do so much good, and another so much evil, how much could be done for the ransom of this country by twenty-one million people all consecrated?

Get out of the way with your dolorous foreboding, and change your dirges for what we have not done for the grand march of what we may do and will do. The woman at Sedan, in whose house Napoleon the Last was waiting to make surrender of himself and his army, said to the overthrown French emperor, "What can I do for you?" And the despairing ex-monarch replied, "Nothing but draw down the blind so that I can not be stared at." In this Gospel campaign we have plenty to draw down the blinds. In God's name I say, pull up the blinds, and let the morning sun of the coming victory shine upon us. What we want in this campaign for God is the self-abnegation and courage of the men of Sir Colin Campbell, who, as Lord Bishop Cowie, of New Zealand, once chaplain of his army, told me, said to the troops: "Men, no retreat from this place. Die right here." And they shouted: "Yes, Sir Colin; we will do it." And they did.

Temporary defeats ought not to dishearten. What is Bunker Hill monument? Monument of defeat. But from that bloody mount American independence started for its grandest achievement, and all the defeats of the cause of God are incipient victory.

Thy saints in all this glorious war
Shall conquer, though they die.
They see the triumph from afar
And seize it with their eye.

And now, standing as I do, in this national capital, let we say that what we want in the senate and house of representatives and the supreme court is a pentecostal blessing that will shake the continent with divine mercy. There recently came into my hands the records of two congressional prayer meetings, on the rolls of which were the names of the most eminent senators and representatives who then controlled the destinies of this republic—the one congressional prayer meeting in 1857 and the other in 1866. The record is in the handwriting of the philanthropist William E. Dodge, then a member of congress. There are now more Christian men in the national legislature than ever before. Why will they not band together in a religious movement which before the inauguration of the next president shall enthrone Christ in the hearts of this nation? They have the brain, they have the eloquence, they have the influence. God grant them the grace sufficient! Who in congressional circles will establish the capitaline prayer meeting in 1897? Let the evening of the last decade of this century be irradited with such a religious splendor. There are the opportunities for a national and international charge, all bridled and saddled. Where are the riders to mount them?

Here also are opportunities all ready for those who would enter the kingdom of God. Christ said that the kingdom of Heaven was to be taken by violence. By one flash you may enter. Quicker than any equestrian ever dashed through castle gate you may pass into the pardon and hope of the Gospel. As quickly as you can think "Yes" or "No," as quickly as you can make a choice, so quickly may you decide the question of eternal destiny. No one was ever slowly converted. He may have been thinking about 40 years, but not one inch of progress did he make until the moment of assent, the very second in which he said "I will." That instant decided all. Bring out the worst 2,000 men in all the earth, and here are 2,000 opportunities of immediate and eternal salvation. "I will deliver the 2,000 horses if thou be able to set riders upon them."

The cavalry suggests speed. When once the reins are gathered into the hands of the soldiery horseman, and the spurs are struck into the flanks, you hear the ratnplan of the hoofs. "Velocity" is the word that describes the movement—acceleration, momentum—and what we want in getting into the kingdom of God is celerity. You see the years are so swift, and the weeks are so swift, and the days are so swift, and the hours are so swift, and the minutes are so swift, we need to be swift. For lack of this appropriate speed many do not get into Heaven at all. Here we are in the last Sabbath of the year. Did you ever know a twelfth-month quicker to be gone? The golden rod of one autumn speaks to the golden rod of the next autumn, and the crocus of one springtime to the crocus of another springtime, and the snowbanks of adjoining years almost reach each other in unbroken curve. We are in too much hurry about most things. Business men in too much hurry rush into speculations that ruin them and ruin others. People move from place to place in too great haste and they wear out their nerves, and weaken the heart's action. But the only thing in which they are afraid of being too hasty is the matter of the soul's salvation. Yet did any one ever get damaged by too quick repentance or too quick pardon or too quick emancipation? The Bible recommends tardiness, deliberation and snail-like movement in some things, as when it enjoins us to be slow to speak, and slow to wrath, and slow to do evil, but it tells us, "The King's business requireth haste," and that our days are as the flight of a weaver's shuttle, and ejaculates: "Escape for thy life. Look not behind thee; neither stay thou in all the plain." Other cavalry troops may fall back, but mounted years never retreat. They are always going ahead, not on an easy canter, but at full run. Other regiments hear the command of "Halt!" and pitch their tents for the night. The regiments of the years never hear the command of "Halt!" and never pitch tent for the night.

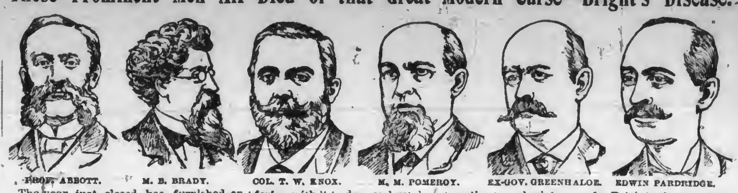
The century leads on its troop of a hundred years, and the year leads on its troop of 365 days, and the day leads on its troop of 24 hours, and the hour leads on its troop of 60 minutes, and all are dashing out of sight. Perhaps there are two years in which we are most interested—our first and our last. Held up in our mother's arms, we watched the flight of the first. With wondering eyes we all watch the coming of the last. The name of that advancing year we can not call. It may be in the nineties of this century, it may be in the tens or twenties or thirties of the next century, but it is coming at full gallop.

THE tiniest baby, perhaps, in the world has been added to the family of Samuel Donaldson, a barber in Camden, N. J. It weighed only 7½ ounces when it came into the world the other day, but Dr. Frederick Pfeiffer says it is healthy and with good care will live. The baby is a girl. Her head will easily go into an ordinary teacup, while her hand will not cover a silver 25-cent piece.

THE cruiser Philadelphia has made a voyage of 4,000 miles in 16 days without exhausting her coal capacity.

AMONG THE DEAD OF THE YEAR.

These Prominent Men All Died of that Great Modern Curse---Bright's Disease.



PROF. ABBOTT.
M. B. BRADY.
COL. T. W. KNOX.
M. M. POMEROY.
EX-GOV. GREENHALGE.
EDWIN PARDRIDGE.

The year just closed has furnished an alarming array of prominent men who have died of Bright's disease of the kidneys. The number includes Professor Austin Abbott, the great jurist and author of law books; M. B. Brady, the famous photographer; Col. Thos. W. Knox, the author of the "Boy Travellers"; Mark M. Pomeroy, the well-known editor; Mr. Edwin Pardridge, the prominent Chicago merchant; and ex-Governor Greenhalge, of Massachusetts.

If "death loves a shining mark," it is also certain that Bright's disease finds its victims among the prominent as well as among the millions of people who are suffering with it to-day, and yet do not realize this serious fact.

There are men and women in every portion of America who feel out of sorts and who do not realize what it is that affects them. They may have peculiar pains in various parts of the body, strange lassitude, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the back and about the loins, and a general irregularity of the system.

These things mean Bright's Disease in some one of its various stages, and no man or woman is safe who has them.

This terrible disease was once considered incurable. Eminent doctors so declared, but constant scientific and chemical experiments resulted in a discovery, which is an absolute cure for Bright's disease, even in its advanced stages. It is the one and only known remedy for this terrible complaint; its name is Warner's Safe Cure.

It is simply marvelous how many people are to-day kept in perfect health and strength through its use. It has a pleasing, soothing and quieting effect—upon the kidneys and all adjacent organs. It relieves promptly, puts the system in a condition of health, and substitutes happiness for misery. Testimonials of its great power could be furnished by the thousands, but all intelligent men and women, as well as the medical profession, know its great power and the grand work it is doing in the world.

CALENDAR FOR 1897.

JANUARY							JULY
S	M	T	W	T	F	S	S	M	T	W	T	F	S
					1	2					1	2	3
3	4	5	6	7	8	9	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
10	11	12	13	14	15	16	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
17	18	19	20	21	22	23	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
24	25	26	27	28	29	30	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
31
FEBRUARY							AUGUST
	1	2	3	4	5	6	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
7	8	9	10	11	12	13	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
14	15	16	17	18	19	20	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
21	22	23	24	25	26	27	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
28							29	30	31
MARCH							SEPTEMBER
	1	2	3	4	5	6				1	2	3	4
7	8	9	10	11	12	13	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
14	15	16	17	18	19	20	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
21	22	23	24	25	26	27	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
28	29	30	31				26	27	28	29	30
APRIL							OCTOBER
				1	2	3						1	2
4	5	6	7	8	9	10	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
11	12	13	14	15	16	17	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
18	19	20	21	22	23	24	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
25	26	27	28	29	30		24	25	26	27	28	29	30
							31
MAY							NOVEMBER
						1		1	2	3	4	5	6
2	3	4	5	6	7	8	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
9	10	11	12	13	14	15	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
16	17	18	19	20	21	22	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
23	24	25	26	27	28	29	28	29	30
30	31
JUNE							DECEMBER
		1	2	3	4	5				1	2	3	4
6	7	8	9	10	11	12	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
13	14	15	16	17	18	19	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
20	21	22	23	24	25	26	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
27	28	29	30				26	27	28	29	30	31

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, }
LUCAS COUNTY. } ss.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE. FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

[SEAL] A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

SOME people are not as bad as they look, while others are a great deal worse.—Washington (Ia.) Democrat.

A COLD—sore and stiff. All right again. St. Jacobs Oil did it—cured.

YOU can make lots of headway sometimes by admitting you are wrong when you are not.—Life.

A CRUEL pain—sciatica. Its cure is sure. Use St. Jacobs Oil.

A POUND ov perswashun is better than a tou ov compulshun.—Truth.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI. Dec. 28.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	$2 75	@ 2 75
Select butchers	3 70	@ 4 10
CALVES—Fair to good light	5 25	@ 6 00
HOGS—Common	2 50	@ 3 10
Mixed packers	3 30	@ 3 35
Light shippers	3 35	@ 3 50
SHEEP—Choice	3 00	@ 3 50
LAMBS—Good to choice	4 25	@ 4 60
FLOUR—Winter family	3 60	@ 3 90
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 94
No. 3 red	—	@ 89
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 21¼
Oats—No. 2		@ 19½
Rye—No. 2		@ 35½
HAY—Prime to choice	10 00	@ 10 25
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@ 8 62½
Lard—Prime steam		@ 3 60
BUTTER—Choice dairy	15	@ 19
Prime to choice creamery		@ 22½
APPLES—Per bbl	1 25	@ 1 50
POTATOES—New, per bbl	90	@ 1 00
NEW YORK
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 90	@ 5 15
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 1 north'n		@ 94¼
No. 2 red	89⅛	@ 89¾
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@ 29
OATS—Mixed	22¼	@ 22½
PORK—New mess	8 25	@ 8 75
LARD—Western		@ 4 07½
CHICAGO
FLOUR—Winter patents	4 50	@ 4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	90¼	@ 90⅜
No. 2 Chicago spring	78⅜	@ 78⅝
CORN—No. 2	22½	@ 23
OATS—No. 2		@ 16¾
PORK—Mess	6 75	@ 6 80
LARD—Steam	3 72½	@ 3 75
BALTIMORE
FLOUR—Family	4 50	@ 4 85
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2	[illegible]	@ [illegible]
Corn—Mixed	28⅛	@ 28⅜
Oats—Mixed	25	@ 26
LARD—Refined		@ 11 00
PORK—Mess		@ [illegible]
CATTLE—First quality	3 10	@ 4 00
HOGS—Western	3 40	@ 3 50
INDIANAPOLIS
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@ 88
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 20
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 18½
LOUISVILLE
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 90
Corn—Mixed		@ 24
Oats—Mixed		@ 20
PORK—Mess		@ 7 75
LARD—Steam		@ 4 25

POOR YOUNG MAN—"Why do you treat me so unkindly?" Fashionable Girl—"Treat you unkindly? Why, what do you mean? Haven't I told you I wouldn't marry you?"—Somerville Journal.

SHE HAD READ THE PAPERS.—"Papa," said young Mrs. Hunker, "won't you please give George and me $10,000?" "What do you want that much money for?" "We want to build a $5,000 house."—Harlem Life.

"MAUD MUFFETT says that the age of chivalry has passed." "I guess she means she has passed the age when she may expect any."—Indianapolis Journal.

One Secret of Longevity.

Those anxious to prolong this rapid transitory existence of ours beyond the average span, should foster his digestion, negatively by abstaining from indiscretions in diet, and affirmatively by the use of that peerless stomachic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, when he experiences symptoms of indigestion. The impairment of the digestive function is fatal to vigor. Subdue with the Bitters, also, fever and ague, biliousness and constipation.

SOME young men would get along better if they had less point to their shoes and more to their conversation.—Springfield (Ill.) Register.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

If you want to quit tobacco using easily and forever, be made well, strong, magnetic, full of new life and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker that makes weak men strong. Many gain ten pounds in ten days. Over 400,000 cured. Buy No-To-Bac from your own druggist, who will guarantee a cure. Booklet and sample mailed free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

DAR'S so many hills on de road ter Heaven dat some folks misses de place entirely by buildin' a railroad 'round 'em.—Atlanta Constitution.

FITS stopped free and permanently cured. No fits after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Free $2 trial bottle & treatise. DR. KLINE, 933 Arch st., Phila., Pa.

PEOPLE expect too much credit for behaving themselves properly, when in fact it is really a debt they owe to society.—Milwaukee Journal.

THE HOSTESS—"I suppose there is no use in asking you to stay to dinner?" The Caller—"Not in that way."—N. Y. Tribune.

LIKE Oil Upon Troubled Waters, is Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar upon a cold. Pike's Toothache Drops Cure in one minute.

A WOMAN never thinks a bed is complete without a lot of fussy trimmings on the pillows.—Washington (Ia.) Democrat.

A CRUTCH is used for sprains. Use St. Jacobs Oil instead; it cures.

HOW TIME flies from the date on which a man distinguishes himself.—Washington Post.

COLD did it. Warmth cures it. Rheumatism is cured promptly by St. Jacobs Oil.

YOU can't tell the size ov a man by the noise he makes.—Truth.

JOB
ELECTROTYPING
—AND—
STEREOTYPING
OF THE HIGHEST GRADE
PROMPTLY EXECUTED BY
A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co.

We offer to our Customers and The Trade generally the most satisfactory work possible in these branches. Our facilities enable us to turn out work very rapidly. If you desire to release your type on some large job, send it to us for either stereotyping or electrotyping, and it will be returned to you promptly and in good order.

We make a specialty of Newspaper Headings and Cuts, and have the largest assortment in these lines to be found anywhere in the country from which to select.

A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO.,
429 Elm Street, Cincinnati, O.

LATEST and BEST WELL DRILLING MACHINES
100 feet to 2000 ft.
LOOMIS & NYMAN TIFFIN, OHIO

SOUTHERN HOMES IN TEXAS

In the celebrated Coast Country. Cheap and on reasonable terms, fruit, vegetable and field crop farms. Great production. Direct markets. Diversified crops. For land literature, maps, excursion rates and full information, write THE AMERICAN LAND COMPANY, 303 Roe Bldg., ST. LOUIS, MO.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Send for book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Atlanta, Ga.

GOVERNMENT Auction Guns, Revolvers, Swords, Saddles, Tents, Flags, Drums, Etc. Large Illus'd Catalogue free. BANNERMAN, 28 Front St., N. Y.

Yucatan, it is perfection.

A. N. K.—E. 1637

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS PLEASE state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

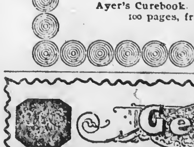
The Blue and the Gray.

Both men and women are apt to feel a little blue, when the gray hairs begin to show. It's a very natural feeling. In the normal condition of things gray hairs belong to advanced age. They have no business whitening the head of man or woman, who has not begun to go down the slope of life. As a matter of fact, the hair turns gray regardless of age, or of life's seasons; sometimes it is whitened by sickness, but more often from lack of care. When the hair fades or turns gray there's no need to resort to hair dyes. The normal color of the hair is restored and retained by the use of

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

Ayer's Curebook. "a story of cures told by the cured." 100 pages, free. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Get A Move On



THAT Listless, Aimless, Dull, Lack-Lustre feeling of yours shows that your internal machinery is running too slowly.

YOUR LIVER IS LAZY
BOWELS are languid
BLOOD is sluggish

Get a move on without delay, or you'll be a very sick person. Cascarets Candy Cathartic make your liver lively, your bowels regular, your blood pure, move your machinery. Buy a box to-day at your drug store, 10c, 25c, 50c, or mailed for price. Write for booklet and free sample.

Cascarets TRADE MARK. CANDY CATHARTIC CURE CHRONIC CONSTIPATION.

ADDRESS STERLING REMEDY COMPANY, CHICAGO; MONTREAL, CAN.; NEW YORK. 22[illegible]

BOONE : COUNTY : RECORDER.

Wednesday, Dec 30, 1896.

Rates of Subscription:

One year..............	$1 50.
Six months..................................	75.
Three months............................	40.

☞ Payable invariably in advance.

THE RECORDER
SOLICITS YOUR
Job Work,
NOTE HEADS,
LETTER HEADS,
ENVELOPES,
CARDS,
BILL HEADS,
STATEMENTS,
SALE BILLS,
AND HORSE BILLS,
Printed at the Lowest Prices consistent with neat work.
Send your order by mail and it will be attended promptly.

STATE NEWS.

Mrs. Dollie Sewall, aged 101, died at Richmond.

Gov. Bradley refused to pardon the 100 convicts who proposed to go to Cuba.

Mrs. Maria Thompson, of Harrodsburg, aged 80 years died in a coughing fit.

The Bowling Green street railway has been placed in the hands of a Receiver.

Emmett Orr and J. B. Hutcheson are silver candidates for Representative in Owen county.

Patrick Cuningham, a Hindoo, a Richmond recluse, was found in his room almost frozen. He died.

An immense crowd attended the dedication of the elegant, new Baptist church at Owenton Sunday.

Mrs. Amanda Milton has been county superintendent of schools in Madison county for twelve years.

Three men were killed and seven injured in a wreck on the Texas and Pacific railroad near Sodus, La.

Gov. Bradley is receiving hundreds of letters asking him to pardon Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling.

The Republicans are flirting with gold Democrats for a fusion on candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals.

The Baptist church ot Versailles is trying to secure the services of Rev. W. H. Felix, of Lexington, as pastor.

At a double wedding in Owenton, the other day, Congressman elect Settle's two daughters were the brides.

Detective Welch has arrested at Nicholasville two men whom he believes to be members of the gang of toll-gate raiders.

If Gov. Bradley's friends would only give him a small sized rest he will doubtless call that extra session and have it done with.—The Elkton Progress.

Judge Carroll charged the grand jury of Anderson county to use all possible means to bring the toll-gate raiders to justice.

The Big Sandy News: Hunter men are betting that a United States Senator will be elected before February 1.

There are 229 Kentuckians in the government service at Washington, drawing an aggregate salary of $274,560 per year.

A five-year-old son of M. H. Emmick, of Henry county, was instantly killed by being run over by a wagon load of tobacco.

The acreage of wheat sown in Jessamine county this year is 20 per cent larger than last year, owing to the clover all being killed.

Five members of the family of Charles W. Phillips, of Covington, were poisoned at Christmas dinner by eating canned corn. No deatbs.

The Paducah Sun: Gov. Bradley's time is all occupied by considering petitions for pardons and petitions for an extra session of the Legislature.

The Anderson county grand jury examined over 100 witnesses in an attempt to discover the toll-gate raiders. No indictments were returned.

Alfred Holt, colored, who murdered police officer White, of Owensboro, was taken from the jail there and hanged, last Friday night by a mob of about 20 men.

Some time since Miss Annie Waldrop, of Corinth, Grant county, answered the advertisement of a man asking for a wife. The wedding occurred one day last week.

Squire Levi Rice, aged 55 years a prominent Fayette county farmer, living near Fort Springs, six miles from Versailles, dropped dead from heart failure while standing in his yard.

John Monroe, of Farmers, was put in jail on christmas eve for drunkenness. That night the jail burnt, next morning Monroe's charred remains were taken from the ruins. He had a wife and several children.

Undertaker J. H. Stagg, who has been in business since 1860, sat down Tuesday to count up the number of people he had buried. At 4,115 he quit to rest and will finish the job some other day.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

A sentence to the penitentiary has no effect on the pilfering proclivities of this Bourbon county thief. The Paris News says: "John Neal, a Millersburg negro, who was sentenced the other day to the 'pen, for two years for stealing wheat from a railroad car, has nerve enough to steal the hat off a man's head. While being taken from the court room to jail he stole Judge Mann's hat off a table inside the bar, while in full sight of the presiding judge and jury, which gave him two years for stealing. The theft was discovered and the hat was recovered before Neal reached the gate of the court-house yard."

The Paris News tells of a queer character, who for a number of years has been an inmate of the Bourbon County Infirmary: "She is seventy-five years old, is now living with her seventh husband, and has changed her religion five times. As the widow of her sixth husband she was entitled to a pension, and application for the bounty was quickly followed by a request for a permit to take unto herself husband No. 7. who is blind. Being advised that the marriage would invalidate her pension claim, she was told to choose between a pension and a husband. She meditated a moment and replied: 'I don't know the value of a pension, but I do know a husband's value. Gimme the husband.'"

The Dover News relates a snake story that is a little out of the ordinary line of such narrations: "Quite a number of years ago Mr. Felton Owens who will be remembered by many older citizens, saw a blacksnake crawl into a hole in a log. He made a plug and drove it tightly into the hole, securely imprisoning the snake. He made a note of the day, even to the very hour and minute of the imprisonment, told his friends about it, and one year later took several of his neighbors as witnesses, and stood with his watch in his hand while the others prepared to split the log with maul and wedge. In exactly one year to a minute the log was split open and the snake ran out alive, shooting out its tongue as saucily as if it had not been shut up five minutes instead of a year."

James Brooks is again occupying a cell in the penitentiary. Several years ago Brooks was sent to the penitentiary for life from Madison County. In April, 1895, he was pardoned by Governor Brown on condition that he would leave the State and never return. Brooks tried to work a slick scheme on Governor Bradley by returning here and asking the Governor to restore his citizenship. He evidently thought that this would be done without asking any questions, but the Governor looked over the executive journal and found that Brooks had violated the conditions of his pardon. The Governor quietly sent for an officer, who placed Brooks under arrest and took him back to the penitentiary. Brooks took it very coolly when the officer arrested him and bowed politely to the Governor as he left, saying "I have been caught napping."

It is said that the word has come from Canton to the Kentucky Republicans that they need expect no federal pie until they elect a United States Senator, and that the message is causing some pretty lively hustling among the party leaders in this State. The boys want the pie, and want it badly.

Spain has two wars on her hands, and has made no headway in either, and yet she pretends that she is ready to go to war with this country should it interfere in the interest of the Cubans. If Spain can not suppress a rebellion in a small island, what can she expect to gain by going to war with a first-class power?

Toll-gate raiders have made their appearance in Indiana. They are more to be dreaded than the Kentucky specie, as they assault and beat the gate keepers in a most unmerciful manner. A Dispatch from Kokomo says forty-four farmers have been arrested for destroying toll gates and assaulting and beating the keepers in that section of the State.

The Louisville Commercial, although positive the Republicans will elect the next United States Senator, is doubtful as to the ability of the successfull aspirant, but fails to state who it believes he will be. It says: "In other days Kentucky Senators ranked with the highest in the nation. Nobody knows what sort of a Senator we are likely to have now."

It is claimed that Dr. Hunter has a dead sure thing on the Bepublican caucuss nomination for Senator in the event a special session of the legislature is called. His strength in the caucuss is placed at forty votes. Hunter captured the nomination once, but he could not win, and should he be nominated again his election would not be assured thereby. There is a strong opposition to him in his party, and it is lead by the Governor.

A Frankfort correspondent writes: If an extra session is called and a Republican Senator is elected by means of the seventy Republican votes, the Blackburn people have already decided they will go before the United States Senate with a contest and ask the Senators to do something they never did before—to go behind the returns and pass upon the qualifications of these legislators who voted for and elected the new Senator. They will claim that this new Senator was elected by the votes of Lieberth, Speed, Crumbaugh and Stoll, or could not have been elected without them: that all of these men were ineligible to hold the seats they held, and were not therefore entitled to vote for Senator or to have their votes counted.

The Entertainment.

The entertainment given at the court house, last Saturday evening, by Prof. A. C. Collins and Paul R. Hallam, was attended by a very large crowd. An elaborate program—musical and literary—was presented, and the audience was liberal with its applause.

Prof. Pryor, of Walton, recited several selections, tully sustaining his reputation as a polished elocutionist. To J. M. Bagby, of Walton, cornetist; Prof. W. E. Cook, of Cincinnati; Paul R. Hallam, of Washington, D. C.; Herbert McKim, Misses Sadie Gaines and Annie and Lottie Garrison, pianists, and E. S. McKim, violinist, were assigned the musical department of the program, and their contributions were of a high order and well rendered. Miss Frances Carpenter, of Chicago; Ella Duncan, Bulah Gaines, Edna Cowen and Mr. E. S. McKim, each sang a solo that delighted the large audience. Miss Fannie Willis read a well prepared essay.

The programme was carried out in strict accord with the advertisement. In this connection Messrs. Collins and Hallam desire to thank the Hockett & Pontenny Co., of Cincinnati, for the use of the piano they so kindly loaned for the entertainment.

In Sedalia, Mo., a merchant was fatally shot by a trap gun he had set for burglars.

CROP AND STOCK.

Ben Atherton, of Nelson county, has a pig with three ears.

Sheriff Lane, of Bath county, butchered a 675 pound hog.

E. C. Browning, of Fayette county, has a hog that weighs 850 pounds.

L. C. Craven, of Christian county, killed a hog 310 days old which netted 310 pounds.

A Crittenden county farmer killed a hog that weighed 1,250 pounds and yielded 100 gallons of lard.

The Woodford Sun says: Mr. R. R. Early sold his wheat crop of 2,500 bushels for $1 00 per bushel. He has also sold 1,500 bushels of corn for $1,00 per barrel on his place.

Some Kentucky National Democrats sent to the National Democrats of Dudley township, Haskell county, Kansas, a ten-gallon cask of old whisky and a check for $50 for a Christmas present, in recognition of the fact that the township went for Palmer and Buckner.

It is to be hoped that the Democrats of Owen county will be able to show to the world that election frauds at the last election as charged against them by the Republicans, were not committed—that the charge as proclaimed to the world has no foundation whatever.

Some fiend in human form placed an obstruction on a high railroad bridge in Alabama, the other day, and threw a passenger train into the river. Several persons were killed, and a large number wounded. The lynchers ought to be ready for business if the wreckers is captured.

The following new swindle is being worked in different counties in Ohio. Swindler No. 1 calls upon a farmer with a patent wagon tongue, and informs him that he is on his way home having made a good thing of it, and has only one county to sell. He tells the farmer he can have it for $250, and if he wants it to write to him. In a few days swindler No. 2 comes along. He has heard that the farmer has the right of the county for the patent wagon tongue, and, as he made a big thing of it in Pennsylvania, he wants to buy the county, and offers the farmer $300 and pays ten to bind the bargain. The farmer writes to No. 1 and sends to him his note for $250. He never hears of either of the men again but this note comes up for collection in a neighboring town and he is out $240.

From the reading of yesterday's papers, Spain is about ready to abandon the war with Cuba.

Annual report of the Boone County Farmers' Insurance Company, 1896:

No. policies in operation January 1, 1896........		1,017
No. issued in 1896...........	204
No. expiring & cancelled	196—	8
No. in operation Jany 1, '97....		1,025
Amount of property insured January 1st, 1896		$1,281,766
Amount insured during the year................	$219,976
Amt. expiring and cancelled	212,002—	7,974
Total amt. insured Jan. 1, '97		$1,289,740

FINANCIAL EXHIBIT:

Cash in hand of Treasurer January 1, 1897..	$371 00
Cash on policy fees...........	449 43
Cash on assessments..........	4,011 54
	$4,831 97

EXPENDITURES.

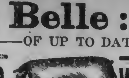
W. L. Riddell	$ 13,75
H. F. Duncan..........	10,00
J. P. Ryle's loss.......	5,00
G. O. Hafer's loss....	3,00
Bradford Bros.' loss	1,50
Eddie Ryle's loss.....	15,00
G. M. Allen's loss.....	10,25
W. B Vickers's loss	5,00
E. E. Stephen's loss	3,25
A. P. Marshall's loss	6,00
Wm. Kenney's loss	1,700,00
B. B. Allphin's loss	500,00
J. W. Northcutt's	200,00
Wm. Underhill's...	500,00
Clint Gaines' loss...	690,00
T. J. McNeal's loss	375,00
F. P. Walton, rent.	35,00
R. S. Cowen asses'r	20,50
Rebates	8,01
D. E. Lawell and others elect. officers	6,00
L. Gaines...............	,90
R. Rice......	,80
J. S. Huey, com'r	8,00
J. Stephens, "......	26,00
L. Gaines, "	26,00
J. W. Conner's "	24,00
N. S. Walton, "	16,00
J. E. Duncan, Treas	50,00
O. Gaines, Sec'ty...	175,00
Stationery.............	39,00—	4,472 96
Balance........		$359 01

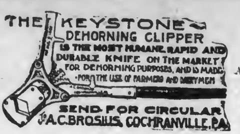
Delinquents:

Wm. Kenney's loss......	$14,65.
N. A. & W.,..................	18,04.
Clint Gaines' loss.........	27,79.
T. J. McNeal's loss.	36,83.

Oscar Gaines, Secretary.

PURE BRED CHESTER WHITE HOGS.
La : Belle : Herd
—OF UP TO DATE—
CHESTER WHITE HOGS.





THE KEYSTONE DEHORNING CLIPPER
IS THE MOST HUMANE, RAPID AND DURABLE KNIFE ON THE MARKET FOR DEHORNING PURPOSES, AND IS MADE FOR THE USE OF FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN
SEND FOR CIRCULAR
A.C.BROSIUS, COCHRANVILLE, PA.

Also agent for Dehorner, and AEROMETER either geared or pumping.
Write for circulars.

EVERY FARMER NEEDS ONE.
AEROMETER

COME AND SEE IT.
Best and Cheapest Wind-Mill Made.

T. J. HUGHES, - - - BEAVER LICK, KY.

GRAEFENHAN'S
POPULAR
Dry GOODS STORE.
Calicoes, Muslins, Canton Flannels, Wool Flannels, Dress Goods, Stockings, Mitts, Underwear, Comforts, Blankets and
PRETTY HOLIDAY GOODS.
By doing a strictly Cash Business it has been very easy to under sell all others. Come and see us
H. F. GRAEFENHAN,
21 Walnut St., - Lawrenceburg, Ind.

HOLIDAY GOODS
—CONSISTING OF—
Watches, Clocks, Jewelery, Silverware & Spectacles
Of all kinds and a large Assortment of Novelties. See us before buying as we can save you money.
J. D. WARD, 2 doors above bank In Clark Building, Rising Sun, Ind.

J. J. GEISEN,
HATTER AND GENT'S
FURNISHING GOODS,
615 Madison Ave., COVINGTON, KY.
Mr. HARRY INGRAN, of Erlanger, SALESMAN.

E. H. RIGGS,
—Dealer in—
HARDWATE, STOVES, LIME,
—CEMENT, ETC.—
TIN, IRON AND SLATE ROOFING.
FLY SCREENS NOW ON HAND.
Erlanger, : : : KY.

METROPOLITAN COUPE AND LIVERY COMPANY.
62 & 64 West Sixth St., Cincinnati, Ohio,
E. H. BAKER, Proprietor
(o)
Horses and Vehicles for Hire at Reasonable Rates.
Horses and Second-Hand Buggies for Sale.
Horses Sold on Commission.
Telephone 580.

NOTICE of REMOVAL.
☞ We desire to inform our patrons that we have removed our office
And FEED STORE from
708 Madison Avenue
To the Large and more Commodious Quarters,
15 East Seventh Street, Near Madison Avenue.
Where it shall be our aim to serve our customers with
GRAIN, HAY AND MILL FEED
At the Lowest Market Values.
Thanking you for past favors and hoping we may merit a continuance of same, we remain, yours respectfully,
W. J. RAMSEY & CO., Covington, Ky.

HANKINS, DAVIS & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANTS,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, KY.
)—(
A good supply of Campbell's Creek Coal on hand at Constance at all times. A good supply of feed always in stock. Garden and Field Seeds.
)—(
UNDERTAKING.
is given special attention. Funerals under the personal supervision of J. C. Hankins.
Hebron. HANKINS, DAVIS & CO. Constance.

TAKE THE RECORDER.